Price of Myanmar's watermelon exported to China dips

THE price of Myanmar's watermelon placed on the China market started to move down, traders engaged in Muse border said.

The outright purchase of a truck is estimated at 20,000-48,000 yuan for the 855 watermelons and over 18,000-28,000 yuan for the Donkyithe variety.

The prices stand at six to eight yuan per kilogramme of muskmelon and three to five yuan for Taiwan melon per kilogramme.

On 22 March, the price of a truck carrying the 855 variety watermelon touched a high of 110,000 yuan, while muskmelon was priced at 9.2 yuan per kilo and Taiwan melon fetched 7.7 yuan.

Watermelon price fluctuation is related to demand and quality. More than 90 truckloads of watermelon and muskmelon are daily conveyed to China.

Myanmar's watermelon and muskmelon are heavily reliant on the Chinese market. The traders struggled with China's strict policy sometimes.

In early February, tight inspections by Chinese Customs hindered truck transport. That being so, only 20-30 trucks were able to pass the checkpoint despite the delays despite the high price of watermelon and muskmelon.

Consequently, watermelon was sold out at the depots on the China side and more than 500 trucks queued in line on the Myanmar side.

In 2021, the COVID-19 restrictions hindered Myanmar's watermelon and muskmelon exports to China. Chinese Customs Regulation increased delay. Long delays of trucks caused harm to watermelon quality and only one in five trucks heading to China remained undamaged with quality watermelons.

The traders are observing delivery time, price and profitability as they are perishable fruit, while they are trying to explore new markets besides China.

On 1 April, Nantaw and Sinphyu borders were suspended in the wake of COVID-19 impacts. China has closed down the major crossing – Mang Wein – from 30 March 2021 following the COVID-19 cases in Myanmar.

maining cross-border posts Kyinsankyawt and Panseng were suspended. As a result of this, the border trade between Myanmar and China was completely halted.

Among the Sino-Myanmar border, the Kyinsankyawt post resumed operations on 26 November 2021. Trade activity at the Muse-Mang Wein border, which performed the majority of trade between Myanmar and China, resumed on 14 January 2023. Additionally, other goods except for agricultural products (watermelon, muskmelon), minerals and fisheries products are allowed to be sent to China through that border.

Additionally, Nantaw and Sinphyu borders, which are the major border crossing, were reopened on 25 January 2023.

At present, Myanmar daily delivers rice, broken rice, rubber, various beans and pulses, fishery products, chili pepper and other food commodities to China through Kyinsankyawt by over 100 trucks. — NN/EM

Combat corruption in society as a national duty

THE problems of corruption happen as a disease of cancer across the world as well as in Myanmar. Its roots deeply penetrate various bodies and organizations in the least developed countries, developing countries and developed ones in addition to charity organizations, attempting to shake the society. Currently, corruption occurs in various sectors including the political arena.

The Anti-Corruption Commission was formed in Myanmar under the law in 2014. Till 2022, Myanmar could take action against 64 persons in the political arena, 35 high-ranking officials, 73 officers, 73 staff members, 19 public service personnel and 28 other persons, totalling 292. Taking action was based on taking and giving bribes

That is why all the people should accept the concept that they have to combat corruption for the emergence of a clean government and good governance systems and ensure enhancement of prestige and responsibility in public administration measures to build a peaceful and prosperous nation for the new generations.

ruption across the nation to build prosperous lives for the people as its vision. As such, all the people need to join hands with the commission in fighting against corruption cases without any exemption.

Surely, corruption cases in various arenas can bring bad impacts and terrible losses to society. Corrupt acts of anyone can destroy good opportunities for other people. People need to uphold the concept that everybody should change their mindsets to combat the willingness of corruption in their minds.

The Anti-Corruption Commission of Myanmar arranges a feedback programme through the 1111 SMS service to pick out the replies from the people over the questions raised by the commission. Only when people give transparent feedback based on their attitudes towards the anti-corruption can the weak points of relevant departments and organizations be addressed to improve society.

That is why all the people should accept the concept that they have to combat corruption for the emergence of a clean government and good governance systems and ensure enhancement of prestige and responsibility in public administration measures to build a peaceful and prosperous nation for the new generations.

Down but not out

By Myat Thura

DOWN but not out, Myanmar's economy has been resilient in the face of adversity following the COVID-19 pandemic. Our Southeast Asian home experienced a significant contraction in economic activity during the height of the crisis but has since shown signs of steady recovery. Numerous factors have contributed to this positive turnaround, including the implementation of government policies, cooperation with some international organizations and partners and the hard work and determination of our people. Myanmar's post-COVID economic recovery is a testament to the importance of unity and support.

With the easing of lockdown restrictions and the rollout of vaccination programmes, businesses have gradually reopened, leading to a resurgence in both domestic and international demand for goods and services. Myanmar's vital economic sectors, such as agriculture, manufacturing, and tourism, have all shown signs of improvement. Additionally, the government's focus on digital infrastructure has helped boost the nation's burgeoning technology and e-commerce industries. These developments have contributed to a more optimistic economic outlook for Myanmar, fostering hope for a brighter future for the country and its peoples.

Stimulus packages and financial relief measures have played a crucial role in mitigating the economic impact of the pandemic on businesses and households. The government has provided low-interest loans and financial aid to struggling enterprises, helping them stay afloat during the most challenging times. This targeted support has also encouraged innovation and investment in new industries, promoting economic diversification and fostering long-term growth. Indeed, the government's quick and decisive actions have proven instrumental in steering Myanmar towards a path of economic resurgence and stabilisation, setting the stage for a promising future for our nation's unity. A focus on sustainable development and inclusive growth has been at the heart of Myanmar's post-COVID economic recovery strategy. The government has recognized the need to address the environmental and social issues exacerbated by the pandemic, implementing policies to promote green energy, reduce income inequality, and improve access to education and healthcare. These initiatives have not only helped the country bounce back from the crisis but also laid the groundwork for a more resilient and equitable future. By prioritizing long-term well-being over short-term gains, Myanmar is taking essential steps towards creating a more sustainable and prosperous society for all its citizens, ultimately contributing to its overall progress and stable government.

Concluding, Myanmar's post-COVID economic recovery has been a multifaceted process that has required the concerted effort of government, businesses, and individuals alike. While challenges still lie ahead, the nation's resilience, adaptability, and determination have proven to be critical assets in navigating these uncertain times. With a focus on sustainable development, inclusive growth, and international cooperation, Myanmar is well on its way to rebuilding its economy and forging a brighter future for its people, setting an inspiring example for the world to follow in the face of adversity.

Buddha's Scientific Approach to Human Nature

THE Vija nana is the key to the analytical insight and knowledge of the world and the Dhamma. Nonetheless, this book under review is a scientific approach to the nature of human beings as expounded by Lord Buddha. In other words, this book is a collection of the discourses by Sayagyi U Htay Aung relating to the nature of humans in the light of Dhamma. Matter-of-factly, it is appropriate here in this regard to explaining the profile of Sayagyi U Htay Aung as written by Say-amagyi Lodu Daw Ahmar. Sayagyi has applied diversified aspects to enable the Buddhists of these days to understand the Dhamma taught by Lord Buddha 2,500 years ago. In such an attempt, Sayagyi has applied scientific approaches to enable those who are bent on scientific thinking to understand better the nature of humans in the light of Dhamma.

There are only two factors in the composition of human beings – mind and matter. He explains the interaction between mind and matter. With an aim to develop the wisdom to know the genuine nature of human beings, people need to be possessed with Yath-abuta nana – i.e., the wisdom to know things as they really are. To achieve this kind of wisdom, people are required to train their minds through contemplation and/or meditation. The compiler of this book is nobody but Dr Tin Sanda Aung, who defines science as the study of a discipline through a combination of the system and the methodology. When delivering its sermons, Buddha used a system to preach the Dhamma; additionally, he provided the methodology to train one's mind to realize the truth. This being so, Dr Tin said that Buddhism is a scientific discipline. This being so, in their endeavour to realize the truth, those Buddhist devotees, who are familiar with the science disciplines, will find this book highly valuable to deprive themselves of ignorance. It is believed that this book will be of dramatic assistance to the readers to realize that there is no such thing as the ego, thereby resulting in the reduction of the attachment to both living beings and non-living things. In other words, this book will contribute towards the attainment of Bhavana nana.

The book is opened with the statement that there are no such things as self, others, men and/or women. They are non-existent in reality – they are merely things of relative truth – not the absolute truth. In the field of Paramatta Sacca – the sublime truth, there are no such things as humans or animals, self or others, men or women; what exists is just the composition of the blood, the flesh and the bones. Additionally, there are also mental faculties that depend on and interact with the physical faculties. Nothing is permanent – everything is transitory, it is said. As long as a person is attached to these faculties, mistakenly thinking that these things belong to him, he will not witness for himself the relation and the interdependence of the matter and the mind.

Sayagyi uses teaching/learning aids for the study of the anatomy of living beings. Thanks to audio/visual learning aids, Buddhist devotees can behold vividly the contents and the compositions of the materials. In addition to learning anatomy, they have to study physiology.

The Art of Simple Living

By Shunmyō Masuno

WE can go back to square one regardless of how terrible our past life is, it is said. It is imperative for a person to make a relentless effort to be able to begin a new life, not letting himself be depressed in the face of hardship and difficulty. If one wishes to grasp a thing he wants, he cannot rely on conventional methods. He has to seek new ways and different approaches. In this regard, this book will be of great assistance to decide on which approaches to choose from among the diversified methods.

The book starts with a statement that these days, many people are losing balance, and not able to poise themselves. They have great difficulty striking a proper balance between what they are desirous of and what they are having in hand. They are being confounded with what they ought to do for their future. They are desperately in search of a haven as they are profoundly concerned about their safety and security. Worse still, people nowadays are stricken with anxiety and depression even though they may be leading a prosperous life.

True, it is not that easy to overcome worries or to get oneself out of confusion. What is worth pondering over is whether we can change the world. Obviously not. If we cannot change the world, we have nothing but to adapt ourselves to the world.

This book includes 100 daily practices from a Zen Buddhist Monk for a lifetime of calm and joy. Shunmyo Masuno is a Japanese monk and garden designer. He is the Chief Priest of the Soto Zen Temple Kenko-Ji, a professor at Tama Art University and president of a design firm that has completed numerous projects in Japan and overseas. He has been called Japan's leading garden designer.

This book has four parts. Part 1 deals with the 30 ways to energize your present self whereas part two is about the 30 ways to inspire confidence and courage for living. Part three discusses 20 ways to alleviate confusion and worry while part four focuses on 20 ways to make any day the best day. Part 1 encourages the readers to try making a subtle shift in their habits whereas part two calls on the readers to try changing their perspective. And part three insists on the readers to try changing how they interact with others while part four demands the readers to try shifting their attention to the present moment.

In part 1, the original writer said, "Be with yourself as you are, but without haste, without impatience;" It is also written somewhere that "Your desk is a mirror that reflects your inner mind". Another quotation worth mentioning is, "When we eliminate effort, we eliminate life's pleasures". True, we must make a sustained effort to achieve success in whatever we do. If we stop exerting effort, we cannot reach our goal, thereby eliminating our lives' pleasures. Last but not the least, I would like to provide a noteworthy quotation – Zen practice is not just seated meditation.

People urged to enjoy Thingyan festival gently

THE Ministry of Religious Affairs and Culture released a statement to participate in Myanmar's traditional Thingyan festival in a gentle manner.

The statement said it should avoid inappropriate manners that are not in conformity with Myanmar tradition and culture, serious water throwing, words, Thangyat, singing and activities that affect others or organizations directly or indirectly, and other manners that can cause loss of respect and value by foreigners and drinking alcohol and so on.

The Thingyan festival has been celebrated since the time of ancient Myanmar Kings. According to the changing trend, the people wear inappropriate costumes, drink alcohol and fight each other and so the ministry issued a statement to participate in the 2023 Thingyan festival in line with the tradition and culture.

The Thingyan festival is preserved as a national-level intangible cultural heritage and arrangements are made to list the festival on the World Heritage List.

In preparation for the World Heritage List, the 2023 Myanmar traditional Thingyan water festival will be filmed and recorded as a documentary. — TWA/KTZH

CBM issues notice again to take action against currency manipulators

THE Central Bank of Myanmar (CBM) warned of currency manipulators who spread malicious rumours of CBM changing a US dollar reference exchange rate to K2,500, trying to devalue their own currency and interfere with forex market stability to face legal actions, according to a notification dated 31 March.

Rumours have been circulating to disrupt the forex market in recent days. Therefore, the CBM issued this notice again.

There is no way for the CBM to set the new reference exchange rate. Investigation and Prosecuting of market manipulation to hike the exchange rate in the local forex market with malicious rumours will be undertaken, according to the Central Bank of Myanmar's statement.

The CBM has been steering foreign currency flows. The market is quite stable for now.

The CBM is using necessary monetary policy to achieve price stability. However, those unscrupulous are attempting to intervene in the market to lower their own currency value against the US dollar.

The reference exchange rate set by the CBM is K2,100 while it is exchanged at K2,850 in the unauthorized market. — TWA/EM

Most populous county in US lifts public health emergency for COVID-19

LOS Angeles, the most populous county in the United States, will end its local public health emergency for COVID-19 on Friday, authorities said.

“As the longest emergency in LA County history draws to a close after 1,122 days, we honour the 36,000 who lost their lives and reflect on the opportunity to serve the public during this challenging time,” wrote county officials in a tweet.

The local state of emergency for COVID-19 was initially proclaimed on 4 March 2020, in Los Angeles County, home to over 10 million residents.

The county, once one of the hardest-hit parts in the United States amid the pandemic, reported 1,269 new COVID-19 cases and 24 new related deaths earlier this week, bringing the county-wide tallies to over 3.72 million cases and 35,994 deaths as of Tuesday, according to the latest update of the Los Angeles County Department of Public Health.

“The end of the emergency doesn’t mean the end of LA County’s support for residents who continue to struggle with COVID-19 and its impacts,” county officials tweeted. They noted in a statement that this means changes in some programmes but many services will continue to be available to support residents in the county. — AFP

The pianist who’s been playing for more than 100 years

COLETTE Maze has been playing piano for more than a century, and is still drawing thousands of fans on social media.

Born in June 1914, before the outbreak of World War I and when one of her favourite composers, Claude Debussy, was still alive, the French pianist practices four hours a day and is about to release her seventh album, “108 Years of Piano”.

From her apartment overlooking the Seine river in Paris, Maze moves cautiously between the three pianos in her living room, but retains a youthful enthusiasm. “Me? I’m young,” she says with a smile.

“Age is not something I’m interested in. There are people who are forever young, amazed by everything, and then there are people who don’t care about anything and never loved anything, even their man — can you imagine?” she adds.

Piano is my life

Maze was a piano teacher for much of her life, and it was only after turning 100 that she started building a significant fanbase — through her Facebook page. Many are inspired by her continuing good health and refusal to give up the traditional French pleasures of wine, cheese and chocolate.

“She gives people strength — that’s why she has such crazy success,” said her son, journalist Fabrice Maze, adding with pride that she is one of the few people over 100 releasing albums.

She still remembers the sound of “Big Bertha”, the huge cannon used by the German army during World War I, but most of her memories revolve around her instrument. “Piano is my life, my friend. I need to feel it and hear it,” she adds, before offering a rendition of Debussy’s “Reflections in the Water”. — AFP

Iraq’s first sandstorm of the year blankets Baghdad

A sandstorm enveloped central Iraq, including Baghdad, on Friday, the first such weather event to hit the arid country this year.

In 2022, Iraq experienced more than a dozen sandstorms, an unprecedented number that was attributed to desertification.

Iraqis who ventured outside on Friday afternoon were greeted with the increasingly familiar ochre sky and unbreathable air typical of sandstorms, with AFP journalists reporting greatly reduced visibility and a film of dust covering cars and houses.

Driven by westerly winds, the storm moved from Al-Anbar province before reaching Baghdad and Salaheddin province by late Friday. — AFP

Cancer-causing compounds found in everyday food: EU agency

Cancer-causing chemical compounds called nitrosamines have been detected in a range of everyday foods and could pose a health risk to consumers. PHOTO: AFP

CANCER-CAUSING chemical compounds called nitrosamines have been detected in a range of everyday foods and could pose a health risk to consumers, the European Food Safety Agency warned.

The 10 nitrosamines — which are not intentionally added to food but which can form during its preparation and processing — are carcinogenic and also genotoxic, which means they may damage DNA, according to a new study conducted by the European Union agency.

“Our assessment concludes that for all age groups across the EU population, the level of exposure to nitrosamines in food raises a health concern,” said Dieter Schrenk, chair of the EFSA’s panel on contaminants in the food chain.

“Based on animal studies, we considered the incidence of liver tumours in rodents as the most critical health effect,” he added.

Nitrosamines have been detected in foods including cured meat, processed fish, cocoa, beer and other alcoholic drinks, the EFSA said.

The “most important food group” contributing to nitrosamines exposure is meat, it said.

Schrenk said the research deployed “a worst-case scenario” assuming that all nitrosamines detected in food had the potential to cause cancer as the most harmful form of the compound — “although that is unlikely”. — AFP

Indian tribunal upholds US$162 mln fine on Google

AN Indian appeals court National Company Law Appellate Tribunal (NCLAT) has upheld a penalty of 162 million US dollars imposed on Google by the country's antitrust regulator Competition Commission of India (CCI) in a case related to Android's market dominance.

The NCLAT said the CCI order did not violate the principles of natural justice and Google was liable to pay the fine.

Google defended itself saying "we believe it (the CCI decision) presents a major setback for our Indian users and businesses who trust Android's security features, and potentially raising the cost of mobile devices."

"We upheld this penalty," NCLAT said on Wednesday, adding that "the appellant (Google) is allowed to deposit the penalty."

The order is seen as a major setback to Google in India.

The NCLAT has held that Google asking the Original Equipment Manufacturers (OEMs) to pre-install the entire suite of Google applications amounts to imposition of unfair conditions.

Over 95 per cent of smartphones in India use the Android system.

Last year in October, the CCI imposed a fine on Google for anti-competitive practices in relation to Android mobile devices. Google had challenged the ruling before the NCLAT.

Meanwhile, the search giant has been given 30 days to pay the penalty and implement the order. Google now has the option to challenge the order in India's Supreme Court.— Xinhua

Inflation pain to continue for Japan consumers in new fiscal year

JAPAN will see another wave of price hikes at the start of the new business year from Saturday as higher raw material costs eat into company margins, dealing yet another blow to consumers already facing inflation rates that have outpaced wage growth.

Nearly 5,000 food items, ranging from mayonnaise and cheese to instant noodles will be pricier. In a sign that price hikes are broadening, consumers will be sluggish with more expensive services like public transportation and package delivery, while theme parks are raising ticket prices in response to the double whammy of COVID-19 aftershocks and surging costs. Consumers are already bearing the brunt of inflation that has hit a four-decade high above four per cent, even though the outcome of annual wage negotiations between labour unions and management for the new fiscal year will likely deliver the largest salary increases in three decades.

The government, for its part, is scrambling to protect consumers by reducing utility bills and handing out cash to low-income households as it looks to head off voter discontent ahead of key local elections in April.

The spread of the avian flu is exacerbating the pain, sending the prices of eggs and products made of them like mayonnaise higher. Condiment makers Kewpie Corp and Ajinomoto Co are going ahead with their fourth price hike since July 2021.

Kewpie's 450-gramme mayonnaise will be sold at 520 yen ($4), nearly a 10 per cent increase on the most recent hike. — Kyodo

OpenAI's ChatGPT blocked in Italy

ITALY'S privacy watchdog said Friday it had blocked the controversial robot ChatGPT, saying the artificial intelligence app did not respect user data and could not verify users' age.

The decision "with immediate effect" will result in "the temporary limitation of the processing of Italian user data vis-a-vis OpenAI", the Italian Data Protection Authority said.

The agency has launched an investigation.

ChatGPT, created by US startup OpenAI and backed by Microsoft, can answer difficult questions clearly, write code, sonnets, or essays — even passing difficult exams for students.

But the app that appeared in November is controversial, with teachers fearing students will use it to cheat, and policymakers concerned about the spread of misinformation.

The watchdog said that on 20 March, the app experienced a data breach involving user conversations and payment information.

It said there was no legal basis to justify "the mass collection and storage of personal data for the purpose of 'training' the algorithms underlying the operation of the platform".

It also said that since there was no way to verify the age of users, the app "exposes minors to absolutely unsuitable answers compared to their degree of development and awareness."

It said the company had 20 days to respond how it would address the watchdog's concerns, under penalty of a 20-million-euro fine, or up to four per cent of annual revenues.

Mexico's central bank slows pace of key interest rate hikes

BANXICO, Mexico's central bank, on Thursday raised its key interest rate again but reduced the pace of increases given the downward trajectory of inflation. The Board of Governors unanimously decided to raise the benchmark interest rate by 25 basis points to 11.25 per cent effective Friday, the bank said in a statement.

Since December 2021, Banxico has opted for key interest rate increases of 75 and 50 basis points, given the acceleration of inflation. The central bank highlighted that inflation has slowed down more than expected, estimating it will close the year at 4.8 per cent.

Mexican President Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador said Thursday that the country's economy maintains a growth trajectory and will not fall into a crisis due to recent external turbulence in the banking sector. — Xinhua

Power supply forecast to remain tight for Tokyo this summer

ELECTRICITY supply-demand conditions in the Tokyo area are projected to remain tight this summer after power crunch concerns hit resource-poor Japan last year, according to estimates compiled by the government.

The reserve power supply capacity ratio in the metropolitan area in July could drop to three per cent, the lowest level for maintaining stable supply, if a once-in-a-decade level of extreme heat grips the region served by Tokyo Electric Power Company Holdings Inc.

Utilities in other areas are expected to see power supply reserves of above three per cent even if such severe weather conditions prevail, according to estimates released in late March by the Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry.

The forecast is based on the supply plans of electricity service businesses, compiled at a time when most nuclear power reactors remain offline after the 2011 nuclear disaster and many aged thermal power plants have been shut down. — Kyodo

Swiss watchmakers counting the clock until Chinese tourists return

SWITZERLAND'S major luxury watch brands are cautiously optimistic that Chinese tourists will boost sales this year, if they return to Europe in large numbers after the easing of domestic Covid restrictions. Exports to China, a key market for watchmakers, contracted by 13.6 per cent in 2022 due to Beijing's zero-Covid policy and the surge in infections when it was lifted at the end of the year. However, exports began to rebound in February — up 8.2 per cent year-on-year, according to the Federation of the Swiss Watch Industry.

“China will regain a positive dynamic,” the federation's president Jean-Daniel Pasche, told AFP at the industry's annual Watches and Wonders trade fair in Geneva, where 48 brands such as Rolex, Cartier and Patek Philippe were showing off their latest creations. — AFP

Federal govt sues US railroad over discharge of pollutants, hazardous substances

THE US Department of Justice (DOJ) announced on Friday a complaint against Norfolk Southern related to a train derailment in East Palestine, Ohio, last month.

The complaint seeks

Removal of most pandemic-related restrictions has led to visible improvements in business activi-

Russia to focus on ending US hegemony: Foreign Policy Concept

A view of the Kremlin during the last day of the three-day parliamentary and local elections in Moscow, Russia, 19 September 2021. PHOTO: AFP/FILE

RUSSIAN President Vladimir Putin approved on Friday a new version of the Foreign Policy Concept, in which Russia expressed the country’s intention to end US hegemony.

To build a multipolar world, Russia will focus on eliminating the US dominance in world affairs and create conditions to counter any “neo-colonial and hegemonic ambitions”, the document said.

Russia called the United States “the main inspirer, organizer and executor of the aggressive anti-Russian policy of the collective West, the source of the major risks to the security of Russia, international peace and balanced, equitable and progressive development of mankind.”

Russia voiced its readiness to maintain strategic parity and peaceful coexistence with the United States and to establish a balance of interests between the two countries.

But the prospects for such relations depend on the US readiness to abandon its policy of forceful domination and revise its anti-Russian course in favour of interactions with Russia, the document said.

As for the normalization of Russia-Europe ties, the concept criticized the strategic policy of the United States to “draw and deepen dividing lines in Europe to undermine the competitiveness of the economies of Russia and European states, limit the sovereignty of European states, and ensure the US global dominance.” — AFP

JAPAN on Saturday launched a new agency for overseeing child policies as the government under Prime Minister Fumio Kishida struggles to reverse the country’s declining birthrate.

The Children and Families Agency, under the direct supervision of the prime minister, will tackle a wide range of challenges, including the perilously low birth-rate, child abuse and poverty, as the “control tower” in compiling policies while eliminating sectionalism. The agency, the first governmental body to be established after the Digital Agency in September 2021, brought together relevant departments from the Health, Labour and Welfare Ministry as well as the Cabinet Office. Combined with people from the private sector and local governments, the agency has around 430 officials. Yumiko Watanabe, a senior bureaucrat of the welfare ministry, heads the agency. — Kyodo

UN Security Council concerned over Russian nuclear weapons in Belarus

THE UN Security Council was divided Friday as Western nations expressed concern about Moscow’s announcement it will deploy tactical nuclear weapons in neighbouring Belarus, but permanent Council member Russia remained defiant.

China and Brazil, for their part, condemned nuclear proliferation in general as the Council met to discuss the 25 March announcement from Russian President Vladimir Putin.

Dominion’s US$1.6 bln defamation suit vs Fox News to go to jury trial

A US judge on Friday ordered a jury trial in the $1.6 billion defamation lawsuit filed by Dominion Voting Systems against Fox News over the 2020 presidential election.

Delaware Superior Court Judge Eric Davis, in a blow to the Rupert Murdoch-owned television network, denied a bid by Fox

News to get the suit dismissed.

Instead, the judge said Dominion, a voting technology company, had proven some elements of its defamation claim, and the case should be heard by a jury.

A trial is expected to begin in April, and may be one of the most consequential defamation cases ever heard in the United States.

Dominion sued Fox News in Delaware in March 2021 alleging that the news behemoth promoted Donald Trump’s false claims that its machines were used to rig the presidential election, while knowing they were untrue. — AFP

Greek PM wants EU aid for steel fence extension along Türkiye border

GREEK Prime Minister Kyriakos Mitsotakis on Friday called on the European Union to “seriously consider” providing financial aid to help extend an anti-migrant steel fence along the border with Türkiye.

“I think it’s about time for the EU to seriously consider providing European funds for these types of projects,” the head of government told AFP, on the sidelines of a visit announcing the project at Feres in northeastern Greece.

“After all, we’re contributing towards European security and we are also contributing towards a more integrated and effective European asylum policy.”

Athens has decided to extend by 35 kilometres a five-metre high steel fence which runs along the Evros river marking the border with Türkiye.

The fence is currently 37.5 km long, and Athens aims to carry out the extension within a year, adding a total of 100 km by 2026.

Mitsotakis has insisted that, even without EU funds, the project, estimated at 100 million euros, will go ahead.

“What you see here is an obstacle that the Greek government has built in order to protect the borders of a country which also happens to be the external borders of the European Union,” he said. “I’ve always been a firm believer that we cannot reach a new agreement on migration and asylum unless we protect our external borders.

Ugandan troops join regional force in DR Congo as rebel fighters ignore retreat deadline

UGANDAN troops operating as part of an East African regional military force entered the east DR Congo border town of Bunagana on Friday, an army officer and witnesses said. The soldiers are intended to supervise the gradual withdrawal of the M23 rebel group, which has conquered swathes of territory in eastern Congo since taking up arms again in late 2021.

The Ugandan contingent of the East African Community (EAC) force entered Bunagana on Friday morning, according to the force commander, Kenyan General Jeff Nyagah.

He explained to reporters on Friday that about 1,000 Ugandan soldiers had crossed into the town – which lies on the Ugandan border – as part of a contingent that is expected to eventually comprise 2,000 troops. A Bunagana resident also told AFP that Ugandan troops had entered the town, with vehicles and tanks.

On Thursday evening, Ugandan President Yoweri Museveni stated that the troops are not due to fighting the M23. — AFP

Trump ‘shocked’ by indictment but ‘ready to fight’

DONALD Trump’s legal team went on the offensive on Friday following his historic indictment, vowing the former president would never seek a plea deal and was ready “to fight” all charges.

The 76-year-old Trump, who is hoping to recapture the White House in 2024, chimed in with attacks on the prosecutors who brought the charges against him and even the judge expected to hear the case.

“ELECTION INTERFERENCE, KANGAROO COURT!” Trump posted on his social media platform Truth Social, adding that Juan Manuel Marchal, the judge who may preside over an eventual trial, “hates me.”

Trump is to be booked, fingerprinted and will have a mugshot taken at a Manhattan courthouse on Tuesday afternoon before appearing before a judge as the first ever American president to face criminal charges.

“The president will not be put in handcuffs,” said Joe Tacopina, one of Trump’s attorneys, adding that he does not believe prosecutors will “allow this to become a circus”. — AFP

Fifteen hurt as two Swiss trains derail in storm

FIFTEEN people were injured Friday when two trains derailed as stormy winds lashed north-western Switzerland, police said.

The incidents, on regional passenger rail lines, took place within 20 minutes of each other, and about 30 kilometres apart, north of the Swiss capital Bern.

Three people were injured in the first derailment, including the driver, and 12 were hurt in the second, including one person with serious injuries.

Wind speeds of 136 kilometres per hour were recorded nearby.

One train carrying 16 people derailed in the lakeside village of Luscherz at around 4:30 pm, police said.

“While a strong wind was blowing... the front carriage of the train overturned on the right of the track, slipped down a small embankment for a few metres and finally came to a halt,” Bern cantonal police said in a statement. “Three people, including the driver in the overturned carriage, were injured, treated by four ambulance teams and taken to hospital.” — AFP

Madrid's Ancelotti confirms 'exciting' Brazil interest

CARLO Ancelotti confirmed the interest of the Brazilian national team in hiring him and his excitement at the prospect, but said Saturday he wanted to fulfil his contract with Real Madrid.

The Italian said the Brazilian Football Federation (CBF) want him to replace Tite, after the coach stepped down following the Selecao's World Cup 2022 surprise quarter-final exit, with Ramon Menezes currently in charge on an interim basis.

Ancelotti's contract with Real Madrid ends in June 2024 and the veteran Italian, 63, says he will respect his deal with the Spanish champions.

"Yes, the reality is that the Brazilian national team want me, I love that and it excites me," Ancelotti told a news conference.

"After that, you have to respect the contract, a contract that I want to see out."

Ancelotti said he is happy at Real Madrid in his second spell at the club, but that no-

Man City thrash Liverpool but Jesus keeps Arsenal eight points clear

MANCHESTER City thrashed Liverpool 4-1 on Saturday but remain eight points adrift of Arsenal at the top of the Premier League after Gabriel Jesus scored twice in the Gunners 4-1 win over Leeds.

In the clash between the two sides that have dominated English football over the past five years, City were a class apart despite the absence of Erling Haaland due to injury.

Liverpool went in front through Mohamed Salah's 23rd goal of the season but were blown away in the second half after Julian Alvarez brought City level before the break.

Pep Guardiola's men needed less than a minute in the second period to go in front as Kevin De Bruyne tapped home Riyad Mahrez's cross.

Ilkay Gundogan slammed home the third before Jack Grealish rounded off his best performance in a City shirt with a fine finish for the fourth.

"Now it's the Jack we thought (we were buying). Aston Villa fans know this Jack," said Guardiola of Grealish, who joined for a Premier League record £100 million ($124 million) in 2021 from the Birmingham club.

City still have a game in hand on Arsenal and the two meet in a potential title decider at the Etihad later this month.

A sobering defeat is another blow to Liverpool's hopes of a top-four finish as the Reds slip to eighth in the table. — AFP
