NCA-S EAOs discuss 8th JICM on NCA in Nay Pyi Taw

Under the joint arrangement of the governments of Norway and Switzerland separate meetings of Union Peace Dialogue Joint Committee (UPDJC) secretaries and peace process study tours were conducted from 25 September to 6 October 2019 where meetings and negotiations with NCA-S EAOs group's UPDJC secretaries were held. Talks on restarting the long suspended peace discussions with JICM meeting agreement were also held. The outcome was today's preliminary coordination meeting of the work group on holding JICM meeting.

The Union Government proposed four parallel work processes to strengthen the NCA. It is believed that there will be agreeable subjects in the proposal.

The government was also striving towards holding the Union Peace Conference-21st Century Panglong 4th session in 2020. In this session political agreements on establishing a Democratic Federal Union, agreements on strengthening ceasefire, agreement on basic principles on democracy and federal system, work processes for the post 2020 period were expected to be reached, agreed and approved.

Today's meeting hoped to establish agreements on restarting official meetings. In order to hold JICM meeting soon, two sides were to discuss and coordinate on the JICM meeting agenda and discuss on the important matter of holding the Union Peace Conference-21st Century Panglong 4th session from the official meetings that were suspended for more than a year. Agreement was reached among the leaders of the two sides on expanding the JICM Mandate. Negotiations will be held today to amend this JICM Mandate. Negotiated agreements will be submitted and decided in the soon to be held JICM meeting and implemented.

The aim of all this was believed to be achieving a sustainable peace. To achieve this same aim and goal, similarities are to be sought out with patience, understanding, and give and take. It was necessary to reach the desired aims and goals as quickly as possible and there should be no room for halting or stopping. Only then could sustainable peace be achieved, which everyone desires.

NRPC wished to thank all the leaders who attended the meeting as well as those who helped and supported toward holding this meeting and that he hoped practical agreement would be reached, said the Union Attorney General.

Next, JICM coordination group leader Sao SaiNgin said

As both sides have signed the NCA, the road to peace will be smooth and straight, if the agreement is followed. But peace will be difficult to achieve, if it is ignored. The fourth anniversary of the NCA would be held on 28 October and the requirement was to re-establish trust : JICM coordination group leader Sao Sai Ngin.

JICM was the highest machinery of NCA that played the main role of steering the implementation of NCA. JICM's guidance, leadership and resolving blockages were the main bloodline of the peace process.

JICM meetings had not been held for more than a year for many reasons and it greatly affected the peace process. He thanked both sides for going over numerous discussions for this meeting to be held.

The JICM agenda for the meeting would be openly and cordially discussed today as well as other important subjects.

Today's meeting was held because of the peace process that restarted with the unofficial meeting of UPDJC secretaries on 13 and 14 June 2019 and gives and takes made during the study tour of Europe of UPDJC secretaries.

While discussions and were held to ensure coordination on the government side, there were numerous discussions within the ten NCA-S EAOs. Efforts were made for everyone to come along. Much had to be done to balance all sides so that there were no frictions.

During the four years, there would be eight sessions of Union Peace Conference-21st Century Panglong if it were held twice a year as planned. There would be many more agreements than the 51 points so far agreed and a federal foundation would have been laid. Due to distrust and worries, inability to prevent extremism and taking of opportunities, the Union Peace Conference-21st Century Panglong could not be held as scheduled. Everyone was held responsible for this. There was a need to strive toward holding 21st Century Panglong responsibly and transparently.

As both sides have signed the NCA, the road to peace will be smooth and straight, if the agreement is followed. But peace will be difficult to achieve, if it is ignored.

The fourth anniversary of the NCA would be held on 28 October and the requirement was to re-establish trust. All need to bear in mind that putting great efforts in the peace process over difficulties and challenges was not for the benefit of an individual or a group but for the entire union, said JICM coordination group leader Sao SaiNgin.

Afterwards the two sides cordially and openly discussed NCA Chapter 3 ceasefire, NCA Chapter 4 implementing work processes to strengthen ceasefire, amending JICM ToR, holding Union Peace Conference-21st Century Pan-glong fourth session in early 2020, holding UPDJC meetings and other related meetings to hold Union Peace Conference, agreement to be included in Union agreement part 3, implementing 5th JICM meeting decision number six and continuing the efforts based on the NCA for more EAOs to participate in the peace process.

Meeting attendees also discussed general matters and the meeting came to a close after NRPC Vice Chairman Union Attorney General U TunTunOo and JICM coordination group leader Sao SaiNgin delivered a closing speeches.

The meeting was attended by NRPC Vice Chairman Union Attorney General U TunTunOo, members Lt-Gen YarPyae, Lt-Gen Min Naung and Lt-Gen Tin Maung Win, secretary Deputy Minister U KhinMaung Tin, Pyithu Hlut-taw representative U Htay Win Aung @ U Pyone Cho, Peace Commission Advisory Board members U HlaMaungShwe, U Moe ZawOo, Director-General U ZawHtay from Ministry of the Office of the State Counsellor, NCA-S EAOs' JICM coordination group leader Sao SaiNgin, members KhunMyintTun, NaiAung Ma Nge, Solomon, Padoh L Klusay, Saw KyawNyunt, Saw Sein Win, Dr HlanHmonSarKhaung, Daw Saw MraRazar Lin, YebawMyo Win and officials.— MNA

Only legal owners will be allowed to extend vehicle registration in 2020: RTAD

By Nyein Nyein

STARTING 2020, only legal owners will be allowed to register or extend the registration of their vehicles, said U Lian Cin Mang, also known as Ngam Khai Pa Pa, the director of the Road Transport Administration Department (RTAD).

He made the remarks at a media conference held on 25 October at the RTAD office, where he outlined how owner books will be made and renewed by the department.

From 1 January, 2020, the RTAD will check the ownership of a vehicle against the current owners' national identity or household certificates when they apply for the initial vehicle registration or an extension of vehicle registration. Those who fail to furnish the documents will have to pay tax at the Internal Revenue Department and transfer the ownership in their name.

"We will check the current owners' ID or household certificate when they register and apply for extension of registration. We will also check if they have ID recommendations when they are traveling. If the vehicle owners have not transferred the ownership in their name, we will change the name of the holders. Then, we will continue with other processes," said U Lian Cin Mang.

The filing of correct information about vehicle owners, their names, and addresses with the RTAD is very important to ensure rule of law, safety, and regulatory compliance of vehicle, as well as for the smooth implementation of Radio Frequency Identification (RFID), according to the RTAD, under the Ministry of Transport and Communications..

Earlier, the Internal Revenue Department collected a minimum 15-per cent and a maximum 30-per cent in tax per car. According to Section 25 of the 2019 Union Tax Law, vehicle owners have to pay the tax. So, the department has urged current owners of vehicles to get their ownership transferred in their name within the tax relief period, according to the department "We are encouraging vehicle owners to update the ownership. The RFID system is also being implemented to track traffic crimes and control unregistered vehicles. Therefore, we would like to urge the current owners of vehicles to get the ownership transferred in their name within one year (from 1 October, 2019 to 30 September, 2020) as we cannot guarantee any tax relief thereafter," he added.

Next year, the extension of vehicle registration will be allowed only for legal owners. Vehicle owners who do not transfer the ownership in their name will face legal action, beginning 1 January, 2020, according to the RTAD.

Wetthe Lake helping lotus fiber businesses in Salin generate profits

THE residents of Salin Town, Minbu District, Magway Region said they are earning a good income from producing fibers from lotus plants growing in Wetthe Lake and selling them to weavers around Inlay Lake in Nyaungshwe Township of southern Shan State.

Earlier, people residing in villages near Wetthe Lake, including western Kanbaung, Siyinoo, Winpyae, Tamarchaung, Ywarthit, Sinkyone, and Shanywarkone, plucked lotus flowers, seed pods, and roots from the lake and sold them in the market. But, since the past eight years, the residents have been producing lotus fiber and supplying it to markets in Inlay, which have famous traditional weaving businesses.

“First, we pluck about 800 lotus plants from the lake and tie them into bunches. A bunch of lotus plant fetches K1,000, and a worker can pick up to five bunches of lotus plants per day. The length of lotus stems depends on the depth of the lake. After plucking the lotus plants, we need to extract lotus fiber from the lotus stems by hand, using a knife. Then, the fibers are rolled together by hand to form threads. Raw cloth can be generated after the fiber threads are spun at the spool and dried. A viss (one viss equals 1.6 kg) of lotus fibers fetches K300,000, and the fibers are send to lotus robe and fabric weaving businesses in Inlay markets,” said U Thaung Sein, a lotus fiber maker from Shanywarkone Village.

Although the locals in Salin Town are willing to weave lotus fabric, they are facing difficulties in terms of access to techniques, capital, and creating a market in

FDI touches $300 mln in Oct; up over $250 mln from last year

By Nyein Nyein

FOREIGN Direct Investment (FDI) of US$300 million flowed into the country in less than one month since the start of the new fiscal year, which is an increase of $250 million compared to the same period of the 2018-2019 Financial Year, according to U Thant Sin Lwin, the director-general of the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration (DICA).

From 1 October to 21 October in the 2019-2020FY, a total of 10 foreign enterprises were granted permits and endorsements and brought in a capital of $288.829 million. Myanmar received a total of $292.942 million, including increased investment, according to official statistics from the DICA.

“A total of eight projects brought in $37.49 million in investments in the 2018-2019FY, it is learnt from the first Myanmar Investment Commission (MIC) meeting for that fiscal year. In the current fiscal, the MIC has approved FDI of over $292 million,” said U Thant Sin Lwin.

“So, Myanmar has good potential to attract huge investments in this fiscal year. But, we are scrutinizing those investments. We are also focusing on responsible businesses,” he added.

Foreign investors are more likely to make investments in the oil and gas, agriculture, mining, industrial, and industrial estate sectors, he said.

Foreign investments are likely to increase in the current FY, once proposals for offshore oil blocks and minerals are scrutinized and approved, said U Thaung Tun, the Union Minister for Investment and Foreign Economic Relations at the 30th regular meeting of the Private Sector Development Committee with Myanmar entrepreneurs, held on 19 October at the Union of Myanmar Federation of Chambers of Commerce and Industry in Yangon.

The MIC has set an FDI target of $5.8 billion for the 2019-2020FY. It had set the same target for the 2018-2019 FY, but the total FDI fell short by over $1 billion to reach just $4.4 billion.

By Nyein Nyein

A total of 159 vehicle owners were issued Form D slips for de-registering modified vehicles between 1 and 24 October, said U Lian Cin Mang, also known as Ngam Khai Pa Pa, the director of the Road Transport Administration Department (RTAD).

The department has currently issued Form D slips to owners of 159 modified vehicles, including de-registered vehicles kept at the police station, de-registered vehicles kept at the RTAD, and newly identified vehicles, he added.

In accordance with Section 18 (e) of the 2015 Vehicle Law, the authorities are sending the modified vehicles to the traffic police for de-registration. Currently, the government has released some vehicles on sympathetic grounds, considering the hardship to the people, said U Lian Cin Mang.

“Vehicle modification is not allowed under the vehicle law. Modification means changing the body of vehicles which are to be registered. Under the law, requests for registering such modified vehicles are rejected,” he added.

The RTAD, under the Ministry of Transport and Communications, will release some announcements beginning 1 October with respect to a permanent ban on vehicle modifications and issuance of Form D slips to owners of modified vehicles so that they can import vehicles in place of the old, de-registered vehicles.

“If we find vehicles with modifications in the body coach, we will issue Form D slips after they are de-registered,” said U Lian Cin Mang.

The RTAD, under the Ministry of Transport and Communications, has already informed the vehicle owners to contact the department.

According to official statistics provided by the RTAD, the department has found 362 modified vehicles between 2007 and 23 September, this year.

As of now, more than 1.09 million vehicles are registered across the country, and over 540,000, or half of them, are registered in Yangon.

End corruption to build moral society for future generations

THE scope of corruption goes beyond the act itself. Abuse of power or authority can occur not only in the public sector, but also in private businesses, and it can involve a small bribe or state-owned funds or property.

Abuse of power, in the form of "malfeasance in office" or "official misconduct", is the commission of an unlawful act, done in an official capacity, which affects the performance of official duties.

The latest amended version of the Anti-Corruption Law was enacted on 21 June, 2018, and according to the law, corruption no longer involves just bribery. The law now defines corruption as any action which breaks existing laws, rules, and regulations, and results in loss of money and damage to property owned by the State.

The Anti-Corruption Commission has declared that it is committed to fighting various forms of abuse and misuse of power or authority, in the course of its work, which have resulted in loss of public funds and damage to property, values, and development of the State. Their effects can be damaging to morale and to working relationships.

A healthy democracy is linked with a successful end to corruption. Corruption is much more likely to flourish where democratic foundations are weak.

We must keep in mind that our democracy is still young and corruption can undermine democratic institutions, and weak institutions are less effective in controlling corruption.

A healthy democracy is linked with a successful end to corruption. Corruption is much more likely to flourish where democratic foundations are weak.

We need to do more to strengthen checks and balances and protect citizens' rights.

To cultivate a strong political will to rid our society of this impunity, we all must understand the difference between private and public interest.

If someone abuses his or her power or authority or uses public funds or state-owned property for personal gain, he or she will be punished, and all such acts can be considered corruption whether the act of bribery is exposed as such or not. How successfully the Anti-Corruption Commission fights corruption with the use of legal weapons will depend on whether it can take effective action against those involved.

So far, the Anti-Corruption Commission has brought 172 cases to court.

Taking lessons from the different cases of corruption, civil servants at different levels can promote their values by themselves and democratic values as well, and this can help establish a society free from corruption for our future generations.

Academic Research is Crucial for National Development

THE 19th Research Paper Reading Session of Myanmar Academy of Arts and Science was held on 3 October 2019. Out of 1,044 research papers, the University of Yangon contributed 188 papers with the highest number at the event. Under the category of subjects, 197 papers were concerned with physics, 175 with Myanmar language and 166 with chemistry, however, one with tourism, two with information and technology, 19 with economics and nine with marine science.

As Myanmar is a developing country, it is suggested that the Research and Development (R&D) works at universities and colleges need to emphasize first priority areas and applied research which are directly related with the development of the country.

Only then, the country would enjoy a 'win-win' situation in which teachers and post-graduate students of master and doctorate degrees produce their research papers which are very useful for the development of the country.

Example 1: Electricity supply in Myanmar is very low, compared with neighbouring countries. The Ministry of diesel, wind power, solar power and nuclear power.

In addition, experts from various subjects need to do research to be able to generate more electricity in appropriate areas after studying how the neighbouring countries established coal-fired power stations with the fewest impacts on health.

Example 2: Education and training programmes for drug-addicted students and chil-departments of universities such as forestry, environmental conservation, agriculture, geology, climatic studies, physics, mathematics, social science and education need to carry out research to alleviate such natural disasters.

The National Education Commission is doing research to balance the ratio of university graduates and employments. University ranking to rate global universities is bases on comparison of their teaching, research, publications and employments.

Therefore, it is recommended that Myanmar universities should work together in research to be able to stand as prestigious academic institutions.

Writer Moe Moe (Inya) commemorated with literary festival

THE 75th birth anniversary of renowned writer Moe Moe (Inya) was celebrated with the Myanmar Literature and Arts Festival at Yangon's historic Central Press building in Botahtaung Township yesterday.

The event was formally opened with a ribbon-cutting ceremony by Deputy Minister for Information U Aung Hla Tun, Yangon Region Hluttaw representative U Tint Lwin, MoI Permanent Secretary U Myo Myint Maung, U Myo Nyunt (Sarpay Lawka), and Daw Than Myint Aung, the chairperson of the committee for organizing the event.

State Counsellor's digital address

Next, a video from State Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu Kyi was played. She first expressed gratitude for having the opportunity to speak at the commemoration for Moe Moe (Inya) and the festival. She said she will not be speaking as a literary scholar or critic but as an admirer of the writer's work.

She said reading allows people to see the old world in new perspectives and to find new worlds as well. She said reading the famous writer's books allowed her a fresh insight into the type of community she lived in. She said this allowed her to construct many worlds of thought and is a respectable skill of the writer to spark this thinking in the reader.

The State Counsellor said this is because a nation has to go through different time periods and historians cannot document history alone. She said the thoughts and words of artists are sometimes more effective in painting a picture of a time era. They are able to see, think and notice things they haven't before. She said this was one of the reasons she respects Moe Moe (Inya) as reading her books let gain a more comprehensive understanding of Myanmar. Her books give insight into the spirit of the public and the feeling of the citizens.

The State Counsellor said she also noticed the writer often portrays the strengthened will when revealing the challenges and issues of the time period. She believes this firm will is important and supportive for every citizen because every nation and society will inevitably have to pass through a period of difficulty. She said the support given by experts, artists, professionals and great writers during those sort of times is invaluable.

The State Counsellor said the esteemed would have been 75 today and at an age where she is still prime for writing. She wonders how the writer would portray modern Myanmar and its democratic transition. As she wonders what sort of perspectives, portrayals and ideologies writer Moe Moe (Inya) could have given were she still alive, the State Counsellor said she feels her passing was a great loss for the nation.

However, she said the writer's books are quite comprehensive and thus while she was unable to live a long life it cannot be called unfulfilling as she wrote numerous quality books. The State Counsellor said she once wrote a book about a senior member of the National League for Democracy. She said a valuable human being does not have an early or late death as they have completed what they needed to do if they pass away too early and have the strength to continue their duties if they pass away later in life. Thus, even though writer Moe Moe (Inya) did not live a life as long as we wanted, she was able to use her skills to the fullest and contribute wholly to her society, her nation, to the arts and literature and for that she is well respected.

The State Counsellor said the Myanmar Literature and Arts Festival is lively and writer

Moe Moe (Inya)'s work is an art form in itself. She said this is why choosing her birth anniversary for the festival is well-suited. She urged attendees to reflect on the work of the great writer, value them, and hope for the continued art and literary development of future generations.

Deputy Minister's remarks

Next, Deputy Minister U Aung Hla Tun delivered an address. He first thanked the organizers of the festival and expressed delight for the Ministry of Information to have been able to contribute as well. He said he is a strong supporter of Moe Moe (Inya)'s writings. He said the gifts of literature bestowed by literary experts for his generation that went through numerous challenges is invaluable. He wondered how the great writer would pen this society during the democratic transition if she were still alive. He wished for the writer's literature to proliferate indefinitely and spread to all corners of the globe.

This was followed by separate addresses from Daw Than Myint Aung and Ko Zaw Myo Nyunt, who spoke on behalf of Moe Moe (Inya)'s family.

Next, esteemed female writers Kyu Kyu Thin, San San Nwe (Tharyawady), Ma Sandar and Ma Hnin Phway began the roundtable discussion on literary life of Moe Moe (Inya).

Following this, artist Pe Nyunt Wai gave a talk on 'Expressing Moe Moe (Inya) through painting and writer Natmawk Ani Cho conducted the paper reading session.

The event was attended by Yangon Region Minister for Rakhine Ethnic Affairs U Zaw Aye Maung, officials from the regional cabinet, Hluttaw representatives, MoI officials, members of the organizing committee, experts and officials from the literary world, and lovers of literature.

Background on writer

Moe Moe (Inya) was born in DaikU in 1944. While attending Yangon University in 1964, she began writing poems under her pseudonym from Inya Dorm. She wrote her first novel, 'Pyauk-thaw-lann-hmar san-taw' in 1972 and received the National Literature Award for it in 1974. She also received short novel awards in 1980, 1982 and 1986 for the novel and short novel collections. Her books have been translated into English, Russian, Japanese and Chinese. She worked as the editor of Sabel Phyu Magazine from 1989 to her death in 1990.

The Myanmar Literary and Arts Festival will continue to 27 October and open from 9 am to 6 pm. The festival includes photo displays of famous writers through successive time periods, an exhibition on moveable type printing, discussions between writers and their readers, art exhibitions, practical painting, cartoon displays, caricature drawing, performances from literary artists, SME booths, bookstalls, and free food and drinks. — Ommar Sandi

N Korea asks S Korea to dismantle facilities at Mt Kumgang resort

Kim has condemned the resort buildings and ordered their demolition, according to North Korean state media. PHOTO: KYODO NEWS

SEOUL — North Korea asked South Korea on Friday to remove all its resort facilities at scenic Mt. Kumgang in the North so that it could build new international tourism district there instead, a South Korean government spokesman said.

Unification Ministry spokesman Lee Sang Min told reporters that North Korea, in an official letter, sought the removal of the facilities on an agreed date and to discuss practical matters with the South in writing.

“(The government) will thoroughly review the conditions and the environment while taking the meaning of Mt. Kumgang tourism business into account,” he said.

The letter came two days after North Korea’s state media reported that leader Kim Jong Un ordered removal of the South Korean-built hotels, restaurants and other facilities at the vacant resort, located near the border.

The once-popular joint tour program, which was funded and operated by South Korea’s Hyundai Asan Co., started in 1998 and was considered a symbol of collaboration between the two Koreas. Its operation has been suspended since July 2008 after a 53-year-old South Korean housewife strayed outside the tourism zone while strolling along a beach one morning and was shot dead by a North Korean soldier.

In 2010, North Korea froze all South Korean assets at Mt. Kumgang, reportedly valued at hundreds of millions of dollars, and declared it a special zone for international tours.

The Unification Ministry has been working with various organizations including Hyundai Asan to resume the tours as ties between North and South Korea have improved following a series of summits between their leaders.— Kyodo News ■

China slams Pence’s speech, amid US-China trade truce

BEIJING — China on Friday expressed “strong indignation and resolute opposition” to a speech by US Vice President Mike Pence that criticized China on a wide range of issues including curtailing the rights of Hong Kong residents.

“He deliberately distorted China’s social system, human rights and religious conditions and criticized China’s domestic and foreign policies without any reason,” Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Hua Chunying said at a regular press briefing, calling Pence’s speech “full of arrogance, hypocrisy, political bias and lies.”

Pence criticized Beijing on such issues as its actions to “curtail” the rights of Hong Kong residents amid protest movements, its military assertiveness in the East and South China seas, and its failure to take sufficient steps to address the bilateral trade standoff in a speech at a Washington think tank on Thursday.

By outlining China’s achievements including its development into becoming the world’s second largest economy, Hua emphasized that “China’s path is completely correct and it has the heartfelt support of the people.”

While cautioning US politicians against interfering in China’s internal affairs, Hua also accused Pence of attempting to “divert the attention of the American public by slandering other countries” citing problems of gun violence, economic inequality and racial discrimination in the United States. “At present, China-U.S. relations are at a critical stage,” Hua warned.

The two sides are currently working to formalize a “phase one” trade agreement by US President Donald Trump earlier this month, possibly during a meeting between the heads of state on the sidelines of a regional economic meeting to be held in Chile mid-November.

Under the deal, Washington agreed to suspend a tariff hike on Chinese goods that was planned in October in exchange for Beijing’s offering to make large agricultural purchases and apparent willingness to engage on intellectual property issues.— Kyodo News ■

Indonesian report on Lion Air crash faults Boeing, airline

JAKARTA — Indonesian accident investigators on Friday issued their final report on last year’s deadly crash of a Lion Air jet, saying both design flaws and maintenance issues contributed to the accident.

The report by the National Transportation Safety Committee was particularly critical of Boeing Co.’s design of the 737 MAX 8’s anti-stall system known as MCAS.

“The investigation considered that the design and certification of this feature was inadequate,” a press release by the committee said.

The system’s reliance on one sensor made it “vulnerable to erroneous input from that sensor,” it said, adding that the investigation could not determine that the installation test of the sensor in the accident plane was performed properly.

In addition, an absence of guidance from Boeing on MCAS made it “more difficult” for crews to respond to problems with the system, it said.

On 29 October last year, Lion

Air Flight JT610 crashed into the sea 13 minutes after taking off from Jakarta’s international airport, killing all 189 people on board. The plane, which was bound for Pangkalpinang, had been put into service only two months earlier.

It is believed that incorrect sensor readings saying the aircraft was angled too steeply repeatedly caused MCAS to angle the nose of the plane downwards. The pilots tried repeatedly, and unsuccessfully, to counter the mechanism manually.

Another 737 MAX 8 series aircraft operated by Ethiopian Airlines crashed in March this year, killing all 157 people on board. Airlines around the world have since grounded their own Boeing 737 Max planes following the two deadly crashes, with Boeing suspending deliveries and reducing production of the plane, affecting its bottom line.— Kyodo News ■

Moscow, Damascus deploy forces to Syria-Turkey border

QAMISHLI (Syria) — Damascus and Moscow deployed extra forces Friday to Syria’s border with Turkey, even as Washington partially reversed a drawback to boost its own military presence near key Syrian oil fields.

The United States earlier this month announced a pull-out from Kurdish-held areas in northeast Syria, allowing Damascus, Ankara and Moscow to carve up the Kurds’ now-defunct autonomous region.

Turkey and its Syrian proxies on October 9 launched a cross-border attack against Kurdish-held areas, grabbing a 120-kilometre-long (70-mile) swathe of Syrian land along the frontier.

The deadly incursion killed hundreds and caused 300,000 people to flee their homes in the latest humanitarian disaster in Syria’s brutal eight-year war.

This week, Turkey and Russia struck a deal in Sochi for more Kurdish forces to withdraw from the frontier on both sides of that Turkish-held area under the supervision of Russian and Syrian forces.

Before dawn Friday, an AFP stringer saw a convoy of hundreds of regime troops arriving in the border town of Kobane.

Dozens of soldiers sat atop a truck touting guns and waving Syria’s two-star flag as they made their way into town to a cacophony of honking horns, he said. “One, one, one, the Syrian people are one,” they shouted.

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights, a Britain-based monitor relying on sources inside Syria, said 180 vehicles had arrived in Kobane.

Moscow, for its part, said 300 Russian military police had arrived in Syria to help ensure Kurdish forces withdraw to a line 30 kilometres (18 miles) from the border in line with Tuesday’s agreement.

Russian patrols

Near the town of Qamishli, and AFP correspondent saw armoured cars flying Russian flags head westwards from a regime-held base on a third day of patrols.

Under the Sochi deal, Kurdish forces have until late Tuesday to withdraw from border areas at either end of the Turkish-held area, before joint Turkish-Russian start patrols in a 10-kilometre (six-mile) strip there.

Ankara eventually wants to set up a so-called “safe zone” on Syrian soil along the entire length of its 440-kilometre border, including to resettle some of the 3.6 million Syrian refugees currently in Turkey.—AFP ■

EU keeps Britain guessing on length of Brexit lifeline

LONDON — EU members delayed a decision Friday on how long to postpone next week’s Brexit deadline, giving British Prime Minister Boris Johnson space to push for an early general election.

Senior diplomats told AFP they would reconvene on Monday or Tuesday next week, thus perhaps fewer than 72 hours before Britain is set to break away from the bloc. Johnson is struggling to call an election he hopes will give him a majority to pass the divorce deal he struck with EU leaders last week.

But the British opposition wants to know whether Europe will agree to delay departure before agreeing to a snap poll — and 31 October remains the official deadline. After what EU negotiator Michel Barnier said were “excellent discussions”, European Commission spokeswoman Mina Andreeva said work among member states “will continue in coming days”.

Two diplomats told AFP the ambassadors set an informal deadline of late Monday or early Tuesday to decide — just two days before the current Brexit deadline.

Senior European diplomats who attended the meeting confirmed the 27 non-British members had agreed in principle that some kind of delay is in order.

They also agreed that their capitals could decide on its length by written procedure, rather than by holding a leaders’ crisis summit in Brussels next week.

31 January ‘easiest’

But, with France pushing for a shorter delay to keep the pressure on Westminster, and Germany and Ireland backing a three-month pause until 31 January, the decision is not done.

“Depending on how things evolve in the UK, we’ve given ourselves until the start of next week,” a senior diplomat said. “It’s clear that if a decision is taken in the UK on whether or not to hold an election — the date of the election will weigh on the consultations,” he said.—AFP ■

India’s under-pressure telecom firms hit with $13 bn bill

NEW DELHI — India’s beleaguered telecom companies were dealt a blow on Friday after being told to pay a whopping $13-billion bill, though boosting Asia’s richest tycoon Mukesh Ambani who has shaken up the sector with his low-cost deals.

After a two-decade legal wrangle, the Supreme Court ruled on Thursday that telecom firms had to pay a combined 920 billion rupees ($13.0 billion) in past spectrum and licensing fees. British giant Vodafone’s loss-making and indebted joint venture with local firm Idea was the biggest loser, being told to cough up $4 billion, Bloomberg News reported.

Vodafone’s Mumbai-listed shares slumped more than 16 percent when the markets opened, before recovering slightly.

Vodafone Idea and

Bharti Airtel, another major operator which was told to pay $3 billion, expressed their “extreme disappointment” in the decision, saying it will exacerbate the sector’s financial woes.

The row centred on how licence and other fees paid by the firms should be calculated. The companies had argued they should be based on income from only their telecoms business, but the court said they must be based on the amount earned from all business dealings such as from handset sales and other income.

“This decision has come at a time when the sector is facing severe financial stress and may further weaken the viability of the sector as a whole,” Airtel said in a statement.

Vodafone Idea said: “We urgently request that the government engage on this matter in order to find ways to mitigate the financial stress for the industry.”

However, Reliance Jio, the mobile operator backed by Ambani and which turned the sector on its head in 2016 with free calls and ultra-cheap data, escaped with a relatively light $1.8 billion tab.

Many players have exited the sector in recent years or have gone bankrupt trying to compete with Jio.—AFP ■

Fall of Berlin Wall transformed fortunes of Saxony wine

DRESDEN — Klaus Zimmerling was bored with his mechanical engineering job when the 1989 fall of the Berlin Wall gave him the impetus to turn his life around.

“At first I didn’t believe it,” he said of the momentous event 30 years ago that led to German reunification a year later.

“Then I slowly realised that things would change and it was the occasion to start something new.”

Ditching his job in Dresden, he retrained as a winegrower and invested in a parcel of land perched on the heights of the city.

Today, the 60-year-old is the proud owner of a vineyard that produces vintages which have been served in Michelin star restaurants like Noma in Denmark.

Not just Zimmerling’s business but the entire winemaking industry in Saxony has seen a rebirth since German reunification. While the end of the communist East largely spelled the collapse of the region’s industries, smallhold vineyards sprang up as state-owned farming cooperatives that once produced food for the masses were dissolved, split up and sold off to private owners. Zimmerling counted among those who pounced on one of these parcels.—AFP ■

Bribery retrial opens for Samsung scion

SEOUL — The heir to the Samsung empire appeared in court Friday for a retrial over a sprawling corruption scandal that threatens to disrupt management at the world’s biggest smartphone and memory chip maker.

Lee Jae-yong is vice-chairman of Samsung Electronics — where profits have been falling for months — and was jailed for five years in 2017 for bribery, embezzlement and other offences in connection with the scandal that brought down South Korean president Park Geun-hye.

The 51-year-old was released a year later after an appeals court dismissed most of his bribery convictions and gave him a suspended sentence, but that decision was set aside by the Supreme Court in August, which ordered a retrial.

Accompanied by his lawyers, Lee walked stony-faced into the Seoul High Court for the new proceedings, telling reporters: “I’m sorry for causing many people concern. “I apologise,” he added, bowing as protestors shouted nearby.

In a court hearing that lasted less than an hour, he spoke only to confirm his name, address, date of birth and job title. The case centres on millions of dollars the Samsung group paid Park’s secret confidante Choi Soon-sil, allegedly for government favours such as ensuring a smooth transition for Lee to succeed his ailing father.—AFP ■

four-faced pagoda

By Maung Tha (Archaeology)

THE precinct of four-faced pagoda can be seen on left side of Yangon-Mandalay Highway. The ancient pagoda built by King Dhammazedi (1472-1492 AD) with four Buddha images in positions of back to back structures is renowned as Kyaikpun Pagoda.

The pagoda is located in Oktha Myothit extended ward, 47 miles and four furlongs distance from Yangon and two miles and six furlongs south-west of Bago.

Kyaikpun of four Buddha images

In Mon language, Kyaik means Buddha and Pun, four. The whole word of Kyaikpun means four Buddhas. Kyaikpun Pagoda was built with the Buddha image in the east dedicating to Kakusanda Buddha, in the west to Kassapa Buddha, in the south to Konagamana Buddha and in the north to Gotama Buddha.

The outer wall of pagoda's precinct is 1,050 feet long each on each side and the inner wall, 525 feet long on each face. A saying stated a total of 10,000 persons took seven months in building the walls. The original brick walls can be seen till today.

King Dhammazedi assigned Counsellor Thamein Thekkadewa as head for building four Buddha images and ordered him to select the land plot in Thalekontan in the west of Hanthawady-Bago. After choosing the land plot, the king who led the troops left Hanthawady Royal Palace and then stationed at the place in the straight forwards of the mound where the pagoda will be built. Then, the king himself managed all tasks of construction.

The king ordered sculptors and masons to make more than 100 Buddha images and then selected four favorite images among them. In line with the models as selected, four Buddha images with 40 elbows each in height and an 80-elbow pagoda were built. It was reported that the images were built with teak timber pieces at the shoulders, arms, jaws and ears.

Four feet long and eight inches breadth quadrangular laterite pieces were vertically inserted into the back-drops of the images in two feet space each for strengthening of structures. Moreover, a large prayer hall was also built in the precinct of the pagoda.

Record stone inscription

The stone inscription on construction of the pagoda in Mon language was posted 50 feet to the brick structure at the southeast corner of the precinct.

The stone inscription mentions construction of four Buddha images and the pagoda for worship of the people and the large prayer hall. The reliquary was built on 1st waning of Tabodwe, 837 Myanmar era. The posts of the prayer hall were erected on 12th waxing of late Tagu.

A red signboard kept in the stone inscription chamber mentions Kyaikpun Pagoda's stone inscription, saying that "King Dhammazedi of Hanthawady built four Buddha images of Kyaikpun Pagoda on 1st waning of Tabodwe, 837 Myanmar era. The stone inscription was erected at the southeast corner of the pagoda. The stone inscription was described in the annual report of the Archaeology Branch in 1915, and it was included on the appendix list (19) of Myanmar stone inscription list book in English published in 1921, and it had been mentioned in the Part I of Volume 4 of Myanmar stone inscriptions book published in English."

Preparations were made with hanging pieces of white textile in the prayer hall erected with diamond shaped fence to build the pagoda. The reliquary in the centre of the brick pivot was also decorated with beauties, surrounded with goglets and oil lamps in rows. The throne was lit with candle lights.

A total of 273 statues of objects—two Agga Savaka images, 80 Savaka images, 13 Etadagga recipient members of the Sangha, 11 Etadagga recipient male disciples, 10 Etadagga recipient female disciples, the mother statue of the Lord Buddha, the father statue of the Lord Buddha, the statue of celestial king, the Brahma statue, statues of four Lokapala celestial beings, the statue of Beikthanoe, the statue of Paramesuara, the statue of Samira, statues of 59 venerable Buddhist monks and statues of nuns—were enshrined at the

AFF Futsal Championship 2019: Myanmar, Viet Nam vie for third place

AFTER facing a narrow 3-4 loss to Indonesia in the semifinal of the AFF Futsal Championship 2019 at the Phu Tho Stadium in Ho Chi Minh City yesterday, the Myanmar national futsal team will fight host Viet Nam for the third place on 27 October at the same venue.

Team Myanmar put in their best effort in yesterday's semifinal match against Indonesia as they had hoped to enter the final.

Goals for team Myanmar were scored by Nyein Min Soe, Naing Ye Kyaw, and Pyae Phyo Maung. Myanmar's narrow loss was the result of some hesitation on part of strikers in front of the Indonesian goalkeeper, while trying to convert goal chances.

After the match, the head coach of the Myanmar national futsal team, U Htay Myint, said: "All my boys did their best and gained super chances in the semifinal. But, they could not convert all their chances into goals and therefore, we lost. Nevertheless, we still have a chance to qualify for the 2020 AFC Futsal Championship, if we win the third place match against the Viet Nam team. We will do our best to go to the Asian level competition."

In another semifinal match yesterday, defending champion Thailand beat host Viet Nam 2-0, so Thailand and Indonesia will now fight for the championship position on 27 October.

Man City look to Spurs to slow Liverpool Premier League charge

LONDON — Manchester City have the chance to exert some short-term pressure on runaway Premier League leaders Liverpool this weekend as Manchester United look to end their away day blues.

Jurgen Klopp's side saw their long winning streak ended by a hungry United in a draw at Old Trafford last week but still have a comfortable six-point lead over second-placed City.

Guardiola's defending champions can cut that gap to just three points, at least temporarily, if they beat Aston Villa at home on Saturday, while Liverpool have a trickier-looking tie against Spurs the following day.

Frank Lampard's young Chelsea side travel to Burnley on the back of a six-match winning run in all competitions while third-placed Leicester visit Southampton on Friday.

Manchester United will be desperate to put more distance between themselves and the relegation zone but travel to Norwich without an away win in the Premier League since February.

AFP Sport picks out some of the talking points ahead of the weekend's matches.

Fortress Anfield

Liverpool go into their home match against Tottenham after falling one game short of matching Manchester City's record 18-match winning run in the Premier League.

The European champions, on a 44-match unbeaten run at home in the league, have forgotten how to lose at Anfield but will be facing a Spurs team buoyed by a 5-0 victory at home to Red Star Belgrade in midweek.

Erik Lamela, who scored against Red Star on his 200th appearance for Spurs, said the size of the victory had given the struggling team an injection of confidence.

"Our confidence is better after winning the game 5-0," said the Argentine. "We need to take this game, keep going, try to get better and better and now focus on Liverpool."

Spurs are seeking revenge for defeat in last season's Champions League final, but the odds are stacked against them.
