Furthermore the additional

so the additional budget requests should be for works originally requested and could be completed within the same period.

Additional budget request by union level departments and organizations were assessed initially by the Ministry of Planning and Finance and was further assessed by Vice President U Myint Swe. Similarly additional budget requests by states and regions were assessed by Vice President U Henry Van Thio.

Requests for supplementary budget allocation in fiscal year 2018-2019 were mainly due to deficit from exchange rate fluctuations, land compensation, salary, wages and travel allowances for staff, tax due to the Government, commercial tax and government expenditures.

Deficit from exchange rate fluctuation was for payment of principal and interest of foreign loans. Therefore, foreign currency usage must be properly managed and controlled. As foreign currency income declines, local currency rather than foreign currency must be used more while more efforts must be made towards obtaining foreign currencies.

As budget was allocated based on revenue, requests for supplementary budget were assessed and permitted if deficit was not increased, the work could be completed within the fiscal year and the work directly benefits the country and the people.

Furthermore, huge differences between actual and allocated expenditure showed the inability of the relevant department and organizations in conducting its works according to set aims.

Union level departmental organizations and state/region level departmental organizations needed to collect revenue in excess of target whenever possible and to use expenditure only where it was truly required. Expenditures should be used according to financial rules, regulations and procedures and must be expended systematically and effectively while preventing waste and misuses.

Next, Finance Commission Vice-Chairman Vice-President U Myint Swe said the supplementary budget requested for fiscal year 2018-2019 totals K 2,635 billion of which K 971 billion was for ordinary expenditure, K 467 billion was for capital expenditure, K 211 billion was for debt expenditure, K 709 billion was for investment expenditure and an additional expenditure of K 277 billion for departments and organizations conducting works outside of the Union budget with other accounts.

The supplementary budget allocation requested was found to be about 10.66 per cent of the initial amount and the increases were mainly due to increase in foreign exchange rate and raising the pension allowance of pensioners who retired before 1 April 2018 to the pension allowance rate of pensioners retiring from January 2019.

Priority were given toward special cases like supplementary budget allocation required for Rakhine State; salary, wages, awards, travel allowance and interest payments; and land and crop compensation for land and crop within projects and works conducted according to government policies.

To ensure that there were no return of unused funds and to raise the capacity in budget estimation, of the K 3,263 billion supplementary budget requested by departments and organizations, only K 2,635 billion was permitted.

Therefore, the initial expenditure of union level departments and organizations for fiscal year 2018-2019 was Ks 24,724 billion and the present supplementary budget requested amounting to Ks. 2,635 billion included Ks 39 billion for states and regions. Revised expenditure will be Ks 27,188 billion. The initial revenue was K 19,946 billion and the revised revenue will be K 21,868 billion. At the time when revisions was made GDP was K 105,726 billion and as the net deficit was Ks 5,320 billion, GDP to deficit ratio was 5.02 per cent said the Vice President.

Vice President U Henry Van Thio.

Afterwards Finance Commission Vice-Chairman Vice-President U Henry Van Thio said supplementary budget requested by states and regions for fiscal year 2018-2019 were assessed based on the revenue collected, allocation from tax collected and initial estimates. Expenditures were assessed and reduced according to set rules and regulations on assessing and reducing supplementary budget requests.

Expenditures that can be incurred through fund transfer and fund that should be requested only at the time when the accounts were drawn up were assessed and reduced. If expenditure was not included in the initial estimate, the supplementary budget requests were assessed and reduced according to the situation. Expenditures that did not support development much were assessed and reduced.

As per the assessment of the K 224.697 billion supplementary budget requested by states and region K 103.597 billion was reduced and the supplementary budget amount became K 121.1 billion. If this was permitted the initial estimate for fiscal year 2018-2019 was K 1,793.645 billion and the revised estimate will be K 1,832.64 billion resulting in an addition union funding support of K 38.995 billion.

The Vice President requested the Commission to review and approve the K 121.1 billion assessed fiscal year 2018-2019 supplementary budget allocation for states and regions and the revised union funding support of K 38.995 billion.

Financial Commission secretary Union Minister for Planning and Finance U Soe Win then explained about fiscal year 2018-2019 union supplementary budget, revised budget and the Union Supplementary Budget Allocation Bill while Financial Commission members Nay Pyi Taw Council Chairman, state and region chief ministers discussed in support of the bill. In delivering his concluding speech the President said the union government, state and regional governments were required to use the supplementary budget precisely according to laws, rules, financial regulations and procedures and must be audited systematically by internal audits and the Office of the Union Auditor General.

Calling tenders for construction and procurement works were to be conducted quickly during the fiscal year and delays or not calling for tenders would result in unused and excess funds. Furthermore the supplementary budget permitted was to be used within a three to four months period and if a supplementary budget was requested for works that could not be completed in that time frame would result in unused and excess fund. If the supplementary budget was not used or was used without benefiting the people it would mean the respective department or organization lacks capacity or had erred in its work.

He said in the New Year speech delivered last year, the habit of not using the budget was told to be changed. Project expenditures were to be estimated to the nearest actual amount and calculated reflecting the prices and rates of the region and time. The capacity to evaluate huge projects and producing progress reports were to be raised and developed. Severe action will be taken against those who invite tenders that are not in conformity with the rules and regulations, and those who take advantage of loopholes in the tender system for their own benefit, said the President. This warning was given again so tender rules and processes should be followed accurately.

Works need to be done by the Union Government toward controlling the deficit amount and the difference between initial and revised GDP to deficit ratio. The budget was to be estimated as accurately as possible and it would best if there were no requests for supplementary budget allocations. — MNA ■

Third workshop on draft national strategy to close IDP camps held in Nay Pyi Taw

A THIRD workshop on draft national strategy to close IDP camps was held at Horizon Lake View Resort, Nay Pyi Taw yesterday morning.

At the workshop, Union Minister for Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement Dr. Win Myat Aye said the workshop was to improve the draft national strategy to close IDP camps in Kachin, Kayin, Shan and Rakhine states and to draw up a strategy that was in accord with practical situation and Myanmar's situation. Government was placing much emphasis toward peace and development in the country. A country couldn't develop without peace.

People in unstable regions where there was no peace moved to secure and stable regions where there was peace and government was providing aids and assistance to them.

It was important for those who had lived in IDP camps for long to resettle back in their places of origin and live out a living. Emphasis was also placed for them to have dignified lives while staying in the IDP camps.

The arrangement to resettle them needs to include security and rights toward an opportunity to eke out a living. Some IDP camps in Rakhine and Kachin states were closed and resettled. This was conducted according to the wishes of the camp personnel.

Works were conducted for people to freely develop through social protection means according to the ministry's policy of establishing a society where there were basic human rights, was in line with democracy norms, live dignified lives, and was all inclusive. By suggesting and implementing the draft strategy, trust of the people in the remaining IDP camps will be obtained. A draft strategy where there were the same principal for all IDP camps was drawn up but thoughts need to be provided toward appropriateness toward differing situation on the ground.

The Union Minister concluded his speech by thanking all who participated in drawing up the draft strategy to close IDP camps, officials at respective states, local and foreign partner organizations.

Next UN Resident and Humanitarian Coordinator Mr. Kut Ostby delivered a greeting speech and the Union Minister posed for commemorative group photo with workshop attendees.

The opening ceremony of the workshop was attended by Deputy Ministers, Permanent Secretaries, directors general, invited representatives from ministries, state governments and UN organizations.

Dai-ichi Life Insurance gets green light to enter Myanmar

DAI-ICHI Life Insurance Co. has become one of five foreign insurers to obtain initial approval to enter the Myanmar market via a wholly-owned subsidiary.

Upon the approval from the Ministry of Planning and Finance dated Friday, Dai-ichi Life is expected to set up a subsidiary to start operations in the Southeast Asian country.

Dai-ichi Life won in-principle approval along with Hong Kong-based AIA Co., Bermuda-registered Chubb Tempest Reinsurance Ltd., Manufacturers Life Insurance Co. of Canada and Prudential Hong Kong Ltd., the ministry's Financial Regulatory Department said.

Myanmar in January announced the opening of its insurance sector to foreign firms and released terms and processes to give license approval.

In addition to the five foreign companies, the Myanmar government is also expected to grant licenses to five other Japanese insurers by mid-May to operate via joint ventures in which their shareholdings are limited to up to 35 percent, according to the regulatory body.

The five Japanese companies are two life insurers — Taiyo Life Insurance Co. and Nippon Life Insurance Co.'s regional arm Nippon Life Asia Pacific Pte. Ltd., and three nonlife insurers — Sampo Japan Nipponkoa Insurance Inc., Tokio Marine & Nichido Fire Insurance Co. and Mitsui Sumitomo Insurance Co.

After nearly half a century of monopoly under the state-backed Myanmar Insurance Co., the government started reforming the insurance sector in 2013 by granting licenses to local firms, while 33 foreign firms have been allowed to set up representative offices since then.—Kyodo News

Let's work together to create a successful digital economy

SCIENCE and technology play a major role in a country's development. The present moment is one of transition to the Fourth Industrial Revolution, or Industry 4.0, where manufacturing systems exchange data and information using automation systems.

The spheres of science, technology, and innovation need to gather momentum so that Myanmar does not get left behind.

Our approach to the Fourth Industry Revolution must be based on innovation, sharing, and leadership.

We must remain aware that the approach is concerned not only with youths, but all people. At the same time, we must invest in human resource development as much as possible to achieve success in the Fourth Industrial Revolution.

For the development of science, technology, and innovation, efforts of not only experts, but people at the grassroots also need to be recognized and encouraged.

For the development of science, technology, and innovation, efforts of not only experts, but people at the grassroots also need to be recognized and encouraged.

It is also required that we make arrangements to increase the participation of youths in the fields of innovation and invention, as well as create opportunities for such activities.

When we come across new technological skills, we must face them bravely, and we must reform our education system so that it gives us practical life skills and helps us adapt to a changing world.

Meanwhile, emphasis must be placed on transferring technology from innovation to manufacturing. If full technology copyrights are granted to them, there would be more innovators. For this to happen, we all need to work for the establishment of technology transfer rules and regulations.

The move would also support the country's successful transition towards an inclusive digital economy, and support the expansion of e-commerce.

Myanmar is now in the midst of a series of ambitious liberalization measures intended to open up new sectors to foreign competition and regional collaboration, making the country an attractive destination for FDI moving forward.

It is common knowledge that science, technology, and innovation play a major role in implementing the digital economy, pillars, and strategic work processes of the Myanmar Sustainable Development Plan 2018-2030.

Therefore, the works included in the aims of the Science, Technology and Innovation Law, enacted on 25 June, 2018, need to be implemented.

Only then can the country be poised, within the region and internationally, to achieve our aims and sustainable development.

72-year-old successfully summits Phonkanrazi Mountain

DR. MAUNG MAUNG GYI, a veteran photographer, successfully reached the top of the 11,900-foot Phonkanrazi Mountain, located in northern Myanmar's Putao town, ahead of his 72nd birthday.

"I climbed the mountain to mark my 72nd birthday. Another reason was that I like taking photographs. I trained for six months before the trip. I have climbed over 3,000-foot mountains — Seinkhanauk and Myakhanauk near Mandalay Region. Additionally, I have climbed up and down the Ban-bway and Kyauksin waterfalls. This was my training in climbing," said Dr. Maung Maung Gyi.

Three other photographers, U Soe Hlaing, Kyaw Zaw Lay, and Hlaing Min Aung, joined Dr. Maung Maung Gyi on his climb. They reached the top of the Phonkanrazi Mountain with the help of 14 mountain guides. The trip took 10 days —from 4 to 13 March—due to extreme weather conditions.

Eye on exports, MRF plans to inspect rice mills, warehouses

THE Myanmar Rice Federation is planning to inspect rice mills and warehouses of companies which will export rice to China under a government-to-government agreement, according to a press release issued by the federation.

China's food safety inspection mechanism — the General Administration of Quality Supervision, Inspection, and Quarantine (AQSIQ) — checks the quality of rice, and inspects rice mills and warehouses of companies before approving their shipments.

If Myanmar companies pass China's quality standards, they will be allowed to send their goods to China. The Myanmar Inspection and Testing Services Ltd, a recognized enterprise under the Ministry of Commerce, also conducts commodity inspections. After the inspections, the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation issues certificates allowing companies to export goods to China.

The Myanmar government is endeavoring to increase China's quota limit for rice imports to 400,000 tons. China had granted a quota of 100,000 tons to Myanmar in 2016.

China has been clamping down on illegal trade, prompting its dealers to halt trade, resulting in a drop in rice exports through the Myanmar border channels.

About 50,000 tons of rice meant for export to China has piled up at Muse gate, prompting merchants to halt supply of rice to the gate, said U Min Thein, vice chair, Muse rice depot.

Between 1 April, 2018 and 15 February, 2019, Myanmar exported 2.115 million tons of rice and broken rice, worth an estimated US$699.46 million.

Of the 3.6 million tons of rice shipped by Myanmar, half was sent to China through the border gates. —GNLM

Smart Island catches visitors' attention

THE Smart Island has received a large number of bookings from travelers wishing to explore the island during the Thingyan holidays, according to tour agencies.

The Smart Island is famous for its beautiful white sand beach and pebbles beach with crystal clear waters, underwater views, coral reefs, and various species of aquatic animals.

It is spread over 545.06 acres of land and dense forests. Popular beaches at the island include the 4,000-ft-long pebble beach in the northern part, and three white sand beaches, each measuring 600 feet, in the southern part. The two-faces island is located in the eastern part, Padan island in the western part, and other untouched beaches can be seen from the island, according to the Myeik Region Tourism Entrepreneurs Association. The Smart Island is located 68 miles from Myeik, and is a two-hour speedboat ride from Myeik jetty.

“The island is hosting more visitors than previous years. With the development of tourism, the number of tour businesses and speed boats are increasing. The most popular island is the Smart Island with two-faces, where a varieties of activities can be done such as exploring coral reefs and underwater diving. It is just a 15-minute walk to the sand beach and pebble beach. Therefore, most of the visitors go to the Smart Island for activities,” said U Myint Than, a spokesperson with the Mergui Dolphin tour agency.

“The Myeik archipelago trip has become popular in the high season and bookings have been made ahead of the Thingyan festival. There are plans to operate small speedboats and large speedboats, which can accommodate 200 passengers, to Smart island, Lay Kyunn island and other islands,” according to a tour operator.

“There are 35 tour agencies and 40 speedboats offering trips to the Myeik archipelago. At its meeting, the Myeik region's Tourism Entrepreneurs Association has directed that speedboats be inspected to check whether they are carrying life jackets and medicine boxes, and if they have installed communication equipment. A supervision committee will be formed to check passenger safety during the Thingyan festival and the police will cooperate with them,” U Thein Swe Myint added. — Khine Htoo (Myeik-IPRD)

Palin Kanthar elephant camp attracting many visitors

THE Palin Kanthar elephant camp, located in Palin Kanthar village, five miles from the NyaungU-Pakokku road beside the Ayeyawady River, is crowded with visitors ahead of the Thingyan festival.

The camp was opened on 28 April, 2018. At the time, it had six elephants, and now there are eight elephants — four males and four females — at the camp. The fee for elephant rides is K5,000 for local visitors and K10,000 for foreigners. The elephants are given a bath every morning and evening at the camp.

Normally, the camp hosts more than 100 visitors, and a large number of visitors can be seen during weekends and holidays. Food items for elephants such as sugarcane, watermelon, and corn are sold at a price of K1,000 per plate at the camp.

The Myanmar Timber Enterprise is providing regular treatment to elephants. The objective of the elephant camp is to conserve the wild animals, create job opportunities for local residents through elephant-based tourism, promote tourism, observe elephants, and create a recreational space for locals and tourists. There are currently 20 elephant camps in Myanmar. — Tin Hlaing (Meiktila)

Pearls of wisdom: Japan's cultured farms still glisten

SHIMA — In Japan's picturesque Ago Bay, a couple sits in a little hut picking out oysters from a net, cleaning them carefully one-by-one before replacing them gently back in the water.

Their hope: in several months, these oysters will produce a glistening white pearl from a cultured farming technique invented in Japan that is in decline as experts die out in the ageing country.

Cultured pearl farming was first commercialised in Ago Bay and spread throughout the world. There are still dozens of farms plying the trade there, which look from the sky like a series of rafts floating between the steep coast and a string of tiny islets.

In 1893, an Ago Bay local called Kokichi Mikimoto became worried the oyster pearls avidly sought in his waters were becoming extinct.

So he began introducing artificial foreign bodies into the oysters in a bid to replicate the natural process in which they secrete thousands of layers of nacre when a grain of sand or shell finds its way inside the pearl pocket.

After several setbacks — including a bacterial virus that decimated his crop — Mikimoto finally hit the jackpot: one day in July 1893 a semi-spherical pearl appeared, clinging to the oyster.

A decade or so later, he had refined his method to produce a perfectly round specimen and immediately patented his technique — the cultured pearl.

Success was not immediate — several viewed the cultured pearl as a vulgar replica of the “natural” variety — but eventually Mikimoto built a global empire and Japan became the reference for the small pearls known as “Akoya.”

Around the same time, two other Japanese, Tatsuhei Mise and Tokichi Nishikawa, applied for a patent.

Japan has produced around 20 tonnes of farmed pearls annually over the past 10 years, bringing in around 16.6 billion yen, and is aiming to reach 20 billion yen by 2027. PHOTO: AFP

Top five percent

The Sakaguchi family has been crafting these valuable pearls between three and 10 millimetres in diameter for three generations. Kasuhiro, 73, and Misayo, 68, are now supported by daughter Ruriko.

“Our job is to look after the oysters as well as we can for three to four years,” explained the energetic 43-year-old Ruriko, sporting an apron and headscarf.

“From harvesting the young oysters, introducing the graft, right up to extracting the pearl,” she added, as she dragged oysters from the net for inspection.

The whole delicate operation rests of the insertion of a nucleus — a small round polished ball made out of shellfish — and the “graft”, a piece of donor mantle tissue from another oyster.

Over a period of several months, the oyster reacts to the foreign bodies by secreting thousands of layers of nacre which form the pearl. The pearls are harvested in December, when the water is around 15 degrees, said Ruriko. “Below this, the pearl will lack strength. Above that, it will lack shine,” she explained.

It is a thankless task. Of the 100,000 oysters harvested annually, half die immediately after the operation. The vast majority produce either mediocre pearls or nothing at all. Only around five percent of the oysters harvested will result in pearls of sufficient quality to adorn the windows of chic jewellers far away in Tokyo.— AFP ■

China lowers tariffs on computers, bikes, other goods

BEIJING — China on Monday announced it will lower tariffs on some consumer goods ranging from computers to furniture and bicycles as Beijing faces worldwide scrutiny over its trade practices.

Beijing and Washington have slapped tariffs on more than $360 billion in two-way trade in their simmering trade spat while Europe has recently indicated it will take China to task for alleged unfair trade policies.

China's tariff rate on imported goods like books, computers, food, furniture and medicines will drop to 13 per cent starting Tuesday, the State Council's tariff commission announced.

The goods had been taxed at a 15 per cent rate, official news agency Xinhua reported.

The border tax slapped on other imported goods like sporting goods, fishing supplies, textiles, electronic appliances and bicycles will also be lowered to 20 per cent from 25 per cent, according to Xinhua.

Top EU leaders will meet Chinese Premier Li Keqiang this week at a summit in Brussels, but their hopes of winning solid commitments on trade look set for disappointment.

President Donald Trump on Friday said talks with Beijing were making progress toward ending the trade war between the world's two top economies, but he again stopped short of predicting success.

Boeing shares fall as 737 Max trouble continues

NEW YORK — Boeing shares extended losses on Monday as the aircraft maker continued to struggle with the trouble of its 737 Max jet involved in two recent deadly crashes.

The stock plunged as much as 5 per cent to a low of 371.86 US dollars apiece during the session, before closing down 4.4 per cent at 374.52 dollars per share, the biggest drag on the Dow.

The company announced Friday after the end of the market trading that it would cut 737 Max aircraft production by nearly 20 per cent, a signal that the ongoing issues surrounding the plane are not going to be resolved soon.

Boeing decided to cut 737 production to 42 airplanes per month, down from 52, starting in mid-April, according to the company.

Bank of America Merrill Lynch downgraded the Dow component from “buy” to “neutral” on Monday and slashed its outlook on Boeing, saying the plane manufacturer's recent troubles with the 737 Max are worse than expected.

“The reputational loss from these events could erode long-term market share and pricing power of the 737 MAX,” BofA analyst Ronald Epstein said in a note to clients.

The move came after two deadly crashes over the past six months both involving 737 Max aircraft and killing a combined 346 people. Questions have been raised about its safety, leading to a global grounding of the jet.

Investors were anxious that the troubles will be a hit to Boeing's 2019 earnings due to fewer-than-anticipated deliveries.

Despite all those issues, Boeing shares are still up 16 per cent year to date. The aircraft maker is set to report earnings for its latest fiscal quarter on 24 April.—Xinhua ■

Paralympics: IPC to meet with two Koreas on potential unified teams

TOKYO — International Paralympic Committee President Andrew Parsons said Tuesday his organization will meet with North and South Korea's Paralympic representatives soon to discuss an ideal form for their participation in the 2020 Tokyo Paralympic Games, including the possibility of unified teams.

If the two Koreas form any unified teams at the Tokyo Games or march together at the opening or closing ceremonies, it will be a first for them to do so in any Summer or Winter Paralympics.

"We are still discussing with the two National Paralympic Committees...So sooner rather than later, we will be meeting with them," Parsons told Kyodo News in a telephone interview.

Asked about the sports in which the nations may field unified teams, Parsons said it will depend on the availability of athletes and the qualification process.

"These are the kind of details that we need more information from the two national Paralympic committees to be able to even start the discussion on the feasibility," he said.

Regarding the Olympic Games in Tokyo, the International Olympic Committee has agreed that the two Koreas can enter unified teams in qualifying competitions for women's basketball, women's hockey, mixed judo and rowing.

"As soon as we get some kind of agreement, we will announce to the media," Parsons said.

Parsons also expressed his great expectations for the influence of sports in a variety of areas including in social and political fields, where sports can sometimes ease tensions and mend ties.

"I think sports can help bring together (the) two countries that have been in a difficult relationship for years and decades. I think it's one of the roles sports can play," he said, adding it will be a "positive discussion" when the three parties meet.

"So let's wait for the meeting," Parsons said.

At the March 2018 Pyeongchang Paralympics in South Korea, in which two North Korean athletes competed as wildcard entries, a joint march by the two Koreas had been planned for the opening ceremony but was canceled at the last minute.

At the preceding 2018 Winter Olympics, however, the two Koreas entered the Pyeongchang opening ceremony under the blue and white unified flag.

During last October's Asian Para Games in Jakarta, the two Koreas marched together at the opening ceremony under a unified flag and competed in swimming and table tennis events as "Korea." — Kyodo News ■

Chelsea coach hints it will be hard to keep Hazard

LONDON — Chelsea coach Maurizio Sarri has dropped a big hint that his side's Belgian international forward Eden Hazard could be on his way to Real Madrid over the summer.

Speaking to the press after a Hazard masterclass took Chelsea to a 2-0 win over West Ham United with his 18th and 19th goals of the season, Sarri was asked about the future of the player whose contract is up at the end of the 2019-2020 season.

Real Madrid are thought to have identified Hazard as their top target as they look to rebuild after the disasters of this season and when Sarri was asked if Chelsea could afford to lose him, he replied, "from a technical point of view, no, it's impossible to find another Hazard."

"At the moment there isn't another Hazard, his level is so high. You'd have to find two players to make the level of Hazard. So I hope Hazard can stay here, otherwise we'll have to try something different," he said.

The problem facing Chelsea is that with Hazard so far failing to sign a new contract, he could leave for nothing in July 2020, while selling him now would bring in a considerable transfer fee.

"I'm sure the club doesn't want to sell him. But, of course, we all have to respect his decision. He will be entering the last season of contract and, if he wants to have another experience, we'll respect that. We'll try, of course, in any way to convince him, but it's not easy," the coach said.

Real Madrid are thought to be prepared to pay around 100 million pounds, (around 130 million US dollars) for Hazard, but Sarri commented that even if Hazard has just one year left on his current deal, that was "too cheap in this market." —Xinhua ■

Qatar aims to build $20 bln sports industry

DOHA — Qatar wants to build a $20 billion sports industry by 2022 as it seeks to develop new markets amid regional political tensions, an economic official in the emirate said Sunday.

Yousuf Mohamed al-Jaida, chief executive of the Qatar Financial Centre, said he expected the target to be reached within three years -- without specifying how the figure was reached or giving its current value.

Jaida said there would be "a major expansion of sports in terms of targets and in terms of focus".

Although well-known for hosting sporting events — and Qatar is likely to bid again to host the Olympics — Jaida said the new approach would go further.

The development of the industry would focus not only on hosting, but increased use of Qatari sporting medical and training facilities considered among the best in the world.

One of the ways, he added, would be to cash in on the growing international reputation of the country's expensive sports' training centre, the Aspire Academy, who had officials present at the launch Sunday.

Aspire is used by an increasing number of teams — including Bayern Munich and Qatari-owned Paris Saint-Germain — and is a hothouse for many of the local players who recently helped Qatar win the Asian Cup.

"We're doing this in coordination with Aspire and if you look at the infrastructure that they put together it's massive, it's world class and I think we can build upon their success," said Jaida.

The QFC is a government-backed business body that aims to attract domestic and international investment into Qatar. Jaida admitted that the new approach had been driven because of political tensions in the Gulf.

"The strategy came about because of the geo-political situation," he said.

Since June 2017, Qatar has found itself isolated from neighbouring former allies in a bitter political dispute.—AFP ■
