VICE President U Henry Van Thio addressed the opening ceremony of the 11th ASEAN Ministers Meeting on Rural Development and Poverty Eradication (AMRDPE) and related meetings held at the Horizon Lake View Resort Hotel, Nay Pyi Taw yesterday morning.

In his speech the Vice President said ASEAN member countries alternatively conduct ASEAN and related meetings as well as activities and it was a pleasure and honor to host AMRDPE and related meetings. On behalf of the Myanmar government the Vice President expressed his appreciation towards the ASEAN Secretariat and officials from member countries for their support and assistance towards successfully holding this meeting after the duty of chair for this meeting for 2019 was taken up.

It's been 52 years since ASEAN was established. It is a regional organization formed to live together in a region where stability, peace, security, sustainable development, co-prosperity and social development prevails, and with the identical wish of developing vital interests of member countries, good examples and aims. The combined force of the three pillars of ASEAN support the establishment of a socially responsible and people centered community that has political equity and economic integration.

Under the heading of the third pillar of ASEAN – ASEAN Socio-Cultural Community – rural development and poverty eradication is included. In adressing issues pertaining to rural development and poverty eradication and in narrowing the development gap in the region, member States are striving together in the spirit of "ASEAN Help-ASEAN." This would include documenting best practices and challenges of ASEAN member States in implementing their respective policies and programmes on rural development and poverty eradication and to facilitate information sharing among member States. It was for this reason that AMRDPE was held biennially while Senior Officials Meetings were held annually. This was the 11th AMRDPE and 16th SOMRDPE.

It was thankfully found that not only member countries but China, Japan and Korea also support the implementation processes. Conducting ASEAN+3 Village Leaders Exchange Program at Kuala Lumpur in October 2018 was meaningful toward the development of rural community.

Over 4 mln gravel pits opened annually for construction businesses: association

WITH the aim to develop the construction sector in Myanmar, 2,500 entrepreneurs are opening more than 4 million gravel pits annually to cater to local construction businesses, according to the Myanmar Construction Stone Manufacturers Association.
“Our gravel production is also important for the development of the construction sector. Earlier, we were using river rocks for construction, which adversely affect the environment. Now, we are producing over 4 million gravel pits in rocky mountains using technology. Those gravel pits are being used in the local construction sector,” said U Zaw Min Aung, chairman of the association.

“At present, different sizes of construction stones are being produced in the states and regions, especially in Mon, Taninthayi, and Mandalay. These stones are being used in the construction of roads, big projects, construction of buildings, and urban development projects, such as building of hotels and airports, and housing projects,” he said.

WITH the aim of developing the tourism industry, Run Myanmar will hold the 4th Kalaw Trail Run on 7 and 8 December in Kalaw Town of Shan State. Runners from 10 countries will participate in the race, according to a media conference held on Wednesday at the Rose Gardener Hotel.

Annual edible oil consumption crosses 1 mln tons: trade body

Palm Oil Networking Seminar held in Yangon on 8 November 2019.

MYANMAR’S annual edible oil consumption has risen to over 1 million tons, according to the Myanmar Edible Oil Dealers’ Association.

“In the past, our country consumed only groundnut oil and sesame oil. With the increase in population and the development of food businesses, edible oil has to be imported. Now, Myanmar edible oil consumption has increased to over 1 million tons per year,” said U Myint Kyu, Chairman of the Myanmar Edible Oil Dealers’ Association.

Myanmar oil crops such as sesame, groundnut and sunflower are used to produce 400,000 tons of oil per year. With an increase in local consumption, Myanmar imported 650,000 tons of oil.

“Earlier, our edible oil entrepreneurs imported cloud point 10 quality edible oil from abroad. Oil of that quality is being used in neighboring countries. But now, we are importing cloud point 8, high-quality edible oil because we want people to consume healthy oil,” said U San Lin, vice chairman of the Myanmar Edible Oil Dealers’ Association.

“Edible oil is imported mainly from Malaysia and Indonesia. However, the price of edible oil from Malaysia has increased this year, and so we imported oil from Indonesia, where the price is a bit cheaper than Malaysia,” he said.

Myanmar has imported only cloud point 8 and IO-DING 58 quality edible oil with the permission of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), he added.

To allow local people to get healthy edible oil at a fair price, a Myanmar-Malaysia Edible Oil Network workshop was held on 8 November at the Sule Shangri La hotel in Yangon. The workshop was jointly organized by the Myanmar Edible Oil Entrepreneurs Association and the Malaysia Edible Oil Council.

The workshop was attended by U Zaw Min Win, President of the UMFCCL, Dr. Kalyana Sundram, CEO of the Malaysia Edible Oil Council and representatives, Myanmar Edible Oil Dealers’ Association chairman and officials, and officials from the FDA.—Myint Maung

Workshop on catalyzing finance for agricultural value chains held

THE UK-aid funded DaNa Facility and the Myanmar Economic Association (MEA) organized a workshop on ‘Agricultural Value Chain Finance: policy, practice and inclusion’ on 8 November in Yangon.

The workshop brought together stakeholders from the government, the private sector, NGOs, donor organizations, and research institutes to review the current state of policy and practice, emerging reforms and developments, and discuss opportunities to expand access to agricultural finance in the coming years.

Financial products and services that flow to or through any point in an agricultural value chain — starting from inputs for production of the product to the end consumer — that enable investments that increase stakeholders’ income and growth and competitiveness of the chain were discussed at the workshop.

Agriculture represents over a quarter of the Myanmar economy and provides employment to over two-thirds of its people. Financing models that leverage value chain connections to lower the cost of financing, manage risk, and enhance inclusivity can play an important role in the development of the rural economy.

“While agricultural value chains are increasingly well-researched, there is still much more to learn, which requires further knowledge-building, including research. Research has the potential to benefit practitioners and policymakers by providing a solid evidence base for policies, development programs, and private sector investment,” said Ms. Dulce Simmanivong, Regional Manager for the Australian Centre for International Agricultural Research (ACIAR).

Delegates were given the opportunity to share their knowledge and experiences with nationally and internationally recognized experts through presentations, panel discussions, and networking opportunities at the workshop.

“Improving agricultural productivity and encouraging inclusive development through agricultural finance value chains is an important issue for Myanmar economy,” said U Kyaw Min Htun, chairman of the Myanmar Economic Association.—GNLM

CBM announces new round of Foreign Bank Licensing in Myanmar

7th November 2019

OVER the past years the Central Bank of Myanmar has initiated a process to open the domestic banking market to foreign banks. Two rounds of stringent licensing process were successfully completed, the first in 2014 and the second in 2016. A total of 13 reputable financial institutions were granted permission to open a Branch and conduct onshore wholesale banking business. The Central Bank of Myanmar is pleased to have welcomed these reputable institutions into the country and is thankful for their contribution to the Myanmar economy as well as their support to deepen economic ties with corporations and investors from their respective countries.

Encouraged by this success and in line with the Myanmar Sustainable Development Plan, the Central Bank of Myanmar has decided to further liberalize the Banking market. To do so, a third round of foreign bank licensing will be initiated and opened to foreign banks with representative offices in Myanmar.

Two types of Licenses will be issued in the upcoming round of licensing. Foreign banks may apply either for a Branch or for a Subsidiary License.

- For a Branch License, the wholesale banking permissible products and services remain unchanged from the existing foreign bank Branch License. Licensees will be allowed to establish one place of business only. A minimum paid-in capital of USD 75 million will be required for operation, with USD 40 million to be locked-up for two (2) years with the Central Bank of Myanmar.
- For a Subsidiary License, wholesale banking activities will be allowed at the start of operations. In addition, onshore retail banking activities will be permitted under the Subsidiary from the 1st of January 2021. Subsidiaries will be allowed to establish up to ten (10) places of business being branches or off-site ATMs. A minimum paid-in capital of USD 100 million will be required for operation.
- Conversion of existing foreign bank Branch into Subsidiary will be allowed starting from June 2020. Three (3) full years of activities as a Branch in Myanmar will be required before submitting a request for conversion to the Central Bank of Myanmar. Further information on the conversion process will be provided by the Central Bank of Myanmar in due time.

From the 1st of January 2020, foreign bank ownership into a Myanmar domestic bank exceeding 35% of the capital of the domestic bank may be permitted on case by case basis.

As immediate next step of the upcoming licensing round, a request for Expression of Interest (EOI) will be shared with eligible banks by the Central Bank of Myanmar.

Friendly investment climate key to attracting investors

RECENT fabricated story about 100 Korean businesses planning to shift to Bangladesh from Myanmar has made our commitment stronger to create a favorable, facilitative, and friendly investment climate that will open up more investment opportunities for investors.

The Myanmar Investment Commission and the Commercial Attaché of the Embassy of the Republic of Korea have refuted the rumour and said that most of the Korean investments are flowing into the oil and gas sector, followed by the manufacturing sector.

Since we opened up our economy with reforms, we have introduced a range of ambitious, holistic, and inclusive policies and regulations, each carefully crafted to promote best practices in business as well as to incorporate good governance.

With an understanding of the importance of foreign investments for the development of a country, we are also streamlining procedures to remove bottlenecks and accelerate the implementation of reforms.

The challenge for us today is to ensure that we take full advantage of this period of dynamic change and tremendous opportunity, without losing sight of the importance of stability.

Believing that quality investment, one that is responsible and sustainable, can and must play a role, we have adopted a broad-based, equitable, responsible, sustainable, and inclusive growth strategy today.

The challenge for us today is to ensure that we take full advantage of this period of dynamic change and tremendous opportunity, without losing sight of the importance of stability.

While inviting investments, we are also facing challenges of stability at home.

Internal conflicts have erupted in Myanmar for many years after independence and people have had to bear their brunt.

As a result of these conflicts, we lag behind neighboring countries in political, economic, social, and many other areas.

We must remain aware that without peace and stability, we cannot build infrastructure for investment and business, and our economy cannot compete with those of regional countries.

It is clear that investors will establish their businesses in areas that have stability, are facilitative, and have capable human resources.

We believe that we can strengthen our commitment to building a friendly investment climate to attract investors for a win-win result.

Taking lessons from China, which attracted foreign investments by establishing special economic zones about 40 years ago, we have strategically liberalized several key economic sectors. The Myanmar Investment Law enacted in 2016 has made investment applications clear and guaranteed rights, including tax exemptions, and protections to investors.

In accordance with the 2008 State Constitution, the government guarantees it will not nationalize any investment carried out in accordance with the law. Except under certain conditions, the government guarantees it will not take measures which expropriate, or are likely to result in the termination of an investment. If an investment needs to be withdrawn or discontinued, investors need to be given compensation.

IT has been a little over a year since I visited Monywa. This time, I was invited by U Aung Kyi, Chairman of the Anti-Corruption Commission (ACC), to talk at a seminar on combating corruption. And so, I made my up to Monywa via Mandalay.

I have a keen interest in countering corruption. I have studied it from a young age. It was during my time at the United Nations that I discovered this was a critical matter. It was a mandatory process that could not be compromised.

When I returned to Myanmar, I urged Transparency International to proliferate the annual Corruption Perception Index (CPI) among the public. A person can tell the standard a country maintains by glancing at its CPI rank.

The ACC took care of everything for my trip to Monywa. I took an early flight to Mandalay. I was greeted at TadaU Airport by some officials and got on the car prepared for the trip to Monywa. The event held there had the topic ‘Building Integrity in the National and Private Sectors’.

Whistleblowing

I tried to prepare something different in Monywa from my previous occasions. The main topic would focus on the concept of whistleblowing. Most people associate it with sports as in when the referee blows into his whistle and assigns a yellow card or red card to the offending player. Something else to note is that the referee also has to blow the whistle to signal a successful goal.

But the whistleblowing I am referring to is when an employee of either a government department or business entity decides to uncover shady or immoral activities in their organization.

Whistleblowing breaks the silence and is often difficult for a normal employee to do. Most of the time, they decide to keep mum. Staying still will not harm you.

But the employees and civil servants are the first people to know of something wrong in the organization, and indeed, the whole story. Choosing to stay silent or ignore the error is the same as being an accomplice, albeit indirectly. I talked about the need to provide protection and legal aid for whistle-blowers.

As the event was attended by the ACC Chairman, the event saw people of high rank such as members of the regional cabinet, Hluttaw representatives, businesspeople, department heads, and members of civil society organizations. It was quite productive.

Currently, the United States is facing some serious consequences of whistleblowing directed at none other than its President. His inappropriate actions have been forwarded to Congress. The US House of Representatives is currently debating impeachment and the whistle-blower, or more, is given full protection.

As soon as I finished my lecture, I asked ACC Chairman U

Prof Dr Aung Tun Thet

Aung Kyi permission to excuse myself and made my way to Monywa University of Economics. Classes were closed, but the university was full of post-graduates and teachers who have been invited. I presented on leadership development for people taking care of the education sector and answered to questions from the audience.

Myanmar to English Translation Paper Reading Session

By Lokethar

THE Myanmar to English Translation Paper Reading Session recently held in Yangon under the auspices of the Ministry of Information will indeed help promote Myanmar’s image and culture to the world through translations of written material in Myanmar to English and writings about Myanmar in English.

The ancient writings in English (and other languages) by the travellers and traders from the Western world to Myanmar (then Burma) usually described the rule of the Myanmar Kings, their power and wealth, doing business with their Kingdoms and so on. They of course also wrote about the natural wealth of Myanmar- it’s immense Teak forests, it’s precious stone mines, it’s oil reserves, it’s splendid Golden Pagodas, It’s wide rivers and fertile lands, it’s ancient cities and so on. Very few writers in English wrote about the people and their lives.

During the period Myanmar was under the rule of the British from 1824 to 1948 after the three Anglo-Burmese Wars, there was much written about Myanmar (then Burma) by English and other foreign writers about the country and it’s people. However their writings often did not always do justice to the Myanmar people, as quite a few of the writings were mostly portrayed in a “not very objective” way. In fact in some of these writings by foreigners, the Myanmarers were depicted as being proud and arrogant. That could have been true as most Myanmar people resented being ruled by the British. But that does not mean that Myanmarers were not “nice” to foreigners including their British rulers. Then there are writings which depict Myanmar officials as being self seeking and corrupt. That could have been also true as it was more or less the situation, with regard to many local officials in their “colonies”.

During the British regime, there were quite a few Myanmar writers who wrote books and articles in the English language. The Myanmar writers in English language wrote about many aspects of Myanmar, including the political and economic situation of Myanmar. Generally political writings in English by Nationalist leaders criticizing the “Raj” were banned by the Government.

Nowadays however there are very few Myanmar writers who write books in English. During my foray to a Bookshop in a Modern Shopping Market in Tamwe Township, my query “Do you have books recently written by Myanmar authors in the English language?” drew a blank look from the sales person, but as if on second thought he thrust his hand into the bottom of one display shelf and after groping around, took out a book written in English and with a grin handed it to me. Well you know what !? It was “Poems on Myanmar”, a book written by me! There are very few book shops that carry (or display!) English books written by recent Myanmar authors. In fact, even the list of books published every fortnight or every month, carried by some local news papers, very rarely contain books in English language by Myanmar authors.

Prior to the advent of the Democratic Government, Myanmar was pretty much closed to the world. There was hardly any mention of Myanmar in the international media except for foreign country. However the outcome of the investment was probably not up to expectations. It’s mentioned here to make the point that projecting the Myanmar image abroad had been considered at the highest level of the Government.

The recent Paper Reading Session on Translation of Myanmar to English will hopefully, promote more writings in Myanmar language about events and happenings in Myanmar to be translated into the English language.

The first Multi-party General Elections held in November 2010 in accordance with the new Constitution was perhaps a landmark event in Myanmar which raised interest (and curiosity?) around the world as to where Myanmar was heading. It was in fact a call for change, with so many political parties participating in the general elections. Subsequent “happenings” in Myanmar has kept international interest focussed on Myanmar.

Much has been written by many a Myanmar writer about happenings in Myanmar after the transition to the Democratic Government following the Multi-party General Elections. However the large part of the writings have been by Myanmar writers in the Myanmar language. Hence it catered largely to the Myanmar public. There are a few journals, magazines and the Global New Light of Myanmar Newspaper that are published in the English language.

Erdogan criticizes EU for its attitude towards Turkey

BUDAPEST — Visiting Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan criticized here on Thursday the European Union (EU) for its attitude towards Turkey, which he termed as “far from constructive,” during a joint press conference with Hungarian Prime Minister Viktor Orban.

“Recently, the EU’s attitude toward our country has been far from constructive,” Erdogan said, adding that in his opinion the EU also has failed to keep its word and failed to give Turkey as much money to hold back the flow of refugees as it had promised.

“Some 3.6 million Arabs and nearly 300,000 Kurdish refugees are currently in Turkey, and many of them want to move on to Europe,” he warned, adding that “due to the cooperation we have stopped the crowd so far.”

The Turkish president said he highly appreciated that Hungary has always supported his country’s accession to the EU.

Orban said it is not possible to stop the flow of migrants to Europe without Turkey.

“Hungary’s foreign policy is based on the assumption that migration to the EU cannot be stopped without Turkey. As a result, Hungary is a strategic partner for Turkey, which has already stopped 350,000 illegal migrants this year alone,” he said.

Catalan leader denies ties to jailed radical separatists

BARCELONA — The head of Catalonia’s regional government on Thursday denied having links to seven separatist activists jailed in September on suspicion of belonging to a “terrorist” group that planned to occupy the Spanish region’s parliament.

Prime Minister Pedro Sanchez, who is facing a general election on Sunday, had demanded that Catalan president Quim Torra explain after local media reported that members of the group had told investigators that the order to occupy the assembly came directly from Torra.

According to transcripts of tapped phone conversations included in court documents seen by AFP, two of the jailed activists discussed a plan to occupy Catalonia’s regional parliament in Barcelona with “the Catalan government inside” and “resist during one week”.

In the recorded conversations, one of the suspected leaders of the group implicated Torra and his predecessor Carles Puigdemont, who is currently in Belgium, calling them by the code names “Gandalf” and “Lisa”.

In a video of his interrogation by police which was leaked to the media, the man also said that the plan “came from the presidency... from Torra”.

Catalonia’s regional government said in a statement that Torra “denies” the reports which lacked “any type of credibility”.

“Moreover, he maintains he never had any type of relationship with the detained,” the statement added.

“Threats and coercion”

Spain’s Guardia Civil police force suspects the activists had planned to occupy the Catalan parliament after Spain’s Supreme Court on October 14 sentenced nine Catalan separatist leaders to jail terms of up to 13 years, prompting days of angry street protests.

Police in September arrested nine separatists, accusing them of belonging to a new and unknown group, the Tactical Response Team.

Spain’s top criminal court, which had ordered the investigation into the group, ordered that seven of them to be held in jail while the probe continues.

The court suspects the group allegedly intended to use “any means, including violent ones” to establish an independent republic and possessed materials that could be used to make explosives.—AFP ■

Tears, hope as foes reconcile before Bougainville independence vote

ARAWA — Once-sworn enemies in Bougainville’s cruel decade-long civil war are holding a series of reconciliation ceremonies, hoping shared tears and apologies can bury the past ahead of a landmark vote on the region’s independence from Papua New Guinea.

Former separatist fighters and PNG military are meeting face-to-face, trying to come to terms with a conflict that left up to 20,000 people dead in the bloodiest fighting the South Pacific witnessed since World War II.

Until a 1997 truce, George Diva was a fighter with the pro-independence Bougainville Revolutionary Army.

Now a 50-year-old, he still carries deep scars on his chest from a battle that left him unable to work. But he is adamant reconciliation is the only way the next generation can enjoy a brighter future. “We had enough loss, sorrow and pain,” he told AFP during a reconciliation ceremony this week on the neighbouring island of New Britain, where he fled.

“We don’t want to fight any more.” Tens of thousands like him were displaced as the internecine and complex conflict raged through the 1990s, amid extrajudicial executions, torture, mass killing and the arrival of foreign mercenaries from Britain and beyond. “I killed one of my own cousins,” Diva said.

“I killed more people, but I have made compensation for the lives I took.” To cap the 20-year peace process, more than 200,000 Bougainvilleans will from November 23 go to the ballot box to choose between independence from Papua New Guinea or more autonomy.

The island territory’s residents — many of whom feel culturally closer to the nearby Solomon Islands than Papua New Guinea’s complex patchwork of tribes and language groups — are expected to back independence.

The process then requires a “negotiated outcome” between the central and regional governments to achieve final status.—AFP ■

Romania presidential hopefuls court crucial emigrant vote

PARAIESTI — With a religious icon pinned to a wall, washing hung out to dry, and a table and two chairs standing on a terrace, Paraiesti looks like almost any other village in rural Romania — at least at first glance.

But Paraiesti is actually more of a ghost village where, with a population of just 250 people, nearly one house out of every two stands empty.

The state of abandonment only becomes apparent on closer inspection: wooden pillars are cracked, roofs partly caved in, and yards tangled with weeds.

“There aren’t many people left on this street. Most are gone or have died,” says Viorica Balasoiu, 70, who lives alone in her house on a steep hill.

Since the fall of communism 30 years ago, about four million Romanians out of a total population of 20 million have left the country in search of better-paid jobs elsewhere.—AFP ■

Daimler mulls slashing 1,100 senior jobs: report

FRANKFURT AM MAIN — German luxury car-maker Daimler plans to cut 1,100 management jobs worldwide in fresh efforts to cut costs as it grapples with expensive recalls and a slowing global market, a German newspaper reported Friday.

The cull would see the Mercedes-Benz maker slash one tenth of all senior roles in Germany alone, the Sueddeutsche Zeitung wrote, citing an email sent to staff by the group's works council.

Daimler CEO Ola Kallenius will unveil details of the layoffs at a capital markets day in London on Thursday, it said.

According to the daily, Kallenius will also ask German workers to refrain from asking for pay hikes as the group weathers headwinds from global trade tensions, costly recalls and a massive "dieselgate" fine.

Daimler refused to comment on the "speculations", saying in a statement that it remained "in a constructive dialogue with worker representatives".

But it warned that the group needed to take action to tackle "major challenges worldwide".

Like its rivals, the Stuttgart-based firm is spending billions in the shift towards the electric, autonomous vehicles of the future.

It has also been hit with mass recalls linked to faulty Takata airbags and to diesel cars allegedly fitted with software to dupe emissions tests. —AFP ■

Alibaba sets eyes on $15 bn Hong Kong listing: report

BEIJING — Chinese on-line retail titan Alibaba is hoping to raise up to $15 billion in a Hong Kong IPO, a report said Friday, which would be the city's biggest listing for nine years.

The share sale by Asia's biggest company would also come as Hong Kong authorities battle months of sometimes violent protests that have dented the financial hub's economy and reputation.

Alibaba is looking to scoop up between $10 billion and $15 billion in the initial public offering,

Alibaba had planned to list in Hong Kong in the summer but called it off as the city was hit by protests and the China-US trade war bit. PHOTO: AFP

Bloomberg News cited unnamed sources as saying, and is looking to hold a hearing into the move — as mandated by the Hong

Japan's Idemitsu Kosan boosts lubricant output in Indonesia by 80%

BEKASI (Indonesia) — Japanese refiner Idemitsu Kosan Co. has launched a new lubricant plant equipped with an automated production system to beef up its output in Indonesia by some 80 percent.

An opening ceremony for the plant was held on Thursday in the West Java provincial city of Bekasi, east of Jakarta.

Idemitsu invested $52 million to build its second Indonesian lubricant plant on an 80,000-square-meter tract of land in the Greenland International Industrial Center in Cikarang, West Java, according to the Indonesian government.

The plant has started to make engine oil for cars and motorcycles as well as industrial oils, as does the existing plant, increasing the firm's total annual output capacity in the country to 115,000 kiloliters from 65,000 kl.

In line with the country's policy to update the industry, the new plant is equipped with automated filling and contamination prevention systems, with inventory and product information shared with the company's head office in Japan through a computer link.

"Demand for lubricants is expected to grow further along with the growing population in Indonesia. It is an important market with good prospects," Kazuiku Nyudo, vice president of Idemitsu's local arm, P.T. Idemitsu Lube Techno Indonesia, told NNA on Thursday. —Kyodo News ■

Modern sculptural works in wider market

By Myint Maung Soe

PHOTOS: MYINT MAUNG SOE

In line with the saying, which goes: “Ten kinds of flowers which humans neither offer to the Buddha images nor to gods,” the art of sculpture is one of Myanmar traditional arts and crafts. The works of sculpture can be identified as optional and modern ones. The optional sculptural works have been flourishing in the Myanmar’s sculptural arena since yore but emergence of the modern sculpture is not much long time.

Myanmar sculptors focus on carving the statues based on 550 Jataka stories in the embryo lives of the Lord Buddha as well as daily living events of the people in the past. Such kinds of sculptural works have been produced for many years.

However, the modern sculpture has entered the arena of Myanmar arts and crafts for some years. After the cyclonic storm Nargis had hit Myanmar in 2008, the Central Cooperative Union has been organizing a wooden sculpture contest on a yearly basis. The optional sculptural contest has been held in Yangon Region yearly with the aim of not wasting trunks of rain trees which fell in past years. In this regard, the optional sculpture means the sculptural works freely created by sculptors with the use of their favourite woods based on their thoughts.

The modern sculpture is different from original structures and forms. It is shaped in modernized thoughts, similar to that of the modern arts. It is one of the sculptural works in innovative measures. It can be said that modern sculptors emerged in the Myanmar sculptural arena due to the thing that the Central Co-operative Union inserted such event into the contest in addition to the optional sculptural event in past three or four years. Currently, sculptors carve modern sculptural works which are in high demand of the market.

Recently, a large number of modern sculptural works made of Yintaik (Dalbergia cultrate) were showcased in the Yangon Region’s hotels and tourism show where visitors praised in wonder of significantly modern sculptural works.

“Modern sculptural works are more favourite among the visitors than ordinary works. The formers are in high demand of the market. Hence, sculptural entrepreneurs focus on gathering of modern sculptural works. The best wood to carve the modern sculptural works is Yintaik (Dalbergia cultrate). All these works are made of Yintaik (Dalbergia cultrate) specifically,” said Daw Aye Aye Kyaing, manager of Yintaik World Sculpture Industry on Waizayanta Road in South Okkalapa Township.

Yintaik (Dalbergia cultrate) trees generally thrive in the tropical part of Bago mountain ranges. In its nature, the tree cannot be used in producing furniture. The trunks of the trees are small but long. So, it is used in carving statues of sculpture. The wood is hard, rigid and ponderous. The central part of the trunk is hollow.

“Generally, the trunks of Yintaik (Dalbergia cultrate) plants are about 10-12 inches in diameter. Its smell is bad. The smell of the trunk does not have fragrance. Wood is black so it can be carved well to make sculptural works. The large trunk has a hollow in the axis. So, it cannot be created as sculptural works. Suitable size in diameter of the trunk is the best for carving sculptural works,” said Daw Aye Aye Kyaing.

Currently, modern sculptural works are in higher demand of international market than that of local one. Especially, modern sculptural works are favourite in the Chinese market. Yintaik (Dalbergia cultrate) wood is carved to produce elephant, horse, dragon and frog statues for the Chinese market. Most of the modern sculptural works are shaped in structures of Myanmar belles carrying water pots.

It was reported that Yintaik (Dalbergia cultrate) plants can be carved for 500-1,000 kinds of sculptural works. Production of modern sculptural works is gradually increasing in the market with high demand. Works of the sculptors are better and better. However, Yintaik (Dalbergia cultrate) plants are rare year by year. Hence, the sculptural works made of Yintaik (Dalbergia cultrate) wood may be rare in the future. Consequently, the modern sculptural market may reach the highest position. Whatever it maybe, sculptors in Myanmar sculptural arena have posted a milestone in carving the modern sculpture showing capability of market competitiveness in keeping abreast of other sculptural works across the world in addition to shaping the significant works of traditional sculpture.

AFC U-19 Championship 2020 Qualifiers: Myanmar lost 0-3 to South Korea

THE Myanmar U-19 men's national football team suffered a 0-3 defeat against the South Korean team in the Group I match of the AFC U-19 Championship 2020 Qualifiers, held yesterday at Thuwunna Stadium in Yangon.

Myanmar lined up with goalkeeper Pyae Phyoe Thu, Wai Yan Soe, Captain Si Thu Moe Khant, Thet Hein Soe, Nyan Lin Htet, Aung Ko Oo, La Min Htwe, Ye Min Kyaw, Naung Naung Soe, Pyae Sone Naing, and Hein Htet Aung.

Team Myanmar was led by head coach U Soe Myat Min.

Though Myanmar was playing against one of Asia's best teams, the team did not play defense and launched an open attack, using the same speed, stamina, and power as the South Korean players.

Team Myanmar forced the play at the start with neat and tidy tackling, but better passes and deliveries from South Korean players occasionally kept Myanmar's midfield and defense busy.

Due to some misunderstandings among Myanmar defenders, South Korea scored three consecutive goals in the middle of the first half.

With South Korea leading by three goals, Myanmar changed tactics in the second half and played more carefully.

Team Myanmar had scoring opportunities in the second half, but the South Korean goalkeeper cum captain Baek managed to block all strong kicks by Myanmar strikers.

There were no goals in the second half till the final whistle, and the match ended with a win for South Korea. With the victory, South Korea will advance to the next stage of the tourney.

reckoning for the championship.

THE Myanmar national women's football team trained at the Taihu Football Centre in Suzhou, China yesterday ahead of friendly matches against Chinese football teams, according to the Myanmar Football Federation.

The team is playing friendly matches to prepare for the upcoming 2019 South East Asian Games, which will be held in the Philippines.

The team will undergo training in China for eight days — from 8 to 15 November.

Team Myanmar left for China on 7 November. The team is being led by head coach U Win Thu Moe for the training sessions and friendly matches in China.

Team Myanmar will play a friendly match against the Jiangsu Suning Women's F.C., and two friendly matches against China Women's Youth Selection Team, said a source with the MFF.

After their training tour, head coach U Win Thu Moe will select the final list of players who will compete in the upcoming 2019 SEA Games women's football event, for which Myanmar has been placed in Group A along with Malaysia and host Philippines.

Myanmar will take on the Philippines on 26 November in the opening match of the women's football competition at the SEA Games. The competition will be held from 26 November to 9 December at the Biñan Football Stadium in Biñan, Laguna, the Philippines.—Lynn Thit (Tgi)

YANGON United has signed midfielder Aung Kyaw Naing from Ayeyawady United on a two-year contract, according to the football club's official website.

At the time, I thought I was not ready to join the club and I had passed up the chance. But now, the head coach and the team officials have made another offer, and I am eager to come here. It has been my dream to be in Yangon United since I began my footballer life. Now, my dream has come true," said Aung Kyaw Naing.
