The right of citizens can only be claimed if there is no destructive elements

- Individual human rights include respect for each other; Appreciation is the most important thing. Citizens can also claim their rights if they have a country.

Concerning the agriculture sector, the Senior General said: “We have to efficiently utilize the farmlands with per-acre yield and then strive for increasing the per-acre yield. We have to seek good quality strains of crops. The Agricultural Research Department is taking responsibility for conducting agricultural research. It identifies the quality strains as their results. It can be used on a commercial scale. The whole country grows 15 million acres of paddy, including monsoon and hybrid paddy. For example, two each strains from regions and states, totalling 28 plus two from Nay Pyi Taw must be produced. It is not enough to just research and their findings. It needs to lead the ways how to implement it. Will the State implement it? If so, how does the State manage it? Now, demonstration covers the display of research but it does not comprise a wider scale of works. All staff have in nature when they will do everything under the management of the superior level. I’d like to remove it. They all have to culture the spirit of how to do everything for their regions. Regarding sunflower, it has domestic high yield strains and hybrid strains. I observe the hybrid strain yields 50 baskets per acre and domestic strains some 25-26 baskets per acre. So, we need to choose the hybrid strain. How can we do it? How can we seek the strains? It will be done by the State. If so, how shall we do it? How shall private businesspersons do it? Importantly, we have to do everything practically.”

The Senior General stressed the need to do cultivation of seasonal crops and operate river water pumping stations with solar power as well as strive for the development of the nation.

The Senior General urged all to implement generating of electricity through solar power in respective regions in order to reduce the supply of electricity from the national grid. Currently, electrification must be implemented with solar power while efforts must be made for timely completion of the electric power projects within two or three years.

It is necessary to increase the export volume and reduce the import of edible oil and fuel as much as possible, the Senior General noted.

The Senior General also noted that only when the people receive vaccination for COVID-19 will it take the preventive measure against the disease infection to some extent. Hence, the vaccination process must be carried out in respective areas under the proper security measures, he added.

Ministries and region and state authorities should avoid seeking profits by applying authority and must focus on serving the interests of the nation without political scandals. Region and state chief ministers were urged to make efforts for doing nation-building endeavours as the good records in the tenure of the current government.

Before the speech of the Senior General, Union ministers for Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation, Electricity and Energy, Commerce and Health reported on changes in agricultural techniques for increasing per-acre yield, the establishment of a special zone for edible oil crops, plans to generate electricity from hydropower, wind hand. He highlighted that all courses of universities will be reopened in May 2022 for the attendance of students who passed the 2019-2020 academic year matriculation examination. As those students will be posed various threats not attending universities, preparations must be made to take security measures. Moreover, the Senior General said regions and states have been allowed to organize this year’s Thingyan festival as COVID-19 can be placed under control to some extent. — MNA

Chrysanthemum growers earn regular income in Kyaikmaraw

The wholesale price of chrysanthemum is K800 per five flowers. The price of flowers could change depending upon the size.

THE farmers from Peinnegon village from Kyaikmaraw township is growing chrysanthemum flowers in their village on a manageable scale and earning daily income by selling them, it is learnt.

The chrysanthemum flowers in Peinnegon village are mostly grown for income generation for the families. The flowers started growing in August. After growing for 90 days, they are ready to harvest and sell it in the market, according to chrysanthemum growers.

Those chrysanthemum seeds are bought at the seed shops in Mawlamyine and replanted with the sowing of the seed. Now, the growers are earning a regular income by growing them. Now, some are growing the chrysanthemum plantations on a trial basis and their farmlands have met with success, said Daw Chit Su, a commercial grower of chrysanthemum plants.

The most important thing in growing flowers is to water them a lot. For the growth of plants, the plants need to be sprayed with fertilizer. At present, the weather is so hot that the flowers can be damaged within a short period. So, the growers need to water once in the morning and once in the evening.

Unripen mangoes wrapped in plastic bags in Kanbalu, Kyunhla townships

THE mango farm owners started to wrap unripen mangoes in plastic bags in Kanbalu and Kyunhla townships in Sagaing Region to protect them from the pest.

“Mango growers are spraying the trees with the pesticide. They have wrapped the unripe mango in plastic bags. The growers are exchanging information and closely observing the market situations as the watermelon export market collapsed in the cross-border between Myanmar and China,” said U Than Tun Oo.

“This year, the input cost for the bags increased, posing a burden on the growers. The growers can take the bags in debt. Now, the instability of the market allowed the buyers to cash down only. The growers are trying to reap profits,” he continued.

Over 100 mango growers in Kanbalu and Kyunhla townships execute over 3,000 acres. They prioritize quality Seintalone mango variety farming. Myanmar delivers the Seintalone mango variety to China market through the Muse border post every year.

“The harvest season will start after 15 May. The mangoes will be sent to Muse, Yangon and Mandalay cities. They primarily rely on the Muse market. If there’s a trade barrier in Muse, the growers can suffer loss. When China reopens cross-border posts, the market can raise its head for sure,” U Than Tun Oo was quoted as saying.

This year, the blossom of mango trees is late a bit and so does the harvest season, he added.

“The market fallout of watermelon raised the concerns if the mango growers either. About two-thirds of growers’ group do their farming activity regularly in the hope of market recovery,” he elaborated.

British police issue first 20 fines in ‘Partygate’ probe

BRITISH police said on Tuesday that they would issue 20 fixed penalty notices (FPN) over breaches of coronavirus lockdown rules at gatherings in Prime Minister Boris Johnson’s offices and residence at Downing Street.

“We will today initially begin to refer 20 fixed penalty notices to be issued for breaches of COVID-19 regulations. The ACRO Criminal Records Office will then be responsible for issuing the FPNs to the individual following the referrals from the MPS,” the Metropolitan Police Service (Met) said in a statement.

The Met didn’t disclose the names of the individuals being fined and added that they would not confirm the number of referrals from each individual event subject to their investigation as “providing a breakdown at this point may lead to identification of the individuals.”

Parties held at Downing Street in 2020 and 2021 have enraged the British public who were asked to follow coronavirus restrictions for many months over the past two years to curb the spread of COVID-19. Johnson’s premiership has been precarious following the revelation of these illicit gatherings, with calls from opposition parties and even members of his own Conservative Party for him to resign.—ANI ■

COVID-19 cases may spike during Lao New Year: health department

THE National Taskforce Committee for COVID-19 Prevention and Control has expressed concern about the possibility of another spike in COVID-19 cases in the coming weeks as people gather to celebrate Pi Mai Lao, the Lao New Year.

In a precautionary move, the government has instructed officials not to arrange events to celebrate the new year in order to prevent people from gathering in large numbers and spreading the virus, the local daily Vientiane Times reported on Tuesday.

However, it is inevitable that people will hold parties at their homes, which may trigger cluster outbreaks of COVID-19 if they do not comply with virus control measures.

To reduce the risk, The Lao Ministry of Health has urged everyone to protect themselves by wearing a face mask, maintaining a distance of at least one metre from other people, and using hand sanitizer to prevent transmission of the virus through physical contact.

In addition, everyone is advised to get a COVID-19 vaccination. Even though the Omicron variant of COVID-19 is not as harmful as Delta, it does not mean that people can become careless as the virus can cause damage to people aged over 60 and those with a chronic illness, according to the report.—Xinhua ■

Spain scraps quarantine for mild Covid cases

SPAIN on Tuesday ended a requirement that people with mild cases of Covid-19 self-isolate as part of a shift towards treating the virus as an endemic illness like flu.

The country, one of the hardest hit in Europe by the pandemic when it first took hold in March 2020, said the change was justified given its low Covid-19 infection rate and high vaccination levels.

The new strategy will focus attention on “vulnerable people” and serious cases of Covid, said a health ministry statement.

This will “imply accepting a certain level of transmission” of Covid “among vaccinated and young people”, it added.

In addition to dropping the quarantine requirement, the government has stopped testing people with symptoms or who were in close contact with an infected person. From now, testing will focus on vulnerable people, such as those over 60, caregivers, pregnant women and those who are immunocompromised.—AFP ■

Dutch gov’t unveils plan for receiving EU COVID-19 fund

THE Dutch government has taken the first steps to get 4.7 billion euros (5.17 billion US dollars) from the European COVID-19 recovery fund, Finance Minister Sigrid Kaag announced in a letter to the House of Representatives on Monday.

The steps comprise 39 measures that can be financed with subsidies from Brussels, including plans for more wind energy at sea and a CO2 tax for the industrial sector. It is now up to the parliament to give its opinion on these plans.

If the parliament agrees, the list of measures will be sent to the European Commission. A green light from the European Union (EU) is expected in the autumn of this year.

The EU COVID-19 recovery fund with 672.5 billion euros was launched in autumn 2020 to give the European economy a boost.

As part of the fund, 312.5 billion euros will be allocated as grants intended for, among other things, investments in climate and digitization plans.—Xinhua ■

Spain bans job dismissals linked to soaring energy prices

THE Spanish government on Tuesday banned firms which get state aid to deal with the economic impact of Russia's invasion of Ukraine from firing workers over rising energy prices.

Like the rest of Europe, Spain has been grappling since last year with soaring energy prices which helped push inflation in February to its highest level in over 30 years.

Job terminations will be deemed "unjustified when they are the result of causes linked to the rise in energy costs", Labour Minister Yolanda Diaz told a news conference.

"I want to send a clear message to business leaders in our country: during a crisis, when social protection mechanisms exist...we must not lay off," she added following a weekly cabinet meeting.—AFP ■

Turkey announces new tax cuts to fight high inflation

TURKISH President Recep Tayyip Erdogan has announced value-added tax (VAT) cuts on several products to fight inflation.

The VAT cuts included mostly necessities, such as hygiene products and medical equipment, Erdogan said at a press conference after a cabinet meeting.

"We have decided to reduce the VAT on products such as detergent, soap, toilet paper, napkins and baby diapers from 18 per cent to 8 per cent," he said.

The government will also reduce the financial burden on the construction industry by cutting the VAT on landed property to 8 per cent, the president added.

In the agricultural sector, the country will reduce VAT to 1 per cent on all kinds of certified seed, seedling and sapling deliveries, and to 8 per cent for some products such as milk collection tanks, according to Erdogan.—AFP ■

BOJ chief sees no direct impact from market operations on yen moves

THE Bank of Japan's operations to buy unlimited amounts of 10-year Japanese government bonds to stem a rise in long-term interest rates do not have a "large, direct" impact on currency moves, Governor Haruhiko Kuroda said Wednesday.

Speaking to reporters after meeting with Prime Minister Fumio Kishida, Kuroda said currency moves should be stable and reflect economic fundamentals, after the Japanese yen tumbled earlier this week to an over six-year low.

The yen's recent "slight" fall against the dollar comes as demand from Japanese importers for US dollars remains strong following surging energy prices, and the US Federal Reserve serve has clarified its stance on raising interest rates, the BOJ chief said.

"I don't think our market operations have a large, direct impact on currency movements," Kuroda said at the prime minister's office.

"I told the prime minister that it is desirable for foreign exchange rates to move in a stable manner and reflect economic fundamentals," he said, adding that he discussed the impact of Russia's invasion of Ukraine on the global economy.

After the Kuroda-Kishida meeting was reported by the media, the dollar fell quickly below the 121.50 yen line. The dollar, which broke past the 125 yen line earlier this week, was trading in the upper 121 yen zone in the afternoon.

Following the meeting, Chief Cabinet Secretary Hirokazu Matsuno said it is important for the government to have close communication with the BOJ.—Kyodo ■

Vietnam's first quarter economic growth higher year-on-year

VIETNAM'S economy expanded more than five per cent in the first three months of the year, the government said Tuesday thanks to a pick-up in exports as the country emerges from the worst of the global pandemic, though officials warned of headwinds.

The communist state has long been a success story among Asian economies, posting growth of seven per cent in 2019. But growth came in at just 2.9 per cent in 2020 as the pandemic shut most of the world down, while last year saw just 2.6 per cent expansion. The figures were the worst the country has experienced since the mid-1980s.

However, the General Statistics Office said gross domestic product came in at 5.03 per cent on-year.

Turnover from exports of goods in the first quarter was at $88.58 billion, up by 12.9 per cent on-year, the GSO added.

"While the economy continues to show resilience and is recovering, downside risks have heightened as the Omicron infections are sweeping the country and the Russia-Ukraine conflict has increased uncertainty about global economic recovery," the World Bank said in a report on Vietnam in March.—AFP ■

Qatar to invest $5 billion in Egypt, eyes offshore gas

QATAR is to invest $5 billion in Egypt, the government in Cairo announced Tuesday, in another sign of a growing rapprochement following last year's restoration of ties.

The announcement came after talks between President Abdel Fattah al-Sisi and visiting Qatari Foreign Minister Mohammed bin Abdulrahman Al-Thani, who also met Prime Minister Mostafa Madbouli.

A government statement said Qatar was to plough $5 in "investments and partnerships" in Egypt, without giving specifics.

However, QatarEnergy released a statement announcing an agreement with ExxonMobil to acquire a 40-per-cent interest in a gas exploration block off Egypt in the Mediterranean.

The two countries restored diplomatic relations in 2021, after Egypt, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates and Bahrain severed relations with Qatar in 2017 over its alleged support for radical Islamist groups and being too close to Iran, charges denied by Doha. Egypt's own relations with Qatar had been strained ever since the 2013 military ouster of Egypt's Islamist president Mohamed Morsi, who was backed by Doha. In January 2021, Saudi Arabia signalled an end to the diplomatic rift, and the four boycotting countries agreed to lift a blockade.

The rapprochement has since been oriented towards investment. A Qatari delegation visited Cairo last year for the inauguration of a Qatar-owned hotel estimated to be worth $1 billion.—AFP ■

Geneva watch show returns under shadow of Ukraine war

SWITZERLAND'S top luxury watch fair will resurface this week in Geneva after two years of pandemic-induced virtual shows, but Ukraine's raging conflict and Covid lockdowns in China could dampen the mood.

"We are extremely happy to have succeeded in setting up this major fine-watchmaking event in a difficult health and human context," Emmanuel Perrin, head of the Foundation High Horology (FHH) said in a statement. "After two years of

S. Korea's consumer sentiment improves in March

SENTIMENT among South Korean consumers over economic situations improved this month due to the eased social-distancing rule against the COVID-19 pandemic, central bank data showed Tuesday. The composite consumer sentiment index (CCSI) stood at 103.2 in March, up 0.1 point from the previous month, according to the Bank of Korea (BOK). It came as the government moderated anti-virus measures by extending business hours and raising the number of people allowed for private gatherings in a bid to help small merchants overcome the pandemic-hit economic slump. In the latest tally, the country reported 347,554 more COVID-19 cases for the past 24 hours, lifting the total number of infections to 12,350,428. Sub-indices showed a mixed result. S. Korea refutes N. Korea’s claim it launched of new type of ICBM

SOUTH Korea’s defence ministry on Tuesday refuted a claim by North Korea that a missile it launched last week was a new type of intercontinental ballistic missile, saying it was likely an existing type of ICBM.

Briefing South Korean lawmakers behind closed doors on the analysis of the ICBM fired last Thursday, the ministry said the North launched a Hwasong-15 ICBM and not the new “Hwasong-17,” which military analysts have dubbed a “monster missile”.

The Hwasong-15, seen as capable of delivering a nuclear warhead anywhere on the US mainland, was successfully fired in 2017. North Korea has confirmed that it fired the Hwasong-17 under the guidance of North Korean leader Kim Jong, state media later reported. The firing was the first ICBM launch by the North since November 2017. The ICBM was fired from the Sunan area in Pyongyang and fell within Japan’s exclusive economic zone in the Sea of Japan after flying a distance of about 1,100 kilometres and reaching an altitude of 6,200 km, according to the Japanese and South Korean governments. While US officials have not determined the type of ICBM launched, they believe it was a Hwasong-15, the South Korean defence ministry said. According to the ministry and a lawmaker who attended the briefing, it was determined that the ICBM on 24 March was a Hwasong-15 due to factors such as similar flight characteristics and analysis of the footage.— Kyodo ■

Biden signs law finally making lynching a hate crime

US President Joe Biden on Tuesday signed into law a bill finally making racist lynchings a federal hate crime, ending more than a century of delays in outlawing the symbol of what he called “pure terror”.

Anyone convicted under the new law will face up to 30 years in prison, ending a history of impunity over what researchers say were thousands of lynchings — often unpunished — between the end of the Civil War in 1865 and 1950.—AFP ■

Russia-Ukraine talks “constructive” to settle conflict

RUSSIAN and Ukrainian delegations held “constructive” negotiations in Turkey on Tuesday, raising the curtain on concrete efforts of both sides to broker a solution to the current conflict.

During the fifth round of talks, or the fourth face-to-face meeting, which lasted for about three hours in Istanbul, the two sides finally clinched some progress in exploring possible ways out of the tensions. Local media reported that consultations will continue via video link.

Some analysts believe that as talks between the two countries continue, the scale and intensity of the military conflict may well decrease gradually, while there is still “a long way to go” before a complete settlement.

NEWS DIGEST

Here are the latest developments in the war in Ukraine:

Russia to ‘reduce’ Kyiv attacks

Russia pauses failed efforts to encircle Kyiv, announcing it will “radically” reduce military activity around the Ukrainian capital.

Moscow says attacks on the northern city of Chernihiv will also ease, after “meaningful” progress in peace talks held in Istanbul.

Cautious response

President Volodymyr Zelensky cautiously welcomes the “positive” signals from Moscow, saying Ukrainian forces “will not decrease” defensive efforts.

The Pentagon warns Russia is “repositioning” troops not withdrawing. “Russia has failed in its objective of capturing Kyiv,” a spokesman says, but “it does not mean that the threat to Kyiv is over.”

Mykolaiv strike

Twelve people are killed and 34 injured when a Russian missile strike hits a regional government building in Mykolaiv.

US warns threat not over

The United States is sceptical of Russia’s promise to curtail military assaults on Ukraine’s capital Kyiv and its northern city Chernihiv, Pentagon spokesman John Kirby said Tuesday, following ceasefire talks between Kyiv and Moscow.

Kirby described the movement of some Russian units away from Kyiv as “a repositioning, not a real withdrawal,” cautioning of the possibility of major offensives against other areas of Ukraine. He renewed US calls for a complete Russian withdrawal from the country.

“Nationalists” in Mariupol must surrender

Russian President Vladimir Putin says “nationalists” in the besieged port city of Mariupol must surrender before the “difficult humanitarian situation” is resolved, effectively scuppering a proposed international relief mission.

China state broadcaster airs
first NBA match since 2020

NBA basketball returned to Chinese state broadcaster CCTV for the first time in nearly 18 months on Wednesday, after China blacklisted it following a team official's support for Hong Kong's pro-democracy movement.

National broadcaster CCTV streamed the Los Angeles Clippers' 121-115 victory over the Utah Jazz, to a mixed reception from Chinese basketball fans.

China, the NBA's largest overseas market by far, suspended broadcasts on CCTV after the Houston Rockets' then-general manager Daryl Morey tweeted in support of Hong Kong democracy protesters in 2019. Since then, CCTV has frozen out the league, but viewers have been able to watch games on online streaming platforms and CCTV aired Game 5 of the NBA Finals in October 2020. A CCTV spokesperson at that time called the decision a "normal broadcast arrangement" and noted the NBA's "continued expressions of goodwill" towards China. — AFP ■

Peru book World Cup play-off spot as Colombia, Chile miss out

PERU booked a World Cup play-off spot against either Australia or the United Arab Emirates with a 2-0 victory over Paraguay on Tuesday, thus dashing the hopes of Colombia and Chile to reach the Qatar extravaganza.

With Brazil, Argentina, Ecuador and Uruguay already qualified, all that was to play for in the final round of South American qualifying was fifth place and an intercontinental play-off. Both Colombia, who won 1-0 away to Venezuela, and Chile, beaten 2-0 at home by Uruguay, could have qualified with victory had Peru slipped up.

But for the second World Cup qualification campaign in a row, Peru head into a play-off.

Last time they beat New Zealand 2-0 over two legs but their task will be harder this time with a one-off clash against either the Socceroos or UAE in Qatar in June. Italy-born Gianluca Lapadula opened the scoring on five minutes in Lima and although debutant Sebastian Ferreira hit the bar soon after for Paraguay, Peru were largely in control.

Yoshimar Yotun doubled the advantage on 42 minutes, acrobatically converting a cross from Edison Flores. It could have been more comfortable for Peru but Lapadula was twice denied by the woodwork. Colombia missed out on the play-off by a single point. — AFP ■
