Work on bridge linking Ayeyawady, Rakhine to start in Nov

CONSTRUCTION work on a bridge linking the Ayeyawady Region and Rakhine State will begin in November, according to the Ministry of Construction.

The Chaungwa Bridge is estimated to cost around K3.6 billion, and funds will be allocated for its construction from the Ayeyawady Region's budget for the 2019-2020 fiscal year, according to the project engineer in-charge, Daw Thin Thin Aung, of the Bridge Special Group-18 of the Ministry of Construction.

The bridge will be located along the coast, on the Ngayokekaung-Gawyingyi Road, which passes through Ngaputaw, Pathein District, Ayeyawady Region and links with Gwa in Rakhine State. The bridge would benefit the transport in the two regions as it would make it easier to reach to Kantharyar and Ngapali beaches in Rakhine State. The iron reinforced bridge would be 866 ft long and 24 ft wide, with a clearance of 7 metres. The bridge would be able to withstand 60 tons of load.

Upon completion, the bridge would speed up the flow of trade between Ayeyawady Region and Rakhine State, and help develop the socio-economic conditions, and the state of health and education of the people residing in the two regions.

Transport, Communications sector tops FDI line-up in last fiscal

The manufacturing sector has absorbed FDI of $1.34 billion from 225 projects in the last Financial Year. The agriculture sector has attracted six foreign investment projects with a capital of $19 million. The livestock and fisheries sector has drawn 14 foreign investment projects worth $156.89 million. Two projects worth $93.28 million have been approved in the power sector.

The real estate sector has also raked in $210.9 million from four foreign projects. The hotels and tourism sector has drawn an FDI of $82.6 million through seven new projects. The industrial estate sector has also attracted one project worth $48.45 million. Over $650.74 million in FDI has been pumped into the other services sector.

The MIC set an FDI target of $5.8 billion for the 2018-2019FY, but it fell short of reaching the target as the MIC carefully and systematically screened the proposals, according to the DICA.

Unlike before, the DICA has tightened investment screening, and is following up the history, responsibility, and reputation to check whether there are bankruptcy and insolvency records of investment enterprises. Therefore, the FDI target was not reached this fiscal year," said U Thant Sin Lwin, the director-general of the DICA.

Foreign direct investment into Myanmar was registered at $1.76 billion in the last mini-budget period, $5.7 billion in the 2017-2018 FY, $6.6 billion in the 2016-2017 FY, and $9.4 billion in the 2015-2016 FY. —GNLM

Mung bean price on the rise since Sept-end; breaches K800,000 per ton

THE price of mung beans has been gradually increasing since September-end, and it is currently pegged above K800,000 per ton, according to a commodity depot in Yangon.

With India's October-end bean import deadline approaching, bean and pulses are being traded daily at high prices. However, merchants are trying to ensure the trading volume is under control so there is no sudden spike in prices.

At present, mung beans are fetching K869,000 per ton in the Yangon market, an increase of K80,000 within one week.

At the 4th ASEAN-India Expo and Summit held last February, a Myanmar delegation, led by the Union Minister for Commerce and comprising pulses and beans merchants, forwarded a request to Indian government officials to purchase 400,000 tons of mung beans from Myanmar. But, there has been no response to the request, according to the association.

India, the main buyer of Myanmar pulses, has announced an import quota of 150,000 tons for mung beans and 200,000 tons for pigeon peas for exporter countries. The import deadline has been set for the end of this month.

Besides India, Myanmar

beans are purchased by Bangladesh, Pakistan, Nepal, Dubai, Malaysia, Indonesia, China (Taipei), Japan, some ASEAN, and European countries. But, the volume of demand is small, according to the domestic pulses market.

The Ministry of Commerce has been conducting a series of discussions to sell Myanmar beans through government-to-government (G2G) pacts. In addition, the ministry has been exploring more external markets, said U Aung Htoo, the Deputy Minister for Commerce.

India's move to restrict importation of pulses in August, 2017 severely affected growers in Myanmar. The price of pulses also plummeted drastically.

In the 2017-2018 fiscal year, over one million tons of mung beans, pigeon peas, and green grams were shipped to foreign countries. But, the earnings were registered at just $713 million owing to the price drop, according to data provided by the Ministry of Commerce.—GNLM ■ (Translated by Ei Myat Mon)

Number of companies registered on MyCO reaches 67,392 in Sep-end: DICA

THE number of companies registered on the online registry system MyCO has touched 67,392 as of end-September, according to the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration. Registration and re-registration of companies on the MyCO website commenced on 1 August, 2018, in keeping with the Myanmar Companies Law 2017. Since then, more than 21,000 new companies and 46,000 existing companies have registered and re-registered on MyCO, which has brought the total number of registered companies to over 67,000 by September-end. Over 90 per cent of companies have submitted online applications for registration, while the rest have filed their applications manually, according to data provided by the DICA.

MyCO is receiving more than 1,000 applications from new companies every month, and last month, 1,181 companies registered through the platform, according to the DICA.

The DICA had set a six-month deadline from 1 August, 2018 to 31 January, 2019 for registration and re-registration. At the time, it had said that companies which failed to re-register would be struck off from the register list.

Over 60,000 companies were previously registered in Myanmar and all of them were notified to re-register on MyCO. When the deadline closed, 46,377 old companies had re-registered on MyCO and over 10,000 companies had failed to do so.

After the deadline ended, companies which wanted to restore their corporate status were asked to shell out a fee and provide sufficient reasons, according to the DICA.

According to regulations, companies had to provide sufficient reasons why they failed to register before the deadline. They had to shell out a fine after the lapse of the six-month deadline, said an official from DICA.

As per Chapter III of the notification (66/2018) issued by the Ministry of Planning and Finance on 23 July, 2018, if an existing company had failed to re-register on the electronic registry system within the deadline, the registrar could strike its name off the register and publish a notice in the Gazette. Once the notice was published, the company would be dissolved, while the liability of the directors and the members of the company would continue to be enforced.

Under Section (d) of Chapter III, a registrar could restore an existing company or corporate body which had failed to re-register, if it provided sufficient cause before its name was struck off the register. Such companies were to be restored after they shelled out a fee prescribed by the Union Minister.—GNLM ■ (Translated by Ei Myat Mon)

THE value of Myanmar's maritime trade for the period between 1 October, 2018 and 20 September, 2019 in the last fiscal year totaled US$24.1 billion, a decline of over $1.68 billion compared with the year-ago period, according to data provided by the Ministry of Commerce.

Maritime exports were valued at $9.5 billion, while imports were registered at $14.6 billion.

Compared to the same period in the 2017-2018 fiscal year, imports were lower by $1.28 billion, while exports registered a drop of $394 million.

In the October-September period, the value of trade through the border gates was estimated at $9.9 billion, an increase of $1.13 billion amid tight confiscation of illegal untaxed goods and trade suspension by Myanmar's main trade partner, China.

Meanwhile, the country's total external trade crossed $34 billion, which is slightly lower than $34.55 billion recorded in the year-ago period.

Myanmar exports agricultural products, fishery products, minerals, livestock, forest products, finished industrial goods, and other products, while it imports capital goods, consumer goods, and raw industrial materials.

The country currently has nine ports involved in sea trade. The Yangon Port is the main gateway for Myanmar's maritime trade, and includes the Yangon inner terminals and the outer Thilawa Port. — Mon Mon ■ (Translated by Ei Myat Mon)

Fish, prawns from Kyaukpyu being sent to Yangon alone: depots

FISH and prawns from Kyaukphyu, which have registered a low demand in Bangladesh, are being sent only to the Yangon market, according to Kyaukpyu fish and prawn commodity depots.

In 2017, most of the fish, prawns, and crabs produced in Kyaukpyu were sent to the Sittway market and Bangladesh, said a fish and prawn seller.

“At the end of 2018, we could not send the fisheries products to the Sittway market and Bangladesh because there were armed conflicts in the border area. So, the road was not safe for transporting our products. Currently, we are sending the fisheries products only to the Yangon market,” according to a local fishery dealer from a purchase depot.

The value of border trade between Myanmar and Bangladesh as on 20 September stood at US$22.39 million, a decrease of $65.216 million compared with the same period in the previous fiscal, according to statistics provided by the Ministry of Border trade between the two countries is conducted through the Sittway and Maung-taw cross-border camps. From 1 October to 20 September, trade through the Maungtaw gate reached $8.8 million, while trade at the Sittway border checkpoint was valued at $13.6 million.

Myanmar exports fisheries products, including dried fish, to South Asian nations, and imports kitchen ware and clothing items from them.

Items traded at the Myanmar-Bangladesh border include bamboo, ginger, peanuts, salt-water prawns and fish, dried plums, garlic, rice, mung beans, blankets, candy, plum jams, footwear, frozen foods, chemicals, leather, jute products, tobacco, plastics, wood, knitwear, beverages, and human hair.

1,200 irrigation wells to be dug for villages in Pwintbyu Township

A total of 1,200 wells will be dug, with the assistance of the Asian Development Bank (ADB), to supply irrigation water to villages in Pwintbyu Township, Minbu District, Magway region, which currently do not have access to water for agricultural purposes, said U Sithu Phyo Win, the head of the Irrigation and Water Utilization Management Department in Pwintbyu.

The irrigation water supply project through digging of 1,200 wells will be implemented for seven years, beginning from the 2019-2020 fiscal.

Currently, a team led by U Sithu Phyo Win is conducting a survey of the villages which lack irrigation water supply, in cooperation with the Township

Agricultural Department.

“With the aim to supply agricultural water to local farmers to help them grow crops conveniently in the villages of Pwintbyu Township, about 1,200 wells will be dug within seven years, beginning 2019-2020,” said U Sithu Phyo Win.

“Currently, a survey is being conducted in those villages.

We are implementing the project to supply water to help promote the quality of life of local farmers through income earned from the agricultural sector,” he added.

The project, which will be implemented soon, will cover about 15,000 acres of farm land, said U Sithu Phyo Win.—Ye Win Naing (Nyaung U) ■ (Translated by Hay Mar)

Building inclusive platforms

PUBLIC participation is the main driving force behind the development of a nation, regardless of its administrative or political system. Above all, the success of national development undertakings depends on the unanimous involvement of the people. Although national development is the aspiration of both the leaders and the public, we can achieve progress, in accordance with the objectives, only if the needs and goals of the people are met, and strong bonds of interaction are established between the leaders and the people.

If people appreciate that they too are stakeholders in politics, the country's leaders will enjoy ardent public support, and that is the best way to bring about active public involvement in the political affairs of the country. With the aim of broadening the scope of public involvement in the drive for democracy, the Information and Public Relations Department of the Ministry of Information is running community centers across the nation.

“A community center is a meeting point, where residents of all ages of a locality deal with domestic affairs and other necessary issues. These centers serve as a platform not only for the whole community but also for individuals to conduct social affairs and express social needs. Many countries are also running community centers,” said the Union Minister for Information while explaining the goals and reasons for opening the centers and their usefulness.

A community center is neither a government office nor a branch of any business or private organization. It is a public place where people can discuss social or communal or individual affairs and requirements freely, or share information, seek knowledge, or learn vocational education, among other things. Community centers also serve as venues for roundtable talks, forums, training courses, competitions, and exhibitions. But, it is important that the people use the centers, which are offering various services for them, effectively.

Democracy calls for high intellectual power and wisdom or the abundance of valued added human resources, and community centers can serve as the foundation for this clarion call. Better services at the centers will further cement and improve relations and add to public knowledge. So, they can be inclusive platforms for rallying public support in the drive for democracy, and in building a democratic federal Union, envisaged by the entire country.

World Habitat Day Frontier Technologies as an Innovative Tool to Transform Waste to Wealth

By Bijay Karmacharya, the Country Programme Manager of UN-Habitat, Myanmar

URBANIZATION is a complex global human phenomenon. We are in a new stage of human history where more than half of the world's population lives in urban areas. In the early twentieth century, only 20 per cent of the global population lived in cities. Today, this figure has exceeded 55 per cent and predictions for the next 30 years suggest that it will rise to 70 per cent.

Most of the rapid urbanization is taking place in developing nations. In Myanmar, 29% of its people lives in urban areas. Yangon city houses 5.2 million, followed by 2.1 million in Mandalay and 400,000 in Nay Pyi Taw. Myanmar is in an early stage of its urbanization compared to its South East Asian neighbors.

As urbanization increases, cities face increasing waste management crisis. Environ-

In Myanmar, 29% of its people lives in urban areas. Yangon city houses 5.2 million, followed by 2.1 million in Mandalay and 400,000 in Nay Pyi Taw.

mental sanitation and public health challenges are invited by waste management failure in the cities. Globally, cities produce 7-10 billion tonnes of solid, liquid, domestic, industrial and commercial waste every year. Unless urgent actions are taken by reducing, reusing, recycling and rethinking waste management in cities, global waste is expected to grow by 70 per cent on current levels by 2050.

Waste management remains a daunting task, which must be handled with a holistic waste management approach. There is a pressing call for proper management of waste with an innovative approach in order to maintain environmental sanitation that is suitable for management globally, in addition to practical and appropriate techniques that are tested and proven in the context of developing nations like Myanmar.

According to the World Economic and Social Survey 2018 by the United Nations, frontier technologies hold enormous potential to improve how people work and live. They will also significantly accelerate efforts to achieve the SDGs and address climate change.

As the world marks the “World Habitat Day” on 7th of October this year with the theme “Frontier Technologies as an Innovative Tool to Transform Waste to Wealth”, UN-Habitat is advocating for the use of innovative and appropriate technologies for sustainable waste management to achieve Sustainable Development Goal 11: inclusive, safe, resilient and sustainable cities.

In general, cities' waste management system in developing countries face challenges in terms of operations and management, from collection to transportation, intermediate treatment and final disposal of

In Myanmar, it is estimated that an average of 11.3 million tonnes of waste are generated every year and approximately 55 per cent of total generated waste in the country is coming from the three major cities: Yangon, Mandalay and Nay Pyi Taw. The city of Yangon, with its consumption pattern and rapid population and economic growth, has been experiencing unprecedented volume of solid waste that needs to reach the dumpsite daily. It is estimated that 2500 tonnes of waste is produced in Yangon, of which 60% reaches the largest dumpsite in Htein Bin. This dumpsite suffered a major fire outbreak last year. The need of a proper solid waste management system with an appropriate technology has become an urgent need in the city.

In order to address these challenges at the national and city levels, the Government of Myanmar rolled out the “National Waste Management Strategy and Action Plan for Myanmar (2017-2030)” with a mission “to develop and implement the holistic and integrated waste management strategy based on principles of inclusiveness, zero waste, zero emission and circular economy to achieve a greener, cleaner and healthier environment in Myanmar”. Despite the government's effort to combat the waste issue, there still is a need of sustainable systems which can go beyond visible cleanliness.

Frontier technologies are not yet widely acknowledged and used in Myanmar. However, the steps forward for the initiative of “waste to wealth” should be taken through innovative tools to retain values from waste by effectively managing them and promoting environmentally sound waste disposal.

UN-Habitat is working with Yangon city in a technology and knowledge transfer project for solid waste management in Htein Bin Dumpsite. A tested and proven appropriate technology called “Fukuoka Method” is being implemented with the technical cooperation from Fukuoka city of Japan.

The Fukuoka Method is an innovative landfill technology that uses a semi-aerobic method of decomposition of solid waste. The semi-aerobic landfill design helps leachate to drain swiftly from waste and thus, allowing to faster decomposition of waste, improving quality of the waste water and reducing emissions of methane. The Fukuoka Method is accredited as Clean Development Mechanism by United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC).

This project aims decompose waste faster and reduces the production of greenhouse gases, thereby contributing to longer life of the dumpsite and reducing impact on climate. The project promotes segregation of plastic materials at the source as well as at the dumpsite and helps the private sector to engage in recycling of the plastics.

UN-Habitat Myanmar, with the aim to transfer the appropriate technology, Fukuoka Method, expects to contribute to reduce the risk of future fire hazards and to manage the landfill site in a sustainable manner. This low-cost and eco-friendly method will also reduce pollutants from leachate in the landfill site which will improve the environmental condition of the area and reduce methane production under the dump. In the pursuit of effective waste management, UN-Habitat works with the city in rethinking “Waste to Wealth” in the entire waste management cycle.

Myanmar hospice care globally ranks seventy sixth

Myanmar's hospice care ranked seventy-sixth in the world, according to Dr Hla Maung, the patron of U Hla Tun Myitta Yeik Mon Cancer Foundation.

"There are free care centres in Yangon and Mandalay for the cancer patients who were given up by doctors due to terminal ill. The terminally ill cancer patients were provided with free cares. The hospice care in Myanmar globally ranked 76th," said Dr Hla Maung at the donated cash presentation ceremony for cancer patients at the U Hla Tun Myitta Yeik Mon Cancer Foundation in Yangon yesterday.

Hospice is a type of care provided for terminally ill cancer patients who were given up by doctors.

In 2015, Lien Foundation and The Economist Intelligence Unit jointly conducted a survey on terminally ill cancer patients in 80 countries, and compiled a list.

According the list, the top ten Hospice care countries are Britain the first, Australia the second, New Zealand the third, Ireland the fourth, Belgium the fifth, Chinese Taipei the sixth, Germany the seventh, Netherlands the eighth, the United States the ninth and France the tenth.

Out of the eighty countries, Myanmar ranked seventy-sixth after U Hla Tun Myitta Yeik Mon Cancer Foundation centres were established in Yangon and Mandalay.

Public accountant and financial advisor Outstanding Humanitarian Service Award recipient U Hla Tun established the foundation in 1998 after his only daughter died of blood cancer.

Since the establishment of the foundation, 2,713 hospice patients in Yangon and 3,481 patients in Mandalay were provided cares. — Myint Maung Soe

Outsiders battle political elite as Tunisia votes

TUNIS—Outsider candidates challenged Tunisia’s political elite on Sunday as voters returned to the polls weeks after a presidential election that reshaped the country’s post-Arab Spring political landscape.

The ink-stained fingers once proudly displayed after the 2011 revolution were briskly wiped clean as Tunisians fed up with the status quo cast ballots for MPs for the third time since the uprising. The vote comes after traditional political parties were eclipsed in favour of independent candidates during the first round of presidential polls last month in a trend that looked likely to continue.

Xi and Kim hail ‘immortal’
China-North Korea relationship

BEIJING — Chinese President Xi Jinping has promised to promote a “long-term, sound and stable” relationship with North Korea, state news agency Xinhua said Sunday, as the two countries mark 70 years of diplomatic relations.

North Korean leader Kim Jong Un also sent a message to Xi saying their countries’ “invincible friendship will be immortal on the road of accomplishing the cause of socialism,” said Pyongyang’s state news agency KCNA on Sunday. North Korea was among the first countries to recognise the People’s Republic of China after it was founded in 1949.

Xi said the relationship between the Asian neighbours had played an “important and positive role in maintaining regional peace and stability,” said Xinhua.

Since March 2018, Xi and Kim have met five times. Xi was the first Chinese leader to visit the reclusive North in 14 years when he made a highly symbolic trip to the nuclear-armed state in June.

Kim said the two countries would “steadily defend the cause of socialism and preserve peace and stability of the Korean peninsula and the world,” according to KCNA. —AFP ■

re-election bid

COLOMBO — Sri Lankan President Maithripala Sirisena has decided not to stand for re-election in November polls as the politically influential Rajapakse family nominated two candidates by final registration Sunday.

Sirisena’s name was not on a list of 41 candidates who paid deposits by Sunday’s noon deadline to contest the November 16 presidential poll, according to Election Commission records. It means Sirisena will leave office the day after the election, cutting short his five-year term by 52 days. A spokesman for Sirisena’s Sri Lanka Freedom Party (SLFP) confirmed he was not seeking re-election.

Sirisena caused a constitutional crisis last year when he sacked Prime Minister Ranil Wickremesinghe and replaced him with former president Mahinda Rajapakse. The Supreme Court later ruled against Sirisena’s action and reinstated Wickremesinghe. Two of Rajapakse’s brothers— younger sibling Gotabhaya and elder Cha-

Iran says China’s CNPC pulls out of gas project

TEHRAN — Iran’s oil minister said Sunday that China’s CNPC has withdrawn from the development of an offshore gas field and that state-owned Petropars will take over the entire project. The South Pars gas field was to be developed jointly by France’s Total, China National Petroleum Corporation and Petropars under a $4.8-billion (4.1 billion-euro) deal signed in July 2017. The deal came after Iran reached a 2015 agreement with world powers that gave it relief from sanctions in exchange for limits on its nuclear programme, ending years of economic isolation.

Total left the project three months after US President Donald Trump’s administration withdrew from the nuclear accord in May last year and reimposed sanctions on Iran’s oil industry and other key sectors of the economy.—AFP ■

Tomb of Poet King Nat Shin Naung in Thanlyin

By Thiha (the Traveller)

WE knew of Nat Shin Naung ever since we were young after being taught about him in our school lessons. But I learnt more about him as I grew up because this great poet was a very interesting person. Yaza Datu Kalyar, known for her beauty, was a person known together with him. She was 19 years his senior and he won her heart through his poems. He was not only an outstanding person in the soft arts of poems but also in the hard and tough works of warfare and fighting. He was also known as the grandson of Bayintnaung. The tomb or a pagoda entombing his remain was right beside Kyaikkhaug Pagoda in Thanlyin Township. Most visitors overlooked and went past this significant place without ever knowing the background about it.

Who was Nat Shin Naung?

An outstanding poet, musician and an equally outstanding military commander, he was the grandson of King Bayitnaung. His father, ruler of Toungoo, was Min Ye Thiha Thu. Nat Shin Naung was born in 1587. As a military commander, he took part in King Nanda's unsuccessful attempt to conquer Siam in the early 1590s. He was in a battle where King Naresuan of Thailand was victorious over the Crown Prince of Myanmar. The date 18 January had been commemorated in Thailand as Royal Thai Armed Forces Day.

Nat Shin Naung also participated in his father's successful attack or revolt against King Nanda's capital city in Bago on 1599. The joint attack on Bago was by forces of Taungoo and Arakan (Rakhine) where King Nanda was captured and taken as prisoner to Taungoo. Captive King Nanda was reportedly assassinated by Nat Shin Naung without authorization from his father. Nat Shin Naung became Crown Prince when his father Min Ye Thiha Thu became King of Toungoo.

Crown Prince Nat Shin Naung married his love Yaza Datu Kalyar, the source of his famous poems, in 1603. But their love story ended as tragedy with the death of Yaza Datu Kalyar seven months later.

On his father's death in 1609, Nat Shin Naung became King of Toungoo. By that time, Myanmar that has fallen apart into small states after the sacking of King Nanda's capital city Bago, was mostly unified under the leadership of King Anaukpetlun. The kingdom of Anaukpetlun was known in Myanmar history as Nyaungyan Dynasty and King Anaukpetlun completed the reunification effort of his father King Nyaungyan. In 1610, King Anaukpetlun attacked and conquered Toungoo but let Nat Shin Naung continue to rule Toungoo as a vessel state. As Nat Shin Naung was not happy with his status, he made secret alliance with Filipe de Brito e Nicote, a Portuguese mercenary who became ruler of Thanlyin known locally as Nga Zinga to take back Toungoo. When this attack failed, Nat Shin Naung fled to Thanlyin with Nga Zinga.

The final chapter of Nat Shin Naung came with the capture of Thanlyin in 1613 by Anuakpetlun. King Anuakpetlun offered to pardon Nat Shin Naung but Nat Shin Naung refused to gave an oath of allegiance saying he had already converted to Christianity after being baptized in Thanlyin and chose death together with his blood-brother Nga Zinga over servitude. Both were put to death by the conquering King Anaukpetlun.

Tomb or pagoda for Nat Shin Naung

Remains or Nat Shin Naung and Nga Zinga were buried separately. Nat Shin Naung tomb was built as a pagoda near Kyaukkhauk Pagoda. It was now maintained as historical building and was fenced off probably for renovation or restoration.

How to go there

Thanlyin can be reached simply by car and Kyaikkhauk Pagoda is after the turn to Thilawa Industrial Zone. Just don't miss the Nat Shin Naung tomb or pagoda beside the Kyaikkhauk pagoda. It is the final resting place of the controversial poet king Nat Shin Naung.

While ago our group of media personnel attended a press conference held at Junction City and then went on to attend a talk on Danu history held by author Min Lwin Oo (Aungban) at Danu National Congregation Hall (Dhammayone) near the eastern stairway of Shwedagon Pagoda.

Together with me were Evergreen Media photographer Takkatho Han Min Oo, Myawady reporter Ko Aung Myo Kyaw (Maung Myo Ay-

even though invitations were sent out. At the top of the stairway was a thin tall Danu man dressed in a traditional Danu costume with a headdress who cordially greeted us. The talk had already begun when we arrive and there were many Danu nationals mostly dressed in traditional Danu costume listening attentively to the talks. Many Danu women were dressed in a bright red traditional Danu costume making them stands out among the crowd. Also at the event were Danu monks.

Author Min Lwin Oo (Aungban) was talking of a book he cent of Nawngkhio Township and 30 per cent of Yaksawk Township.

There were also some Danu villages in some townships. There were 25 villages in Thazi Township, 3 or 4 villages in Pinlaung Township and 20 villages in Taunggyi Township. According to 2014 Census, there were a total of about 400,000 Danu in Myanmar. In Shan State, Danu was the fourth largest by population while in the whole country it is the tenth largest by population. Danu ethnic nationals were simple people by nature and lived on farming.

women were mouth watering. Fresh and crispy cabbages and boiled vegetables, bean soup, cooked ground nut and vegetable salads seem to be the main dishes of the Danus. A chicken curry dish was placed at the centre of the table together with a dried and smoked fish dish. Potato fry and some fried snacks were also on the table as after-lunch dessert.

Author Min Lwin Oo (Aungban) came to our lunch table and explained about the various foods. He said a Myanmar representative group led by Bogyoke eyawady) and Hot News reporter Ko Zaw Myint. The initial plan was to return home after the press conference but upon hearing about the talk on Danu history, everyone's interest was raised and we all decided to go there.

In a thinly disguised bribery attempt to persuade us all to go Ko Han Min Oo said the talk will be about Danu history and Danu lunch will be provided. The interest of all was raised without the lunch bribe so we started our journey to the Danu National Dhammayone. As it was already past 11 am when we left Junction City, we hopped onto a taxi to arrive at our destination on time but still we reached it only past 12 noon.

On seeing us, a young Danu national rushed down from the second floor of the Dhammayone welcoming us saying it was a great pleasure to see us because there seems to be not much of media presence wrote about Danu based on Danu history. He explained that the Danus were of Tibeto Burman race and even though their spoken words were slightly different from the Myanmar spoken language, it was in fact the same language spoken in a local accent that makes it sound like a different language. The written letters were also the same added author Min Lwin Oo (Aungban).

Danu ethnic nationals were one of the 135 ethnic national races of Myanmar. Danus mainly lived in five townships and of these five, the two, Pindaya and Ywangan townships were designated as Danu Self-Administered Zone. Pindaya Town was the capital of Danu Self-Administered Zone. The adjacent townships of Yaksawk, Kalaw and Nawngkhio also had Danu ethnic national population. By percentage Danu ethnic nationals made up 85 per cent of Ywangan Township, 75 per cent of Pindaya Township, 40 per cent of Kalaw Township, 42 per Lwin Oo (Aungban) was not a complete history and facts about Danu ethnic nationals but was enough to have a good understanding about them. As the time crept past 1 pm, both the speaker and audience seem to become hungry and the eyes were wandering toward where lunch was being prepared. The talk soon ends and people shifted from the hall to the lunch tables.

The food prepared by Danu mixture of rice and potato with fried vegetable was also said to be of a unique taste. Unfortunately these were not included in the lunch that we had and we looked forward to the day to taste it all together with the ethnic Danu nationals when we visit Ywangan, Pindaya, Yaksawk, Kalaw, Aungban and Nawngkhio.

MNL names best players of 2019 season

THE Myanmar National League recently announced the names of players who delivered the best performances during the 2019 season of the football league on its official social media page.

Yadanarbon's Win Naing Tun has been named as the player with the second-best attacking

Traore double rocks Man City's title defence as Wolves triumph

MANCHESTER — Two late goals from Wolves' Adama Traore inflicted a stunning 2-0 defeat on Manchester City to leave the Premier League champions trailing leaders Liverpool by eight points.

It was a thoroughly deserved victory for Nuno Espirito Santo's men, who enjoyed the better chances and became the first team to stop City scoring at the Etihad Stadium for 34 matches.

Even with only eight games played, Liverpool now have a golden chance to win their first league title for 30 years after starting the campaign with eight straight wins.

And as time ticked on, the urgency of the situation for Pep Guardiola's side was apparent as they have already dropped more points at home than in the whole of last season. City were again made to pay for a serious of key defensive injuries and badly missed the creativity of Kevin De Bruyne in midfield.

Wolves had two days less rest and a trip back from Istanbul to cope with after winning at Besiktas in the Europa League on Thursday night.

However they never tired and finally took their chances through Traore in the final 10 minutes.

Twice in a matter of moments during the first half, Raul Jimenez was played through by loose passes from City players, but the Mexican striker was unable to convert either opportunity.

He was first denied by an excellent tackle from Fernandinho and on the second chance he delayed and failed to get his shot away, although he felt he was impeded by City's makeshift central defender and should have been given a penalty.

City looked like the team suffering a European hangover as they struggled to move the ball with their usual fluidity and Wolves goalkeeper Rui Patricio was not called into action until past the half-hour mark when he pushed away Raheem Sterling's shot. Guardiola was not happy and made a tactical switch at half-time as he sent on Oleksandr Zinchenko in place of Kyle Walker and pushed Joao Cancelo over to his preferred right-back position.—AFP ■

Abraham, Mount fire Chelsea to victory at Southampton

SOUTHAMPTON — Tammy Abraham and Mason Mount celebrated their England call-ups by firing Chelsea to a 4-1 rout of struggling Southampton on Sunday. Abraham, Mount and their Blues team-mate Fikayo Tomori were all named by England manager Gareth Southgate in the squad for the forthcoming Euro 2020 qualifiers in the Czech Republic and Bulgaria. The promising young trio hogged the spotlight once again at St Mary's as Abraham and Mount netted to maintain their superb starts to the season. Abraham has nine goals in all competitions for Chelsea this term, underlining why Southgate is keen to get him action in a competitive match to ensure he commits to England. The 22-year-old striker has won two caps for England in friendlies against Brazil and Germany in 2017, but he had flirted with switching his international allegiance to Nigeria, who he qualifies for through his father.

Tomori, 21, is also eligible to represent Nigeria, but the centre-back showed his England credentials with another composed display to keep Southampton largely at bay.

Mount, 20, bagged Chelsea's second goal to once again showcase the predatory instincts that have helped the midfielder make a smooth transition to the Premier League following last season's loan alongside Tomori at Derby. Danny Ings got one back for Southampton, but N'Golo Kante and Michy Batshuayi struck to make it four successive wins in all competitions for Chelsea, who are beginning to thrive in Frank Lampard's first season in charge.—AFP ■
