- 5. As such, the information was released that if those who evaded to various areas, except for persons who committed any kinds of crime, wish to return to their native lands in Myanmar of their own accord due to multiple worries, the citizens abroad can contact nearby ward, village, township and district administration bodies and relevant embassies, military attaché offices and consulates in accord with the easing restrictions under the law.

Further State responsibilities to be discharged

- There are many examples of the consequences of the instability of the state in the world.
- Tatmadaw is not an institution for seeking its own sakes or for only one organization. It is an institution to protect all national people. It conducted defence services by cooperating with the people in successive eras and it faithfully served to be a firm multiparty democracy pathway for 10 years. I pledge that we will carry out it in line with such a process.
- If we review the situations, the desires of the local/foreign terrorists and their supporters lead to the absolute destruction of the country rather than democracy. The state defence is to protect the people and we cannot let the anarchy and we cannot neglect it. Therefore, we have to sacrifice in some places.

He also called for cooperation to ensure that all stakeholders in the rice supply chain, from agriculture to export, receive a fair return, and instead of selling

He urged all to openly discuss if there are any challenges, ensuring that relevant ministries will provide necessary assistance. Attendees discussed measures for the development of the rice sector and further activities, and the Union minister coordinated as necessary.

export of Myanmar products as per the SPS Protocols and regulation requirements of each country.

It is necessary for the private sector to step up its efforts to find new markets, and the State is focusing on intergovernmental coordination, he added. He stressed the need to increase oilseed plantations and reduce oil imports by meeting the needs of the domestic market.

Afterwards, attendees presented the production of pulses, sesame seeds and maize, exports of the products, local/international prices, the situation of farmers changing according to market demand and changes in trade patterns.—MNA

Mawtinsun Pagoda - one of the religious destinations for pilgrims

By Thein Zaw (Shweli Oo)

An aerial view shows a serene pagoda—Mawtinsun Pagoda.

WHEN arriving at Pathein Port, it seems to be hearing the song 'My Dear Ma Ma Pathein Thu'. Remembering the visit of Mawtinsun Pagoda by boat from Pathein over thirty years ago, several large and small ships along the Pathein Port and Pathein River were seen with flags onboard and the rumbling sounds of loudspeakers from these ships were heard. Indeed, there were fun and happiness.

The song My Dear Ma Ma Pathein Thu is repeatedly played along the Pathein River. That is a symbol of the Maw-

Then King Thiri Dhamma Soka renovated the pagoda. In 236 Sasana Era, by using the power of Ashin Maha Moggali-puttata Tissa and Ashin Uttara, the pagoda was renovated by the king, queen and servants. In 457 Sasana Era, King Alaungsithu saw the radiance emanated from the pagoda at the top of the mountain while he was visiting overseas. So he stopped his royal raft and paid homage to the pagoda. He built one stupa at the place his royal raft was berthing. He named it PhaungtawOo Stupa on the reef of the beach at the foot of the Mawtinsun Pagoda.

After Mawtinsun Pagoda, pilgrims can pay homage to the Ngwetaung Pagoda. Ngwetaung is also a sea beach for Mawtinsun pilgrims to enjoy Mawtinsun Pagoda is one of the most attractive religious places for Myanmar people. It is a pagoda that is usually visited not only by local pilgrims but also by international tourists. It is a special opportunity for pilgrims who want to experience the added spectacular view of both the Bay of Bengal and the reefs in its vicinity.

The annual pagoda festival is held with crowded people. The festival lasts from the first waxing day of Taboung to the full moon day of Taboung. Series of traditional makeshift guest huts, which are built of bamboo, wood and thatch, are be seen and vendors are selling various kinds of local-made shell beads, shell necklaces, shell curtains, shell hats and shell vases in addition to local foods. Visitors can enjoy sea baths at Ngwetaung not far from Mawtinsun. They can wear palm-leaf hats and have coconut sap as well.

There are also some fun sports. When looking at the Mawtinsun Pagoda from the beachside the Mawtin Point can be seen obviously reaching to the sea as it is located at the cape of the southwest tip of the Myanmar map.

The tip is called Mawtinsun or Negrais Mountain or Tharaka Mountain or Niraban Mountain. In 103 Maha Era, two merchant brothers namely Tapussa and Bhalika of Okkalapa received the eight Buddha's hairs during the Buddha era. While returning to their home by sea route they passed the Negrais Cape belonging to sea bathing. The beach where Mawtinsun Pagoda is located and the pagoda festival is held is submerged all year round. The beach appears during the festival period when stalls and stages can be built. Visitors and their cars can travel on the beach as well. The beach would be submerged again once the festival winds up after the 1st waning day of Taboung.

The Mawtinsun Pagoda festival is held now. Visitors can experience and enjoy various pleasant scenery to explore the environment. Pilgrims can go there by waterway from Yangon to Pathein and thereby to Mawtinsun-Khamaukmau. They can use the motorway from Yangon to Pathein. They can choose any route – waterway or motorway – to the Mawtinsun Pagoda. When arriving in Pathein, the capital of Ayeyawady Region, from all over Myanmar, travellers can pay homage to the Shwemokht-

Vehicles consuming less fuel selling well in Yangon automobile market

WITH the prices of fuel oil skyrocketing, the most fuel-efficient gas-only cars (660 CC and 1000 CC) that consume less fuel are selling well in the Yangon automobile market.

The most fuel-efficient 660 CC cars (Suzuki Alto, Daihatsu Mira, Pino) and the 1000 CC cars (Toyota Passo/Boom, Belta) valued at below K10 million and over K11 million are in strong demand. Those bi-fuel cars (Toyota Corolla and Toyota Caldina) are worth approximately K15 million, according to the Yangon taxi dealers' market.

"The fuel oil prices are bullish for now. Only the most fuel-efficient cars are demanded. The market of cars above 1500 CC, 1800 CC are quite sluggish. However, the market of CNG cars is raising its head again in recent days. The market of those brand-new cars at showrooms is inactive. Only the second-hand automobile market sees strong demand for the most fuel-efficient cars," said a dealer.

The fuel oil price hit a record high of above K2,000 per litre.

The oil prices per litre stood at K2,015 for 92 Octane, 2,155 for 95 Octane, K2,020 for diesel and K2,045 for premium diesel on 3 March 2022. The prevailing prices are about two times the previous rates recorded in the same corresponding period last year.

"In 2020 and 2021, the oil price was less than K100,000 per barrel. Now, it tremendously soared to over K300,000 per barrel. The prices jumped to an all-time high," an oil distributor was quoted as saying. — Pwint Thitsar/GNLM

Seek excellent potent therapies of Myanmar traditional medicine

CURRENTLY, the government has decided to cooperate with the international community in conducting research on infectious diseases such as COVID-19 and non-infectious chronic diseases such as diabetes, hypertension and cancer.

Myanmar's life expectancy is about 67.42 years which is lower than that of regional and neighbouring countries. It is necessary to expose the root cause of the low life expectancy based on the medical research works. If so, findings of applied health research should be disseminated to the people in various ways and means for having basic health conditions and healthy longevity.

In the past, some veteran traditional medicine practitioners confined followers and observers to their experiences and knowledge based on methods of traditional medicine not to pass this medical knowledge on to their juniors. Regrettably, invaluable knowledge about traditional medicines was lost in the event of those veteran practitioners when they passed away. Hence, very potent Myanmar's traditional medicine knowledge is gradually down.

plants. Various ways and methods of indigenous medicines can be identified as traditional medicines.

In the past, some veteran traditional medicine practitioners confined followers and observers to their experiences and knowledge based on methods of traditional medicine not to pass this medical knowledge on to their juniors. Regrettably, invaluable knowledge about traditional medicines was lost in the event of those veteran practitioners when they passed away. Hence, very potent Myanmar's traditional medicine knowledge is gradually down.

Now is an important time for all citizens to discover potent therapies of Myanmar traditional medicine to be applied for benefiting the entire people. Acutally, both Myanmar traditional medicine and western-style medicines will help raise the life expectancy of Myanmar people in the coming years.

The arena of medical research needs to cover traditional medicine and western-style medical education. Traditional medicines are made of their own therapies to create the excellent potent items of traditional medicines to be used in treatment for people. As such, it is necessary to seek advice, experiences and expertise from veteran traditional medicine practitioners in discovering new therapies for the diseases. Consequently, Myanmar's traditional medicines will be capable of penetrating the international community.

Now, the arena of traditional medicine has progressed in taking preventive, control and treatment measures against the COVID-19 pandemic. If the firm and exact data come out from the research works, the treatment using traditional medicines can be given to the COVID-19 patients, bringing a great benefit to the people.

If those from traditional medicine can show off their brilliant skills in treatment, it can win the trust of the entire people. It is because all the ethnic nationals residing across the nation have their own techniques of giving treatment to ethnics with the use of relevant herbal

Two years into the pander

TWO years after the official start of the pandemic, some countries are now trying to "live with Covid", however scientists warn that potential new variants and unequal vaccination rates threaten any long-awaited return to normality.

When US global health researcher Christopher Murray wrote "Covid-19 will continue but the end of the pandemic is near", in The Lancet medical journal in late January, he summed up the hopes of many national health authorities around the world.

In the weeks leading up to the two-year anniversary of the World Health Organization declaring a pandemic in March 2020, countries such as Britain and Denmark lifted all legal Covid restrictions. Many US states also relaxed mask and other rules.

British Prime Minister Boris Johnson said the change marked the beginning of learning "to live with Covid", as the global death toll falls after the more transmissible though less severe Omicron variant swept the world.

The WHO has said that the "acute phase" of the pandemic could end by the middle of this year -- if around 70 per cent of the world is vaccinated.

From pandemic to endemic?

Spain has been among the nations calling for approaching

Covid as having transitioned to an "endemic" phase, meaning it has milder seasonal outbreaks that humanity can live with, such as the flu.

However some scientists worry governments could use the somewhat vague term to justify lifting life-saving measures.

University of Oxford evolutionary virologist Aris Katzourakis said "the word 'endemic' has become one of the most misused of the pandemic."

"A disease can be endemic and both widespread and deadly," he wrote in the journal Nature last week, pointing out that malaria killed more than 600,000 people in 2020, while 1.5 million died of tuberculosis.

There are also other options than just pandemic or endemic. The British government's scientific advisory body SAGE has laid out four potential scenarios for the years to come.

Under the "reasonable best-case" scenario, there will be smaller regional or seasonal outbreaks, as the higher Covid numbers lead to fewer flu cases.

Under the worst-case scenario, new unpredictable variants build into repeated damaging virus waves, requiring the return of harsh restrictions.

The different outcomes hinge on two key uncertainties: the possible emergence of new variants, and the ability of vaccines to protect against the disease in the long term.

The new variant threat

When it comes to vaccines, Omicron has served as both a warning and a test.

Many epidemiologists say that simply letting Covid spread unchecked gives it a greater chance of mutating into new strains.

And there is no guarantee that such new variants will be less deadly.

"There is a widespread, rosy misconception that viruses evolve over time to become more benign," Katzourakis said.

"This is not the case: there is no predestined evolutionary outcome for a virus to become more benign," he said, pointing out that the Delta variant was deadlier than the first strain that emerged in Wuhan, China.

Omicron also partly evades protection from the currently available vaccines.

But they are very effective in preventing severe disease and death -- particularly third booster shots which have been rolled out across the world.

Vaccines to the rescue?

Countries such as Israel and Sweden have started administering fourth doses, but experts fear that an endless number of booster shots is a short-sighted strategy. An Israeli trial in January also found that a fourth dose was less effective against Omicron.

Russia-Ukraine conflict could increase COVID-19 disease: WHO

THE World Health Organization (WHO) warned on Wednesday that the ongoing Russia-Ukraine conflict is likely to drive COVID-19 transmission ever higher and in turn increase the risk of large numbers of people developing severe disease.

"WHO is deeply concerned about the unfolding humanitarian emergency in Ukraine," said WHO Director General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus at a press briefing.

Low rates of testing

Pharma giants have raced to develop a vaccine that specifically targets Omicron, but none seem close to becoming available.

Several recent preliminary results of tests carried out on animals and not peer reviewed have suggested the targeted vaccines are no more effective against Omicron than their predecessors.

But there could be another way: broadening rather than narrowing the scope of the vaccine.

Three researchers including Anthony Fauci -- US President Joe Biden's chief medical adviser -- have called for a "universal coronavirus vaccine" that would protect not just against Covid but also against future coronaviruses that could spread from animals and trigger another pandemic.

"We must now prioritize development of broadly protective vaccines," the researchers wrote in the New England Journal of Medicine over the weekend.

However such a vaccine faces major hurdles and the first efforts have only just begun trials on humans.

In the meantime, the WHO emphasises that the best way to end the acute phase of the pandemic is for rich countries to share their doses rather than boost their populations again.

Only 13 per cent of Africans had been fully vaccinated as of late last month, according to the WHO -- far below the 70 per cent target needed by mid-year.

cent surge of cases of COVID-19. Low rates of testing since the start of the conflict mean there is likely to be significant undetected transmission. Coupled with low vaccination coverage, this increases the risk of large numbers of people developing severe disease," he said, adding that critical shortages of oxygen will have an impact on the ability to treat patients with COVID-19 and many other conditions.

According to the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, as of Tuesday, more than 870,000 people had left Ukraine, and that number is expected to increase rapidly, the WHO chief said. "Mass population movements are likely to contribute further to transmission of COVID-19, potentially increasing pressure on health systems in neighbouring countries."

Also at the briefing, Mike Ryan, executive director of the WHO Health Emergencies Programme, warned that mass population movements as a result of the conflict could possibly not only drive COVID-19 transmission higher but also favor the emergence of new variant of COVID-19 virus.

Essential medical supplies

WHO is delivering essential medical supplies from the hub in Dubai. The first shipment will arrive in Poland on Thursday, including 36 metric tons of supplies for trauma care and emergency surgery to meet the needs of 1,000 patients, and other health supplies to meet the needs of 150,000 people. However, it urges to establish a corridor to ensure humanitarian workers and supplies have safe and continuous access to reach people in need.

Efforts underway to grow 2 crops per year in Naga Self-Administered Zone

EFFORTS are being made to grow two crops a year in the Naga Self-Administered Zone, only one crop is grown each year, said U Thein Tun Tin, the Agriculture Department head in the Naga Self-Administered Zone.

“Naga region mostly grow only one crop per year. This year, they are making efforts to engage double cropping per year. We are also providing the awareness to the local farmers to grow more crops to ensure sufficient domestic consumption,” he was quoted as saying.

The local farmers from the Naga area are urged to cultivate terrace cultivation instead of shifting cultivation.

“The stair cultivation is used mostly in Leshi and Htanparkhwe townships. The local farmers from Leshi, Htanparkhwe and Pansawng areas are focusing on the farming system and it makes sufficient of the domestic consumption. There are many shifting cultivation areas in Donhee and Nanyun and it will need to be sufficient of the domestic consumption,” he added. “Now, they are cultivating orange, avocado and pineapple. There is a shortage of perennial crops in Lahe township. So, we urged them to cultivate perennial crops. But we need to distribute the seeds of crops. Butter bean prices rise almost three times in Pwintbyu Township

GROWERS of butter beans are making handsome profits in Pwintbyu Township, Magway Region as the butter bean fetches higher prices at the beginning of the harvest season.

“The harvest season started. The butter beans cultivated with the irrigation network of the Maezali diversion weir and underground water are highly yielded. The butter bean price rises almost three times to K42,000 per basket at the beginning of the harvest season, whereas it was priced at only K16,000 per basket in the year-ago period. Growers are harvesting butter beans to grow summer sesame seeds. The workers are also happy with daily income,” said U Kyaw San, a grower from Nyaungpinsauk village of Pwintbyu Township.

Growers from Pwintbyu Township are relying on irrigation water and underground water. Last winter, they primarily grew butter beans, chickpeas and green peas and some were engaged in intercropping. The farmers reaped success from the access to irrigation water and favourable weather conditions.

The exports of butter beans exceeded 3,466 tonnes in the nearly past four months of the current mini-budget period (October 2021-March 2022), generating a revenue of US$2 million, as per the Ministry of Commerce’s data.

The exports of butter beans to China, Japan and European markets have been falling. Now, it is relying only on the domestic market, said a trader from the Mandalay market.

Normally, Myanmar exports about 75 per cent of butter bean production to foreign markets – Japan, China, Denmark, Singapore, the Republic of Korea, Malaysia, Taiwan (China Taipei) and Viet Nam, with an export volume of 15,000-30,000 tonnes per year.

There are over 160,000 acres of butter bean plantations both in winter and monsoon crop seasons. The butter beans are grown in June and July for the monsoon growing season and harvested in October and November. The winter season is in October/November and harvest time is from January to March.

The butter beans are primarily cultivated in Sagaing, Bago, Magway, Mandalay and Ayeyawady regions and Mon and northern Shan states. Magway Region produces good-quality butter beans and Japan buyers prefer them. — Ye Win Naing, KK/GNLM

The registration and re-registration of companies on the MyCO website commenced on 1 August 2018 under the Myanmar Companies Law 2017.

The figures of registered companies stood at 8,011 in 2021, 15,080 in 2020, 17,380 in 2019 and 8,506 in 2018. The number of registered companies has reached 46,377 till 31 January 2019 since its establishment on 1 August 2018 as per statistics of the DICA.

In addition, all registered companies need to file annual returns (AR) on the MyCO registry system within two months of incorporation, and at least once every year (not later than one month after the anniversary of the incorporation) under Section 97 of the Myanmar Companies Law 2017.

Under Section 266 (A) of the Myanmar Companies Law 2017, public companies must submit annual returns and financial statements (G-5) simultaneously.

All overseas corporations must submit ARs in the prescribed format on MyCO within 28 days of the financial year ending under Section 53 (A-1) of the Myanmar Companies Law 2017.

As per DICA’s report, about 16,000 companies were suspended so far for failing to submit AR forms within the due date.

Newly established companies are required to submit ARs within two months of incorporation or face a fine of K100,000 for filing late returns.

The DICA has notified that any company which fails to submit its AR within 13 months will be notified of its suspension (I-9A). If it fails to submit the AR within 28 days of receiving the notice, the system will show the company’s status as suspended. Companies can restore their status only after shelling out a fine of K50,000 for AR fee, K100,000 for restoration of the company on the Register, and K100,000 for late filing of documents.

If a company fails to restore its status within six months of suspension, the registrar will strike its name off the register, according to the DICA notice. — NN/GNLM

Prince Mohammad Bin Fahd University embraces the digital transformation of higher education amid COVID-19 pandemic

OVER the last quarter-century, the meteoric rise of the internet and portable electronic devices has swiftly transformed education. Over just the last two years, however, the pace of transformation has accelerated further and even more profoundly as the world has dealt with the COVID-19 pandemic.

Amidst such upheaval in the education industry, Prince Mohammad Bin Fahd University (PMU) has agilely adapted and innovated to ensure that its student body of more than 18,000 enrollees has retained access to the best available resources and is equipped for the altered workplace of the present and future.

"The last couple of years have presented major obstacles to the enterprise of higher education as it has existed in our modern technological era," said

Dr Issa Al Ansari, President of PMU. "Yet by embracing the power of educational technology and skillfully adapting our pedagogy, we are continuing to meet our goal at PMU as a service provider of higher education by aligning with the latest practices and advancements."

This new era where administrators, faculty, and students engage some, most, or even all of the time in the enterprise of higher learning offsite through digital tools has required institutions to revamp their operations.

In this regard, the Information Technology (IT) Department at PMU has worked alongside the university's faculty and staff, as well as with the students themselves, in managing to effectively stay the academic course during the COVID-19 crisis.— ANI ■

Chinatown eateries in Indonesian capital adapt to life under COVID-19

AMID the spread of the Omicron variant in Indonesia, more eateries in "Glodok", the largest Chinatown in capital city Jakarta, have begun selling Chinese style herbal and medicinal foods. In a rented space in front of a storey house in Glodok on Monday morning, Cindy Tan was busy selling Chinese style chicken herbal soup, popularly known in Chinese-Indonesian communities as Cia Po Tim Ayam, to her customers.

"Cia Po Tim Ayam can be consumed by anyone. It's to build or boost one's stamina. This is good for a woman who just gave birth," the 32-year-old woman told Xinhua recently.

Cia Po Tim Ayam basically comes in the form of chicken stock that is infused with herbs such as goji berries, ginger and other herbal ingredients.

Of Chinese descent, Tan has been on cloud nine for the past few months as she has been gaining a small fortune from her modest food business.

The COVID-19 pandemic has increased the habit of consuming healthy foods as a method of building immunity. Noticing that, Tan decided to start her business last September. "I want to sell foods that can boost the human immune system. In my family, my mother often cooks herbal soups when her kids feel unwell or unhealthy," Tan said, adding that she learned how to make herbal soup from her mother.—Xinhua ■

THE daily COVID-19 tally in Vietnam surged to 110,301 on Wednesday, up 11,539 from Tuesday, according to the Ministry of Health. The new infections, logged in 63 localities nationwide, included 110,280 domestically transmitted and 21 imported.

The Vietnamese capital Hanoi remained the epidemic hotspot with 15,114 cases on Wednesday, also its new daily record, followed by the northern Bac Ninh province with 4,698 cases, and the central Nghe An province with 4,329 cases.

On the same day, health authorities also documented 41,551 COVID-19 cases detected earlier in the northern provinces of Nam Dinh, Bac Giang, and Thai Nguyen.

The infections brought the total tally to 3,709,481 with 40,452 deaths. Nationwide, as many as 2,516,785 COVID-19 patients, or 68 per cent of the infections, have so far recovered.

Over 195.3 million doses of COVID-19 vaccines have been administered in the country, including 178.5 million shots on people aged 18 and above, said the ministry. Vietnam has by far gone through four coronavirus waves of increasing scale, complication, and infectivity. As of Wednesday, it has registered over 3.7 million locally transmitted COVID-19 cases since the start of the current wave in April 2021, said the ministry.—Xinhua ■

US colleges lose 1 mln students since pandemic: media

US colleges have lost almost one million students since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic, an unacknowledged crisis on many levels, said a recent report of The San Diego Union-Tribune. This number is about one third of the number over the last 10 years, according to the report, citing data of the US National Student Clearinghouse Research Centre. "This is an unacknowledged crisis on many levels. It means lower lifetime earning potential for workers, less economic and social mobility, and a less educated citizenry among a host of other undesirable outcomes," said the report.—AFP ■

China's Congress to focus on boosting slowing economy

A property downturn, slowing economy and war in Ukraine loom large over this week's annual convening of China's legislature, with policymakers expected to focus on shoring up faltering growth.

The rubber-stamp parliament starting Saturday in Beijing gathers some 3,000 members of the National People's Congress (NPC) for highly choreographed meetings over bills, budgets and personnel changes.

The ruling Communist Party uses the opportunity to tout its achievements while also setting the country's economic blueprint and GDP target for the year ahead. Much of the NPC's agenda is unknown until during — or even after — the multi-day meeting, with many sessions taking place behind closed doors.

But this year, concerns are bound to centre on the country's sluggish economic growth, partly down to a crunch in the crucial property sector — which makes up as much as a quarter of national output. Stringent “zero-Covid” measures including harsh lockdowns and closed borders have also been a major blow to manufacturing hubs, tourist centres and port cities.

Meanwhile, the Russian invasion of Ukraine has raised the prospect of spiking food and oil prices, with fears over supplies of crucial commodities from the region being affected.

Commerce Minister Wang Wentao admitted to journalists this week that China's economy faces “huge” pressure this year.

Germany begins slow move away from Russian gas after Ukraine invasion

THE invasion of Ukraine has thrown Germany's problematic dependence on Russian gas into stark relief, forcing Europe's largest economy to urgently reshape its energy mix.

In a previously unthinkable step for Chancellor Olaf Scholz's young government, the crisis even has politicians considering delaying Germany's planned exit from nuclear energy and coal to keep the lights on.

“We will change course to overcome our import dependence,” Scholz said Sunday at an extraordinary session of the Bundestag, or lower house of parliament, on the Ukraine crisis. —AFP ■

IMF urges Sri Lanka to raise taxes, devalue currency

THE International Monetary Fund warned crisis-hit Sri Lanka on Thursday that its foreign debt was “unsustainable”, and called for devaluation and higher taxes to revive the almost bankrupt economy.

The pandemic pushed the South Asian island's tourism sector — a key foreign-exchange earner — off a cliff, and the government in March 2020 imposed a broad import ban to try to shore up foreign currency.

But more than two years on, Sri Lanka is grappling with food and fuel shortages, which this week saw its public transport crippled as buses ran out of diesel and the state imposed blackouts. —AFP ■

Ukraine war impact on US economy ‘highly uncertain’: Fed chief

THE impact of the conflict in Ukraine on the US economy is “highly uncertain” and the central bank will need to move with care to contain rising inflation and ensure the recovery continues, Federal Reserve Chair Jerome Powell said Wednesday.

With US prices rising at their fastest pace in four decades and oil soaring to nearly $113 a barrel on Wednesday due to the war and the sanctions imposed on Moscow by Washington and Brussels, the Fed chief repeated that policymakers are ready to raise interest rates to tamp down inflation.

However, Powell said the central bank will “proceed carefully,” and he favours increasing the benchmark borrowing rate by a modest quarter-point at the Fed's meeting later this month, although more aggressive moves

He expressed confidence central bankers can achieve a “soft landing” of the world's largest economy.

“The near-term effects on the US economy of the invasion of Ukraine, the ongoing war, the sanctions, and of events to come, remain highly uncertain,” he said in his semi-annual testimony to Congress. “We will be monitoring the situation closely.” —AFP ■

Turkey inflation woes pit tenants against landlords

KICKED out in the middle of a harsh Turkish winter, 30-year-old Erdem Yilmaz calculated that he spent two and a half months' salary to urgently relocate to a new home in Istanbul.

The father of a two-year-old is not the only Turk in this situation after last year's currency crisis.

Disputes between homeowners and tenants have risen sharply in recent months in Turkey after annual inflation reached nearly 50 per cent in January, the highest since April 2002 and may well reach a new peak on Thursday when new monthly data will be published.

In the same period, rents have exploded by 85 per cent in Istanbul and by 69 per cent at the national level, according to analysis by Bahcesehir University.

But salaries have not risen at the same pace, with most increasing by between 30 and 50 per cent on average in January. —AFP ■

Japan's Toyota suspends operations at Russia plant

TOYOTA said Thursday it would suspend operations at its only factory in Russia and stop shipping vehicles to the country, citing "supply chain disruptions" linked to Moscow's assault on Ukraine. The world's top-selling carmaker said its plant in Saint Petersburg produced around 80,000 vehicles last year, mainly for the Russian market and representing just a fraction of the 10.5 million vehicles made worldwide by the Japanese group. The Saint Petersburg plant employs around 2,600 people, a Toyota spokeswoman told AFP, confirming the supply disruption was linked to the conflict. Toyota has no factories in Ukraine but said sales operations in the country had been suspended since 24 February, when Moscow launched its assault. Western governments, sporting organizations and big companies have cut Russia off or dealt it punishing sanctions over the internationally condemned attack. And other Japanese firms announced Thursday that they were halting or altering business as a result of the situation.—AFP ■

Equities rise as Powell soothes rate fears, oil close to $120

STOCKS rose Thursday after Federal Reserve chief Jerome Powell said the bank would hike interest rates gradually to fight inflation, though oil marched towards $120 as the Ukraine conflict continues to roil energy markets. With the Russian invasion of its neighbour hammering all assets across the board as uncertainty reigns supreme, traders were given a much-needed shaft of light on Wednesday when the Fed boss eased concerns over its plans for tightening policy. Powell told lawmakers he was in favour of a moderate pace of rate increases, with a 25-basis-point lift this month, as he tries to nurture the economic recovery while keeping a lid on prices, which are rising at their fastest pace in 40 years. He warned that the "near-term effects on the US economy of the invasion of Ukraine, the ongoing war, the sanctions, and of events to come, remain highly uncertain". The comments soothed concerns that officials could announce an aggressive 50-basis-point lift. The issue of Fed tightening has cast a pall over markets for months, bringing a near two-year rally to an abrupt end, and that has now been compounded by the Ukraine crisis. Powell did, however, say the bank would remain "nimble" to events and would act more aggressively if needed down the line. Meanwhile, St. Louis Fed chief James Bullard said he was for a "rapid withdrawal of policy accommodation", as Chicago president Charles Evans added that policy was currently "wrong-footed" and should be tightened.—AFP ■

Fitbit recalls 1.7 mn smartwatches due to burn risk

FITBIT on Wednesday recalled 1.7 million of its Ionic smartwatches used for tracking steps and other activity due to the risk of batteries overheating and burning wearers. The US Consumer Product Safety Commission said in a recall notice that it received slightly more than 100 reports of Ionic wearers being burned by the smartwatches. A handful of those burns were reported to be second-degree or third-degree. "Consumers should immediately stop using the recalled Ionic smartwatches," the commission urged. About a million Ionic smartwatches have been sold in the United States and another 693,000 or so outside the country, according to the notice. Fitbit is offering refunds of $299 each for the recalled smartwatches, which the company had manufactured in Taiwan but stopped producing in 2020. Auctioneer Sotheby's sees double benefit to crypto wave

SOTHEBY'S auction house is almost three centuries old but its top brass want to embrace the cutting edge of technology and all of its buzzwords -- metaverse, NFT and crypto among them. He is talking about non-fungible tokens, the ubiquitous digital objects that are linked to pieces of art or other items, some of which the ancient auction house has sold for millions of dollars over the past year. Ukraine side playing for time at behest of US: Russian Foreign Minister

RUSSIAN Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov has said that Moscow is preparing for the second round of talks with Kyiv but the Ukrainian side is dragging its feet at the behest of Washington.

“We are ready for the second round of the negotiations, but the Ukrainian side is playing for time on the US’ orders”, Lavrov told Al Jazeera.

Amid Russia’s military action in Ukraine, the second round of talks between the Russia and Ukraine delegation is scheduled to be held on Wednesday in Belarus. Earlier, Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said that the Russian delegation will wait for the Ukrainian negotiators at the site of the talks late in the evening on Wednesday, Sputnik reported.

Peskov had confirmed that presidential aide Vladimir Medinsky remains the main Russian negotiator in Russia’s talks with Ukraine. The first round of talks between the two sides was held in the Gomel region of Belarus on Monday. The talks are aimed at finding a way to end the Ukraine conflict.

Vladimir Medinsky told reporters that during the negotiations, the sides managed to find “some common points on which we predict common positions can be found”. Following the talks, Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy’s office said Russia and Ukraine identified some priority topics on which they have outlined certain decisions.

His office had said earlier that the key “issue of the negotiations is an immediate ceasefire and the withdrawal of troops from the territory of Ukraine”.—ANI■

Japan to accept people displaced by Russian invasion of Ukraine

JAPAN is planning to accept people fleeing Russia’s invasion of Ukraine at an early date, Prime Minister Fumio Kishida said Wednesday as Tokyo ramps up its humanitarian support.

The government will first allow in people who have fled Ukraine and have relatives or acquaintances in Japan. But the door will also open to those who do not, given the severe humanitarian situation, Kishida said.

“Japan will allow in people who have fled Ukraine to third countries as we wish to show our solidarity with the people of Ukraine when the world is at a critical juncture,” Kishida told reporters after speaking by phone with German and Polish leaders. “The Ukrainian situation is tense, and refugees are growing in large numbers. We will make preparations to cope with this situation as soon as possible,” he said.—Kyodo ■

Athens evacuates Greeks from Ukraine as Russia advances

ATHENS on Wednesday launched an operation to evacuate Greek diplomats, journalists and other citizens from the Ukrainian city of Mariupol as Russian forces push further into the country. A convoy of 21 cars with over 80 people had set out, accompanied by the ambassador to Ukraine, Greek public television ERT reported.

A Greek foreign ministry source said the convoy would head west under Russian assurances of safety, picking up people from other cities including Dnipro and Zaporizhzhia.

“Mariupol today is under fire from the north and south, it is a surrounded city,” junior foreign minister Miltiadis Varvitsiotis told ERT, warning the journey of 1,100 kilometres (685 miles) will be “difficult, even in terms of obtaining fuel”.—AFP ■

Georgia to apply ‘immediately’ for EU membership

GEORGIA will “immediately” apply for EU membership, the Black Sea nation’s ruling party said Wednesday, a day after the European Parliament backed war-torn Ukraine’s bid to apply for EU membership. The ruling Georgian Dream party chairman, Irakli Kobakhidze, announced the party’s “decision today to immediately apply for the EU membership”.

Georgia calls on the EU “to review our application in an urgent manner and to make the decision to grant Georgia the status of an EU membership candidate”, he told journalists. The decision was made “based on the overall political context and the new reality”, he added. Georgia’s EU integration would put the country “on a path which will lead our country to a qualitative increase in our population’s wellbeing, security, and to de-occupation,” he added. Georgia’s decision followed a similar move by Ukraine’s President Volodymyr Zelensky, who won backing from MEPs in a non-binding resolution recommending EU bodies grant Ukraine the status of candidate country.— AFP ■

Russia seizes key southern Ukraine city after week of war

RUSSIAN troops have seized Kherson, the first major Ukrainian city to fall in a devastating week-old war that has already created one million refugees. The capture of the Black Sea city of 290,000 people, which just last year hosted NATO-supported war games, appeared a significant boost for Moscow as it readied for potential ceasefire talks on Thursday. Russian “occupiers” were in “all parts” of Kherson, Ukrainian regional official Gennady Lakhuta conceded late on Wednesday. After a three-day siege that left Kherson short of food and medicine, and struggling to collect and bury its dead, the town’s mayor also announced he was in talks with “armed guests”.—AFP ■

US delays ICBM test to avoid raising nuclear tensions with Russia

THE US Defence Department said Wednesday it will postpone an intercontinental ballistic missile test in an effort to avoid any actions that could further heighten tensions with Russia amid its ongoing invasion of Ukraine. “We have no intention in engaging in any actions that can be misunderstood or misconstrued,” Pentagon spokesman John Kirby said as he announced the delay of the Minuteman III ICBM test launch scheduled for this week, after Russian President Vladimir Putin said he was putting his country’s nuclear forces on high alert. Kirby criticized Russia for its “provocative rhetoric”, and emphasized the United States has “not taken any similar steps,” while insisting its ability to defend its homeland, as well as its allies and partners, remains “fully intact and ready”. The decision to postpone the ICBM test has not been taken lightly, but is intended to demonstrate that the United States is “a responsible nuclear power”, Kirby told a press conference.

EU lays out plan for Ukrainian refugees to stay 2 years

THE European Commission on Wednesday set out its proposal for EU member states to let Ukrainians fleeing Russia’s invasion stay and work in the bloc for an initial two years. The urgent plan is being rolled out as over 650,000 people have already fled across the border into eastern EU states Poland, Slovakia, Hungary and Romania that neighbour Ukraine. Many more are expected as the Kremlin’s forces unleash ferocious bombardments against major cities. The United Nation’s refugee agency, UNHCR, said on Tuesday an estimated one million people were displaced inside Ukraine by the Russian invasion. “Europe stands by those in need of protection. All those fleeing Putin’s bombs are welcome in Europe,” European Commission chief Ursula von der Leyen said in a statement. “We will provide protection to those seeking shelter and we will help those looking for a safe way home.” The proposal by the EU’s executive would give refugees from Ukraine and family members a residence permit and the right to access work and education for an initial two years.

Abramovich to sell Chelsea with net proceeds going to Ukraine war victims

CHELSEA'S Russian owner Roman Abramovich said on Wednesday he had made the "incredibly difficult" decision to sell the Premier League club, pledging that proceeds would go to victims of the war in Ukraine.

The billionaire believes it is in the "best interest" of the Champions League holders if he parts ways with the club he has transformed since he bought it in 2003.

The dramatic development comes days after Abramovich said he was handing over control of Chelsea to trustees of its charitable foundation following Russia's invasion of Ukraine.

"I have always taken decisions with the club's best interest at heart," Abramovich said in a statement. "In the current situation, I have therefore taken the decision to sell the club, as I believe this is in the best interest of the club, the fans, the employees, as well as the club's sponsors and partners."

It is a seismic moment for English football after nearly two decades during which Abramovich's team have consistently challenged for the sport's top honours.

Chelsea have won 19 major trophies in the Abramovich era, including their first two Champions League crowns and five Premier League titles.

But the 55-year-old's reign will come to an end in the fall-out from Russia's invasion of its neighbour. — AFP ■

Juve seize late control of cup semi on Vlahovic's return to Fiorentina

JUVENTUS took control of their Italian Cup semi-final on Wednesday after Lorenzo Venuti's late own goal gave the visitors a 1-0 first-leg win on Dusan Vlahovic's return to Florence.

Venuti left the field in tears after he deflected Juan Cuadrado's cross into his own net in the first minute of stoppage time to hand Juve the win and a potentially crucial away goal.

Serbia forward Vlahovic was back at the Stadio Artemio

Franchi for the first time since moving to Turin in January but had little joy for depleted Juve in a tense match which lacked quality.

"It was a difficult match because we were missing so many players, but we managed to keep order and we're improving," said Juve coach Massimiliano Allegri to Mediaset.

"We're doing well physically and psychologically, now we need to put this match to once side and look to the weekend."

The tie will be decided at the Allianz Stadium next month, with the winners taking on either AC Milan or Inter Milan — who drew 0-0 on Tuesday — in May's final in Rome.

"I don't know what more I could have asked, we had 22 shots and hardly conceded anything at the back," said Fiorentina coach Vincenzo Italiano.

"We've still got the second leg and we'll go to Turin to play our own game." — AFP ■
