Thingyan Water Festival celebrated in Nay Pyi Taw

YESTERDAY was the last day of the traditional Myanmar Thingyan Festival.

In Nay Pyi Taw Council Area, water-splashing cars were patrolling around the Thingyan pandals, and traditional Myanmar food and snacks were served at the donation pandals.

Visitors were seen yesterday at Nay Pyi Taw Uppatasanti Pagoda, Dhardu Zaya Dat-paungsu Pagoda, Laekwintaung Pagoda, Phayakoesu Pagoda, Lawka Maresein Pagoda, Lawka Yannaing Pagoda, Yanaungmyin Shwelathla Pagoda, Thata Thadaha Thanwezaniya Pagoda, Paungtaw Chatma Pagoda and other famous pagodas.

Musicians played music, and dance troupes performed traditional dances at the Nay Pyi Taw Mayor Maha Thingyan Pan-dal and Office of the Commander-in-Chief (Army) Maha Thingyan Water-throwing Pandal on the last day of the Thingyan.

Similarly, in the townships within the Nay Pyi Taw Council area, Thingyan lovers played water and food donations are also seen in the area.

The Hlaekhwintaung Resort at Kyitaung village, Kyitaung village-tract, Zeyathiri

Township in Nay Pyi Taw, and the Aweya Beach Resort in Pyinmana Township are also bustling with Thingyan lovers and visitors.

The Thingyan festivities were also held at the Walking Thingyan Festival in Nay Pyi Taw Water Fountain Park.

During the Maha Thingyan Festival, relevant authorities have formed joint teams at the water fountain parks and resorts to provide peace and relaxation to the people. Warnings are issued to ensure safety during recreation.

Visitors flock to islands of Myeik Archipelago during Thingyan period

TRAVELLERS across the nation pay a visit to Myeik Archipelago, including Smart Island, during the Thingyan period by taking speed boats from Myeik jetty.

The people mainly visit Smart Island, Marcus Island, Thamee Hla, Mintha, Done Waterfall, Done Nyaungmine (Salon village), Beli Island and Kyal Leik Island. According to the travel agencies, some make a day trip while some spend the whole day there.

"There are very few visitors during the Thingyan period than the numbers of visitors before the outbreak of COVID-19. Only 30 per cent of the visitors of previous years come here, and about ten speedboats run per day during Thingyan days.

Some travellers take an overnight trip," said a travel agency.

The island's day-trip tours can cost between K120,000 and 200,000 depending on the island while the overnight trip to Marcus Island K180,000 and K300,000 to Smart Island, Beli Island and Kyal Leik Island, according to the agencies. — Khine Htoo (Myeik/IPRD)/GNLM

Look at the future with optimism from New Year onwards

TODAY is New Year's Day in the Myanmar calendar. As it is a New Year's Day, we all need to refresh our minds to look at the world with a new optimistic sense of all things. We all should have to expect all new things today. We should leave the old and worn-out things in the past, at least yesterday. We should widen our scope to see all better things at present and in the future. You all should take care not to compare things with the past and the present. If you leave useless one of the pasts, your can tolerate everything and will have the chance to march onwards to the goal with pleasure and pleasantness.

You must join societies to build a peaceful, prosperous, pleasant and pleasurable world. These societies are formed with happy souls. From now onwards, your souls should understand the nature of the New Year, which leaves the past things, brings the present things and expects the future things to the new world.

Don't hesitate! Rush into the new scenes of the future, but your souls must have been washed. You should bring the best gift to the world where everybody is waiting for you to give the best things. You cannot see the best things with ordinary eyes, but you can find these things with knowledgeable eyes.

Scientists outline need for new approach to COVID-19 vaccine testing

Rutgers University's top health researchers are calling for a change in approach to developing COVID-19 vaccines, and vaccines to fight future pandemics to incorporate both conventional and challenging trials.

THE commentary by bioethicist Nir Eyal and epidemiologists Tobias Gerhard and Brian Strom (the latter is chancellor of Rutgers Biomedical and Health Sciences) -- published in Pharmacoepidemiology and Drug Safety -- examines how this parallel approach to vaccine trials can lead to faster and more accurate vaccine assessment and more effective pandemic response. Conventional randomized controlled trials are where participants receive a vaccine or placebo and then may or may not be exposed as they continue with their lives over the course of the months that follow.

Human challenge vaccine trials
Human challenge vaccine trials are where participants receive a vaccine or placebo and are then artificially exposed to the virus.

The researchers say that further vaccine testing could help settle remaining questions about how effective the shots are at blocking infection against old and new virus strains.

It could also reveal the most effective dosing and timing between shots, the level of protection compared to natural immunity and how well vaccines work in groups that were underrepresented in initial trials.

While some researchers proposed at the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic that challenge trials take place, others argued that too little was known about the virus and that conducting the trials would be too dangerous.

They were not used for the studies that led to the approval of the major COVID-19 vaccines but are now being used in testing. "The vigorous discussions about vaccine trial designs in the early months of the COVID-19 pandemic, unfortunately, played out as a mostly adversarial debate between pro-challenge trial and pro-conventional trial supporters. We felt that there was an overlooked third approach that involved combining strengths from both designs and could facilitate better outcomes throughout the remainder of the COVID-19 pandemic and in future pandemics," says Gerhard, Director, Centre for Pharmacoepidemiology and Treatment Science at Rutgers Institute for Health, Health Care Policy and Aging Research (IFH) and Professor, Rutgers Ernest Mario School of Pharmacy.

Rutgers researchers' parallel approach

The Rutgers researchers' parallel approach, called "Combining Conventional and Challenge trials (CCC)," would involve trials of both types, conducted either simultaneously or at different times.

"In a pandemic, the value of obtaining information as early as possible is so vast that 'CCC' is ethically preferable to any single trial, and preparations for a future pandemic should include laying the groundwork for a CCC," said Eyal, Henry Rutgers Professor of Bioethics and Director, Centre for Population-Level Bioethics at Rutgers IFH.

Eyal and his colleagues say that researchers will be able to collect more information and increase confidence in the efficacy of vaccines. "When either human challenge- or conventional trials are permitted, it may be even more advisable to combine conventional and challenge testing for surer, faster, and more comprehensive vaccine assessments and a fuller understanding of the infection and the disease," said Gerhard.

Did Covid lockdown trigger obesity in children? Indian Medical bodies to study

WITH obesity turning into an emerging health crisis across the nation, the ICMR-National Institute of Nutrition (NIN) will be conducting another study on such an issue in all the age groups to collect data from several parts of the country and monitor the rise in the number of obese people before and after COVID-19 pandemic.

"The idea of the study is under the process of approval from ICMR. Once it approves, the study will be taken up. It is a collaborative study and we are also partnering with other leading institutes to complete it," Dr Avula Laxmaiah, Scientist G, ICMR- NIN told ANI.

Studies on dietary consumption

He said that scientists have already done some studies on dietary consumption.

"We will compare the previous years' data also. We have already done some studies on dietary consumption and will see what is the difference in the number of obese people before COVID and after COVID," Dr Laxmaiah stated.

The scientist further explained the role of junk food in increasing childhood obesity in India. "It is a series of studies on childhood obesity and its determinants. One of the determined is the consumption of processed junk food and processed foods. In that process, we will put our ultra-processed samplings and everything will come," he described.

Dr Laxmaiah said, "We have also published one paper on obesity research. In that paper, we analyzed the contribution of junk food which is causing the overweight. We have also done a principal component analysis which revealed that almost 53 per cent of overweight obesity is caused by unhealthy food consumption."

Research on the subject

The ICMR-NIN scientist informed that the scientists have done research on the subject in 2004, 2008, 2012 and 2018.

"All studies show obesity is caused by the obesogenic environment due to sedentary activities and junk food consumption. High intake of junk food can also affect mental health and other organs of the body. Junk food majorly gives only energy, but not minerals and vitamins which required for brain development and growth," he added.

He affirmed that the study will focus on the social dynamics of childhood obesity.

"For now, we are planning to conduct dietary consumption data in all 36 states and union territories shortly. The study will be conducted from 5 to 65-year age group," the scientist said.

Corn growers push for cultivation acreage increase on price rise

PRICE rise prompted the corn growers in Minbu (Sagu) Township, Magway Region, to continue the corn season this year, the growers said.

The corn can be harvested after three months of cultivation. The retail price of corn is K200, and the corn is offered at K180 in the wholesale market. Systematic cultivation can result in a high yield. There are sweet corn, glutinous corn and pod corn. The pod is only for animal feed.

The corn needs moisture content. Irrigation is utilized for adequate soil moisture in the summer and winter growing seasons. The growers have to take special care in corn pollination and fertilization. Corn can be grown by broadcasting or planting the seeds in rows. Drip agriculture, spraying fertilizer and clearing weeds and grass are required to grow them successfully. Approximately 10,000 plants can be produced per acre. The high price encouraged the growers to extend the corn season, said U San Tun, a grower from Kyauktan village in Minbu Township.

The corn FOB price stood at US$345 per tonne during the pre-Thingyan period, according to the Yangon Region Chambers of Commerce and Industry (Bay-intnaung).

The recent policy changes will not adversely influence the exports. An export licence is required for the exports of those items, including maize, starch, popcorn, seed, maize corn flour, cereal grains, millets, cereal groats, meal and pellets, buckwheat and canary seeds starting from 1 April 2022, according to a notification released by the Ministry of Commerce on 9 March 2022.

Nevertheless, the Foreign exchange earned by locals in Myanmar must be deposited in accounts at the authorized banks and exchanged for the local currency at the Central Bank of Myanmar's reference rate of K1,850. The CBM's move makes the traders face export hurdles, a trader from Mandalay said.

According to Myanmar Corn Industrial Association, as the corn traders are filling the inventory, trade is likely to go strong up to September. Presently, corn is highly demanded by foreign trade partners and domestic feed processing factories.

Myanmar exported 2.3 million tonnes of corns to foreign trade partners in the 2020-2021 financial year. The majority of them were sent to Thailand, and the rest went to China, India and Viet Nam. Currently, corn is cultivated in Shan, Kachin, Kayah and Kayin states and Mandalay, Sagaing and Magway regions.

Exports of aquaculture products top $481 mln in past mini-budget period

THE export value of Myanmar's fish and fishery products in the past mini-budget period (Oct 2021-March 2022) amounted to over US$481.58 million, which indicated an increase from $39.4 million in the corresponding period of the last financial year 2020-2021, the Ministry of Commerce's data showed.

Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation focuses on boosting production, exploring new markets, increasing export items, enhancing the livelihood of local people, providing financial assistance to the breeders, promoting the fish consumption of the people and tackling the challenges together with all the stakeholders.

Moreover, Myanmar Fisheries Federation (MFF) is striving for pedigree and genetic improvement for sustainable utilization. The fish and shrimp research centre disseminates the information to the breeders to develop the fishery sector.

The marketable fish products, especially fish, shrimp, eel and crab from Taninthayi and Ayeyawady regions and Rakhine State, are primarily exported to foreign markets.

Myanmar typically exports fisheries products, such as fish, prawns, and crabs, to markets of 40 countries, including China, Saudi Arabia, the US, Japan, Singapore, Thailand, and countries in the European Union. Chinese market constitutes about 65 per cent of Myanmar's fishery exports, accounting for US$254 million out of the overall fishery export value of over $850 million in the FY 2019-2020. Currently, China shut down the border areas in the wake of the COVID surge in Myanmar. The federation is turning to the Bangladesh market with export potential at present.

There are 480,000 acres of fish and prawn breeding farms across the country and more than 120 cold-storage facilities in Myanmar. During the last financial year 2020-2021 (October-September), Myanmar shipped approximately $785 million worth of seafood, the Ministry of Commerce's data showed. The country is striving for livestock sector development, a key economic sector, by shifting from traditional farms to advanced aquaculture systems. The effort is to keep abreast of the developments in the regional countries. — KK/GNLM

57th Myanma Gems Emporium to start in Nay Pyi Taw on 22 April

ACCORDING to the Central Committee on Organizing Myanma Gems Emporium, a seven-day 57th Myanma Gems Emporium will take place in Nay Pyi Taw from 22 to 28 April 2022.

Under the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation's guidance, the central committee will sell Myanmar's mineral products such as jade, premium precious stone, and pearl lots at the emporium.

All Myanmar citizens engaged in extractive industry and holding a mining permit in line with Myanmar Gemstone Law, and those involved in production, selling, and buying of the finished gems products are entitled to attend the emporium in line with the set rules and regulations.

Those enthusiastic can inquire about the details of the individuals who are allowed to attend the emporium through the central committee, the Myanma Gems Enterprise (Nay Pyi Taw) and the Myanma Pearl Enterprise (Nay Pyi Taw), the central committee notified.

The 56th Myanma Gems Emporium was held on 11-20

March 2019 at Mani Yadanar Jade Hall in Nay Pyi Taw. The raw jade stones, finished premium jade products, natural gems stones, finished jewellery products, jade-like stones, statues and curving, loose stones, gemstones arts and pearl lots were sold.

Tax levied on the sales at the emporium as a special goods tax is 15 per cent for raw jade stones, 10 per cent for raw gemstones and three per cent for the finished jewellery products and one per cent for some finished products.

Under the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation, the Myanma Gem Enterprise notified the miners on 1 April 2022 of the suspension of jade mining permit extension in Lonkhin, Phakant, Mawlu and Mawhan sites. It aims to have the sustainable utilization for future generations, ensure no environmental impacts and the safety measures. — NN/GNLM

Chinese economy may grow 5.9 pct this year: Credit Suisse economist

AN economist of Credit Suisse Group AG expects China's gross domestic product to grow 5.9 per cent, higher than the 5.5 per cent target set by the world's second-largest economy, Bloomberg reported Thursday.

Yi David Wang, chief China economist at Credit Suisse Group AG, said he could revise his projection closer to 5.6 per cent once the impact of coronavirus lockdowns becomes clearer.

According to the report, Wang's prediction is based on three reasons. "First, coronavirus lockdowns will hurt production less than consumption. Second, government and corporate investment will grow strongly. Finally, investment in housing can still grow despite a slump in sales as existing projects still need to be finished," said the report.

Wang argued that the recent export data suggests that global demand for Chinese production will remain elevated this year, as the rate of export growth remains above pre-pandemic levels.

China's total imports and exports expanded 10.7 per cent year on year to 9.42 trillion yuan (1.48 trillion US dollars) in the first quarter of 2022, official data showed Wednesday.

In the period, exports surged 13.4 per cent year on year to 5.23 trillion yuan (821.7 billion dollars), while imports rose 7.5 per cent to 4.19 trillion yuan (658.3 billion dollars), according to the General Administration of Customs.—Xinhua

China cuts bank reserve requirements amid COVID-19 resurgence

CHINA'S central bank said Friday it will cut the amount of cash that banks must hold as reserves, in an attempt to ease credit and shore up the economy hit by another wave of novel coronavirus infections.

The reduction of the reserve requirement ratio by the People's Bank of China is aimed at bolstering consumption and domestic investment by prompting financial institutions to lend more money to companies and other entities. The reserve requirement ratio for all lenders will be lowered by 0.25 percentage point to 8.1 per cent -- the first cut since December.—Kyodo

New PM Sharif orders 'Pakistan speed' to fix stagnant economy

PAKISTAN'S new Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif said Thursday the country's economy had stagnated under his predecessor Imran Khan, setting the tone for possibly months of bitterness before an election that must be held by October next year.

Sharif, sworn in Monday after Khan was ousted by a no-confidence vote in parliament, is still finalising his cabinet but has called for "Pakistan speed" to hurry along development projects and fix the economy. Iraqis queue for fuel as stations protest government

MOTORISTS in Iraq formed long queues for fuel Thursday after some owners of filling stations shut off their pumps to protest government policies on fuel distribution and pricing.

Some government-run fuel stations have been ordered to operate around the clock to meet demand, the official news agency INA reported. Dozens of vehicles were lined up at stations that remained open. Some owners of petrol stations have denounced the method of fuel distribution imposed by the authorities, complaining they end up paying more for the quantity of fuel they receive from the government than what they say it is worth. Iraq is the second largest producer in the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), and oil provides more than 90 per cent of its income.—AFP

EU embargo on Russian oil, gas will take 'months'

Russian oil and gas sales to the EU account for a far higher amount of revenue: between a quarter of a billion to a billion euros per day, per different estimates. PHOTO: AFP/FILE

THE EU is working on broadening sanctions on Russia to include oil and gas embargoes but such measures would take "several months", European officials told AFP on Friday.

The bloc last week announced a ban on Russian coal in a first step against Russian energy exports -- together, Moscow's main hard currency earner.

But the coal sanction only kicks in from mid-August, and would hit around eight billion euros ($8.7 billion) in Russia's sales abroad, annually.

Russian oil and gas sales to the EU account for a far higher amount of revenue: between a quarter of a billion to a billion euros per day, per different estimates.

Public and political opinion in the EU is swinging towards a total energy ban as Moscow's war in Ukraine grinds on and yields discoveries of atrocities.

An EU official involved in discussions on cutting Russian energy imports said the European Commission is "thinking about options". Commission chief Ursula von der Leyen has already come out publicly in favour of targeting Russian oil.

But, the official said, "adopting measures on oil means undoing existing contracts, finding alternatives and preventing circumvention".

"That can't be don't overnight. It requires at least several months."

New container liner route links east China, Vietnam

A new container liner route linking Taicang Port in east China's Jiangsu Province and Vietnam was launched on Friday, according to the port's administrative committee.

Two ships, with respective capacities of 1,100 TEUs and 1,400 TEUs, will be put into use on the new route, which operates on a weekly basis and runs to the port city of Hai Phong and Ho Chi Minh City.

The new route will help boost the development of China's "dual circulation", the Belt and Road Initiative and the high-quality integrated development of the Yangtze River Delta region, according to the administrative committee.

Bankrupt Sri Lanka looks to expand airline fleet

CASH-STRAPPED Sri Lanka's loss-making national carrier revealed plans Thursday to lease up to 21 aircraft, just two days after the government announced a default on its $51 billion foreign debt.

The island nation is in the grip of its most painful economic downturn since independence in 1948, with severe shortages of essential goods and regular blackouts causing widespread misery.

Huge protests have called for the resignation of the government, which has begged Sri Lankans abroad to send cash home to help pay for essential imports.

Despite the crisis, state-owned Sri Lankan

Airlines has unveiled plans to expand its fleet from 24 to 35 planes in the next three years and replace some of its ageing jets.

"Sri Lankan Airlines has issued four requests for proposal to lease up to 21 aircraft to support its long-term business strategy," it said in a brief statement.

The announcement came after the government suspended repayment of all its foreign borrowings, ahead of negotiations for a debt restructure with the International Monetary Fund next week.

The national carrier did not say how it planned to finance the leases, with its balance sheet showing a $1.7 billion debt and a carried forward loss of $1.56 billion in March 2020.

It also came the same day international ratings agency Fitch downgraded $175 million in bonds issued by the airline from C to CC, suggesting the carrier was "near default".

Fitch said the airline's new rating, on debt due in June 2024, was in line with Sri Lanka's default announcement.

The IMF has repeatedly urged Sri Lanka to privatize the airline, saying it was a white elephant the country cannot afford.—AFP

Elon Musk's move to buy Twitter faces roadblocks

Elon Musk's fortune does not mean it will be easy for him to buy Twitter. PHOTO: AFP

EVEN for the richest person on the planet, buying Twitter was always going to be a challenge—a highly complex financial transaction now made even trickier by a defensive "poison pill" move from the platform's board. Musk's $43 billion offer lays out the myriad potential pitfalls: possible government approvals, legal as well as regulatory due diligence, negotiations of a final agreement and, of course, how to pay for it all. Then Twitter's board on Friday showed it won't go quietly, saying any acquisition of over 15 per cent of the firm's stock without its OK would trigger a plan to flood the market with shares and thus make a buyout much harder.

"Your move @elon-musk," tweeted Silicon Valley journalist Kara Swisher. The offer itself, which Musk said was final, values Twitter at $54.20 per share—above the closing price ahead of his bid, but below a high of $77.06 hit in February of last year. Even with a moderate and inflexible proposal, which could help the board argue for rejection, it's a fraught moment that could end in lawsuits from just about everyone involved.—AFP

NORTH Korea marked the birthday of its founding leader on Friday, with a rare "live" broadcast of celebrations in Pyongyang, but no sign of the military parade or weapons tests that many analysts had predicted.

Known as the Day of the Sun in the nuclear-armed North, the 15 April birthday of the late Kim Il Sung -- grandfather of current leader Kim Jong Un -- is one of the most important dates in Pyongyang's political calendar.

There has been a steady drumbeat of celebratory coverage in state media leading up to the day, including commemorative stamps, light festivals, dance parties and floral tributes.

"I came to see the lighting festival with my daughter. Looking at it today, it's really cool. The most impressive thing in particular is this one that says 'self-reliance'," Ri Bom Chol, a 40-year-old doctor, told an AFP reporter in Pyongyang.

The anniversary celebrations come three weeks after North Korea staged its largest intercontinental ballistic missile test ever -- the first time Kim's most powerful weapons had been fired at full range since 2017.—AFP

HKSAR chief executive stresses ensuring national security

Chief Executive of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region (HKSAR) Carrie Lam said on Friday that she will continue to promote national security education for the rest of her term, and hope that the next-term government will continue the work to ensure comprehensive protection of national security.

April 15 marks the seventh National Security Education Day of the country, as well as the second National Security Education Day after the implementation of the national security law in Hong Kong.

Lam noted that the current-term government of the HKSAR has done a lot of work on national security, including the implementation of the national security law in Hong Kong, which is the first law since Hong Kong's return to the motherland that can be applied to ensuring national security, and the improvement of the electoral system that ensures the principle of "patriots administering Hong Kong". — Xinhua

Belgium trial for alleged accomplices of 2015 Paris attacks

FOURTEEN people charged as accomplices to jihadists who carried out deadly bomb and gun attacks in Paris in 2015 will go on trial in Belgium from Tuesday.

Proceedings will take place under high security in NATO's former headquarters and are expected to last until 20 May, with a verdict likely to take several more weeks.

They are happening in parallel with a trial in Paris of 20 suspects charged in France, which opened in September and is expected to run until the end of June.

WHO warns of steep rise in hepatitis cases among
UK children

BRITAIN has reported an "unexpected significant increase" in cases of severe acute hepatitis in young children with an occasional link to COVID-19, according to a risk assessment sheet released by the World Health Organization (WHO) European Region on Friday.

WHO was notified of 10 cases of severe acute hepatitis of unknown etiology in children under the age of 10 years across central Scotland on 5 April. "By 8 April, 74 cases had been identified in the United Kingdom," the press release said.

Laboratory testing conducted in the aftermath of the outbreak ruled out hepatitis A, B, C and E viruses

(as well as D in some cases), but "severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus type 2 (SARS-CoV-2) and/or adenovirus have been detected in several cases," according to the WHO.

"While some cases tested positive for SARS-CoV-2 and/or adenovirus," the United Nations (UN) health body stated that genetic analyses of viruses should be performed to determine any possible associations between cases.

"Some cases have required transfer to specialist children's liver units and six children have undergone liver transplantation. As of 11 April, no death has been reported among these cases."—Xinhua

Singapore PM Lee says finance

SINGAPOREAN Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong said Thursday that ministers of his cabinet have chosen Finance Minister Lawrence Wong as his future successor.

The 49-year-old Wong, once Lee's principal private secretary, is seen assuming the post after Singapore's next general election, expected in 2025.

Lee said in a Facebook post that Wong has been chosen as the "new leader of the 4G team," referring to the fourth generation of the ruling People's Action Party.

The PAP has ruled Singapore since the island city-state became an independent nation in 1965.

RUSSIA-UKRAINE CONFLICT

QUICK SUMMARY

Here are the latest developments in the war in Ukraine:

Russia threatens Kyiv

A Ukrainian military factory outside Kyiv is partially destroyed by overnight Russian strikes, AFP reports, as Moscow warns it will intensify attacks on the capital in response to Ukrainian strikes on Russian soil.

Russian officials accuse Ukraine of sending two helicopters across the border to bomb a town in Russia's southern Bryansk region, wounding eight people. Ukraine has denied the accusations.

The military factory outside Kyiv produced missiles allegedly used to hit Russia's Moskva warship.

"The number and scale of missile strikes against targets in Kyiv will increase in response to any terrorist attacks or sabotage committed by the Kyiv nationalist regime on Russian territory," the defence ministry in Moscow says.

Five million flee Ukraine

More than five million people have now fled Ukraine since the Russian invasion on 24 February, the United Nations says.

The UN's refugee agency lists 4,796,245 million Ukrainians who have crossed the borders, while its International Organization for Migration says nearly 215,000 third-country nationals have also left.

'Polish mercenaries' killed

Russia's defence ministry says it has killed up to 30 Polish mercenaries fighting for Ukraine in the northeastern region of Kharkiv.

It says strategic rocket forces "eliminated up to 30 Polish mercenaries" in a strike on the village of Izyumskoe, near the city of Kharkiv.

Kharkiv offensive

Russian strikes on the eastern Ukrainian city of Kharkiv killed seven people and left another 34 injured, the region's governor says, as Moscow's forces stepped up attacks.

"The occupiers fired on a residential area in Kharkiv. Unfortunately, 34 people were injured, including three children. Seven people died; one among the dead was a child," Oleg Synegubov says on social media.

EU gas, oil embargo will take 'months'

The EU is working on broadening sanctions on Russia to include oil and gas embargoes but such measures will take "several months", European officials tell AFP.

Russian energy exports are Moscow's main hard currency earner, and its oil and gas sales to the EU account for between a quarter of a billion to a billion euros per day, per different estimates.

Russia kicks out EU diplomats

Moscow says 18 members of the EU mission in Russia have been declared "persona non grata" and must leave the country.

Japan, 5 Central Asia nations vow to closely communicate over Ukraine

Japan and five Central Asian nations pledged Friday to closely communicate over responses to Russia's invasion of Ukraine, the Japanese Foreign Ministry said. During online talks with ministers and officials of Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan, Foreign Minister Yoshimasa Hayashi condemned Moscow's aggression on Ukraine that began in late February as a serious breach of international law, according to the ministry.

Russia warns US of 'consequences' of Ukraine military aid: reports

Ukraine and Russia are both unlikely to advance ceasefire negotiations until the ongoing Russian campaign in eastern Ukraine develops further. PHOTO: FACEBOOK/AFP

RUSSIA has formally complained to the United States over its military aid to Ukraine, warning of "unpredictable consequences" if shipments of advanced weaponry go forward, US media reported.

In a diplomatic note this week, Moscow warned the United States and NATO against sending the "most sensitive" weapons for Kyiv to use in the conflict with Russia, saying such shipments were "adding fuel" to the situation and could come with "unpredictable consequences," the Washington Post reported.

The warning came the same week that US President Joe Biden pledged a new $800 million military aid package for Ukraine, including helicopters, howitzers and armoured personnel carriers.

"What the Russians are telling us privately is precisely what we've been telling the world publicly -- that the massive amount of assistance that we've been providing our Ukrainian partners is proving extraordinarily effective," the Post quoted a senior administration official -- who spoke on condition of anonymity about the note -- as saying.

The State Department declined to comment on reports of the formal note.

"We won't confirm any private diplomatic correspondence," a State Department spokesperson said.

"What we can confirm is that, along with allies and partners, we are providing Ukraine with billions of dollars' worth of security assistance, which our Ukrainian partners are using to extraordinary effect to defend their country against Russia's unprovoked aggression and horrific acts of violence."

According to the New York Times citing US officials, the note was sent through normal channels, and was not signed by any senior Russian officials.

The formal correspondence indicates Russia is concerned about the United States' ongoing material support for Ukraine, an anonymous US official told CNN.— AFP

Ukraine says fighting for Mariupol continues

UKRAINIAN Defence Ministry's spokesman Olexandr Motuzyanyk said Friday that Ukrainian forces continued fighting with the Russian military for the Azov Sea key port city of Mariupol, the Ukrinform news agency reported.

"The Russian army is constantly recruiting additional units to storm the city, and as of now there are active battles near the Ilyich plant and in the port zone of Mariupol," Motuzyanyk said.

He emphasized that the Russian forces have not gained full control of the city after almost seven weeks since the siege began.

and now they are trying to unblock the city, Motuzyanyk said.

Myanmar U-22 team to play friendly matches before SEA Games

ACCORDING to the Myanmar Football Federation, the Myanmar U-22 Men's Football Team will play international matches before the 31st Viet Nam SEA Games.

Since early January, team Myanmar has been training for this year's international competitions and competed in the ASEAN U-23 Championship in Cambodia in February, but withdrew from the competition after arriving in Cambodia after being infected with the COVID-19 virus.

The youth team took a rest for a few days after the tourney and started training in March.

The team will train in the UAE in preparation for the SEA Games and play friendly matches, football officials said.

The squad will leave for the UAE on 17 April and will travel directly to Viet Nam from the UAE for the SEA Games.

The SEA Games national football tournament is open to under-22 players, but three senior players are allowed to play, and Bulgarian head coach Popov has selected around 30 players, including senior players.

Some of the senior players are playing for foreign clubs and will only be able to join just before the SEA Games, officials added. — Ko Nyi Lay/GNLM

Ronaldo hat-trick saves Man Utd as Spurs, Arsenal slump to defeat

CRISTIANO Ronaldo scored a hat-trick as Manchester United claimed a 3-2 win over Norwich on Saturday to take advantage of defeats for Arsenal and Tottenham in the race for a place in next season's Champions League.

Spurs' winning run was brought to an abrupt halt by a 1-0 home defeat by Brighton, while the Gunners were beaten 1-0 at Southampton to slump to a third consecutive loss.

Ronaldo's 50th club hat-trick tempered a revolt among the fan-base at Old Trafford as United move above Arsenal into fifth on goal difference, three points behind Tottenham. There was unrest among the United fans before the game even began as many did not come into the stadium until the 17th minute to protest against the 17 years of the Glazer family's ownership of the club. Klopp salutes Liverpool as 'best ever' display seals FA Cup final place JURGEN Klopp hailed one of Liverpool's "best ever" performances as the quadruple chasers reached the FA Cup final with a "special" 3-2 win against Manchester City on Saturday.

Klopp's side kept alive their bid to win all four major trophies in a single seasons thanks to Ibrahima Konate's opener and Sadio Mane's double at Wembley.

Liverpool were three goals up by half-time as they tore City apart with a scintillating display that Klopp rated among the very finest of his reign.
