Myeik District Rice Traders Association to buy paddy from Myeik Tsp at minimum rate of K700,000 per 100 baskets

MYEIK District Rice Traders Association pledged to purchase paddy from local farmers in Myeik Township, Taninthayi Region at the minimum rate of K700,000 per 100 baskets, said an official of the association.

This year, the local farmers in Myeik Township are facing difficulties to produce paddy seeds owing to the high agricultural-input cost, hike in fuel oil price and saltwater intrusion in agricultural fields. Saltwater intrusion impacts prompt some farmers to suspend the agricultural operations, the farmers stressed.

“It is hard for the farmers to cultivate paddy only with their income. They cannot bear both paddy seed cost and fuel price burden. As the association will help treat our land with tractor, the farmers are interested in resuming the agriculture,” a farmer U Tun Win from Kabin village said.

Freight workers are loading bags of rice onto truck.

If the association offers a higher price than the current set price in the difficult time of the farmers, the farmers can return to their work.

The cultivation of paddy costs around K200,000-K300,000 per acre. They are not profitable with the basic price of 100-basket paddy.

“If the floor rate of paddy is set K540,000 per 100 baskets. Our association will offer K700,000 at least. If the market price reaches K900,000, we will offer the rate higher than that. This way, farmers are encouraged to go back to their fields. To fulfill the requirements of the rice consumption in Myeik city, we have to order from other regions. About K2,000 million worth of rice are supplied to Myeik city every month. If we support local farmers, that K2,000 million will flow into them. My rice mills could purchase 500,000-600,000 tonnes of rice paddy last year,” said U Maung Htway, chair of Myeik District Rice Traders Association.

There is a total of 42,476 acres of paddy in Myeik Township, according to Agriculture Department. This move is to help the local farmers tackle with their difficulties and provide self-sufficiency in the township, in coordination with the private businessmen and departments concerned.—Myint Oo (Myeik)/GNLM

142 companies submit EOIs for legitimate corn export to China

ONE hundred and forty-two companies are found to submit Expression of Interest (EOIs) for a legitimate corn export to China so far, said U Min Khaing, chair of Myanmar Corn Industrial Association.

Working task force scrutinizes the EOIs in line with those protocols. Myanmar’s Department of the Consumer Affairs and Myanmar Inspection and Testing Service (MITS), the authorized organization of the State, is conducting the survey to the drying mills and warehouses as well.

“Majority of 142 companies has been under scrutiny of Working Task Force and some has finished screening test. As the mills are in every place, about 75 per cent of scrutinizing will be completed at the end of May. The Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation and the Ministry of Commerce will continue the process for those companies which passed the test. Then, the list of companies which are in line with the rules and regulations will be forwarded to the General Administration of Customs of the People’s Republic of China (GACC). If those companies are given the go-ahead by the GACC, the export is slated to commence in September,” said U Min Khaing.

The SPS Protocol (Sanitary and Phytosanitary Protocol) for biosecurity is a must for legitimate export to China, the main trade partner of agricultural products with Myanmar. Myanmar’s Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation and GACC have signed an agreement to legally ship corn to China.

At present, the corn industry is endeavouring to seek permits from the GACC and to meet the import food safety criteria.

Therefore, the exporter companies have been notified to submit EOIs to the working task force by 31 March 2022 in order to meet the SPS protocol requirements and file annual registration.

The protocols include the exporters must have a company or institution which can handle the standard drying mill or warehousing operation for exports or can strictly adhere to the agreements during the set period. Those who have a history of the corn exports to China must also present the documents. The company has to comply with the rules and regulations set by China. Additionally, they need to adopt Good Agricultural Practice and contract farming in need to enhance the corn sector and ensure food safety.

The prices stood at K1,050-K1,070 per viss (a viss equals 1.6 kg) in Yangon market and FOB prices were approximately US$340-360 per tonne, according to Yangon Region Chambers of Commerce and Industry (Bayintnaung).

Myanmar exported 2.3 million tonnes of corn to foreign trade partners in the 2020-2021 financial year. The majority of them were sent to Thailand and the remaining went to China, India and Vietnam.

At present, corn is cultivated in Shan, Kachin, Kayah and Kayin states and Mandalay, Sagaing and Magway regions. The country produces 2.5-3 million tonnes of corn every year.—NN/GNLM

Htikhee border sees largest trade among Myanmar-Thailand border posts

MYANMAR’S Htikhee border carried out the largest trade among the Myanmar-Thailand border posts, with an estimated value of US$254.92 million between 1 April and 13 May of the current financial year 2022-2023, according to Myanmar Customs Department.

The figures soared from $118.995 million recorded in the year-ago period. There showed a significant increase of $135.9 million.

Exports of natural gas from Taninthayi Region contributed to the enormous increase in trade through the Htikhee border in the previous years, the Ministry of Commerce stated.

The border trade between Myanmar and Thailand is conducted through the border areas—Myeik, Kawthoung, Tachilek, Myawady, Mawtaung, Htikhee and Meisei posts.

Myawady border post witnessed a small decrease in trade value owing to the transportation difficulty triggered by the security concerns and extreme weather condition.

Myanmar primarily exports natural gas, fishery products, coal, tin concentrate (SN 71.58 per cent), coconut (fresh and dried), beans, corns and bamboo shoots to Thailand. It imports capital goods such as machinery, raw industrial goods such as cement and fertilizers, and consumer goods such as cosmetics and food products from the neighbouring country.

Bilateral trade between Thailand and Myanmar through the Htikhee border in the past mini-budget period (Oct 2021-Mar 2022) touched a high of US$965.469 million.—KK/GNLM

Cyclone shelters, ready to give shelter to disaster victims

Most Myanmar people have accumulated knowledge about cyclonic storm Nargis which severely hit Yangon and Ayeyawady regions and parts of Mon State in 2008. It gave physical and mental suffering to millions of people, leaving hundreds of thousands of people dead and injured. Hence, the word of Nargis always shakes the heart of the people in taking preventive measures against natural disasters. But such an unforgettable record left invaluable lessons to the people.

The dreadful Nargis stipulated the people to observe the weather forecasts whenever any kinds of disasters are slated to fall in parts of the nation. Most of the people in both Yangon and construction materials, shortage of labour and security measures hampered the construction of the cyclone shelters. So, there remain 24 cyclone shelters to be built by ministries for 17 cyclone shelters and region and state governments for seven. They have built 122 cyclone shelters at the end of February 2022.

Up to the second week of May this year, 219 cyclone shelters have been completed. Now, 23 shelters are under construction and there remain four buildings to be constructed.

These cyclone shelters are scattered in disaster-prone areas such as Ayeyawady, Yangon, Bago, Magway, Taninthayi and Sagaing regions and Rakhine, Kayin, Chin, Mon and Shan states.

The shelters can be used as accommodation for victims whenever they face natural disasters such as flooding, storms and others. During the normal time, the shelters can be used for community welfare tasks.

Ayeyawady regions participate in the rehearsal to take preventive measures against natural disasters even in the condition of fine weather. It is because no one people wish to give casualties anymore in the disasters.

Primarily, depressions and storms may fall one after another in the country in the rainy season. Hence, eleven regions and states have built 219 cyclone shelters in order to give shelter to the people when any disasters fall.

The national natural disaster management fund has been spent on the construction of 146 cyclone shelters to give shelters to local people in 11 regions and states after cyclonic storm Nargis had hit.

In so doing, the Ministry of Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement took responsibility for the construction of 87 cyclone shelters and relevant regions and states, 59, totalling 146.

Seventy-fifth World Health Assembly to focus on “Health for Peace, Peace for Health” for recovery and renewal

In a world threatened by conflict, inequities, the climate crisis and pandemics, the Seventy-fifth session of the World Health Assembly will stress the importance of building a healthy and peaceful planet by harnessing science, data, technology and innovation.

This year’s session of the Health Assembly will focus on the theme of “Health for Peace, Peace for Health” and will run from the 22-28 May at the Palais des Nations in Geneva. It will include the appointment of the next WHO Director-General.

“The pandemic has undermined progress towards the health-related targets in Sustainable Development Goals and laid bare inequities within and between countries,” said Dr Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, WHO Director-General. “Sustained recovery will require more than ‘getting back on track’ and reinvesting in existing services and systems. We need a new approach, which means shifting priorities and focusing on the highest-impact interventions.”

The Seventy-fifth World Health Assembly will kick off with a high-level segment on 22 May with speeches from the elected Health Assembly President, Heads of State, special guests, an address by the WHO Director-General and the presentation of the Director-General’s Health Awards. The Director-General’s speech will set out WHO’s five priorities going forward, expanding from the vision delivered at the Executive Board meeting held in January 2022.

As world leaders are traveling to Bali to meet at the Global Platform for Disaster Risk Reduction 2022 and discuss how to better prevent and reduce current and future risks, the United Nations University Institute for Environment and Human Security (UNU-EHS) and United Office for Disaster Risk Reduction (UNDRR) have launched the new report “Rethinking Risks in Times of COVID-19.”

The report reveals that the way individuals and decision-making bodies such as governments view risks associated with hazards and shocks has undergone a fundamental change as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic.

“Before the pandemic there was not much awareness that hazards, such as floods, droughts or regional disease outbreaks can have knock-on effects on societies globally. Only when COVID-19 started to spread and affect our daily lives, the true extent of how interdependencies in our highly interconnected world are causing impacts to cascade within and across societies became fully visible,” said Dr. Michael Hagenlocher, lead author of the report and senior scientist at UNU-EHS.

As infections were on the rise, the unfolding pandemic prompted a range of policy measures, including stay-at-home orders and shutdowns of public life to limit the spread of the virus and avoid health systems becoming overwhelmed.

Preventing health systems

The effects of these measures were vital in preventing health systems from collapsing and critically necessary for reducing COVID-19 fatalities, and undoubtedly saved millions of lives across the globe. However, the cascading effects of some of these policies hit the most vulnerable the hardest. Underlying issues such as poverty, precarious jobs in the informal economy, lack of access to education and structural gender biases were made worse by the pandemic.

“Rethinking Risks in Times of COVID-19” presents the results of research from five case studies, conducted in five geographically and socially diverse locations; an urban setting in Ecuador, coastal areas in India, the world’s largest refugee camp in Bangladesh, the Maritime Region in Togo, and Indonesia.

The experience of people in each location reveals not only the human cost of the cascading effects from the pandemic, but also points to lessons that can be learned for risk management in the future. A clear picture emerges showing that the pandemic cast a far-reaching net of impacts that rippled across societies far beyond the immediate effects of COVID-19 itself.

The new report “Rethinking Risks in Times of COVID-19” has set out a number of clear recommendations that can be taken to improve risk management.

One is to join the dots on interconnections. The cascading effects originating from COVID-19 made it possible to understand how things are connected, and how this results in and exacerbates impacts. For example, many people working in the informal economy in Guayaquil, Ecuador, rely on an influx of trade from the city’s port, which significantly slowed down during the pandemic, ultimately resulting in significant financial impacts for individuals. By understanding how this system of interconnections works, it is possible to identify where there are vulnerable components that need to be addressed.

Several measures to combat COVID-19

Another is to identify the possible trade-offs implicit in policy measures. Several measures to combat COVID-19, such as school closures, stay-at-home orders and travel restrictions, while necessary to reduce the spread of the disease and save lives, had widespread cascading effects that impacted people disproportionately based on their individual situations. This highlights the need to assess and evaluate possible trade-offs and cascading effects involved in introducing such for 2020.

The 2020-2021 Results Report, also published before WHA, summarizes the Organization’s achievements and challenges in implementing the programme budget.

Key issues

The Health Assembly will discuss global strategies on food safety, oral health, and tuberculosis research and innovation. It will also discuss the report of the Working Group on WHO Sustainable financing.

Other key topics under discussion include:

strengthening WHO preparedness for and response to health emergencies;

an implementation road map 2023–2030 for the global action plan for the prevention and control of noncommunicable

an Intersectoral Global Action Plan on epilepsy and other neurological disorders 2022-2031; prevention of sexual exploitation, abuse and harassment; poliomyelitis; and the Global Health for Peace Initiative.

Agenda items will be discussed in Committee A, which deals with predominantly programme and budget matters, and Committee B, which deals mainly with administrative, financial and legal matters. Details can be found in the provisional agenda. The venues at the Palais des Nations are: Plenary — room XIX; Committee A — room XX; and Committee B — room XVII.

Assembly delegates, partner agencies, representatives of civil society and WHO experts will also discuss priorities for public health in a series of strategic roundtables.

The Health Assembly is WHO’s highest decision-making body, setting out the Organization’s policy and approving its budget. WHA is attended by delegations from all WHO 194 Member States. The Health Assembly’s agenda is prepared by the Programme, Budget and Administration Committee of the Executive Board, which will meet on 18-20 May, 2022.

The Health Assembly is open to Member States, Associate Members, Observers, invited representatives of the UN and other participating inter-governmental organizations and non-State actors.

to abroad, earning about USD 80 million in April.

Relevant departments are providing farmers with fertilizers, loans, seedling, and insurance prices. Summer paddy

Five strong wind-affected trawlers sink in sea in Rakhine State

DUE to strong winds on the evening of 21 May at about 31 nautical miles northwest of Kyunthaya Island in Rakhine State, five trawlers sank in sea, according to the Rakhine State Government.

“It was a squall at around one o’clock in the afternoon all over Rakhine State; There were some boats sinking and many houses were damaged at Kyunthaya Island,” said U Hla Oo, a resident of Manaung.

The Department of Meteorology and Hydrology released a statement on 21 May stating that the cyclone has weakened and moved towards to the northern Thailand.

“Due to the heavy winds, three trawlers from Kyunthaya village and two more trawlers from Pyinwaing village, and all 13 people who sank with the boats were searched and rescued by the people and they all have arrived back home,” said U Kyaw Sein Tun, a rescue worker.

Although some trawlers were reported sunk near the Ngapathon Island in Myebon Township, no one was killed. Those who were injured in the rescue work were taken to Ngapathon Hospital.

Residents of Thandwe, Kyaukpyu, Myebon and Sittway make a living by fishing and the notice of the village administrator to not go to the sea was weak, locals say.

“Everyone is in the sea right now. Despite the weather forecast on TV and radio, local authorities did not provide advance notice. This is what almost all trawlers have to deal with,” said Daw Yi Yi Win.—TWA/GNLM

Health care in US explicitly “luxury”, rather than right: report

FOR many Americans, regular health care is financially out of reach. Health care is explicitly a luxury, rather than a right, said a report of popular science magazine Scientific American.

During the course of the COVID-19 pandemic, media outlets, health experts and scholars have explained the COVID-19 vaccine divide in the United States as partisan, educational, racial or socioeconomic. As it stands, the overall U.S. adult vaccination rate has hovered around 65 percent for months now, said the report published on Wednesday.

“But this division may go back to the founding ideals of democracy in the US: Americans simply aren’t accustomed to expecting much from their government,” said the report.

If preventing further pandemics is truly a goal of the U.S. public health system, then instead of investing in private health care and subsidizing private research for vaccine development, the country should invest in the development of public health systems and develop strategies to include social rights in the principles of its democracy, said the report.

For many Americans, regular health care is financially out of reach. Half of Americans carry medical debt — and the government has little role in ensuring access to health care, said the report.

“It has been clear for months throughout this pandemic that vaccine acceptance is not only a scientific issue, but also a public health and communication problem,” said the report. — Xinhua

4 subway lines in Shanghai to resume service

FOUR subway lines in Shanghai will resume service starting Sunday, the Shanghai Shentong Metro Group said Friday, adding that passengers must hold a negative nucleic acid test result within 48 hours for entry.

The subway routes include Line 3, Line 6, Line 10 and Line 16, some of which link the city’s train stations and the downtown areas. Metro trains on these four lines will operate from 7:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.

Shanghai is inching back toward reopening after the latest resurgence of COVID-19 infections brought the megacity of 25 million to a standstill. Community transmission of infections in all its 16 districts has been cut off.

The megacity reported 88 confirmed locally transmitted COVID-19 cases and 770 local asymptomatic cases on Thursday, the municipal health commission said Friday. — Xinhua

Beijing extends COVID control measures amid local outbreak

BEIJING will maintain strict and tight COVID-19 control measures as hidden community-level transmission has been discovered through recent screenings, a municipal official said at a press briefing Friday.

Dine-in services at restaurants will remain unavailable, and schools will continue suspending in-person classes, said Xu Hejian, a spokesperson for the Beijing municipal government.

THE national capital reported 54 new locally transmitted COVID-19 infections between 3 p.m. Thursday and 3 p.m. Friday, said Liu Xiaofeng, deputy head of the Beijing municipal disease prevention and control center. — Xinhua

German gov’t allows further tax relief to cushion COVID-19 impact

THE German government on Thursday passed a bundle of tax relief measures to help citizens and companies cope with the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Individuals and companies are still carrying a heavy burden as a result of the pandemic, the government said. Aside from social cohesion, the aim of the measures is to “protect the health of citizens while safeguarding jobs and supporting the economy.”

Employees in Germany will now be able to claim a tax allowance of up to 600 euros (630 U.S. dollars) per year for working from home.

Although companies are no longer obliged to allow employees to work from home, almost 25 percent were still working remotely in April, according to Munich-based the ifo Institute.

Employers in the healthcare sector can now also pay their nursing professionals a tax-free bonus of up to 3,000 euros. This allowance is intended to “reward the special efforts of nursing staff during the pandemic,” the government said.

Other measures include allowing companies to carry back losses to two preceding years, to ensure liquidity. (1 euro = 1.05 US dollars) — Xinhua

CHINA and the Arab League pledged to deepen their cooperation in fighting the COVID-19 pandemic, said a statement published Friday by the Chinese embassy in Egypt.

The two sides made the remarks during a meeting held Thursday in Cairo between Chinese Ambassador to Egypt Liao Liqiang and Haifa Abu Ghazaleh, Arab League (AL) Assistant Secretary General for Social Affairs.

“Since the outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic, China and Arab countries have stood together and helped each other,” said the Chinese ambassador, noting “the traditional friendship and strategic partnership between China and Arab countries have been constantly deepened and enhanced.”

China stands ready to continue working with Arab countries to combat the pandemic, and build a community of a shared future for China and the Arab countries as well as a community of common health for the two sides through cooperation in fighting the COVID-19 pandemic, said Liao.

He also highlighted China’s dynamic zero-COVID policy, which has ensured not only the steady development of China’s economy, but also the security of the global industrial and supply chains, bringing benefits to the world. — Xinhua

APEC should push for strong policies to avert future crises: Thai deputy PM

THAILAND'S Deputy Prime Minister and Commerce Minister Jurin Laksanavisit called for enhanced efforts from Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) economies to respond to future crises and achieve better and more inclusive economic growth in the region.

While addressing the APEC Ministers Responsible for Trade Meeting on Saturday and Sunday, Jurin said "I strongly hope that the outcome of this meeting will include a strong policy stance regarding the recovery of the regional economy after the COVID-19 pandemic, from where we should emerge stronger than ever in order to cope with future crises."

Thailand is the host of APEC 2022. Jurin highlighted Thailand's theme of "Open. Connect. Balance." and urged member economies to advance APEC's work in deepening economic integration and mobilizing the progress of the Free Trade Area of the Asia-Pacific (FTAAP).

He also reiterated the importance of resuming safe and convenient cross-border travel and promoting digital and supply chain connectivity while taking into account environmental protection and bolstering food and agricultural security to ensure the well-being of the region's people.

The meeting, with online or offline participants from APEC economies, has seen member economies detail their perspectives on the future of trade policy, especially for reviving and strengthening regional economic integration and supporting the multilateral trading system. — Xinhua

Italy's oil imports from Russia quadruple since February: reports

ITALY is importing three times more of oil from Russia than it did before the start of the conflict between Russia and Ukraine, according to news reports on Friday.

A story published in the Financial Times reported that Italy had quadrupled the amount of Russian crude oil it imports to 450,000 barrels per day.

The dramatic increase is due to a distorting impact of sanctions against Russia, the report said.

The developments are based around the ISAB oil refinery on the southern Italian island of Sicily, which is owned by Moscow-based Lukoil. — Xinhua

Kenya launches strategy to guide tourism recovery

KENYA has launched a strategy to guide the growth and recovery of the tourism sector in the next five years, a senior official said.

Najib Balala, cabinet secretary, Ministry of Tourism and Wildlife said in Nairobi, Kenya's capital, that the strategy outlines an actionable plan that is designed around the four pillars that will assist to transform Kenya into a top tourist destination in Africa.

"The strategy calls for repositioning of Kenya's brand, developing new and existing markets, developing new tourism products and experiences as well as developing enablers to further strengthen the industry," Balala said during the launch on Friday evening.

Government data indicates that international tourist arrivals hit 870,465 in 2021, earning the country 146 billion shillings (about 1.25 billion US dollars). — Xinhua

India attracts highest ever foreign direct investment in 2021-22

INDIA received the highest ever foreign direct investment (FDI) worth 83.57 billion US dollars during the financial year 2021-22 (April 2021-March 2022), the federal Ministry of Commerce and Industry said Friday.

The ministry said India had rapidly emerged as a preferred FDI destination, and that the FDI inflows had increased 20-fold in the past 20 years.

According to the ministry, FDI equity inflows in the manufacturing sector rose by 76 percent during 2021-22.

The country's southern state of Karnataka emerged as the top FDI equity inflow recipient state. Singapore remained the top investor with 27 percent share, followed by the United States with 18 percent share in

FDI inflows have been consistently rising in the country over the years. It stood at 62 billion dollars in 2018-19, rose to 74.39 billion dollars during 2019-20, and further increased to 81.97 billion dollars during 2020-21, according to data released by the ministry. — Xinhua

German producer prices rise at record pace amid energy crisis

PRODUCER prices in Germany rose at record pace in April as factory gate prices for industrial products were 33.5 percent higher than a year ago, the Federal Statistical Office (Destatis) said on Friday.

Energy prices soared 87.3 percent and continued to be "mainly responsible" for greatest price increases since the Federal Republic of Germany was founded in 1949, Destatis said. Without energy, the overall producer price index would have risen by 16.3 percent only.

The development was impacted by the Russia-Ukraine conflict, according to Destatis, along with the rising factory gate prices. "Inflationary pressure on end-consumers remains very high," said Jens-Oliver Niklasch, expert at Landesbank Baden-Wuerttemberg (LBBW).

Driven by soaring energy and motor fuel prices, inflation in Germany stood at 7.4 percent, a 40-year high, in April. The last time prices increased at comparable speed was during the Iran-Iraq war that started in 1980. Eurozone inflation was even slightly higher at 7.5 percent.

The German government has recently lowered its 2022 economic growth forecast from 3.6 percent to 2.2 percent, expecting annual inflation to reach 6.1 percent, almost twice as high as previously assumed. "The risks to the economy are significant," Minister for Economic Affairs Robert Habeck said when presenting the outlook in April. — Xinhua

Manufacturers getting to grips with airless tyres

Puncture-proof tyres could one day become a reality. PHOTO: AFP

AIRLESS tyres that never go flat or need to be inflated: It's a decades-long dream that manufacturers hope to turn into a reality soon, but for truck drivers first.

The challenges that the technology faces were put on display at a Goodyear test track in Luxembourg, where a group of journalists put a Tesla equipped with airless tyres through its paces.

Instead of being filled with air, the tyres have a web of spokes that keep the wheels firm and give them a see-through look.

The thin layer of rubber gripping the asphalt has a gargantuan physical challenge to meet: supporting the weight of the car and absorbing shocks as well as standard pneumatic tyres for thousands and thousands of kilometres.

That challenge is being overcome: the tyre's rubber and plastic structure resisted the huge stress as the car banked into the track's tight turns.

The ride is smooth but the grip is not as good as on conventional tyres —and they are noisier. The tyres were tested for 120,000 kilometres (75,000 miles) at speeds of up to 160 kph in both scorching temperatures as well as snow, said Michael Rachita, who heads up Goodyear's efforts to develop airless tyres. — AFP

Moldova wine industry's EU focus pays off

IN the small Moldovan village of Pereni, Nicolae Tronciu gazes at his vineyard, with its buds ready to bloom.

The 71-year-old launched his current brand four years ago, selling it to Europe rather than Russia, traditionally his country's biggest customer — a move that is paying off amid the war in Ukraine.

"Most of my production goes to Europe, especially to our Romanian brothers," Tronciu told AFP at his vineyard, about 50 kilometres (30 miles) away from the Ukrainian border.

Moldova — a small former Soviet republic of some 2.6 million people nestled between Ukraine and Romania, and among the world's 20 largest wine producers — has long sought closer ties with Europe.

This has now mitigated the war's impact as the industry struggles with rising prices for raw materials and a lack of Ukrainian consumers.

"The Russian market was our traditional market... In the EU you can charge higher prices for wine, but there the focus is on quality," Tronciu said. —AFP

Land-sea train from China to Laos launched with faster clearance

AN international rail-sea freight train left southwest China's Chongqing Municipality Saturday for Vientiane in Laos, with customs clearance faster than ever.

The train loaded with local food from Chongqing and agricultural machinery is expected to arrive in Vientiane along the China-Laos Railway in four days.

It is the first rail-sea freight train along the railway to adopt a new clearance mode launched by the General Administration of Customs in recent years, whereby clearance efficiency is much improved, especially for trains carrying containers.

"In the past, after customs declaration and release at the departure, outbound trains had to undergo checks and other procedures, which increased the detention time by one to two days," said You Xiaoyong, a staff member with the transport service's operating company. —Xinhua

Thousands mark late Yugoslav leader Tito’s birth anniversary

SEVERAL thousand fans of former Yugoslav leader Josip Broz Tito marked the 130th anniversary of his birth on Saturday in the Croatian village where he was born.

Admirers of the late communist leader gathered in front of the house where he was born in 1892, now a museum in Kumrovec, northern Croatia

They had come from all over the former Yugoslav federation to celebrate Tito’s achievements, notably leading the partisan fighters who drove out the Nazi German occupying forces in World War II, standing up to Soviet leader Joseph Stalin and founding the Non-Aligned Movement.

“The reason (for gathering) is the remembrance, not only of the past, but of the time in which we lived both richer and safer,” said Jovan Vejnovic, head of an association of Tito supporters.

Many of Tito’s admirers waved former Yugoslavia flags and were dressed in T-shirts bearing the former leader’s image.

“By the end of the year, 12 military units and divisions will be established in the Western Military District,” Shoigu said at a meeting in televised remarks.

The army expects to receive more than two thousand units of military equipment and weapons, Shoigu added. Russian President Vladimir Putin sent troops to pro-Western Ukraine on February 24. Ukraine war, pandemic push to colour WHO international meet

THE war in Ukraine is set to loom large over the World Health Assembly on Sunday.

The Ukraine war looms large as the World Health Organization opens its main annual assembly Sunday, threatening to overshadow efforts on other health crises and a reform push aimed at preventing future pandemics.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS

Here are the latest developments in the war in Ukraine:

Russia homes in on Lugansk

Russian Defence Minister Sergei Shoigu says Moscow is nearing full control of the separatist region of Lugansk in eastern Ukraine.

“The liberation of the Lugansk People’s Republic is nearing completion,” Shoigu says.

Kharkiv digs in against a new Russian assault

NEW trenches, concrete blocks, sandbags and numerous checkpoints appear to be everywhere around Kharkiv, which has pushed back one Russian assault on Ukraine’s second city, and is preparing to defend against another. A pink stuffed toy marks the entrance to one freshly dug trench in the regional capital. The cut earth is still soft and black and the soldiers are down to their vests, soaking up the sun. Tensions have eased in this northeastern corner of Ukraine, but Kharkiv, just 50 kilometres (30 miles) from the Russian border, remains under permanent threat, and a second line of defence has been organised behind the first.

“When we were here on the 24th of February there were no positions at all,” says “Doctor”, a medic with the National Guard, referring to the day the Russian invaded.

“Our warriors were laying by the road behind hills and were shooting, we had fire contacts,” he explains. — AFP

Number of Ukrainian evacuees to Japan reaches 1,000

THE number of evacuees from Ukraine to Japan since Russia’s invasion of the Eastern European country in late February reached 1,000 on Saturday, immigration authorities said. Japan, which traditionally recognizes only around 1 percent of refugee applications, has so far been accepting evacuees from Ukraine under a special measure, without granting them refugee status. — Kyodo

Biden heads to Japan after warning on North Korea threat

PRESIDENT Joe Biden flies Sunday to Japan for the second leg of a trip intended to reinforce US leadership across Asia in the face of a rising China and dangerously unpredictable, nuclear-armed North Korea.

Biden is leaving South Korea, where he joined newly elected President Yoon Suk-yeol for a series of meetings, including discussing expanded military exercises to counter Kim Jong Un's sabre rattling.

As officials from both countries warned that Kim could raise tensions with a nuclear weapon test while Biden is in the region, the US president said the democratic allies must deepen ties.

At a joint press conference with Yoon, Biden cited a global "competition between democracies and autocracies" and said the Asia-Pacific region is a key battleground.

"We talked in some length about the need for us to make this larger than just the United States, Japan, and Korea, but the entire Pacific and the South Pacific and Indo-Pacific. I think this is an opportunity," Biden said.

rival in that struggle, Biden illustrated the acute challenge from Russia when he signed a $40 billion aid bill late Saturday to help Ukraine fight the invasion by Moscow's forces.

Man City win Premier League title after epic fightback on final day

MANCHESTER City won the Premier League for the fourth time in five seasons after a pulsating title race reached a dramatic conclusion as the champions staged an incredible comeback from two goals down to beat Aston Villa 3-2 on Sunday.

Pep Guardiola's side were teetering on the brink of blowing the title after falling 2-0 behind midway through the second half at the Etihad Stadium.

But Ilkay Gundogan sparked an astonishing City revival as the German midfielder reduced the deficit before Rodri grabbed the equaliser.

Gundogan turned in City's third goal in the space of five minutes in the 81st minute, triggering wild celebrations and rendering second placed Liverpool's 3-1 victory against Wolves irrelevant. City finished with 93 points, one ahead of Liverpool as they ended their rivals hopes of winning an unprecedented quadruple.

On a breathtaking final day, Burnley were relegated as Leeds beat the drop, while Tottenham qualified for the Champions League at the expense of their north London rivals Arsenal.

It was City who hogged the spotlight on a day their fans, who spilled onto the pitch in delight, will never forget.

Guardiola's men can rightly be called a dynasty after joining Manchester United as the only clubs in the Premier League era to have won four titles in five seasons, with Alex Ferguson's teams doing it on three separate occasions.

The eighth league title in City's history is Guardiola's ninth major trophy since arriving at the club in 2016.

"It was an unbelievable game," Gundogan said.

"It was about getting that goal and then the momentum was on our side. These are the days you look back to."

Once again, City saved the best until last as they edged Liverpool out on the final day of the season for the second time after beating them to the finish line in 2019. It was 10 years since Sergio Aguero's famous last-second goal against QPR sealed City's first title since 1968 and this jaw-dropping success was almost as unlikely.

Guardiola had called on City's fans to be "loud, loud, loud" in their bid to retain the crown, but they were stunned into silence in the 37th minute.

AC Milan win first Serie A title since 2011

AC Milan won their first Serie A title in 11 years on Sunday after beating Sassuolo 3-0 to snatch the crown from local rivals Inter Milan.

Needing just a point to claim the Scudetto Milan swept their hosts aside thanks to an Olivier Giroud brace and another from Franck Kessie in the first half in front of an army of away fans at the Mapei Stadium. Stefano Pioli's Milan finished two points ahead of Inter, who beat Sampdoria 3-0 in the San Siro.

Fans partied in Milan and poured onto the pitch in Reggio Emilia as the 'Rossoneri' returned to the top of the Italian game after years of poor teams and financial problems since their last league crown in 2011.

Pioli's side were imperious in winning their sixth match on the bounce and securing a title which for long tracts of the season looked like Inter's to lose.

They were helped by a hat-trick of assists from exciting winger Rafael Leao, who has come of age this season and is reportedly a summer target for Paris Saint-Germain.

Giroud has struck some of the most important goals of Milan's charge to the title and again showed why he is the man for the big occasion in the 17th minute. Milan had already gone close through the France forward, Rafael Leao and Alexis Saelemaekers when Giroud was in the right place at the right time to sweep Leao's low pass through Andrea Consigli's legs and send the massed ranks of Milan fans wild. — AFP
