Myanmar society is today being established based upon the basic human values of peace, freedom and development, with the nation's youth playing a major role: President U Win Myint

Following is the full-text of the speech of President U Win Myint delivered at the Youths All-Round Development Festival (Magway)

UNION Ministers, Magway Region Chief Minister and ministers, Magway Region Hluttaw Speaker and Hluttaw representatives, experts and learned person from various sectors, teachers and students. May you all be well both spiritually and physically.

It is a pleasure to see such a huge number of youngsters in Magway University compound. Ministry of Information, Ministry of Religious Affairs and Culture, Ministry of Education, Ministry of Health and Sports and Ministry of Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement in coordination with Yangon Region government and Mandalay Region government successfully held Youths All-Round Development Festival (Yangon) and Youths All-Round Development Festival (Mandalay) in 2017 and 2018 respectively. Similarly, arrangements were made to hold a Youths All-Round Development Festival in Magway from 14 to 16 December 2019.

Literary, arts, sports and innovative activities, talks, exhibitions, book sales and displays will be included and attended by youths, students, parents, teachers, literary enthusiasts, artists and IT experts making it a day when a beautiful image of Magway University is created.

The Youths All-Round Development Festival is held today with the aims of sharing skills, knowledge, facts and ethics to youths and youngsters and to establish a future society of Myanmar with the good thoughts and morals of youths. Myanmar society is today being established based upon the basic human values of peace, freedom and development, with the nation's youth playing a major role. In any country, youths were its most valuable forces.

It is known to all that 33.8 percent of the population of Myanmar were youths between the ages of 15 to 35. These youths were invaluable human resources for Myanmar's development and will be taking over the country's leadership role in the future. The country's future is in the hand of the youths. Youths' endeavours, views, knowledge, excellence, frankness, unselfishness and enthusiasm are essential for the country's development.

The State was of the view that for the development of our future the capability of youths needs to be raised. It was for this that events such as Youths All-Round Development Festival were being held.

Efforts were made to draw up youth affairs policies according to the changing time and era, Youth themselves had participated in drawing up and approving the youth affairs policy. Youths were also found to be participating enthusiastically in every sector toward the country's development. As youths were able to participate and draw up such youth affairs policy, they were also trusted to cooperate and play a role in the establishment of democracy federal union. This was a good effort and could be considered as a proud expectation for the development of future youth.

Countries of the world can be seen as striving in full might toward supporting and uplifting new generation of youths for their future society. In other words, they have full trust and depend on the power of the youth as the main driving force for future society. Youths are naturally courageous, enthusiastic, curious, daring and play a main role in the changes to the country.

Our government hold onto the principle of raising the working capability, physical and mental development of youth who are the main artery of the country's future. That was why efforts were made toward creating learning opportunity, acquiring health knowledge, reducing the problem of drug, raising knowledge and innovativeness for youth. At the moment, youth affairs policies based on youths' views, voices and thoughts were drawn up and relevant ministerial departments, state and region governments cooperating and implementing it together in a balanced way.

Youths All-Round Development Festival is held with the aim of developing the five strengths of youth. In striving for the country's development it of the country.

There are three points that the State would like to remark with great emphasis.

Firstly, there were many things in the 21st century that affects and influences youth. The world was not standing still and was changing and developing as time goes by. Our youths need to be ready and prepared to use the opportunities that arise from the challenges.

Secondly, within the modernity and developments, it is very important for youths to maintain and strengthen their honesty, straightforwardness, valuing and cherishing of truth and their morality. Avoid with extreme care the danger and peril of the drug menace that was always lurking nearby. Take care and look after one another.

Thirdly, breed within self since young the union spirit, democracy federal citizen spirit that was in accordance with a democracy political system and federal system. Recognize the diversities within the union born ethnic nationals. Our youths are urged to display mutual respect, sympathy and provide assistance to establish the nation's unity of strength.

Our youths are urged to display mutual respect, sympathy and provide assistance to establish the nation's unity of strength.

needs to be noted that not only physical development, but mental development and higher level of knowledge were very important.

Youths that came into being with their unique capabilities were to be taught and trained with skills and knowledge to face and overcome challenges of the future and to flow along with the changing time and era. At the same time, all are urged to develop the youths' reverence and love to the country and its people, cooperative and participative spirit for the development

Youths participating in the Youths All-Round Development Festival are to strive toward the country's development by raising their capabilities continuously, strive toward development of good qualities, breed the mindset of working for the majority and work together toward establishing a society based on freedom and development. Raise the country's honour and work with full spiritual and physical strengths. Thank you.

Message of Greetings sent by President U Win Myint on the occasion of the 45th Anniversary of Rakhine State Day (15 December 2019)

Our Union Government has been working strenuously for the accomplishment of the following three goals:

- Rule of law and the uplifting of the people's socio-economic life;
- National reconciliation and internal peace;
- And amendment of the Constitution which is the foundation stone for the establishment of a Democratic Federal Union.

In this endeavour, we have been putting in tremendous efforts for greater effectiveness by aligning the MSDP – Myanmar Sustainable Development Plan 2018 – 2030 with the global SDG's – Sustainable Development Goals by adopting goals, strategies and programmes.

Rakhine State which is located between the Bay of Bengal and the Rakhine Yoma mountain range is blessed with beaches like the Ngapali beach; furthermore it has fertile lands and is rich with minerals. It also has ancient cultural heritage sites which are priceless. The Rakhine State which is so peaceful and beautiful has lagged behind in development like other states/regions due to successive periods of wrong policies and wrong management.

For this reason our Union Government established the Central Committee for the Development of Rakhine State together with work committees for the short term and long term development of the state giving special priority as soon as we assumed office. In addition, we established the UEHRD – Union Enterprise for Humanitarian Assistance, Resettlement and Development for the development of Rakhine State. Strenuous work has been going on continuously with determination in this regard.

Just as we are working for the stability and peace of Rakhine State, we have been working on the Kyaukphyu Special Economic Zone and the Deep Seaport project, Kanyin Chaung Economic Zone project, and the Kaladan multi-modal Development project. Furthermore, we organized the Rakhine State Investment Fair in Thandwe township on Ngapali beach to promote investment opportunities in Rakhine State and to link local entrepreneurs with promising local and foreign investors. As a result 30 Memoranda of Intent to the value of approximately USD 5.249 billion have been signed.

To improve the transport infrastructures in Rakhine State which has plenty of lakes and streams, the 960 feet reinforced concrete Daletchaung bridge on the Yangon-Sittway road and the 1920 feet steel frame Kyatsin bridge on the Myebon – Minbya road were opened in 2019. In addition, the 1300 feet Ramong rope bridge is being upgraded into a reinforced concrete bridge; also the 1320 feet reinforced concrete Gwa Chaung bridge which will connect the Ayeyawaddy Region and Rakhine State is under construction.

In December 2018, we were able to supply electricity to Maungdaw township from the national grid. Thus out of 17 townships in Rakhine State, the people in 16 townships are now using electricity. For Manaung township which is an island, we have been working to provide 24 hours electricity supply through a combination of solar, diesel and a hybrid electric power storage electric power generation plant. Thus as an initial phase work has been completed to produce 0.5 megawatts, and we will be able to provide 24 hours electricity supply to 5 wards and 3 villages in December 2019 using solar energy. Work is also continuing to provide 2.5 megawatts from this plant.

To register Mrauk U township in Rakhine State which is the resting place of many sacred Buddha relics on the World Heritage Sites list, we have collaborated with UNESCO to make a submission on 30 September 2019; we are currently working to send the complete submission file on 31 January 2020.

Just as it is important to conserve the heritage of Rakhine State where Buddhism has flourished, we need to regain the peace and tranquility of Rakhine State which has lasted for many years. For this state to become peaceful, beautiful and developed in the future, let us work together with the collective strength of everyone living in this state on this auspicious Rakhine State Day. With these sentiments I send my friendly and solemn Message of Greetings.

Leave no stone unturned to promote Myanmar's traditional medicine

NOWADAYS, alternative medicine plays an important role internationally. In place of chemicals, natural raw materials are increasingly used in medical treatment and pharmaceutical industries. Thus, upgrading the sector of traditional medicines can be of great benefit to the country and its people.

Not only the people of Myanmar, but also world populations have turned their attention back to natural herbs and foods.

Therefore, it can be said that the role of Myanmar traditional medicines produced with natural herbs, and Myanmar's traditional medical science skillfully practiced by Myanmar traditional medicine practitioners, have expanded more than ever.

The Myanmar people relied on, are still relying on, and will definitely be relying on, traditional medicines in which they put their trust, because they are the ones who honour their lineage and religion as precious heritages handed down by their ancestors.

The Myanmar people relied on, are still relying on, and will definitely be relying on, traditional medicines in which they put their trust, because they are the ones who honour their lineage and religion as precious heritages handed down by their ancestors.

medicine sector step by step to reach a certain level.

But, much remains to be done to develop the traditional medicine sector. One of the tasks is to conduct research on the therapy and effectiveness of Myanmar traditional medicine. It does not mean that research is to be done just in the laboratory. Instead, the research means seeking firm evidence. Another important factor is putting on record a therapy, and this is a must for all traditional medicine practitioners.

At the same time, scientists are to conduct research on the safety, quality and potency of traditional medicines. More than that, they are to cooperate with pharmacologists, foresters, agriculturalists and medical experts to conduct scientific research in producing traditional medicines, following Good Manufacturing Practices.

It is certain that the outcomes from this research will greatly contribute to progress in advancing traditional medicines.

THE breeding rate of mosquito is tremendously great in the world. We humans should not think this situation flippantly as these dreadful flying insects are the deadliest ones and the diseases related to mosquito bite kill around two million humans every year. In other words, mosquitoes, the flying insects can be called man-eaters. Globally and locally, we need to eradicate the mosquito breeding or breeding sites both in rural and in urban areas. Nowadays, the mosquitoes are immune to the insect killers or fumigation or insecticides. The people dwelling in the metropolis, megalopolis, towns, and villages equally suffer from lethal diseases related to a mosquito bite.

Presently, Myanmar people and government are also cooperating in combating the infections and diseases caused by mosquito bite. In 1960 and '70s, there had been a sanitation program of community voluntary activities in the respective wards and streets of community in Yangon and other cities every weekend. People took part in that program actively and voluntarily. The dwellers concerned did the sanitation work properly and the workers of Yangon Municipal Corporation (the then YCDC) also assisted in collecting the rubbish and garbage sending them to the proper dumping places. The community volunteers and the workers of Yangon Municipal Corporation flushed the dirty water in the drains and ditches in the streets to ensure that the smooth water flow can be made possible.

The weekend-voluntary-sanitation-work-revealed that we Myanmar are always alert to cleanse in-and-out-of-our-houses-and-streets so that we can get rid of garbage-borne insects and flying insects such as flies, mosquitoes. Due to regular sanitation work conducted by Yangon Municipal Corporation now known as YCDC and the weekend-voluntary-sanitation-work-in-community, other infectious germs carriers like rodents and cockroaches could not get a host for breeding around the community residents. In other words, it was a task to prevent mosquito breeding. Moreover, during excessive governments, Yangon Municipal had bred larvivorous fish in the ditches in the streets within Municipal areas in order to kill mosquitoes.

MBV suitability index P and spatial distribution of epidemiological data in Myanmar.

These fish eat mosquito larvae and pupae. In fact, this is the Biological Control of Mosquito Vectors. There are many ways to kill mosquitoes and clearing mosquito breeding sites. However, nowadays, due to the increasing number of population and greater amount of garbage in Yangon, mosquito breeding sites are getting larger. Tons of garbage, waste and trash are being collected and dumped at the dumping ground by YCDC's dumper trucks. In addition, YCDC's sanitation work and cleansing work in public areas and daily bazaars are being done round-the-clock thoroughly. On the other hand, public health care center has been widely disseminating the knowledge about how to prevent from mosquito borne vectors and distributing mosquito-killing insecticides to the public. People are aware of the scourge of the mosquito-borne viruses. They try to clear and cleanse their environment or neighborhood on a regular basis. Schools, colleges, market places, government office compounds are being kept clean to ensure that there will be no mosquito breeding sites. Regular fumigation is made in all levels of schools in Yangon and other cities in Myanmar. These are health care activities and doing preventive measures to get rid of contagious diseases transmitted to humans by a variety of mosquitoes. Obviously, the performances of Public health services and YCDC keep the Yangon city clean the city dwellers healthy. Anyway, their work can eradicate the dreadful flying-insect-mosquitoes and breeding growth effectively.

Study on the annual average number of human death toll caused by mosquito bite worldwide

In the world, humans are being killed by man himself or by any other animals or by insects annually.

The following is the annual average number of a death toll of humans worldwide caused by:

- Mosquitoes : 2 million
- Humans : 475,000
- Snakes:50,000
- Sandflies:25,000
- Tsetse flies :10,000
- Crocodiles:1000
- Hippos:500
- Elephants: Lions100
- Sharks:10
- Wolves:10

It is learnt that the annual average number of humans death toll caused by mosquitoes is the highest. We can say mosquitoes as man-eaters

Common mosquito-borne viruses (MBVs) of global health concern include the dengue (DENV), Chikungunya (CHIKV), Zika (ZIKV), yellow fever (YFV), Rift Valley fever (RVFV), West-Nile (WNV) and Japanese encephalitis (JEV) viruses. They are detrimental to public health around the world.

Dengue fever : Dengue fever is transmitted by the bite of an Aedes mosquito infected with dengue virus. Dengue fever is a painful, debilitating mosquito-borne disease caused by any one of four closely related dengue viruses.

Chikungunya; Chikungunya is a viral disease transmitted to humans by infected mosquitoes.

Malaria; Adult anopheles mosquitoes transmit Plasmodium parasites that cause malaria.

Zika Virus infection; Zika virus infection is caused by the Zika Virus (ZIKV) Zika Virus infection is caused by the Zika Virus (ZIKV) belonging to the Flaviviridae family. The virus is primarily transmitted by infected daytime biting female Aedes aegypti and Aedes albopictus mosquitoes which are typically active from dawn to dusk. There is evidence that Zika Virus is also transmitted by other mosquitoes belonging to the Aedes genus. The virus can be transmitted from a pregnant woman to her fetus.

Insecticide resistance

Vector control strategies have traditionally focused on killing mosquitoes using a variety of insecticides. Environmental management (through reduction or removal of mosquito breeding sites) has often been used alongside chemical or microbiological ovicides, larvicides, and pupicides in areas where endemic mosquito-borne diseases occur. The use of synthetic insecticides has to be regulated given that the development of insecticide resistance is widespread and that there is concern regarding the damage to the environment and effects on non-target organisms.

Biological Control of Mosquito Vectors

The use of insecticides for mosquito control, including organophosphates, carbonates, and pyrethroids, can also have negative effects on human health. Personal protection against mosquito-borne diseases can involve the use of mosquito repellents such as N,N-diethyl-meta-toluidine (DEET), dimethyl phthalate (DMP), N,N-diethyl mendeic acid amide (DEM), as well as plant-borne molecules, light-coloured clothes covering as much of the body as possible, and sleeping under mosquito nets. Insecticide-treated bed nets have played a very important role in the reduction of Plasmodium falciparum infection prevalence in malaria endemic Sub-Saharan Africa, which has seen the incidence of clinical disease fall by 40% between 2000 and 2015. However, bed nets are only effective against mosquitoes that bite during the night and concern is growing that insecticide resistance, particularly due to the most commonly used class of pyrethroids, could reverse this trend and lead to rising incidence of malaria and increased fatalities.

As insecticide resistance is now widespread in a number of mosquito species, there is a growing need for novel, cheap, and reliable mosquito control strategies.

In many countries where mosquito-borne diseases are endemic, the financial burden of insecticide-based vector control programs is also prohibitive to widespread use. Environmentally friendly alternatives have been explored to help reduce the selection pressure for insecticide resistance. These various bio control strategies target different stages of the mosquito lifecycle with the aim of being safe for the environment and sustainable. These diverse bio control strategies include natural organisms that kill mosquitoes, exploiting mosquito behavior to improve mosquito mortality, and releasing mosquitoes that are either sterile or unable to transmit disease.

Singapore

Singapore is also combating mosquito vectors. Recently, it unveils a new mosquito breeding facility that will help the city-state step up its fight against dengue fever and other mosquito-borne diseases. The facility's automated devices and other mosquito-borne diseases. The facility's automated devices will allow researchers to boost breeding of mosquitoes carrying Wolbachia, a bacteria which reduces the insects' ability to spread viruses. (AFP news)

WHO's Mosquito Sterilization

A technique that sterilizes male mosquitoes using radiation will soon be tested as part of global health efforts to control diseases such as chikungunya, dengue, and Zika.

The Sterile Insect Technique (SIT) is a form of insect birth control. The process involves rearing large quantities of sterilized male mosquitoes in dedicated facilities, and then releasing them to mate with females in the wild. As they do not produce any offspring, the insect population declines over time.

Since mosquito bite is a global concern, man is making effort to eliminate the diseases caused by the flying-inset-mosquito and stop the growing mosquito breeding through biological control or advance potent insecticides. The public health service providers of each and every country should prevent from the losses of human lives caused by the danger of life-threatening virus carriers - mosquitoes!

Telematics devices installed on YBS buses found damaged: YRTA

By Nyein Nyein

TELEMATICS devices installed on YBS buses to monitor their speed and compliance with rules have been found damaged in several instances, said U Aung Nyi Nyi Maw, Managing Director of the Yangon Region Transport Authority (YRTA).

The machines were installed on YBS buses to ensure they follow traffic rules and regulations, and they were found to have been damaged intentionally, and not by accident, he added.

"The machines have been damaged because they help us see whenever the buses drive at a high speed or stop at bus stations where they must not halt for a long time. When bus drivers flout rules, we let them train or take action against them. So, they are damaging the machines as they don't want us to see how they are breaking rules. They are also worried that we will fine them. They don't want to follow rules and regulations," said U Aung Nyi Nyi Maw.

The authorities have given warning and are taking action against drivers for damaging telematics machines installed on board buses, according to the YRTA. The damaged machines are being fixed and installed at the Shin Sawpu ground. But, the YBS drivers have to pay a fine for that, according to the transport authority.

"The YRTA installed these machines free of charge to control YBS buses through a telematics system for all bus companies. When we check damaged machines, if we find they can still be fixed, we just give a warning and make drivers sign a personal undertaking. If the machines cannot be fixed, they have to pay a fine of K250,000," said U Aung Nyi Nyi Maw.

"Whenever telematics machines on board YBS buses are taken out or damaged, the control centre receives an alert. The team of engineers records how the machines got damaged on Shin Sawpu ground when they check the machine along with the disciplinary team and the YBS bus lines in-charge. While checking YBS buses where the machines have been installed, we find around 10 to 20 buses with damaged machines every day," said U Aung Nyi Nyi Maw.

We are planning to submit a proposal to the Yangon Region government to get guidelines on preventing damage to machines, according to the YRTA.

"On 28 November, a mini-bus from YBS 15 bus line was providing passenger services till 9:12 am. Then, the telematics system machine installed on board the bus was destroyed. We lost connection with the mini-bus at 5:36 pm. Before the connection was lost, the mini-bus was en route to North Okkapala from Dagon University. We also found that the mini-bus drove to Nyaungdone-Pathein road through Kayaybin junction," according to the control centre's records.

According to another record, on 29 November, a mini-bus from YBS 15 bus line, was found, with the bus line number covered with a sticker, waiting alongside a HiAce car and a city taxi pro-box van near U-To bridge, Chaungtha Town. As the combined team watched them, a motor vessel approached from U-To creek and docked near Chaungtha beach. Then, illegal migrants—32 males and 64 females—got onto the cars and they were arrested by the combined team.

"The information regarding the YBS 15 bus was received from the control center. In order to take action, we have already submitted a report to the Yangon Region government," said U Hla Aung, Joint Secretary of the YRTA.

A total of 3,400 first day covers were released, according to the Yangon post office.

"The jay bird stamps which were released today were also issued in 1964 and 1968 for 5 pyas, 10 pyas, and 15 pyas coins. This is the third time the stamps have been issued and they are valued at K100. Special stamps are issued mostly on Myanmar's special days. This year, the stamps have been issued to for constant use," said Daw Si Si Han, Assistant General Manager of the Yangon post office.

As a special offer for the first-day issue of the new stamps, the Yangon post office said it would stamp the postmark and date on the new jay bird postage stamps and first day covers. The Nay Pyi Taw Central Post Office and the Mandalay post office also made similar special offers. The jay bird postage stamps are bought by not only local philatelists, but also foreign philatelists.

"Myanmar stamps are being issued for use as money equivalents to pay postage and registration fees. Stamp collectors usually come and buy the new stamps on the first day of distribution," said the Assistant General Manager of the Yangon post office.—Myint Maung Soe (Translated by Hay Mar)

UN climate talks unraveling, face failure

MADRID (Spain)—A UN climate summit in Madrid was facing failure Saturday after all-night negotiations between countries left them more divided than ever over how to fight global warming and pay for its ravages.

Delegates from rich nations, emerging giants and the world's poorest countries all objected to a draft final text unveiled by host Chile in a botched attempt to find common ground. Following a year of climate-related catastrophes including deadly storms, flooding and wildfires, as well as weekly strikes by millions of young people, negotiations in Madrid were meant to send out a clear signal of governments' willingness to tackle the crisis.

The COP 25 summit also aimed to finalise the rulebook of the landmark 2015 Paris accord, which goes into effect next year.

Instead, delegates on Saturday were exasperated at what they called backwards steps on the key political issue -- how far each nation is willing to go to help stave off climate catastrophe.

"All the references to science have gotten weaker; all references to enhancing the (ambition) have gone, it seems we prefer to look backward rather than looking forward," Carlos Fuller, head of the Association of Small Island States negotiating bloc, said in plenary of the draft COP 25 final text. Even after marathon talks between ministers, observers and delegates told AFP there were still significant splits on a number of issues. Old divisions between rich polluters and developing nations re-emerged in Madrid over who should slash greenhouse gas emissions by how much, and how to pay the trillions needed for humanity to adapt to a climate-added world.

Newer fissures, meanwhile, between poor, climate-vulnerable nations and emerging giants such as China and India -- the world's No.1 and No.4 emitters -- also blocked progress. In Saturday morning's public discussions, additional discord surfaced on how nations should refer to a string of scientific assessments of the state of the planet.

But the bottom-line ask for climate-vulnerable nations remains some signal that all countries are willing to improve on emissions reduction commitments that would see the world careen toward runaway global warming.—AFP ■

France braces for holiday misery as pension strike persists

Security agents monitored packed suburban rail trains at the Gare du Nord station in Paris on Friday, during the ninth day of a public transport strike over pension overhauls. PHOTO: AFP

PARIS (France)—French commuters endured a ninth day of public transport strikes Friday, with little relief expected in coming days as unions vow to keep up their protest against a pension overhaul through the holidays unless the government backs down.

Officials have said they are ready to negotiate, with Education Minister Jean-Michel Blanquer meeting teachers' representatives on Friday to try to stave off another day of class shutdowns.

"It was an intense and frank meeting... but we still need details, and maintain our call to strike on Tuesday," Stephane Crochet of the SE-Unsa teachers' union said.

Unions are hoping for a repeat of 1995, when they forced a rightwing government to back down on pension reforms after three weeks of metro and rail strikes just before Christmas.

The prospect of a protracted standoff has businesses fearing big losses during the crucial year-end festivities, and travelers worried that their holiday plans are compromised.

"Right now it's a catastrophe here, but we're hoping there will be a solution before Christmas," Frederic Masse, a foie gras producer at the sprawling Rungis wholesale food market south of Paris, told AFP on Friday. The capital city was again choked by huge traffic jams as most metro lines remained shut, only a handful of buses and trams were running, and three in four TGV trains were cancelled.

Officials warned Friday of similar disruptions through the weekend, with train operator SNCF saying that on Tuesday it will start warning ticket holders of their chances of travel during the Christmas break that begins next Saturday.

"I'm sick of this, and I won't be able to keep working if it goes on," Zigo Makango, a 57-year-old security agent, told AFP onboard a bus in the Bobigny suburb northeast of Paris. To get home at night Makango said he has to use taxis, but "my boss doesn't reimburse me for that".—AFP ■

Victorious Johnson urges Britain to move past Brexit divide

LONDON (United Kingdom)—Prime Minister Boris Johnson called on Britons to put years of bitter divisions over the country's EU membership behind them as he vowed to use his resounding election victory to finally deliver Brexit next month.

Johnson's ruling Conservatives won their best result for three decades on Thursday night after promising to get Britain out of the European Union on January 31, a new deadline set by Brussels. The snap general election turned into a re-run of the original 2016 EU membership referendum, whose outcome paralysed Britain's leaders and created divisions across society. But in a victory speech in Downing Street on Friday, the former London mayor struck a magnanimous tone, vowing to listen to those who opposed Brexit and lead an inclusive government.

"I urge everyone to find closure and to let the healing begin," he said hours after visiting Queen Elizabeth II to be reappointed prime minister. Johnson staked his political career on the election, which created the possibility of the pro-EU opposition coming to power and calling a new Brexit referendum that could undo the results of the first.

The gambit played off spectacularly, with his Tories securing 365 seats in the 650-seat House of Commons -- their biggest majority since the 1980s heyday of Margaret Thatcher. It also devastated the main opposition Labour party, which suffered its worst result since 1935.—AFP ■

Ayeyawady Region sees rapid infrastructure development

By Kyaw Htike Soe

A NEW embankment was built in Zalun Township, Ayeyawady Region in order to prevent flooding from the river water. The embankment is 7,500 ft in length and was built by three tender winning companies with K990.868 million of the allotted funds in the fiscal year 2018-2019. The project has been 100 per cent finished and maintenance work is being undertaken by staff from the Irrigation and Water Utilization Management Department under the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation. The project enables over 1.25 million people to protect more than 300,000 acres of farmland in Zalun, Kyonpyaw, Yekyi, Danabyu, Kyaunggon, and Ngathainggyoung Townships from flooding.

A rural bridge measuring 45 ft in length and 12 ft in width was constructed in Ngathainggyoung Township, Ayeyawady Region. Construction of the bridge over the Kyein Creek started in April this year and has been opened to public recently. The structure connecting some villages from three village-tracts is an important link to access to the Pathein-Monywa Road and Now, local people can use the new bridge in all seasons with greater ease, thereby helping them to transport locally-made products to other regions in an easy manner. In addition, the bridge is expected to promote development of trade in the region, facilitate swift flow of goods, and reduce transportation charges.

A rural bridge which was built under the Village Development Plan (VDP) being implemented by the Department of Rural Development under the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation has been opened to public in Wakema Township, Ayeyawady Region. It was constructed at a cost of Ks. 15 million contributed under the VDP and donated by local people. Residents from wide and 15 ft high and was constructed mostly from reinforced concrete. Be it what it may, road transportation will no longer be a headache for local people who once experienced travels and access barriers to other areas due to poor road transportation.

The Maubin Industrial Zone, located beside the Yangon-Maubin-Kyaiklat-Pyapon Road and 87 kilometres from Yangon City is being developed with the permission of the Myanmar Investment Commission starting from 10 November 2017. It will have access to Thilawa Port through Toe River and Twantay Canal and is situated in a road network that can connect ten cities including Yangon and Pathein in all seasons. The industrial park is being established on 249.28 acres rials manufacturing plants and warehouses. The three-year project is expected to create 70,000 jobs for local people and is slated to be completed in 2020. The developers are also urged to conduct environmental and social impacts of the project with the aim of lessening negative effects and take grievances of local people into consideration.

A rural bridge on the Ahmar-Pyapon Road in Pyapon District, Ayeyawady Region reopened to pedestrians, vehicles and motorbikes on 30 November. The old bridge over the Seikma Creek collapsed on 9 November due to floodwaters and the Bridge Construction Group — 16 reconstructed the damaged bridge within two weeks for the convenience of local people. Construction of the bridge was completed as schedule. The new bridge is 280 ft long, 16 ft wide and 17 ft high and can withstand up to five tons of weight, according to an official from the construction group. Now, pedestrians, traffic and motorbikes are allowed to traverse the bridge, helping local people travel to Pyapon without any delay. ■ ■ ■

Klopp happy to win ugly as Salah punishes wasteful Watford

LIVERPOOL (United Kingdom) — Liverpool manager Jurgen Klopp hailed his side's resilience to keep winning during a draining December schedule as Mohamed Salah's double beat bottom-of-the-table Watford 2-0 at Anfield to open up an 11-point lead at the top of the Premier League.

The Hornets remain six points adrift of safety, but will wonder how they headed home empty handed after enjoying the vast majority of the chances against the European champions.

Salah produced the two moments of real quality from Klopp's men by finishing off a rapid counter-attack from a Watford corner to open the scoring before flicking home a second a minute from time.

"It's true, it was not the prettiest game, but I am more than happy with that," said Klopp. "At this stage you have to show resilience and I believe we did that today." Liverpool are now seven games into a run of 15 matches in 50 days across five competitions and the strain on Klopp's squad was obvious in a jaded display.

Ko Zaw is absent from school today. He is a student of Grade 6. He was caught cold yesterday afternoon while he was coming back from school under the heavy rain. His umbrella is good and new but it cannot protect him very well from such heavy rain of lower Myanmar. He was soaked with water for about half an hour because he had to come back home on foot. Now, he has got a little fever lying in bed. His mother, Daw Khin Kyaut, is busy to send him to the clinic.

After being taken necessary treatment from the clinic, they come back home, Daw Khin Kyaut feeds her son some soup and gives the first batch of medicine he has to take. Then, Ko Zaw fells asleep for a while. At about noon, he wakes up from the bed. He sees Daw Khin Kyaut is sitting on the bedside. He starts talking to his mother abruptly.

“Mom, our class teacher told us about a strange thing yesterday before school was over. It was about ‘Life’. She said all of us had a life each. Some lives are easy but some hard. She sometimes tells us some things which are not much associated with our lessons. While sleeping for a while, I dreamt of her lecture which was told just before the school was over. I understood some words she told but I did not most of the words. Please, explain to me about life as far as you realize.”

“Son, you are still young but you turn to the age to what you are told. Let me measure your temperature and then I’ll tell you what you want to understand.”

Daw Khin Kyaut looks at the clinical thermometer. The temperature indicates the mark of 100 F.

“Son, your temperature drops a little. Are you easier and more convenient than the state of this morning before going to the clinic?”

“Yeah, Mom, I feel rather better. Let me listen to what you promise.”

“First and foremost, Dear, you have to recognize that there are three things everyone is doing all the time. They are deeds, words and thoughts. Deeds mean Kāya-kamma that is bodily action; words mean Vacī-kamma that is verbal action and thoughts mean Mano-Kamma that is mental action. These mentioned actions one did will never disappear easily. The results of the actions will affect the doers of them. Do you understand? If you do not understand now, you will surely become understood when you get mature. You asked me about the meaning of life which your teacher had explained at school the other day but life can be defined in several various ways. What you have to assume is that life the reflection of one’s actions.”

“I don’t see the artist and his art separate from each other. No matter how excellent his art is, I can’t entirely accept him as an artist if he has got an inferior, cunning and selfish attitude. I happen to loathe his art as well as himself.”

“I am the one who I see the artist and his art separate, I don’t agree with you. No matter how disordered his individual life is, his art should be admired and valued.”

Those above words were the arguments of the two young artists who had already been my ex-pupils. They visited me and they made a chat at my house while I was busy with my old computer. I was somewhat interested in their conversation and strained my ears towards them mending my unopen PC. They continued...

“All people from the world wish for the moon whether it shines or not. An artist is an ordinary human being among all other human beings. If he’s wrong with cash, woman, social activity or moral dignity, it’s just his fault and he’s responsible for them. So, he’ll be blamed and taken action. It’s not acceptable, due to his deeds, words, and thoughts, the nation gets ruined and losses of lives occurs a lot. Hitler is a good example. He was a demon but his paintings were to be regarded as the artifacts.”

“In history, just being wrong in the political opinion and behaviors made many people’s lives and properties lose more than those of the art. I believe many lives are existing due to the art. Due to the kings of dictatorship, Nazism which made the world to be ruled by only one nationality and Communism which made the world to be ruled by only one party, countless of human lives were lost and sacrificed in the world. Therefore, the faults that were committed by the artists cannot be compared with the above such phenomena.”

“In the history of Myanmar literature, look back on the lives of Nat Shin Naung, the king of Taunggu, and Sale U Pone Nya. The process of their lives was just one sector but the art and literature created by them was the other one. Those two sectors were quite different because their literature was a precious inheritance that every Myanmar should value.”

“There have been many artists in the world to be noted as examples. Arthur Rimbaud, the French poet, worked as a trader of slaves at his time. Knut Hamsun who was a Noble Prize winner (1920) and Norwegian poet was a supporter of Nazism. Although his opinion and behavior were not accepted by many people, his poems and artifacts could not be denied. I don’t mean that only the artist who has got good moral conduct must be accepted. There were many masterpieces and classical artifacts but we could not even know the name of the creators. Therefore we could not contemplate their moral conduct. However, evaluation of a kind of artifacts is just associated with those things not the personal essence of the creator.”

“I’d like to simile the life of an artist who can create excellent work of art with the moon. All the people of the world want, love and admire the moon. They wish for the moon whether it shines or not. They say ‘Three-day moon as an eyebrow’, ‘My full-moon’, ‘My love will bloom only when the moonlight sprays on it’ etc. These are the real emotion of the people from the earth who stay away from the moon with a distance of about 240,000 miles. In fact, this emotion leads to the pleasure, happiness, and peace of man. When one asks whether the emotion is Right or Wrong, there is an only answer ‘Right’.”

“However, if we go to the moon to take shelter in its bosom, the emotion mentioned above will entirely disappear one by one. It is not possible for a human to live on the moon due to its adverse conditions such as no oxygen, no water, no weather, extreme temperatures, etc. The emotions such as pleasure, happiness, and peace which are felt from the earth by man will surely disappear.”

“In fact, the emotion felt from the earth is right and so is the real situation of the moon. Therefore, making the example to some artists and their artifacts with the moon will be the most compatible.”

One of my ex-pupils made his friend a very long explanation in order to understand his opinion.

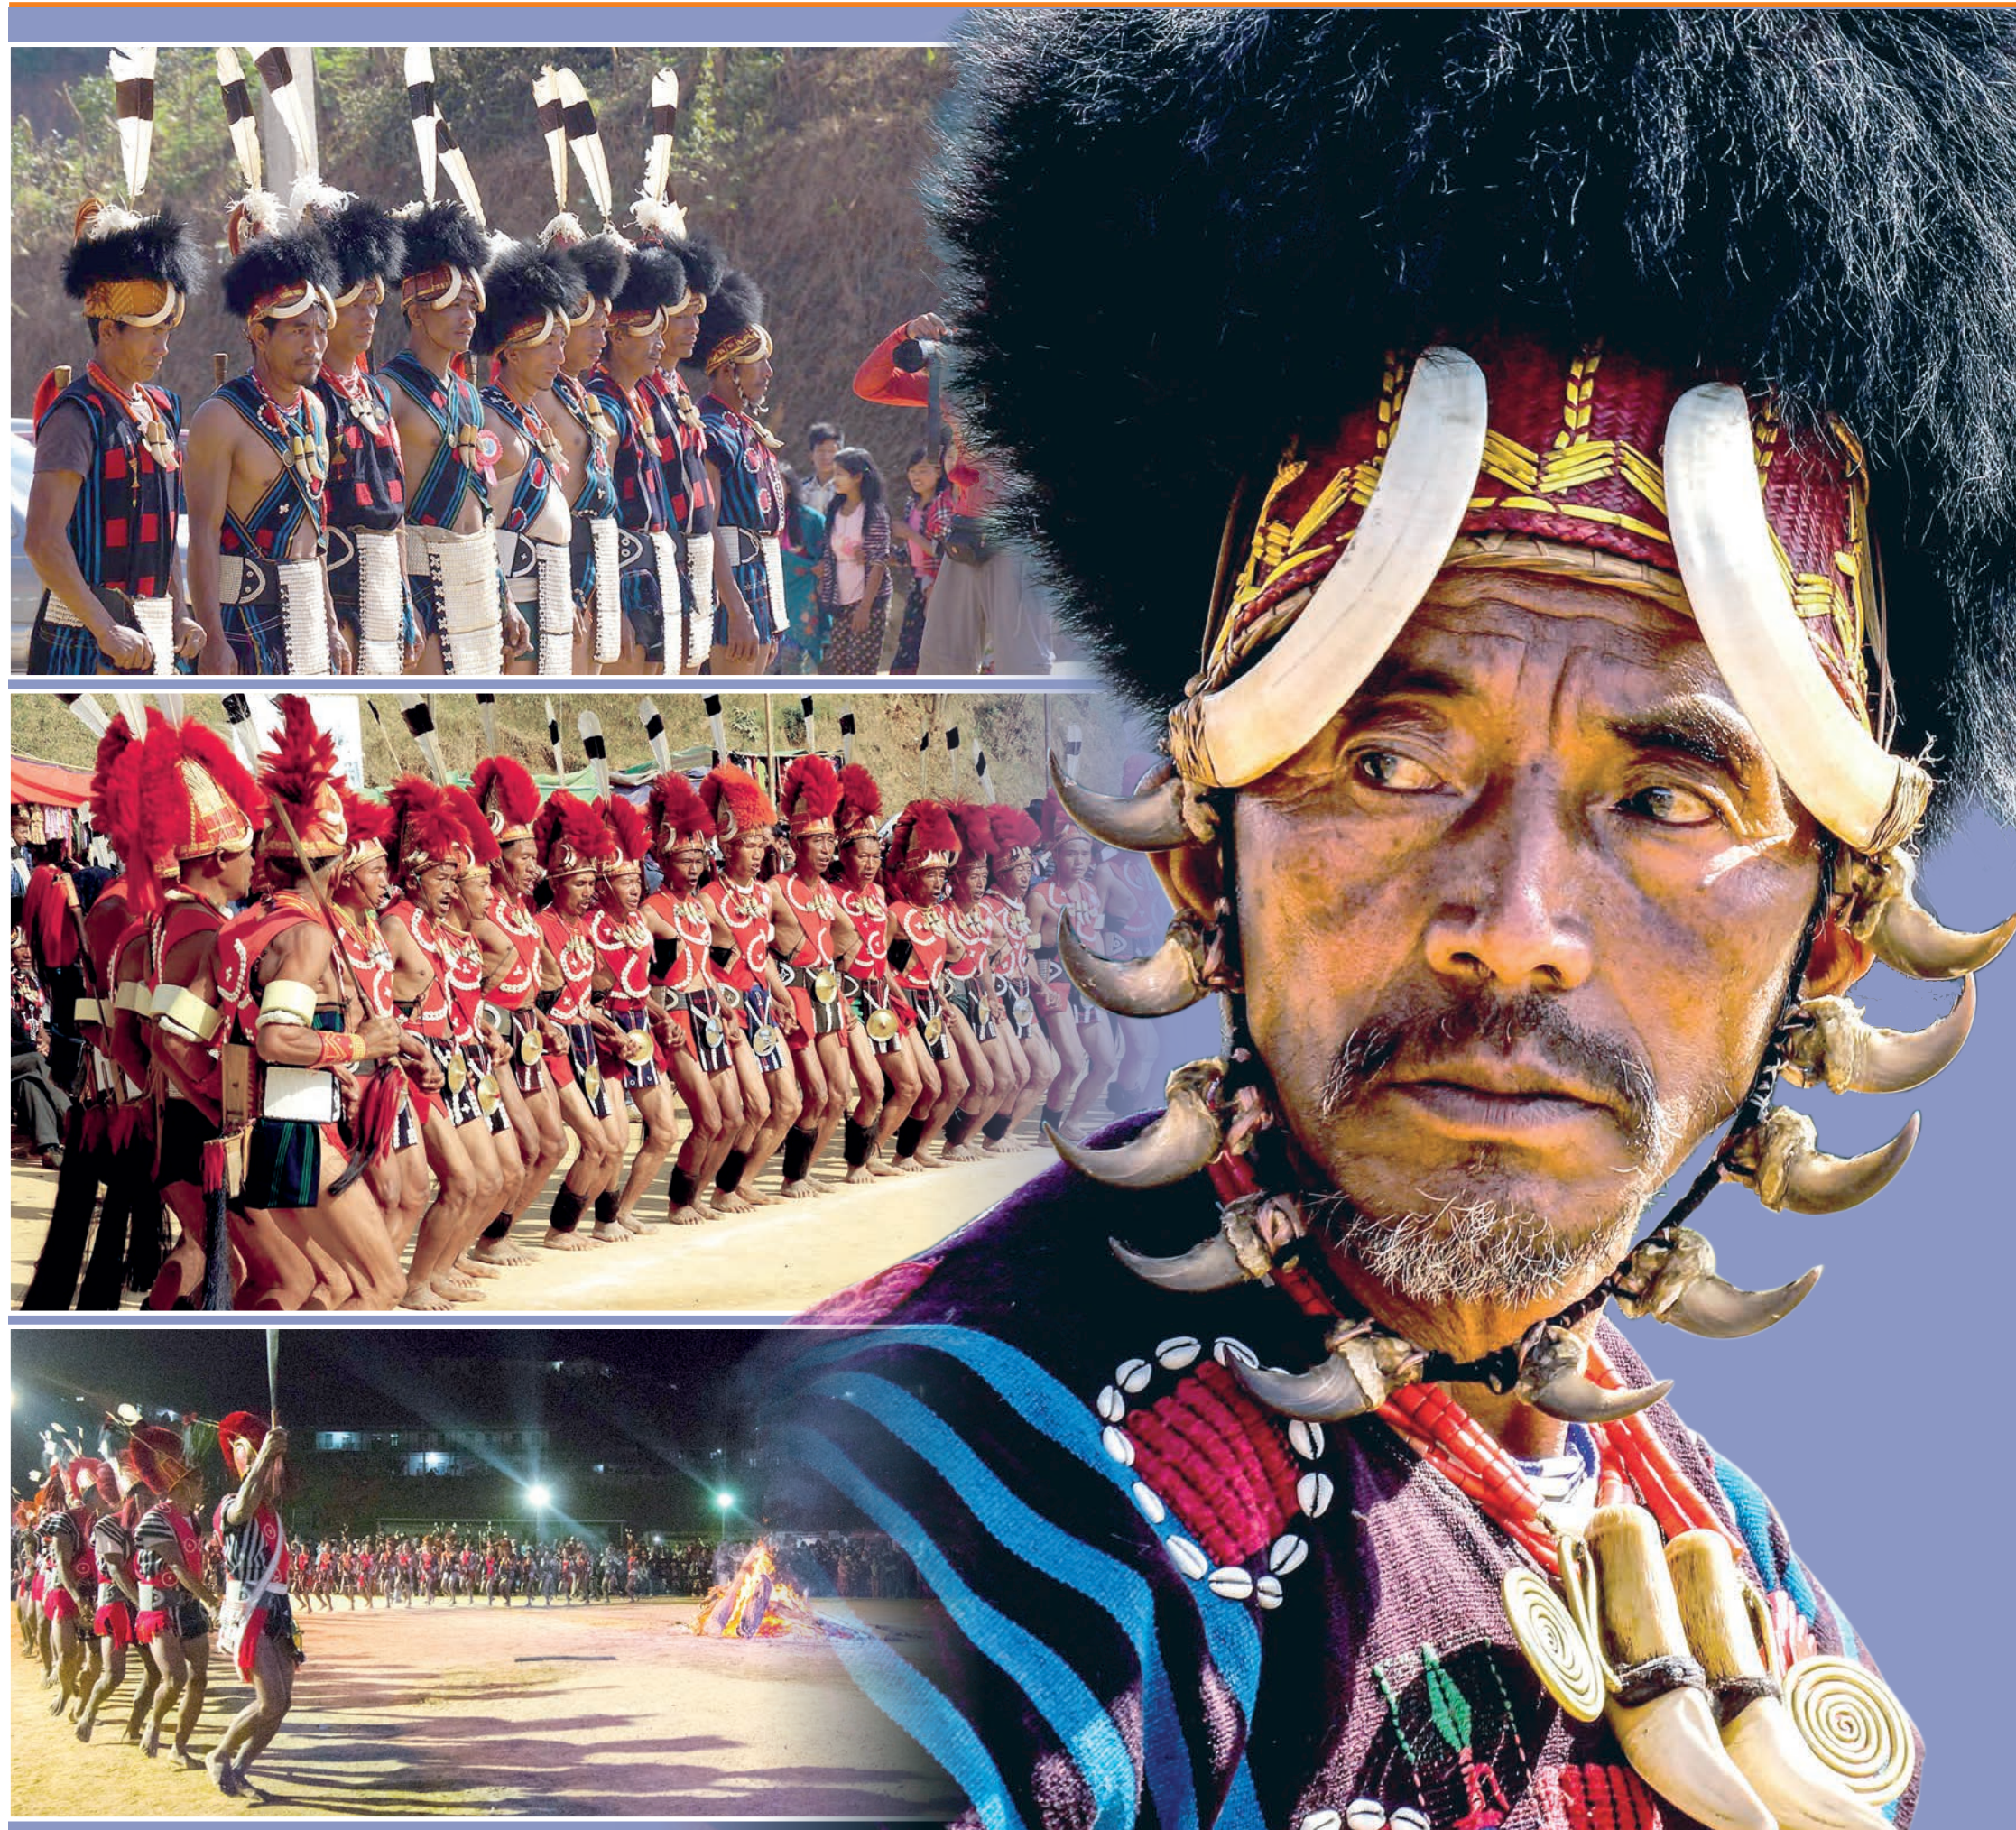

The other shook his head saying, “As for me, if I happen to hate one, I hate not only him but also his artifact, his family, his dwelling, the road he lives on...”

Marching to victory together with Naga people at Naga New Year Festival

By Chan Tha (Meiktila)

“Ah-Hay”.. “Ah-Hay”- “Ah-Hay!!”, the introduction of a Naga ethnic song from a group of Naga men woke me up while I was resisting the morning’s severe cold winter in the hilly region of Naga, as I stayed under my blanket.

Naga men and women were busy in the early morning in January last year, celebrating their new year festival. It was the first time I visited the Naga New Year Festival in Leshi in Sagaing Region.

I quickly washed my face, finished my breakfast, took my camera and walked over to the area where they celebrate the major day of the festival. Naga men wore traditional ethnic hand-woven dresses, along with typical ceremonial ornaments, including beads of claws of bear as a strap, ivory armlets, necklaces made of tiger teeth, straps made of shells, leather shield, traditional spears and knives.

I found that they were preparing to erect a ceremonial pole. Though this was my first visit, I realized that they would dance in groups to start the festival. Representatives from different ethnic tribes arrived in town before the ceremony to celebrate the festival.

I had the chance to talk to a man waiting to participate in a performance. He said he was from a Makuri Naga tribe.

“To arrive here, we spent five nights in the mountains,” said the man. They trekked continually up and down hills.

The annual festival is held alternately in Leshi, Lahe and Nanyun.

The 2020 festival will be held in Lahe on 15 January.

The festival has attracted local and foreign travellers, as well as photographers, allowing them to experience the traditions and customs of the Naga ethnic people.

The special meal for the visitors is Gayal meat and traditional liquor made of rice.

For Nagas, they can receive meat and liquor for free when they visit other villages, after they loudly call “Ah-Hay”.. “Ah-Hay”- “Ah-Hay!” three times.

“How about one or two times?” I asked him. He replied, “No food. No liquor.”

He also explained the meaning of Ah-Hay, which is “Let’s march to victory.”

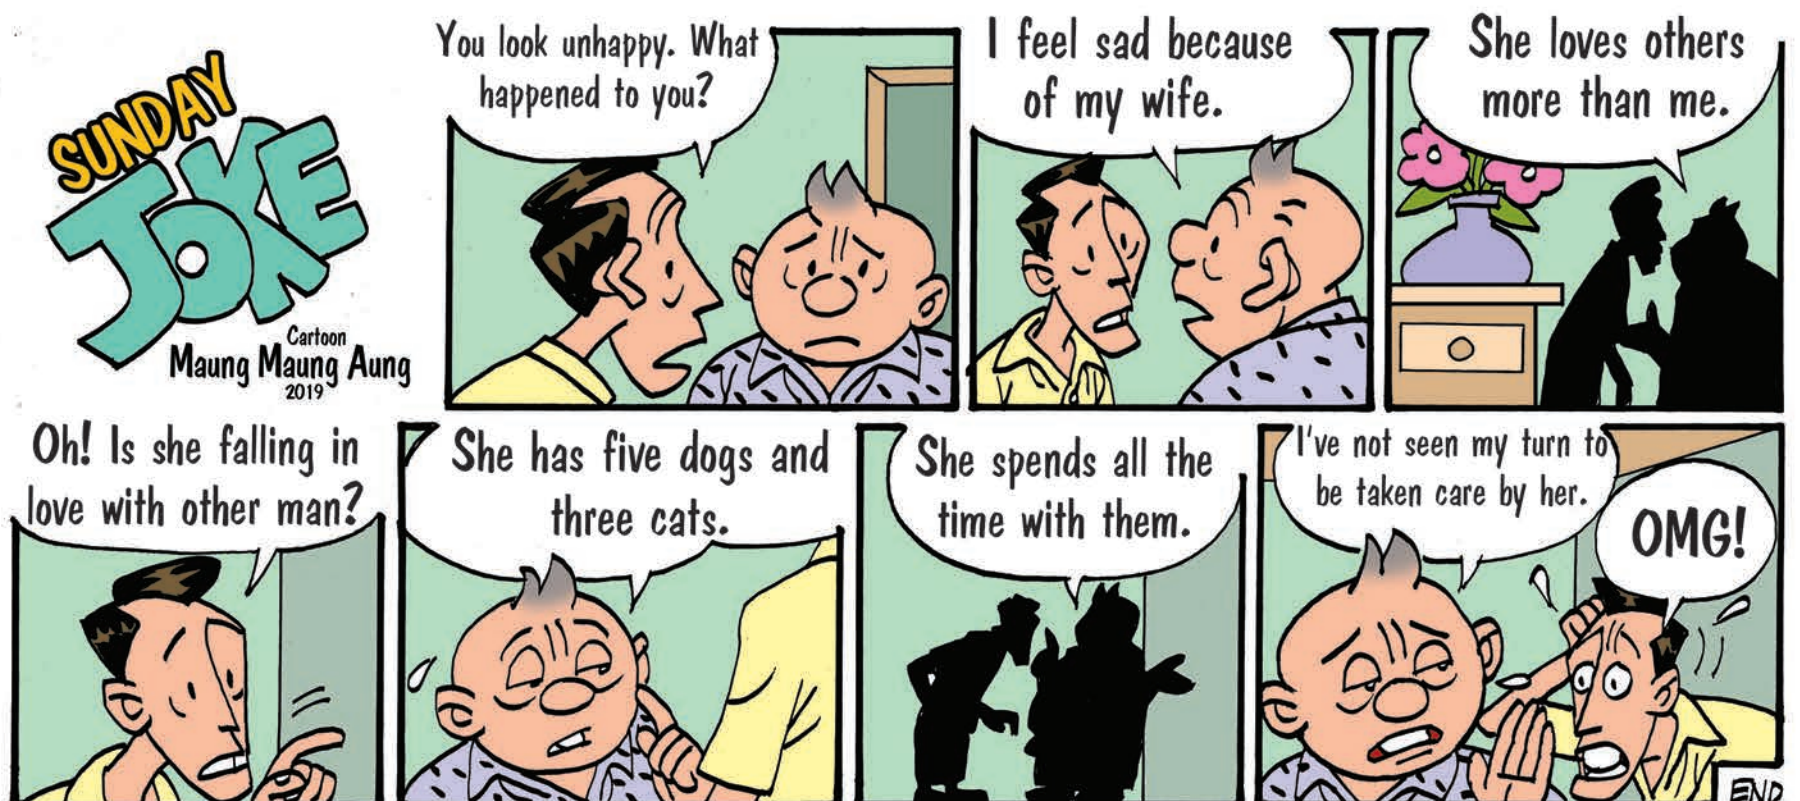

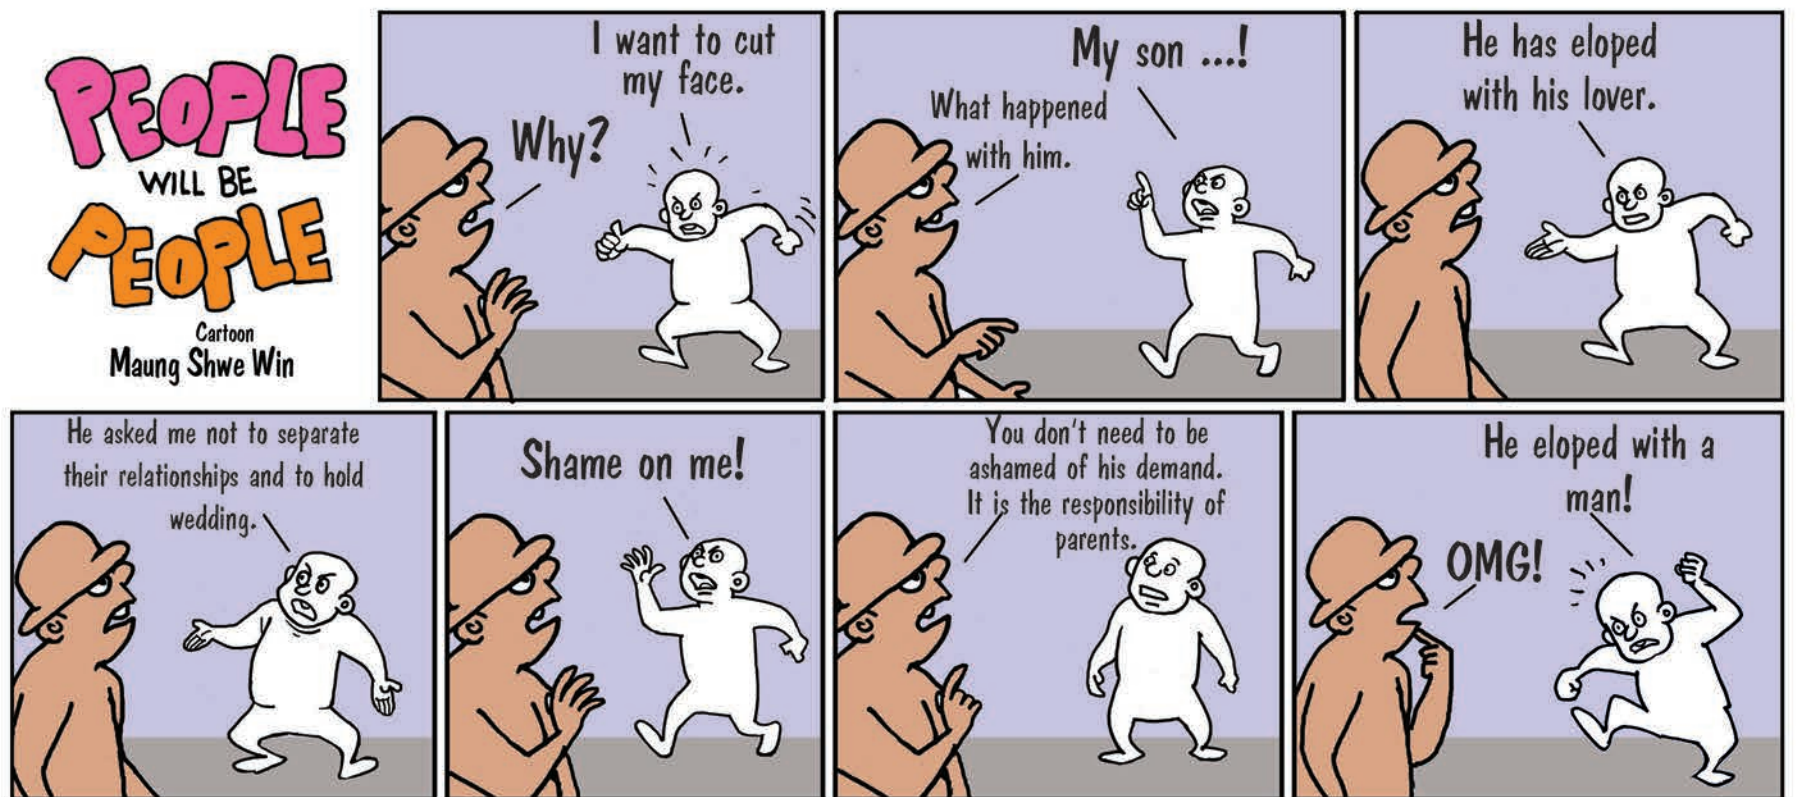

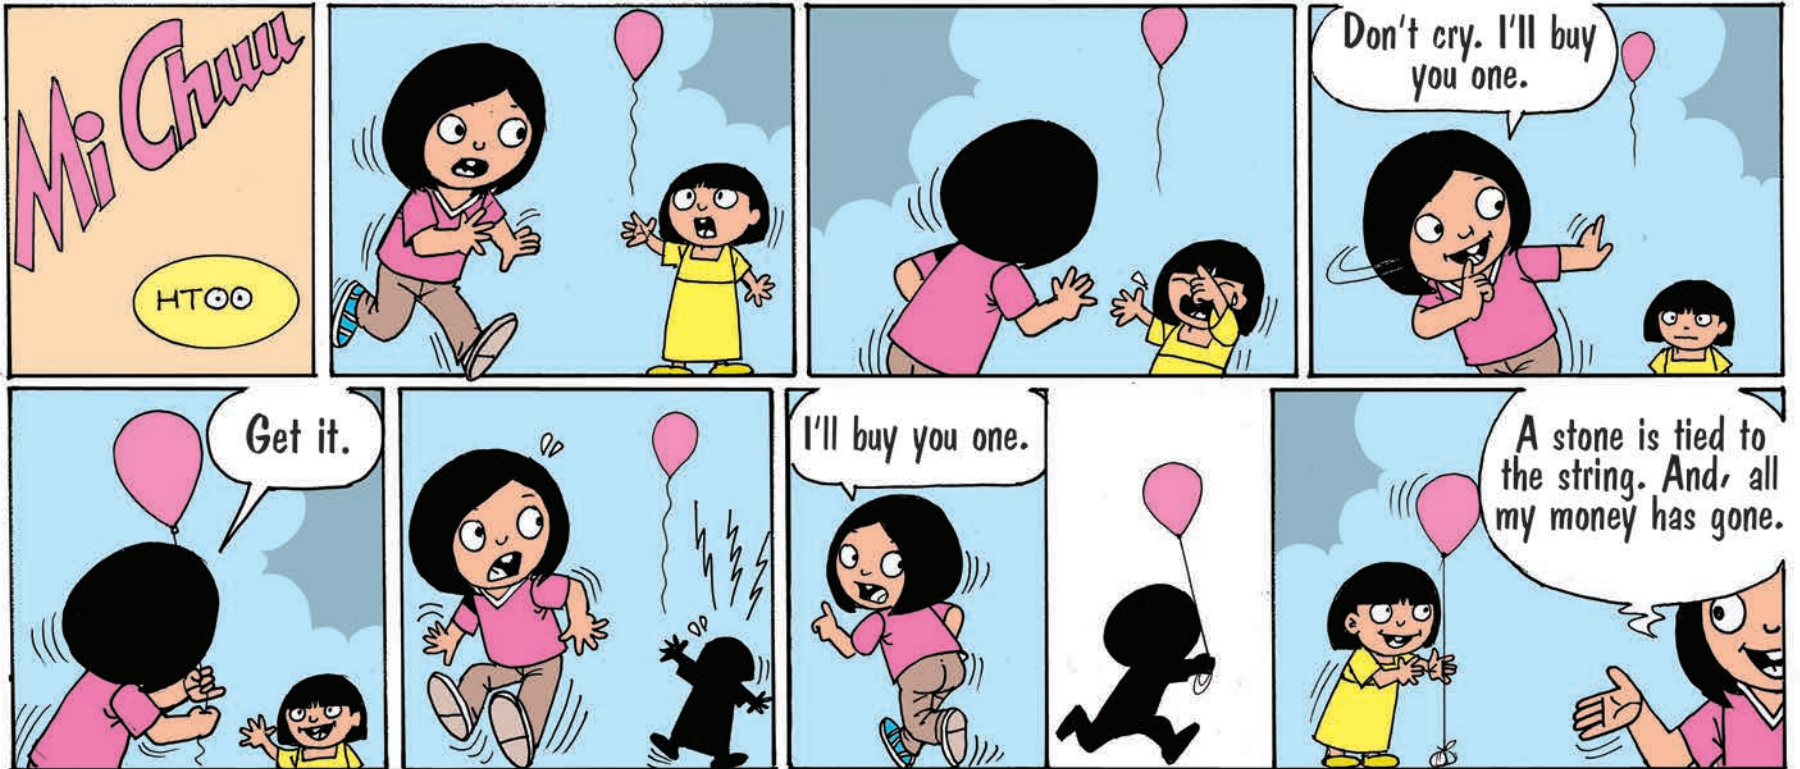

Let’s meet in Lahe in January to hear “Ah-Hay” “Ah-Hay” “Ah-Hay”.

The importance of having kind and loving relationships with people around us

By Phyu Min
BA (English); Dip in ELTM; Dip in English.

A relationship is composed of many things: friendship, intellectual compatibility and love. Love is the glue that keeps the relationship strong and solid. A relationship without love cannot continue to exist. Thus, we should build relationships with people around us with love. There are different kinds of relationships that we can build with the people around us. They are a family relationship, a business relationship, a doctor-patient relationship, a parent-child relationship, a teacher-student relationship, etc. So, it is important to have kind and loving relationship with people around us at all levels of society so that we can build a peaceful society.

As human beings, we need to have kindness and love. If we do not have those qualities in our heart, we will not be much different from animals. Animals do not have those qualities. When a dog sees another dog, the first one shows its teeth, not kindness. When a cat meets another cat, the former tries to give the latter a scratch, not love. When people meet each other, they give a smile or exchange hellos. When there are four sublime states of mind namely metta or love, compassion or kindness, sympathetic joy and equanimity among human beings, the world is a very peaceful and pleasant place to live in. Having kind and loving relationships with others is a sign of these four sublime states of mind. Although there may be different relationship between different groups of people such as parents and children, teachers and pupils, employers and employees, the basic need is the same: kind and loving relationship.

Having kind and loving relationships with people around us is very important to us in order to set up a caring and humane society. In fact, we should start a loving relationship among the family members to enjoy a happy family by helping one another. Next, we should set up a loving relationship with our neighbours. We must be kind, friendly and helpful to our neighbours to build a close rapport with them. If we have a loving relationship with our neighbours, we can live peacefully in our surroundings. Then, we should create a working relationship with our colleagues with love. This means we should have a loving relationship that is appropriate for people working together. If we have a loving relationship among our colleagues, we can start our daily work actively and end it happily. As we are able to build a happy atmosphere in our business, we can carry on a profitable business. Not only that, we should build loving relationships between teachers and students to enjoy good education, doctors and patients to enjoy good health, employers and employees to run a good business, the government and the people to build a peaceful, pleasant and prosperous nation.

In conclusion, kind and loving relationship is very important everywhere in the world. It is the key to success. It is the door of a happy world. It is a magic wand. It is an invisible string that binds human beings to be able to live happily in society. If we have loving relationships with people around us at every level of society, we can enjoy a happy family, a peaceful environment, a profitable business, good education, good health and a developed nation. Of course, it goes without saying that having kind and loving relationships with people around us play an important part in our daily lives to build a civilized society.

Daw Khin Kyaut paused for a while after her long explanation about life. Ko Zaw was silent often blinking his eyes. The mother knows that her son does not seem understood in her words. She thinks deeply about how to explain to gain her son's comprehension. At last, a sudden light dawns upon her mind and says...

"Dear, you seem you do not understand it very well. If so, I am going to tell you a story that highlights life that you really want to know. Listen to me carefully..."

Once upon a time, a man and his son were going through the forest hills. Suddenly, the boy fell down on the trail and screamed with pain, "Aah!" Surprisingly, he heard the same voice from the mountain, "Aahh!" Curiously, the boy shouted, "Who is this?" But the voice replied the same, "Who is this?" He got angry, and shouted again, "You are stupid!" And again the voice replied the same, "You are stupid!"

Annoyed by this, the boy asked his father, "Father, What is going on? Who is this?" The Father replied, "Son, Pay attention". The father shouted, "You are very nice". And the voice responded the same, "You are very nice!" The father again shouted, "Thank you". And the voice again responded the same, "Thank you!" The son was very surprised but he still could not understand what was happening.

The father explained, "Son, people call it resonance, but this is the truth of life. Life is a reflection of your actions. What you will give to others, you will receive the same in return."

After telling the story, Daw Khin Kyaut seems rather tired looking through the window and makes a deep breath. Then she looks at her son and says, "Son, what we give to others, life gives us the same in return. Every life is not an accident or a coincidence, but it is the shadow of their actions."

"Profuse thanks, Mom, I understand it very well," replied Ko Zaw.
