YESC to provide 24/7 electricity in Yangon starting mid-June

THE arrangements are being carried out to distribute electricity in full in some townships of the Yangon Region, according to YESC.

Currently, the townships receive power from 5 pm to 8 am and the industrial zones have power between 9 am and 5 pm.

The rotation system from 5 pm to 8 am was started on 25 May and the power will be supplied for 24 hours starting mid-June.

"We are so happy that we will receive electricity as usual. We cannot do anything if there is a power outage. It is not okay to run generators as the fuel price is high. We have to shorten the working hours if there is a power outage. We have losses just in one week or one month," said Ma Myat Noe who runs a small-scale garment industry.

According to the data from the Ministry of Electric Power, the country produces electricity between 2,661 mW and 2,742 mW per day, while the demand is more than 3,800 mV. It now produces an additional 200 mV per day for high rainfalls and so the power supply system is changed. — TWA/GNLM

Emphasize the greening of the world to be healthy

ALL global people should pledge to save the planet Earth along with their lives. Such a pledge aims to green the environment as part of ensuring the longevity of the world. If so, the healthy world can bear all the global peoples.

The greening of the environs is sure to be a healthy world. If so, all the global people can be free from natural disasters, catastrophes, pandemics and unexpected dreadful events. If the global peoples shape the world green, the greening world can provide accommodation and clothes to the global peoples. Consequently, a healthy world in a developed environment will be capable of bringing the global peoples to paradise free from disasters and diseases.

Currently, the global people understand the important role of greening for the world. As such, World Environment Day has been organized throughout the world thanks to the United Nations which set up the great day at the Stockholm Conference on the Human Environment from 5 to 16 June 1972, that had resulted from discussions on the integration of human interactions and the environment.

UN member countries yearly host the World Environment Day in rotation. This year's World Environment Day 2022 will be hosted by Sweden. "Only One Earth" is the campaign slogan, with the focus on "Living Sustainably in Harmony with Nature".

Truly, marking the World Environment Day is not enough for the global countries. Global peoples need to strive for the conservation of the world environment for enabling the people to avoid natural disasters as well as to take shelter in the safer places if they unavoidably face disasters. If so, they can save lives from the incidents.

All global peoples need to pledge that they should make efforts for the healthiness of all living and non-living beings residing all over the world and create fundamental rights for them to taste the equal term of rights in all things. Wars and conflicts should be ended for the sake of the global peoples as part of saving the world. If so, all global peoples will have the chance to enjoy the panoramic views of peace, progress and prosperity.

All in all, not only the peoples from various countries but Myanmar people are responsible for the development and health of the world in all aspects. Consequently, a healthy world in a developed environment will be capable of bringing the global peoples to paradise free from disasters and diseases. ■

The Forgotten Green Politics: Commemorating World Environmental Day

By Kaung Aung

IN THE current political situation, we have forgotten that time is running out and that a politics that should be taken seriously is neglected. That politics is "green politics."

Indeed, it is duty since birth to protect the environment in which we live.

Pollution is a global problem. In today's fast-paced world, the effects of environmental pollution are threatening us day by day.

Therefore, we need to hold on to our loosened hands to restore and protect the environment.

The term "environmental protection" refers primarily to environmental protection and social protection activities.

This has even been described by some literary artists as "green politics."

Sustainable Living in harmony with nature

World Environment Day is celebrated annually on June 5 around the world to protect the environment. It is also an important part of the United Nations movement for environmental protection and for global attention. World Environment Day was set on 1974. It has been instrumental in raising awareness of environmental issues, such as marine pollution, population growth and global warming, wildlife crime and conservation. World Environment Day is celebrated annually in more than 143 countries.

The first day of the UN Environment Conference in 1972 designated World Environment Day, and two years later, in 1974, for the first time, the theme was "Only One Earth." Then, in 1987, the main activities were held in different countries, and it became the world's largest platform for environmental education. World Environment Day 2022 is being hosted by Sweden under the theme "Sustainable living in harmony with nature".

From an individual

Today, with the advent of connectivity around the world, nations are working together for the environment, and our country also needs to participate. The role of the individual is also key to such participation. Article 45 of the Constitution of Myanmar (2008) states that "the State shall preserve the environment." In addition, under Section 390 (b), "Every citizen has the duty to assist the State in the following matters: These are:

- Preservation of national cultural heritage.
- Conserving the environment
- Efforts to increase human resource development
- And maintenance of public property.

These factors demonstrate the highest commitment of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar to environmental management. Part of Myanmar's reform process includes amending and approving environmental policies and laws. The Government of Myanmar has declared a path to sustainable, socially and environmentally sustainable development for its citizens.

Investors are also joining forces.

Myanmar released the environmental quality standards, environmental impact assessment and the social impact assessment in 2016. In order to comply with Myanmar's changing environmental regulations, the Environmental Conservation Department (ECD) and the Ministry of Environmental Conservation and Forestry (MOECAF) provided additional information to investors who are unsure of specific environmental requirements.

The Environmental Conservation Department (ECD) is working with other ministries to test a new environmental impact assessment system. In the end of 2014, the Environmental Conservation Department (ECD) had provided guidance and review to more than 123 investment projects for environmental assessment. Forty of these projects were energy, infrastructure and production projects, which have already completed environmental impact assessments.

As industrial parks grow, so does environmental protection. Investors also need to become familiar with Myanmar's environmental law. Investors will be able to support Myanmar's responsible investment promotion process by adhering to the country's environmental regulations. Only then will foreign investors be able to take consider the environmental standards used in their operations in other countries in setting standards for environmental protection in Myanmar.

Pandemic and the environment

Sixty percent of the infectious diseases come from wildlife sources, according to the researches of the World Health Organization (WHO). Coronavirus, which has been found to be transmitted by bats, beginning with AH1N1 (a study by a Chinese university stated that it is transmitted from pangolin to humans) and the latest animal-borne diseases, Monkeypox, are linked to animals.

Environmental damage has been on the rise around the world for decades. As a result, wildlife has become increasingly scarce. Ecosystem degradation has led to the threat of desertification, and some 42 million people worldwide had to face starvation. Indeed, man cannot live without ecological ecosystems. Ecosystem damage often has a direct impact on people's livelihoods. The greater the environmental damage, such as forest destruction, air pollution, the greater the risk of disaster. Disasters such as forest fires, floods, and hurricanes are directly proportional to environmental damage (in other words, climate change).

To keep the world free of disease,

Therefore, each of us need to pay special attention to small thing such as throwing garbage and living conditions are relate

Ocean of Novels - Part I

THERE'S a saying that a poem is good enough to compose a song. A good song can make a novel. A good novel can turn into a movie. Five novels will make the readers feel and see the characters vividly as you watch the movies. Sarpay Lawka published those fictional novels to the readers.

To counter the stereotype that a daughter of an artist must be an artist and a daughter of a singer will become a singer, Sayama Moe Moe (Inya) wrote, in her novel, a story of Khin Hlwang Wai who was playing a lead guitar and singing on stage as she couldn't resist her mother's consent and love on music. The novel is entitled "Twinkle little stars in the beautiful blue sky".

Htoo Pauk creek was affected by floods every year. The high amount of water flow tore away the soil and river bank erosion divided the villages into two parts. The author used a simile stating it is like Myanmar snack Moat Pya Tha Lat being cut into two pieces. Those who do not know the history of a village might identify it as two villages. Sayama Khin Khin Htoo made the story of residents from two villages more descriptive and interesting with figurative language through the novel "Large Company".

Ye Marn, whose father is a fisherman, is naturally involved in the fishing business. There is a saying that vipers on land and venomous catfish species in water are dangerous to humans. U Ba Ye Tin, a father of Ye Marn, lost his life to the venomous catfish species. Ye Marn cannot console his soul and he followed a path to avenge that fish.

He did not return to the village and waited for the right time for revenge. Such a resentful event almost made him part with his girlfriend named Aye Ma. Yet he managed to get married to his love. When they were expecting a child, he had to inevitably face that venomous catfish. Saya Ko Yoe Kunt wrote the novel entitled "How to overcome obstacles" with appealing plot twists and resilient skills.

Another novel is a romance genre of Nu Nu Hlaing (aka) Khine and Zay Aung's story. Sayama Sabel Phyu Nu titled the novel The blues café stating melancholy of the two lovers who followed mind over heart when they were enduring the hardships. The author also described a mobile book rental market.

Mya Kyote, who attempted to elope with her boyfriend, got on a coach in the dark. Yet, the coach turned out to be a hearse. Ko Toe Kyaw, a boyfriend wearing a hair knot, loves Mya Kyote, but he could not give up a funeral vehicle. Another unique character called Ko Pan Phu considers funerals should be held on a grand scale and he played a long drum at the funerals. Saya Nay Win Myint interestingly described the Coach novel with mystery and twists of events.

Ocean of Novels – Part I published by Sarpay Lawka will draw the attention of book lovers with fictional characters and meaningful Myanmar novels and pieces of writing. ■

Oscar Wilde's The Model Millionaire and Other Stories

FOR the fans of international stories, this week's pick is a Myanmar translated book entitled "Oscar Wilde's The Model Millionaire and other stories". The author has been working on good stories of his long experience in this field. This book is a compilation of Myanmar translated good stories written by famous authors worldwide, including famous American short story author O. Henry, playwright, novelist and short-story writer William Somerset Maugham, and crime and mystery thriller story author John Escott from England.

The author (translator) has collected 14 good short stories in this book. The Model Millionaire by Oscar Wilde has unprecedented plot twists and the nature of human beings. The story is about a protagonist called Hughie. The father of Hughie's girlfriend did not accept their love as a handsome lad is a mere seller. Unless you earn 10,000 pounds. I will not be eager to allow my daughter to marry you, the father ordered him. He was wandering the town in despair and met a beggar whose portrait was painted by his friend. He sympathized with a beggar's small earnings of being a model for portraits. Then, he generously gave a pound that he put aside for fortune. Unexpectedly, a stranger came to him and told him that some asked me to give him this envelope. When he opened it, he saw a letter and 10,000 pounds. He read a letter stating, "To Hughie Erskine and Laura Merton, it is my wedding gift from a beggar old man". It is from a beggar old man indeed.

Moreover, W. Somerset Maugham's The Verger is worth reading. This short story can give know-how of short story writing to learners.

The book also contains a summary of the famous authors' biography with photos (O. Henry, John Escott, Yalvac Ural, Sait Faik Abasiyanik). ■ to the natural environment. Then, if we work with the national level and connect with the rest of the world, we will be able to reduce the environmental impact. Ecosystem security means environmental security; Only when the environment is safe will social life be safe.

In short, love is the key. Starting from self-love, people around you, the objects around us, and you will learn to love trees. Only then can we have a green and peaceful environment. In order to recover the sick environment in time, we need to start with the government and the people. From there, we must connect with the world and work together as a green political movement. Translated.

China, Papua New Guinea discuss free-trade deal

CHINA and Papua New Guinea held talks on a free-trade deal Friday, as Beijing's foreign minister wrapped up a landmark tour of the Pacific Islands with a stop in the resource-rich nation.

Papua New Guinea's Prime Minister James Marape said discussions in the capital Port Moresby had focused on economic cooperation and a long-mooted trade agreement.

China is already a major investor in Papua New Guinea and buys much of the country's gas, minerals, timber and other resources.

Beijing is vying with Australia to be Papua New Guinea's leading trading partner.

Marape, who has vowed to make his country the world's richest black Christian nation, said he wants to shift the economy away from primary materials to more lucrative finished products. He has invited more Chinese investment and said work was ongoing on a trade deal.

"China and Papua New Guinea officials are going through tidying Chinese-PNG free-trade arrangements," Marape told journalists.

"The specifics of the free-trade arrangement are being finalized as we go through, so that Papua New Guinea interests are not suppressed or harmed, but maintained and in fact augmented," he said. His comments come as China, Australia and other Western allies race for influence across the Pacific Islands.

Sri Lanka seeks UN help on food shortages

CASH-STRAPPED Sri Lanka is seeking urgent United Nations help to build a stockpile of essential foods, the prime minister's office said Friday, after authorities warned of looming starvation.

Acute shortages of food, fuel and other essential goods, along with record inflation and rolling blackouts, have inflicted widespread misery in the island nation's unprecedented economic crisis.

Scarce supplies of petrol, diesel and fertilizer have made it difficult for farmers to grow crops, while the agricultural sector is still reeling from a disastrous organic policy that kneecapped yields last year. The UN Food and Agriculture Organization is now planning a "food crisis response plan" to shore up reserves and will also offer more funds for urban agriculture, Prime Minister Ranil Wickremesinghe's office said in a statement.

Parliamentary speaker Mahinda Yapa Abeywardana warned in April that Sri Lanka was facing "very acute food shortages and starvation".

KODIKARA / AFP

Around half of Sri Lanka's rice production was lost last year, and the latest cultivation season which started last month has been disrupted because of fertilizer shortages.

Sri Lanka's painful economic crunch was sparked by a shortage of foreign currency, leaving traders unable to pay for critical imports, including fertilizer. The government has since defaulted on its $51 billion foreign debt and is seeking an International Monetary Fund bailout. —AFP

China to further shore up industrial economy

CHINA'S Ministry of Industry and Information Technology on Thursday pledged to strengthen support for the industrial economy despite mounting downward pressure, as part of efforts to stabilize the country's economic fundamentals. The implementation of the country's package of measures, such as tax and fee cuts, should be accelerated to help enterprises tide over their difficulties as early as possible, said Tao Qing, a ministry official. No effort will be spared to ensure unimpeded industrial chains, she said, adding that measures will be taken to strengthen the upstream and downstream matchmaking services of key industries, such as the automobile and integrated circuit industries, and to remove bottlenecks in key regions. —Xinhua

Pro-Russian officials seek to 'nationalize' state property in Ukraine

Pro-Moscow officials in Ukraine said on Thursday (2 June) a decree had been issued to "nationalise" state property in the southeastern region of Zaporizhzhia.

The decree has been signed by officials installed by Moscow in the area which is partially controlled by Moscow.

"The liberated region of Zaporizhzhia will nationalize the state property of Ukraine," said Vladimir Rogov, a member of the region's pro-Moscow military-civilian administration.

"The corresponding decree was signed by the head of the military-civilian administration of the region," he said on messaging app Telegram.

Ukraine central bank raises key interest rate to 25% in war on inflation

UKRAINE'S central bank on Thursday more than doubled its key interest rate in an unprecedented intervention aimed at propping up the country's economy, which has been clobbered by the Russian invasion.

The National Bank of Ukraine (NBU) raised the rate from 10 to 25 per cent per annum — the highest since 2015. It sought to "restrain inflation processes during the war", the board of the National Bank of Ukraine said in a statement.—AFP

Japan drugmaker tests medicine vending machine in train station

A Japanese pharmaceutical company has started a trial sale of cold medicine, painkillers and other drugs via a vending machine it installed at JR Shinjuku Station in Tokyo, a project that would better serve commuters who suddenly come down with illness.

The vending machine by Taisho Pharmaceutical Co. at one of the busiest train stations in Japan became operable Tuesday and will be available to use until 31 August.

The pharmaceutical company said it will analyze the issues that come up during the trial run in the hope of installing them in the future in regions that do not have many drugstores.

The machine, which stocks around 30 different products including eye drops and digestive medicine, will be available to use between 10 am and 6 pm as to allow pharmacists at a drugstore within Shinjuku Station to assist customers. Taisho Pharmaceutical said it will consider extending the machine's operational hours following the trial run.

Pharmacists that are stationed inside the drugstore nearby are notified through a device when a customer has selected nonprescription medicine via the vending machine.

The user is then able to acquire the item after staff approval. Purchases are limited to prepaid transportation cards, while the machine has an integrated facial recognition system in order to prevent users from bulk buying medicine.— Kyodo

Bosphorus sea trade unaffected by Ukraine war, sanctions

AT the gates of the Black Sea, trade is in full swing as freighters and oil tankers sail from the heart of Istanbul to Russian and Ukrainian ports.

Just after the Russian offensive in Ukraine on February 24 and the first Western sanctions, the largest vessels of international companies plying on these waters were replaced by smaller ships.

The total number of ships on the route remains around the pre-war level of 40,000, according to experts.

"Russia shamelessly steals Ukrainian grain and sends it overseas from Crimea, including to Turkey," said Vasyl Bodnar, Ukraine's ambassador to Ankara.

The number of vessels in the Bosphorus remains at the pre-war level, experts say. A ship sails through the Bosphorus Strait on 23 April 2021 in Istanbul, on route to the Black Sea. PHOTO: OZAN KOSE / AFP

"In May alone, we counted at least 10 passages including two round trips from three vessels flying the Russian flag... Not to mention those that we would have collectively missed."

From his terrace overlooking the Bosphorus, Yoruk Isik has been a passionate observer of ship movements on this key waterway between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean for a decade now.

While swiftly condemning the Russian offensive in Ukraine, Turkey positioned itself as a neutral mediator and refused to join Western sanctions against Moscow.

Although Ankara has banned the passage of military vessels through its straits of the Dardanelles and Bosphorus since late February under the Montreux Treaty of 1936, it is not legally entitled to intercept commercial ships or to search them, a diplomatic source said in Ankara.— AFP

US-Venezuela business picking up despite punishing sanctions

VENEZUELA'S imports of US food and farming products are on the rise, with the private sector driving increased business between the two former partners despite punishing sanctions imposed on Caracas by Washington.

"Venezuela was disappearing from the world of imports and exports for a while, but it's coming back," Luis Vicente Garcia, general manager at the Venezuelan-American Chamber of Commerce (VENANCHAM), told AFP.

"We're at a turning point," Garcia said.

Total imports of food and farming supplies in Venezuela were $2.4 billion in 2021, a 31.2 percent increase over 2020.

The oil-rich but cash-strapped South American country is now experiencing timid growth after a years-long recession in which its gross domestic product shrunk by 80 per cent.

Purchases from the United States reached $634 million in 2021, second only to the $934 million spent in Brazil, according to a report by the US Department of Agriculture, which said that opportunities in Venezuela are improving.—AFP

RUSSIA-UKRAINE CONFLICT

Kremlin says 'certain results achieved' by day 100 in Ukraine

THE Kremlin said Friday that Russia had achieved some results from its military campaign in Ukraine, 100 days after Moscow sent troops into its pro-Western neighbour.

"Certain results have been achieved," Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov told reporters when asked about the first 100 days of what Russia calls its "special military operation" in Ukraine.

Russia says it sent its forces into Ukraine to defend residents of two breakaway pro-Moscow regions, the Donetsk and Lugansk People's Republics, from Kyiv's military.

"In terms of ensuring their protection, measures are being taken and certain results have been achieved," Peskov said.

"Many settlements have been liberated from the pro-Nazi armed forces of Ukraine and directly from nationalist elements," he said. Russia has repeatedly described authorities in Ukraine as neo-Nazis and nationalists — labels that Kyiv says are being used as propaganda to justify the conflict.

"The opportunity has been provided for people to start establishing a peaceful life," Peskov said. "This work will continue until the time when all of the goals of the military operation are achieved." — AFP

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS

Here are the latest developments in the war in Ukraine.

'Many settlements liberated': Kremlin

Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov says "many settlements have been liberated from the pro-Nazi armed forces of Ukraine and directly from nationalist elements" over the past 100 days.

"The opportunity has been provided for people to start establishing a peaceful life," Peskov tells reporters.

Russia claims it sent its forces into Ukraine to defend residents of two self-proclaimed Russian-backed statelets in the eastern Donbas region, the Donetsk and Lugansk People's Republics.

UN sees 'no winner'

The UN says there is "no winner" in the worst conflict in Europe in decades.

Nearly 14 million Ukrainians have been forced to flee their homes since the Russian invasion on 24 February, the majority women and children, according to UN estimates.

"This war has and will have no winner. Rather, we have witnessed for 100 days what is lost: lives, homes, jobs and prospects," UN Assistant Secretary-General Amin Awad says in a statement.

Russian lobbyists barred from EU parliament

The European Parliament bans Russian lobbyists from its premises to prevent them spreading what it calls "propaganda" about Russia's war in Ukraine.

"Effective immediately, Russian company representatives are no longer allowed to enter European Parliament premises," parliament speaker Roberta Metsola says on Twitter.

Civilians urged to evacuate Sloviansk as Russia bombing intensifies

THE bombing in eastern Ukraine is becoming more intense and, with no water or electricity, 100 people or so heeded the mayor's call on Thursday to evacuate the city of Sloviansk which sits in Russia's crosshairs.

"The situation is getting worse, the explosions are stronger and stronger and the bombs are falling more often," 18-year-old student Goulnara Evgaripova told AFP.

Outside an administrative office, she boarded one of five minibuses earmarked to take people out of the city in the Donetsk region that Moscow wants to control.

One Russian strike killed three people, wounded six and left a trail of damage on Tuesday in Sloviansk, witnesses told AFP.

Mayor Vadim Liakh, spoke of a fresh bombardment on Thursday that damaged electricity lines on the edge of the city which boasted a population of 100,000 before the late February invasion.

"There is no electricity, the water supply is down," Liakh posted on the Telgram messenger service.

"The best solution in this situation, is to evacuate.

"Take care of yourselves. Pack your bags," he urged.

Dmytro, a 35-year-old labourer, admitted he was ready to leave with this family.

"There's no water, my grandmother is handicapped and it's hard for my mother to wash her.

"If we had running water, we would stay longer."

Unlike many others Dmytro has somewhere safe to go.

But all he wants is for the war to be over. "It's always better to be at home," he explained.

Many analysts predict the war will go on for months more with fighting continuing in the Donbas where the Russians have made headway in recent weeks and now control most of the strategic city of Severodonetsk, 80 kilometres (50 miles) east of Sloviansk.—AFP

EU drops Russian patriarch from sanctions to seal new deal

EU ambassadors on Thursday dropped the leader of Russia's Orthodox church from a proposed blacklist, allowing them to agree a new round of sanctions after opposition from Hungary, diplomats said.

"Another strong package of sanctions was agreed today against Putin and the Kremlin," tweeted EU chief Ursula von der Leyen. "This will reduce Russia's capacity to finance its war." Budapest had stalled final approval of the fresh wave of sanctions over the war in Ukraine, including a ban on most Russian oil imports, by demanding that Patriarch Kirill be taken off the list. EU leaders on Monday thought they had clinched agreement on the new measures after giving in to Hungarian premier Viktor Orban's demand to exempt Russian oil arriving via pipeline. But the other 26 nations had to buckle again to wrap up the package in the face of Orban's obstinacy after he insisted the Russian church leader's name also be removed.—AFP

Interpol warns of flood of illicit arms after Ukraine war

Many of the weapons being sent to Ukraine will eventually wind up in criminal hands in Europe and beyond, Interpol's chief warned on Wednesday (1 June), urging countries to start scrutinizing arms-tracking databases.

"The high availability of weapons during the current conflict will result in the proliferation in illicit arms in the post-conflict phase," Interpol secretary-general Juergen Stock said.

That will only empower organized crime groups that have become increasingly global operations, capable of exploiting the chaos created from Russia's bombardments over the past three months.—AFP

Israeli PM meets IAEA chief over Iran's nuke activities

ISRAELI Prime Minister Naftali Bennett met with visiting Director-General of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) Rafael Grossi on Friday, urging the international community to prevent Iran from achieving nuclear weapons.

Bennett expressed Israel's deep concern regarding Iran's continued progress towards achieving nuclear weapons while "deceiving the international community by using false information and lies".

He emphasized the urgent need in mobilizing the international community to "take action against Iran, using all means, in order to prevent Iran from achieving nuclear weapons".

Stressing his country's support for the IAEA carrying out its mandate in a professional and independent way, the Israeli prime minister noted the importance of the IAEA Board of Governors "delivering a clear and unequivocal message to Iran in its upcoming decision".

While Israel prefers diplomacy to deny Iran the possibility of developing nuclear weapons, it reserves the right to self-defense and to act against Iran in order to block its nuclear programme should the international community not succeed in the relevant time frame, Bennett said.

Grossi's visit came amid Israel's mounting concern over Iran's nuclear activities and any potential return to the 2015 nuclear agreement with world powers. He arrived in Israel Thursday night before heading to the Austrian capital of Vienna for an IAEA Board of Governors meeting on Monday. —Xinhua

Estonian government in crisis as coalition crumbles

ESTONIAN Prime Minister Kaja Kallas on Friday called for talks on a new government after her ruling coalition fell apart, urging unity because of security concerns over neighbouring Russia.

Kallas spoke to reporters after President Alar Karis accepted her request for ministers from the Centre party, including Foreign Minister Eva-Maria Liimets, to be removed from the government.

The dismissal of the Centre party follows weeks of political deadlock, including a vote on an education bill in which the coalition partner voted against the government and with the far-right EKRE opposition instead.

"It's honest to say that this agreement is over and we're going to form a new coalition," Kallas said.

Kallas's Reform party has proposed to begin coalition talks with the right-wing Isamaa conservatives and the Social Democrats.

The Centre and Reform parties have alternated in government over the nearly three decades since Estonia broke free from the crumbling Soviet Union. Russia's invasion of Ukraine has spooked the three Baltic states of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, which are all EU and NATO members.—AFP

Kishida eyes attending NATO summit in late June, 1st time for Japan

PRIME Minister Fumio Kishida is planning to attend a summit of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization slated for late June in Spain, a move that would make him the first Japanese leader to take part in a gathering of the Western alliance, a government source said Saturday.

Kishida's attendance at the 29-30 June event in Madrid is dependent on the domestic political situation leading up to a House of Councillors election likely to be held 10 July, the source said.

Government officials hope Kishida's participation in the NATO summit would strengthen coordination with the United States and European countries in responding to Russia's war in Ukraine and possible contingencies over the Taiwan Strait.

Kishida plans to travel to the Spanish capital after attending a three-day summit of the Group of Seven industrialized nations from 26 June in Germany, according to the source.

Australia, New Zealand and South Korea have also been invited to attend the NATO summit as partner countries in the Asia-Pacific region.— Kyodo

Japan's Horie, 83, becomes oldest to sail nonstop solo across Pacific

JAPANESE ocean adventurer Kenichi Horie on Saturday became the world's oldest person to make a solo, nonstop 8,500-kilometre voyage across the Pacific on a yacht. Horie, 83, reached the Kii Channel, which separates Wakayama and Tokushima prefectures in western Japan, on the Suntory Mermaid III, his 6-metre-long, one-tonne boat, at 2:39 a.m., after setting sail from San Francisco, California, on 27 March.

"I'm very happy that I was able to return home without major problems," he said by phone. "I'm grateful for the support I received from you all."

The sailboat, which passed by Hawaii in April, utilized solar panels for electricity needs on board, and Horie used a satellite phone to speak with his staff and others on the ground. The voyage traced a similar route to the one he made 60 years ago when he became the first yachtsman to cross the Pacific alone with no port calls, but in reverse. Then 23 years old, Horie sailed to the West Coast city from Nishinomiya, Hyogo Prefecture, in around 90 days, carrying no passport.—Kyodo

Train crash kills at least four near German resort

A train derailed near a Bavarian Alpine resort in southern Germany on Friday, killing at least four people and injuring dozens in a region gearing up to host the G7 summit in late June. Several carriages of the red-coloured local train were lying on their sides on a grassy area next to a highway. "Around 30 passengers were injured, 15 of them so seriously that they have had to be admitted to nearby hospitals," they said, adding that a huge rescue operation was underway.—AFP

Harigae, Lee share halfway lead in US Women's Open

WORLD number four Minjee Lee fired a five-under-par 66 on Friday to grab a share of the 36-hole lead alongside Mina Harigae at the 77th US Women's Open in North Carolina.

Australia's Lee, chasing a second major title after her triumph at the Evian Championship last year, had four of her six birdies on the front nine and rebounded from her only bogey at 14 with birdies at 15 and 16 to join Harigae on nine-under-par 133 at Pine Needles in Southern Pines.

America's Harigae, whose first-round 64 was one off the US Women's Open record, followed up with a two-under-par 69 that featured five birdies and a pair of bogeys.

The duo were two strokes in front of Sweden's Anna Nordqvist and South Korean Choi Hye-jin. Nordqvist had four birdies in her three-under-par 68 while Choi raced up the leaderboard with an impressive seven-under-par 64 that featured nine birdies.—AFP

Denmark recover from Benzema strike to beat France in Nations League

SUBSTITUTE Andreas Cornelius scored twice as Denmark recovered from conceding to a brilliant Karim Benzema goal to beat France 2-1 on Friday in the UEFA Nations League at the Stade de France, the first match at the venue since the chaos that marred last weekend's Champions League final.

Benzema's stunning strike put World Cup holders France in front six minutes after half-time, only for Trabzonspor striker Cornelius to turn in Denmark's equalizer midway through the second half and then smash in an 88th-minute winner.

That meant it was a disappointing night for France who also saw both Kylian Mbappe and Raphael Varane come off with knocks.

There was a near-full house of 75,833 inside the Stade de France, including 1,400 Danish supporters, but the atmosphere outside the ground ahead of kick-off was calm.

That was in stark contrast to the scenes six days earlier, when serious organizational problems led to fans being unable to get into the stadium while many peaceful supporters were tear-gassed ahead of Real Madrid's 1-0 win over Liverpool in the Champions League final.

European football's governing body UEFA on Friday issued an apology to those spectators for what it admitted was a "frightening and distressing" experience for those involved.—AFP
