Purpose of National Committee

The Vice President first delivered a speech. He said people living with disabilities are not disabled, should get the same rights as all citizens and society should evolve into an inclusive environment, which is why, in line with the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, Myanmar has enacted The Rights of Persons with Disabilities Law (2015) and its related bylaw (2017).

He said the National Committee was formed on 14 September 2017 to better enforce the law and bylaw and has reached its second and a half year in 2019. He said all this time, the committee has been working in coherence with directives from the Union Government to ensure the rights of disabled persons in line with international standards and current situations.

Forming subcommittees

The Vice President said this is why there is sustainable evident improvement and success regarding rehabilitation, development and rights of PLWDs. He said they are working on forming nine subcommittees to assist the National Committee and working committee and they will focus on education, health, labour affairs, research, monitoring and evaluation, affairs of disabled women and children, smooth transmission of information, natural disasters and other emergency situations, and judicial rights.

The Vice President said these subcommittees need to draft policies and action plans that incorporate inclusive development of all society in each sector and to draft the strategic plan (2020-2025). He hopes the six areas of the strategic plan will fully support the development of PLWDs. The six areas are healthcare, education, employment, social protection, natural disasters and other emergency situation management, and ease of access.

National index

The Vice President said

the Union Government is working to implement a disability index and PLWD identity registration system in order to provide sustainable solutions in meeting the needs of PLWDs. He said in doing so, the Union Government has marked the start of the eight month long pilot project in September 2019 and is implementing the first phase of forming the disability index by the different levels and forms of disability, regis-tion must lead the designing of comprehensive tables.

The Vice President said an important sector for PLWDs is natural disasters and other emergency situations. He said while implementing these efforts, PLWDs should not be left out and should be allowed to cooperate so that their needs can be accurately addressed.

PLWD sustainability

The Vice President said creating an obstacle-free world for PLWDs is fulfilling the sustainable development of PLWDs and in line with that thought, 'The Future We Wish to See in Yangon Seminar' was held from 10 to 11 September 2019 in Yangon City Hall. He said the seminar produced results such as better awareness on disabilities, creating new perspectives for accessibility for all in city development matters, raising awareness on national building code, and an accessible Yangon City through the media. SEE PAGE-5

Out of 2,000 street children, 734 have been returned to their families, with 136 children completing vocational training courses and 66 establishing their own small businesses, according to World Vision.

To support street children in Myanmar, a fund-raising event was held on 4 December at the Kafe in Town on Pansodan Road, Yangon. The event was jointly held by World Vision and TODAY Ogilvy.

“People need to know that there are children suffering woes from having to live on the road in Myanmar. This being so, everyone needs to know and be concerned about their development. This event was held to help people learn about the woes of street children, who are being exploited, and support them,” said Dr Thar Tun Oo, chairman

Time to act and end violence against women, children

WOMEN make up more than 53 per cent of the total population of Myanmar. Meanwhile, children aged under 18 years constitute a significant percentage of our country's population. Therefore, the government, lawmakers, non-governmental organizations, civil society organizations, and the people have a huge responsibility to help women and children.

There is no doubt that we will face challenges as we address violence against women and children, work on improving gender equality, and women's empowerment.

To help women, creating job opportunities is a must. At the same time, our ultimate responsibility rests in preventing violence against women and children, trafficking in persons, and sexual abuse.

Traditional and social media have reported cases of violence against women, including sexual abuse and rape of minors.

A law on prevention of violence against women, which is crucial for their protection, is still in the process of being enacted.

If the law comes into effect, it would ensure more systematic and effective prevention of violence against women. We hope the bill would be enacted into law as soon as possible through the efforts of the lawmakers and ministries concerned. As the Ministry of Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement, which is the focal ministry for prevention of violence against women and children, is planning to submit the bill to the Hluttaw, the bill can be considered to be headed in the right direction towards becoming a law. It can be said that everyone is working together to fight violence and sexual abuse against women and children.

The ministry has formed four task forces to implement 12 areas of the National Strategic Plan for the Advancement of Women and to increase women's participation in peace processes to at least 30 per cent. At the same time, the ministry has announced that its national-level committee has already drafted a plan for prevention of violence against women in conflicts. Among other achievements, the ministry had established a 24-hour helpline service for women in 2016, and provided K150 million to women for their livelihood, and set up four One Stop Women Support Centres to provide shelter and assistance to victims of violence.

These efforts are not aimed at scoring political points. On the contrary, the willingness of MPs and experts of the ministries concerned to work together on this issue has been a source of optimism.

We need to make sure that we are making progress. The coming International Women's Day must be a time for deeds, not words.

Measles, German measles vaccines are essential

By Maung Thin Pyant

DURING the month of October 2019, measles and German measles vaccination and polio vaccination were given to children in 96 townships where transport was poor in states and regions of the country. During November this year, children between nine months and five and a half years were injected with measles and German measles vaccination in the remaining townships. So, the whole country will be free from measles and German measles in 2023 and wipe out the German measles infection some expectant mothers are facing. Awareness campaign of the supplementary vaccination program was conducted for three days between 26 and 28 November at the gathering points of villages and wards of townships in all states and regions including Yangon Region.

The essential need

Health is an important sector for the developing human resources of the country. Hence, the government is implementing the task of wiping out the measles and German measles in the whole country to reduce the child mortality rate. So it is essential for parents to have their children injected with the vaccination during the said three days without fail. It is important to eliminate those highly infectious diseases.

Measles infection and deaths due to the disease can be found in the populous areas where vaccination program is weak, areas where transport is poor and accessibility of health workers is not possible, and towns where infection is caused mainly by migrants. Measles broke out in some states and regions in the form of an epidemic for 21 times in 2017. It also occurred in 2018. The government conducted the vaccination injection program between 25 and 29 October this year. During the previous November, it completed its vaccination program in the whole country.

The Ministry of Health and Sports has been conducted its extended vaccination program as a priority. It is giving 11 types of vaccinations to children under one and a half years under its regular vaccination program to reduce child mortality rate. It is planning to give vaccines against diarrhea and ovarian cancer. Poliovirus (WPV) was last found in Myanmar in 2017. After the government declared Myanmar a polio-free country in 2014, transformed type of poliovirus or vaccine-derived poliovirus was found in 2015 and on 23 June 2019. The child found with the virus is from Hpapon, Kayin State. Hence extra dose of inactivated polio vaccine (IPV) was given with the aim of clearing the transformed type of poliovirus in 12 populated townships in Kayin State, Mon State and Bago Region where infection rate could be high.

The Ministry is giving regular anti-measles and German measles drugs for the first time to children when they reach nine months, and when they reach 18 months the vaccine is given for the second time. German measles is not a serious disease. But if it is infected to an expectant mother there is significant risk of miscarriage, child death and child defects such as disabilities, abnormal heart, cataract and deformation.

"It is an important moment. We will give an extra dose of inactivated polio vaccine (IPV) against measles and German measles medicine in the whole country from 26 to 28 November. The vaccine will be administered to children between nine months and five and a half years. The or defects. So people should be protected from both diseases as children who have had not the vaccine are vulnerable to both diseases. Any child who had not yet taken the vaccine is vulnerable to the disease. The vaccination program is conducted in Myanmar to reduce child deaths due to measles" said deputy director general Dr. Tun Myint of Health Department.

Prevention

There were 1389 measles patients in Myanmar in 2018 (according to the list approved by lab). Of them, 663 was in Yangon Region. In the early 2019, the number of people infected by the disease was 3265, and 1088 were from Yangon Region. Most of the infections were found in Hlaingthaya, Shwepyitha, Insein, Mingaladon, Dagom (East), Daducted at 11 hospitals in Yangon, the rate of inborn German measles is 0.1 per one thousand. So, measles plus German measles vaccination program was launched in Myanmar in January 2015 and it lasted till February. The program was integrated into the regular national vaccination project in March 2016. After three years have passed, the program to provide extra dose of inactivated polio vaccine (IPV) was conducted.

Inclusiveness

The ministry administered extra dose of inactivated polio vaccine (IPV) against measles and -German measles to about 570,000 children between nine months and five and a half years from 26 to 28 November. In this way Myanmar can control the occurrence of measles and inborn

The vaccination program has been a major factor in the improvement of health standards. PHOTO: CHAN THAR (MEIKTILA)

vaccination program will cover 574,200 children between the said ages in Yangon Region, and the estimated cost is US$ 1.4 per child. Measles is a highly infectious disease. Measles may cause normal complications such as ear infections and diarrhea, and serious complications including pneumonia and encephalitis. Another one is German measles which may also cause pregnant women to give birth prematurely, or have a low-birth-weight baby or a baby with birth disabilities (South) Dagon (Seikkan) townships and there were deaths also. As measles and German measles are infectious, the best prevention method is vaccination. As the measles is not spread through mosquitoes, it is preventable through the vaccination program. The anti-measles and -German measles medicine should be given at the designated age, children need to take extra dose of inactivated polio vaccine (IPV).

According to a research con-

German measles. The country has targeted to totally free itself from measles and -German measles in 2023 as a part of its child mortality reduction program. Government departments, maternal and child care societies, NGOs, social organizations, local elders and health workers should make collective efforts to realize the target.

Domestic investments cross K600 bln in two months

BY Nyein Nyein
INVESTMENTS by Myanmar citizens in the country exceeded K600 billion in the first two months of the current fiscal, an increase of K300 billion compared to the corresponding period of the previous FY, said U Thant Sin Lwin, Director-General of the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration (DICA).

Between 1 October and 30 November this year, 24 local enterprises were allowed to invest in the country by the Myanmar Investment Commission and the state and region investment committees. Domestic investments have reached K625.38 billion so far, including expansion of capital by existing enterprises.

Domestic investors pumped

K266.62 billion into 36 projects in the October-November period in the 2018-2019 financial year.

This fiscal year, the number of enterprises permitted was 12 less than the previous year. However, the quantum of investment was larger compared with the year-ago period.

Twelve enterprises invested in the manufacturing sector; four businesses pumped funds into the other services sector; the hotels and tourism sector and the real estate development sector attracted three enterprises each; and, one project was approved for the livestock and fisheries and agriculture sectors each. Since 1988 and as of 30 October, domestic investments of K19,644 billion have been made by 1,649 enterprises in the country, as per data from the DICA.

To simplify the verification process of investment projects, the Myanmar Investment Law allows the region and state Investment Committees to endorse local and foreign proposals, where the initial investment does not exceed K6 billion, or $5 million. While some projects no longer need MIC approval, businesses that are strategic to the government require a permit from the commission. In addition, those businesses that have large capital investments exceeding $5 million and that may have a possible impact on the environment and the local community need to be approved by the MIC's proposal assessment team. (Translated by Ei Myat Mon)

FDI crosses $1.39 bln in Oct-Nov

MYANMAR attracted more than US$1.39 billion in foreign direct investments between 1 October and 29 November in the current financial year, including expansion of capital by existing enterprises, according to the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration. The total figure includes investment of $15.2 million in the Thilawa Special Economic Zone, under the Special Economic Zone Law.

According to a press statement issued by the DICA, 41 foreign enterprises obtained permits from the Myanmar Investment Commission (MIC) and endorsements from regional and state Investment Committees in the current fiscal, bringing in a capital of $1.35 billion. Those enterprises will execute electricity, manufacturing, livestock and fishery, real estate development, hotels and tourism, and other services businesses.

“As large projects were allowed in the current fiscal, investments grew,” said U Thant Sin Lwin. “Infrastructure projects such as industrial parks and urban development projects are bringing investments into the country,” he added. The Ministry for Investment and Foreign Economics Relations is inviting responsible businesses to the country. The Myanmar Investment Promotion Plan (MIPP) was drawn up with the assistance of the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA) and is in the process of being implemented. As per the MIPP, Myanmar aims to receive FDI of $200 billion in 20 years, said U Thaung Tun, Union Minister for Investment and Foreign Economic Relations. In the 2018-2019FY, FDI into Myanmar totaled $4.5 billion, falling short of the $5.8-billion target by around $1.3 billion. —GNLM (Translated by Ei Myat Mon)

Pilot of DBE Boxes under way to tackle challenges in basic education

THE Ministry of Education launched the pilot phase of installation of DBE Boxes (K-12 Digital Teaching Resources) yesterday at the ministry in Nay Pyi Taw.

The installation of DBE Boxes, which can be accessed without Internet, is part of efforts for tackling the current challenges in the education sector, said Union Minister for Education Dr. Myo Thein Gyi at the event held to mark the launch of the boxes.

Dr. Myo Thein Gyi said the ministry has speeded up reforms for the development of the education sector by laying down the national education strategy 2016-2021. But, the ministry is still facing requirements and challenges in some areas, such as the teaching environment, teaching aids, and capacity building of teachers.

“Thanks to the DBE Boxes, teachers from the Department of Basic Education would be able to easily access books, lessons, teacher’s manuals, and general supplementary textbooks for KG, Grade 1, Grade 2, and Grade 3, and on education policy, law, and reforms,” the minister said.

DBE Boxes include teaching aids with a Creative Commons License and have been designed by international universities and organizations for the purpose of education.

Teachers would be able to study the lessons and teaching sources using smartphones and tablets, said Dr. Myo Thein Gyi. He pledged to install the boxes in schools across the country after reviewing the survey of pilot schools.

“The installation of DBE Boxes is among the reforms based on technology being introduced by the Ministry of Education, and it can be said that the plan will develop educational

Tencent, Nintendo to launch Switch console in China

SHANGHAI — Chinese internet giant Tencent and gaming titan Nintendo on Wednesday announced plans to launch the Japanese company’s popular Switch console in China from next week.

Expectations for the console’s launch in the world’s largest games market has helped to push up Nintendo’s share price this year.

The console will be sold in China from December 10 for 2,099 yuan ($297), the companies said at a launch event in Shanghai.

“Nintendo has long hoped to provide Chinese consumers with Nintendo’s games and entertainment, and now this dream has come true,” said Shigeru Miyamoto, the renowned game creator of “Super Mario Bros” and “Donkey Kong”, said in a video message.

Nintendo had said earlier this year that it was working with Tencent — China’s leading online video game company as well as a giant in messaging and myriad other apps — to roll out the Switch in China.

The Switch has become a huge global seller, aided by the release of innovative, family-friendly titles that have been well-received by critics and gamers.

The console will come with “New Super Mario Bros. U Deluxe Edition” pre-installed, with “Mario Kart 8 Deluxe Edition” and “Super Mario Odyssey” also available soon, company officials said. Tencent added that it would work to “enrich” the console’s game line-up, including with titles created by Chinese developers, and that up to 20 games could be available to play on Switch in 2020.

China in 2014 began easing a more than decade-long ban on consoles imposed out of concern over the negative impact gaming may have on children.—AFP ■

NATO unity on the line as Turkey row festers

WATFORD — NATO leaders sought to make a show of unity on Wednesday as they met to conclude their annual summit, but the alliance’s chief admitted a festering row with Turkey was still unresolved.

What should have been a celebration of NATO’s 70th birthday has been overshadowed by bitter rows about money and the future strategy of the alliance.

Last year, the Western allies’ get-together was derailed by US President Donald Trump’s demand for greater European defence spending, but 2019’s provocateur was France’s Emmanuel Macron.

The French president has called for a renewed strategic dialogue with Moscow and demanded that Turkey explain itself over its assault — backed by Syrian rebels Paris sees as extremists — on Kurdish forces and its purchase of the Russian S-400 air defence system.

Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan meanwhile has threatened to hold up NATO efforts to bolster the protection of the Baltic republics against Russia unless the allies brand the Kurdish militias who defeated the IS group in Syria as “terrorists”.

Amid fears Erdogan could even veto the summit declaration and with barely two hours to go before the leaders sat down for their sole roundtable, NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg admitted a solution to the row with Turkey had still not been found.

“I’m confident that we will be able to find a solution to the issue related to the updating the revised defence plans,” he said as he arrived for the summit at a luxury golf hotel in Watford, on the outskirts of London.—AFP ■

UN launches $29 bn emergency funding appeal

GENEVA — The UN launched a humanitarian appeal for nearly $29 billion on Wednesday as climate change and increasingly protracted conflicts put tens of millions of people in urgent need of aid.

The world body’s Global Humanitarian Overview estimated that 168 million people worldwide will need some form of emergency assistance in 2020, including food, shelter and health-care. That figure marks a “record in the modern era,” UN emergency relief coordinator Mark Lowcock told reporters, clarifying that he was referring to the period since World War II.

Needs continue to rise in part because “conflicts are becoming more protracted and intense,” Lowcock said.—AFP ■

Mt Paektu has great symbolic significance in the North as both the spiritual birthplace of the Korean nation and, according to Pyongyang's orthodoxy, the birthplace of Kim's father Kim Jong Il. PHOTO: AFP

North Korea's Kim in new horse ride through winter snows

SEOUL — North Korean media published fresh pictures Wednesday of leader Kim Jong Un riding a white horse on a sacred mountain, imagery that experts say is heavy with symbolism and may indicate a policy announcement.

The photos come as nuclear talks with the United States are stalled and with a looming end-of-year deadline set by North Korea for some kind of concession from Washington.

Kim — in a black leather trenchcoat he has worn recently to open a flagship construction project and supervise a weapons test — was pictured leading a squad of riders in a white forest near Mount Paektu.

The group included his wife Ri Sol Ju as well as several officials, the images released by the official KCNA news agency showed. The mountain — a dormant volcano on the border with China — has great symbolic significance in the North as both the spiritual birthplace of the Korean nation and, according to Pyongyang's orthodoxy, the birthplace of Kim's father Kim Jong Il.

The current leader toured several historic locations and climbed the mountain, KCNA said, leaving a "sacred trace in the revolutionary battle sites", through "knee-high virgin snow".

The agency also released new images of Kim in a light brown coat with fur collar at the summit of the mountain, to which he previously rode in October.

Analysts say that pictures of Kim at Mount Paektu — a physically dramatic location that is ubiquitous in North Korean imagery — represent assertions of leadership and legitimacy, given the historical background.—AFP

Japanese doctor who helped Afghans for decades among six killed in attack

KABUL — A Japanese doctor whose long career was dedicated to helping some of Afghanistan's poorest people was among six people killed Wednesday in an attack in the east of the country, officials said.

The armed assault in Jalalabad city, the capital of Nangarhar province, was the second deadly incident involving aid workers in recent days and prompted appalled reaction in Afghanistan and internationally.

Tetsu Nakamura, 73, was the head of Peace Japan Medical Services — known as Peshawar Kai in Japanese — and had been working in the region since the 1980s, when he began treating patients with leprosy in Peshawar in neighbouring Pakistan.

A spokesman for Afghan President Ashraf Ghani called Nakamura "one of the closest friends of Afghanistan".

He "dedicated his life to helping and cooperating with our people", spokesman Sediq Seddiqi said. Attaullah Khogyani, a spokesman for Nangarhar's governor, said Nakamura, who had been shot in the chest, was in the process of being transferred to a hospital in Bagram near Kabul when he died. Five Afghans were also killed: three of Nakamura's security guards, a driver and another colleague, Khogyani said. The attack comes as humanitarian groups are on high alert just days after an aid worker for the UN was killed in a bombing in Kabul.—AFP ■

China condemns US passing Uighur crackdown bill

BEIJING — China on Wednesday came down heavily on the United States after the House of Representatives approved a bill that would require the Trump administration to toughen its response to Beijing's crackdown on its Muslim minority in Xinjiang, mostly ethnic Uighurs, who are being held in re-education camps.

In a statement released shortly after the Uighur Act of 2019 was passed, China's foreign ministry condemned the move, saying the bill "wantonly smears China's efforts to eliminate and combat extremism", Al Jazeera reported. "We urge the US to immediately correct its mistake, to stop the above bill on Xinjiang from becoming law, to stop using Xinjiang as a way to interfere in China's domestic affairs," foreign ministry's spokeswoman, Hua Chunying, said in the statement.

The Uighur Act of 2019 is a stronger version of a bill that calls on the US President to impose sanctions for the first time on a member of China's powerful politburo, Xinjiang Communist Party Secretary Chen Quanguo, even as Trump tries to reach a deal with Beijing to end the months-long trade war.

The legislation also requires the US president to condemn abuses against Muslims and call for the closure of the camps in Xinjiang. "This is seen as a continuing series of attacks really aimed not so much at freeing anybody or at human rights but at putting pressure on China on these trade negotiations going forward," Beijing-based political analyst and government adviser Einar Tangen told Al Jazeera.

"If you look beneath that, at the Democrat view and the fact that this was bi-partisan, it seems the only thing the people in politics in Washington can agree on is that China is, somehow, an evil empire," he added.—ANI ■

Malaysia PM says canceled APEC summit need not be relocated to US

CYBERJAYA — Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad said Wednesday that it is not necessary for the United States to reschedule and host an Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum canceled by Chile.

In late October, Chile withdrew from hosting the mid-November meeting after violent street protests rocked the country, prompting the United States to offer to co-host the event with it on American soil in January.

"I hear there was an invitation extended to the APEC countries, but almost every one of us decided it was not necessary," Mahathir told reporters. "If you just call an impromptu meeting, we think it is not necessary."

UK PM denies dodging Trump in pre-election NATO trip

WATFORD — British Prime Minister Boris Johnson denied on Wednesday he was avoiding being pictured with Donald Trump ahead of a UK election next week, as footage emerged of other leaders mocking the US president.

Johnson met Trump away from the cameras on Tuesday before a two-day NATO summit, avoiding the media fanfare that normally accompanies such talks.

He also failed to publicly greet Trump and his wife Melania on the doorstep of Downing Street before a reception with other NATO leaders.

Johnson's team are wary of what Trump might say during his two-day visit, with Britain set to go to the polls on 12 December.

Johnson's Conservatives are leading opinion polls but the rival Labour party has sought to whip up public opinion against Trump, who is deeply unpopular in Britain.

In a press conference on Tuesday, the president promised to "stay out" of the election campaign and most of his remarks were about divisions within NATO. But he still managed to endorse Johnson as "very capable" and intervene in a row over US interests in Britain's state-run National Health Service (NHS) after Brexit.

Arriving for the formal NATO talks in Watford, north of London, on Wednesday, Johnson denied he was trying to avoid being seen with Trump.

"I'm going to be photographed with every possible leader," he insisted, and later posed with the president for an official welcome alongside NATO chief Jens Stoltenberg.

Downing Street said Trump and Johnson had discussed the NATO summit and an earlier meeting between Britain, France, Germany and Turkey about the situation in Syria.

Trump wrote on Twitter that he "enjoyed" the talks, which he said covered "numerous subjects including NATO and trade".

Johnson is campaigning for re-election on a promise to get Britain out of the European Union next month, more than three years after the 2016 Brexit referendum.

He has held up a new US trade deal as one of the prizes of Brexit but has faced accusations from Labour that this will open up the much loved NHS to US firms.

Johnson denies this, and Trump said his country would not be interested in the NHS "if you handed it to us on a silver platter".

Iran says still ready for talks if US lifts sanctions

TEHRAN — Iran is willing to return to the negotiating table if the United States first drops sanctions, President Hassan Rouhani said Wednesday, after a fuel price hike sparked deadly violence ahead of elections.

European countries have been pushing for talks with Iran to salvage a 2015 nuclear deal that has all but collapsed since the United States withdrew and reimposed sanctions last year.

Rouhani has long demanded the lifting of US sanctions for Iran's return to talks under the auspices of the so-called P5+1 that reached the deal — the five veto-wielding permanent members of the UN Security Council plus Germany.

His latest statement comes after a shock announcement in mid-November that the price of petrol was going up by as much as 200 percent triggered demonstrations across Iran that turned deadly.

The decision came at a sensitive time ahead of a February parliamentary election.

It is a rise many Iranians can ill afford in a country whose sanctions-hit economy is expected to contract by 9.5 per cent this year.

"If they are prepared to put aside the sanctions, we are ready to talk and negotiate, even at the level of heads of the 5+1 countries," Rouhani said in remarks aired live on state television.

"We are under sanctions. This situation... is (because of) incitement by the Zionists and the region's reactionary," he said, referring to Iran's regional rivals Israel and Saudi Arabia.

His remarks came after France and Germany raised the possibility of triggering a mechanism in the deal that could lead to the reimposition of UN sanctions.—AFP ■

Egypt says new meeting on Nile dam dispute to be held in Washington

CAIRO — Egypt said Tuesday that a new trilateral meeting on the disputed Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam (GERD) will be held in Washington on 9 December.

Irrigation ministers of Egypt, Ethiopia and Sudan will attend the meeting to evaluate the results of the first and second rounds of talks on the dam, the Egyptian Ministry of Irrigation said in a statement. The statement was issued after a two-day meeting of the irrigation ministers that ended Tuesday in Cairo, during which they discussed solutions to the differences on the filling and operating of the dam, the statement said.

A representative of the World Bank and a US official also attended the Cairo meeting, which was the second of four rounds of negotiations that will end in Washington on 15 January, 2020.

A meeting was held in Ethiopia on 15-16 November to discuss the outcomes of the first meeting.

Ethiopia started building the GERD in 2011, but Egypt, a downstream country that relies heavily on the Nile for water, is concerned that the dam might affect its share of the water resources.—Xinhua ■
