Mang Wein, Nantaw, Sinphyu borders to resume on 8 Jan 2023

TRADE activities on some Si-no-Myanmar borders including Nantaw, Sinphyu and Mang Wein, which performed the majority of trade, are slated to restart on 8 January, said U Min Thein, vice-chair of Muse Rice Wholesale Centre.

China has shut down all crossings linking to the Muse border amidst the COVID-19 pandemic, imposing travel bans at Nantaw and Sinphyu borders from 1 April 2020 and Mang Wein from 30 March 2021.

Only Kyinsankyawt resumed trading activities on 26 November 2022 after the closure on 8 July 2021.

“Mang Wein border saw a bustling trade with 400 and 500 trucks. The other two crossings – Nantaw and Sinphyu – have been closed down for three years. Now, those will be reopened on 8 January. They will be accessible by road vehicles (trucks, vans, motorcycles) again,” U Min Thein said.

Additionally, the driver-substitution system will be abolished along with the reopening of the border crossings.

There is no responsibility and accountability if goods are damaged under the driver-substitution system. Therefore, Myanmar exporters choose short-haul driver service at the Kyinsankyawt border and bear high freight costs.

If this system is cancelled, we can directly go on the China side, tackle delay problems, facilitate trade in the Muse border, save high short-haul driver costs and help cut unemployment, U Min Thein added.

Myanmar daily delivers rice, broken rice, pulses, rubber, watermelon, fishery products, chilli pepper and other food commodities to China through Kyinsankyawt with about 100 trucks and building materials, electrical appliances, pharmaceuticals, fertilizer, household goods and industrial raw materials are imported into the country with 40 trucks.

Myanmar has opened five border trade posts with China – Muse, Lweje, Kampaiti, Chinshwehaw and Kengtung. The majority of the trade is carried out through Muse, Ministry of Commerce’s data indicated. — NN/EMM

Pure gold price rallies to K2.733 mln per tical in domestic market

THE prices of pure gold hovered in the bear market with over K2.733 million per tical (0.578 ounces, or 0.016 kilogram) in the domestic market.

The price has risen tracking the increase in global gold spot price, which stands at US$1,845 per ounce. Therefore, Yangon Region Gold Entrepreneurs Association (YGEA) raised the reference price to K2,173,500 per tical.

There is a price difference of over K550,000 per tical between the YGEA’s reference price and the market price.

YGEA calculated the price depending on the Central Bank of Myanmar’s reference exchange rate of K2,100, with some addition, said U Myo Myint, chair of YGEA.

The US dollar is exchanged at K2,850 in the unofficial forex market.

Meanwhile, YGEA called for the gold shops in Yangon Region to sell pure gold at K2,530,000 per tical, according to its notification released on 30 October 2022.

The soaring dollar exchanging at over K4,500 pushed up the pure gold price to a record-high of K3.7 million per tical in late August.

For the gold price to decline, the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation has been selling gold ingots in Yangon, Mandalay and Nay Pyi Taw under the auction system.

With an aim at reducing gold prices, the YGEA and Mandalay Region Gold Entrepreneurs Association sold gold bullion supplied by the executive members and the members as well.

Safeguard the independence and sovereignty of the nation

INDEPENDENCE can lose in a short time for various reasons but it needs to take several years for regaining independence. Hence, the entire national people should join hands in unison to continue safeguarding the independence and sovereignty of the nation for its perpetual existence.

Although the entire people struggled for independence with the sacrifice of life and blood, the independence gave patriotic spirit, national spirit and unity as a noble gift to all. It is a distant example route to a democratic goal while striving for ensuring the prevalence of law and order under the existing laws able to initiate a firm and stable democratic system of in accord with the concept “No one is above the law”.

That is why all citizens need to focus on the interests of the State and national people under the theme “Keep Moving Forward to Achieve Our Goal” in order to build a better socioeconomic country with a firm pledge to restore national reconciliation and the peace of the Union.

Currently, many global countries are exercising various types of democratic systems and federalism. In building a democratic nation, it is necessary to choose the best way in conformity with Myanmar in order to implement the democratic system and federalism the entire ethnic national people aspire to. In this regard, the people exercising the democratic system need to follow the wish of the majority but emphasize the wish of the minority, without identifying the persons as enemies if they are not in conformity with the concept of the majority.

That is why all citizens need to focus on the interests of the State and national people under the theme “Keep Moving Forward to Achieve Our Goal” in order to build a better socioeconomic country with a firm pledge to restore national reconciliation and the peace of the Union.

ACCORDING to a new USC study, stress in the form of traumatic events, job strain, everyday stressors, and discrimination accelerates immune system ageing, potentially increasing a person's risk of cancer, cardiovascular disease, and illness from infections like COVID-19.

The research, published 13 June in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences (PNAS), could help explain disparities in age-related health, including the unequal toll of the pandemic, and identify possible points for intervention.

Age-related health

“As the world’s population of older adults increases, understanding disparities in age-related health is essential. Age-related changes in the immune system play a critical role in declining health,” said lead study author Eric Klopach, a postdoctoral scholar in the USC Leonard Davis School of Gerontology. “This study helps clarify mechanisms involved in accelerated immune aging.”

As people age, the immune system naturally begins a dramatic downgrade, a condition called immunosenescence. With advanced age, a person's immune profile weakens, and includes too many worn-out white blood cells circulating and too few fresh, “naïve” white blood cells ready to take on new invaders.

Immune ageing is associated not only with cancer, but with cardiovascular disease, increased risk of pneumonia, reduced efficacy of vaccines and organ system ageing.

But what accounts for drastic health differences in same-age adults? USC researchers decided to see if they could tease out a connection between lifetime exposure to stress -- a known contributor to poor health -- and declining vigour in the immune system.

Cross-referenced enormous data

They queried and cross-referenced enormous data sets from University of Michigan's Health and Retirement Study, a national longitudinal study of the economic, health, marital, family status, and public and private support systems of older Americans.

To calculate exposure to various forms of social stress, the researchers analyzed responses from a national sample of 5,744 adults over the age of 50. They answered a questionnaire designed to assess respondents' experiences with social stress, including stressful life events, chronic stress, everyday discrimination and lifetime discrimination.

Blood samples from the participants were then analyzed through flow cytometry, a lab technique that counts and classifies blood cells as they pass one-by-one in a narrow stream in front of a laser.

As expected, people with higher stress scores had older-seeming immune profiles, with lower percentages of fresh disease fighters and higher percentages of worn-out white blood cells. The association between stressful life events and fewer ready to respond, or naïve, T cells remained strong even after controlling for education, smoking, drinking, BMI and race or ethnicity.

Stress speeds up immune ageing: Study

Some sources of stress may be impossible to control, but the researchers say there may be a workaround.

Lifestyle factors

T-cells — a critical component of immunity — mature in a gland called the thymus, which sits just in front of and above the heart. As people age, the tissue in their thymus shrinks and is replaced by fatty tissue, resulting in reduced production of immune cells. Past research suggests that this process is accelerated by lifestyle factors like poor diet and low exercise, which are both associated with social stress. “In this study, after statistically controlling for poor diet and low exercise, the connection between stress and accelerated immune aging wasn't as strong,” said Klopach. “What this means is people who experience more stress tend to have poorer diet and exercise habits, partly explaining why they have more accelerated immune ageing.”

Improving diet and exercise behaviours in older adults may help offset the immune ageing associated with stress.

Additionally, cytomegalovirus (CMV) may be a target for intervention. CMV is a common, usually asymptomatic virus in humans and is known to have a strong effect accelerating immune ageing. Like shingles or cold sores, CMV is dormant most of the time but can flare up, especially when a person is experiencing high stress.

In this study, statistically controlling for CMV positivity also reduced the connection between stress and accelerated immune ageing. Therefore, widespread CMV vaccination could be a relatively simple and potentially powerful intervention that could reduce the immune ageing effects of stress, the researchers said.

Study reveals unionized healthcare workers earned higher pay, benefits

Study researchers found that labour unionization rates were low, at an overall prevalence of 13.2 per cent, with no significant change from 2009 through 2021. PHOTO: FOR REPRESENTATIONAL PURPOSE ONLY/FREEPIK

UNIONIZED healthcare workers earned more money and received better non-cash benefits while working fewer hours than non-unionized workers, according to a new study.

The study, “Trends in Labour Unionization Among US Health Care Workers, 2009-2021”, was published in the journal JAMA.

“This study is the first to systematically investigate the landscape of labour unionization among the US healthcare workforce and its associated economic effects,” said senior author Xiaojuan Li, PhD, Instructor in the Department of Population Medicine at Harvard Medical School and Harvard Pilgrim Health Care Institute.

Worker conditions in some industries

Labour unionization efforts have resurged in the US, and union membership has been shown to improve worker conditions in some industries. However, little is known about labour unionization and its economic effects among healthcare workers. It remains unclear how labour unionization in healthcare has changed over the years and what benefits, if any, healthcare workers gain from unionizing.

To bridge this gap, the study team examined the prevalence of labour unionization among healthcare workers and its associations with employee pay, non-cash benefits, and work hours across the healthcare workforce in the United States. The team studied healthcare workers who participated in the US Census Bureau Current Population Survey and Annual Social and Economic Supplement between 2009 and 2021. This nationally representative, population-based household survey allowed for a sample of over 14,000 self-identified healthcare workers, including physicians and dentists, advanced practitioners, nurses, therapists, and technicians and support staff.

Study researchers found that labour unionization rates were low, at an overall prevalence of 13.2 per cent, with no significant change from 2009 through 2021. Labour unionization was associated with better pay and better benefits for healthcare workers.

More weekly work hours

Unionized workers reported earning $123 more per week than nonunionized workers, receiving better health insurance from their employer (both in terms of employer's contribution and the kind of insurance plan), and higher chance of having a pension or other retirement benefits at work. However, compared with nonunionized, unionized workers reported slightly more weekly work hours.

“The associated benefits of unionization are striking but not surprising,” said Ahmed Ahmed, fourth-year medical student at Harvard Medical School and first author of the study. “Unions collectively bargain for their members, which appears to improve both employee compensation and pay gaps between workers.”

“Future causal analysis of the relationships, however, is needed,” said Dr Li. “And given the toll of the COVID-19 pandemic on the healthcare workforce, investigating whether unionizing could help mitigate burnout, will be important.”

Prices of Pawsan rice, paddy dip

ON 2 January 2023, the prices of high-grade Shwebo Pawsan paddy and rice declined slightly after an upward trajectory in prices, as per the Shwebo Paddy Producers Association.

On 2 January, the paddy prices of old Pawsan from the Shwebo area were K2.5-2.6 million per 100-baskets. The figures indicated a decrease of K30,000 per 100-baskets compared to that of mid-December.

The price of the new Shwebo Pawsan paddy is lower than the old one. In mid-December 2022, new paddy prices stood at K1.55-K1.7 million per 100 baskets. On 2 January 2023, the prices dipped to K1.48-K1.6 million per 100-baskets.

Similarly, the prices of high-grade Pawsan rice slipped. The prices of old Pawsan rice fell to K86,000-K92,000 on 2 January 2023 from K85,000-K94,000 per bag in mid-December, whereas the prices of new ones dropped to K60,000-K66,000 per bag.

Although the prevailing market price in early 2023 is lower than that of December 2022, it is K10,000-K20,000 per bag compared to the prices of early 2022.

This year, there is transparency in wholesale market prices and plantation acres of Pawsan paddy in the Shwebo district.

There are 333,942 sowing acres of Pawsan paddy in the Shwebo District in the 2022-2023 FY. The output of paddy is estimated at 20 million baskets if one acre can produce 70 baskets. Approximately 4 million bags are likely to be produced.

Moreover, Pawsan rice is supplied by other regions as well. As they are not included in export items, there is less chance to hit fresh peaks this year like that in mid-2022.

50,000 chickens to be culled at bird flu-hit farm in Denmark

FOLLOWING a fresh outbreak of the deadly bird flu virus at a farm in west Denmark, 50,000 chickens will have to be culled, the country's Ministry of Food, Agriculture and Fisheries said in a press release on Monday.

"The flock is infected with the deadly and highly contagious H5N1 bird flu virus. As a result, we will cull the entire herd of 50,000 chickens in the coming days, both to alleviate the birds' suffering and to prevent the spread of infection," Lotte Brink, head of section at the Danish Veterinary and Food Administration (DVFA), said.

The presence of the virus was first observed on New Year's Eve, when several dead chickens were found at a farm near the town of Orum in Hedensted Municipality, about 177 kilometres west of Denmark's capital Copenhagen.

All the infected chickens are expected to be killed and removed by the DVFA and the Danish Emergency Management Agency (DEMA), followed by a thorough cleaning and disinfection of the entire farm.

On Monday, the DVFA also started to put in place a 10-kilometre restricted zone around the farm, making it illegal to remove eggs or poultry without a permit.

According to the DVFA, the restrictions, which will affect more than 450,000 birds in the wider area, will be lifted at the earliest 30 days after the last infected birds are culled and the property is disinfected. This is the fourth and largest bird flu outbreak to occur in Denmark since October, according to the ministry. —Xinhua

Greek health staff without Covid jabs go back to work

GREEK healthcare workers who refused to be vaccinated against Covid-19 returned to their posts on Monday after 16 months of suspension, an association of public hospital employees said.

Around 2,000 employees of public hospitals and ambulance services went back to work after the Council of State, the country's highest administrative court, ordered the government to lift the ban. Their return is "a big relief to the system, but the challenge of a lack of staff remains", said a statement by the Panhellenic Federation of Public Hospital Workers (POEDIN).

Another 5,000 unvaccinated healthcare workers had earlier been allowed to return to work if they had a medical certificate showing they had already contracted the virus.

Like several other European countries, Greece brought in rules during the worst of the pandemic requiring staff at hospitals, surgeries and care homes to be fully vaccinated.

This was strongly opposed by the main union of hospital workers and sparked protests in the country which has a strong anti-vaccination movement.

Greece has recorded over 5.3 million Covid infections and more than 34,000 deaths, according to the health ministry.

Most Covid-19 restrictions have been lifted, except in health-care establishments and on public transport. —AFP

Bird flu cases rise to record high in Japan

BIRD flu cases in Japan hit a record high after new infections were confirmed in Chiba and Fukuoka prefectures, the farm ministry said Tuesday.

As of Tuesday, a total of 54 cases of avian flu were confirmed across 23 prefectures in Japan this season, according to the Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries.

The previous record was registered two seasons ago, between November 2020 and March 2021, when 52 cases were confirmed in 18 prefectures, resulting in the culling of roughly 9.9 million chickens, an all-time high. Around 7.75 million birds have already been culled this season as of Tuesday, with the number likely to exceed the previous record.

As bird flu has spread globally, it is believed that it has been brought into Japan by migratory birds.

The farm ministry has said there is no possibility of people contracting bird flu from eating chicken or eggs.

This season's first case of bird flu was confirmed on a poultry farm in Okayama Prefecture, western Japan, in October, with the highly deadly H5N1 strain detected from samples of the infected chickens.

At a poultry farm in Chiba Prefecture, eastern Japan, near Tokyo, an avian flu case was confirmed through genetic testing on Tuesday, the prefectural government said, leading to the culling of around 10,000 chickens at the location.

Bird flu was also reported at a farm that raises emus in Fukuoka Prefecture in southwestern Japan, with about 430 of the birds being culled. —Kyodo

Imposing travel restrictions for China arrivals "scientifically unjustified": ACI EUROPE

THE systematic pre-departure or on-arrival testing of travellers from China for COVID-19 is "neither scientifically justified nor risk-based," the Europe branch of Airports Council International (ACI EUROPE) said recently.

In a press release on 31 December 2022, the organization expressed its "regret regarding the actions of a number of states within the EU (European Union) and globally for unilaterally imposing health-related travel requirements".

"These unilateral actions are at odds with all the experience and evidence gained over the past three years," it said, adding that "these travel restrictions do not work".

The ineffectiveness of international travel restrictions in preventing the spread of COVID-19 and its multiple variants of concern (VOCs) has been unequivocally recognized by both the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control (ECDC) and the World Health Organization (WHO), ACI EUROPE noted.

According to the organization, as states need to remain vigilant to the status and control of the virus, the focus should instead be on increasing genomic sequencing to identify possible new COVID-19 variants and related surveillance.

"Such an approach, as urged by EU Health Commissioner (Stella) Kyriakides in a letter sent earlier this week to the member states, does not require the testing of travellers, but can be achieved by means such as the testing of wastewater from airports," the ACI EUROPE press release said. —Xinhua

Singapore economy grows more than expected in 2022

SINGAPORE'S economy grew more than expected last year but much slower than in 2021, official data showed Tuesday, as analysts warned of weaker growth ahead owing to an expected recession in key markets.

While the 3.8 per cent on-year expansion was welcome, it was weighed by a 3.0 per cent contraction in the key manufacturing sector in the final three months.

Growth in the fourth quarter came in at 2.2 per cent, sharply down from 4.2 per cent in July-September, according to advance estimates by the trade ministry. Exports for computer chips and other products have been hit by softer global demand caused by surging inflation and sharp increases in interest rates.

The city-state's economic performance is often seen as a useful barometer of the global environment because of its reliance on trade with the rest of the world.

Last year's growth beat the 3.5 per cent expected by the government but was half the 7.6 per cent rise enjoyed in 2021.

"While the slight outperformance suggests some resilience in economic activities for now, the overall trend remains on the downside," Yeap Jun Rong, market analyst at online trading firm IG, said in a note.

Research house Capital Economics said it expects exports to fall further on expectations the global economy would enter a recession this year.

"Elevated interest rates, declining household savings and high inflation are likely to drag on domestic demand," it added.—AFP

Viet Nam's industrial production up 7.8% in 2022

VIET Nam's national index of industrial production advanced 7.8 per cent in 2022, according to the country's General Statistics Office on Tuesday.

The processing and manufacturing sector, the main driver behind the increase, went up eight per cent. The electricity production and distribution sector expanded seven per cent, said the office. In December alone, the industrial production index decreased one per cent against November and rose 0.2 per cent year-on-year.

Last year, the production of beer witnessed the largest output year-on-year growth of 35.3 per cent, followed by processed seafood, up 15.7 per cent and phone accessories, up 15.1 per cent.

As of 1 December 2022, the total number of employees in the industrial sector edged up 0.3 per cent year-on-year, said the office.—Xinhua

Sri Lanka welcomes over 700,000 int'l tourists in 2022

SRI Lanka's tourism ended the year 2022 on a positive note, as the arrivals of international visitors to the country topped the 700,000 mark despite the economic and political crisis, local media reported on Tuesday.

According to official statistics, December saw a total of 91,961 tourists entering the South Asian island country, recording the third-highest monthly arrivals in 2022, and the number of total arrivals in 2022 is 719,978. Industry stakeholders said the Tourism Ministry expected to close the year with at least 800,000 tourists, for which several initiatives and promotional campaigns were carried out in potential source markets in the fourth quarter.

Based on the data released by the Sri Lanka Tourism Development Authority, India accounted for 17 per cent of the total tourist arrivals. Russia ranked second accounting for 13 per cent and Britain became the third largest source market with 12 per cent. The Tourism Ministry said the tourism industry expects China to regain its position this year as one of the key source markets for Sri Lanka's tourism.—Xinhua

Brazil stocks fall on Lula's first day, led by Petrobras

BRAZILIAN stocks slumped more than three per cent on President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva's first business day in office Monday, led by a selloff of shares in state-run oil company Petrobras.

A day after the veteran leftist took office for a four-year term, succeeding far-right president Jair Bolsonaro, the Sao Paulo stock exchange's Ibovespa index was down 3.25 per cent in afternoon trading. Petrobras was among the biggest losers, with preferential shares falling 6.6 per cent and ordinary shares 5.71 per cent. Analysts say investors are worried over signs of increased government intervention in the economy under Lula, who previously led Brazil from 2003 to 2010.

Petrobras is especially in the spotlight, after Lula extended federal fuel-tax cuts and vowed to change the company's pricing policy. "The market's reading is that there will be more and more interference in state companies, after a period of more free-market policy making" under Bolsonaro, said financial analyst Gilberto Braga of research university Ibmec.—AFP

Israel raises base interest rate to 3.75%, highest since 2008

ISRAEL'S central bank on Monday announced an increase of 0.5 per cent in the base interest rate to 3.75 per cent, reaching the highest level since October 2008.

This is the seventh consecutive rise in the base interest rate in Israel since April 2022 when the

The decision aims to curb the continuous rise of inflation, which reached 5.3 per cent in November, the highest 12-month figure in over 14 years. "High inflation involves growing uncertainty and increasing difficulty in making decisions at the household and the business levels," said Amir Yaron, Bank of Israel governor, adding that "it weighs on economic conduct, and adversely impacts growth and welfare, first and foremost amongst the weaker strata."—Xinhua

Only around half of firms in Japan expect economic growth in 2023

ONLY around half of major companies in Japan expect the country's economy to grow in 2023 given soaring prices of natural resources and raw materials triggered by Russia's war on Ukraine and the weak yen, a Kyodo News survey showed Monday.

In the survey of 117 companies, including Toyota Motor Corp and SoftBank Group Corp, 65 firms, or 56 per cent, expect solid expansion or moderate growth in the world's third-largest economy in the year ahead, sharply down from 84 per cent a year ago.

The overall percentage of firms forecasting growth was at its second lowest in 10 years in the survey, with responding companies also cautious about slowdowns in the United States and China in 2023. In the survey, carried out between late November and mid-December, 40 firms, or 34 per cent, said they believe the economy will be flat while seven predicted a moderate contraction. None believed the economy would fall into a recession.

With multiple answers allowed, an overwhelming 92 per cent of the companies that expect growth cited a recovery in consumer spending after its plunge due to the coronavirus pandemic.

Of the responding companies that did not expect growth, 70 per cent cited rises in prices of natural resources and raw materials, followed by 45 per cent forecasting personal consumption would be sluggish. Forty per cent of the firms also cited slowdowns in both the United States and China, respectively.

As for companies' evaluation of the rapid depreciation of the Japanese yen against the dollar, 43 per cent saw it as having a positive impact on earnings, exceeding 23 per cent taking it as a negative.—Kyodo on-year increase of seven per cent, the Ministry of Commerce's latest report showed on Tuesday.

The report said the kingdom's export to the RCEP member countries was valued at 5.67 billion US dollars during the January-November period last year, up five per cent, while its import from the RCEP member countries totalled 22.73 billion dollars, up sev-

Facts about Russia-Ukraine conflict: Ukrainian strike kills 63 Russian servicemen

THE following are the latest developments in the Ukraine crisis:

Ukrainian troops fired rockets on the temporary deployment facility of the Russian troops in the city of Makiivka in Donetsk, killing at least 63 Russian servicemen, the Russian Defence Ministry said Monday.

Ukraine shelled the area with six US-manufactured HIMARS rocket launchers, the ministry said, adding the Russian air defence systems shot down two rockets.

“All necessary assistance and support will be provided to the families and friends of the deceased servicemen,” it said.

Energy infrastructure facilities were damaged as a result of another massive Russian drone attack on the Ukrainian capital

Kyiv overnight Monday, local authorities said.

Parts of Kyiv were left without electricity and heating after the air strike, which also injured a 19-year-old man, Kyiv Mayor Vitali Klitschko wrote on Telegram. A critical infrastructure facility and private houses were damaged in the Kyiv region due to the attacks, Oleksii Kuleba, head of the Kyiv Regional Military Administration, said on Telegram. Russia attacked Ukraine overnight Monday with 39 Iranian-made kamikaze drones Shahed-136 and Shahed-131, two Orlan-10 drones and a Kh-59 missile. All air targets have been destroyed by the Ukrainian air defence, the Air Force Command of the Ukrainian Armed Forces said on Facebook.—Xinhua

France signals flexibility in face of pension reform resistance

THE French government said Tuesday it could be flexible on its plan to raise the retirement age to 65, part of a hugely controversial pension reform project pushed by President Emmanuel Macron.

Speaking ahead of crunch talks with unions that have fiercely resisted any change, Prime Minister Elisabeth Borne told FranceInfo radio that the age of 65 is “not set in stone”.

She added that “other solutions” could help the government reach its target of balancing the pensions system by 2030.

She said the plan, a flagship domestic policy of Macron’s second term, would be presented to the cabinet on 23 January before being debated in parliament at the beginning of February.

The full details of the plan — whose banner policy of raising the retirement age from the current level of 62 has been rejected out of hand by the unions — are to be unveiled on 10 January.

Macron’s overhaul would be one of the most extensive in a series of pension reforms enacted by successive governments on both the left and right in recent decades aiming to end budget shortfalls.

‘Our pensions problem’

Edouard Philippe, a former prime minister, summed up politicians’ frustration at failing to manage a pensions breakthrough despite long-standing attempts.

“The English have their Ireland problem, the Americans their weapons problem, and we have our pensions problem,” he told AFP recently.

A majority of French oppose the reform, according to opinion polls, with a Harris-Interactive poll published Monday putting the level of opposition at 54 per cent.

“The only group in favour are retired people of 65 and over,” said Frederic Dabi, head of the Ifop polling institute. The revamp was supposed to have been announced in mid-December but Macron, whose ruling party lost its overall parliament majority in polls last year, delayed the announcement to allow further talks.—AFP

Japan Duolingo app users spend longest time on language study: report

JAPAN-BASED users of popular language-learning app Duolingo spend the longest time studying a language on the platform, with English being studied the most followed by Korean and Chinese, a recent report by the US-based developer showed.

Learners in Belarus, Hungary, and Russia followed Japan in spending the most time using the app, according to the 2022 Duolingo Language Report, which was compiled based on data from over 500 million users worldwide.

Duolingo, which the firm says is the world's most downloaded education app, sends daily reminders to users on their smartphones to complete language lessons presented in a game-like format. It has both free and paid versions.

The report said Japanese was the fourth most studied language in Japan.

This is partly due to international travellers and business-people returning to the country, after it fully relaxed border restrictions in October that were originally imposed due to the coronavirus pandemic, according to a white paper separately released by Duolingo.

The white paper, which provided further analysis of user trends in Japan, found that 78.4 per cent of respondents in survey said they studied English, while 17.4 per cent studied Korean, and 11.9 per cent learnt Chinese.

In 2022, Japanese was the most popular language in Malaysia and Myanmar. Korean, meanwhile, is now the seventh most studied language worldwide and the most popular language in four countries, including Brunei and the Philippines, where it replaced Japanese in the top spot.— Kyodo

S Korea fines Tesla US$2.2 mln for misleading ads

SOUTH Korea's antitrust watchdog decided on Tuesday to fine US electric carmaker Tesla and its South Korean unit 2.85 billion won (2.2 million US dollars) for misleading advertisements.

The Korea Fair Trade Commission (KFTC) said Tesla had "falsely, exaggeratingly or deceptively" advertised the mileage on a single charge, the charging speed and the fuel efficiency of its electric vehicles in the South Korean homepage since August 2019.

The advertisements suggested Tesla vehicles can run hundreds of kilometres on a single charge under any conditions, but the range was cut by up to 50.5 per cent under low temperatures and in downtown areas, the KFTC said.— Xinhua

Mongolia's population growth slows down since 2020

MONGOLIA'S population growth has been slowing down since 2020, Chairman of the National Statistics Office Batmunkh Batdavaa said Tuesday.

The population of the country had grown by an average annual rate of 2.2 per cent from 2010 to 2020, he said.

However, the average annual growth rate has decreased to 1.5 per cent since 2020, Batdavaa said, noting that the slowdown is mainly related to the COVID-19 pandemic and economic difficulties.

The Asian country's population stood at 3.45 million at the end of 2022. Mongolia, with a land area of 1,564,116 square kilometres, is the most sparsely populated country in the world. — Xinhua

Viet Nam rescuers try to raise concrete pillar with trapped boy

VIET Nam on Tuesday mobilized soldiers and engineering experts to try free a 10-year-old boy trapped in a buried hollow concrete pillar on a construction site.

Rescuers hope to raise the pillar from its 35-metre-deep (115-feet) hole and cut the boy, named Thai Ly Hao Nam, out — though after three days trapped inside, it is not clear whether he is still alive. The youngster fell into the 25-centimetre (12-inch) wide shaft of the pillar, sunk as part of a new bridge in Mekong delta province of Dong Thap, on Saturday, apparently while looking for scrap metal.

A wider 19-metre-long metal pipe has been lowered around the concrete tube in which Nam is trapped to allow them to re-

Myanmar lose Viet Nam 0-3 in last group match of AFF Cup 2022

MYANMAR men's national football team suffered a 0-3 loss to the Viet Nam team in their last group match of the AFF Mitsubishi Electric Cup 2022 played at My Ding Stadium in Hanoi, Viet Nam yesterday.

The Myanmar team had already left the group stage, but for their dignity, they played the best response against the powerful Viet Nam team.

Even at the beginning of the match, the Viet Nam team threatened the Myanmar team's backline many times with their power passes and superb dribbling skills.

In the eighth minute of the game, Myanmar goalkeeper Kyaw Zin Lwin made a big mistake, and because of his mistake, Viet Nam scored an early goal.

In the 27th minute of the game, Nguyen Tien Linh scored the second goal of the Viet Nam team with beautiful attacking links.

After conceding two goals, the Myanmar team had to focus on defence, and thus the Viet Nam team could not score again, and the first half ended with a 2-0 result.

In the second half, the Myanmar team played an open attack, but could not overcome the tough Viet Nam team's backline.

From the counterattack, Chau Ngoc Quang scored the third goal for the Viet Nam team after passing the Myanmar defenders at 72 minutes.

With a 3-0 victory, the Viet Nam team passed the group stage, but the Myanmar team was eliminated from the group stage with just one point. — KZL

Djokovic romps in first singles clash in Australia since deportation

NOVAK Djokovic swept to victory in his first singles match on Australian soil since being deported a year ago, crushing Constant Lestienne at the Adelaide International Tuesday to kick-start his bid for another Grand Slam title.

The Serbian superstar was given a warm welcome when he played a losing doubles clash on Monday and received similar treatment on a packed centre court.

He beat the Frenchman comfortably 6-3, 6-2 in 74 minutes, breaking once in the first set and twice in the second.

"For the first match I can't complain, I played very well," Djokovic said.

"Thank you all for coming out today. Thank you for giving me the welcome that I could only wish for. "Even the circumstances last year, it wasn't easy for anybody. But I'm just happy to be here focusing on tennis, and enjoying my time with you guys."

It was his first singles clash in the country after being kicked out before the 2022 Australian Open for not being vaccinated for Covid-19. Djokovic was subsequently barred from re-entering for three years.

The ban was lifted in November, allowing him a chance to win an unprecedented 10th Australian Open crown at Melbourne Park later this month. —AFP
