Statement to appreciate teachers' efforts

TEACHERS are honoured as part of the Five Infinite Venerables, and the manner of paying respect to the teachers can be only seen in Myanmar as a tradition. The teachers teach their pupils based on their goodwill like their own children and dutifully serve a teacher's duties. They must train their pupils and students in the best discipline. They see that they grasp their lessons well. They instruct them in the arts and sciences, they provide for their safety in every quarter, and they introduce them to their friends and associates.

As the COVID-19 infection rate is controlled to a certain extent, the basic education high, middle and primary schools under the Department of Basic Education have reopened across nation for the 2021-2022 academic year starting 1 June.

Those who want to seek good sake of one party, political extremist NLD members and supporters, NUG, CRPH and PDF committed arson attacks at the schools using mines, homemade bombs and grenades to fail the teaching processes, and threatened the teachers in addition to the incitements, social punishment and threats against education staff to join CDM while the officials made preparations for the reopening of schools and during the current teaching period. Their doings left some casualties, and the State Administration Council has expressed its deepest condolences and sympathy to the victims' families.

The SAC also appreciates the concerted efforts of teachers, who understand two virtues, Hiri — shame at doing evil —and Otappa—fear of the results of doing evil—for teaching the new generations of the country amid such difficulties and challenges.

The security forces will take extraordinary measures to ensure the safety of teachers who are making efforts in the academic sector for the next generations in order to promote the education qualification. The people should keep security awareness and cooperate with the security members in community peace and peaceful learning of children.

Instructor officers must be skilful in military arts and knowledgeable in conducting training: Vice-Senior General

State Administration Council Vice-Chairman Deputy Commander-in-Chief of Defence Services Commander-in-Chief (Army) Vice-Senior General Soe Win meets the training instructors, officers, other ranks and family members at the Bahtoo Station yesterday.

THE defence strategy of the State is the people's militia strategy with all-inclusive of the entire people centring the Tatmadaw, so they all need to live in the harmonization of the people, said Vice-Chairman of the State Administration Council Deputy Commander-in-Chief of Defence Services Commander-in-Chief (Army) Vice-Senior General Soe Win in meeting with training instructors, officers, other ranks and families of Bahtoo Station at Aung San Hall of the Defence Services (Army) Combat Forces School (Bahtoo) yesterday afternoon. In his speech, the Vice-Senior General noted that instructor officers must be skilful in military arts and knowledgeable in conducting training. Despite the difference in badges depending on functions and organizational setup, they all serve the State defence duties by taking the four-point oath in the same missions and visions. They all have to abide by the laws in implementing the assigned responsibilities and orders. They must protect the life and property of the people in their administrative areas. The State's defence strategy is the people's militia strategy with all-inclusive of the entire people centring the Tatmadaw, so they all need to live in the harmonization of the people. It is necessary to assist in implementing the Pankhinn project to issue citizenship scrutiny cards to all eligible voters for the coming free and fair election and security and other essential measures. Likewise, it is necessary to expose and wipe off the danger of terrorists who attempt to disturb the efforts of the State for the prosperity of the nation and efficiency of food and water.

The government, the security forces, government personnel and ethnic people will join hands in wiping off the terrorists and making efforts to successfully hold the free and fair election the people long for. As the Tatmadaw members and families are partially serving the vital duty of the State at any time, they need to take care of their health and fitness individually. Only when they are healthy and fit will they serve the assigned duties. They all have to successfully overcome challenges and difficulties for serving the interests of the State and the Tatmadaw through unity. The Vice-Senior General fulfilled the requirements submitted by the Tatmadaw members and families. After the meeting, the Vice-Senior General presented foodstuff for instructor officers, officers, other ranks and families of the station to the commandant.

Import prices likely to drop as FX deposits must be converted into local currency at CBM reference rate of K1,850

THE Foreign exchange earned by locals in Myanmar must be deposited in accounts at the authorized banks and exchanged for the local currency at the Central Bank of Myanmar's reference rate of K1,850, which can result in a drop in the import prices, Dr Soe Tun, an economist shared his opinion on his social page.

According to the provisions stipulated in Sections 11, 12 and 13 of the Foreign Exchange Management Law, all the foreign currency earned by locals have to be exchanged for local currency at the CBM's reference rate of K1,850 by opening the accounts at the authorized dealers in the country within one working day, according to the notification released on 3 April.

Central Bank of Myanmar (CBM).

The importers can exchange the US dollar at K1,850 at the licenced banks, and the prices of fuel oil, edible oil, pharmaceuticals, construction materials and consumer goods are expected to drop by 10 per cent within a short time if there is sufficient foreign currency for sales to import those important goods, Dr Soe Tun gave a remark.

Meanwhile, the export sector involving rice, broken rice, various beans and pulses, corn, fishery products and other goods sees no changes in cost and freight (CFR) and Free on board (FOB) prices. However, policy changes will incur a massive loss to the exporters as the exchange rate falls by 10.8 per cent between the CBM's rate at (K1,850 per dollar) and the unofficial exchange K2,050. For instance, if the exporters sell one million dollars, they lose about K200 million.

This policy can also impact the dollar holders in the long term. The gold price can also decrease by tracking the currency appreciation, said Dr Soe Tun. — NN/GNLM

Basics of fish/shrimp disease diagnosis, treatment conducted for farmers

Microscopic check on the disease of fish/ shrimps.

THE Myanmar Fisheries Federation, the Aqua Myanmar and Fish/Shrimp Diagnostic Laboratory have taught the farmers the basics of fish/shrimp disease diagnosis and treatment for four days at the Myanmar Fisheries Federation in Yangon. The certificates of achievements were awarded yesterday evening.

Dr Kay Lwin Tun, Dean of the Department of Zoology, Yangon University, taught theoretical knowledge and practical subjects to 6 fish/shrimp farmers from Ayeyawady and Yangon Regions who were practising fish farming. The purpose of the training was to prevent disease and loss during the breeding period from hatching to commercial age, improve the quality of production, and detect the disease in the fish/shrimp hatcheries in advance.

The training also covered ways to practically diagnose diseases of fish/shrimp and ways to solve the difficulties in breeding, changing water, food price volatility, lack of access to specific shrimp food, lack of access to technology, and food and diseases which need special care.

That is the first batch of the training, and more trainees will be admitted to provide more comprehensive teaching of the subjects and skills, which will help to do year-round breeding skills. It is reported that the training was conducted free of charge. — Nyein Thu (MNA)/GNLM

Turn out educated persons in upgrading the education sector

“OUR country is very weak in the education sector. More than five million of over nine million students enrolled in the previous academic year,” Senior General Min Aung Hlaing, Chairman of the State Administration Council and Prime Minister, was quoted as saying at the SAC Meeting 3/2022 on 30 March.

The number of students in all countries can be seen as a pyramid form. The basic level of them is the largest number. Last academic year, more than five million enrolled students were accounted for just 60 per cent of the total student population. Some levels. They should have basic knowledge based on at least middle school education to learn techniques and technologies. Last year, some 100,000 people completed the training in technical high schools and vocational education schools.

Educated persons settle in various areas of the nation, accounting for some 80 per cent in urban areas and some 20 per cent in rural areas. It shows the need to amend the education policies to improve the whole nation.

Indeed, a democratic nation must be built through the strength of educated persons. Implementation of every work process must be based on their accumulated knowledge and invaluable experiences. It is necessary to build a manual structure of the Union based on democracy and federalism with an educated structure to keep abreast of other countries.

Only when the number of educated persons is abundant can the country be built with educated persons’ advanced knowledge and skills. Hence, it is necessary to enhance the policies for a sound foundation for the education sector in real-time.

New employees are coming on 1 April since graduating from university ny has and whether it suits them”, and finally narrowed it down to one company.

However, since interviews were held online for COVID-19 last two years, it is allegedly that students are worried about whether they have fully understood that company and it could be the right choice to join the company.

On the other hand, companies also seem to be a little worried whether the selection of human resources was correct because they hired them without actually meeting students. Companies spend about two years getting good talent, calculating the profit of the previous year, making a future sales forecast, making a medium- to long-term plan, setting the necessary human resources and number of people, and recruiting. The human resources required by a company change little by little depending on companies and the times. However, still there is a strong tendency to seek human resources who have the flexibility and absorption to grow within the company. Many companies place importance on the basic academic abilities required, such as the ability to read documents, collect information, communicate, and read and draw graphs. At the factory, more science knowledge and skills should be added and needed.

There is a big difference in the satisfaction of companies and students between large companies with more than 5,000 employees and small companies with less than 300 employees. As the graph shows, there are more students-applicants than the demand of large companies with more than 5,000 jobs. The ratio of job offers to applicants is only 0.41; large companies can choose as many as they like. On the other hand, for companies with less than 300 employees, the ratio is 5.28 jobs per student. This figure shows that small-sized businesses are not popular with students, so it does not meet the demand every year. Small-sized businesses that are unable to meet their demand are therefore often hired mid-career all year round (hiring people who have stopped other companies, regardless of the season).

Why is there a gap between supply and demand for new graduates?

The reason is small companies have a lot of work and tend not to raise their salaries. Small Japanese companies are often subcontracted by large companies, and large companies order jobs to subcontractors at low prices in order to secure their profits. It is pushing subcontractors to the bill that they cannot make enough sales. Subcontractors cut labour costs to cut costs. There is a minimum wage system in Japan, but some companies are trying to pay just below the limit. For 30 years after the burst of the bubble economy in 1991, large companies have not digitized and created new businesses, and furthermore, they have been bringing a hierarchy into their business relationships to secure annual profits. The amount of consumption is declining. Thus, a chronic low-profit structure has taken root in Japan.

Japan’s GDP per capita was overtaken by South Korea in 2015, and Japan can be no longer a developed country. Japan as a whole is suffering from the recession. And for the past two years, the affection of COVID-19 has been added to small companies so that they cannot cut costs any further.

It can be said that the time when companies with 300 or fewer employees have the same ratio of job-offers-to-applicants as a large company is just the time when Japan’s economic power has improved in earnest. When will it come?

COVID-19 can have long-term impacts on the brain, shows study

A health worker works with blood samples of COVID-19-infected patients in Sao Paulo on 1 July 2021. PHOTO: REPRESENTATIVE IMAGE/ AFP

RESEARCHERS have found that subjects infected with the SARS-CoV-2 virus displayed signs of severe brain inflammation and injury consistent with a reduction in blood or oxygen flow into the brain, neuron damage and small areas of bleeding.

Researchers at Tulane University have explained how COVID-19 affects the central nervous system of human beings. The findings are the first comprehensive assessment of neuropathology associated with SARS-CoV-2 infection in a nonhuman primate model.

The findings of the research

The findings of the research were published in the journal, ‘Nature Communications’.

Surprisingly, these findings were present in subjects that did not experience severe respiratory disease from the virus.

Tracy Fischer, PhD, lead investigator and associate professor of microbiology and immunology at the Tulane National Primate Research Centre, has been studying brains for decades. Soon after the primate centre launched its COVID-19 pilot program in the spring of 2020, she began studying the brain tissue of several subjects that had been infected. Fischer’s initial findings have documented that the extent of damage seen in the brain due to SARS-CoV-2 infection was so striking that she spent the next year further refining the study controls to ensure that the results were clearly attributable to the infection. “Because the subjects didn’t experience significant respiratory symptoms, no one expected them to have the severity of disease that we found in the brain,” Fischer said.

Findings were distinct and profound

“But the findings were distinct and profound, and undeniably a result of the infection,” he added.

The findings were also consistent with autopsy studies of people who have died of COVID-19, suggesting that nonhuman primates may serve as an appropriate model, or proxy, for how humans experience the disease.

Nearly entire global population breathing polluted air: WHO

A full 99 per cent of people on Earth breathe air containing too many pollutants, the World Health Organization said Monday, blaming poor air quality for millions of deaths each year.

Fresh data from the UN health agency showed that every corner of the globe is dealing with air pollution, although the problem is much worse in poorer countries.

"Almost 100 per cent of the global population is still breathing air that exceeds the standards recommended by the World Health Organization," the agency's environment, climate change and health director Maria Neira told reporters.

"This is a major public health issue."

In its previous report four years ago, WHO had already found that over 90 per cent of the global population was affected, but it has since tightened its limits, it said.

"The evidence base for the harm caused by air pollution has been growing rapidly and points to significant harm caused by even low levels of many air pollutants," WHO said.

While UN data last year indicated that pandemic lockdowns and travel restrictions caused short-lived improvements in air quality, WHO said air pollution remains a towering problem.

"After surviving a pandemic, it is unacceptable to still have seven million preventable deaths and countless preventable lost years of good health due to air pollution," Neira said.

'Healthier energy systems'

WHO's study provides air quality data from more than 6,000 cities and other settlements across 117 countries -- representing around 80 per cent of urban settings.

In addition, Neira said WHO used satellite data and mathematical models to determine that air quality is falling short basically everywhere.—AFP ■

In a southern US capital, an unending water crisis

EVERY morning, 180 students at a school in Jackson, Mississippi have to board a bus to be taken to another nearby school. The reason? Their school lacks the water pressure needed to flush its own toilets.

Cheryl Brown, the principal at Wilkins Elementary — where 98 percent of the 400 students are African American and most come from underprivileged backgrounds — doesn't hide her frustration.

"It's hard. It's very hard," she told AFP.

"It's taxing on the boys and girls," who spend much of the day at the other school before heading back to Wilkins in the afternoon. "It's taxing on the staff members," she said. Jackson is undergoing a severe water crisis — despite its status as a state capital in one of the richest countries in the world.

Late last year, President Joe Biden signed into law a $1 trillion package to address badly deteriorated infrastructure like Jackson's.

The city's water system has suffered "significant deficiencies" since 2016, reports from the southern state's health department found.

Both the causes and symptoms of the crisis are clear: water flows from old and unmaintained treatment plants — one is 100 years old — through leaking, century-old pipes. When it comes out of city taps, it's sometimes rust-brown — and always contaminated with lead.

"The distribution lines are aging, and a master plan for pipe replacement... is not being implemented," the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) wrote in a 2020 report.—AFP ■

The UN's 10,000-page red alert on climate change

ACCELERATING global warming is driving a rising tide of impacts that could cause profound human misery and ecological disaster, and there is only one way to avoid catastrophe: drastically reduce greenhouse gas emissions. Spread across 10,000 pages, these are the main takeaways from a trio of UN reports on climate change published in August 2021, February 2022 and on Monday. The three tomes — each with its own roster of hundreds of authors — focus on physical science, impacts and the need to adapt, and finally how to slash carbon pollution.

This will be the sixth such trilogy since the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) delivered its first report in 1990 and positioned itself as the final word on the science behind global warming.

Here are five key findings from the three reports:

Beyond a doubt

Whatever climate sceptics might say, scientific evidence has removed any lingering doubt that human activity is "unequivocally" responsible for global warming, which has seen the planet heat up an average of 1.1 degrees Celsius

The atmospheric concentration of CO2 — the main driver of warming, emitted mainly by burning fossil fuels — rose at least 10 times faster between 1900 and 2019 than any time in the last 800,000 years, and is at its highest in two million years.—AFP ■

Australia landslide kills two British tourists

A landslide struck a British family on holiday in Sydney, killing the father and his nine-year-old son while critically injuring the mother and another son, Australian police said Tuesday.

The family of five was caught by the landslide on Monday as they hiked along a popular trail in the Blue Mountains to the west of Australia's largest city.

Police said teams were still trying to recover the bodies of the father and son from the scene on Tuesday. Rescuers rushed the mother and her 14-year-old son to hospital in Sydney on Monday evening, police said. They both underwent surgery and were in critical condition on Tuesday.

The couple's 15-year-old daughter was not injured and was walked out from the trail by emergency services, a police spokesperson said.

She is being assisted by the British consulate and welfare services.

Local police in the Blue Mountains were investigating the landslide and a report was to be prepared for the coroner on the two deaths. The identity of the family has not been released. Sydney has experienced heavy rains in recent weeks, with many suburbs in the city's west devastated by flash flooding and heavy storms.—AFP ■

Germany makes Covid quarantine voluntary from 1 May

GERMANY will no longer impose compulsory quarantines on people infected with the coronavirus from 1 May, Health Minister Karl Lauterbach said Monday.

Isolation remains “strongly recommended”, said Lauterbach, but he added that it will from next month be done “on a voluntary basis”.

“The current rules work but (it) is not necessary in the long term,” he said.

The only exceptions are employees of medical institutions, who must continue to isolate for five days if they catch the virus, he said.

Infection numbers in Germany remain high, but with most cases reported to be mild, hospitals have not been overwhelmed.

As a result, Europe’s biggest economy has relaxed coronavirus curbs, lifting a requirement to wear masks in shops or schools.

An initial drive by Chancellor Olaf Scholz’s government for compulsory vaccinations has also petered out.

As a proposal to introduce mandatory jabs for over-18s was unlikely to win a majority in parliament, the government committee working on the plan has scaled down its ambitions to look at compulsory vaccinations for over-50s.—AFP ■

SHANGHAI on Monday finished the basic collection of samples for nucleic acid testing from its nearly 25 million residents in the city’s latest effort to cut off transmission in communities and contain the latest COVID-19 resurgence, local authorities said on Monday night.

“With the active cooperation of the local residents, the city finished the latest round of nucleic acid sampling work on 4 April,” the office of the Shanghai municipal leading group for COVID-19 prevention and control said in a statement.

Shanghai conducted the citywide nucleic acid testing on Monday after a mass antigen testing on Sunday. The city has been placed under temporary closed-off management after surging COVID-19 infections were logged in recent days.

Further work, including testing, multiple checks, the transportation of positive cases, and the analysis and assessment of the COVID-19 situation, will be carried out in an orderly manner, according to the statement.

After all work is completed, follow-up control measures will be released based on relevant national regulations and the results of the mass screening.— AFP ■

Smart at-home fitness surges amid epidemic

ONLINE exercise programmes fuelled by advanced technologies have been embraced in China as many ordinary citizens and sports enthusiasts have taken to at-home workouts amid the COVID-19 pandemic.

Zhao Lina, goalkeeper of Chi-na’s national women’s football team, posted a video clip on social media showing her at-home workouts with the aid of artificial intelligence (AI) which soon went viral. The video shows the Shanghai player completing a series of standard workouts including deep squat jacks and push-ups, and then advocating the adoption of at-home sports AI to people who are locked down amid a resurgence of COVID-19.

Passenger traffic at Hyderabad airport at 109%, surpasses pre-COVID level

THOUGH the overall international travel was subdued during the prolonged Covid-19 pandemic, the Hyderabad International Airport recorded 109 per cent of pre-Covid Daily Average Domestic Passenger Traffic on a single day, informed the officials on Tuesday.

The international slots filed 103 per cent of pre-Covid in Summer-22 Schedule and recorded 89 per cent of pre-Covid average daily passenger traffic in the international sector on 28 March.

“The post-Covid growth in the destinations being connected has been remarkable and in the last few months, it has added 15 new domestic sectors. Hyderabad International Airport is now connected to over 70 domestic destinations from the pre-Covid period of 55 domestic destinations,” informed an official release.

The airport also recorded the highest number of post-Covid domestic Air Traffic Movements (ATMs) of 374 on 27 March.—ANI ■

Portugal to spend 32.7 mln euros on COVID-19 medicines

THE Portuguese government authorized an expenditure of 32.7 million euros (35.9 million US dollars) for the purchase of medicines against COVID-19 in 2022, according to a government decree published on Monday. The resolution of the Council of Ministers said that the expenditure is necessary “because of the evolution of the pandemic situation,” and aims to ensure the Portuguese people have access to “therapeutic options for the disease caused by the SARS-CoV-2 virus.”

Signed by Portuguese Prime Minister Antonio Costa, the order authorizes the acquisition of the antiviral drug Remdesivir, as well as funding for the storage and acquisition of vaccines against COVID-19.—Xinhua ■

New Zealand reports 14,120 new community cases of COVID-19

New Zealand recorded 14,120 new community cases of COVID-19 on Tuesday, the Ministry of Health said in a statement.

Of the new community infections, 2,351 were detected in the largest city Auckland, and the rest were identified across the country, according to the ministry.

In addition, 48 new cases of COVID-19 were detected at the New Zealand border, said the ministry.

Currently, there are 692 patients being treated in New Zealand hospitals, including 30 held in intensive care units. The ministry also reported 23 more deaths from COVID-19 on Monday.

New Zealand has reported 716,151 confirmed cases of COVID-19 since the beginning of the pandemic in the country.

New Zealand is currently at the highest Red settings under the COVID-19 Protection Framework. At the updated Red settings, indoor gatherings are limited to 200 people, and no limits are set for outdoor gatherings.—ANI ■

World Bank projects developing East Asia Pacific to grow 5 pct in 2022

THE developing East Asia and Pacific countries is projected to grow by 5 per cent in 2022 amid the resurgence of COVID-19 pandemic, tighter financial conditions and the Russia-Ukraine war, the World Bank said Monday.

“Shocks emanating from the war in Ukraine and the sanctions on Russia are disrupting the supply of commodities, increasing financial stress, and dampening global growth,” said the World Bank’s newly released East Asia and Pacific Economic Update. “Just as the economies of East Asia and the Pacific were recovering from the pandemic-induced shock, the war in Ukraine is weighing on growth momentum,” said World Bank Vice President for East Asia and Pacific Manuela V. Ferro. “The region’s largely strong fundamentals and sound policies should help it weather these storms.” Surging U.S. inflation could provoke faster-than-anti-pated financial tightening, perhaps timely in the United States but “too early” in many East Asia and Pacific countries where recovery is “incomplete,” according to the report. The risk of capital outflows, which could put pressure on some countries’ currencies, could induce “pre-mature” financial tightening.

Overall economic growth in developing East Asia and Pacific countries is projected to slow to 5 per cent in 2022, 0.4 of a percentage point less than expected in October, the World Bank noted, adding that if global conditions worsen and national policy responses are weak, growth in the region could slow to 4 per cent.

To mitigate the risks and grasp the opportunities, the World Bank urged governments to enhance efficiency of fiscal policy for recovery and growth, and strengthen macroprudential policies to mitigate risks from global financial tightening.—Xinhua ■

Iran says oil production back to pre-sanctions level

IRAN’S oil production capacity has returned to the same level as prior to the reimposition of sanctions in 2018, when the US unilaterally withdrew from a nuclear deal, a top official said. “Oil production has reached pre-sanctions figures, despite economic pressures,” said Mohsen Khojastehmehr, CEO of the National Iranian Oil Company (NIOC), quoted by state news agency IRNA on Sunday. Iran is currently engaged in negotiations to restore the 2015 nuclear deal that would grant it much-needed sanctions relief, restoring Iranian oil exports, in return for major curbs on its nuclear programme. The US, under then president Donald Trump, unilaterally withdrew from the deal in 2018 and reimposed stringent

US inflation prompts 1st rise in Japan gov’t bond coupon in 7 years

THE Japanese government on Tuesday raised the coupon rate for its new 10-year sovereign bonds to 0.2 per cent from 0.1 per cent, the first increase in seven years made to match higher yields following rapid inflation in the United States.

The coupon rate hike will add upward pressure to borrowing costs for households and companies, with the rate currently kept near zero on the back of the Bank of Japan’s ultraeasy monetary policy. The coupon rate is the rate of interest bondholders can receive in a year decided by the ministry at issuance, taking into account yields that move inversely to bond prices in the market. The yield on the new 10-year government bonds has climbed recently to around 0.2 per cent in tandem with increases in US Treasury yields, after the US Federal Reserve decided to raise interest rates to tame surging prices, including those related to energy.

MUFG Bank and other megabanks in Japan have already raised their basic 10-year fixed mortgage rate this year in response to the yield rise.

The loan rate may be further raised if the long-term government bond yield advances with the coupon rate hike.

The ministry raised the coupon rate to prevent the new government bonds to be issued Wednesday, which mature on 20 March 2032, from being less attractive than debt already being traded on the market.—Kyodo ■

QUICK SUMMARY

Japan, Philippines to hold 1st 2-plus-2 security talks on Sat.

JAPAN and the Philippines will hold their first ministerial security talks on Saturday in Tokyo to enhance cooperation in countering China’s increasing maritime assertiveness in the South and East China seas, Japan’s Defence Minister Nobuo Kishi said Tuesday.

The so-called two-plus-two talks involving the countries’ foreign and defence ministers come as the Philippines faces overlapping territorial claims with Beijing in the South China Sea. China also has been routinely sending ships to the East China Sea to waters near the Japan-administered Senkaku Islands, which Beijing claims and calls Diaoyu.

“We would like to further bolster our cooperation with the Philippines, which has great significance (for Japan) in terms of security,” Kishi told a regular press conference.

The two-plus-two talks with the Philippines will be the second with a Southeast Asian country following those with Indonesia.

Hong Kong leader Carrie Lam will not seek re-election

HONG Kong leader Carrie Lam said Monday she will not run for a second term as chief executive of the territory in a leadership election slated for 8 May.

Lam, who became the first female chief executive of Hong Kong in 2017 after being chosen as a Beijing-favored candidate, revealed her decision in a daily COVID-19 press briefing, citing family affairs.

It has been reported that the No 2 official in Hong Kong, Chief Secretary for Administration John Lee, will join the race for the city’s next leader.

“This is not a question of evaluating my performance or the performance of the SAR government in this term,” Lam told journalists, referring to the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region that exists under China’s “one country, two systems” policy.

‘Several dead’ in Hungary train crash: police

SEVERAL people died in a train crash in Hungary Tuesday after a van drove onto the rails at a crossing causing the train to derail, Hungarian police said.

“Several were injured in the accident and several died at the scene,” the police said in a statement, without providing further details.

The accident happened near Mindszent, 140 kilometres southeast of Budapest just before 7 am.

According to a statement by the Hungarian state railway MAV, the van entered the level-crossing despite the stop sign showing.

“There were 22 passengers on the train, two were seriously injured, eight suffered minor injuries, several of the van’s passengers were killed,” said the statement.

Peru president imposes curfew in Lima, Callao after protests

PERUVIAN President Pedro Castillo announced a curfew for Tuesday for the capital Lima and neighbouring port city Callao following a demonstration that caused roadblocks and “acts of violence”. Protests had erupted across the country in recent days due to a hike in fuel prices and tolls, during a period in which Peru is also suffering from a rise in food prices.

In an attempt to appease protesters, the government eliminated the fuel tax over the weekend.

But Monday’s demonstration saw truckers and passenger carrier drivers continue to take to the streets in Lima, as well as several regions in the north -- from the coastal city Piura to the

N. Korea threatens to use nukes in event of preemptive strike by S. Korea

THE sister of North Korean leader Kim Jong Un has threatened to use nuclear weapons against South Korea if Seoul opts for a military confrontation with Pyongyang, the North’s official media reported Tuesday.

Kim Yo Jong, vice department director of the Central Committee of the Workers’ Party of Korea, issued the threat after South Korean Defense Minister Suh Wook last week referred to Seoul’s preemptive strike capabilities against North Korea.

It was an “irretrievable very big mistake” when Suh “talked about ‘preemptive strike,’ terming us the enemy,” Kim said in a statement carried by Korean Central News Agency.

“In case South Korea opts for military confrontation with us, our nuclear combat force will have to inevitably carry out its duty,” she said.

Last Friday, Suh said South Korean forces have the capability to accurately and swiftly strike North Korean missile sites, as well as command and support facilities in the event there is clear sign of an imminent launch against South Korea.

Kim claimed prevention of war is the primary mission of North Korea’s nuclear force, and that if war occurs, “a dreadful attack will be launched and the South Korean army will have to face a miserable fate little short of total destruction and ruin.” — Kyodo ■

Pakistan constitution wrangle drags on in court

PAKISTAN’S supreme court was to sit Tuesday for a second day to rule on the legality of political manoeuvres that led Prime Minister Imran Khan to dissolve the national assembly and call fresh elections.

The court must decide if the deputy speaker of the assembly violated the constitution by refusing to allow a no-confidence vote against Khan at the weekend.

The move allowed Khan to get the presidency — a largely ceremonial role taken by a loyalist — to dissolve parliament and order an election, which must be held within 90 days. Had the vote taken place, Khan was certain to have been booted from office.

US Democrats pin hopes on historic Supreme Court nominee

US Supreme Court candidate Ketanji Brown Jackson stands on the threshold of making history this week as the first Black woman appointed to the nation’s highest judicial bench after senators voted Monday to move her one step closer to confirmation.

Barring any unforeseen hiccups, President Joe Biden’s pick to replace retiring Justice Stephen Breyer will break a 12-year drought for Democratic nominees being placed on the court. Jackson, 51, will also be only the third Black justice in its history, and Democrats — worried about Biden’s low approval ratings — are keen for a headline-grabbing achievement to take into November’s midterm elections.

“I’ve often thought that if you had to choose one place to stand and witness the march of America — the noble and ignoble struggles of our democracy — I would seek out a chair in this room,” Senate Judiciary Committee chairman Dick Durbin said.

“Today’s vote is such a moment. This committee’s action today is nothing less than historic.”

Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell had pressed privately for his members to oppose Jackson, and at least 47 of the 50 Republicans in the upper chamber look almost certain to reject her. — AFP ■

Moscow hopes Kyiv won't listen to "advisers" from afar: Russian FM

MOSCOW hopes Kyiv will follow its national interests at Russia-Ukraine peace talks, but not listen to "advisers" from afar, Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov said Monday.

"It is not the talks that influence the course of the operation, but external 'players' who are trying to hinder these negotiations and keep the clashes 'on the ground' going on for as long as possible," he told a press conference following talks with Arab League (AL) representatives on Ukraine, according to a statement published by the Russian Foreign Ministry.

"We know who gives such 'advice' to our Ukrainian neighbours. This is done with useless goals that have nothing to do with the interests of the Ukrainian people, the security of Ukraine, the security in the region of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, and in our European region," he added.

"I hope that those who lead the delegation of Kiev at the said talks will start to be guided by their own national interests, the interests of their people but not listen to 'advisers' from afar, who sometimes only want to see how the crisis situation will continue to build up," Lavrov said. —Xinhua ■

20 Ukraine evacuees arrive in Japan from Poland as Hayashi ends trip

A group of 20 Ukrainian evacuees arrived in Japan on Tuesday with Foreign Minister Yoshimasa Hayashi as he returned from his visit to Poland in a show of Tokyo's latest support for war-torn Ukraine and its neighboring countries. The 20 evacuees who boarded a government plane in the Polish capital of Warsaw had been hoping to travel to Japan but had been unable to secure their own means of transportation, according to Hayashi, who refrained from disclosing further details, citing privacy concerns.

Merkel defends 2008 decision to block Ukraine from NATO

FORMER German chancellor Angela Merkel on Monday defended her 2008 decision to block Ukraine from immediately joining NATO, rejecting President Volodymyr Zelensky's criticism as Russia's invasion clouds her 16-year legacy.

Zelensky in a night-late address had described as a "miscalculation" a Franco-German-led decision at the NATO summit in Bucharest to not admit his country to the alliance despite a push from the United States.

"I invite Ms Merkel and Mr (Nicolas) Sarkozy to visit Bucha and see what the policy of concessions to Russia has led to in 14 years," he said, referring to the alleged atrocities against Ukrainian civilians by Russian troops that world powers have described as "war crimes".

The Ukrainian president also accused the European leaders of seeking to appease Russia with their stance then. But Merkel in a short statement issued by her spokeswoman said she "stands by her decisions in relation to the 2008 NATO summit in Bucharest". —AFP ■

NEWS DIGEST

Here are the latest developments in the war in Ukraine:

Russia, Ukraine continue efforts to ease tensions, defend interests

MOSCOW and Kyiv have conducted several rounds of peace talks with the aim of searching for a political settlement to the ongoing crisis in Ukraine, which has intensified over the past month.

The outcomes of these talks, as delegations from both sides have indicated, are expected to lay an important foundation for de-escalation of tensions between Russia and Ukraine, but key divergences have yet to be resolved.

The latest round of face-to-face negotiations in Istanbul last week resulted in Kyiv handing Moscow its proposals, which contained its refusal to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and deploy foreign military bases and troops on its territory, its readiness to fix its current status as a non-bloc state, and willingness to renounce nuclear weapons as well as other weapons of mass destruction.

Zelensky addresses Grammys

ZELENSKY makes a surprise appearance at the Grammy music awards, appearing in a pre-taped video urging support for his country.

"Our musicians wear body armour instead of tuxedos," he says. "They sing to the wounded in hospitals -- even to those who can't hear them. But the music will break through anyway."

Full isolation 'impossible'

Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov says it is not possible to isolate Russia entirely, telling Russian state television that the world is "much larger than Europe".

Strikes in east, south

RUSSIA steps up its attacks in eastern Ukraine, killing seven people and wounding 34 in strikes on a residential area of the country's second largest city Kharkiv, according to local authorities.

Russian forces also shell the nearby town of Dergachi, leaving at least three civilians dead and wounding seven, its mayor says.

Six people are reportedly killed in the eastern Donetsk region by strikes and one in the east Ukrainian town of Rubizhne, where Russian forces are accused of targeting a local hospital.

Russia also maintains its offensive in southern Ukraine. One person is killed and 14 injured after a Russian strike on the city of Mykolaiv, according to the local governor, and the strategic Black Sea port of Odessa is also targeted in air strikes.

Too soon for peace summit

RUSSIA'S chief negotiator Vladimir Medinsky says it is too early for a top-level meeting between Zelensky and Putin on ending the conflict.

He says Kyiv has become "more realistic" in its approach to issues related to the neutral and non-nuclear status of Ukraine but a draft agreement for submission to a summit meeting is not ready.

France says to expel 35 Russian diplomats

FRANCE on Monday said it would expel 35 Russian diplomats as part of a joint European action after Moscow's invasion of Ukraine.

"France decided this evening to expel a number of Russian personnel with diplomatic status stationed in France whose activities are against our security interests," the foreign ministry said in a statement.

A ministry source, who asked not to be named, said 35 Russian diplomats would be expelled.

"This action is part of a European approach," the foreign ministry statement added. "Our first responsibility is always to ensure the safety of French people and Europeans," it said.

Tuchel provides calm amid Chelsea storm ahead of Real clash

CHELSEA face Real Madrid on Wednesday reeling from their heaviest defeat of the season, but Thomas Tuchel's battle-hardened ability to keep his players focused should ensure the Champions League holders are ready for the latest test of their resilience.

While Saturday's shock 4-1 home defeat against Brentford was hardly ideal preparation for the quarter-final first leg against Real, Chelsea boss Tuchel has dealt with worse setbacks during a turbulent period for his club.

When Chelsea owner Roman Abramovich was sanctioned by the British government for his alleged links with Russian President Vladimir Putin following the invasion of Ukraine, the Blues were plunged into a financial meltdown that threatened to engulf Tuchel's team.

Unable to negotiate new contracts with players due to the sanctions, Chelsea have had to sit by while key defenders Antonio Rudiger, Andreas Christensen and Cesar Azpilicueta considered their futures.

As if that wasn't potentially distracting enough, fears were mounting that Chelsea might be pushed into administration amid the mayhem triggered by the sanctions. Restricted on the amount of money they could spend on travel to away games, Tuchel joked he was willing to drive the team bus himself before their Champions League last 16 win at Lille. Yet, despite the chaos, Tuchel kept his players focused so well that they won six successive matches in all competitions immediately after Abramovich put the club up for sale.

It was a winning streak that underlined Tuchel's best qualities as he deflected any pressure away from his players with intelligent, empathetic responses to questions about the war in Ukraine and the unintended consequences for Chelsea.—AFP ■
