Victory in sports needs time, training and development

REGARDING sports, achievement of victory requires taking of time, improving training and development. As for the promotion of public health, the easiest way is walking, jogging and doing physical exercises. Only when people are healthy will they be able to be engaged in education, business and other activities. The construction of the sports grounds region-wise needs to be foresighted.

the way for multiparty democracy with the market economic system. Agriculture and livestock farms are the firmest business. So, the government encourages the operation of MSMEs for the enhancement of the State economy, for substituting import goods and increasing the export products to foreign markets.

Efficiently utilizing domestic raw materials to enhance manufacturing

Rubber products should be used for manufacturing tyres, shoes and other personal goods with modern technology so as to benefit the Taninthayi Region. Likewise, if raw materials produced in the region can be used to produce personal goods, it will enhance the local economy and reduce imported goods. As such, it is necessary to use domestic agricultural and livestock raw materials for success in manufacturing.

Needs to have raw materials,

capital, technology and human resources

Arrangements are being made to continuously implement Dawei Special Economic Zone which was halted for various reasons. The success of manufacturing is based on raw materials, capital, technology and qualified human resources. The government will issue loans with designated interest rates. It is necessary to have qualified human resources for producing high-quality products.

Smooth and swift process of tourism and trade sectors

As international travellers enter Dawei via border areas, local authorities and people need to carry out the beautification of the region conscientiously. Moreover, it is necessary to restore peace and stability in the region and the prevalence of law and order so as to increase the number of travellers to the region. A plan is underway to construct a railway to Dawei for the smooth process of tourism and trade measures.

Local people are responsible for the development of the Dawei Region. They have to utilize raw materials from the region to achieve success in manufacturing. As the government will provide necessary assistance for them, they all have to strive for increasing production.

The Senior General interestedly viewed round foodstuffs, personal goods, industrial products, traditional handiwork products, clothes and traditional medicines and asked about the market situations of the products.

Save all souls in disaster tsunamis

A highly intensified earthquake jolts a specific place. In consequence, terrible waves of tide violently hit the banks and then destroy any barriers to public residences. Suddenly the residents lost their lives in a short time without knowing and understanding anything in a few minutes but they are late to accept the loss of their lives in terrible incidents.

All the events can be seen in slow moves of images on the projector. But these are artificially screened for just a show for audiences. While enjoying the video clips on the projector, audiences suffered just a high speed of heartbeats but they cannot find sweat on their faces. It is because their high speed of heartbeats cannot compare with the frightening of participants in the actual incident.

Indeed, everybody needs to accept the concept of a self-reliant basis for doing something. They have to rely on their own strength. As they are joining hands with each other in society, they have to enhance their capacity to defy natural disasters with comprehensive preparedness to be able to reduce the risks and save their souls. Good luck to all in tsunamis.

international bodies and civil societies to raise tsunami awareness and share innovative approaches to risk reduction.

By the year 2030, an estimated 50 per cent of the world's population will live in coastal areas exposed to flooding, storms and tsunamis. Scaling up international cooperation with developing countries will help ensure that 100 per cent of communities at risk of tsunamis are prepared for and resilient to tsunamis by 2030.

Indeed, everybody needs to accept the concept of a self-reliant basis for doing something. They have to rely on their own strength. As they are joining hands with each other in society, they have to enhance their capacity to defy natural disasters with comprehensive preparedness to be able to reduce the risks and save their souls. THIS being so, the system should have been carefully selected since the commencement.

For the authorities, they should grant the import of good second-hand or reconditioned systems the EVs are using. As the EVs will replace ICE vehicles, the foreign currency spent on fuel oil can be reduced remarkably.

As soon as the EVs are introduced domestically, it is needed to conduct training courses on EV repair and maintenance. At the same time, arrangements are needed to be made to import the spare parts and components sufficiently to enable the EV owners to purchase them easily and quickly.

When our people get enough experience in using, repairing and maintaining f the EVs, they should take a step forward: they just import the parts and components and start to try to manufacture the EVs inside Myanmar. Then, manufacturing CKD and SKD EVs will enable people to procure electric vehicles at a much lower price compared to that of an important one. Afterwards, we can proceed to establish joint ventures with our giant neighbours — India and China. We can then produce SONO Fully Solar EVs within Myanmar. As known to all, China is dominating the world's EV market. Their EVs are noted for high-quality. This being so, Myanmar should consider forming two JVs—one with China and the other with India. It is expected that manufacturing EVs can effectuate fast national economic growth.

In this regard, the MSMEs, big and small, can be permitted to cooperate with these joint ventures. To supply power to the factories and the industrial zones, hydropower can be generated in addition to the generation of solar power and wind power. The wind power and solar power pumps group pumping system can be used to pump the groundwater into a higher-level water reservoir which will supply water down into the lakes, rivers and creeks etc., through the pipelines. At a point of the pipelines, an open-loop pumped hydropower system will be installed to generate the hydropower. Furthermore, the wind power and solar power pumps group pumping system will be employed in places where the geographical conditions are favourable, and power will be generated through the use of open-loop pumps. The power thus generated will be provided to the local people, and the surplus, if any, will be supplied to the national power grid to distribute the power across the country. With such measures being taken, the electric power thus produced will contribute towards rapid national economic growth and development.

Just as solar energy can be used to run the equipment and farming implements required for carrying out agricultural and livestock breeding activities, construction of roads for rural development and small-scale irrigation networks, the EVs can also be beneficial for farmers with the batteries, solar energy charging system and renewable energy being used for the farmers' cultivation activities.

In addition to the heavy solar panels, it is needed to manufacture thin flexible multiple-wafer solar sheets domestically. In this regard, it is required to establish joint ventures with the countries that possessed high technology in order to export the said hi-tech solar sheets.

Concerning the wind power generation system and the hydropower generation system, it is of necessity to make arrangements to improve them with the use of edging technology. In doing so, China and India are the most suitable nations to establish joint ventures with. After production, the products can be used either domestically and/or exported.

MOC commences new import system
on Myanmar-Thailand border

STARTING from 1 November, imports are to be allowed based on the export earnings or flows of funds and the initial stage of this move will commence in Myanmar-Thailand border areas, according to 31 October 2022 of the Trade Department under the Ministry of Commerce.

To improve Anti-Money Laundering and Countering the Financing of Terrorism (AML/CFT) measures and follow the Action Plan of the Financial Action Task Force (FATF), banking will be utilized in settling border transactions. Imports will be allowed only with the banking system.

The importers are permitted to use export earnings and foreign salary remittances of Myanmar citizens and can make transactions at the relevant banks with those earnings and flows of funds. The initial stage of this move will commence in the Myanmar-Thailand border areas, as per the statement.

The Trade Department will grant an import licence after screening export earnings and flows of funds and making sure the import value does not exceed the bank account balance.

The export earnings and the flows of funds deposited after 1 April 2022 will be accepted. Those importers who seek the permit as of 31 October 2022 are not entitled to this.

Those importers who were granted import licences before 31 October 2022 must bring in the goods by 30 November 2022. If they fail to do so, they will get their licences revoked.

In the cross-border trade between Myanmar and Thailand, the exporting companies can import with their export earnings or transfer the earnings to other companies for imports. Moreover, they can import with their export earnings at the other border posts as well. — TWA/GNLM

Kyaikne mid-water pagoda festival to be held in Mon State

THE Kyaikne mid-water pagoda festival will be held at the Thanbyuzayat Township of Mon State on 6 and 7 November, stated the organizing committee of the festival.

The two-day long festival will be held according to the rules and regulations, and the round trip to the pagoda and the Wekalaung beach one mile and six furlongs away from the pagoda will be arranged for pilgrims.

A notice was issued to pilgrims to visit the pagoda in a disciplined manner.

A notification has been issued that drunken persons, the elderly, pregnant women and children are not allowed to visit the pagoda, that those who travel by powered schooners must wear a life jacket, that it is mandatory to follow the rules established by the organizing committee of the festival and make sure there is no disaster.

Those who want to visit the Pagoda in their own plan need to make an advanced notice to the respective village-tract administration and the board of trustees of the pagoda. It is reported that they must visit the pagoda as the organization arranges and that any unrecognized vehicles are not allowed at the beach.

All rules and regulations will be announced on vinyl posters and by loudspeakers by the board of trustees and the organizing committee of the pagoda.

The Kyaikne mid-water pagoda festival is an annual pagoda festival which is held between the first and third waning days of Tazaungmone. Due to unexpected high tide conditions on 21 November 2021, tens of thousands of pilgrims drowned in the incident. Thus, the board of trustees and the organizing committee have issued a notification to ensure safety this year. — TWA/GNLM

Monsoon onions enter markets, yet onion prices still strengthen

APPROXIMATELY 100,000 visses of newly harvested monsoon onions from various regions flowed into the Yangon market on 1 November 2022 yet the prices are still on the rise.

On 1 November 2022, the prices of onions stood at K3,100-4,100 per viss and these came from the Seikphyu area, and K3,600-4,400 per viss of onions from the Myingyan area.

Only a small number of onion sacks entered the Myingyan commodity centre and the prices of onion were K2,500 and K2,800 per viss.

Meanwhile, the price of old summer onions hit the highest of K3,700 per viss, according to the Myingyan commodity centre.

On 1 November, the maximum prices of onions were K3,800 per viss at Pakokku Commodity Centre and K3,700 per viss at Seikphyu Commodity Centre.

On 29 October 2022, new monsoon onions are gradually flowing into Pakokku Commodity Depot at K2,500 per viss.

The high price of onions has prompted the growers to begin monsoon onions earlier than usual from mid-2022. Despite some onion plantations being affected by the heavy rain, the supply of onions is one month earlier than the previous years.

As the onions contain moisture content, they cannot be sent to remote areas. When they are dried well, they will flood the Yangon market for sure, U San Myaing, an onion grower, told the Global New Light of Myanmar (GNLM).

In the first ten days of November, the weather office forecasted small rainfalls in the onion-producing regions. The prices of summer onions peaked at over K4,000 per viss so the monsoon onions are expected to be harvested soon to enter the market in time.

Despite the price hikes, the consumers' demand does not exceed the supply.

The markets do not see big purchases and panic buying. Those dealers who keep the onion stocks in hand might face losses when the monsoon onions flood the market.

As the winter season begins, the summer old onions might sprout.

The stocks of old onions are estimated at 10 million visses in the markets before the large supply of monsoon onions, Daw Hla Myint, a dealer from regions outside Yangon, told the GNLM.

However, those old onions might be delivered to border markets in end-2022. The current market prices may vary the price offered by the border market according to the onion inventory.

Additionally, regardless of the onions affected by the rain, the harvest time in Viet Nam, Thailand and Bangladesh will also come earlier than usual. So, the demand from border areas in November will decline on the back of low demand.

The low demand from border areas, onion demand at the Bayintnaung Wholesale Market and a fresh supply of monsoon onions might drive the prices down at the end of November, the dealers pointed out. – TWA/GNLM

Europe could face gas shortage
next year: IEA

The pressure is on for Europe to ensure it has sufficient supplies for the 2023-24 winter. PHOTO: AFP/FILE

EUROPE must act immediately to prevent a shortage of natural gas next year as Russia slashes deliveries in the wake of the Ukraine war, the International Energy Agency warned Thursday.

The IEA said the shortfall would occur if Russia stops pipelines deliveries completely and China steps up its imports of liquefied natural gas, which Europe has relied upon to replace Russian supplies.

The region could lack 30 billion cubic metres that it needs “to fuel its economy and sufficiently refill storage sites during the summer of 2023, jeopardizing its preparations for the winter of 2023-24,” the Paris-based agency said in a report.

Russia drastically cut supplies to Europe in suspected retaliation against Western sanctions over its invasion of Ukraine, but the region was able to fill storage sites for this upcoming winter.

Moscow delivered 60 billion cubic metres of gas to Europe this year, but the IEA said that it is “highly unlikely” that Russia will provide the same amount in 2023 and could cease deliveries entirely.

And while Chinese LNG imports were lower in the first 10 months of this year, the world’s second biggest economy could grab 85 per cent of the expected increase in global LNG supplies if its purchases recover next year.—AFP

pipeline ‘destroyed’

NORD Stream AG said Wednesday that a roughly 250-metre (820-feet) section of pipeline was “destroyed”, after the operator carried out an investigation on the pipeline after explosions at the end of September.

“Craters with a depth of three to five metres were found on the seabed at a distance of about 248 metres from each other” along a Nord Stream 1 pipeline, the operator said in a statement.

“The section of the pipe between the craters is destroyed,” it said.

Four leaks emerged on the Nord Stream 1 and 2 pipelines in the Baltic Sea off the coast of the Danish island of Bornholm at the end of September, with seismic institutes reporting that they had recorded two underwater explosions prior to the leaks appearing.

While the leaks were in international waters, two of them were in the Danish exclusive economic zone and two of them in the Swedish.—AFP

From fake favas to ‘smuggler sheep’: how captagon is trafficked

Lebanese authorities found nine million pills hidden in fake plastic oranges heading to the Gulf in December 2021. A week earlier, 1.1 million pills stuffed into fake lemons were intercepted by Emirati customs. PHOTO: AFP/FILE

STITCHED into the bellies of “smuggler sheep” or loaded onto drones and ultralight planes, captagon is crossing the Middle East’s borders in ever more creative ways.

Smugglers have hidden pills in huge tubs of tomato paste, packed them in hollowed out pomegranates or even painstakingly stuffed them, one by one, into pitted olives. The pills have also been hidden in fake fava beans, artificial oranges and ornate stone frescoes. The creativity of smugglers continues to astound the authorities, with seizures more often the result of tip-offs than the technological prowess of customs checks.

Here are some of the most unusual smuggling methods foiled in recent years:

Pomegranates

More than 5.3 million pills were found by the Saudi authorities in a large shipment of pomegranates in April 2021, with the drugs stuffed inside some of the fruit. The seizure led to a Saudi ban on fruit and vegetable imports from Lebanon.

Live sheep

Fastening weapons or drugs to livestock to cross borders is an age-old smuggling trick. Latin American cartels took this a step further by stitching bags of cocaine and heroin into dogs and other animals. In November 2021 Kuwaiti authorities found 17 kilos of captagon pills inside live imported sheep.

Fake oranges

Lebanese authorities found nine million pills hidden in fake plastic oranges heading to the Gulf in December 2021. A week earlier, 1.1 million pills stuffed into fake lemons were intercepted by Emirati customs.

Stuffed olives

Jordan’s anti-narcotics squad arrested a smuggler with 37,000 pills concealed in pitted green olives in April 2015. Syria’s drug unit arrested a man in December last year who had stuffed 160,000 pills into olives after stoning thousands of them.—AFP

Bank of England delivers biggest rate hike in 33 years

THE Bank of England delivered Thursday its biggest interest rate hike since 1989 to combat soaring inflation and warned that Britain faced a recession set to last until mid-2024.

Britain’s economy has entered a recession set to last until mid-2024, the Bank of England said Thursday as it hiked its key interest rate by the biggest amount since 1989.

Following a regular meeting, the BoE said it was lifting borrowing costs by 0.75 percentage points to three per cent — the highest level since the 2008 global financial crisis — with UK inflation at a four-decade high above 10 per cent. The latest rate hike mirrors aggressive rate-tightening by central banks worldwide as economies battle the highest prices in decades.

On Wednesday, the US Federal Reserve sprang a fourth consecutive hike of 0.75 percentage points — and its boss Jerome Powell suggested they would go higher than expected.— AFP

BMW sees profits jump on higher prices for luxury cars

GERMAN automaker BMW reported Thursday a 23-per cent increase in third-quarter profit thanks to robust demand for pricier luxury models, but it warned that soaring inflation could limit purchases from consumers. The Munich-based group said it had booked a net profit of nearly 3.2 billion euros ($3.1 billion), up from 2.6 billion euros between July and September last year.

this can all be done online within a day,” he said. According to MOF and MAS, with the new process, businesses and individuals will no longer need to apply for a paper guarantee from a financial institution, collect it when it is ready, and deliver the guarantee to the government agency, to discharge their contractual or licencing obligations. Instead, they can apply for an eGuarantee from over 20 participating financial institutions through their websites or email for direct submission to 17 government agencies. Spain’s Telefonica beats forecasts, confirms outlook

Xi meets German Chancellor Olaf Scholz

CHINESE President Xi Jinping met German Chancellor Olaf Scholz on his official visit to China at the Great Hall of the People in Beijing on Friday.

Xi noted that Scholz is the first European leader to visit China after the 20th National Congress of the Communist Party of China, and that it is his first visit to China as the Federal Chancellor.

The visit will further enhance the mutual understanding and trust between the two sides and deepen cooperation in various fields, and gives the two sides an opportunity to plan for the growth of bilateral ties going forward, Xi said.

Stressing that this year marks the 50th anniversary of China-Germany diplomatic relations, Xi said the five-decade journey shows that as long as the two sides follow the principles of respecting each other, seeking common ground while reserving differences, maintaining exchanges and mutual learning, and pursuing mutually-beneficial cooperation, bilateral ties will keep going in the right direction on the whole and making steady progress.

Noting the complex and fluid international landscape, Xi underscored the need for China and Germany, two major countries with great influence, to work together in times of change and instability and contribute more to global peace and development.—Xinhua

cements rise of extreme right

ISRAEL'S election this week cemented the rise of the country's extreme right, with firebrand Itamar Ben-Gvir set to gain a powerful position in government.

After leading an energetic campaign centred on security and Jewish identity, Ben-Gvir celebrated as his Religious Zionism alliance achieved third place – and likely kingmaker status – in the 1 November vote.

"It's time that we returned to be the masters of our house in our country," he told cheering supporters Wednesday, after exit polls showed the nationalist bloc more than doubling its parliamentary seats.—AFP

Microsoft pledges US$100 mln to Ukraine 'digital alliance'

MICROSOFT will give Ukraine an additional $100 million of technology support to strengthen a "digital alliance" protecting the country, the firm's vice-chairman said on Thursday.

Brad Smith said Ukraine would be able to use Microsoft's cloud services and data centres across Europe during the entire 2023.

He told a news conference on the sidelines of the annual Web Summit tech meeting in Lisbon that Microsoft's total commitment to Ukraine was now $400 million.

Ukraine has put technology at the centre of its war effort, stressing the importance of cybersecurity and the centrality of online services from education to health.

"Part of what this war has shown is that one needs to move services to the cloud in a time of war to ensure their resilience and security," said Smith.

He said the new commitment would "enable the government and other businesses in Ukraine to continue to run their services and serve Ukraine citizens".—AFP

UN says sees 'progress' on Russia fertilizer exports

NEGOTIATIONS underway to unblock exports of fertilizer from Russia have made "important steps forward", one of the main UN negotiators said Thursday, acknowledging though there was still a way to go.

Moscow has complained its grain and fertilizer exports continue to face issues over sanctions imposed after its invasion of Ukraine, despite two agreements signed on 22 July that called for sanctions to spare agriculture-related products and granted safe passage for Ukrainian grain exports.

The second of those agreements, brokered by Türkiye and the United Nations, has been working quite well, allowing millions of tonnes of grain to leave

Plea from Ukraine first lady kicks off annual tech summit in Portugal

ONE of the world's biggest tech conferences will get going in Lisbon on Wednesday, after Ukraine's first lady formally opened the event by urging participants to use their skills to save lives rather than end them.

Olena Zelenska told an audience of several thousand at the Web Summit's opening ceremony late on Tuesday not to put "technology at the service of terror" -- unlike some in Russia.

Seoul scrambles jets after detecting 180 N. Korea warplanes

SOUTH Korea’s military scrambled stealth jets on Friday after detecting the mobilization of 180 North Korean warplanes, Seoul said as it conducted large-scale joint air drills with the United States which have infuriated Pyongyang. North Korea has launched a record-breaking blitz of missile launches this week, including a failed intercontinental ballistic missile test on Thursday.

Seoul and Washington extended their largest-ever joint air drills through Saturday in response to the North’s flurry of projectiles. “Our military detected around 180 North Korean warplanes” mobilized in Pyongyang’s airspace, Seoul’s Joint Chiefs of Staff said, adding that Seoul “scrambled 80 fighter jets including F-35As” while jets involved in the joint drills were also “maintaining readiness”. Shortly after South Korea announced the decision to extend the joint drills on Thursday, Pyongyang launched three more short-range ballistic missiles, calling the move “a very dangerous and wrong choice”. Hours later, the North fired 80 artillery rounds that landed in a maritime “buffer zone”, Seoul’s military said. The barrage was a “clear violation” of the 2018 agreement that established the buffer zone in a bid to reduce tensions between the two sides, Seoul’s Joint Chiefs of Staff said.

The artillery fire came after Pyongyang fired about 30 missiles Wednesday and Thursday, including an intercontinental ballistic missile and one that landed near South Korea’s territorial waters for the first time since the end of the Korean War in 1953.— AFP

Former Pakistan PM Imran Khan stable after ‘assassination attempt’

FORMER Pakistan Prime Minister Imran Khan was in stable condition after being shot in the foot Thursday at a political rally in what the country’s president deemed “a heinous assassination attempt”.

Khan has been leading a march since Friday from the city of Lahore towards the capital, Islamabad, campaigning for fresh elections after being ousted from office in April.

Khan was wounded when shots were fired from the crowd near Gujranwala, his senior aide, Raoof Hasan, told AFP.

“This was an attempt to kill him, to assassinate him,” Hasan said, adding that one alleged attacker had been shot dead and a second taken into police custody.

In a tweet, Pakistan’s President Arif Alvi also called it “a heinous assassination attempt”.

“I thank Allah that he is safe but injured with few bullets in his leg & hopefully non-critical,” he tweeted.

Pakistan has been grappling with Islamist militants for decades, and politicians are frequently targeted by assassination attempts.

In 2007 the nation’s first female leader Benazir Bhutto was slain in a suicide attack which still remains unsolved.

Each day during his so-called “long march” 70 year-old Khan has mounted a shipping container towed by a lorry, making speeches from the open top to crowds of thousands in cities and towns along the way.

Germany says ready to resume Brazil deforestation aid after Lula victory

GERMANY said Wednesday it was ready to resume sending financial aid to Brazil to combat deforestation following Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva’s election triumph, after a similar move by Norway.

“We are in principle prepared to release the frozen funds,” said a development ministry spokesman in Berlin. “We will now talk to the transition team in Brazil about the details.”

He was referring to aid paid by Germany into the Amazon Fund for Forest Conservation and Climate Protection, considered one of the main tools to reduce deforestation in the planet’s biggest tropical forest.

The spokesman said it was not yet clear when payments would resume but added that “in the German government, there is a great will to reach out quickly”.

Germany, along with the fund’s biggest donor Norway, had halted payments after deforestation surged under far-right, climate-sceptic leader Jair Bolsonaro.

Norway had already announced on Monday that it would resume sending Amazon protection subsidies to Brazil following Lula’s victory in the presidential elections.

Lula — who served as president between 2003 and 2011 — said after his election victory on Sunday that Brazil was “ready to reclaim its place in the fight against the climate crisis, especially the Amazon”.

He vowed to “fight for zero deforestation.”

Methane explosion kills at least five at Kazakhstan mine

A methane explosion at a coal mine in central Kazakhstan killed at least five people and injured another four on Thursday, officials said.

“A sudden release of gas during the drilling of a drainage well led to the deaths of five workers” in the Lenin mine belonging to ArcelorMittal, Ruslan Imankulov, a spokesman for the country’s emergency ministry, told AFP.

Imankulov added that “four people were hospitalized and 106 were evacuated”.

The mine is located in the resource-rich region of Karaganda, whose governor said the accident had been caused by an “explosion of methane” — a gas that, when combined with a certain amount of oxygen, can combust.

An investigation into potential violations of safety rules has been opened by a government commission.

In a statement, Kazakh President Kassym-Jomart Tokayev offered his “condolences to the families and friends of the deceased workers”, and wished a “speedy recovery to the injured”.—AFP

Dagon Star United's coach says all three teams have chance to win championship

DAGON Star United head coach U Nanda Kyaw said that all three teams have a chance to become champions as the final match of the Myanmar National League II 2022 will be played between Dagon Star United and Junior Lions today.

Before each of the final games, the Junior Lions team is in first place with 19 points but with goal differences from the Dagon Star United team, which is standing in second place.

In third place, the University Team stood with 18 points.

"Tomorrow's match must be won. If it's a draw, they won't be champions. I am preparing all the way to win," said Dagon Star United head coach U Nanda Kyaw on 4 October.

In the final matches, Dagon Star United will play against Junior Lions and the University Team will play against Young Boys FC.

"Football is unpredictable. All three teams have same opportunities. The team with the best performance will be the champion. At the moment, the University Team seems to be arbitrary. The winning team will be the champion," the head coach added.

Arsenal face acid test at Chelsea, Son-less Spurs take aim at Liverpool

ARSENAL face a stiff test of their Premier League title credentials when they travel to Chelsea on Sunday, while Liverpool desperately need to win at Tottenham to claw back ground on the top four.

With just two league games left before a mid-season shut-down for the World Cup, Arsenal are surprise leaders, two points ahead of defending champions Manchester City.

City will expect to go top on Saturday when they host Fulham at the Etihad, aiming to crank up the pressure on Arsenal for their game at Stamford Bridge the following day.

Chelsea are 10 points off the top after a three-game winless run in the league and cannot afford to drop more points if they are to have any hope of challenging for the title.

Graham Potter suffered his first defeat as Chelsea boss in a 4-1 humbling on his return to Brighton last weekend.

credibly challenging October," the new manager said after Wednesday's 2-1 Champions League win over Dinamo Zagreb.

"We were in a situation where had to get results, we lost key players in terms of Wesley Fofana and Reece James and there's always a little bit of stability that's affected when that happens.

Swiatek downs Garcia at WTA Finals, Kasatkina eliminates Gauff

WORLD number one Iga Swiatek beat Caroline Garcia 6-3, 6-2 to clinch a semi-final spot at the WTA Finals on Thursday, but Garcia remained in the hunt for a place in the knockout stage.

France's Garcia can still advance with a victory on Saturday against Daria Kasatkina, who eliminated Coco Gauff from semi-final contention with a 7-6 (8/6), 6-3 victory over the error-strewn fourth-ranked American.

Poland's Swiatek saved five of the six break points she faced and broke Garcia four times on the way to a victory that avenged her three-set loss to the French player in the quarter-finals at Warsaw in July. Swiatek, the reigning US and French Open champion who put together a 37-match win streak earlier this year, is aiming to finish out 2022 on a high note.

Garcia had a game plan against her, but said it's not always easy to implement against the Pole.

"The thing is, you have to take some time away from her," Garcia said. "Try to be aggressive, to push her out of her comfort zone. But most of the time, she does it better than you. She's really strong, really solid, doesn't give you a lot of unforced errors.—AFP
