A total of 99 per cent of businesses across the nation are MSMEs which are the main driving force for the State economy: Vice-Senior General

IT is necessary to make vigorous efforts for upgrading raw materials to value-added products with the use of techniques and machinery in order to improve the value chain and raise State GDP, said MSME Development Work Committee Chairman State Administration Council Vice-Chair Deputy Prime Minister Vice-Senior General Soe Win at the meeting 1/2022 of the MSME development work committee at the Ministry of Industry in Nay Pyi Taw yesterday afternoon.

In his address, the Vice-Senior General said that micro, small and medium-scale enterprises with lesser capital faced terrible impacts of the Covid-19 pandemic in addition to economic, social and health sectors in Myanmar. Hence, the government disbursed loans to MSMEs with an extension of loan terms. A total of 99 per cent of businesses across the nation are MSMEs which are the main driving force for the State economy.

The Industrial Supervision and Inspection Department under the Ministry of Industry has issued SME member cards to 40,929 industries and more than 45,000 industries have taken registration under the private industrial law. Moreover, 13 other ministries registered more than 253,000 industries, according to the statistics. Efforts must be made for manufacturing value-added safe products through modern techniques to be able to join the world value-added chain and international cooperation production networks as the whole world needs food products.

MSME industries are still difficult to thoroughly apply digital technology in manufacturing, market promotion and trade payment. The government is solving the problems of MSMEs.

The Vice-Senior General continued to say that it is necessary to form the MSME agency for allowing online registration of MSMEs at a time when all procedures have been set. They will have the chance to enjoy capital to be provided by the State, tax exemption and other assistance when they have registered.

As MSME businesspersons submitted 95 points of reports to the Prime Minister on his tours, these points must be implemented one after another.

as listed buildings exercising the authority under Sub-section (b) of Section 34 of the 2015 Protection and Preservation of Ancient Monuments Law. There were 124 listed buildings in Yangon Region. The listed buildings are protected by the laws and rules and are also preserved in their original styles. There should be prominent signs for such listed buildings so the people know the value of structure and original artworks and protect them.

The National Library that received the plaque yesterday was an office of the British Oil Company, BOC in 1908 and became an office of Myanmar Oil and Gas Enterprises in 1963. Currently, it has been a national library opened by the Ministry of Religious Affairs and Culture in 2017.

The Customs Office was constructed in 1913 and completed in 1915. The building replaced a wooden customs house first constructed in 1853. The red brick building is noted for its towering bracket clock and columned portico, with architectural adaptations to tropical weather conditions.

The Ministers' Office (Secretariat) was a place for holding horse events in the past and was constructed in 1889 and completed in 1905.

It is a historic place as the national leaders were assassinated. It is the very place where the independence of the country was declared on 4 January 1948. — MNA

Summer onions flood Yangon market

A bulk supply of onions from various regions to the Yangon market was estimated at 210,000 visses on 14 November 2022.

What a surprising event is no entry of summer onions to Pakokku depot. Only newly harvested monsoon onions are entering there. Meanwhile, old summer onions are supplied to the Yangon market only, as per the market reports.

There was a rumour of a shortage of summer onions in the regions outside Yangon, however, the dealers are still sending a large volume of summer onions to Yangon markets.

On 14 November, one truckload of Chinese onions, 12 truckloads of onions from the Myingyan area and eight truckloads of onions from the Seikphyu area entered the Yangon wholesale market. The news of the summer onions shortage circulating in the market was allegedly made by those traders who have the stocks in hand in the hope the price would rise.

When there is no stock left, they just stay silent. It is a kind of price manipulation in the market, said buyers.

On 14 November, traders set the opening price for onions only from Myingyan and Seikphyu areas depending on the quality. The warehouse sells the quality one at the opening price and the substandard one at K100-200 lower than the market price, according to an onion warehouse. On 15 November, the wholesale price stood at K3,700-4,300 per viss from the Myingyan area and K3,400-3,800 per viss from the Seikphyu area. Chinese onions were valued at K3,200 per viss.

On 13 November, following a supply of 15,000 visses of monsoon onions to the Pakokku market, the maximum price was K2,800 per viss. Similarly, the highest price is relatively set at K2,900 per viss at the Myingyan depot, tracking a supply of 8,000 visses of monsoon onions. On 14 November, monsoon onions hit the highest of K2,550 per viss at Pakokku commodity centre.

A total of 15,520 visses of summer onions entered the Myingyan depot on 14 November and the prices ranged between K3,600-3,800 per viss. About 12,960 visses of monsoon onions flowed into the Myingyan depot, with the prices moving between K1,000 and K2,800 per viss. The freight rate is K95/100 per viss from Myingyan to Yangon, K120 to Mawlamyine and K130 to Myawady, according to the price data issued by the respective depots.

Summer onions are shipped to Vietnam and Thailand through cross-border trade. Although new onions are flowing into those markets, the prices of Myanmar's summer onions are still on the rise at the border. The price is expected to decline below K4,000 per viss by the end of November in Yangon markets, Ko Aung Win, a buyer told the GNLM.

The price is heading for a fall in Yangon markets. The monsoon onions possibly have low moisture content because of favourable weather conditions. Chinese onions also started to capture a market share due to cheaper prices and the same appearance as local ones. — TWA/GNLM

94 new cases of COVID-19 reported on 15 November, total figure rises to 632,805

MYANMAR'S COVID-19 positive cases rose to 632,805 after 94 new cases were reported on 15 November 2022 according to the Ministry of Health.

The total number of patients who have recovered from COVID-19 in the country reached 607,142 including 97 new recoveries.

The death toll from COVID-19 in the country remained unchanged at 19,486 on Monday with no new deaths reported from the pandemic.

According to the research, it is found that people who have been vaccinated do not suffer severely from the disease, need not to be hospitalized and unlikely to die. If they have received booster shot, the death rates can be reduced more.

As such, the people need to follow the new normal way in living with Covid. Hence, all the people above five have to fully receive Covid-19 vaccination inoculated by the Ministry of Health free of charge. Six months after the vaccination, they have to take booster jabs at relevant health centres and ward/village administration offices without fail.

Moreover, they have to wear masks while in closed chambers and public places. They need to often wash hands with soap and water or the hand gel containing alcohol (at least 60 per cent) for 20 seconds.

People need to follow the social distancing rule and avoid the crowds as much as possible. While not wearing masks, if they cough and sneeze, they need to cover mouth and noses with elbows in line with the personal hygienic ways.

Myanmar daily conveys 40 truckloads of watermelon, muskmelon to China

MYANMAR daily delivers watermelons and muskmelons with about 40 trucks, said Sai Khin Maung from Khwanyo Fruit Trading Centre.

Nonetheless, China’s COVID lockdowns affected the prices of watermelon and muskmelons. The prices are lower this year than last year’s prices, he continued.

“The market is not going well. China has not eased lockdowns. The price is pretty low this year due to the China COVID lockdown,” Sai Khin Maung said.

The prevailing prices of watermelon move in the range between 1,400 Yuan and 2,000 Yuan, while muskmelons were priced at 2,009 Yuan-4,800 Yuan depending on the quality.

Additionally, the cost of exports is too much, he added.

“The fruit export season has started. Despite uncertainty in pricing, the cost of exporting is gradually rising. There is a direct freight transport of Myanmar trucks to China and Myanmar exporters also send them with Chinese trucks. The cost of exporting watermelon is K3-4 million per tuck on Myanmar’s side and K2-2.5 million on China’s side. The exports of muskmelon cost 500,000-800,000 more than watermelon’s export costs,” Sai Khin Maung elaborated.

Myanmar’s watermelon and muskmelons are primarily exported to China. Yet, Myanmar’s traders are facing a series of challenges owing to China’s policy changes triggered by the COVID-19 cases, traders stressed.

Last year, the COVID-19 restrictions hindered Myanmar’s watermelon and muskmelon exports to China.

Chinese Customs Regulation increased delay. Long delays of trucks caused harm to watermelon quality and only one in five trucks heading to China remained undamaged with quality watermelons.

On 1 April, Nantaw and Sinphyu border posts were suspended in the wake of COVID-19 impacts. China has closed down the major border crossing Mang Wein from 30 March 2021 following the COVID-19 cases in Myanmar.

On 8 2021, the two-remaining cross-border posts Kyinsankyawt and Panseng were suspended. As a result of this, the border trade between Myanmar and China was completely halted.

Among Sino-Myanmar border posts, the Kyinsankyawt border post resumed operations on 26 November on a trial run.

At present, Myanmar daily delivers rice, broken rice, rubber, various beans and pulses, fishery products, chilli pepper and other food commodities to China through Kyinsankyawt by 70 trucks and building materials, electrical appliances, household goods and industrial raw materials are imported into the country by 30 trucks.

Myanmar has opened five border trade zones with China: Muse, Lweje, Kampaiti, Chinshwehaw and Kengtung. The majority of the trade is carried out through the Muse land border, the Ministry of Commerce’s data indicated.—NN/GNLM

YGEA hikes reference price to K2.1 mln per tical following gold spot price

YANGON Region Gold Entrepreneurs Association (YGEA) raised the reference price of yellow metal to K2.1 million per tical as gold spot price climbed in international markets.

When the gold spot price was US$1,668 per ounce on 8 November, YGEA set the pure gold price at K1,965,000 per tical (0.578 ounces or 0.016 kilogramme).

On 15 November, the gold spot price rallied to $1,783 per ounce. Therefore, YGEA hiked up the reference price to K2.1 million per tical.

The gold spot price jumped by $110 per ounce within one week. The pure gold price was up by K135,000 per tical.

Despite the YGEA’s reference price, pure gold touched a high of K2.7 million per tical in the domestic markets.

There is a gap of about K600,000 per tical between the YGEA’s reference price and market price.

YGEA calculated the price depending on the Central Bank of Myanmar’s reference exchange rate of K2,100, with some addition. The dollar was exchanged at K3,000 in the black market.

Therefore, there is a large gap between the YGEA’s price and the market price based on the black market.

Meanwhile, YGEA called for the gold shops in Yangon Region to sell pure gold at K2,530,000 per tical, according to its notification released on 30 October 2022.

The soaring dollar exchanging at over K4,500 pushed up the pure gold price to a record-high of K3.7 million per tical in late August. – NN/GNLM

Change mindsets enshrined with tolerance

EXERCISING tolerance is in line with the teachings of the Lord Buddha as well as in accord with Myanmar traditions. UNESCO, one of the great agencies of the United Nations released the 1995 declaration of principles on tolerance, saying that tolerance is respect, acceptance and appreciation of the rich diversity of our world’s cultures, our forms of expression and ways of being human.

The UN General Assembly proclaimed 16 November as the International Day for Tolerance and invited UN Member States to observe such kind of significant day on 16 November 1996, with activities directed towards both educational establishments and the wider public. It is the day honouring the people who can keep their tolerance in their minds.

As such, everybody needs to uphold tolerance to shape society pleasantly. It can create an environment filled with peaceful and stable activities in addition to satisfaction with own efforts and creation, which are grateful to society and the Universe. Let’s change the mindsets of all with tolerance.

As such, all citizens need to initiate activities of tolerance with compassion and empathy for each other as part of sustaining peaceful and tranquil rays.

Tolerance requires investment by States in people, and in the fulfilment of their full potential through education, inclusion and opportunities. This means building societies founded on respect for human rights, where fear, distrust and marginalization are supplanted by pluralism, participation and respect for differences.

On the International Day of Tolerance, let’s recognize the mounting threat posed by those who strive to divide, and let’s pledge to forge a path defined by dialogue, social cohesion and mutual understanding. Actually, exercising tolerance can ease any restrictions and can influence others. It is beneficial for society. Such great efforts can easily overcome challenges in doing everything.

As such, everybody needs to uphold tolerance to shape society pleasantly. It can create an environment filled with peaceful and stable activities in addition to satisfaction with own efforts and creation, which are grateful to society and the Universe. Let’s change the mindsets of all with tolerance.

For The Seniors Born Before 1956

By Yin Nwe Ko

A few months ago, there was an interesting article that aims at the aged in the National Review-Journal. It was a new device that is going to help them effectively and instantly when they encounter the difficult situations associated with their health. That health-care device was the advantage of modern and advanced technology of the world. In other words, it can be also named as the advantage of the people who are eager to decorate the world better and better day after day. My esteemed readers are going to have a chance to read it in a short while.

Most people including me do not always do what their doctor says, but when a seasoned veteran emergency room physician, Dr Philip B. Howren, says every senior should have a medical alert device, you had better listen up.

“Seniors are just one fall away from being put in a nursing home,” Dr Howren said. “With a medical alert device, seniors are never alone. So, it keeps them living independently in their own home. That’s why seniors and their family members are snapping up a sleek new medical alert device that comes with no monthly bills ever,” he said.

Many seniors refuse to wear old-style help buttons because they make them look old. But even worse, those medical alert systems come with monthly bills.

To solve these problems Universal Physicians, a US company went to work to develop a new, modern, state-of-the-art medical alert device. It’s called “FastHelp™” and it instantly connects you to free unlimited nationwide help every where cell service is available with no contracts, no deposits, and no monthly bills ever.

“This slick new little device is designed to look like the pagers doctors wear every day. Seniors love them because it actually makes them look important, not old,” Dr Howren said.

FastHelp is expected to hit store shelves later this year. But special newspaper promotional giveaways are slated for seniors in select areas.

Around these days, the phone lines are ringing off the hook.

That’s because, for seniors born before 1956, it’s a deal too good to pass up.

Starting at precisely 8:30 am this morning the Pre-Store Release begins for the sleek new medical alert device that comes with the exclusive FastHelp One-Touch E 911 Button that instantly connects you to unlimited nationwide help everywhere cell service is available with no contracts, no deposits, and no monthly bills ever.

“It’s not like old-style monitored help buttons that make you talk to a call centre and only work when you’re at home and come with hefty bills every month. FastHelp comes with state-of-the-art cellular embedded technology. That means it works at home or any where, anytime cell service is available whether you’re out watering the garden, driving in a car, at church, or even hundreds of miles away on a tour or at a casino. You are never alone. With just a single push of the One-Touch E Button you instantly get connected to free unlimited help nationwide with no monthly bills ever,” said Jack Lawrence, Executive Director of Product Development for US-based Universal Physicians.

“We’ve never seen anything like it. Consumers absolutely love the sleek new modern design and most of all, the instant rebate that practically pays for it and no monthly bills ever,” Lawrence said.

FastHelp is the sleek new medical alert device with the best of combinations: a quality, high-tech engineered device that’s also an extremely great value because there are no monthly bills ever.

Better still, it comes with no contracts, no deposits, and no monthly bills ever – which makes FastHelp a great choice for seniors, students, and professionals because it connects to one of the largest nationwide networks everywhere cell service is available for free.

And here’s the best part. All those who already have an old-style monitored medical alert button can immediately eliminate those monthly bills, which is why Universal Physicians is widely advertising this announcement nationwide.

The medical alert device slugfest was dominated by two main combatants who both offer old-style monitored help buttons that come with a hefty bill every month. But now Universal Physicians, the US-based heavyweight, just delivered a knockout blow sending the top-rated contenders to the mat with the unveiling FastHelp. It’s the sleek new cellular embedded medical alert device that cuts out the middleman by instantly connecting you directly to highly trained 911 operators all across the US. There’s absolutely nothing to hook-up or install. You do not need a landline and you do not need a cell phone. Everything is done for you.

“FastHelp is a state-of-the-art medical alert device designed to make you look important, not old. Old style monitored help buttons you wear around your neck, or require expensive base station equipment or a landline are the equivalent of a horse and buggy,” Lawrence says. “It’s just outdated.”

Millions of seniors fall every year and spend hours lying on the floor helpless and all alone with no help.

But seniors who fall and get immediate help are much more likely to avoid getting sent to a nursing home and get to STAY living in their own home independently.

Yet millions of seniors are still risking their safety by not having a medical alert device.

That’s because seniors just cannot afford to pay the monthly bills that come with old-style medical alert devices.

That is why seniors born before 1956 are rushing to cash in the whopping $150 instant rebate before the 30-day deadline ends.

Moreover, FastHelp is a simple two-button device that calls 911 whenever you need it. Just press the large red help button and speak to an emergency dispatcher directly through the device. Although it’s marketed as a low-budget medical alert device, FastHelp can be used in other scenarios too. Keep it in the car, wear it on walks, or place it on your bedside table for quick 911 access at any time. When it comes to pricing for FastHelp, we’re happy to report that there is not much to report. To get your hands on a FastHelp emergency button, you will only have to buy the device for $299.00. This makes it a good option for newcomers to medical alerts. You won’t have to commit to a contract or steep monthly costs.

FastHelp swaps professional monitoring for direct-to-911 calling. But without professional monitoring professionals standing by to help, your family might not get word of your emergency. The 911 dispatchers also won’t know your home address, lockbox code, or any personal health information, all of which makes it easier for emergency responders to act quickly when the time comes. The FastHelp medical alert device comes with a one-year warranty and a 30-day money-back guarantee. If the device is damaged or something goes wrong within the first year, you can return it for a replacement. But if you want a refund, you’ll need to return it within the first 30 days.

FastHelp has just two buttons. The large red button calls 911, while the other tests the battery. The device itself is about the size of a pager and comes with a lanyard and belt clip you can use to carry it with you.

It’s waterproof, so you can wear it while showering, swimming, or playing with the grandkids (especially while holding the teething baby). There’s no need to stay within range of a base station like at-home medical alert systems that keep you, on a digital tether. And while the device is small, it houses a two-way speaker that lets you talk to 911 dispatchers directly through the device. Inside the device, there’s a GPS triangulation unit designed to share your approximate location with emergency responders. But it doesn’t share your location with your family as other GPS medical alerts can. That is good news for privacy but bad if you are looking for a device that keeps track of your loved one.

All in all, FastHelp Medical Alert is simple and straightforward. If you aren’t ready to make the jump to a full-blown medical alert system, it’s a good alternative. You’ll miss out on features like professional monitoring, an app for your family, and fall detection. But if you just want a simple way to call for help in an emergency, FastHelp is a great place to start. So, there’s no need to wait for FastHelp to hit store shelves later this year because seniors born before 1956 can get it now just by using the $150 instant rebate coupon printed in today’s newspaper before the 30-day dead line ends. If lines are busy, keep trying, all calls will be answered.

Japan to accept int’l cruises after 2-yr ban due to pandemic

JAPAN will allow international cruise ships to dock at its ports, transport minister Tetsuo Saito said Tuesday, lifting a more than two-year ban imposed at the start of the COVID-19 pandemic to stem the virus’ spread in the country.

The ministry has determined enough preparation have been made to accept ships carrying large groups of people, with guidelines crafted by industry associations to prevent the spread of infections among passengers.

According to the Japan International Cruise Committee, 166 visits by foreign cruise ships are already planned from next March.

The halt on international cruise ships had been in place since March 2020, after a coronavirus cluster infection on the Diamond Princess caused thousands to be quarantined in Yokohama near Tokyo the month before and left 13 of over 700 infected passengers and crew dead.

Cruise companies will hold discussions with the local authorities of the port of call and seek agreements on docking.

All crew members of a ship must be vaccinated three times against the virus, and more than 95 percent of passengers must be vaccinated at least twice under the guidelines.

Passengers who are suspected to be infected need to be tested, and those with positive results and their close contacts quarantined.

The guidelines were vetted by infectious disease and crisis management specialists and reviewed by the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure, Transport and Tourism and related government agencies.

The government hopes that opening the border to international cruise lines will help revive tourism.

In 2019, prior to the pandemic, around 2.15 million cruise passengers visited Japan, according to the ministry, with 1,932 stops made by ships of foreign cruise companies, and 934 by those belonging to domestic companies.

International cruise ship operations resumed in the United States and Europe from around June 2021.

NASA returning to Moon with mega rocket launch

The Artemis 1 mission, a test flight without astronauts on board, represents the first step in the agency's plan to build a lasting presence on the Moon, taking lessons from there to prepare for a future voyage to Mars. PHOTO: NASA

AFTER two failed attempts, NASA plans to launch its new mega Moon rocket early Wednesday from Florida, less than a week after the massive machine withstood a hurricane.

"Our time is coming. And we hope that that is on Wednesday," said Mike Sarafin, the manager of the much-delayed Artemis 1 mission, at NASA headquarters.

The Artemis 1 mission, a test flight without astronauts, represents the first step in the US space agency's plan to build a lasting presence on the Moon, and taking lessons from there to prepare for a future voyage to Mars.

Named after the sister of Apollo in Greek mythology, the new space program comes 50 years after humans last set foot on lunar soil.

The first launch of the Space Launch System rocket, the most powerful ever designed by NASA, is set for Wednesday at 1:04 am local time (0604 GMT), with a possible launch window of two hours. Countdown has already begun at the storied Kennedy Space Centre, where the orange and white behemoth awaits its maiden flight.

Born this way: rats move to beat of Lady Gaga, study says

NODDING along to catchy music is not just a human habit, according to Japanese scientists who have discovered that rats also move to the beat of songs by stars like Lady Gaga.

Researchers at the University of Tokyo played Mozart, Queen and Lady Gaga's "Born This Way" to rats wearing miniature sensors to detect even the tiniest movements.

They found the rodents had an innate ability to synchronize their moves to the beat, previously believed to be a skill unique to people.

"Rats' brains are designed to respond well to music," even though their bodies move only a little, said associate professor Hirokazu Takahashi, part of the team who conducted the study.

"We all believe that music has magical powers, but we don't know anything about its mechanisms," he told AFP on Tuesday.

So "we wanted to find out what kind of sound connections appeal to the brain, without the influence of emotion or memory."

For rats, the "bopping" effect was most pronounced for music in the range of 120-140 beats per minute — the same as humans.

This led the scientists to hypothesise that it could be a reaction that is consistent across different species.

"Music moves the body. It goes beyond the auditory system and affects the motor system... the power of sound is that great," Takahashi said.—AFP

Climate disaster aid scheme 'Global Shield' launched at COP27

A scheme to give speedy financial support to communities battered by climate disasters was launched Monday by a group of rich and developing nations at the UN COP27 summit in Egypt.

The "Global Shield against Climate Risks" comes as many of the most vulnerable nations are also demanding wider compensation for the "loss and damage" they have already suffered from a heating planet.

The initiative, backed by the G7 and launched with initial funding of more than $200 million, aims to provide "pre-arranged financial support designed to be quickly deployed in times of climate disasters".

The Global Shield project "is long overdue", said Ken Ofori-Atta, Ghana's finance minister and chair of the V20 group of nations most vulnerable to the effects of climate change.

"It has never been a question of who pays for loss and damage, because we are paying for it," he said in recorded remarks at the summit in the Egyptian resort of Sharm El-Sheikh.

"Our economies pay for it in lost growth prospects, our enterprises pay for it in business disruption, and our communities pay for it in lives and livelihoods lost."—AFP

Rich nations target $20 bln to wean Indonesia off coal

RICH nations pledged Tuesday to raise at least $20 billion to help wean Indonesia off coal and reach carbon neutrality by 2050, a decade earlier than planned, the White House said.

The United States, Japan, Canada and six European countries signed the accord with Jakarta on the sidelines of the G20 summit in Bali to ensure a "just power sector transition" away from Indonesia's coal-dependent economy, they said in a statement released by the White House.

Under the deal, Indonesia, home to the world's third-largest rainforest, pledges to be carbon-neutral by 2050, 10 years earlier than previously planned, and to almost double its renewable energy generation by 2030.

Indonesian President Joko Widodo hailed the deal as a model that could be replicated in other countries to meet the world's climate goals.

"Indonesia is committed to using our energy transition to achieve a green economy and drive sustainable development," he said in a statement.

"We are grateful for the co-operation and the support from our international partners to realise its full implementation that will accelerate this transition."

Sponsors of the deal said Jakarta had committed to an ambitious shift to clean energy in return for $10 billion in public sector finance and $10 billion in private funding over three to five years.—AFP

Humanity hits eight billion mark

A baby born somewhere on Tuesday will be the world's eight billionth person, according to a projection by the United Nations. "The milestone is an occasion to celebrate diversity and advancements while considering humanity's shared responsibility for the planet," UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres said in a statement. The UN attributes the growth to human development, with people living longer thanks to improvements in public health, nutrition, personal hygiene and medicine. It is also the result of higher fertility rates, particularly in the world's poorest countries — most of which are in sub-Saharan Africa — putting their development goals at risk. How many is too many? Population growth has also magnified the environmental impacts of economic development. But while some worry that eight billion humans is too many for planet Earth, most experts say the bigger problem is the overconsumption of resources by the wealthiest people. "Some express concerns that our world is overpopulated," said United Nations Population Fund chief Natalia Kanem. "I am here to say clearly that the sheer number of human lives is not a cause for fear." Joel Cohen of Rockefeller University's Laboratory of Populations told AFP the question of how many people Earth can support has two sides: natural limits and human choices.—AFP

Psychological First Aid training could help improve care workers' well-being

A new study has shown that Psychological First Aid, training originally created for people to support others, can help healthcare workers in care homes improve their own mental well-being. First developed by the World Health Organization, Psychological First Aid (PFA) is the globally recommended training for people, such as healthcare workers, who support others during emergencies. It offers guidance on delivering psychosocial care in the immediate aftermath of an emergency event. Although PFA training was originally created for people to support others, scientists from Northumbria University and the University of Highlands and Islands (UHI) have now also identified it as a suitable way of helping care workers look after their own mental health and well-being. The national response to the COVID-19 pandemic As part of the national response to the COVID-19 pandemic, in June 2020 the UK government introduced free online PFA training to support frontline staff, such as the 1.8 million people working in care homes across the country. COVID testing programmes have potential to increase risky behaviour: Study FREQUENT, mandatory surveillance testing was one of the techniques used in some jurisdictions to try to control COVID-19, but new research suggests that such testing may have the unintended consequence of empowering riskier behaviour in those who participate. Based on a false sense of security, students who participated in frequent COVID-19 testing at two universities engaged in more behaviour known to increase the risk of spreading the virus than they might have otherwise, according to results of surveys led by University of Wyoming economists. Behavioural responses "Recent research provides some evidence that people increase risky behaviour in response to facemask wearing and vaccines, but this is the first study to examine the behavioural responses to mandatory testing," wrote researchers Chian Jones Ritten, Linda Thunstrom and Todd Cherry, of UW, and J.D. Wulforst, of the University of Idaho. "Overall, (our) results suggest that students perceived that the mandatory testing policy decreased their risk of contracting COVID-19, and that this perception led to higher participation in COVID-risky events." The research findings were published Friday in PNAS Nexus, the open access sister journal of the prestigious Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. During the fall 2020 semester, UW required all on-campus undergraduate students to be tested for COVID twice weekly, while the University of Idaho tested a small random sample of students weekly. Both universities required masks for all indoor events on campus.—ANI

Twitter prank spurs unexpected scrutiny of insulin prices

A Twitter imposter cost a US pharmaceutical giant billions of dollars, but the viral prank triggered another unexpected crisis — a new wave of scrutiny of the high cost of its insulin. Authentic-looking fake accounts proliferated last week after Twitter rolled out a paid verification service, the latest in a string of chaotic developments since Elon Musk's blockbuster $44 billion buyout of the influential platform. Among the victims was drugmaker Eli Lilly, whose stock price nosedived — erasing billions in market capitalization — after a parody account stamped with a verification tag purchased for $8 tweeted that insulin was being made available for free. The company was forced to issue an apology for the "misleading message from a fake Lilly account," but the disinformation stirred fresh attention to a long-festering debate about high insulin prices. "What you should actually apologize for is price gouging life-saving insulin," tweeted Chicago-based human rights lawyer Qasim Rashid. —AFP

Japan’s economy shrinks in third quarter on import costs

JAPAN’S economy shrank in the three months to September, official data showed Tuesday, due to high import costs and weak private consumption despite the end of Covid-19 restrictions.

It follows three consecutive quarters of growth, after an initial negative reading in the first quarter was revised upwards.

Corporate investment was up in the period but private residential investment declined, while an increase in import costs overwhelmed an increase in exports, the cabinet office said.

The world’s third-largest economy contracted 0.3 per cent quarter-on-quarter, missing market expectations of 0.3 per cent growth, the data showed.

Analysts had predicted a pick-up in consumption, but acknowledged ahead of the data release that Japan faced headwinds from its trade situation, with sky-high prices for commodities such as oil pushing up import costs.

A slower global economy, which is “is likely to be dragged down by tightening in monetary policy, zero-Covid policy in China and geopolitical uncertainties,” is also a negative factor for Japan, UBS economists Masamichi Adachi and Go Kurihara said.

“On top of these factors, the secular drag from a shrinking and aging population and low medium-to-long-term growth expectations cannot be ignored,” they added.

Last month, Japanese Prime Minister Fumio Kishida announced a $260 billion stimulus package to cushion the economy from the impact of inflation and the weak yen.—AFP

Fed vice chair says ‘appropriate soon’ to slow rate hikes

IT likely will be “appropriate soon” for the US central bank to slow the pace of interest rate increases, Federal Reserve Vice-Chair Lael Brainard said Monday.

Her comments came as red-hot consumer prices, which have squeezed American households, showed signs of easing, and after the Fed delivered a fourth straight super-sized rate hike to cool the economy.

But with inflation still hovering close to the highest level in recent decades, the Fed still has “additional work to do both on raising rates” and tamping down prices, she said in an event with Bloomberg.

The closely-watched consumer price index released last week showed US inflation logged its lowest annual increase since January, fueling hopes that soaring costs will start to pull back.—AFP

UK budget predicted to be a nightmare before Christmas

BRITAIN will on Thursday hike taxes and slash public spending in a government budget signalling a return to austerity despite millions suffering a cost-of-living crisis in an economy facing recession.

Conservative Prime Minister Rishi Sunak, who took office just three weeks ago, has vowed to fix the economic havoc created by his short-lived predecessor Liz Truss.

But he is mindful of sky-rocketing energy bills, decades-high inflation and rising interest rates that are squeezing households.

Finance minister Jeremy Hunt will present his crucial budget in parliament, alongside official economic and inflation forecasts — with recent data signalling a grim outlook.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Hunt is expected to unveil fiscal consolidation totalling between £50 billion and £60 billion (between $58.7 billion and $70.5 billion), media reports suggest.

“We’re all going to be paying a bit more tax, I’m afraid,” Hunt told UK media over the weekend, likening himself to the penny-pinching miser Ebenezer Scrooge in Charles Dickens’ festive favourite “A Christmas Carol”.

“We will be asking everyone for sacrifices,” he said, stressing however that the pain would fall disproportionately on the better off. —AFP

THE estranged wife of the billionaire owner of New York's Chrysler Building is entitled to more than 37 million pounds ($43 million) under the terms of prenuptial agreements, a judge in London said Monday. Michael Fuchs, 62, and Alvina Collardeau-Fuchs 47, who are in the process of divorcing, lived the "billionaire lifestyle" during their marriage with a string of luxury properties around the world.

Money was "never a concern" and the couple enjoyed "fully staffed homes" in fashionable locations such as the Hamptons, New York City, Paris, Miami, Cap d'Antibes, Capri and London, according to rulings and evidence given to London's High Court.

Three out of four bitcoin investors have lost money: study

ROUGHLY three-quarters of people who have bought bitcoin have lost money according to a study published Monday as the cryptocurrency sector reels from the collapse of a major exchange that has sapped confidence.

Economists at the Bank of International Settlements, an institution widely considered as the central banks of central banks, analyzed data on investors in cryptocurrencies in 95 countries between 2015 and 2022.

"Overall, back of the envelope calculations suggest that around three-quarters of users have lost money on their bitcoin investments," they said in their study.

During the period studied, the price of bitcoin rose from $250 in August 2015 to peak at nearly $69,000 in November 2021. It is now trading at around $16,500.—AFP

Xi seeks fair business environment for Chinese firms in France

CHINESE President Xi Jinping called on his French counterpart Emmanuel Macron on Tuesday to provide a "fairer, just and nondiscriminatory business environment" for Chinese companies in France, the Chinese Foreign Ministry said, amid US-led moves to bar Chinese firms on security grounds.

In a meeting held on the sidelines of the summit of the Group of 20 major economies on the Indonesian resort island of Bali, Xi said China and France should "adhere to the spirit of independence, openness and cooperation" and asked Paris to push the European Union to continue to pursue an independent policy toward China.

Xi said China and France should expand two-way trade and investment and maintain the stability and smooth functioning of global industrial and supply chains as well as tap the potential for cooperation in such areas as green energy and technological innovation, according to state-run China Central Television.—Kyodo

G-20 summit kicks off, 1st since

LEADERS of the Group of 20 economies kicked off their two-day summit in Indonesia on Tuesday, their first gathering since Russia invaded Ukraine in February, with a rift deepening among member states over the war and global energy and food security.

Russian President Vladimir Putin skipped the meeting on the resort island of Bali, while the US and Chinese leaders sat down at the same face-to-face international gathering for the first time since President Joe Biden took office in January 2021.

Russia says key village captured in eastern Ukraine

THE Russian army said Monday it had captured a strategic village in eastern Ukraine that could serve as a “springboard” for further offensive actions in the country.

Moscow’s forces said they had taken control of Pavlivka, a village of around 2,000 people some 60 kilometres (40 miles) southeast of Donetsk, after days of heavy battles.

“The capture of Pavlivka opens up a springboard for the further offensive of Russian troops in the Donbas,” the defence ministry said on messaging app Telegram.

The ministry said the capture of the village would help it take over Vugledar, a town to the north of Pavlivka.

The battle for Pavlivka has stirred some controversy.

France, UK sign new deal on thwarting migrant Channel crossings

FRANCE and the UK on Monday signed a new agreement to work together to stop migrants crossing the Channel to England in small boats, a source of huge bilateral tension.

Under the agreement, Britain will pay France 72.2 million euros ($74.5 million) in 2022-2023 so that Paris can increase by 40 per cent the numbers of security forces patrolling its northern beaches, the French interior ministry said.

This means some 350 additional members of the French security forces will be patrolling following the deal, signed in Paris by French Interior Minister Gerald Darmanin and British counterpart Suella Braverman.

London and Paris also pledged to use technological and human resources on the French coast to better detect, monitor and intercept boats.

They want to collect and use information, in particular from intercepted migrants, to better dismantle smuggling networks and deter crossings.—AFP

Swiss president warns deglobalization trend selfish and potentially dangerous

DEGLOBALIZATION is a selfish and potentially dangerous trend and the world must avoid taking the risk of pitting countries against each other, President of the Swiss Confederation Ignazio Cassis warned on Monday.

Talking to members of the Foreign Press Association in Switzerland and Liechtenstein (known by its French acronym APES) in Bern, Cassis stressed that even if interdependence might become a challenge when one of the links in the chain breaks, withdrawal should not be a solution.

“What differentiates us should not divide us. We must assume our responsibilities and act in a common and united manner to restore security and balance in

Trump poised to launch 2024 comeback bid

FORMER US president Donald Trump is expected to officially launch another White House bid on Tuesday, refusing calls from within his own Republican Party to fade away after his loyalists underperformed in this year’s midterm elections.

The 76-year-old billionaire, whose 2016 win shocked America and the world, has summoned the press to his Florida mansion for a “very big announcement” at 9:00 pm Tuesday (0200 GMT Wednesday).

“President Trump is going to announce on Tuesday that he’s running for president,” said one of his advisors, Jason Miller.

He said the speech would be “very professional, very buttoned up” although he expected a large group of supporters to be there, waving placards.—AFP

Mexico president slams mass protest against electoral reform

MEXICAN President Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador on Monday criticized a mass protest against his proposed electoral reforms as an attempt by his opponents to return to corrupt old ways.

“Those who demonstrated... did so in favour of corruption, racism, classism and discrimination -- that’s the bottom line,” Lopez Obrador told reporters a day after tens of thousands marched in Mexico City.

The president, who regularly accuses his predecessors of corruption, insisted that his plan sought to “strengthen democracy.” Protesters demanded a halt to the proposed reform that they say will undermine the National Electoral Institute, the independent body which organizes the country’s elections.

Some carried banners that read, “I am not corrupt, class-conscious, racist or hypocritical,” referring to adjectives the president used earlier to describe those who planned to take part.

Lopez Obrador alleges that the INE endorsed fraud when he ran unsuccessfully for the presidency in 2006 and 2012, before winning in 2018.

Under his proposal, the INE would be replaced by a new body with members chosen by voters instead of lawmakers and with a smaller budget.

Political parties would also have less money for campaigning.

The proposed reform, which involves amending the constitution, requires support from at least two-thirds of lawmakers in Congress, and Lopez Obrador’s political opponents have vowed to oppose the changes.—AFP

Anti-mafia reporter on trial for ‘defaming’ Italy’s far-right PM

Meloni’s far-right government has promised to crack down on migrants crossing the Mediterranean to Italy. PHOTO: AFP

A trial pitting Italy’s far-right Prime Minister Giorgia Meloni against investigative journalist Roberto Saviano opens on Tuesday, with the anti-mafia author accused of defamation for an outburst over her stance on migrants.

Meloni’s Brothers of Italy party was in opposition at the time, but took office last month after triumphing at the polls on a nationalist campaign that promised to stop migrants crossing the Mediterranean from North Africa.

Saviano, best known for his international mafia bestseller “Gomorrah”, risks up to three years in prison.

The case dates back to December 2020 when he was asked on a political TV chat show for a comment on the death of a six-month-old baby from Guinea in a shipwreck. The baby, Joseph, had been one of 111 migrants rescued by the Open Arms charity ship, but he died before he could receive medical attention. In footage shot by rescuers and shown to Saviano on the chat show, the baby’s mother — who has just been pulled from the sea without Joseph — can be heard weeping “Where’s my baby? Help, I lose my baby!”

A visibly emotional Saviano blasted Meloni and Matteo Salvini, the leader of the anti-immigrant League party, which is now part of her coalition government — both of whom have long used anti-migrant rhetoric.—AFP

China, Australia to hold first summit in years

AUSTRALIAN Prime Minister Anthony Albanese said he will hold talks with his Chinese counterpart Xi Jinping in Bali, Indonesia on Tuesday, the first leaders meeting between the two countries after years of soured relations.

“We enter this discussion with goodwill. There are no pre-conditions on this discussion. I am looking forward to having constructive dialogue,” Albanese told media as he touched down on the resort island for the G20 summit. Australian and Chinese leaders had a brief exchange at the 2019 G20 summit in Japan, but have not had a formal sitdown in five years.

China remains Australia’s largest trading partner, but relations atrophied and all but collapsed after Canberra called for an investigation into the origins of the Covid-19 pandemic. —AFP

US offers $10 mln rewards for Somalia’s Al-Shabaab

THE United States said Monday it was increasing its reward for information about key leaders of Somalia’s Al-Shabaab to $10 million apiece, a move that follows a spate of deadly attacks by the jihadist group.

The US State Department also said it was for the first time offering a reward of up to $10 million for information “leading to the disruption of the financial mechanisms” of the Al-Qaeda affiliate.

Al-Shabaab fighters have stepped up attacks in the Somali capital Mogadishu and other parts of the country in the face of a widescale offensive against the group by the new government of President Hassan Sheikh Mohamud.

The US said it was offering up to $10 million each for information leading to the identification of Al-Shabaab “emir” Ahmed Diriye, second-in-command Mahad Karate and Jehad Mostafa, a US citizen who it said had various roles in the group. “These key leaders of Al-Shabaab are responsible for numerous terrorist attacks in Somalia, Kenya and neighbouring countries that have killed thousands of people,” said a poster issued by the US with pictures of the three men.

UN human rights chief Volker Turk said earlier Monday that more than 600 civilians had been killed this year in attacks largely attributed to the group.—AFP
