People need to look after children to evade utilization in frontline of riotous protests

As such, international organizations like UNICEF, which takes exceptional care of children, should object and protest the children against exploitation.

MEMBERS of NLD and its extremist followers commit incitements through various ways and means for the people to reach the roads, utilizing children who are immature, innocent in politics in the frontline of riotous protests.

Moreover, regrettable incidents were found that they incite those children to participate in violent acts holding arms used to cause injuries at many people, mobilizing them with cash assistance and awards and utilizing them in the frontline of riots with abuse of glue smell and use of any stimulant drugs to be free from frightening.

As such, international organizations like UNICEF, which takes exceptional care of children, should object and protest the children against exploitation, and people need to look after their children not to be fallen under political opportunists and not to derail into wrong ways. —MNA

Great Cormorant, Storks, Spoonbills sojourn at summer paddy fields in NyaungU

WHEN the hydro-powered river water pumping projects in NyaungU Township of Mandalay Region distribute water to summer paddy fields, about 500 birds including Great Cormorant, Storks and Spoonbills inhabit there, said farmer U Tin Soe who uses water from Thu Khaung Te river water pumping project.

There are five river water pumping projects in NyaungU and these birds have not lived there for ten years. When the water is supplied to these farmlands, the birds are supportive for the farmers as they eat snails that destroy the paddy and also for the ecosystem, according to U Shwe Htay Aung, warden of Lawkananda Wildlife Sanctuary.

According to the bird experts, the Storks and Spoonbills are infertile, migratory birds as well as permanent residents, he added.

The white Spoonbills can be seen in many places of the country including Taninthayi and Ayeyawady regions and Rakhine coastal areas except for the northern regions.

The Great Cormorants are the native birds that reproduce between October and January. According to the records, they breed at Sittaung River basin and can be seen in the southern parts of the country. The Storks, Spoonbills and white Spoonbills live in Pakokku Township in the third weeks of February and hundreds of birds live in Lawkananda Wildlife Sanctuary areas. They migrate to summer paddy fields when the water from Thu Khaung Te, Kyauk Kuu, Ngathayouk and Lawkananda river water pumping projects is distributed to the paddy fields.—Ko Htein, KPD/GNLM

Enjoy peaceful, prosperous life in the legal fold

THE Constitution is a soul for the State and the people. Not only provisions stipulated in the Constitution but also existing laws help protect the rights of people. Hence, people living in a legal fold can possess peaceful and prosperous lives.

Already-enacted laws beyond the status of books are much beneficial to the people. On the other hand, people need to live in line with the law deserved to enjoy their rights. The value of rights depends on those who utilize such rights. People should effectively defend encroachment on their rights by exercising the Constitution and other approved laws.

Anyone should not exercise unlawful ways and means. People need to totally avoid acts on demand by crowds with chanting, undisciplined shouting, violent attacks, arresting, atrocity and killing wrongly identified as “public way” under the influence of unscrupulous persons. In fact, these acts are in a “naughty way” only.

With regard to the actual public way of independent citizens, public representatives legally elected through a genuine, fair election make demands, hold discussions for adopting decisions, promulgate necessary laws and pass amendments through the official Hluttaw, seeking decisions of legally established courts under the laws for solving the losses.

Despite stably performing its tasks in accord with the law in the first week after assuming the State responsibility, the Tatmadaw has been facing riots and protests incited by NLD members and supporters since the second week. Currently, rioters break laws in acts of anarchic mobs by holding destructive weapons.

Riotous protests transform themselves into rebellions by committing acts of raiding residential buildings of innocent people, factories and industries in addition to State administrative buildings, police stations and judicial buildings.

and industries in addition to State administrative buildings, police stations and judicial buildings. In addition, they set fire to factories and industries built with local and foreign investments and violently attack and kill security forces with arms. The Tatmadaw, therefore, unavoidably took effective measures of security, the rule of law, and community peace and tranquility.

Although many riots are staged across the nation, martial law was imposed on six townships of Yangon Region facing deterioration. Security forces unavoidably crackdown on those who committed danger to security units and people wishing to live peacefully.

That is why people should peacefully live in the legal fold without wrongly applying the public way.

A patriotic writer who wrote ‘Beloved Country’

By Maung Hlaing

IT was 17 March in 2007. Braving the scorching heat of Anyar, the Town Hall of Pakokku was bristling with the literary audience. We, indeed, were celebrating the Prize Presentation Ceremony of Pakokku U Ohn Pe Literary Awards at the Pakokku Town Hall where Sayama Khin Swe Oo was awarded Lifetime Award for Literary Achievement.

As the award giving ceremony was to be held alternately in Pakokku and Yangon, the year 2007 was set apart for holding it at Pakokku. Here, let me say something about the Pakokku U Ohn Pe Literary Award. It was founded on 31 May 1992 with the donation of U Ohn Pe of Pakokku. It was a Literary foundation, managed by the then Myanmar Writers and Journalists Association (Now Myanmar Writers Association: MWA). Five categories of literature in manuscript form were to be selected from among those competed.

Besides, a ‘Lifetime Award for Literary Achievement was to be presented for the most deserving writer who had dedicated his or her lifetime to the literary activities. The Awards Selection Committee was formed with eminent scholars and writers to select the most deserving literary works of each genre. In those days, as I was Chief Editor of Sarpay Beikman, I was taken on as the secretary of the committee. Being the secretary of the committee, all the miscellaneous work was getting on top of me.

When Sayama Khin Swe Oo spoke words of thanks after receiving the prize, she said what she felt in her heart and how she struggled in the whirlpool of literature. This is how I remember her best-speaking words of thanks at the literary prize giving ceremony held at the Pakokku Town Hall. Since then, I have been away from her except sporadic meeting with her at some literary occasions.

Again in 2013, Khin Swe Oo was honoured with the ‘National Lifetime Award for Literary Achievement’ for 2012. She won the award simply because she had dedicated herself to promoting Myanmar literature in ‘Lifetime Award for Literary Achievement was to be presented for the most deserving writer who had dedicated his or her lifetime to the literary activities. The Awards Selection Committee was formed with eminent scholars and writers to select the most deserving literary works of each genre.

As a matter of fact, Khin Swe Oo was a veteran writer as well as a prolific authoress. However, she produced only literary works of high aesthetics. As she won the love of fellow writers, she was affectionately called Ma Oo, Ma Ma Oo and Amay Oo.

Khin Swe Oo was born of U Ba Swe (patriotic writer Sayagyi Maha Swe) and Daw Kyi Kyi in Sagaing of Sagaing Region on 1 December 1933. She was the elder of the two daughters. Her father, Maha Swe was the writer whose pen-name was familiar to all readers of Myanmar novels. And Maha Swe was a writer with that rare gift of being both entertaining and captivating to his readers.

According to the ‘Beloved Country’ (translated by Saya Aung Myo Min) which won the National Literary Award for English Language genre, her name was Daw Khin Oo. However, she inserted ‘Swe’ into her pen-name to honour her father and began writing articles from the age of 12.

Between 1934 and 1942, she received her primary education from Myoma Girl Students High School (Now B.E.H.S No.3) in Dagon Township. She pursued her basic education at St. John’s Convent High School

(Now B.E.H.S No.2) in Latha Township. She passed the matriculation examination in 1951. Sayama Khin Swe Oo continued her academic studies a Rangoon (Yangon) and Mandalay Arts and Science Universities. In 1956, she received her B.A. Degree from Mandalay Arts and Science University. Again in 1967, she won her B.Ed. Degree.

While the entire Myanmar was under the British imperialist yoke, Khin Swe Oo played a leading role in the Myanmar Youths Sports Team and took an active part in the Girls Sports Movement in 1946. At that time, she was only 13 years old. She did so because of her patriotism she inherited from her father Maha Swe. It was the patriotism that made her the Secretary of the Magazines Association of the Rangoon Arts and Science University. Then she became the co-editor of Myanmarsar Magazine.

To be exact, Khin Swe Oo entered the literary world in 1946 when she was only 13. She started to write short stories and articles for Children’s Corner in the Thandaw Sint Newspaper, using the pen-name of Khin Swe Oo. Because of the efforts she made, she became the editor for Children’s Corner of the paper in the same year.

In 1950, after contributing an article under the title of ‘ကလေးတို့အဖေ’ (Father of Children) to the Shu-ma-wa illustrated magazine, Khin Swe Oo decided to take the plunge and entered the arena of magazine. At the age of 28 in 1961, her first novel ‘တို့တိုင်းငွာနီ’ (Beloved Country) came out. (Although this novel did not win the national literary award in those days, the translated work (by Aung Myo Min) won the National Literary Award for English Language genre for 2015.)

Indeed, the novel ‘တို့တိုင်းငွာနီ’ (Beloved Country) is a classic novel and masterpiece of Khin Swe Oo. In the introduction of ‘Beloved Country’, the translator says:-

“Tou Tain hta ni (Beloved Country) was first published in 1961 and instantly became a best seller. The book stands today as a modern classic in Myanmar. The Myanmar novel has been reprinted six times up to now. A Japanese writer had translated the novel into Japanese and has been printed twice in Japan. A Korean writer had also tried his hand in translating this novel into Korean but had not succeeded yet.”

Furthermore, she contributed so many short stories and articles to the periodicals and magazines such as Myawady, Ngwe Tar Yi, Shu-ma-wa, and Thway Thauk which were all the rage among the reading public.

Among her famous works, the novels

‘မပန်သာသည်’ as ‘ကေသီဦး’ (Kay Thi Oo) ‘ပုလဲငုံ’ (Pale Ngon), ‘ဆူးနှစ်ဆူး’ (Hsu-hna-hsu), ‘မိုးနှင့်ရေ’ (Moe-hnint-yay), ‘ပျံသာပျံပါ ငှက်ရွှေဝါ’ as ‘ပျံသာပျံပါ ထက်အာကာ’ (Pyan-thar-pyan-par Htet Arkar), ‘နေခြည်ဖြာတော့ နွေးလိမ့်မယ်’ as ‘မောင့်အချစ် သီရိ’ (Mount Achit Thiri) were adapted to screen and given applause by movie fans.

In 1963, her another literary work of ‘ငြိမ်းချမ်းပါစေ’ (May be peaceful), the collected short stories, came out and it won the National Literary Award (Fourth Prize).

While she was writing, she worked as a Senior Assistant Teacher at the St. John’s Convent from 1958 to 1967. After ten years service as a SAT, she retired from service and completely dedicated herself to literary activities. In 1954, she was married to U Sein Than, an Agricultural Bank Manager; and they got only daughter.

In 1985, she published the ‘စံပယ်ဖြူ’ (Sabae Phyu, or White Jasmine) Magazine and she herself worked as an editor and gave birth to so many writers who are now taking an active part in the literary field today. Like her masterpiece ‘Beloved Country’ (Which was translated into Japanese in 1973), some of her short stories were also translated into Japanese.

Among her famous works, the novels ‘မပန်သာသည်’ as ‘ကေသီဦး’ (Kay Thi Oo) ‘ပုလဲငုံ’ (Pale Ngon), ‘ဆူးနှစ်ဆူး’ (Hsu-hna-hsu), ‘မိုးနှင့်ရေ’ (Moe-hnint-yay), ‘ပျံသာပျံပါ ငှက်ရွှေဝါ’ as ‘ပျံသာပျံပါ ထက်အာကာ’ (Pyan-thar-pyan-par Htet Arkar), ‘နေခြည်ဖြာတော့ နွေးလိမ့်မယ်’ as ‘မောင့်အချစ် သီရိ’ (Mount Achit Thiri) were adapted to screen and given applause by movie fans. The short stories of ‘ခေတ်’ (Khit) that appeared in Myawady, ‘ကျောက်ရိုင်း’ (Kyauk-yine) in Ngwe Tar Yi and ‘အမျိုးသားစိတ်’ (Amyothar-seik) in Shu-ma-wa magazines were broadcast as radio plays. Although she was busy with producing such literary works, she did not fail to take part in literary activities. She participated in the Paper Reading Session on Short Stories conducted by Sarpay Beikman, Ministry of Information.

As a gesture of acknowledging Sayama Khin Swe Oo who had dedicated to promoting Myanmar literature during her life, she became a deserving recipient of the Pakokku U Ohn Pe Lifetime Award for Literary Achievement for 2006 (in 2007). Again in 2013, she was honoured with the National Lifetime Award for Literary Achievement for 2012.

In her lifetime, Khin Shwe Oo wrote over 300 short stories, 10 novellas, over 200 articles and over 50 novels.

While she was as busy as a bee in the sphere of literature, she suffered from pulmonary fibrosis. Death came to her and she succumbed on 27 March, 2019 at the age of 87. No more would she be around to render her literary services to the country. No more would she be able to impart her literary knowledge and valuable experiences to her fellow writers.

Men are mortal. So goes the saying. We all will surely die one day. No exception. Without saying good-bye, Khin Swe Oo, a patriotic writer, left her ‘Beloved Country’ for good.

She died. But ‘Khin Swe Oo’ never dies in the hearts of reading audience. Likewise, her ‘Beloved Country’ is still alive.

Five youths bound for area of ethnic armed organization arrested

ACTING on the tip-off of a dutiful citizen that youths who involved in the riotous protests would attend the course of explosion in connection with an ethnic armed organization, security forces take special security measures in respective areas.

In so doing, security forces inspected a Toyota Vios with number plate 4P/7429 driven from Nay Pyi Taw to Yangon by U Soe Moe, son of U San Htay of Meiktila, at the corner of Yangon-Mandalay Highway and Inwa Bank road in Toungoo at about 12:30 pm on 31 March. They arrested Daw Shwe Zin Aye, 38, daughter of U San Shwe, from Meiktila and U Tayar Soe, 21, son of U Soe Min from Meiktila, from the vehicle.

The security forces also inspected KIA Picanto with number plate 6Q/2462 driven by U Zaw Zaw, son of U Kyin Thaung from Myingyan in front of Pawtawmu Pagoda on Yangon-Mandalay Highway at about 12:40 pm. They found his wife Daw Theint Thanda Hnin, 38, daughter of U Myo Thet, aboard the vehicle together mer personnel who joined the CDM movements, exploded the explosives on test and committed social punishment against teachers who did not join the CDM. They contacted U Htet Aung, 52, old 88 generation student (his father name and address are under scrutiny), and U Myint Soe, whose rank from an ethnic armed organization is under scrutiny.

Preparations are being made to take action against them under Section 505 (b) in the case of State sedition. Efforts are being made to arrest a chain of suspects U Htet Aung and U Myint Soe, as quickly as possible. — MNA

Rioters accelerate terrorist acts across country

Pieces of handmade mine seen after attack on security forces.

ACCORDING to a statement from the Myanmar Police Force, the rioters have accelerated acts of sabotage in accordance with the methods used by the terrorist groups, across the country.

Yesterday, they destroyed state-owned buildings, railways, bridges, public transformers, vehicles used by security forces with handmade grenades and mines in some townships in regions/states.

On 1 April, two men riding a motorbike arrived at the Anti-Human Trafficking Police Unit in Kanpya ward in Myeik town at 7:50 pm and threw a fire bottle on the roof of the building. However, the fire was extinguished and no one was injured.

On 2 April, a handmade grenade was exploded on the left side of the Shan State Hluttaw around 4:40 am. The blast caused three small holes in the wall of the Hluttaw fence.

On the same day, one handmade mine transformed as a time-bomb was found in two suspicious bags near the fence of the Department of Road Transport on Thanthumar road in Thingangyun Township at 8:50 am. Similarly, military engineers had to clear the handmade mine set up at No (62) bridge on the railway between Bago Station and Shwe Hlae Station, Bago Township.

Moreover, there were bomb explosions in Lewe Township, Mawlamyine Township, and Lashio Township but no one was injured.

Farmers from Kyaukse grow okra for extra family income

THE farmers in Tadalae ward, Kyaukse town, Mandalay region are growing okra on a manageable scale to earn family extra income daily.

"I have four acres of farmland. We could not grow the paddy because those farmlands are sandy soil and are located next to the Zaw Gyi river. I have six family members, and I need to use the farmlands effectively to have family income. Now, I have cultivated seasonal crops such as okra, dregea volubilis, eggplant, rosselle, radish and safflower. But, I have cultivated okra for one acre. We don't have to spend the labour charges because family members help grow those seasonal crops. However, the cultivation of the seasonal crops cost over K100,000. Okra takes over 60 days in total from cultivating to harvest, both in the dry season and in winter. We harvest every two days at first, and then, as more plants mature, we harvest every day. About 12 visses of okra have yielded on the first harvest. As there is abundant yield, we have got about 60 visses. We are selling our okra in both retail and wholesale. The wholesale price of okra is K600 per viss. The okra crop provides extra money to contribute to their family's needs," said U Aung Thin, an okra grower from Tadalae ward.

Okra is a water-loving plant that needs watering to keep the soil moist. The okra seeds are planted two feet apart. The nursery plant needs to be weeded and given fertilizer to grow the plants well. The plant needs to be sprayed with the pesticide if it is necessary.

Okra or commonly known as lady's finger, is a widely consumed vegetable. It can be fried, pickled or grilled. This green veggie is filled with phenol and flavonoid. Consuming okra can help people fight against cancer and reduce stress and cure kidney and liver diseases and diabetes. People with a high blood glucose level should definitely include okra in their daily diets. — Thet Maung (Kyaukse)/GNLM

Tamu border still requested to close

THE Tamu town border area in the Sagaing region between Myanmar and India is still requested to close, said U Kyaw Win Oo, the Tamu District administrator.

"We have submitted a request to the divisional level authorities to close the borders in the area between Myanmar and India at the end of March. But, we haven't got any information yet. We have also requested that if the authorities open the borders for some reasons, they should open the crossings only to load the cargos," he said.

Myanmar mainly exports to India foodstuffs, personal goods, kitchenware, fruits and vegetables, beans, onion, garlic and areca nuts through the Tamu border route while importing from India foodstuff, clothes, electronic products, motorbikes, cotton yarn, non-alloy steel and other construction materials.

Myanmar government has closed the bilateral border crossing between Myanmar and India in Tamu town from 14 to the end-March. Now, we have requested divisional level authorities to close the border checkpoint again.

Nearly 60 per cent of the local residents from Tamu town depend upon the border for their livelihood. According to the locals, the Myanmar-India border crossings have hampered the flow of trade for the residents.

There are two Myanmar-India border crossings in Tamu township No 1 checkpoint and No 2 checkpoint. Border trade between Myanmar and India hit US$145 million as of 19 March in the current financial year 2020-21 ending September, said a statistical report of Myanmar's Commerce Ministry. — Lulay/GNLM

As air travel picks up,
United says it is hiring pilots

UNITED Airlines announced Thursday it will immediately start hiring pilots, beginning with a group of 300, to be ready to meet growing demand for air travel.

“With vaccination rates increasing and travel demand trending upwards, I’m excited to share that United will resume the pilot hiring process that was halted last year,” Bryan Quigley, the airline’s chief of flight operations, said in a memo to employees obtained by AFP.

The first offers will go to pilots who had conditional job offers or were in line for jobs last year, he said.

However, “the number of new pilots needed will be dependent on our recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic,” trying to assuage concerns of current pilots who have weathered the pandemic disruptions. Airlines were forced to take drastic measures to cut costs since the start of the Covid-19 pandemic caused travel to come to a screeching halt, including encouraging tens of thousands of employees to retire or leave the company, or take unpaid leave.—AFP ■

S&P 500 ends over 4,000 for 1st time, oil prices rally

THE S&P 500 finished above 4,000 for the first time Thursday setting a record amid rising confidence in the US economic recovery, while oil prices rallied after petroleum producers agreed to limited output increases.

The heady session marked a strong start to the second quarter a day after President Joe Biden formally announced a massive $2 trillion infrastructure plan which he said would create millions of good jobs.

Biden’s proposal faces hurdles on Capitol Hill, but investors remain bullish about the coming months in the wake of the giant fiscal stimulus package approved in mid-March, and the accelerating coronavirus vaccine campaign in the United States. Expectations of a strong corporate earnings season later this month are prompting investors to make fresh bets on stocks, analysts said.—AFP ■

Asian markets rally after Wall

TOKYO’S Nikkei led a rally in holiday-thinned trade in Asia on Friday following a record-breaking day on Wall Street with investors buoyed by Joe Biden’s huge new infrastructure spending plan and growing optimism over the economic recovery.

With most equity and commodity markets in the region closed for Easter, business was light but the mood remained decidedly upbeat ahead of the release of key US jobs data that is expected to confirm that the world’s top economy is getting back on its feet.

Automakers report higher US sales, but chip shortage clouds outlook

GM reported higher US sales in the first quarter, but inventories dwindled amid the industrywide semiconductor shortage. PHOTO: AFP

CARMAKERS reported sales on Thursday amid higher first-quarter US rising consumer confidence, but a semiconductor shortage that has crimped production raises questions about supply in coming months.

Toyota led the pack with its double-digit, year-over-year US sales gain, but General Motors, Ford and Fiat Chrysler also saw sales rise during a period that included passage of a giant US economic relief package that sent cash to most households and accelerating vaccinations.

dence and spending will continue to increase due to stimulus, rising vaccination rates and the progressive reopening of the economy,” said GM Chief Economist Elaine Buckberg. “Auto demand should remain strong throughout the year.” But while demand is healthy, there are questions about the supply picture as all four companies have announced production cuts due to the global semiconductor shortage.—AFP ■

World powers, Iran to discuss US return to nuclear deal

WORLD powers and Iran will meet by videoconference Friday to discuss the possible return of the United States to the Iran nuclear deal, in a development welcomed by Washington.

Representatives of China, France, Germany, Russia, the United Kingdom and Iran -- the countries still party to the agreement after the US left -- will attend Friday's meeting, according to an EU statement.

"Participants will discuss the prospect of a possible return of the United States to the JCPOA, and how to ensure the full and effective implementation of the agreement by all sides," the statement said, referring to the deal by its initials.

US State Department spokesman Ned Price told reporters that "we obviously welcome this as a positive step".

"We are ready to pursue a return to compliance with our JCPOA commitments consistent with Iran also doing the same," Price said Thursday.

The US is speaking to partners "about the best way to achieve this, including through a series of initial mutual steps," he said.

"We've been looking at options for doing so, including with indirect conversations through our European partners," Price added.

Friday will mark the first meeting of the so-called "joint commission" on the Iran nuclear accord since US President Joe Biden took office. —AFP ■

Dutch PM Rutte clings on after political battle

DUTCH Prime Minister Mark Rutte survived one of the biggest political fights of his decade in power Friday, narrowly winning a no-confidence vote over claims he lied about coalition talks.

Dubbed the "Teflon premier" for his ability to dodge scandal, Rutte will however remain under pressure after every party except his own supported a separate motion in parliament condemning his behaviour.

Rutte, whose VVD party won the most seats in elections last month based on his handling of the coronavirus pandemic, was accused of covering up efforts to rein in an outspoken MP during coalition negotiations.

"I will continue as prime minister; I will work terribly hard to regain trust," Rutte told parliament after the no-confidence vote.

He was supported by the two main parties that formed part of his previous coalition,

Rutte is one of Europe's longest-serving leaders after German Chancellor Angela Merkel and Hungarian premier Viktor Orban, and will become the Netherlands' longest-serving PM if he is still in power at the end of 2022. Coalition talks were already expected to take until the early summer but may now drag on even longer.

'Shamelessly lied'

The row erupted last week when coalition talks were halted after one negotiator rushed out of parliament after learning she had tested positive for Covid-19, and the notes she was carrying were snapped by a photographer.

The name of CDA lawmaker Pieter Omtzigt's name appeared in the notes with the words "position elsewhere" -- widely seen as meaning that he should be given a ministerial post to keep him quiet. —AFP ■

Ukraine says Russia massing troops on border, US warns Moscow

UKRAINIAN President Volodymyr Zelensky on Thursday accused Moscow of building up troops on his country's border as the United States warned Russia against "intimidating" Ukraine.

Kiev has been locked in a conflict with Russian-backed separatists since 2014, and this week Ukrainian officials reported Russian troop movement in annexed Crimea and on the border, near territories controlled by Moscow-backed separatists.

On Thursday, Zelensky's ministers discussed the escalating security situation with Western allies including US Secretary of Defence Lloyd Austin.

"Muscle-flexing in the form of military exercises and possible provocations along the border are traditional Russian games," Zelensky said in a statement.

seeking to create "a threatening atmosphere" as Kiev hopes to resume a ceasefire brokered last year.

The US State Department said it was "absolutely concerned by recent escalations of Russian aggressive and provocative actions in eastern Ukraine".

"What we would object to are aggressive actions that have an intent of intimidating, of threatening, our partner Ukraine," State Department spokesman Ned Price told reporters. —AFP ■

Shadow of murderous brothers hangs over Libyan town

"THEY spared no child, no woman, no old man," said Mohamed Amer, mourning those murdered during a reign of terror by six brothers who ruled a Libyan town with bloodshed.

"I am the father of the martyr Moaid, killed in cold blood by the criminal gang of Kaniyat," said Amer, a silver-haired father in his fifties.

The Kaniyat were a gang of six brothers who commanded a militia that traumatised the town of Tarhuna in war-ravaged Libya, systematically executing not only their opponents but slaughtering their entire families.

Those they did not kill they cowed into submission.

The brothers paraded through the town in shows of force -- with a pair of leashed lions roaring at the crowd.

Libya has been ravaged by conflict since the fall and killing of veteran dictator Moamer Kadhafi in a NATO-backed 2011 revolt, and an array of armed groups and militia forces arose to fill the vacuum.

In Tarhuna, it was the Al-Kani militia, also known as the Kaniyat, who took power in 2015.

Hundreds missing

Now the brothers are gone, toppled from power last year, but their shadow still hangs over the town.

After their ousting, digging began to exhume the corpses of the people they butchered. Multiple mass graves have been unearthed in the farming town some 80 kilometres (50 miles) southeast of the capital Tripoli. Some bodies were found blindfolded with their wrists tied.

Dozens feared dead, 72 still trapped in Chinese Taipei railway crash DOZENS of people are feared dead after a packed train derailed inside a tunnel in eastern Chinese Taipei on Friday at the start of a long holiday weekend, with rescuers still scrambling to reach others trapped inside.

President Tsai Ing-wen's office said she had ordered hospitals to prepare for a mass casualty event.

"The top priority now is to rescue the stranded people," it said in a statement.

The accident occurred on Chinese Taipei's eastern railway line around 9.30am (01.30 GMT) near the coastal city of Hualien.

Pictures published by local news website UDN showed the front of the train inside the tunnel had been pulverized into a twisted mesh of metal.

Railway police said 36 passengers were classified as "out of hospital cardiac arrest" - a term for someone showing no signs of life.

A further 72 people were still believed to be trapped inside train carriages while 61 passengers had been sent to hospital.

The Central Emergency Operation Center gave a slightly lower suspected death toll of 26 people showing "no signs of life".

Another live broadcast by UDN outside the tunnel showed at least two undamaged train carriages with rescuers helping passengers escape.

"It felt like there was a sudden violent jolt and I found myself falling to the floor," an unidentified female survivor told the network.

"We broke the window to climb to the roof of the train to get out."

The eight-car train was making its way from Taipei to the southeastern city of Taitung and was carrying some 350 passengers.

Local media said the accident was believed to have been caused by a construction vehicle sliding down an embankment and striking the train as it passed into the tunnel. —AFP ■

Australia's Brisbane lifts snap virus lockdown ahead of Easter

Brisbane's three-day lockdown was ordered Monday, forcing schools, restaurants and bars to close after an outbreak in the city. PHOTO:AFP

STAY-AT-HOME orders for more than two million people in Australia's third-biggest city Brisbane were lifted Thursday, ending a snap coronavirus lockdown just ahead of the traditionally busy Easter holidays.

The three-day lockdown ordered Monday saw schools, restaurants and bars forced to close after an outbreak in Brisbane, with health officials saying it was necessary to stop the virus spreading and bolster contact tracing. It was the latest in a series of mini lockdowns in Australian cities this year, which authorities say have quickly brought virus outbreaks under control and avoided more onerous measures.

Just one new case was detected in Brisbane on Thursday, taking the number of cases to 14, allowing restrictions to be eased.

Masks will be mandatory in public spaces while restrictions on gatherings and dancing will also remain in place.

"We're not out of the woods yet so... for the next two weeks if we all do the right thing, we can get through this together," state Premier Annastacia Palaszczuk said.

The news was expected to provide relief for the beleaguered tourism sector in Queensland - known as Australia's "Sunshine State" for its inviting weather - with the popular destination now fully open to visitors just ahead of Easter holidays beginning Friday.—AFP ■

Facebook virus lies 'biggest challenge' to PNG vaccine drive: minister

PAPUA New Guinea's health minister on Thursday called disinformation spread on Facebook the "biggest challenge" to efforts to curb the rampant spread of Covid-19 in the poor Pacific nation.

Jelta Wong said "dangerous" posts and anti-vax conspiracy theories were hampering the drive to get people to seek treatment and testing for the disease as infection numbers soar.

"When Facebook hit Papua New Guinea everybody became an expert," Wong told an online event organized by Sydney's Lowy Institute think tank.

"Everybody had a PhD, even sitting under a coconut tree they became a PhD," he said in describing the spread of faulty information about coronavirus by users of the platform.

PNG, a poor nation of more than eight million off Australia's northeast coast, reported around 1,000 Covid-19 cases in the first year of the pandemic, but saw more than 5,000 new infections last month alone.

Wong said that low rates of testing meant the real scale of the outbreak was likely much larger.

The country's health care system is creaking under the strain, with many workers themselves infected and authorities in the capital, Port Moresby, forced to set up a makeshift Covid-19 clinic in a sports stadium earlier this week.

Australia flew an emergency batch of 8,000 doses of vaccine into Port Moresby last week along with a small team of public health specialists to help inoculate frontline health workers ahead of a larger roll-out.

About 40 per cent of the 1,600 staff at the Port Moresby General Hospital have agreed to be vaccinated, according to health officials, while doses will also be sent to hotspots including Lae, Goroka and Vanimo. But beyond securing vaccines, Wong said a major hurdle is convincing people to get the jab in a country where adult vaccination programmes are rare and virus misinformation is rife.—AFP ■

Battle for Premier League top four heats up

MANCHESTER City already have one hand on the Premier League trophy but the battle for the top four is likely to go down to the wire as a clutch of clubs seek to join Europe's elite next season.

AFP Sport takes a look at the contenders as the 2020/21 campaign enters its final stretch, with nine games remaining for most teams.

The favourites

Manchester City, Manchester United, Leicester and Chelsea currently occupy the top four places in the English top-flight.

Ole Gunnar Solskjaer's United are eight points clear of fifth-placed West Ham and are on track to finish in the top two for only the second time since they were last champions in 2013.

United's run-in does not appear too tricky, although they still have to travel to Tottenham and host Liverpool. They also play top-four rivals

Leicester at Old Trafford.

Leicester came agonisingly close to qualifying for the Champions League for only the second time in their history last season but missed out on the final day, beaten by United.

Brendan Rodgers' side, who last month beat United in the FA Cup quarter-finals, look more robust this year and are just one point behind the Red Devils. Leicester face Manchester City this weekend before a run of kinder fixtures, but they will be keen to maintain a buffer, with a difficult set of matches to end the season — against United, Chelsea and Spurs.

Chelsea, still unbeaten in all competitions since Thomas Tuchel took over from Frank Lampard in January, are in fourth spot but have less margin for error and are also still involved in the FA Cup and Champions League. —AFP ■

Senegal's wrestlers ready for combat after yearlong wait

TEN burly Senegalese wrestlers raise a chant, singing "Mother, pray for us," while jogging up and down a sandy field by the Atlantic Ocean.

Training has resumed after a year of coronavirus-related restrictions that had stopped them from practising their sport.

Wrestling in the West African nation is a centuries-old tradition rooted in harvest festivals, and draws a fanatical following.

Hulking fighters dressed in loincloths face off in packed stadiums, performing mystic rituals in the sand before going toe-to-toe.

On Sunday, the first major bout since the start of the pandemic will take place in a 20,000-seater stadium just outside of Dakar. "This fight is of huge importance to me," says Eumeu Sene, 42, one of the men training in the suburb of the capital Dakar. —AFP ■

Ibrahimovic, Lukaku fines for spat go to charity

Zlatan Ibrahimovic and Romelu Lukaku's fines for squaring off in a row during an Italian Cup match will be donated to charity, their rival Milan clubs said on Thursday. PHOTO: AFP

ZLATAN Ibrahimovic and Romelu Lukaku's fines for squaring off in a row during an Italian Cup match will be donated to charity, their rival Milan clubs said on Thursday.

AC Milan striker Ibrahimovic went head-to-head with his Inter counterpart during the Cup quarter-final in the San Siro on January 26.

The former Manchester United team-mates traded insults and were both charged with unsportsmanlike conduct.

In a joint statement the clubs said the incident was "not in keeping with the shared principles of sporting fair play" and pledged the sum which has yet to be decided in a plea deal with the Italian Football Federation would go to charity.

The heated altercation began at the half-time whistle in the San Siro.

Ibrahimovic taunted Lukaku and infuriated the Belgian by laughing in his face before the pair went head-to-head.

They continued to trade insults as they headed towards the tunnel with a furious Lukaku being restrained by his teammates.

Both players were booked over the incident and Ibrahimovic was subsequently sent off after picking up a second yellow card for another incident.
