THE State Administration Council Chairman Prime Minister sent a message of condolences to the Japanese Prime Minister for the demise of former Japanese Prime Minister Mr Shinzo Abe. The full text of the message is as follows: -

Your Excellency,

I am very sorrowful that it shocked me to hear the news that former Prime Minister of Japan Mr Shinzo Abe passed away in the assassination of a gunman in Nara City on 8 July 2022. We strongly condemned the cowardly terrorist act with a lack of rationality.

On behalf of the government of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar and the people, I myself would like to send the message of deep condolences to Your Excellency and the Japanese government and family members of Mr Shinzo Abe via Your Excellency.

The Japanese people will keep the ideal sacrifices of Mr Abe for the sake of Japan and its people in their hearts forever. Mr Abe is a genuinely good friend and old friend of Myanmar. Myanmar people will remember his endeavours with a firm vow to further cement the friendly relations and partnership relations between the two countries forever. During the moaning period, Myanmar people also deeply grieved for the demise of Mr Abe similar to the Japanese people.

We would like to reiterate the strengthening of amicable relations with Your Excellency.

Moreover, the State Administration Council Chairman Prime Minister has sent a message of condolences to Mrs Abe Akie, wife of former Japanese Prime Minister Mr Shinzo Abe, it was learnt. —MNA

It is concerned with the whole country

It is necessary to understand the Burma Defence Army is concerned not only with Tatmadaw members but also the entire Bamar nationals and the whole country. Actually, there is no comprehensive independence camp because no encouragement is given to soldiers of the Burma Defence Army. It is important for defending the country in the establishment of a new era. All should not work for just Myanmar but take lessons from other countries and nearby countries.

(Excerpt from the speech delivered by War Minister Colonel Aung San at the special meeting of the Burma Defence Army held in Yangon on 2 December 1942)

Human Rights Council Has Failed to Follow its Own Principles

IT is observed that a number of unhelpful events against Myanmar were organized during the 50th regular session of the Human Rights Council which was held in Geneva from 13 June 2022 to 8 July 2022. These include an Interactive Dialogue on the oral update of the High Commissioner for Human Rights on Myanmar on 14 June 2022 and a discussion entitled “the root causes of human rights violations and abuses against Rohingya Muslims and other minorities in Myanmar” on 15 June 2022 as per the resolution tabled by the Organization of Islamic Cooperation (OIC) and an Interactive Dialogue on the oral update of the Special Rapporteur on the situation of Human Rights in Myanmar on 29 June 2022 as per the resolution tabled by the European Union (EU). In addition, on 7 July 2022, the Human Rights Council adopted a resolution namely “Situation of human rights of “Rohingya” Muslims and other minorities in Myanmar” which was again tabled by the OIC. The Human Rights Council organized the activities in the absence of the country concerned against the principle of cooperation and dialogue. The Permanent Mission of Myanmar in Geneva has made specific responses and objections to the respective discussions and the resolution.

The said conducts of the Human Rights Council clearly indicate the magnitude of selectively targeting Myanmar, a multi-ethnic and multi-religious country, to create divisions and distrust among its population under the pretext of human rights. The resolution adopted at the Human Rights Council itself amounts to hate speech with politically and religiously motivated languages along with fictitious allegations. The resolution and a series of discussions covered up the terrorist acts that resulted in 2017 mass displacement and continued killings committed by the so-called ARSA aka Aqa Mul Mujahidin active in Cox’s Bazar camps against those who advocated for the repatriation process.

While the country has been granting appropriate citizenship status to eligible persons regardless of their religions and ethnicities under the 1982 Myanmar Citizenship Law, Myanmar reiterates that it does not recognize the invented term “Rohingya” as it has never existed in legal and historical records of the country. Myanmar further strongly objects to the usage of such terminology.

It is disturbing to see the Human Rights Council become a platform which no longer follows its principles and purposes but is being hijacked by some countries to push the domestic situations of others in the direction of their preference. Myanmar, therefore, reiterates its objection to the decision of the Human Rights Council to discuss the matters in the absence of the country concerned and dissociates itself from the adoption of the draft resolution with document No. A/HRC/50/L.21 on 7 July 2022 and rejects the draft resolution as a whole which contains elements infringing the sovereignty and integrity of the country.

MoPF releases statement denying confiscated vehicles auction

The Ministry of Planning and Finance.

THERE is no plan to auction the confiscated vehicles, according to the Ministry of Planning and Finance.

The authorities seized more than K21 billion worth of illegal products between January and May 2022 and the amount was K13 billion more than last year.

Vice-Senior General Soe Win said that confiscated goods should be auctioned off as quickly as possible in accordance with the rules and regulations to increase the government's revenues and not to waste the efforts of those who make the seizures. Measures must also be taken to deal with cars with or without a licence during the meeting of the Anti-Illegal Trade Steering Committee held in June.

On 24 May, the officials confiscated 28 vehicles with expired ID at Thilawa port and were abandoned by owners, according to the Anti-Illegal Trade Steering Committee.

Moreover, the Vice-Senior General added that all possible means should be applied to control illegal trade along the trade routes in regions and states, regular or surprised checks should be carried out at the places where illegal trade starts and illegal goods are stored for distribution and action must be taken.

Monsoon onion grown early to fetch good prices

THE new monsoon onions normally enter the Yangon market by the end of November or early December, according to the onion wholesale centre.

The onion prices decline recently and onion sown acreage will be down this year. As there are criticisms of surging chemicals and fuel prices, the people change the crops to make more income than onion, and the local farmers grow the crops as usual. No one can estimate whether they would get high prices or not when they sell their products.

The 2022 large-sized summer onion is about K1,500 per viss at the countryside wholesale centre and K1,700 per viss in Yangon. In June, the large-sized onion (special) price rose to K2,100 per viss in the Yangon market and the leftover onion amounts will be very low, according to the countryside wholesale centre.

The people in Mandalay grow monsoon onion and it reaches 25 days as the news spread that the leftover onion amounts in local become lower by end-2022, said Ko Khin Maung Myint, an onion dealer.

The two baskets of seed priced at K35,000 per pyi are used for one acre of onion. If there is fine weather and there are no pests, it can produce 5,000-6,000 visses of onion per acre. Such kind of onion was grown for testing in 2016 and it produced about 1,300 visses in the Monywa-Pale area, the onion dealer said.

The monsoon onion is planted two months earlier than the normal period and as there is no exact remaining amount of onion, the local demand can be high and the onion prices can rise again in the last three weeks of this year, according to the onion market. — TWA/GNLM

Eindu-Kawkareik Road extended to further 10 metres

ACCORDING to the contract between the Ministry of Planning and Finance, Ministry of Industry and ADB, the Eindu-Kawkareik Road in Hpa-an District of Kayin State was upgraded with US$100 million under the ADF loan and $20 million under the AIF loan (net value of $120 million).

SMEC Consultant company was hired in 2013 to conduct the feasibility study and was completed in 2015.

Consequently, permission was granted to upgrade the road to All Standard Class 2 in line with the GMS EWEC system.

China Road and Bridge Corporation (CRBC) upgrades the 18-kilometre road and repair blind spots on 15-kilometre road.

In January 2017, a motorcycle lane was added to the section, and the 670-metre section of road along the infrastructures was upgraded and the project was completely finished in April 2021.

According to road regulations in the contract, the contractors supervised the road maintenance work from 30 April to 30 May 2021.

The completed section is a 64.735-kilometre-long, 10-metre-wide two-lane asphalt road.

The former section was just a 6-metre-wide asphalt road and traffic jams, delays, and flooding occurred on the road.

Now that the road is complete, it will take only two and a half hours to drive from Hpa-an to Myawady and will improve the socio-economic life of the local people, officials said.

In addition, Kyondoe Harbour Road will be upgraded to a 670-metre-long concrete road as part of the project.

As a result, goods from Thailand, Laos and Viet Nam could be transported to Mawlamyine in time at a lower cost, officials added. — Kayan Soe Myint/GNLM

Broken rice export to China fetches high price

The current market price of broken rice in the Muse area is K36,000 per 50-kilogramme bag.

BROKEN rice export to China is making a handsome profit and does a roaring trade, said U Min Thein, vice-chair of the Muse Rice Wholesale Centre.

The current market price of broken rice in the Muse area is K36,000 per 50-kilogramme bag.

"The broken rice export is thriving. The broken rice is offered at K36,000 per bag in Muse (120 Yuan)," he added.

The foreign and domestic demand elevated broken rice prices.

Meanwhile, the price of rice is estimated at K45,000 per 50-kilogramme bag.

At present, approximately 10,000 bags of rice and broken rice are delivered to China through the Muse border. About 60,000 bags of rice and broken rice were earlier exported to China per day through the Muse border.

Gem painting market in Monywa sluggish

GEM painting market is slow-moving in Monywa city, said Ma Wyne, an art shop owner.

"The demand for gem paintings is sluggish. There is only one art store here in Monywa city. Some stores also sell them but there is no separate store for gem paintings yet in the city. The pagoda painting is demanded by the monastery. People also give gem paintings as presents at wedding receptions, house-welcoming events and new store launches. As events are forced to shut down in the difficult times, the market is quite slow for sure," she stressed.

The gem paintings are valued at K13,000 to K300,000 per piece. The buyers are rarely seen.

"The customers buy the scenery and view paintings. The Buddha image is mostly sold during the Buddhist religious festival periods. I offer paintings such as customized gem portraits. I sell the paintings through Mogok suppliers," Ma Wyne elaborated.

"We will expand our service and products in Monywa city as we are the only store that exists. We will try to meet the customers' satisfaction. Earlier, locals in Monywa city had to order customized gem portraits through Mandalay suppliers," she added. — Lu Lay/GNLM

New export item rice bean receive record price with bustling trade

THE price of new export item rice bean are rocketing in the bustling Mandalay market, said Mandalay traders.

At present, rice beans are flowing from Shwebo, Monywa, Sagaing and Patheingyi townships. The price stood at only K16,000 per three-basket bag in February during the beginning of the harvest season. The price tremendously surged to K230,000 per bag in recent days. The market is alive and well, said U Soe Win Myint, an owner of Soe Win Myint commodity depot in the Mandalay Region.

"The price hits a fresh new peak in the Mandalay market. It was earlier demanded in the domestic market only. It has become a new export item after successfully penetrating the external markets. The rice bean has had a market share for two years. China has been purchasing a large volume of rice beans since February. It is a great opportunity for rice bean growers. They should increase the planted acreage. What is unique about rice bean cultivation is that there is no need to use pesticides. The growers achieve organic farming with natural fertilizer as well," he elaborated.

Rice bean is commonly grown in Mandalay, Magway and Sagaing regions. Cultivation is more successful on alluvial soil along Ayeyawady and Chindwin Rivers.

It can be grown once per year, during the October-November period. The harvest season starts in January. It is a cost-effective and high-yielding crop (15-20 baskets per acre). — Min Htet Aung (Mandalay Sub-Printing House)

Choose the reform process to be a better society

THE word “reform” is popular in society. Everybody prefers to use the word “reform”. Whenever they do not accept anything, they wish to use the word “reform”. It is because they think the word “reform” is a technique to change overall society to become things in conformity with their needs.

Some people assume that the reform needs to change all forms and essence which would be different from the original forms and essence. It is not a hundred per cent truth. Some processes need just a touch of change. If so, the whole process will reach the correct path for further development.

Practically, some reform processes need just a way not to be derailed from the visions. If present situations are slightly different from the actual situation, it is necessary to steer the situation towards the correct course. It is a reform process but it should not be underestimated.

Sometimes, red tapes must be removed from the actual process to ensure smooth working. The red-tape system is a hindrance to society. Hence, it is necessary to reform all forms and essence of the red-tape process to be a new system giving smooth and convenient process to the customers. Thanks to removing the red-tape process, customers will overcome the challenges of wasting valuable time and costs. Moreover, the removal of the red-tape process ceases the proudness and inflexibility of personnel in relations with customers.

In some cases, the working process used for many years automatically demands the new ones as a reform process. In this regard, the work process must be reformed without fail for enhancing the capacity of staff and personnel not to be bored in the workplace. New forms and essence refreshes employees as well as customers in their services of daily routines. How valuable it is!

Generally, it is necessary to note that if a workplace or work process faces situations of boring the regular process or derailment from the visions or malpractice of staff under the red-tape system, such a workplace or work process should be reformed to have a new environ and new process. In fact, the renewed process must actually benefit society.

Any work process in society will demand a new process at a time. Sometimes, people demand a reform process for some workplaces to have better convenient measures. Whatever it may be, the reform process actually contributes to building better relations and production between staff and customers and producers and users.

Diabetic Patients Should Know How to Take Care of Their Feet

By Dr K K Pandey

SURPRISINGLY in our subcontinent, the problem of diabetes is widely prevalent. According to one estimate, the diabetic population in the Indian subcontinent is the highest in the world. A drastic lifestyle change, lack of exercise, avoidance of regular daily morning walks and no control over diet are some of the reasons, which are responsible for a rapid rise in the number of diabetic patients in this region. In diabetic patients, the leg becomes the commonest casualty due to the disease itself.

Why a diabetic patient should not ignore his foot ulcer?

Quite often a diabetic patient takes no notice of small scratches, small blisters, or small injuries which do occur to his leg in day-to-day life. This small scratch gets converted into a full-fledged ulcer if not treated properly in time. Normally in a non-diabetic person, these leg ulcers heal well after repeated dressings and antibiotics applications. But in diabetic patients, these foot ulcers generally do not respond to such treatment. Because of ignorance of this fact, a diabetic patient does not take his leg ulcer, which otherwise looks simply, seriously and this results in a serious and complicated condition of the leg. Lack of timely care in its early stage causes, later on, loss of money, time and leg as well. Therefore, always remember a diabetic patient must take his simple leg or foot ulcer very seriously and instead of consulting a general or an orthopaedic surgeon he should consult a vascular or a cardiovascular surgeon and get the ulcer treated under his supervision. A diabetic patient must understand that the inadequate blood supply to the lower limb and loss of sensitivity of leg skin are the two most important factors, which make leg ulcers complicated in any diabetic patient.

Why does a diabetic patient have problems with leg ulcers the most?

In diabetic patients due to diabetic neuropathy, the sensitivity of leg and foot skin is considerably decreased. Because of reduced skin sensitivity, a diabetic patient never feels the sensation of pain, that a normal non-diabetic person otherwise feels in case of pressure abrasion and a superficial simple injury. If a diabetic patient does not pay attention at this stage, this small abrasion, later on, turns into a big ulcer. Diabetic neuropathy also causes weakness and partial paralysis of muscles of the foot resulting in constriction of the muscles. As the result, the bones of the foot become more prominent and bulgier and therefore are subjected to undue pressure and the end result is that a superficial ulcer in the foot becomes deep. One more reason for the development of pus and gangrene in foot ulcers of a diabetic person is the inadequate blood supply to the foot due to the narrowing of arteries of the lower limb, which carry pure blood to the feet. In such a situation where the blood supply to the foot as well as the sensitivity of the skin of the foot are reduced, any kind of infection even minor one, caught by the foot ulcer in a diabetic patient, spreads very fast and reaches a dangerous proportion.

Where to go if a diabetic person develops a foot ulcer?

If a diabetic patient develops a small superficial foot ulcer, he instead of a general or an orthopaedic surgeon must consult a vascular or a cardiovascular surgeon and receive treatment under his supervision. Generally, these ulcers most of the time do not respond to simple antibiotics and dressing. For the treatment of such ulcers in a diabetic patient, the proper assessment of blood supply to the foot is of utmost importance. The cause of inadequate blood supply to the foot is generally the narrowing of the lower limb arteries (blood pipes) due to the deposition of fat, calcium and cholesterol in the inner wall of the artery. Due to the deposition of these undesirable elements in the arterial wall, the arteries get narrowed resulting in a considerably decreased supply of pure blood. That is why the investigation of lower limb arteries is a must for the successful treatment of foot ulcers. For this, special investigations like Doppler Study, Multislide CT Angio, MR Angio, and Digital Subtraction Angiography are required. These specialized investigations determine the treatment strategy, to be undertaken later to restore the blood supply to the feet. On the basis of Angiography results, modern treatments like Arterial Bypass Surgery, Angioplasty Stenting, and Subintimal Angioplasty are undertaken to augment the blood flow to the lower limbs. To decide the treatment strategy for an individual patient consideration of the status of diseased arteries has to be taken into an account. Therefore, one should always go to a hospital where 24-hrs availability of a full-time vascular surgeon is there and facilities for Angiography, Bypass Surgery, and Angioplasty are routinely available.

Correct treatment of a foot ulcer in diabetics

Quite often it has been seen in our country that a diabetic patient who is suffering from foot ulcers generally goes to a small clinic or hospital and gets his ulcer cleaned and dressed daily. Due to inadequate blood supply to the foot, this method of daily cleaning and dressing neither

Leg arterial bypass surgery has become a boon in treatment of diabetic foot ulcer heals the small ulcer nor prevents it from developing into a large deep ulcer and ultimately this leads to infection and gangrene. At this juncture, we are left with no other choice except amputation of the foot. Our family physicians and general physicians do not seem to be very serious about the management of foot ulcers in their diabetic patients. They try to get the ulcer healed with simple antibiotics and dressings.

During the treatment of diabetic foot ulcers, proper care of ulcers and prevention of the infection are the most important components of treatment. In no condition, pus should be allowed to stay back. One should avoid solutions like Betadine or Hydrogen Peroxide for dressing purposes. Special kinds of medicines for blood thinning are used to keep the blood diluted. In some patient latest medicine like Collagen or PD.G.F dressing are required. Sometimes special medicines like prostaglandins are administered intravenously, which help in the healing of ulcers indirectly. In special circumstances, uses of ‘Skin Grafting and Myocutaneous Flaps’ are used to facilitate ulcer healing.

WHO issues snapshot of monkeypox cases

THE World Health Organization issued its first situation report on the spread of monkeypox on Thursday, detailing the typical profile of those affected by the outbreak so far:

According to available statistics, almost all patients affected thus far are male, with a median age of 37, with three-fifths identifying as men who have sex with men, the WHO said.

A surge in monkeypox infections has been reported since early May outside the West and Central African countries where the disease has long been endemic.

From 1 January to 4 July, 6,027 laboratory-confirmed cases of monkeypox and three deaths have been reported to the WHO from 59 countries.

Case numbers have gone up by 77 per cent since 27 June, in which time two new deaths — both in the Central African Republic — have been reported.

The WHO said 10 countries have not reported new cases for more than 21 days — the disease’s maximum incubation period.

Some 82 per cent of the cases are in Europe and 15 per cent are in the Americas.

The countries with more than 1,000 confirmed cases are Britain (1,351), Spain (1,256) and Germany (1,242), according to the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control, and WHO Europe.

Outside Europe, the WHO report counted 460 confirmed cases in the United States and 300 in Canada.

Sexual contact transmission route

In its first bi-weekly situation report on monkeypox, the WHO said that gender data was available on 4,406 cases, of which 99.5 per cent were men.

“The outbreak continues to primarily affect men who have sex with men who have reported recent sex with one or multiple male partners, suggesting no signal of sustained transmission beyond these networks for now,” the report said.

Men aged 18 to 44 account for 79 per cent of cases, with the median age being 37.

There are six known cases among children aged under 18, and 25 known cases among healthcare workers.

“Among cases with reported sexual orientation, 60 per cent (1,214 out of 2,025) identified as gay, bisexual and other men who have sex with men; and 41 per cent (335 out of 827) of cases with known HIV status were positive for HIV,” the report said.

“The most often suspected and reported route of transmission, among known contacts, has been through sexual contact.”

Atypical symptoms

The normal initial symptoms of monkeypox include a high fever, swollen lymph nodes and a blistery chickenpox-like rash.

But the report said that in this outbreak, many cases were not presenting with the classically described clinical picture.

Among the cases who reported at least one symptom, 81 per cent presented with a widespread rash on the body, 50 per cent presented with fever and 41 per cent presented with genital rash.

NASA releases James Webb
telescope ‘teaser’ picture

NASA has provided a tantalizing teaser photo ahead of the highly-anticipated release next week of the first deep-space images from the James Webb Telescope — an instrument so powerful it can peer back into the origins of the universe.

The $10 billion observatory — launched in December last year and now orbiting the Sun a million miles (1.5 million kilometres) away from Earth — can look where no telescope has looked before thanks to its enormous primary mirror and instruments that focus on infrared, allowing it to peer through dust and gas.

The first fully formed pictures are set for release on 12 July, but NASA provided an engineering test photo on Wednesday — the result of 72 exposures over 32 hours that shows a set of distant stars and galaxies. The image has some “rough-around-the-edges” qualities, NASA said in a statement, but is still “among the deepest images of the universe ever taken” and offers a “tantalizing glimpse” at what will be revealed in the coming weeks, months, and years. “When this image was taken, I was thrilled to clearly see all the detailed structure in these faint galaxies,” said Neil Rowlands, programme scientist for Webb’s Fine Guidance Sensor at Honeywell Aerospace. — AFP

Sweat, pray, love: extreme heat hounds hajj

THE hajj pilgrimage can be physically draining even in ideal conditions, but worshippers this year face an added challenge: scorching sun and temperatures rising to 42 degrees Celsius (108 degrees Fahrenheit). Muslims who have flocked to western Saudi Arabia for the five-day ritual, most of which takes place in the open air, have been confronted with a stark reminder of how warming trends are exacerbating what was already a very hot desert climate.

Islam forbids men from wearing hats once the hajj rites start, and many have been seen trying to shield themselves with umbrellas, prayer mats and even, in one case, a small bucket filled with water. Women are obliged to cover their heads with scarves.

The result is a daunting endurance test, though pilgrims generally shy away from complaining.

The timing of the hajj is determined by the Islamic calendar, and since 2017 it has fallen at least partly in July and August, the hottest months in Saudi Arabia. That has trained the spotlight on rising temperatures that environmental activists say must be addressed by a fast transition away from fossil fuels. — AFP

How to prevent foot ulcers in diabetic patients?

1. MUST get your legs and foot checked up once by a vascular or a cardiovascular surgeon for evaluation of leg arteries and their blood supply even if you have no complaints. Keep consulting him every third month. If at any moment, blood circulation to your feet starts decreasing, he can formulate preventive as well as corrective strategies in time before you are too late.

2. MUST keep your blood sugar under control either by insulin injection or oral anti-diabetic drugs under the strict guidance of a diabetologist or your own local physician. Keep in constant touch with your physician and seek his regular advice about your diet, your food preferences and exercise. 3. MUST never walk barefooted, even inside your house. Avoid wearing chappals, slippers and sandals. Never expose your feet and toes to outside injuries and to extreme cold during winters. Keep your feet warm and covered with socks. Do not apply heat. The use of silicon insoles inside the shoes is very helpful in preventing the development of an ulcer.

4. MUST keep your feet dry and clean. Never allow moisture or water to stay inside the space between the toes. Avoid wet and sweaty socks. Changes your socks twice a day, especially during the monsoon and summer seasons.

5. MUST clean your feet, toes and toe-spaces twice daily with methylated spirit and then sprinkle Neosporin powder on the toes and inside the space between the toes.

6. MUST inspect daily your feet, and look for any abrasion, blisters, raw areas and thickened skin. Consult your vascular/cardiovascular surgeon and seek his advice. Never ignore and sit idle, in case of any injury to your feet, or any development of an ulcer or red patches over your feet, consult him immediately.

7. MUST avoid tight and uncomfortable shoes. Discard immediately the shoes, which bite your feet. Shoes must be soft, very comfortable, well-cushioned and not exert any pressure on your feet, especially bony prominences. Do not save money on shoes, go for a good brand. The use of a special diabetic silicon insole inside the shoe is beneficial.

8. MUST never smoke. Tobacco in any form (Pann Masala with Zarda, Khaini, Chaini, Mainpuri Tambakhoo and tobacco-mixed toothpaste) is injurious to your diabetic feet.

9. MUST keep your weight under check. Obesity is very harmful to your legs and feet. Avoid oily and cholesterol-rich food. A high level of blood cholesterol will clog your arteries and significantly reduce blood flow to your feet and leg. Get your blood cholesterol checked-up every six months and seek advice in this regard from your Surgeon.

10. MUST do daily morning walk for 5-6 kilometres. It will increase blood circulation in your legs and feet. In special case, like, in presence of an ulcer use of Pneumatic Walker are very helpful in keeping the regular blood flow to the feet as they are scientifically desired.

11. MUST never shave off any corn (Thickened skin) developed on your feet. Do not cut your nails deep, it may lead to painless minor injury which is harmful, especially in a diabetic person.

Philippine President Marcos tested positive for COVID-19

PHILIPPINE President Ferdinand Romualdez Marcos has tested positive for COVID-19, Press Secretary Rose Beatrix Cruz-Angeles said Friday.

Angeles told a press conference that Marcos, 64, has tested positive in an antigen test for COVID-19. “He has a slight fever, but he is otherwise okay,” she said.

Angeles said the presidential management staff is currently informing those in close contact with Marcos to observe their symptoms per the protocol. Marcos’ wife and children were not exposed.

Regarding Marcos’ schedule for Friday, Angeles said

Marcos will not attend the US independence event at the embassy in Manila. However, he will virtually participate in a meeting with local officials on booster shot uptake on Friday night.

Australia’s Melbourne announces plan to reduce COVID-19 in the workplace

IN its latest bid to attract workers back to the office, Australia’s city of Melbourne has released a project promising to cut down the transmission of COVID-19 by improving ventilation in office spaces throughout the city.

A first-of-its-kind study, revealed on Friday, evaluated three different ventilation systems over three months in vacant office buildings including displacement ventilation air conditioning, in-ceiling air filters, and natural airflow through open windows.

The pilot study found that while all three methods reduced the potential for transmission of airborne viruses, displacement ventilation air conditioning, which supplies air from the floor level, was the most effective in lowering COVID-19 transmission by 83 per cent, while also reducing energy consumption by 20 per cent. —AFP

THE COVID-19 pandemic has affected essential health services and, even though the virus outbreak in Laos has subsided, some healthcare services are not able to recover to pre-pandemic levels, according to Lao Minister of Health Bounfeng

Phoummalaysith.

This was the assessment of the situation as reported at the Reproductive, Maternal, Newborn, Child and Adolescent Health (RMNCAH) annual meeting to assess work undertaken in 2021 and the first half of 2022.

According to the local daily Vientiane Times on Friday, the two-day meeting took place in the Lao capital Vientiane from Thursday to Friday, chaired by Bounfeng Phoummalaysith.

Hospital directors from across the country, representatives of provincial health departments, other officials and development partners attended the meeting.

Participants heard a report on progress so far and the next steps planned under the RMNCAH strategy for 2021-2025, especially with regard to the quality of healthcare, efficiency and sustainability of services, and equality in access to treatment.

Bounfeng said the ministry, partners and other sectors had joined forces to curb the COVID-19 spread and the situation was now under control.—Xinhua

EMA sees new COVID-19 wave in many EU countries

European Union,” Marco Cavaleri, head of Biological Health Threats and Vaccines Strategy of the EMA, told an online press conference from Amsterdam.

“The wave is driven by BA.4 and BA.5 which are highly-transmissible,” Cavaleri added.

“Based on current predictions, BA.4 and BA.5 are expected to become dominant across the European countries, likely replacing all other variants by the end of July.”

In April, the EMA already advised people aged 80 and above to get a second booster vaccine.

Now, Cavaleri repeated that message and also suggested a second booster for those aged from 60 to 79, as well as medically vulnerable people of any age.

“Although there is no evidence that the variants make people sicker than earlier strains of the virus, the increase in transmission among older age groups is starting to translate into severe diseases,” Cavaleri said.

“As this new wave is unfolding across Europe, it is essential to maintain the protection of vulnerable groups and avoid any postponement of vaccination.”—Xinhua

Stocks climb on recession watch; pound gains on Johnson exit

STOCK markets recovered further Thursday as investors weighed recession risks, while the pound rallied on the resignation of Britain's scandal-hit Prime Minister Boris Johnson as leader of the Conservative party.

Elsewhere, oil prices climbed with both main contracts back over $100 per barrel, and the euro remained around 20-year lows versus the dollar.

"Stocks bounce as pressure points ease," said independent markets analyst Stephen Innes.

The Federal Reserve on Wednesday stressed its readiness to continue hiking US interest rates to tackle soaring inflation.

US trade deficit in May shrinks 1.3%, with exports at record high

THE US deficit in trade of goods and services shrank 1.3 per cent in May from the previous month to $85.55 billion, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

US exports grew 1.2 per cent to $255.89 billion, the highest since comparable data became available in 1992, while imports edged up 0.6 per cent to $341.44 billion.

By country, the US goods trade deficit with Japan declined 6.9 per cent to $5.62 billion.

The trade deficit with China grew 3.2 per cent to $31.54 billion, and that with Mexico fell 8.3 per cent to $10.59 billion.

Since the start of 2022, Japan has ranked the fifth-largest source of trade deficit for the United States after China, Mexico, Vietnam and Canada.

Australia seeks end to trade rows in China meeting

AUSTRALIA will press China to end trade "blockages" Friday as the two nations seek to defrost icy relations with their first foreign ministers' meeting since 2019.

Foreign Minister Penny Wong said she aimed to "stabilize" relations when she meets with Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi later in the day on the sidelines of a Group of 20 meeting in Bali, Indonesia.

"We all know we have our differences. There are challenges in the relationship. We believe engagement is necessary to stabilize the relationship," Wong told reporters.

"We won't be making any concessions when it comes to Australia's interests," she added. The Australian minister said the first step to stabilizing relations would be to resolve trade disputes between the two countries.

"We don't believe those blockages are in our interests," she said. "We would say to China, they are not in China's interests." Prime Minister Anthony Albanese's centre-left Labour government, which came to power in May, has called on Beijing to drop its trade tariffs to improve relations.

Oil slides below $100 as euro sags further

RECESSION worries pushed the price of Brent oil briefly back under $100 on Wednesday, and the euro moved closer to parity with the dollar.

European stocks rebounded thanks to lower bond yields and bargain hunting, while US stocks also advanced, climbing after Federal Reserve minutes maintained a tough line on inflation.

Europe's benchmark crude oil contract, Brent North Sea, fell briefly under $100 per barrel in afternoon deals, following its US counterpart WTI, which slumped below the symbolic level on Tuesday.

US sanctions network selling Iranian oil

THE US Treasury said Wednesday it was freezing the assets of members of an international network for violating oil sanctions on Tehran by selling millions of dollars' worth of Iranian petrochemical products to East Asia.

The sanctions target Iranian petrochemical firms and alleged front companies in China and the United Arab Emirates for Iran's state-owned company and Triliance, a Hong Kong-based company already under US sanctions for its dealings with Iran.

Washington had earlier imposed sanctions on Iranian petrochemical producers in mid-June, as well as on Chinese and Indian brokers, expanding pressure amid a deadlock in negotiations on restoring a 2015 deal to curb Iran's nuclear programme.

"While the United States is committed to achieving an agreement with Iran that seeks a mutual return to compliance with the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action, we will continue to use all our authorities to enforce sanctions," the Treasury said, referring to the nuclear deal.—AFP

Germany nationalizes Rostock shipbuilder

THE German state has acquired the shipyards of MV Werften in Rostock, northeastern Germany, which went into bankruptcy in January, the defence ministry said Thursday.

“Today is a historic day,” Defence Minister Christine Lambrecht said in a statement, adding that she saw “great potential” for the German armed forces.

Until now, the shipyards in the north of Germany that had built cruise ships had been expected to be transformed into military equipment manufacturing sites.

“With this acquisition, I see a great possibility of significantly increasing the operational readiness of the (German) navy,” she said. The ministry did not say how much money was paid for the shipyards, but said it would offer an “appropriate price”. The German military, under-equipped and under-funded in recent years, faces new challenges because of the war in Ukraine. —AFP

India tightens flour exports after global wheat shortage

INDIA will impose restrictions on the export of flour in a fresh move to insulate domestic markets from a global wheat crisis.

Wheat grain exports were severely curtailed in May to shore up national food reserves following global shortages and surging prices triggered by Russia's invasion of Ukraine.

The Directorate-General of Foreign Trade has said flour exporters will need to seek prior government approval to maintain quality and stabilize domestic prices.

GLOBAL AFFAIRSUK says it seized advanced weaponry
smuggled from Iran

BRITAIN on Thursday said one of its warships on patrol in the Gulf earlier this year seized advanced weaponry being smuggled from Iran towards Yemen, contravening a UN Security Council resolution.

The ship, HMS Montrose, intercepted speedboats carrying surface-to-air-missiles and engines for land attack cruise missiles while on routine patrols on two occasions in January and February, the Ministry of Defence (MoD) said.

The speedboats were being operated by smugglers in international waters south of Iran, in the first instance of a UK warship interdicting vessels carrying such sophisticated weapons from the country, it added.

The illicit cargo was spotted by a Wildcat helicopter equipped with sophisticated radar systems launched from the Montrose, according to the MoD.

The second operation on 25 February also involved a United States Navy destroyer, the USS Gridley, which deployed a Seahawk helicopter “to provide critical overwatch”, the ministry said.—AFP

RUSSIA-UKRAINE CONFLICT

G20 ministers to meet in Bali with Ukraine top of agenda

THE Group of 20 will meet in Bali Friday with the United States pushing the world's top economies to pressure Russia over its invasion of Ukraine, as Washington and Moscow's top diplomats prepare for their first showdown since the war began.

US Secretary of State Antony Blinken will also seek to re-open dialogue with Beijing in talks with his Chinese counterpart Wang Yi, the first in months after tensions strained over issues including Taiwan. But Blinken will shun a direct meeting with Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov, instead pointing the finger at Moscow for triggering global food and energy crises and calling on G20 members to back

The G20 meeting aims to address the war's impact on food and energy security, as well as the global economy's recovery from the coronavirus pandemic and the ravages of climate change. A police officer walks past a G20 sign in Nusa Dua, Bali, Indonesia, Thursday, 7 July 2022. PHOTO: POOL/AFP

Putin says if West wants to defeat Russia on battlefield, ‘let them try’

PRESIDENT Vladimir Putin on Thursday challenged the West to try and defeat Russia “on the battlefield” and said Moscow’s intervention in Ukraine marked a shift to a “multi-polar world”.

Delivering one of his strongest speeches since he sent troops to Ukraine on 24 February, Putin also raged against “totalitarian liberalism” that he said the West has sought to impose on the entire world.

“Today we hear that they want to defeat us on the battlefield. Well, what can you say here? Let them try,” Putin told senior lawmakers on the 134th day of Russia’s offensive in Ukraine. He accused “the collective West” of unleashing a “war” in Ukraine and said Russia’s intervention in the pro-Western country marked the beginning of a shift to a “multi-polar world”.

“This process cannot be stopped,” he added.—AFP

Will Belarus join Moscow’s
Ukraine offensive?

BELARUS has served as a staging ground for Russia’s intervention in Ukraine, but strongman Alexander Lukashenko has so far avoided becoming a party to the conflict.

Observers stress that there is no end in sight for Moscow’s more than four-month military campaign in Ukraine and do not rule out that Belarus could still be dragged into it, too.

Artyom Shraibman, a non-resident scholar at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, said that Lukashenko was keenly aware of the fact that most Belarusians do not support sending troops into Ukraine.

But that does not mean that President Vladimir Putin will not try to put pressure on Lukashenko and that Belarus will not join the offensive in the future. “There are no rational reasons — or irrational reasons for that matter — for Minsk to join, for Lukashenko to join,” Shraibman told AFP.—AFP

Finland amends law to bolster Russia border fence

FINNISH parliament passed legislation Thursday to build stronger fences on its border with Russia, as the country seeks to join NATO following Moscow’s invasion of Ukraine.

Finland reversed decades of military non-alignment by seeking membership in the military alliance in May, formally starting the process to join this week.

Fearing that Moscow could use migrants to exert political pressure, the new amendments to Border Guard Act facilitate the construction of sturdier fences on the Nordic country’s 1,300-kilometre (800-mile) eastern border with Russia.

The aim of the law is to “improve the operational capacity of the border guard in responding to the hybrid threats,” Anne Ihanus, a senior adviser at the interior ministry, told AFP.

“The war in Ukraine has contributed to the urgency of the matter,” she added. —AFP

Former Japan PM Abe dies after being shot in Nara

FORMER Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe is dead after being shot on Friday while delivering a stump speech in the western city of Nara two days ahead of a national election, a ruling party source said.

Japan's longest-serving leader was attacked by a 41-year-old man from behind at around 11:30 am when he was speaking in front of Kintetsu Railway's Yamato-Saidaiji Station, police said, adding he collapsed to the ground after two shots were heard. He was rushed to hospital with blood seen on his shirt.

Tetsuya Yamagami, a resident of Nara, was arrested at the scene on suspicion of attempted murder, the police said. The suspect was formerly a member of the Maritime Self-Defence Force, according to government sources.

"It's not a grudge against the political beliefs of former Prime Minister Abe," the Naha prefectural police quoted Yamagami as saying.

According to the disaster management agency, Abe, who was prime minister until 2020, was also wounded and bleeding on the right side of his neck with internal bleeding confirmed in the left side of his chest.

After returning to his office in Tokyo by helicopter from Yamagata Prefecture where he was campaigning, Prime Minister Fumio Kishida condemned the shooting of the 67-year-old former leader "in the strongest possible terms," saying such a barbaric act should never be tolerated.

The assailant's motive is not fully known, he said.

Abe, who was also the long-time leader of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, was in the city to support a candidate running in Sunday's House of Councillors election and there was a crowd of people listening to his speech near the railway station when the attack occurred.

A Kyodo News reporter at the scene saw the attacker silently approach Abe, who had been speaking for several minutes, before shooting him.

Louds screams were heard from the crowd and Abe fell to the ground seconds later. Yamagami was immediately apprehended by police officers.

A campaign staff member was seen desperately trying to revive Abe by pushing on his chest with both hands as he lay on the ground with his eyes closed. People nearby called for medical assistance. It is a rare case of a shooting in Japan, a country that has strict gun regulations.

Foreigners flock back to Spain bull-running fiesta

AS soon as Peter Millington heard that Spain's San Fermin fiesta would be held again this year after a two-year absence due to the pandemic, he started making travel arrangements. The 38-year-old British financial advisor has been a regular at Spain's most famous bull-running festival since he first attended the annual event in Pamplona as a university student, and was keen to return. Millington said he booked his flight from London and made hotel reservations in February, just days after Pamplona's mayor announced that San Fermin would likely go ahead this year.

"There is nothing else like it, it's totally unique," he told AFP in the northern Spanish city on Wednesday when the nine-day fiesta officially opened. —AFP

EU warns of worst Palestinian displacement in 'decades'

AN EU envoy on Thursday warned of the possible mass displacement of Palestinians from an area of the West Bank that is at the center of a lengthy legal battle following a disputed Israeli court ruling.

European Union Ambassador to the Palestinian Territories, Sven Kuehn von Burgsdorff, issued the warning while touring Masafer Yatta in the occupied West Bank, where forced evictions of Palestinians have escalated after they began on 4 April.

"If there were to be mass evictions and forced displacement, it would be the largest forced displacement in decades — that's our concern here," he told AFP. Israel's Supreme Court ruled that the more than 1,000 residents of the Masafer Yatta villages had "failed to prove" their right to permanent residence in the area before the
