Five-Point Road Map of the State Administration Council

1. The Union Election Commission will be reconstituted and its mandated tasks, including the scrutiny of voter lists, shall be implemented in accordance with the law.
2. Effective measures will be taken with added momentum to prevent and manage the COVID-19 pandemic.
3. Actions will be taken to ensure the speedy recovery of businesses from the impact of COVID-19.
4. Emphasis will be placed on achieving enduring peace for the entire nation in line with the agreements set out in the Nationwide Ceasefire Agreement.
5. Upon accomplishing the provisions of the state of emergency, free and fair multiparty democratic elections will be held in line with the 2008 Constitution, and further work will be undertaken to hand over State duties to the winning party in accordance with democratic standards.

Assessment of voting should be based on pre-election, election and post-election days but just an election day whether an election is free and fair, Senior General says

State Administration Council Chairman Prime Minister Senior General Min Aung Hlaing addresses the SAC meeting 17/2021 in Nay Pyi Taw on 9 November 2021.

IT is necessary to emphasize that the country can be built with the strength of educated persons but non-educated ones, said Chairman of the State Administration Council Prime Minister Senior General Min Aung Hlaing at the meeting 17/2021 of the State Administration Council at the SAC Chairman's Office yesterday afternoon.

In his speech, the Senior

General highlighted that more than 2,305,000 students are attending the basic education schools till 8 November after opening the schools due to the declining of COVID-19 infection rate. It was made efforts to prevent loss of students in the education, and students aged 12 years and above and teachers, as well as the people of above 45 years old, are being vaccinated. Thanks to taking security measures by parents and those wishing to ensure peace and stability of the community, a few basic education schools faced disturbances. Threatening the students in learning education is a stupid act, undermining the country.

With regard to opening the universities, the Senior General remarked: "We have plans to reopen universities for higher education. Now, we appoint new faculty members at universities. We will reopen the universities step by step depending on the results of opening the basic education schools but we cannot open all the courses at the same time. Priority will be given to the opening of doctoral courses, master's courses, qualified courses and honour courses. Afterwards, we will open final years' courses, then the third year and second year and so on. It is more important for having the knowledge to pass the examination. Students need to have the knowledge in conformity with their grades. I'd like to note that if the education of the nation can improve, the country would have a good future. It is necessary to emphasize that the country can be built with the strength of educated persons but non-educated ones."

Statement to appreciate teachers' efforts

TEACHERS are honoured as part of the Five Infinite Venerables, and the manner of paying respect to the teachers can be only seen in Myanmar as a tradition. The teachers teach their pupils based on their goodwill like their own children and dutifully serve a teacher's duties. They must train their pupils and students in the best discipline. They see that they grasp their lessons well. They instruct them in the arts and sciences, they provide for their safety in every quarter, and they introduce them to their friends and associates.

As the COVID-19 infection rate is controlled to a certain extent, the basic education high, middle and primary schools under the Department of Basic Education have reopened across nation for the 2021-2022 academic year starting 1 June.

Those who want to seek good sake of one party, political extremist NLD members and supporters, NUG, CRPH and PDF committed arson attacks at the schools using mines, homemade bombs and grenades to fail the teaching processes, and threatened the teachers in addition to the incitements, social punishment and threats against education staff to join CDM while the officials made preparations for the reopening of schools and during the current teaching period. Their doings left some casualties, and the State Administration Council has expressed its deepest condolences and sympathy to the victims' families.

The SAC also appreciates the concerted efforts of teachers, who understand two virtues, Hiri — shame at doing evil —and Otappa—fear of the results of doing evil —for teaching the new generations of the country amid such difficulties and challenges.

The security forces will take extraordinary measures to ensure the safety of teachers who are making efforts in the academic sector for the next generations in order to promote the education qualification. The people should keep security awareness and cooperate with the security members in community peace and peaceful learning of children.

Mobile library team visits departmental offices in Mongpyin Township

TO raise knowledge, habit of reading and studying literature for young people in their spare time, the staff of Mongpyin Township Information and Public Relations Department conducted a weekly Mobile Library field visit at departmental offices in Mongpyin Township, Kengtung District in eastern Shan State yesterday afternoon.

Officials led by Township Head of IPRD Daw Yin Yin Win conducted field visits as a mobile library to the Department of Information and Public Relations, Township Audit Office, Township Election Sub-commission Office, Township Disaster Management

Department Office, and Township Fire Brigade Office and provided book rental services with various kinds of books, including general knowledge and fiction.

Officials from the Department of Information and Public Relations, Mongpyin Township told online stories for readers and children who cannot visit the library during the COVID-19 outbreak.

In addition to debut books and educational talk shows, there are also books and magazines available to readers and bulletins are being rented out to the public, officials said.—Yin Yin Win (IPRD)/GNLM

150,000 juvenile fish planted in Myitmakha river in Letpadan, Bago region

WITH the arrangement of the Township Hatchery Plantation Supervision Committee, a total of 150,000 two-inch juvenile fish were released yesterday morning into the Myitmakha River in Letpadan Township, Thayawady District, Bago Region.

The Township Hatchery Plantation Supervision Committee aims for long-term and sustainable fish food supply as well as to increase fish production by diversifying fish in natural waters and to ensure the food security of the rural people.

Yesterday, officials released a total of 50,000 carp, 70,000 Barbus, and 30,000 Cirrhianus marigla into the natural river. —Wint Nanda Htay (IRPD)/GNLM

Officials welcome back 279 returnees from Laos to Tachilek

OFFICIALS welcomed back a total of 279 returnees from Laos, including 171 males and 108 females, at Wang Pong port, Mongphone (A) Village-tract, Tachilek in eastern Shan State yesterday morning.

With the supervision of the Prevention, Control and Treatment Committee on COVID-19 in Tachilek District, the returnees were diagnosed with RDT Rapid Test Kit for the first time.

On the third day of quarantine at Wang Lone Centre, nasal and palate samples of the returnees were taken and sent to Taunggyi for a second diagnosis.

According to the test results, the COVID-19 virus was detected in five repatriated persons and they will stay in Wang Lone COVID-19 Centre to receive further medical treatment.

Officials said that they will provide free transport to reach their respective places.

Tachilek has been accepting Myanmar nationals returning from Laos since 30 July, and a total of 4,354 male and female returnees have been repatriated, officials added. — Yar Say (IPRD)/GNLM

Cementing the Union Spirit

EVERYBODY needs to notice a saying that “If one does not know the past, one may commit mistakes again. Likewise if one is too eager to embrace the past, one may lose the road to the future”. The government has decided to further promote the process of cementing the Union Spirit and peace process before the forthcoming Diamond Jubilee Union Day and Independence Day.

The Senior General pointed out that as the people need to have their longevity, it is necessary to reduce rice consumption for reduction of carbohydrates but consume meat, fish, vegetables and eggs to have protein for the body. Everybody needs to consume three to six eggs per day, five to 10 ticals of meat and fish as well as five to 12 ticals of vegetables per day. As the power of the State is people, emphasis must be placed on increasing of life expectancy of the people with healthiness. Hence, people are urged to change their consumption and lifestyle forms.

Assessment of voting should be based on pre-election, election and post-election days but just an election day whether an election is free and fair. Political parties sent letters and reports to him on voting frauds in the 2020 multiparty democracy general election. More than 11 million ballots were wrongly counted in the election across the nation in scrutinizing the voter lists. Voting fraud is the worst in the democracy.

Members of the State Administration Council discussed enactment of the law opposing foreign interference, promotion of relations with the countries among ASEAN countries which have sympathy over Myanmar and enhancement of Myanmar-China relations, publishing of pamphlets on terror acts of terrorists CRPH, NUG and PDF across the nation, implementation of Dawei Deep Sea Port Project, reduction of diagnostic charge in examining the COVID-19 virus, and cooperation with relevant organizations for the life safety of local people in Kayah State.

In his response, the Senior General said that the Ministry of Legal Affairs is assigned to scrutinize the country-wise laws related to the law opposing foreign interference. The government will encourage the production of value-added products but prohibit sales of raw materials of natural resources. State-owned and Tatmadaw-owned media are striving for disseminating the acts of terrorist organizations to the people. Disbursement of loans from the COVID-19 fund will depend on the financial situation. If the COVID-19 is under control, outbound tourism services will be allowed to be implemented. The projects contributing to the economic development of the State, including the Dawei Deep Sea Port Project, will be implemented. Necessary workshops and contests will be held for the enhancement of the educational qualification of students.

In his concluding remarks, the Senior General said the development of the country depends on firm currency and economic growth. Importation is being controlled for reducing the trade deficit of the nation while efforts are being made for increasing the export of value-added products. The increased production process can create job opportunities and prosperity in the socio-economic life of the people.

4th batch of Mekong-Lancang cooperation special fund projects launched

THE Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation held the Launching Ceremony of the Fourth Batch of Mekong-Lancang Cooperation Special Fund Projects yesterday in Nay Pyi Taw.

The ceremony was addressed by Union Minister U Tin Htut Oo, Ambassador of the People's Republic of China to Myanmar Mr Chen Hai, and Director-General of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs Daw Marlar Than Htike. Director-General of the Department of Planning U Kyaw Swe Lin presented the projects.

The ceremony was also attended by Deputy Minister for Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation Dr Aung Gyi, the Permanent Secretary, Directors-General of the departments and project officials.

The Mekong-Lancang Cooperation was jointly initiated and developed in 2016 by China, Cambodia, Laos, Myanmar, Thailand, and Vietnam, the countries along the Mekong River, where historical and cultural relations and customs are intertwined. It aims to focus on bridging the development gap and achieving sustainable development among the regional members based on good-neighbourly friendship for economic and social development.

According to the Sanya Declaration of the first Mekong-Lancang Cooperation Leaders' Meeting, the member countries are cooperating in five priority areas: Integration, cooperation to increase productivity, cross-border economic cooperation, cooperation in water resources, and agriculture and poverty alleviation, with a spirit of transparency and inclusiveness.

The Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation is also implementing agricultural development and poverty alleviation projects in the Mekong-Lancang projects and a total of 24 projects (5 projects in the first batch in 2017; 9 projects in the second batch in 2018; 6 projects in the third batch in 2020; 4 projects in the fourth batch in 2021) have been implemented with the Mekong-Lancang Cooperation Special Fund.

According to the projects approved for implementation in 2021, projects to improve the socio-economic life and income of rural households related to bamboo shoots production, to provide technical support to smallholder farmers in Macadamia for potential crop markets, to increase revenue from quality coffee production through packaging technologies, projects to develop a vaccine against cross-border animal infections and infections transmitted between humans and animals will be implemented. The implementation of these projects will reduce the poverty of the rural people who are engaged in agriculture-related livelihoods and contribute to their socio-economic development.

Despite challenges such as transportation constraints and increased input costs due to natural disasters, climate change and the COVID-19 pandemic, efforts are being made to achieve the expected results as per the fund and negotiated projects. — MNA

Vaccination processes continue as planned in states/regions

Youth leaders in ASEAN explore ways to future-proof the region with sustainable solutions

MORE than 30 ASEAN youth leaders shared their views with the Deputy Secretary-General of the ASEAN on what young people can do to help move the region forward sustainably.

All participants of the 2021 ASEAN Youth Fellowship (AYF) gathered in Singapore from 27 to 31 October for the third edition of the programme, organized by the Singapore International Foundation (SIF) and the National Youth Council Singapore (NYC) in Singapore.

Their suggestions came as a response to the Chairman's Statement from the 38th/39th ASEAN Summit, emphasizing the importance of unity in promoting ASEAN's sub-regional development, especially in narrowing the development gap, enhancing ASEAN's regional competitiveness and connectivity, and ensuring sustainable and inclusive development. It also highlighted the need to elevate the roles of youth in realizing the goals and to ensure that they are prepared to respond to complex global challenges.

Over five days, the 33 Fellows took part in a series of dialogues that explored innovations in public health management, environmental, social, and governance (ESG) standards, and

33 youths gathered in Singapore for the third edition of the ASEAN Youth Fellowship, organized by the Singapore International Foundation and National Youth Council Singapore, from 27 - 31 October. Imports down by $120 mln last month, reports MoC

THE value of Myanmar's imports between 1 and 29 October of the current mini-budget period 2021-2022 (October-March) sank to $1 billion, which reflects a drop of $121.98 million compared to the year-ago period, the Ministry of Commerce's data indicated.

The import value stood at US$1.12 billion the last FY2020-2021.

The imports of capital goods declined last month, while the other import groups (consumer, intermediate goods, and CMP businesses) witnessed a slight increase.

Last month, capital goods, such as auto parts, vehicles, machines, steel, and aeroplane parts were brought into the country. Their import value was estimated at $170.18 million. The figure was over $229.5 million lower than those values registered in the same period of the previous FY.

The top 10 import countries to Myanmar are China, Singapore, Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia, India, Viet Nam, Japan, the Republic of Korea and the US, as per data of the Ministry of Commerce.

Meanwhile, Myanmar

imported consumer products worth $262.38 million, including pharmaceuticals, cosmetics, and palm oil. The imports of consumer products showed a slight decrease of $3 million compared with the same period in the previous FY.

Intermediate goods make up the largest share of Myanmar's imports, with petroleum products and plastic raw materials being the main import items. This year, imports of raw materials climbed up to $413 million from $326.4 million registered during the year-ago period.

During the same period, raw materials worth over $153 million were also imported for the Cut-Make-Pack (CMP) garment sector, showing an increase of $26.48 million compared with last FY.

Rubber price unlikely to fall on rising demand, Kyat depreciation

About 300,000 tonnes of rubber is produced annually across the country. Seventy per cent of rubber produced in Myanmar goes to China. It is also shipped to Singapore, Indonesia, Malaysia, Viet Nam, Korea, India, Japan and other countries.

THE price of rubber is unlikely to drop as long as there is a steady demand and Kyat devaluation against the US dollar continues, according to rubber traders.

The rubber was offered at a minimum price of K700-K800 per pound in the previous years, whereas it is priced at about K970-K980 per pound at present.

The price hit above K1,000 per pound in early October 2020. Then, it dipped slightly owing to the Kyat revaluation in the local forex market.

Despite the drop in rubber price, the prices of cement, acid and other inputs used in rubber processing are rising, traders said.

Chinese authorities from Yunnan Province, which is close to Myanmar's Chinshwehaw border in Shan State, gave the go-ahead to import the four industrial crops from Myanmar, including sugarcane, rubber, tragacanth gum and cotton. As a result of this, the trade channel is reopened again.

The rubber price is possible to fluctuate around K1,000 per pound. China usually purchases Local 3 and RSS 5 varieties which are mainly produced in Myanmar, a trader shared an opinion.

The rubber-tapping season started in September and the natural rubber is flowing into the market. However, the price is not possible to fall to K700-K800 per pound on account of growing demand and Kyat depreciation on the US dollar.

Rubber is primarily produced in Mon and Kayin states and Taninthayi, Bago, and Yangon regions in Myanmar. As per the 2018-2019 rubber season's data, there are over 1.628 million acres of rubber plantations in Myanmar, with Mon State accounting for 497,153 acres, followed by Taninthayi Region with 348,344 acres and Kayin State with 270,760 acres. About 300,000 tonnes of rubber is produced annually across the country. Seventy per cent of rubber produced in Myanmar goes to China. It is also shipped to Singapore, Indonesia, Malaysia, Viet Nam, the Republic of Korea, India, Japan, and other countries, according to the Myanmar Rubber Planters and Producers Association.

Myanmar's rubber export generated more than US$425.25 million as of August (October-August) of the financial year 2020-2021. — NN/GNLM

Low production leads to elephant foot yam price reduction in Paingkyon, Kayin state

THE local farmers from Moe Naing village, Paingkyon town, Kayin State are growing elephant foot yam on a commercial scale. This year, the yields of elephant foot yam are low and the prices are falling as well, according to the traders.

"The traders bought the fresh elephant foot yam for K1,000 per viss from the villages near the foot of Dawna Mountain. Then, they dried and sold them at K7,500 per viss. Last year, the dried elephant foot yam was sold at K11,800 per viss. This year, the productions of elephant foot yam are lower than last year and the prices are also falling," said Daw Pyo, a brokerage owner from Moe Naing village.

The elephant foot yam is destined to the commodity depots from Hpa-an, Mawlamyine, Mandalay and Muse, towns through Paingkyon town. Then, those are exported to China. But for this time, the sending of elephant foot yam have been suspended to prevent the spreading of COVID-19, said Daw Pyo.

Establish village firewood plantations to green rural areas

RURAL people in Myanmar are still using firewood and charcoal for daily cooking and other productions because of not ready for the installation of cables for electrification.

The use of firewood and making charcoal may affect deforestation. Hence, the Union government as well as relevant region and state governments are raising the forestry awareness of local people not to cause deforestation through too much extraction of firewood and raw materials for making charcoal.

The Forest Department under the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation has been organizing the rural people to establish village firewood plantations in their respective areas. On the other hand, the department emphasizes the supply of firewood and charcoal to the local people. In so doing, arrangements were made to fulfil the firewood needs of local people without harming the natural forests.

The department allows the rural people to establish the rural firewood plantations. During the period from 1981-82 financial year to 2013-14 financial year, the Union budget was allotted to be spent on the establishment of village firewood plantations. When the firewood plantations are over five years old, the department hands over the plantations to the relevant village authorities.

During the period from 1981-82FY to 2013-14FY, the department has grown 449,586 acres of firewood plantations and handed over 72,521 acres of plantations to the relevant villages.

As of the 2014-15FY, the department has been growing 272 rural firewood plantations in 113 villages from 118 villages of regions and states including Nay Pyi Taw Council Area. From the 2014-15 financial year to the 2020-21FY, the region and state governments spent their funds on the establishment of 22,862 acres of firewood plantations.

The department stated that firewood plantations were grown on over 170 acres of land at more than 230 villages across the nation in the 2020-21 financial year. In this regard, they grow rapid growing plants such as eucalyptus and rain trees to be extracted as logs and firewood.

At present, the Forest Department is implementing the national forest sector master plan (2020-21 to 2030-31). Hence, arrangements are being made to grow 25 per cent of the firewood requirements in the plots of residences, horticultural farms and around the farmlands. A total of 25 more per cent of firewood plants will be extracted from community-owned forests, 4.2 more per cent from the departmental forest plantations and 45.8 more per cent from the natural forests.

US pushes for broader COVID-19 vaccination while pills emerge as alternative therapy

The US federal government unveiled its new COVID-19 standards for businesses, "its biggest push yet to encourage widespread vaccination," reported CBS. However, the new rule has raised questions about the process for implementing, costs and timing of the requirements for workers and their bosses.

THE US federal government has released its biggest push to encourage widespread vaccination against COVID-19, while Pfizer and Merck have introduced in tandem their pills as an alternative therapy for coronavirus patients.

On Friday, the Centres for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) updated that 222,591,394 people had received at least one dose of COVID-19 vaccine, making up 67 per cent of the whole US population. Fully vaccinated people stood at 193,227,813, accounting for 58.2 per cent of the total. A total of 21,483,519 people, or 11.1 per cent of fully vaccinated group, received booster shots.

STRONG PUSH

The federal government on 4 November unveiled its new COVID-19 standards for businesses, "its biggest push yet to encourage widespread vaccination," reported CBS. However, the new rule has raised questions about the process for implementing, costs and timing of the requirements for workers and their bosses.

The United States has administered 429442508 doses of COVID-19 vaccines in the country as of 6 November morning. PHOTO: MEGAN JELINGER/AFP

Under the plan, employers with more than 100 employees must choose whether their workers be fully vaccinated or undergo weekly testing within 30 days of the plan's publication in the Federal Register on 5 November.

By 4 January, those businesses must implement the rule. The so-called "emergency temporary standard" was requested by US President Joe Biden as part of his September COVID-19 action plan, and will be overseen by the Labour Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA).

Reactions from businesses ranged from support to alarm, with the trade group Truckload Carriers Association warning that the rule will prove to be "disastrous" as it could lead to an "exodus" of truck drivers during the ongoing supply-chain crisis.

Jim Frederick, deputy assistant secretary of labor at OSHA, said that the agency believes the "vast majority" of workplaces will comply with the new requirement.

"OSHA estimates that this rule will save thousands of lives and prevent more than 250,000 hospitalizations" after it goes into effect, Frederick said in a conference call with reporters on Thursday. "We know that many, many workplaces will be looking at this and starting up as early as today."

CURING PILLS

Pfizer Inc. said on Friday that its experimental antiviral pill for COVID-19 cuts hospitalization and death rates by nearly 90 per cent in high-risk adults, as the drugmaker joined the race for an easy-to-use medication to treat the coronavirus.

Pfizer said it will ask the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and international regulators to authorize its pill as soon as possible. If authorized by the FDA, the company would sell the drug under the brand name Paxlovid.

Currently most COVID-19 treatments require an IV (intravenous therapy) or injection.

Competitor Merck's COVID-19 pill is already under review at the FDA after showing strong initial results, and on Thursday Britain became the first country to approve it.

The Merck pill, known as molnupiravir, was shown in a key clinical trial to reduce by half the risk of hospitalization and death in high-risk COVID-19 patients who were treated early in their infections.

Dispensed from a pharmacy and taken at home, the drug is expected to reach many more people than treatments like monoclonal antibodies, which are typically administered intravenously at a hospital or clinic.

Britain has already ordered enough supplies of the pill for 480,000 people. Merck said last week it had reached deals to sell the pills to the governments of the United States, Australia, South Korea, New Zealand, Serbia and Singapore.

Regeneron says Covid antibody treatment protects for at least 8 months

REGEN-COV is currently authorized in the United States as a post-exposure prophylaxis in high-risk individuals, and is pending full approval.

A SYNTHETIC antibody treatment developed by Regeneron reduced the risk of developing symptomatic Covid by more than 80 per cent up to eight months after receiving the treatment, the US biotech firm said Monday.

The results are "particularly important to those who do not respond to COVID-19 vaccines including people who are immunocompromised", said Myron Cohen, a University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill scientist who is leading a government-sponsored study into the treatment.

The study included 842 people who received a placebo and 841 who received the treatment, known as REGEN-COV, dosed at 1,200 mg and injected under the skin.

During a follow-up period of two to eight months, there were seven Covid cases in the treatment group and 38 in the placebo group, representing a risk reduction of 81.6 per cent.

Importantly, there were zero hospitalized cases in the treatment group and six in the placebo group.

"A single dose of REGEN-COV provided long-term protection against COVID-19, including times of particularly high risk from household exposure, and in the longer-term during ongoing broader exposure," said George Yancopoulos, the company's president and chief scientific officer.

REGEN-COV is currently authorized in the United States as a post-ex-posure prophylaxis in high-risk individuals, and is pending full approval.

It is based on two lab-produced monoclonal antibodies — Y-shaped proteins that bind to the spikes that dot the surface of the coronavirus, stopping the pathogen from invading human cells.

Vaccines train immune systems to produce such antibodies too. But some people including the elderly and immunocompromised do not respond well to vaccines, and such groups stand to benefit the most from "passive vaccination" where the antibodies are delivered directly.

ISS astronauts return to Earth in SpaceX craft after 6-month mission

FOUR astronauts returned to Earth Monday in a SpaceX craft after spending six months on the International Space Station, a NASA live broadcast showed, marking the end of a busy mission. The international crew conducted thousands of experiments in orbit and helped upgrade the solar panels on the ISS during their “Crew-2” mission.

Its descent slowed by four huge parachutes, their Dragon spacecraft — dubbed “Endeavour” — splashed down in the Gulf of Mexico at 10:33 pm (0333 GMT Tuesday) before it was lifted onto a recovery ship.

NASA astronauts Megan McArthur and Shane Kimbrough, Akihiko Hoshide of Japan and Frenchman Thomas Pesquet from the European Space Agency were then taken out of the capsule and placed on stretchers as a precautionary measure — human bodies need to re-adjust to gravity after extended periods in space. “It’s great to be back to Planet Earth,” Kimbrough was heard saying on the NASA live broadcast after Dragon splashed down. The ISS activities of the Crew-2 astronauts included documenting the surface of the Earth to record human-caused changes and natural events, growing Hatch Chile peppers, and studying worms to better understand human health changes in space.

“Proud to have represented France once again in space! Next stop, the Moon?” Pesquet had tweeted ahead of the trip home.

Their journey back to Earth began when Endeavour undocked from the ISS at 2:05 pm (1905 GMT, NASA announced).

It then looped around the ISS for around an hour-and-a-half to take photographs, the first such mission since a Russian Soyuz performed a similar manoeuvre in 2018. — AFP ■

WTO chief hails ‘important step’ towards elusive fishing deal

THE World Trade Organization chief said on Monday significant progress had been made towards a long-elusive agreement to end subsidies that reward overfishing, as negotiators scramble to clinch a deal within weeks.

“Time is short and I believe that this text reflects a very important step towards a final outcome,” Ngozi Okonjo-Iweala, who took the reins of the global trade body in March, said in a statement.

Her comment came after Colombian ambassador Santiago Wills, who chairs the WTO fisheries subsidies negotiations, presented a revised negotiating text following intense talks.

He said trade diplomats would begin poring over the latest version “clause by clause” on Tuesday, in a bid to smooth out any wrinkles before ministers gather for a high-level meeting at the end of the month, at which they hope to clinch a deal.

For the past two decades, WTO member states have been discussing the need for a deal banning subsidies that contribute to illegal and unregulated fishing, as well as to overfishing that threatens the sustainability of fish stocks.

While fishing should in theory be held in check by the environment, with low fish stocks pushing up costs, subsidies can keep unprofitable fleets at sea.

Global fisheries subsidies are estimated at between $14 billion and $54 billion a year, according to the WTO. —AFP ■

Amazon deforestation threatens jaguars, giant eagles fires last year.

A thousand kilometres (600 miles) to the north, at the rapidly receding edge of the Amazon rainforest, conservationist Roberto Eduardo Stofel peers through his binoculars, monitoring a baby harpy eagle sitting alone in a giant nest, its parents apparently out searching for increasingly hard-to-find food.

The sleek, majestic jaguar and spectacularly powerful harpy eagle are two of the most iconic species threatened by the accelerating destruction of the Amazon, whose breathtaking biodiversity risks collapsing as the world’s biggest rainforest approaches a “tipping point”.

Scientists say that is the point at which a vicious circle of deforestation, wildfires and climate change could damage the rainforest so badly it dies off and turns to savannah — with catastrophic consequences for its more than three million species of plants and animals. —AFP ■

Toxic foam covers India’s sacred Yamuna river

ONE of India’s holiest rivers was coated with toxic foam on Monday, adding to the woes of New Delhi residents already enduring a blanket of thick smog over the capital.

The Yamuna is already one of the most polluted waterways in the country but parts of the river, which courses through the centre of Delhi, were coated in mounds of white foam resembling snowfall.

The city government blamed the blight on “heavy sewage and industrial waste” discharged into the river from further upstream last week.

It did not deter several Hindu worshippers from taking a dip in the river to mark Chhath Puja, a four-day festival to offer prayers to the sun.

But the pollution did disrupt water supply to part of the city, according to local officials, who did not say how many households had been affected.

“I would like to thank the affected residents for their co-operation,” Raghav Chadha, vice-chair of the city’s water authority, said in a Sunday statement.

“Our team of officers and engineers are working day and night to ensure Delhi residents’ water woes stay at a minimum.”

Indian officials have long pledged to clean the Yamuna but without success, and the blooms of toxic foam have become an annual occurrence. —AFP ■

Tour groups no longer need COVID-19 booster shots to enter Israel

PHOTO: AFP

FOREIGN tourists who were double vaccinated more than six months ago will now be allowed to enter Israel in approved groups of five to 40 people — even if they have not received a booster shot, the Health and Tourism ministries announced Monday.

The new policy further expands the number of people eligible to visit the country, which has largely been blocked to foreign nationals for more than 18 months.

“We are not comfortable with the decision, but we understand there are individuals who want to come and visit Israel and cannot because they don’t have access to the boosters,” said Salmon, who is head of the Health Minis-try’s Department of International Relations. “So, we are running kind of a barter, allowing people to come here but also putting some boundaries in place. People who are not fully vaccinated... are high risk.”

Since 1 November foreign nationals have been able to travel into the country if they meet Israel’s stringent criteria to be considered fully vaccinated or protected against the virus: inoculated twice within the previous six months, vaccinated with a booster, recovered with one shot or recovered within six months. Recovery certificates are also only accepted in an official electronic format.

However, under a new outline approved by the coronavirus cabinet in a telephone vote late Sunday night, members of tourists groups who were only jabbed twice will also be admitted with approval by the Tourism Ministry beginning on Tuesday.— ANI ■

Iran’s COVID-19 tally reaches nearly 6 million

THE Iranian health ministry reported on Monday 8,341 new COVID-19 cases, taking the country’s total infections to 5,996,155.

According to an official briefing published by the ministry, the pandemic has claimed 127,439 lives in the country so far, after 140 new deaths were registered in the past 24 hours.

A total of 5,615,460 people have recovered from the disease or been discharged from hospitals across the country, while 3,669 remain in intensive care units, the ministry said on its official website.—Xinhua ■

Global COVID-19 cases surpass 250 million

THE cumulative worldwide total of infections with the novel coronavirus exceeded 250 million on Monday, according to data from Johns Hopkins University of the United States.

The latest data comes as the pace of daily COVID-19 cases has started to pick up again since mid-October, with some European countries reporting surges in daily figures.

The World Health Organization has warned of potential outbreaks involving new variants of the coronavirus if the uptrend in infection cases continues.

Worldwide, the total number of COVID-19 infections topped 100 million in January and reached 200 million in August. Deaths from the disease surpassed 5 million on 1 November.

According to a WHO tally on 31 October, the number of confirmed coronavirus infections had increased by 3.02 million in a week, rising for the second week in a row. While many countries are reopening their economies in line with mass vaccination progress, the WHO has said it is important for people to wear masks in crowded environments

Number of booster jabs administered in UK reaches 10 million

TEN million COVID-19 booster jabs have now been administered in the UK, latest figures show.

The milestone - hailed by the prime minister — was reached after 409,663 third shots were given out on Saturday, taking the total to 10,062,704.

Another 35,045 first doses and 23,952 second doses were also administered, meaning 50,234,416 people have had at least one jab and 45,836,791 have had two.

The third shots are currently available to those aged over 50 and those deemed most at risk from coronavirus.

The rollout began in September, and people in England have had to wait until six months after their second dose before they have been eligible to book.

But from Monday, they can make their appointment after five months, although they will still only be able to actually receive the booster after six months.—Xinhua ■

Japan Oct. economy watchers sentiment jumps to nearly 8-yr high

Businesses have welcomed the government's decision to lift the COVID-19 state of emergency in Tokyo and across 18 prefectures.

BUSINESS sentiment among workers with jobs sensitive to economic trends in Japan jumped in October to its highest level since January 2014 as the government lifted the state of emergency over the coronavirus, and eateries and retailers began recovering from the pandemic fallout, official data showed Tuesday. The diffusion index of confidence measuring the current mood compared with three months earlier among "economy watchers," such as taxi drivers and restaurant staff, climbed 13.4 points from September to 55.5, up for the second straight month, according to the Cabinet Office.

The monthly improvement was the largest since June last year, a month after the country's first state of emergency was fully lifted, it said.

The office also upgraded its assessment of the economy for the second consecutive month, saying, "The economy is gradually picking up though concerns remain over the coronavirus pandemic." In the previous month, the office said the economy "has been rebounding." A reading above 50 indicates that more respondents reported improving conditions than worsening ones. The office polled 2,050 workers from 25 to 31 October, of whom 1,811, or 88.3 per cent, responded.

New COVID-19 cases in Japan have significantly decreased recently, with the figure falling to triple digits, compared to a peak level of nearly 26,000 in August. Japan's coronavirus state of emergency was fully lifted on 30 September.

Philippine economic growth beats forecasts in third quarter

THE Philippine economy grew more than expected in the third quarter, the government said Tuesday, as a rebound in consumer spending overcame pandemic lockdowns and other restrictions to rein in the fast-spreading Covid delta variant.

Gross domestic product expanded 7.1%, according to the Philippine Statistics Authority, better than the 4.9% predicted in a Bloomberg survey and following a blockbuster 12% rate in the previous three months.

The second-quarter reading was the best performance in more than three decades and came as the country emerged from a deep recession that saw five quarters of contraction caused by the virus.

Socioeconomic Planning Secretary Karl Chua said the third quarter growth validated the government's approach to fighting Covid with strict containment measures.

"Our strategy was correct. The results are clear," Chua said in a virtual briefing. "This careful balancing between Covid-19 and non Covid-19 needs led to the continued expansion of most sectors." With GDP growth reaching 4.9% in the first nine months, Chua said the Philippines is likely to attain the higher end of the government's 4-5% target this year.

"The recovery is accelerating and it is very likely that we will hit or even exceed the high end of our growth target for 2021," he added.

Chua has previously said it

Nissan triples profit forecast despite chip crunch

NISSAN tripled its full-year net profit forecast on Tuesday as it rebounded from the impact of the pandemic with a strong quarterly performance, saying it expected to withstand challenges including the chip crunch and rising raw material prices. The Japanese auto giant has faced a series of trials in recent years, from weak demand to the fallout from the arrest of former boss Carlos Ghosn, and its annual earnings were last in the black in 2018-19. But despite lower-than-expected sales volume so far this fiscal year, mainly due to the microchip shortage, “the quality of sales in each market continued to improve, resulting in higher profit per unit,” Nissan said. The crisis-hit company now projects 180 billion yen ($1.6 billion) in net profit for the year to March 2022, up from an earlier estimate of 60 billion yen. US high court weighs FBI surveillance of mosque

THE US Supreme Court heard arguments on Monday in a case involving national security and the claims of three Muslim men in California who say they were illegally surveilled at their mosque by the FBI.

The three men — Yassir Fazaga, imam of the Orange County Islamic Foundation, Ali Uddin Malik and Yasser Abdelrahim — filed a lawsuit arguing that the surveillance conducted after the 11 September 2001 attacks was based solely on their religion.

The Justice Department maintains it carried out the surveillance programme for objective reasons — not because those being watched were Muslims.

But it has invoked state secrets privilege in refusing to say what the alleged reasons were and urged the courts to reject the case.

A district court in California dismissed the plaintiffs' claim, accepting the FBI argument that state secrets risked being revealed. But the US Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals disagreed, saying the lower court should have held closed-door hearings to evaluate any secret evidence.

The FBI appealed that decision, and the US high court agreed to hear the case.

It will decide whether a district court can consider classified evidence in determining whether secret government surveillance is lawful.

According to the plaintiffs, the FBI sent a confidential informant with a prior criminal history to several mosques in Orange County in 2006 and 2007, ordering the man to pose as a convert and gather information.

The ACLU, the civil rights group representing the plaintiffs, said the informant secretly recorded prayer groups and made videos in mosques, homes and businesses.—AFP ■

Iraq's electoral commission confirms manual recount matches electronic results

THE Iraqi Independent High Electoral Commission (IHEC) on Monday announced that it has ended consideration of appeals and complaints submitted by the political parties after the 10 October early elections.

An IHEC statement said the commission received a total of 1,436 appeals from the country's provinces, and it took necessary measures to consider the appeals and checked all the ballot papers in the contested polling stations.

The statement confirmed that the manual recount matched the electronic results, except for a very few invalid ballot papers, which appeared after the audit that they were valid.—Xinhua ■

Ukrainian indicted in US for Kaseya ransomware attack

A 22-year-old Ukrainian arrested in Poland has been indicted in the United States as part of a global operation against ransomware attacks, including the high-profile July hack of IT software company Kaseya, officials said Monday. Yaroslav Vasinskyi, who was detained in Poland on 8 October was the most prominent of several people whose arrests were announced on Monday by US and European authorities. The arrests were linked to the Russian-based hacker group REvil, also known as Sodinokibi, and the ransomware group GandCrab.

Interpol said the four-year operation dubbed "Quicksand" or "Gold-Dust" was carried out by 19 law enforcement agencies in 17 countries.

It said those arrested "are suspected of perpetrating tens of thousands of ransomware infections and demanding more than 200 million Euros ($230,000) in ransom."—AFP ■

Poland blocks migrants at Belarus border, warns of 'armed' escalation

Western powers have accused Belarus of using the migrants as political pawns. PHOTO: BELTA/AFP

POLAND said it blocked a bid by hundreds of migrants to illegally enter the country from Belarus on Monday, warning of an "armed" escalation as thousands more massed near the border.

As the latest grim chapter of Europe's migrant crisis unfolded, Washington and Brussels called on Minsk to stop what they described as an orchestrated influx.

NATO on Monday also hit out at Minsk, accusing the government there of using the migrants as political pawns, while the European Union called for fresh sanctions against Belarus.

Brussels says Belarusian President Alexander Lukashenko has encouraged the migrant flow in retaliation for existing EU sanctions imposed over its dismal human rights record.

Poland, a member of both the European Union and NATO, has drawn sharp criticism for its tough rhetoric on migration in recent years.

"Interior ministry forces and soldiers managed to stop the first mass attempt to breach the border," Poland's defence ministry tweeted.

"Migrants have set up a camp in the Kuznica region. They are constantly guarded by Belarusian services."

Polish border guards posted video footage on Twitter showing migrants using wire cutters to breach a razor-wire border fence.

Many of the migrants seeking entry into Poland are desperately fleeing war and poverty-ravaged countries in the Middle East.

They say they are stuck between a rock and a hard place, with the Belarusian side refusing to allow them to return to Minsk and fly home, while Poland does not let them cross and make asylum claims. — AFP ■

Drowned US adventurer's boat washes up on Pacific atoll

THE boat used by the late US Paralympian and ocean rower Angela Madsen has been found washed up on a remote Marshall Islands atoll 16 months after she drowned trying to cross the Pacific in it.

Madsen's body was found floating in the ocean in June last year, 59 days after she set off on a quest to become the first paraplegic to row solo from California to Hawaii.

But the 60-year-old's specially designed boat "Rowoflife" was never recovered and spent more than a year drifting the ocean currents. Marshall Islander Benjamin Chutaro said it washed up in late October on the shore of Mili Island, about 120 kilometres (75 miles) east of the capital Majuro. Chutaro supplied AFP with pictures of a vessel with Madsen's name and "Rowoflife" prominently emblazoned on the side, as well as the distinctive jaws illustration the adventurer's boat had on its bow.—AFP ■

France’s right-wing Republicans target Macron in first election debate

FRENCH right-wing presidential candidates vying to clinch the nomination for the Republicans party took aim at President Emmanuel Macron on Monday in the first of several televised debates they hope will energise their flagging campaigns.

More than 100,000 card-carrying members of the party, which traces its roots back to post-war leader Charles de Gaulle, will choose their nominee at a congress on 4 December.

Five candidates took part in three hours of debate on Monday night that saw broad consensus on traditional right-wing themes such as immigration, delinquency and radical Islam — as well as the perceived inadequacies of Macron.

Former EU Brexit negotiator Michel Barnier called security “the main failure of this presidential term”, while regional leader Valerie Pécresse accused the 43-year-old head of state of “burning up our cash” with his management of the Covid-19 crisis.

Xavier Bertrand, seen by the Republicans rank-and-file as the most credible candidate before the debate, blamed Macron for the emergence of far-right pundit Eric Zemmour whose radical rhetoric has shaken up the presidential race.

“French people want to turn the page on Macron because he’s failed. I’m convinced I’m the one who can beat him. It’s not the extremes that can beat him,” Bertrand concluded.

Polls currently suggest that none of the Republicans (LR)

Ortega under fire for Nicaragua election ‘farce’

Nicaragua’s longtime leader Daniel Ortega faced a torrent of international criticism Monday after he won a fourth straight presidential term in what critics described as a “farce” election with his political opponents jailed or exiled.

With Ortega’s victory in Sunday’s poll a foregone conclusion, the United States and Europe led fierce condemnation of the 75-year-old former guerrilla whom they accused of dictatorial tactics and of crushing dissent. A partial official count from the Supreme Electoral Council showed Ortega and wife Rosario Murillo, his vice president, securing 75 per cent of votes. Nicaragua is now fully “an autocratic regime” after the deeply deficient elections handed Ortega his fifth overall presidential term, the European Union said.—AFP ■

Ethiopia’s Oromo rebel leader predicts victory ‘very soon’

A rebel leader fighting Ethiopia’s government has said his troops are near the capital and preparing another attack, predicting the war will end “very soon” as diplomats rush to negotiate a ceasefire.

Jaal Marroo, commander of the Oromo Liberation Army (OLA), warned Prime Minister Abiy Ahmed that pro-government fighters were defecting and the rebels were very close to victory. “What I am sure (of) is that it is going to end very soon,” Jaal, whose real name is Kumsa Diriba, told AFP in a phone interview on Sunday.—AFP ■

US govt to streamline immigration rules for recent Afghan arrivals

THE US government will streamline immigration procedures for recent Afghan arrivals to speed up their resettlement in the United States, the Department of Homeland Security said Monday.

Some 70,000 Afghans have landed in the United States as part of “Operation Allies Welcome”, launched amid the August evacuation of tens of thousands of people from Afghanistan, as the country fell to the Islamist Taliban following the withdrawal of US troops from the country. Afghans who arrived in the United States on or after 30 July this year will be able to take advantage of simplified procedures to get a prized “green card”, or permanent resident status, as well as various work permits, the DHS said in a statement. They will also not have to pay filing fees, which can run up to thousands of dollars.

“By providing these evacuees with access to streamlined processing and fee exemptions, we will open doors of opportunity for our Afghan allies and help them begin to rebuild their lives in communities across our country more quickly,” said DHS chief Alejandro Mayorkas, according to the statement. —AFP ■

Family joy as US reopens its border with Mexico

Isabel Gonzalez was first in line to get across the US border from Tijuana when the frontier reopened overnight Sunday-Monday. PHOTO: AFP

MEXICAN Isabel Gonzalez waited 20 months to embrace her children in the United States, separated by just a few miles and a pandemic-sparked border closure.

“Thank God, we are here now. I am very happy,” said Gonzalez, 63, as she walked across from Tijuana to the Californian border town of San Ysidro around midnight (0800 GMT) on Monday, when the US finally eased open its frontiers. Before the pandemic hit, Gonzalez had been visiting her four children and multiple grandchildren in San Diego, about 25 minutes from the border, every month.

But when Washington announced it was shuttering to all but citizens, legal residents and essential workers, the family was split apart.

“Well, can you imagine, it was very sad. It was the first time I had spent so much time away from them. “But now we are here to eat pizza and McDonalds. Now let them take me to Disney,” she laughed.

The border closures were imposed in early 2020 by then-president Donald Trump, as the new coronavirus spread around the world.

The ban initially applied only to entry from China, the source of the outbreak, but was soon widened to include the European Union, Britain, India and Brazil, and subsequently to overland visitors from Mexico and Canada.

It became emblematic of the upheavals caused by the pandemic: families missed weddings and funerals, individuals were unable to take up new jobs, and the tourism and travel industries were strangled.—AFP ■

Man. Utd, Chelsea among clubs in safe-standing trial

MANCHESTER United and Chelsea are among five football clubs taking part in a safe-standing trial from 1 January, more than 25 years after standing was banned in Britain, the sports minister announced on Monday.

The other teams whose applications to operate licensed safe-standing areas have been approved are Premier League champions Manchester City, Tottenham and Championship side Cardiff.

Standing areas in the English top-flight and second-tier Championship were outlawed by legislation passed following the 1989 Hillsborough disaster, which led to the deaths of 97 Liverpool fans.

"I'm pleased to approve these five clubs as early adopters of licensed safe standing areas for the second half of the season," said the minister, Nigel

"The time is now right to properly trial safe standing in the Premier League and EFL (English Football League) Championship ahead of a decision on a widespread roll-out.

"Safety is absolutely paramount and the SGSA (Sports Grounds Safety Authority) is working hand-in-glove with the clubs on this." The pilot will be independently monitored and its findings provided to the British government for it to make a decision on a possible wider roll-out of safe standing for next season. —AFP ■

Wheelchair tennis golden great Alcott to retire at Aussie Open

WHEELCHAIR great Dylan Alcott on Tuesday announced he would retire at the Australian Open in January, fresh off becoming the first man to win a tennis "Golden Slam".

The 30-year-old Australian, the most successful quad tennis player in history, with 15 Grand Slam singles and eight doubles titles, said he would compete for the last time at Melbourne Park in the opening Grand Slam of 2022. At the US Open in September Alcott made history as he completed the Golden Slam of winning all four quad singles majors and Paralympics gold in the same year.

"This is my home and the Australian Open changed my life, tennis changed my life," he told reporters in Melbourne.

"Without tennis I wouldn't be sitting here in front of you talking to you today, potentially sitting here at all, if I'm honest. I owe it everything. —AFP ■
