STATE Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu Kyi, the Chairperson of the Central Committee for Development of Border Areas and National Races, who was in Monywa paid homage to the standing Buddha image at the Thousand Bohdi accompanied by Union Ministers Lt-Gen Kyaw Swe, Lt-Gen Ye Aung, U Min Thu, Dr. Myint Htwe and U Ohn Win, Sagaing Region Chief Minister Dr. Myint Naing, Deputy Minister U Hla Maw Oo and officials.

After offering flowers, water, oil lamps and scented water to the images of Buddha, she signed the visitors' book and donated money to the pagoda trustees. The State Counsellor then cordially greeted the local residents.

Next she attended a meeting with the local people held at the Monywa Town hall.

At the meeting the State Counsellor said the first time she visited Monywa was in 1988 and 32 years had passed since then. As there was a power failure at that time it was unforgettable to see everyone coming out with lighted candles in their hands making it brighter and more beautiful compared to electric lights. This showed that with collective effort any challenge could be overcome.

The good thing about the people in Monywa or in any other place was that all were living together peacefully and happily. It was with much happiness and pride to see all of them living together peacefully regardless of differences in ethnicity, religion and languages.

We should all be proud of the fact that we have the power to cope with the differences and live in unity as a union. It was expected for this to continue and for more unity and peace.

By Aung Maw, Aye Aye Thant (MNA)

THE 13th-day meeting of the 11th Regular Session of the Second Pyidaungsu Hluttaw was held in Nay Pyi Taw yesterday.

UEC member appointments confirmed

Firstly, Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Speaker U T Khun Myat announced that the Hluttaw has raised no objections to the President's appointment of U Nyunt Sein, U Thet Tun, U Myint Aung, U Saw Daniel Kyi, U Aung Soe Win, U Than Aung, U Min Swe, and U Swe Tint Lwin as members of the Union Election Commission, and thus, the Hluttaw has approved the appointment of these eight individuals.

Council of ASEAN Chief Justices

The Chief Justice of the Union, U Htun Htun Oo, then explained to the Hluttaw the matter sent by the President on validating and then signing the agreement of the Council of ASEAN Chief Justices. He said if Myanmar signs the agreement, it will receive opportunities to develop its judicial sector by sharing experiences with other ASEAN countries, cooperate on capacity building trainings for Myanmar's judges and justices, support economic development and rule of law in the ASEAN region, and gain other benefits from strengthening collaboration between the ASEAN region's judiciaries.

U Htun Htun Oo said the Union Government has agreed for the Chief Justice of the Union to sign the agreement during their Meeting No. 4/2019, and as such, he requested the Hluttaw Speaker to deliberate the decision of the Hluttaw. The Speaker then announced for MPs interested in discussing the matter to enrol their names.

exhibitions. The Speaker called for MPs interested in discussing the report to enrol their names.

MPs debate government's fiscal deficit

MPs then discussed the matter sent by the President concerning acquiring appropriate loan(s) from the Central Bank of Myanmar for closing the deficit in the Union Government's deposit for 2018-2019 FY.

Dr. U Kywe Kywe of Mandalay Region constituency 6 advised the Union Government to consider more suitable alternatives to fixing the fiscal deficit. He said Myanmar's tax revenue and GDP ratio are the lowest in Southeast Asian countries and thus, taking measures to collect the actual taxes to be levied will fill in the government's deficit. He said the government can also consider auctioning off state-owned factories and workshops showing losses to supplement the national budget.

Dr. U Kywe Kywe also suggested privatizing state-owned businesses that may not stand up to competition in future market economies and selling their shares. He said this will not only fill in the government's deficit but will also pave way for a proper market economy system that will enable reforms in line with a democratic political system.

The matter was further discussed by U Bo Gyi of Chauk constituency, U Khin Cho of Hlaingbwe constituency, and U Than Soe (a) Than Soe (economics) of Yangon Region constituency 4.

MPs discuss report on second bill amending the Constitution

MPs then discussed the report from the Joint Committee on Scrutinizing the Bill Making Second Amendments to the Constitution.

Dr. Khun Win Thaung of Kachin State constituency 11 said the word 'elected' should be added to the phrase 'A suitable candidate with the necessary skills from among the respective State and Region Hluttaw will be chosen...' in subsection (b) (1) of Section 261 of the Constitution. He also said the line 'An MP elected to represent their State or Region' should be added as point no.5 to subsection (a) of Section 261 as well. He said this will ensure the emergence of a genuine multiparty democratic system.

Tatmadaw Amyotha Hluttaw representative Lt-Col Tin Tun Aung said the joint committee's findings and remarks do not correspond with the Constitution's Section 433 and 435, nor with Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Bylaw 133 to 139. He said he objects to the committee's reports as a table on the amendments made to the Constitution's Section 261, subsections (b), (c), (d), and (e) were not distributed to the Hluttaw representatives as is the standard procedure.

He urged the joint committee to reconduct its processes in line with Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Bylaws 133, 135 to 139, 142, and 143.

MP Dr. U Kywe Kywe.

Myanmar's tax revenue and GDP ratio are the lowest in Southeast Asian countries and thus, taking measures to collect the actual taxes to be levied will fill in the government's deficit:

In life many challenges have to be faced. It depends on ourselves whether we view these challenges as a problem or an opportunity. No matter how thick the darkness might be, if we overcome it with unity, the problem will become an opportunity.

The country was facing many challenges but progress may be seen in many areas and the people could be proud of those achievements. There still remained more progress to be achieved. Everyone knew that the country was lagging behind in development in the region.

However, lessons could be learnt from those who were ahead of us. What to avoid and what to do. In any situation, there was a need to copy and imitate. Lessons need to be learnt and efforts made so that these things could be seen as opportunities. This was the advantage. There was a need to work hand in hand.

The reason for saying the requirements of the people were the same was due to the fact that all were living on the same land, drinking the same water, travelling on the same boat toward the same destination. Region wise requirements were potable water, electricity, education and farmland matters and wherever the place may be, the requirements were always seen to be the same.

These shouldn't be thought as the government's job. It must be seen as everyone's duty and a problem for all to solve together. Such mindsets will be a good precedence for the future generation. Everyone lived in this world for a short time but if they fulfilled their duties and responsibilities, it would be a great opportunity to leave behind a great legacy for the future generation. The main point was to leave behind a great legacy. Don't think about how much you can get but think about how much you can give.

We were brief visitors to this world. It would be a duty for all to leave a good situation behind when we leave. I was saying this to people from Monywa because of the faith I had in them. Monywa folks had the ability to think clearly and overcome difficulties. Increase these abilities day after day. Some views things negatively. But the important thing was to view the situation objectively and work together toward progress for all. Once a wrong step was taken, a long time would be required to correct the mistakes. Unity of the people of Monywa was commended and may this quality increase to overcome problems in unity, said the State Counsellor.

Afterwards pre-submitted matters and submissions of the people of Monywa were presented:

All the above matters were submitted to the meeting for resolution.

The pre-submitted matters and submission of the people were then explained by Union Minister Lt-Gen Ye Aung, Dr. Myint Htwe, Region Chief Minister and region ministers. The State Counsellor also provided additional explanations and insisted on the people to be disciplined. Issues raised and complaints made will be resolved in accordance to the law, rules and procedure. She added on the impossibility of having progress without hearing the voices of the people as well as dealing with the people in a straight forward manner to establish trust.

After the meeting the State Counsellor took commemorative photos together with students who attended the meeting and then met with the Region Chief Minister and ministers at the Monywa Airport hall.

The State Counsellor and party then left Monywa by special flight and arrived in Nay Pyi Taw in the afternoon. — MNA

The Vice President expressed thanks to the members of the central committee, ministries, Nay Pyi Taw Council Area, region and state-level officials and international organizations which provided the committee with technical and financial assistance for drafting the policy, strategy and master plan.

The National Environmental Policy would ensure sustainable development, prosperity and a community which could endure climate change and reduce carbon emission leading to prosperity of the current and next generations, he said.

While uplifting the socio-economic development, Myanmar has been promoting local and foreign investment and expanding the industrial zones, he said. The situation demanded the country to lay down a strong "environmental management system" to prevent degradation of the ecosystem treatment plants at the distilleries, garbage system, prevention illegal mining causing environmental degradation, raising environmental awareness and information.

The Vice President also urged the participants of the meeting to set a time frame for implementing remaining resolutions and to complete them in a timely manner.

He also stressed the need to speed up the educative awareness as part of efforts for helping the people to change their behaviors and life style which could encourage sustainable production and consumption.

He continued to say that necessary measures should be taken to enforce the rules and regulations and procedures related with environmental conservation.

To promote the human resources including experts and techniques related with the environment and to acquire funds, efforts should be made to build more links with international organizations, and ministries, Nay Pyi Taw Council Area and region, state governments, NGOs and social organizations.

He said more efforts were needed to strengthen their cooperation and coordination. Afterwards, Deputy Minister for Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation Dr. Ye Myint Swe reported on implementation of the tasks included in the Myanmar Sustainable Development Plan-MSDP, approaches to the environmental conservation, budget allocations, raising environmental awareness and human resource development.

International Women's Day ceremony observed in Nay Pyi Taw

VICE President U Henry Van Thio addressed the International Women's Day ceremony held at the Myanmar International Convention Centre 2 in Nay Pyi Taw yesterday morning.

In his address Vice President said International Women's Day came about due to the efforts of women workers after 146 women workers were killed in a factory fire in Russia on March 1911. More than a hundred years have passed when 8 March was observed worldwide as International Women's Day and Myanmar being a member country of the UN held this State level event to reflect the importance of women in Myanmar.

The UN designated theme for International Women's Day 2019 was "Think equal, build smart, innovate for change." To achieve the sustainable development goal of achieving gender equality and empower all women and girls in 2030 it was required to develop new integrated approaches, thoughts and processes in addition to the present social protection systems, public services and work procedures and the theme was being setup to exhort UN member countries, said the Vice President.

Myanmar was a country that was transitioning to a democracy based on political transition, economic transition and establishing peace. As a country working for national reconciliation based on establishing peace, gender equality in all sectors was an important and basic matter. In the third session of 21st Century Panglong Conference an agreement was reached in the political sector basic principle agreement towards encouraging a minimum of 30 percent involvement of women in each sector.

Myanmar National Committee for Women's Affairs was formed as a State-level mechanism to implement the nine targets set in sustainable development goal 5 of achieving gender equality and empowering all women and girls and to comply with the UN Convention on the Elimination on All Forms of Discrimination against Women.

For a balanced development of women in all sectors the National Strategic Plan for the Advancement of Women (2013-2022) was implemented based on 12 priority sectors. In order to implement the strategic plan with an increasing momentum during the remaining four years of the plan, four technical work groups on preventing and protecting women from violence; on women participating in the country's economic sector; on women to be included in all sectors; and on women in peace and security were formed and works conducted.

Furthermore arrangements were made to review the National Strategic Plan for the Advancement of Women (2013-2022). To provide technical support in implementing the plan a Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment (GEWE) as Non Sector Coordination Group that would coordinate the Ten Sector Coordination Groups (SCGs) under the DACU (Development Assistance Coordination Unit). The group was urged to provide technical support and cooperate in the review works.

In conducting the review works new ways of coordinating and connecting with Sustainable Development Goals and Myanmar Sustainable Development Plan (MSDP) was to be observed. More emphasis must be placed towards women that made up more than half of the country's population in implementing MSDP that was vital for the country's development, said the Vice President.

According to surveys conducted for development of Myanmar women, effective implementation was still seen to be required in sectors like participation in economic, livelihood, education, health, public affairs, peace, security and violence against women. Innovative and new ways need to be sought out in those sectors in addition to the present ways and means utilized.

A Joint Communique to prevent and respond to conflict related sexual violence was signed on 7 December 2018 and plans were required to be set-up to effectively implement the six priority sectors of the Joint Communique.

An economic forum of women entrepreneurs was held today in commemoration of 2019 International Women's Day. Via that forum raising the capacity of women in economic and new ways and means of overcoming difficulties for gender equality in the economic sector would be realized.

The government was working from all side for the role of Myanmar women to increase step by step and for women to obtain their rights equally. It was with much happiness to see that UN organizations, non-government organizations, civil society organizations, social organizations, and technical experts on the subject were cooperating with the government on this and were urged to continue the cooperation.

In order to successfully implement the three aims of having rule of law and raising the people's socio-economic life; national reconciliation and internal peace; and amending the Constitution that was the foundation stone of establishing a democracy federal union, both genders were to cooperate hand in hand and the power of the women representing more than half of the country's population was to be used more. Innovative new ways were urged to be devised to maintain the progress and momentum achieved towards women's development, said the Vice President.

Following this First Lady Daw Cho Cho, Vice President U Henry Van Thio, Union Minister Dr. Win Myat Aye, UNICEF representative Ms. June Kunugi and UN Women representative to Myanmar Mr. Nicolas Burniat cut the ceremonial ribbon to open the International Women's Day exhibition and observed the exhibits together with ceremony attendees.

Later the second part of the ceremony was continued where Union Minister for Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement Dr. Win Myat Aye explained about works conducted for women's development that included opening of One Stop Women Support Centers in Yangon, Mandalay, Lashio and Mawlamyine for women victims of violence and raising economic opportunities for women that were only 41.8 percent of the total workforce of 20.91 million.

Afterwards UNICEF representative Ms. June Kunugi read the UN Secretary General's message followed by screening of a video of Myanmar women business persons' real life situation. Talks and discussion continued.— MNA

Granting right permits to right people key to protecting public interest

LAST YEAR, the Union Government launched the Myanmar Sustainable Development Plan, detailing the next wave of reforms for the country. The plan is designed to direct our country's continued transition, along a common pathway, to ensure the emergence of a prosperous, peaceful, democratic federal Union.

The Union Government is committed to creating a more favorable, predictable, and friendly investment environment in the country, in line with the MSDP as well as the Myanmar Investment Promotion Plan.

To level the playing field for local and foreign investors, the concerned authorities have been given the responsibility of reviewing and inspecting permitted investments on state-owned lands, buildings, and businesses to check whether an investment is in line with the pledge or not. At the same time, it is up to officials to ensure that new projects on state-owned infrastructure benefit citizens.

State-owned infrastructure, including factories and the country's natural resources, belongs to the people, and the government has to manage it properly to make sure it serves public interest rather than personal interests.

During a recent debate at the Pyithu Hluttaw, U Set Aung, the Deputy Minister for Finance and Planning and a member of the Myanmar Investment Commission, had said that the relevant ministries would take action against investors who have obtained state-owned lands, buildings, and businesses, but have failed to conduct work in accordance with their pledges.

To boost the country's economy and its image as an investment destination, a transparent and competitive tender system must be used to grant permissions to competent investors.

The MIC and concerned ministries will conduct field surveys to make sure the agreements are followed strictly and, if required, review and renegotiate them altogether.

The authorities are trying to make certain only genuine investors obtain permission to lease state-owned lands and buildings.

It is also important that each investment business operates within the terms of the agreement.

To make sure the right permits are granted to the right people, the farsightedness and honesty of personnel from the management sector, responsible for giving permissions to investors, is key.

Malpractices must be avoided, and help must be given to investors so they can run their businesses smoothly.

Some Memories of Yangon University in the 1920s

By Dr. Saw Mra Aung

YANGON University College and Judson College were welded together into Yangon University on 1st December, 1920 under the New Yangon University Act. However, their lecture-rooms still remained at the buildings on Commissioner Road (Present Bogyoke Aung San Road in La-tha Township) and Lower Kye-in-myaing-daing Road in Alone Township) where the two colleges were located. Woman-students and man-students were also housed at the brick-buildings on Simpson Road, Voyle Road, Shwedagon Pagoda Road and Budd Road in downtown Yangon. Therefore, the new Kamayut Yangon University Estate was then just an over 400-acre stretch of thickly wooded land infested with mosquitoes and wild animals. To its south-west lay the sullen Kyan-taw Cemetery interspersed with groves of wild pine-apples, to the west sleepy Kamayut Village and to the north secluded Inya Lake surrounded by densely forested bunds.

In 1922, the Convocation Hall was constructed in the north-eastern-most part of the estate. In 1924, wooden Tagaung and Pyi Halls of residence were built in the southern part of the Yangon University Estate near Pyi Road which was then a narrow tarred road. Man-students from Yangon University College started to be accommodated there in the 1925-26 academic year. As the estate was so thickly forested, the two halls were hidden from each other. In 1926, Bagan Hall, another wooden hall of residence, was built at the end of Victoria Lane which branched off due east from Pyi road. Since this hall was in isolation from other two halls, it was called 'Andaman Hall' (တပ်ကျွန်းဆောင်). But it was bombed by the Japanese during the Second World War. The plot of the land at the end of Bagan Road just across the University Hospital today is the site of Bagan Hall. Bagan Hall was later rebuilt of bricks on Thaton Road behind the University of Education.

Warden of Pyi Hall was Mr. B.R. Pearn. But soon, he was succeeded by U Po Chu. Warden of Tagaung Hall was Mr. Robert. Soon also, U Po Thone was appointed to his position. U Kar was Warden of Bagan Hall. The students had to live happily and securely under their fatherly care, enjoying the freedom of hostel students' life. But the students faced two foes at night-fall. The first foe was the mosquitoes which bred in profusion amongst the thick foliage of various species of trees such as jack-fruit, Mayan, Ye-tamar, Kukko, mango, pine-apple, etc growing inextricably on the marsh land around the halls. When the darkness descended from the sky at twilight, those blood-suckers came swarming around the students. So those who engaged themselves in conversation after dinner fell prey to those animals. Therefore, some of them, upon dinner, had to put up their mosquito-nets in their room and to stay inside them to evade their stings. The second foe was the thieves who made frequent raids into the privacy of the rooms of the hostelers and rummaged around for valuables while they were fast asleep or during their visits to their friends' rooms. Therefore, it was common for the students to leap to their feet from bed in the dead of night and to in vain ran, raising hues and cries, after the invaders who merged into the bushes swathed in darkness behind the halls. As the thieves were thought to come from the neighbouring villages, the students were strictly debarred by Principal D.J. Sloss from mixing with the villagers from Kamayut and other villages in the immediate vicinity of the premises.

In those days, the wooded Inya Lake was rumored to be haunted by tigers and man-eating water-ogres. Therefore, some chicken-hearted students avoided visiting it even during the day-time.

There stood some clumps of big trees between the halls and Inya Lake adjacent to Yangon University Estate. In those days, the wooded Inya Lake was rumored to be haunted by tigers and man-eating water-ogres. Therefore, some chicken-hearted students avoided visiting it even during the day-time. A few brave students, however, used to go there for a swim on some evenings. Since 1923, the Yangon University Boat Club had been formed with the students from University College and Judson College. It was chaired by a British advocate Mr. Edgar who later became a law professor at Yangon University. He was an executive member of the Cambridge and Oxford University Boat Clubs while living in England. The office of the club was built in a piece of the land jutting out into Inya Lake. In December 1926, Ko Khin Maung Myint, a hosteler from Tagaung Hall was drown to death while swimming with other two or three friends near the University Boat Club. It is said that the students who lived in the rooms near his dare not sleep alone that night and that they, therefore, had to sleep in groups of two or three in a room. From that day onwards, wardens of the halls used to follow the swimmers to the lake when they returned late and to coax them into going back before dusk.

As the lecture-rooms continued to exist at Yangon University College, the students from the halls had to trudge across the Kyan-taw Cemetery and groves of pine-apples to the Hanthawati Rail-way Station and took the Insein local train which reached there between 8:30 am and 10:00am and proceeded to the college across the Yangon General Hospital on Commissioner Road. After their classes, they had to return to the halls at 4pm by that train. It is said that some students who returned late for some reasons were harried by vallians amongst the groves of wild pine-apples or haunted by ghosts at the Kyan-taw Cemetery on the way back. University Avenue and Inya Road were not yet built until 1925.

Eye on EU tax, Myanmar cuts exports of long-grain rice

By Nyein Nyein

IN spite of the European Union imposing a tax on imports of long-grain rice, Myanmar's rice exports to the EU have not declined as traders are shipping rice varieties that don't fall in the new tax bracket, according to the Myanmar Rice Federation (MRF).

"The EU is still importing rice from Myanmar. We have continued to export the same volume of rice because Myanmar is shipping rice of different categories. We are not exporting those rice varieties which attract a tax in the EU," said U Aung Than Oo, the vice chairman of the MRF.

Myanmar ships about 400,000 tons of rice and broken rice to the EU annually. Long-grain rice accounts for only about 40,000 tons of the total exports.

The MRF has been conducting training courses for local farmers to encourage them to grow more rice varieties that are purchased by the EU in the next paddy season, he added.

EU member countries recently decided to levy a tax on long-grain rice imported from Myanmar and Cambodia. According to the EU, a tax of Euro 175 per ton will be imposed on imports of long-grain rice in the first year, Euro 150 in the second year, and Euro 125 in the third year. The new tax took effect from 18 January.

"We are still exporting rice, except the long-grain variety which is being taxed by the EU. And, EU's move to tax some categories will not imply a stoppage of rice imports. In case we face difficulties exporting rice to the EU, we still have a solution for that," said U Ye Min Aung, the chairman of the MRF.

"To make up for the loss in demand, Myanmar is seeking ways to penetrate new rice markets," said U Aung Soe, Director-General, Myanmar Trade Promotion Organization.

The EU reinstated Myanmar in the Generalized Scheme of Preference (GSP) in June, 2013. Now, after a period of six years, the EU has again decided to tax shipments of long-grain rice from Myanmar.

Japan's Toyota Tsusho to run Myanmar's first car auction

YANGON—Toyota Tsusho Corp., the Toyota Motor Corp. group's trading arm, will hold Myanmar's first car auction later this month with local startup Rebbiz Co., with the aim of building a marketplace for used car transactions.

T.T.A.S. Co., the official local dealership of Toyota Motor, has said they will host the first such auction in Yangon on March 16 and 17, and that they plan to sell more than 200 cars. The firm is also the operator of CarsDB, Myanmar's largest online automobile market.

Cars expected to be sold at the auction include Toyota, Ford, Mitsubishi, Mazda, Chevrolet and Land Rover models, of which 80 to 90 percent are used vehicles, the partners said at a recent news conference in Yangon.

Automobile imports to the Southeast Asian nation have grown since 2011, when decade-long military-junta control was replaced by civilian rule.

There are an estimated 800,000 registered vehicles in the country. New vehicle sales stood at about 17,500 in 2018, according to the Automotive Association of Myanmar.

Wai Yan Lin (L), CEO of Rebbiz Co., Htet Htet Htun (C), auction ambassador and Miss Myanmar beauty pageant winner, and Daiki Kato, managing director of T.T.A.S. Co., at a March 6 press conference in Yangon to announce Myanmar's first car auction. PHOTO: KYODO NEWS

But Daiki Kato, managing director of Toyota Tsusho's wholly owned dealership, said that the vast majority of vehicles there do not go through proper inspection for resale, with details of past accidents or theft concealed in order to sell them.

CarsDB posts trade information on 15,000 vehicles on its website, which has over 200,000 subscribers. The company has about 1.2 million Facebook followers.

For the upcoming auction, the firm will screen all vehicles for quality.

Toyota Tsusho has conducted car auctions in China, India and Indonesia. It has also established a local unit in Indonesia, where it sold about 61,000 vehicles in 2018. — Kyodo News

India suspends trade, but local demand pushes up mung bean price

By Nyein Nyein

ALTHOUGH India has halted imports of pulses and beans, the price of mung bean has increased in the market on the back of local demand, according to the Myanmar Pulses, Beans, and Sesame Seeds Merchants Association.

"In January-end, India suspended importation of pulses and beans. Prior to the trade suspension, about 660,000 tons of mung bean were exported in the 2018-2019 fiscal year. Therefore, the stocks of mung bean in the domestic market have decreased. At the same time, high local demand has pushed up the price of mung bean to K665,000 per ton," said U Min Ko Oo, the secretary of the Myanmar Pulses, Beans, and Sesame Seeds Merchants Association.

"Mung beans are also being stockpiled by warehouse owners, resulting in the price touching a high of K680,000 per ton from a low of K570,000 when India halted trade," said U Min Ko Oo.

A delegation led by the Union Minister for Commerce and including pulses and beans merchants attended the 4th ASEAN-India Expo and Summit held in New Delhi in February, and asked Indian officials to buy 400,000 tons of mung bean from Myanmar this year.

But, there has been no response from India yet, according to the merchants association.

"India has not responded to our request to purchase 400,000 tons of mung bean. Alternately, we had asked for a quota limit of 400,000 tons. We asked them to declare their quota on mung bean importation by March. However, there has been no reply yet," said U Min Ko Oo.

"Myanmar is trying to work out a government-to-government (G-to-G) agreement with India, the main buyer of Myanmar pulses and beans. The country is also exploring other external markets," said U Aung Htoo, the Deputy Minister for Commerce.

Although Myanmar pulses and beans have penetrated markets in Bangladesh, Pakistan, and Nepal, the volume of exports to those countries is extremely low, according to the Myanmar Pulses, Beans, and Sesame Seeds Merchants Association.

Myanmar's pulses and beans are primarily exported to India. India's move to restrict importation of pulses in August, 2017 had severely affected growers in Myanmar.

In the 2017-2018 FY, Myanmar shipped over 1 million tons of different varieties of pulses, which fetched just US$713 million owing to the drop in price, according to data from the Ministry of Commerce.

Putin on horseback for Women's Day event

MOSCOW (Russia)—Russian President Vladimir Putin on Thursday cantered on horseback with female police officers ahead of International Women's Day, images published by state media showed.

The head of state likes to project an active image and in the past has been photographed riding a horse bare-chested in Siberia, underwater diving and playing his favourite sport, Judo.

In jeans and a jacket with a fur-trimmed collar, Putin rode a brown horse flanked by female officers on white horses at a training facility in Moscow.

After the photo-op, Putin gave officers a horse called "Golden Ray", according to Russian news agencies.

International Women's Day on 8 March is a major public holiday in Russia, but it is celebrated by giving women flowers and gifts rather than promoting equal rights.

In a speech to mark the event last year, Putin said: "We know that a woman's heart is the most loyal and that her forgiveness is the most precious thing".—AFP ■

Taylor Swift's accused stalker arrested for breaking into her apartment

NEW YORK (United States)—An alleged stalker of pop star Taylor Swift has been arrested for the second time in less than a year for breaking into her Manhattan home, police said on Thursday. Roger Alvarado, who is already restricted from coming near Swift's apartment in the Tribeca neighborhood, broke a window and entered the loft at 2:45 am (0745 GMT) when the singer was away. The 23-year-old was detained and charged with burglary and criminal contempt, a police spokesman told AFP.

The accused stalker had last April used a ladder to climb through a window into Swift's apartment, also when she was not home. A judge slapped him with a restraining order and Alvarado pleaded guilty in December. He had not yet started his six-month jail sentence, which includes mandatory psychiatric treatment. In February 2018 he was also arrested at Swift's residence after attempting to break through the door with a shovel.

In an interview published in Elle magazine one day before the latest incident, Swift—the megastar known for hits like "Shake It Off" and "Blank Space"—cited violence as one of her "greatest fears." "Websites and tabloids have taken it upon themselves to post every home address I've ever had online," she said. "You get enough stalkers trying to break into your house and you kind of start prepping for bad things."—AFP ■

R Kelly girlfriends defend superstar, deny brainwashing

NEW YORK (United States)—Two women living with R Kelly are defending the R&B superstar charged with sexual abuse, saying in an interview aired Thursday that their relationships with him are consensual. Azriel Clary, 21, and Joycelyn Savage, 23, told US network CBS that they "absolutely" are in love with Kelly, brushing off allegations that the 52-year-old artist brainwashes women he keeps in homes that operate as de facto sex cults.

"We live with him, and we're in a relationship with him," Clary said of Kelly, who returned to jail Wednesday for failing to pay child support. "A very strong relationship as well," added Savage. Questioned on the nature of their sex lives with Kelly, Clary said "I would never share with no one what I do in or outside of the bedroom." "There are people all over the world who have multiple girlfriends," she said. "It's no different." Last month Kelly—dogged for decades by allegations including child pornography, sexual abuse and false imprisonment—pleaded not guilty to 10 counts of aggravated criminal sex abuse against four victims, three of them minors. That case is not linked to women he currently lives with. In 2017 a BuzzFeed report alleged the musician had kept women as virtual sex slaves at his Chicago and Atlanta homes. Clary and Savage dubbed accusations against Kelly money-making schemes. But Clary's parents released a statement shortly after the interview aired saying their daughter "is presently suffering from years of mental abuse and manipulation by R Kelly." "R Kelly is a desperate liar and serial abuser of young girls who should die in prison," said the statement tweeted by lawyer Michael Avenatti, who represents at least two of Kelly's alleged victims.—AFP ■

Scientists solve weighty matter of Milky Way mass

PARIS (France)—Astronomers said on Thursday they had accurately calculated the mass of the Milky Way for the first time, using new data sets that include the weight of dark matter.

In a collaboration between NASA and the European Space Agency's Gaia observation craft, a team of experts calculated our galaxy to be around 1.5 trillion solar masses.

Pervious estimates put the mass of the Milky Way ranging between 500 billion and 3 trillion times the mass of the Sun.

The uncertainty stemmed mainly from differing methods used to measure dark matter—which doesn't absorb or reflect any light and is thought to make up nearly 90 percent of matter in the Universe.

"We just can't detect dark matter directly," said Laura Watkins, from the Germany-based European Southern Observatory. "That's what leads to the present uncertainty in the Milky Way's mass—you can't measure accurately what you can't see."

To get around this, the team measured the velocity of globular clusters—dense groupings of stars that orbit the galaxy at enormous distances.

"The more massive a galaxy, the faster its clusters move under the pull of its gravity," said N. Wyn Evans, from the University of Cambridge's Institute of Astronomy.

"Most previous measurements have found the speed at which a cluster is approaching or receding from Earth, that is the velocity along our line of sight." Instead, the researchers were able to use data collected by the Gaia probe and NASA's Hubble telescope to measure the sideways motion of clusters. From this they could calculate their total velocity and from that their mass. The Milky Way, the galaxy which contains Earth's solar system, is home to up to 400 billion stars and an estimated 100 billion planets.—AFP ■

Russian rocket for suborbital space tourism to use ethanol as fuel — designer

MOSCOW—A projected rocket for commercial suborbital space flights, to be launched from a private space center to be built in Central Russia, will use ethyl alcohol as a fuel, the project's head told TASS on Thursday.

Pavel Pushkin, the CEO of Russian company CosmoCourse that plans to engage in private suborbital flights, said the rocket would use "environmentally friendly components: liquid oxygen as the oxidizer and ethyl alcohol as fuel." Nitrogen in its liquid and gas forms will be used as an additional component.

CosmoCourse plans to engage in space tourism starting from 2025, and is now designing its own launch complex for commercial suborbital flights. According to the program offered by CosmoCourse, a group of six tourists and one crew member will fly to an altitude of 200 km in 15 minutes. Tourists will spend five minutes in zero gravity. During this time they will rise from the altitude of 60 kilometers to 200 kilometres and descend back. To that end, a private launch facility is to be built in Central Russia's Nizhny Novgorod region some 400 km east of Moscow. The company leadership and regional authorities have confirmed the information.

Earlier, the CosmoCourse head his company was designing its own rocket engine as part of the suborbital flight project. The trials are to begin in mid-2020, but its prototypes are to be showcased this year.—Tass ■

CERN splits with scientist over offensive remarks on women

GENEVA (Switzerland)—Europe's physics lab CERN on Thursday cut ties with a scientist over a lecture that suggested physics was "built by men" and accused women of demanding jobs without proper qualifications.

Professor Alessandro Strumia from the University of Pisa, who had been a guest professor at CERN, made the comments during a workshop in September on high-energy theory and gender.

CERN had initially suspended Strumia but said on Thursday that it had decided to permanently end the partnership. "As a result of its own investigation... CERN decided not to extend Professor Strumia's status of Guest Professor," the lab said in a statement.

CERN also noted a public reprimand issued against Strumia by the University of Pisa in January. Strumia's presentation—which included various slides, charts and graphs—appeared to claim that men face discrimination in the field of physics.

One pictorial series suggested that women line up to take gender studies and then later protest over a lack of jobs in stem fields, an umbrella term that covers areas like chemistry and engineering.

"Physics invented and built by men, it's not by invitation," one slide said.

CERN, the French acronym for the European Centre for Nuclear Research, is for the first time being led by a female director general: Fabiola Gianotti, an Italian expert in experimental particle physics, took charge in 2016.

The lab has launched a number of initiatives to boost female participation in the sciences, but has conceded that it is far from having achieved gender parity among its staff.—AFP ■

E-cigarette use linked to heart trouble: study

WASHINGTON (United States)—People who use e-cigarettes are more likely to have heart problems than those who don't, says a study released on Thursday in the US.

The rate of heart attacks among those who vape was 34 per cent higher than among those who don't, once corrections were made for risk factors such as age, gender, body mass index, cholesterol level, blood pressure and tobacco use.

E-cigarette users were 25 per cent more likely to have coronary artery disease and 55 per cent more likely to suffer from depression or anxiety, the study says.

"Until now, little has been known about cardiovascular events relative to e-cigarette use," said Mohinder Vindhya, assistant professor at the University of Kansas School of Medicine and the study's lead author.

"These data are a real wake-up call and should prompt more action and awareness about the dangers of e-cigarettes."

The report does not however identify a cause and effect relationship for this observation.

Studies of people who vape are relatively new because the devices only came onto the US market in the last decade or so.

US health authorities are alarmed by the rise in popularity of e-cigarettes, battery-powered devices which enable users to inhale nicotine liquids that are often fruit flavored.

Among US teens, use of vaping devices rose 78 per cent in 2018 compared to the previous year. E-cigarettes do not contain the cancer-causing products found in tobacco.

But beside the well-known addictive consequences of consuming nicotine, public health experts are focusing on the effect of heating the liquid nicotine cartridges to high temperatures.

For the study, which will be presented next week at the American College of Cardiology, researchers examined the responses of nearly 100,000 people in 2014, 2016 and 2017.

This kind of study is a preliminary one that does not go so far as to say vaping causes heart trouble, or suggest a biological mechanism as to how this might happen.

Longer-term studies of people who vape are needed to reach any such conclusion.—AFP ■

MYANMAR'S Khin Zaw Lin recently signed up with the Surat Thani club, which will be participating in the Thai Futsal League 2019.

The MIC forward signed a half-season contract with Surat Thani, which finished third out of the 14 teams that competed last season.

With the move, Khin Zaw Lin's place is ensured in history books as the first ever Myanmar to play Futsal abroad. Among the most reliable players of the Myanmar Imperial College (MIC) Futsal club, he has paved the way for a bright future.

Khin Zaw Lin took up Futsal in 2012. He was selected as a preliminary player for the 2013 SEA Games and won the best player award at the Myanmar Futsal Cup 2013.

Khin Zaw Lin helped the MIC futsal team win the domestic league twice, and claim the domestic knockout Cup thrice.

Mourinho ruled out of China job with Cannavaro poised

Jose Mourinho. PHOTO: AFP

SHANGHAI (China)—Jose Mourinho will not be China's new coach, its football association said on Friday, amid widespread reports that Italian World Cup winner Fabio Cannavaro is instead poised to take the job.

Mourinho has been out of work since being sacked by Manchester United in December and the 56-year-old has been linked with a number of coaching jobs, the latest being his former club Real Madrid.

One role he will not be taking is with China's national team, who have been without a coach since Marcello Lippi left at the end of January.

Moving to quash any rumours, the Chinese Football Association (CFA) said on Weibo, China's version of Twitter: "News that the CFA invited the famous coach Mourinho to serve as head coach of the national side is not true. For media and fans, please don't believe this."

The CFA made no mention of the 45-year-old Cannavaro, who has been strongly linked in Chinese media with the post.

The Italian, who captained his country to World Cup glory in 2006, will stay in charge of Chinese Super League (CSL) giants Guangzhou Evergrande and take charge of both teams at the same time, reports said.

Chinese media said that Lippi, Cannavaro's mentor and Italy's coach when they lifted the World Cup, will have an advisory role in the new set-up.—AFP ■

Rennes fight back to stun 10-man Arsenal in Europa League

RENNES (France)—Arsenal face a major battle if they are to reach the Europa League quarter-finals after a 3-1 defeat away to Rennes in France on Thursday, despite Alex Iwobi putting the Gunners ahead early on.

Iwobi's goal gave the Premier League side the perfect start in this last 16, first leg at a raucous Roazhon Park, but the match hinged on the sending-off of Arsenal defender Sokratis Papastathopoulos four minutes before half-time. Benjamin Bourigeaud equalised for the French club moments later, and their second-half pressure paid off as a Nacho Monreal own goal put Rennes ahead before Ismaila Sarr's late header gave them a two-goal cushion in the tie.

andre Lacazette, who is suspended for both legs of this tie after being sent off against BATE in Belarus. They still got off to a perfect start, taking the lead inside four minutes when Iwobi's cross-cum-shot from the left edge of the box curled low into the far corner. Rennes slowly grew into the game, though, with Hatem Ben Arfa—who was sidelined last season by Emery when both were at Paris Saint-Germain—increasingly influential. Petr Cech, who spent two years at Rennes before joining Chelsea in 2004, saved well from a Ben Arfa free-kick in the 34th minute.

As half-time approached, Ben Arfa played in Sarr, who was hauled back by Sokratis just outside the area. The Unai Emery's side must now turn the tie around in the second leg at the Emirates Stadium next Thursday if they are to progress any further in a competition which represents their only hope of silverware this season as well as offering a potential route into next season's Champions League.

The Gunners recovered from a first-leg deficit to beat BATE Borisov in the last round, but Rennes are a step up in quality and are revelling in what is already their best ever European run. This result is also a shot in the arm for French clubs after Paris Saint-Germain's Champions League humiliation against Manchester United on Wednesday. Rennes had eliminated Real Betis in the last round and there was a superb atmosphere in a stadium packed to its capacity of almost 30,000. Arsenal were missing French striker Alex-

Greek defender had already been booked, so a second caution equalled a red card. Bourigeaud struck the wall from the resulting free-kick, but the ball came back to him and he sent a stunning half-volley arrowing into the far corner. Rennes had been unbeaten in all 12 previous home games since the appointment of Julien Stephan as coach in December, and they made the most of their man advantage in the second half. Cech made several interventions before being beaten again in the 65th minute, as Mehdi Zeffane's cross from the right deflected off Monreal and looped into the net. Their potentially crucial third goal arrived with two minutes left as James Lea-Siliki whipped in a cross from the left and Senegal star Sarr—a menace on the right flank all evening—arrived to head in at the far post.—AFP ■
