Speaker of Pyidaungsu Hluttaw attends conference on dissemination of Red Cross education

U T Khun Myat, Speaker of Pyidaungsu and Pyithu Hluttaw, attended the conference on disseminating knowledge of Red Cross education at the Thabin Hall, Hluttaw Building in Nay Pyi Taw yesterday afternoon. Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Deputy Speaker U Tun Tun Hein, Union Minister for Health and Sports Dr. Myint Htwe, Hluttaw representatives, officials and staff of Hluttaw's offices, Chairman of Myanmar Red Cross Society and its executive committee members, officials from the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and Red Crescent Societies were present at the conference.

In his opening speech, U T Khun Myat said that the activities of the Myanmar Red Cross Society have been operated as a branch of the Indian Red Cross Society since 1920 in Myanmar. In 1937, The Burma Red Cross Society obtained official, national status and was recognized by the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) in 1939. Myanmar became a member of the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (IFRC) in 1946.

Following this, the Burma Red Cross Act was enacted in 1959 and additional amendments in 1964, 1971, and 1988, with a view to performing humanitarian activities as always. The Burma Red Cross Act has existed for over 50 years, and the MRCS new law was enacted by the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Law No. (52/2015) in accordance with the changes of its formation, functions and roles. Consequently the amendments of the MRCS were made by Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Law No. (18/2018).

In the implementation process of the law, relevant ministries were urged to carry out the rules at the soonest possible time.

With the aim of preventing misuse of the Red Cross Symbol, the draft law for using the Red Cross Symbol law has already been drawn up and the Hluttaws would strive to enact the law.

In carrying out the humanitarian functions, there has been cooperation with ICRC, IFRC and other Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement partners, and the MRCS has laid down its strategic goals for 2016-2020. The Hluttaws would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the MRCS and its members for providing humanitarian assistance in the rehabilitation process of Rakhine State. That the President of the Republic of Myanmar has become a patron of the MRCS (MRCS) showed that the MRCS has been regarded in high esteem.

We believe that the purposes of the MRCS could be fulfilled through the cooperation of the Union Government. The conference has included a question and answer session for Hluttaw representatives which could create good opportunities to develop the humanitarian process of the MRCS. The purpose of the MRCS is to alleviate human suffering. With this view in mind that efforts should be made to render necessary assistance regardless of time and place, added the the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Speaker U T Khun Myat.

Next, Chairman of the MRCS Prof. Dr. Daw Mya Thu clarified the formation, functions and humanitarian process of the MRCS. ICRC Senior Advisor U Moe Myint Aung, Senior Management Service Manager U Kyaw Oo Khaing and General Secretary of the MRCS U Khin Maung Hla explained about procedures and ongoing process of the MRCS. Following this, officials concerned answered and clarified the queries raised by the participants. The MRCS has also actively providing humanitarian assistance to an average of 500,000 people in Myanmar every year.

MAB to offer loans up to Ks500 mn to SMEs

By Nyein Nyein

THE Myanmar Apex Bank will offer loans of up to Ks500 million to small and medium enterprises (SMEs) under a new scheme. A press conference was organized at Tower B of the Union Financial Center yesterday to announce the loan scheme.

The scheme, under which SMEs engaged in trading, service, and manufacturing businesses will be provided loans, has been launched with technical assistance from the German Development Bank (KfW) and Germany-based International Project Consults. The KfW has also contributed nearly Ks10.6 billion towards SME funding.

“The MAB has received nearly Ks10.6 billion as loan from the KfW. The bank will also use some money deposited in savings accounts to offer the SME-KfW loans,” said U Zaw Moe Aung, the Deputy Chief Business Officer of MAB.

“The MAB is offering two types of five-year loans. The first is a working capital loan to finance the everyday operations of a business such as sales and marketing, product development, and wages. The second is a long-term, fixed rate, investment loan to purchase machinery, equipment, and buy property. The bank is offering loans of Ks10 million to Ks500 million under the scheme, and its grace period is maximum five years.”

“We have two types of SME loans - an SME-KW loan with maximum lending amount of Ks100 million and an SME-MAB loan for Ks500 million,” said U Zaw Moe Aung.

The MAB opened its first SME Center on 28 November at its Thirimingala market Branch near the new Thirimingala market. The bank is using a cash flow-based approach as it can help applicants obtain financing much faster, as an appraisal of collateral is not required.

“Normally, banks offer commercial loans to currently established corporates. For example, businesses must meet the minimum three-year working requirement. They need to present a financial statement and business tax receipt. But now eligibility criteria for SMEs somewhat less rigid, and judged by cash-flow analysis of the business. We offer relief for SME loans regarding some document verification requirements,” said U Zaw Moe Aung.

The bank will evaluate SME loan amounts depending on customers’ capital requirements and risk assessment. The interest rate has been set at 8.5 per cent for the SME-KW loans and 13 per cent for the SME-MAB loans. However, those businesses which have social impact will not get access to credit, according to MAB.

“The SME loans are currently available for businesses in Yangon. We will make efforts to offer credit through our 94 branches across the country. More SME centers will be opened. I am very delighted to be a part of the development of SMEs, the backbone of the country’s economy. We will push for further activities to help the SMEs grow,” said U Kyaw Ni Khin, the chief business officer of MAB.

At present, shares of five listed companies — First Myanmar Investment (FMI), Myanmar Thilawa SEZ Holdings (MTSH), Myanmar Citizens Bank (MCB), First Private Bank (FPB), and TMH Telecom Public Co. Ltd. — are being traded on the exchange.

This year, the YSX has witnessed an increase in its stock trade matching time from two to four per day. Only 15 per cent of 36,000 securities accounts are active. Stock trading this year is on the low side. In order for the stock market to grow in momentum, government support is vital. With the support of the government, more public companies will be encouraged to participate in the stock market and more institutional investors such as financing companies, investment banks, and insurance companies will emerge,” said U Thet Htun Oo, an executive senior manager at the YSX.

The value of stock trades of the five listed companies on the YSX were pegged at Ks1.21 billion in January, Ks746 million in February, Ks778 million in March, Ks875 million in April, Ks809 million in May, touching an all-time low of Ks666 million in June, totalling Ks1.23 billion in July, and peaking at Ks1.5 billion in August. Thereafter, trade has seen a downward trend, with estimated trade values of Ks954.6 million in September and Ks780 million in October. Seventh conference on media development held

The 7th Conference on Media Development in Myanmar was held at the Park Royal Hotel in Nay Pyi Taw yesterday. The conference entitled, ‘Building Effective Partnerships in Myanmar’s Media Development’, focused on legislation, freedom, safety, and sustainability of the media.

The Union Minister for Information, Dr. Pe Myint, Deputy Minister U Aung Hla Tun, Hlut-taw representatives, ambassadors based in Myanmar, officials from international organizations and ministries, and invited guests attended the event.

Current media landscape in Myanmar

The first responsibility of the Ministry of Information is to disseminate information to the public and for doing so, the print and broadcast media of the government are mainly responsible for facilitating communication between the government and the general public, said Dr. Pe Myint at the conference.

Myanmar is striving to establish a democratic federal union, and the present Hlut-taw has been elected by the people and the government has been formed through the Hlut-taw for the people, he said. As both the Hlut-taw and the government have been elected by the people, it is their duty to report to the people about their undertakings for the nation and its citizens, he added.

These duties are being shoul dered by the state-run media, said the Union Minister. Future governments will have the media to connect with the public and the media may continue to exist in its current form or adapt to a more suitable form in the future, he said.

The Union Minister said his ministry is working to ensure private media flourishes as well. He said the previous government permitted publications of weekly and daily newspapers and journals, while new broadcasting channels were expanded under the current administration, including the establishment of a pilot community radio. He said the community radio project is in preparation for a time when strong laws and bylaws related to the media are enacted.

The Union Minister said the government has worked to ensure all journalists have access to information. He urged journalists and media organizations to build mutual trust to develop the media landscape. He said the government will continue to work for the development of the media.

Freedom of Expression and development of journalism

The Union Minister then discussed ‘Freedom of Expression, Freedom of Press’, one of the topics at the conference. He said freedom of expression and speech is a tremendously important topic and is directly related to the development of journalism.

Thus, there is always a desire to ensure this freedom, said the Union Minister. The government has always tried to enlist cooperation on that matter in meetings with domestic and international media organizations, he said, adding they have been unable to effectively cooperate on the matter last two years.

The Union Minister said he has heard statements claiming there is no freedom of press in Myanmar and that the situation in the country has been deteriorating in recent years. He advised people who made such statements to carefully scrutinize the situation before generalizing and expressing blame.

Only then will those in charge be able to review any existing shortcomings, he said.

The Union Minister asked people to research how many newspapers and journals covered government leaders, departments and processes and to what extent in the three years following the abolition of the prepublication censorship in 2012, and to compare it to the situation in the two years since the incumbent administration assumed office. He suggested commissioning an external research professional or external research professional in recent years. He advised people who made such statements to carefully scrutinize the situation before generalizing and expressing blame.

However some private schools, education service providers and foreign universities or education organizations were not permitted under laws related to Ministry of Education and were providing their services as education service companies registered under Company Registration Law and rules at Directorate of Investment and Company Administration, Ministry of Planning and Finance. There are difficulties to authenticate and evaluate diploma, degree, master and doctorate granted at such schools and entities under the National Education Law and the amendment to that law.

At the moment the ministry is striving toward enacting the private school law and prior to the enactment of this law, the ministry will cooperate with Myanmar Investment Commission in reviewing, suggesting and evaluating proposals made to the commission to conduct education services said the Union Minister.

Next, Dr. Daw Khin Sithu of Loikaw constituency asked if the Union Government has plan to train and appoint qualified librarians and library staff to establish quality libraries that will benefit the students and teachers. Union Minister for Education Dr. Myo Thein Gyi said that in academic year 2018-2019 there is a total of in 47,005 basic education primary, middle and high schools out of which 26,212 schools had libraries. In academic year 2019-2020, Basic Education Department had made arrangements to provide books shelves and cabinets as well as books to schools that didn’t have libraries. For schools that had libraries, a teacher is responsible for the library supported by a library team members consisting of teachers and group leaders of school councils. At the moment no specific position is assigned or appointment made as librarian in a school library. However, school library development works were conducted in cooperation with Myanmar Library Association, MBAPE, Daw Khin Kyi Foundation and Shanti Volunteer Association of Japan said the Union Minister. Department of Higher Education is conducting ordinary courses as well as master courses on library and research subject to develop library works. Diploma courses on library were also conducted while actual practical courses were conducted at the libraries said the Union Minister in his explanation to the question.

A journalist has a responsibility to deliver correct information to the public, and that responsibility can be considered the most important duty of a journalist. At the same time, as he or she is a citizen, he or she should have the spirit of being patriotic. The second and most important quote I want to tell is what President U Win Myint said at the swearing in ceremony of the Myanmar Press Council last month. In the five points proposed by the President, the first four points are related to the rights and responsibility of news media personnel.

Raise the image of the country through the power of media

The fifth point urged media personnel to serve their country as citizens. I would like to reiterate the president’s request, when he said, “Raise the image of the country in which we were born, bring forth pride and dignity to its people through the power of the news media”.

Similarly, Resident Representative of the UNESCO Ms. Min Jeong Kim and Ambassador of Sweden to Myanmar Mr. Stefan Herrstrom delivered opening remarks.

After the opening session, the discussion continued focusing on topics including legal reforms to freedom of expression, right of access to information, implementation of broadcasting laws and rules, security of media personnel and sustainability of local media in the transformation period from traditional to the digital media. The Media Development Conference was held for six times in Myanmar. The first one was held from 19 to 20 March, 2012, the second from 20 to 21 May 2013, the third from 18 to 19 September, 2014, the fourth from 10 to 11 December 2015, the fifth from 7 to 8 November, 2016 and the sixth was from 7 to 8 December, 2017.

A total of 400 participants; including 180 people from the Orphans Reduction and Protection Association, Nay Pyi Taw, Women Affairs Federation, Myanmar maternal and child welfare association, departmental staff, women organizations and 220 people from townships took part in the activity.

The activity is a part of the 16-day campaign titled “16 Days of Activism Against Gender-Based Violence” launched with an officially ceremony in Nay Pyi Taw on 28 November. —MNA

Education comprises more than just traditional schooling. People with a keen sense of curiosity and a desire to pursue lifelong learning are the ones who become valuable assets to their country.

U Aung Htooe

As all the countries are working out in a competitive world, the year 2018 witnessed that Singapore reached out to second position on our index, and we are all for the year 2017. When all the countries moving ahead in the competition times, we could expect that the outcome could be elevated in 2018. We are very keen in achieving the targeted markets during the period 2018. Daw Hnin Maw Oo: We are working on two parts. The first part is in the theme that what we need to make sure as a main strategy to get the information on the numbers. We can only get the information on the number of floors, and that the process have come to be the easy and smooth ride.

We have different examination and scrutiny with regards to the number of floors, and that they are divided in separate approaches for the two-storied, the four-storied to the eight-storied, room to the ninety-storied, and the four-storied style. Each category has been divided into different departments where the Myanmar Bank suggested that in addition to the number of storied in the structures, the room to the ninety-storied, and the four-storied style, we should also divide the relevant department and consult the structures and the floor levels which have been taken into consideration.

In this connection, the matter has been acknowledged that we are providing easy access to under three-storied and four-storied buildings, as the structures have the number of floors and the floor levels. Thus, we have not awarded with point markers.

We have explained that beginning 1 April 2018, and that we have skipped the “LS” matter and accepted only through the recognized personnel. They promised to access across either this next year.

Moreover, they insisted to upload the qualifications with regard to the professionals such as Myanmar Architectural Council and Myanmar Engineering Council in our country. We also showed the relaciones with the relevant department and consult the structures and the floor levels which have been taken into consideration.

Another point is issue on the submission of applications. People are restricted for the number of papers all the relevant data and information, which should be submitted with the matters with regards to the application. We have already prescribed the comprehension application form.

Another factor is about the fire safety in buildings which is related to the fire services department. In connection with the possible use of the buildings, whether the recommendation and approval is valid or not. Changes to be made within three months are the short term matter which is connected to the government and the building permits, the other persons will get the fire safety matters remained to be considered.

They also advised to review the building code and to work out in the similar way. We are committed to the building code and the relevant depositions and guidelines. Fire safety matters remained to be considered.

Another point is issue on the submission of applications. People have a keen sense of curiosity and a desire to pursue lifelong learning are the ones who become valuable assets to their country.

‘Upcycling’ exhibition to be held in Yangon

An exhibition on upcycling entitled ‘Pure Gold’ will be held at the Secretariat Building in downtown Yangon, Myanmar, from 15 December 2018 to 6 January 2019.

The design exhibition is coming to Yangon after Hamburg, London, and Bangkok. It will feature the original show that comprises 76 exhibits by 53 designers from all over the world.

Upcycling refers to transforming rubbish into useful, beautiful objects. ‘Pure Gold’ will be the first such exhibition for Myanmar. “For Pure Gold Myanmar, the works of international design artists will be combined with a broad range of demonstrations and workshops by local artisans, designers, and artists. They have been applying the principle of upcycling garbage and adding value to waste to develop useful objects for years,” said Franz Xaver Augustin, the Director of Goethe-Institute Myanmar.

Local upcycling specialists will share their expertise at the exhibition, and invite visitors to take part in Do-It-Yourself projects that demonstrate how easy and fun it is to transform waste.

One of the attractions of the show will be a giant “nagar”, a mythical dragon-like creature, winding its bamboo body through the entire exhibition space.

The entire project, organized in collaboration with Hla Day, Chu Chu, the Goethe-Institute Myanmar, and Berlin-based ifa (Institute for Foreign Cultural Relations), aims to bring about art, design, education, and environmental awareness. The exhibition will be open to the public free of charge.—GNLM

Xi-Trump meeting provides direction for China-US relations, say experts

BEIJING — The meeting between Chinese President Xi Jinping and his US counterpart Donald Trump in Buenos Aires provides direction for China-US relations in the time to come, according to experts.

Zhang Yuyan, Director of Institute of World Economics and Politics Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, has said this to Xinhua in an interview.

The important meeting between Xi and Trump happened in a critical time, Zhang added.

According to Zhang, Xi and Trump had an in-depth exchange of views through friendly and candid meeting, which sends a positive signal to the world that the two countries have good faith in solving problems and managing differences.

“It is very good news for export-oriented enterprises in China and US as both parties agree not to impose new additional tariffs,” Zhang said. It would ease uncertainty for world economic growth, bring benefits to both countries, and boost the confidence of global investors, added Zhang.

Based on reciprocity, mutual benefit and mutual respect, the win-win cooperation between China and US could be achieved through communication and negotiation instead of confrontation, Zhang concluded.

Su Ge, Chairman of China National Committee for Pacific Economic Cooperation, echoed.

Su believed that the important consensus reached by Xi and Trump would offer direction for future China-US relations.

Su told Xinhua that cooperation in the best option for both China and US, and both sides should jointly advance bilateral relations with coordination, cooperation and stability as the defining features.

“It is very natural for China and US to have disputes in fields of economy and trade.” Su said, adding “resolving all issues at one meeting may not be possible, it requires mutual efforts from both parties in the long run.” —Xinhua

Malaysia financier faces new charges in 1MDB scandal

KUALA LUMPUR (Malaysia) — Fugitive Malaysian financier Low Taek Jho is facing new charges of laundering more than $1.0 billion in a massive corruption scandal surrounding state fund 1MDB, police said on Wednesday.

The extraordinary 1MDB controversy allegedly saw billions funnelled into a Malaysian government investment fund, fuelling a worldwide spending spree including on super yachts and Van Gogh artwork.

Low, commonly known as Jho Low, is accused of playing a central role in plundering the investment fund.

He was an associate of Malaysia’s former leader Najib Razak, whose government lost power in May in large part due to allegations that the then premier was involved in the vast fraud. Since being ousted, Najib has been hit with a barrage of charges linked to the scandal. He denies any wrongdoing.

The new money laundering charges, allegedly committed between 2009 and 2014, were filed in a court in the capital Kuala Lumpur on Tuesday.

Besides Low, 37 others linked to 1MDB including a business development manager and a finance director were also hit with charges including criminal breach of trust.

“A large number of investigations has been obtained from the court and efforts are being intensified to arrest the five individuals who have left Malaysia,” Mohamad Fuzi Harun, inspector-general of police, said in a statement.

The additional charges include five for allegedly laundering $1.0 billion and another two for laundering $126 million. —AFP

Permafrost: a climate time bomb?

YAKUTSK (Russia) — The Earth’s vast tracts of permafrost hold billions of tonnes of planet-heating greenhouse gases that scientists warn will be released by global warming, along with diseases long locked into the ice.

Here is some background.

A quarter of the north

Permafrost — soil that is frozen, although not necessarily permanently as it name implies — is found mostly in the Northern Hemisphere, where it covers about a quarter of exposed land and is generally thousands of years old.

It covers a wide belt between the Arctic Circle and boreal forests, spanning Alaska, Canada, northern Europe and Russia. Permafrost exists to a lesser degree in the Southern Hemisphere where there is less ground to freeze, including in the South American Andes and below Antarctica.

It can vary in depth from a few metres to more than 100.

Tones of locked-in carbon

Locked into the permafrost is an estimated 1.7 trillion tonnes of carbon in the form of frozen organic matter — the remains of rotted plants and long-dead animals trapped in sediment and later covered by ice sheets.

When permafrost thaws, this matter warms up and decomposes, eventually releasing the carbon that it holds as carbon dioxide (CO2) and methane, gases which have a greenhouse warming effect on the planet. Permafrost soils contain roughly twice as much carbon — mainly in the form of methane and CO2 — as Earth’s atmosphere. Most of the carbon stocks are thought to reside fairly close to the surface.

Vicious circle of warming

The release of greenhouse gases threatens a vicious circle in the warming of the Earth, jeopardising the objective set in the 2015 Paris Agreement to strive to limit the rise in temperature to 1.5 degrees Celsius (2.7 degrees Fahrenheit) above pre-industrial levels.

CO2 is the most abundant greenhouse gas blamed for global warming but methane is 25 times more effective at trapping heat. Adding these into the atmosphere will spur thawing of the permafrost and free up more locked-up carbon.

Even if global warming were stabilised at around 2°C, research points to a 30-per cent loss of permafrost by 2100, researcher Susan Natali of the Woods Hole Research Center told 2015 climate talks in Bonn.

This could reach up to 70 per cent assuming emissions continue on their current trajectory, her research said, warning that “emissions from permafrost could lead to out-of-control global warming”.

Frozen diseases?

The thawing of the permafrost also threatens to unlock disease-causing bacteria and viruses long trapped in the ice.

There have already been some cases of this happening. In 2016 a child died in Russia’s far northern Siberia in an outbreak of anthrax that scientists said seemed to have come from the corpses of infected reindeers buried 70 years before but uncovered by melting permafrost.

In 2014 scientists revived a giant but harmless virus, dubbed Pithovirus sibiricum, that had been locked in the Siberian permafrost for more than 30,000 years.

Risks to roads, pipelines

A permafrost thaw could be a boon for the oil and mining industries, providing access to previously difficult-to-reach reserves.

But it also presents a serious and costly threat to infrastructure, risking mudslides and damage to buildings, roads and pipelines.

A Greenpeace report published in 2009 said thawing soil in Russia’s permafrost zones caused failures of pipelines and risked the danger of gas leaks.

New Caledonians ordered to shelters in tsunami alert after big quake

NOUMEAL (France) — A shallow and powerful 7.5-magnitude earthquake that struck off New Caledonia on Wednesday prompted a tsunami alert and evacuations on the Pacific island, authorities said.

The Pacific Tsunami Warning Centre said that tsunami waves had been “observed” in the region but did not say where.

Residents of New Caledonia, which lies north of New Zealand, received text messages directing them to go to shelters immediately, with waves of up to three metres possible, according to the warning centre.

But people in New Caledonia and nearby Vanuatu said they did not feel the quake, and tsunami warning sirens were not immediately activated in Vanuatu.

“Hazardous tsunami waves are forecast for some coasts,” the Pacific Tsunami Warning Centre said, after earlier warning that the danger zone included “coasts located within 1000 kilometres of the earthquake epicentre.”

The epicentre was some 300 kilometres east of Noumea. Several after-shocks were reported as the tsunami centre warned of waves of up to three metres above tidal levels for New Caledonia and Vanuatu and up to one metre for some parts of Fiji.

New Zealand authorities issued a similar tsunami warning after the quake, but that was quickly rescinded.

Scottish iPhone filmmaker wins Turner Prize

LONDON (United Kingdom)— An openly gay Scottish artist who celebrated queer lives in a short film shot on an iPhone won Britain's prestigious Turner Prize on Tuesday. This year’s four finalists for one of the world’s most coveted visual arts awards featured works packed with political punch. Scotland's Charlotte Prodger came out on top at a glitzy reception at London's Tate Museum for a 33-minute visual compilation called BHGDTT.

The jury said Prodger’s work “meanders through disparate associations ranging from JD Sports and standing stones to 1970s lesbian separatism and Jimi Hendrix’s sound recordist. “Her work explores issues surrounding queer identity, landscape, language technology and time.” The 44-year-old Glasgow-based artist—dressed in a simple white T-shirt for the occasion—said she felt “quite overwhelmed”. “The stories that I am telling, although they are mine and are personal, are stories that a lot of people—well, I guess queer people—have experienced,” she told the BBC after picking up her £25,000 ($32,000, 28,000-euro) prize.

Prodger had been working in relative anonymity for 20 years before making her breakthrough by being picked to represent Scotland at this year’s Venice Biennale arts exhibition. “I guess my work is quite personal, and it’s becoming increasingly personal actually as time goes by; especially since I started making single-channel videos in the dark,” she told the BBC. “I guess that became more personal. Maybe that resonates with people.” —AFP

US comedian Kevin Hart to host Oscars

LOS ANGELES (United States)—US comedian and actor Kevin Hart announced on Tuesday that he would be hosting the 91st Academy Awards in February.

“For years I have been asked if I would ever Host the Oscars and my answer was always the same...,” Hart wrote in an Instagram post. “I said that it would be the opportunity of a lifetime for me as a comedian and that it will happen when it’s supposed to. “I am so happy to say that the day has finally come for me to host the Oscars.”

The “Jumanji: Welcome to the Jungle” star will be hosting the glitzy event after talk show host Jimmy Kimmel held the gig for two consecutive years.

Hart will be facing pressure to boost audience ratings for the annual show that will be held on 24 February in Hollywood and which had an all-time low of 26.5 million viewers last year, compared to 43 million in 2014. The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has said that it was introducing a number of changes to improve viewership, including shortening the show to three hours and handing out some of the awards during commercial breaks. —AFP

MARRAKECH (Morocco) — US director James Gray, chairman of this year’s Marrakech film festival, on Monday lambasted his country’s President Donald Trump as an “imbecile” and source of embarrassment for Americans abroad.

“It’s been very hard for me to be here because the president of the United States is a moron and a very dangerous moron,” he told a news conference in the Moroccan city.

“It’s embarrassing, I feel very awkward and I feel I have to apologise every two minutes, because...I’m trying to represent the better part of my country not that one that is represented by an imbecile.”

‘Ralph’ wrecks it for second week at N American box office

LOS ANGELES (United States)— Disney animation “Ralph Breaks the Internet” held the top spot in North American theaters for a second straight weekend, taking in $25.6 million, industry tracker Exhibitor Relations reported on Monday. The sequel to 2012’s “Wreck It Ralph” sees the title character (voiced by John C Reilly) and friend Vanellope von Schweetz (Sarah Silverman) venture into the weird world of the internet, with predictably screwy results. “The Grinch,” Universal’s live action “Dr Seuss’s” follow-up, placed second, with $17.9 million for the three-day weekend and a cumulative domestic total of $203.7 million. Benedict Cumberbatch voices the irritable title character.

In third place was Fox’s “Bohemian Rhapsody,” with $16.6 million. This latest episode in the “Roccy” series stars Michael B Jordan as Adonis Creed as he takes on the son of the boxer he killed his father, Sylvester Stallone. In his fifth week out, was Foc’s “Bohemian Rhapsody,” with $8 million. Rami Malek plays rock group Queen’s talented front man Freddie Mercury. —AFP

Gulf artworks show its surprising historical mix

PARIS (France)— A startling exhibition in Paris, drawn from the Arab world’s biggest private art collection, shows the dizzying mix of cultures in the Gulf in the past with Chinese kornans and Persian rugs of the Virgin Mary. The show at the Paris headquarters of UNESCO, the world cultural and scientific body, is taken from the vast treasury of artworks amassed by Qatari billionaire Sheikh Faisal Bin Qassim Al Thani.

“The Majlis — Cultures in Dialogue” takes the name of the traditional spaces where guests were sat down and entertained in the Gulf to show how ideas were exchanged in the region, often in unexpected ways.

It shows how Islamic, Jewish, Indian, Christian, Buddhist and African imagery and symbolism was mixed and shared in an enormous number of objects and manuscripts over centuries.

For the sheikh, a distant cousin of Qatar’s emir, it proves that “the great religions are united by shared moral honesty and authenticity”. It was a “lack of culture” that leads fanatics to destroy historic sites in Mali, Syria or Afghanistan, he told AFP.

“We think that globalisation has been good, but these works show the links between empires,” said his daughter, Sheikha AlAnoud bint Hamad Al Thani, pointing to a rug showing Germany’s Kaiser Wilhem II and his family surrounded by the heads of Persian rulers. Another curious Persian rug from the first half of the 19th century shows “51 of the most eminent figures of the universe” including Confucius, Moses, Socrates, Jesus, Alexander the Great, Christopher Columbus and Napoleon.

The show, which will go on tour to the US, Britain, Austria, Germany, Turkey and China after closing in Paris in March, is drawn from the sheikh’s museum in Qatar. —AFP

‘America First’ mantra

“Sadly, in my country we are going through a grotesque version of nationalism... marked by greed, xenophobia and selfishness under the banner of ‘America First’”. De Niro said to load applause from the audience.

Grey, whose films include “Little Odessa” and “The Immigrants”, with sci-fi thriller “Ad Astra” starring Brad Pitt, to be released next year, said De Niro’s latest outburst against Trump was “for me... the moment” of the festival, which opened on Friday. —AFP
Armageddon avoided? Scientist doubts Solar Cycle 25 will ravage GPS-dependent economy

ST PETERSBURG — The peak of new solar activity, the 25th since the observations began, will fall on 2022-2023, Yuri Nagovitsyn, senior researcher from Pulkovo Observatory in St Petersburg told TASS on Tuesday.

Earlier, media outlets published a forecast from analysts at Denmark’s Saxo Bank, in which the experts assessed the worst possible scenario for the development of the global economy in 2019. It said, in particular, that the new solar cycle the 25th (Solar Cycle 25) would trigger the most powerful solar storm that would destroy satellites from the side of the Western Hemisphere. This, according to analysts, will bring about chaos in GPS-dependent sectors and losses amounting to nearly $2 trillion.

“As for the new solar cycle, it may start in 2019, but most likely in 2020. This will be only the start of a solar cycle and geomagnetic disturbances are not expected,” the researcher said.

“All the research officer said.”

“The solar maximum, when powerful solar flares are indeed possible, will surface somewhere in 2022-2023,” said Nagovitsyn.

He said it is difficult at the moment to assess the power of the flares that people on earth will face in three to four years, however, the possibility of losses running into many billions and the global cataclysms about which the Danish analysts warn of, is next to none.

“If we speak about Arctic aviation during a powerful flare, at the poles, where the geomagnetic impact is stronger, a pilot may catch a year’s dose of radiation, and the health of an astronaut would also be at risk if he happens to be on a spacewalk when hypervelocity particles fly by.”

Disappearing Arctic sea ice threatens Canada’s polar bears: expert panel

OTTAWA (Canada) — A committee of wildlife experts warned on Monday that Canada’s largest land predator, the polar bear, was at risk of disappearing from its entire range.

OTTAWA (Canada) — A committee of wildlife experts warned on Monday that Canada’s largest land predator, the polar bear, was at risk of disappearing from its vast Arctic landscape as melting Arctic sea ice makes hunting prey a challenge.

“At is clear we will need to keep a closer eye on this species,” Graham Forbes, co-chair of the Committee on the Status of Endangered Wildlife in Canada (COSEWIC) said in a statement.

“Significant change is coming to its entire range.”

He explained that the bears use sea ice and the “same sit-and-wait techniques familiar to ice fishers” to hunt seals for food.

Predictions of longer ice-free Arctic summers will make hunting “much more difficult” for polar bears, he said.

Inuit, however, are cautiously optimistic the bears will adapt.

In its latest assessment, COSEWIC incorporated both science and Inuit knowledge. It concluded that “while not currently threatened or endangered,” Canada is home to two-thirds of the world’s polar bear population.

At last count in 2011, there were 15,500 polar bears in Canada. The same year, Ottawa listed the animal under its Species at Risk Act, requiring a conservation strategy be put in place to alleviate human threats to the iconic bears.

COSEWIC also expressed concerns about declining Chinook salmon stocks along the Pacific coast, and Black Ash after two billion of the trees in the Great Lakes region were killed by Emerald Ash Borer beetles.

First baby born via uterus transplanted from dead donor

PARIS (France) — In a medical first, a mother who received a uterus transplant from a dead donor gave birth to a healthy baby, researchers reported on Wednesday.

The breakthrough operation, performed two years ago in Brazil, shows that such transplants are feasible and could help thousands of women unable to have children due to uterine problems, according to a study published in The Lancet medical journal.

The baby girl was born in September 2016 in Sao Paulo.

Until recently, the only options available to women with so-called uterine infertility were adoption or the services of a surrogate mother.

The first successful childbirth following uterine transplant from a living donor took place in 2013 in Sweden, and there have been 10 others since then.

But there are far more women in need of transplants than there are potential live donors, so doctors wanted to find out if the procedure could work using the uterus of a woman who had died.

Ten attempts were made — in the United States, the Czech Republic, and Turkey — before the success reported on Wednesday.

Infertility affects 10- to 15 per cent of couples.

Of this group, one in five women have problems with their uterus — due, for example, to a malformation, hysterectomy, or infection — that prevent them from becoming pregnant and carrying a child to term.

“Our results provide a proof-of-concept for a new option for women with uterine infertility,” said Dani Ejzenberg, a doctor at the teaching hospital of the University of Sao Paulo.

He describing the procedure as a “medical milestone.”

“The number of people willing and committed to donate organs upon their own death are far larger than those of live donors, offering a much wider potential donor population,” said in a statement.

The 32-year-old recipient was born without a uterus as a result of a rare syndrome.

Four months before the transplant, she had in-vitro fertilization resulting in eight fertilized eggs, which were preserved through freezing.

The donor was a 45-year-old woman who died from a stroke. Her uterus was removed during the C-section, allowing the woman to become pregnant and carrying a child to term.

The transplanted uterus was removed during the C-section, allowing the woman to stop taking the immunosuppressive drugs.

At age seven months and 12 days — when the manuscirip was due — the baby was breastfeeding and weighed 7.2 kilograms.

“We must congratulate the authors,” commented Dr Srdjan Saso, an honorary clinical lecturer in obstetrics and gynaecology at Imperial College London, describing the findings as “extremely exciting.”

Richard Kennedy, president of the International Federation of Fertility Societies, also welcomed the announcement but sounded a note of caution.

“Uterine transplant is a novel technique and should be regarded as experimental,” he said.

Guardiola would welcome UEFA Fair Play probe clarity to end rumours

WATFORD (United Kingdom)—Manchester City manager Pep Guardiola hopes a swift conclusion to UEFA’s investigation over alleged Financial Fair Play (FFP) irregularities committed by the Premier League champions will silence the speculation surrounding the case.

UEFA president Aleksander Ceferin said after an Executive Committee meeting of European football’s governing body on Monday that an independent body looking into the allegations made by German magazine Der Spiegel as part of their Football Leaks campaign would provide answers “very soon”. Reports on Tuesday claimed City could even be banned from next season’s Champions League should they be found guilty.

Guardiola insisted the story hasn’t been a distraction to his players, as they moved five points clear at the top of the Premier League on Tuesday with a 2-1 win at Watford. However, the Catalan coach is hoping for an end to what he described as “voices” surrounding the club’s business.

“If UEFA found something the club will make a statement and I’d like to do that because we will know exactly and to finish with these voices,” said Guardiola. “We will know if we did something irregular and if we didn’t do something irregular, the people is going to finish talking about it.”

It is claimed City bypassed UEFA’s FFP rules, designed to restrict the losses clubs can make and therefore lavish spending on player transfers and wages, by allowing their Abu Dhabi-based sponsors to make cash injections and backdate sponsorship contracts. A member of the Abu Dhabi ruling family, Sheikh Mansour, has owned City since 2008, transforming the club by investing billions of pounds in players and the club’s facilities.

In a repeated statement City said they would not comment on what they described as “out of context materials purportedly hacked or stolen from City Football Group and Manchester City personnel and associated people”.
