130 new cases of COVID-19 reported on 29 April, total figure registers 634,806

MYANMAR'S COVID-19-positive cases rose to 634,806 after 130 new cases were reported on 29 April 2023 according to the Ministry of Health.

Therefore, a total of 10,351,781 laboratory samples were examined and the confirmed COVID-19 cases reached 634,806. The total number of patients who have recovered from COVID-19 in the country reached 614,818 including 40 new recoveries. The death toll from COVID-19 in the country rose to 19,492 on 29-4-2023 with one new death reported from the pandemic. According to the research, it is found that people who have been vaccinated do not suffer severely from the disease, need not be hospitalized and are unlikely to die. If they have received booster shots, the death rates can be reduced more.

As such, people need to follow the new normal way of living with COVID. Hence, all people above five have to fully receive COVID-19 vaccination inoculated by the Ministry of Health free of charge. Six months after the vaccination, they have to take booster jabs at relevant health centres and ward/village administration offices without fail.

Moreover, they have to wear masks while in closed chambers and public places. They need to often wash their hands with soap and water or the hand gel containing alcohol (at least 60 per cent) for 20 seconds. People need to follow the social distancing rule and avoid crowds as much as possible.

While not wearing masks, if they cough and sneeze, they need to cover their mouth and noses with elbows in line with the personal hygienic ways. COVID-19 information can be browsed on the internet page moh.gov.mm of the Ministry of Health. — GNLM

Onion prices edging up at Bayintnaung wholesale market

THE prices of onions are climbing at Bayint Naung wholesale market in the last week of April 2023. Onions are abundantly supplied to the regions outside Yangon, as per the market report of those regions.

On 29 April 2023, 114,000 visses of onions entered the Yangon market. The wholesale prices moved in the range between K1,200 and K1,575 per viss depending on the size and the producing areas (Seikphyu and Monywa).

On 27 April, 250,000 visses of onions were supplied to the Pakokku area and the highest price was K1,450 per viss. With 100,000 visses of onions entering the Pakokku market, the highest price was K1,475 per viss.

On 29 April, 14,000 visses of onions flowed into the Seikphyu commodity depot and onions fetched K1,650 in maximum.

Meanwhile, it touched a high of K1,650 per viss in the Myingyan market on the same day with an onion inflow of 60,680 visses.

Onions are sold out daily in the regions outside Yangon. The market price at Bayint Naung Wholesale market is higher than that in other regions.

The price rise is attributed to the big purchase of onion traders and foreign buyers. On 29 April 2022, the onions were priced at only K500-1,050 per viss.

There is no inflow of popular onions from the Myittha area in late April. The onion prices at the Bayintnaung Wholesale market at the end of April this year are higher than that of the corresponding period last year.

In mid-2022, the onion price hit a record high of K5,100 per viss. Consequently, the acreage of monsoon onions increased in 2022. Similarly, the number of winter onions also grew in 2022. The yield of winter onions dropped by half in 2022, said traders. Those traders who keep the stocks in hand have to purchase the onions at a high price in 2023. Yet, there is uncertainty for the onion prices whether it will reach last year's record high.

The price declined to around K240 per viss in the leading onion-producing country India as well, as per the onion market reports. — TWA/EM

Fuel prices on gradual decline in domestic market

THE prices of fuel oil (diesel and Octane 92) have gradually moved down below K2,000 per litre in the domestic fuel oil market.

The fuel prices remained on the high side during the Myanmar New Year holidays. Shortly thereafter, the price decreased slightly. On 29 April, the prices stood at K1,995 per litre for Octane 92, K2,075 per litre for Octane 95, K1,900 for diesel and K1,980 for premium diesel.

The domestic fuel prices are set depending on the price index set by Mean of Platts Singapore (MOPS), the pricing basis for many refined products in southeast Asia, according to the Supervisory Committee on Oil Import, Storage and Distribution of Fuel Oil.

Last August 2022, the oil prices surged to K2,605 per litre for Octane 92, K2,670 for Octane 95, K3,330 for premium diesel and K3,245 for diesel.

The committee is therefore governing the fuel oil storage and distribution sector effectively not to have a shortage of oil in the domestic market and to ensure price stability for energy consumers.

The Petroleum Products Regulatory Department, under the guidance of the committee, is issuing the daily reference rate for oil to offer a reasonable price to energy consumers. The reference rate in Yangon Region is set on the MOPS's price assessment, shipping cost, premium insurance, tax, other general cost and health profit per cent.

The rates for regions and states other than Yangon are evaluated after adding the transportation cost and the retail reference rates daily covered on the state-run newspapers and are posted on the media and official website and Facebook page of the department daily starting from 4 May.

The committee is inspecting the fuel stations whether they are overcharging or not. The authorities are taking action against those retailers of fuel stations under the Petroleum and Petroleum Products Law 2017 if they are found overcharging rather than the set reference rate.

As per the statement, 90 per cent of fuel oil in Myanmar is imported, while the remaining 10 per cent is produced locally. The domestic fuel price is highly correlated with international prices. The State is steering the market to mitigate the loss between the importers, sellers and energy consumers. Consequently, the government is trying to distribute the oil at a reasonable price compared to those of regional countries.

Some countries levied higher tax rates and hiked oil prices compared to that of Myanmar. However, Malaysia's oil sector receives government subsidies and the prices are about 60 per cent cheaper than that of Myanmar. Every country lays down different patterns of policy to fix the oil prices. Myanmar also levies only a lower tax rate on fuel oil and strives for energy consumers to buy the oil at a cheaper rate. — NN/EM

Arrange regular and catch-up immunization for offspring

THE World Health Organization set World Immunization Week in the last week of April every year aiming to highlight the collective action needed and to promote the use of vaccines to protect people of all ages against disease.

In line with this year's theme: "The Big Catch-Up" strenuous efforts must be made for the children who missed the chance to receive vaccines during the Covid-19 period and for taking doses of relevant vaccines to age-wise children in time in order to prevent infection of diseases along their lives.

Globally, measles alone prevented the loss of life of some 23 million children between 2010 and 2018. Moreover, regular immunization and catch-up vaccination could protect the children of the people against more than 20 diseases which pose danger to their lives. In fact, regular immunization also saved some 24 million global people from poverty.

If middle-class income countries and low-income countries invest one US dollar in measles vaccine, the immunization process arranged by the World Health Organization will save $76.5 as the return on investment. As such, all the entire people need to arrange immunization for their children without fail to save the lives of their children to be free from diseases and to take advantage of investment in the catch-up and regular vaccination of Measles.

thorities for further promotion of primary healthcare services including immunization.

On the other hand, people need to join hands with the health staff to receive relevant immunization and not cause an outbreak of a pandemic based on absence to receive relevant immunization. If the children receive vaccines and immunization in time, they can overcome the suffering impacts of any diseases. Practically, children who have received the necessary vaccines full-time can easily endure the infection of diseases.

If middle-class income countries and low-income countries invest one US dollar in measles vaccine, the immunization process arranged by the World Health Organization will save $76.5 as the return on investment. As such, all the entire people need to arrange immunization for their children without fail to save the lives of their children to be free from diseases and to take advantage of investment in the catch-up and regular vaccination of Measles.

A closer review of workplace accidents reveals that it basically boils down to an unsafe and unhealthy environment at work. The safety of workers is compromised by a lack of workplace safety and health culture. The menace of hazard starts to rear its ugly head inciting accidents to occur. To avoid such ill effects, it is essentially important to promote and create a safety and health culture that can help reduce the number of work-related deaths and injuries. It starts with a planning to set the fundamental principles and rights for workers

To raise awareness of the rights of the workers, this year's events for the World Day for Safety and Health at Work, are globally organized on 28 April 2023 at the backdrop of the theme: "A safe and healthy working environment is a fundamental principle and right at work". It is also additionally included in the ILO Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work which was revised at the International Labour Conference in June 2022.

The rights to be bestowed on the workers at work are categorically grouped into three -right to know, right to participate and right to refuse.

Chit Mi Thi Wun

WRITER Tin Dai is noted for his good writing in the field of Myanmar literature. He is famous, especially for his production of the novels. He has even written a book on the art of writing the novels. I would like to urge the new generation to taste his writings. Only after reading his novels will the new generation of readers be able to understand why he has been famous in the field of Myanmar literature.

The writing of a novel has three parts — the content, the style of writing and the art of writing. Some writers or novelists to be exact, are good at the creation of the content or the theme whereas some are clever in the art of writing with the last category of the novelist skilful in the style of writing. It is widely known that the majority of novelists are clever in only one of two of the said skills. Nevertheless, Sayagyi U Tin Dai is skilful in all three categories, striking a proper balance between them all.

Chit Mi Thi Wun belongs to the genre of a love story when it is reviewed superficially. Matter-of-factly, this novel is beyond the love story if it is to be reviewed in a broader sense. The writer said that this novel is not a mere love story; this book is concerned with the philosophy of Lord Buddha. The plot was created on the kindness a teacher had shown to his students. The message the writer would like to give is that harbouring loving-kindness towards a person should be done in a rightful way.

There are three main characters in the novel — a teacher called Saya Hnya, who is not only good at teaching but also has great love and goodwill towards his students; a clever boy student in name of Maung Cho who is a rich kid but good at lessons; and a woman known as Sein Mya Kyin, a beautiful theatrical artiste of great fame who is rather proud of her dramatic popularity.

Although Saya Hnya is a kind-hearted teacher, his students jokingly called him Saya Nya, a teacher who is telling lies. This is a pun, twisting the two words Hnya and Nya, which bear two different meanings. Although this was only a joke made by the students just to tease their teacher, Saya Hnya could not rid this joke of his mind for decades. In fact, Saya Hnya never tells a lie. Far from being a wicked guy, he is possessed by the sacrificing spirit.

Sein Mya Kyin, the theatrical artiste, is a beautiful woman with a very fair complexion. She looks like an Arab woman from the middle east. She owns the cherry red lips, which attract the men especially when she is speaking.

The ending of the novel is a mystery. Saya Hnya has disappeared strangely. No one knows his whereabouts. People close to him have tried their utmost to find him, going to the places he used to be. No one knows what happened to Saya Hnya and why and how he disappeared.

La Htwet Kalay Ya Hta Baw Tin

Short Stories from Magazines

THIS is a collection of 18 short stories. The foreword is written by Ma Sandar. The pen name may look strange to the readers. Actually, she is not a new pen. She started to write as early as 1968 under different pen names. She contributed articles and short stories to many magazines. Nevertheless, she could not write much as she was a government servant. Only upon retirement, she could focus on writing. What is strange about her is that she has attended training courses on the art of writing, creative writing and even editing. As she has been assigned to many different places some of them being not easily accessible because of difficult transportation and communication. And the tough experiences she has gained in those far-flung areas during her career as a nurse have become the topics for her stories when she rewrote as a professional writer after retirement.

There are stories about delivering babies with deformities. There is a miserable story about transporting a pregnant woman whose date of delivery is due to the hospital for delivery. When arriving at a railway crossing, she had to take off her red nether garment to wave as a flag to stop the train so that she could transport the patient to the hospital in time. As most of the places where she was assigned duties were located in far-flung areas, it was extremely difficult to take care of and provide treatment to the patients. She played multiple roles: sometimes she acted as a nurse; sometimes she performed as a midwife; and sometimes she acted as if she were the medical assistant. Her long service in remote areas has provided a wide range of experiences on which her stories are based.

As she writes the true stories, the contents are highly valuable for the readers.

Reading her stories will reveal the miserable lives of the needy, the underprivileged, and the ignorant and innocent people from rural areas. Lives were lost because of difficult transport and communication, lack of medical knowledge and medicines and the doctors.

His book starts with the short story titled, "Than Thaya Hswe Hsant Yway." This story is about her first assignment in a village called Bhut, which is located at the convergence of River Shweli and River Ayeyarwaddy. She was called for helping a woman to deliver a baby. She recalled her first experience by saying that the baby was born with a body deformity. The baby was born without the upper limbs and the lower limbs. The book also mentions the biography of the nurse-turned-writer.

‘A new history’: Brazil’s Lula decrees six Indigenous reserves

The last declaration of a new Indigenous reserve in Brazil dates to five years ago. PHOTO: AFP

BRAZIL’S President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva on Friday decreed six new Indigenous reserves, including a vast Amazon territory, after a freeze in such expansion under his far-right predecessor Jair Bolsonaro.

Under the decrees, Indigenous people are guaranteed exclusive use of natural resources on these lands, viewed by scientists as a bulwark against Amazon deforestation – a major challenge in the fight against climate change.

They also commit the Brazilian state to protecting reserve land from intrusions of timber traffickers or illegal miners — the main contributors to forest destruction.

Lula signed the official decrees covering 620,000 hectares of land on the final day of a gathering of Indigenous people from around the country in the capital Brasilia.

“It is a time-consuming process, but we are going to make sure that as many Indigenous reserves as possible are legalized,” the president said.—AFP

New Zealand fights to save its flightless national bird

NEW Zealand’s treasured kiwi birds are shuffling around Wellington’s verdant hills for the first time in a century, after a drive to eliminate invasive predators from the capital’s surrounds.

Visitors to New Zealand a millennium ago would have encountered a bona fide “bird-topia” — islands teeming with feathered creatures fluttering through life unaware that mammalian predators existed.

The arrival of Polynesian voyagers in the 1200s and Europeans a few hundred years later changed all that. Rats picked off snipe-rails and petrels, mice chewed through all the seeds and berries they could find, leaving little for native birds to peck on. Possums — introduced for fur — stripped trees bare. Rabbits bred like, well, rabbits, devouring meadows and paddocks alike. — AFP

Meltdown: 2023 looking grim for Swiss glaciers

THIS year is already shaping up to be another bad one for glaciers in the Swiss Alps, with the snowpack covering them around 30 per cent below the 10-year average, according to the scientist tracking their decline.

Every year in April, when the snowpack reaches its peak, the Glacier Monitoring in Switzerland (GLAMOS) organization surveys around 15 glaciers.

“This year, the conditions are quite similar to 2022 which had record ice losses. Once again, we have very little snow”, GLAMOS chief Matthias Huss told AFP.

“It’s not as dramatic in every region as it was in 2022, but we’re still well below average,” the glaciologist said, referring to snowpack cover.

“There are even regions with a deficit of up to 50 per cent” below the 10-year average for the depth of snowpack covering the surface of the glaciers.

“The preconditions for the coming summer are therefore bad, as it stands. But we cannot say if we will once again have a record melt during the summer,” as that will depend on the temperatures over the coming months. The snowpack is doubly important for glaciers because the fresh snowfall not only feeds them but also provides them with a protective layer in the summer sunshine.

For the first time this year, snowpack measurements were made on a glacier located at around 4,100 metres (13,450 feet) above sea level.—AFP

International Dance Day: From boosting confidence to improving flexibility

SOME call it artistic expression while others view it as a stress-buster. ‘Dance’ can be defined as movements of the body in sync and it’s a celebration of physicality.

Every year, 29 April is celebrated as International Dance Day. The birthday of Jean-Georges Noverre (1727-1810), creator of modern ballet, has been observed as International Dance Day since 1982. The intention of the International Dance Day is to celebrate dance, revel in the universality of this art form across all political, cultural and ethnic barriers, and bring people together with a common language — dance.

Every year a message from an outstanding choreographer or dancer is circulated throughout the world.

The author of the message is selected by the International Dance Committee of ITI and the Executive Council of ITI. The message is translated into numerous languages and circulated globally. Dance has many health benefits too. Ahead of this International dance day, let’s check them one by one...

Better Brain Health

Studies have found that aerobic dance exercises can lessen volume loss in the part of the brain that controls memory (the hippocampus), which tends to shrink during late adulthood. Taking the time to remember steps and the changing movements of a dance is a great way to challenge your brain, no matter your age. Scientists have found cognitive skills such as planning and organizing also improve with an exercise like dance.

Improved Flexibility

The movements associated with dance can increase flexibility and reduce stiffness. Even the simple stretches associated with dancing can help ease joint pain and any soreness from other strenuous exercises.

Minimized Stress

Studies have shown dance can increase levels of the hormone serotonin, which can improve your mood.

Reduced Depression

A Study looking at the effects of dance on patients experiencing depression found that those who participated in an upbeat group dance showed the least number of symptoms associated with depression and were more energetic.

Weight Loss

Increased movement also usually means increased weight loss. Aerobic dance training can help you lose just as much weight as biking or jogging.

Increased Energy

Studies claim that dance can improve adults’ physical performance and increase their energy levels.

Improved Cardiovascular Health

Of course, the faster you dance, the faster your heart will beat, which can lead to a stronger and healthier heart.

Better Coordination Strength & Balance

Dancing requires lots of fast movement and good posture, which can help you gain better control of your body. Moreover, there are three primary planes of motion; unlike simple movements such as walking and cycling, which only involve the sagittal plane of your body, dancing works your body from all planes, which means all your muscles are involved, not just some.

Improved Social and Emotional Health

A dance class is a great way to make new friends and branch out socially! Having positive relationships is a major contributing factor to better mental health – it can increase feelings of happiness, reduce stress, and even lead to a stronger immune system.

Higher Self-Esteem & Confidence

Studies show that dancers tend to report higher levels of self-esteem and more confidence.

Feel free, energetic and upbeat as you practise dance. Dance makes you feel confident and release stress. — ANI

COOPERATION between Pakistan and China in the field of traditional medicine can bring fruitful results and serve humanity across the globe, Pakistani experts have said.

“In Pakistan, 70 per cent population relies on traditional medicine for various diseases, so through cooperation with China, we are not only looking to launch traditional Chinese medicine in Pakistan, but also promote our own traditional ‘Greek medicine’ and streamline it to establish its proper market,” Professor Muhammad Iqbal Choudhary, Coordinator-General of the Standing Committee for Scientific and Technological Cooperation of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation (OIC-COMSTech) said in an interview with Xinhua on the sidelines of an event themed on strengthening cooperation between China and the OIC in traditional medicine. Choudhary said the OIC member states, including Iran and Indonesia, were exploring traditional medicines, and “in this regard, COMSTech seeks to facilitate liaison between OIC member states and Chinese institutions for strengthening cooperation in the field of healthcare”.

Japan to relist S Korea as preferred trade country amid thaw in JAPAN will relist South Korea as a preferred trade partner after a similar move by Seoul on Tokyo's trade status, the Japanese government said Friday in the latest sign of a thaw in bilateral relations.

South Korea's preferential status, bar a few exempted items, was revoked in 2019 for the purchase of a wide variety of products and technologies that could be diverted for military use, according to Japan's Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry.

The status will be restored once Japan completes the procedures of collecting public opinion on the revision of the export control ordinance and gets Cabinet approval, according to the ministry. The exact date of the relisting remains unknown.

South Korea's Ministry of Trade, Industry and Energy welcomed Japan's move, saying it plans to further strengthen cooperation with the Japanese side on various export control issues.

The two countries exchanged opinions on the status of export control systems and confirmed their effectiveness through a policy dialogue earlier this month.

Japan had earlier expressed concern over Seoul's system and said it needs to confirm whether it is effective in preventing exported goods from flowing into North Korea and other countries of concern.

The 2019 removal of South Korea from a "white list" of countries that are entitled to receive minimum restrictions in trade came as the two countries' relations had worsened to their lowest point in decades over wartime history. — Kyodo

Italian GDP increases 0.5% in first quarter

ITALY'S gross domestic product (GDP) grew by 0.5 per cent in the first quarter of 2023 compared to the previous three months, the national statistics agency said Friday in a preliminary estimate.

The eurozone's third-largest economy had contracted by 0.1 per cent in the fourth quarter of 2022, but the growth this year means it escapes a recession.

National statistics agency Istat said the first quarter figures reflected growth in the industrial and service sectors, while agriculture, forestry and fishing have stagnated.

For 2023 as a whole, Prime Minister Giorgia Meloni's government revised its growth forecast upwards in mid-April to 1.0 per cent, compared to the 0.6 per cent estimated in November. — AFP

China's digital economy a new growth engine to drive modernization

China's digital economy has ranked second in the world for many years. The scale of China's digital economy reached 50.2 trillion yuan (about 7.25 trillion US dollars) in 2022. PHOTO: XINHUA

CHINA'S digital economy, ranking second in the world for many years, has seen robust growth and become a major growth engine for the country marching toward modernization.

The scale of China's digital economy reached 50.2 trillion yuan (about 7.25 trillion US dollars) in 2022, accounting for 41.5 per cent of the GDP, said a report on digital China development released Thursday.

The report was issued by the Cyberspace Administration of China at the 6th Digital China Summit, which opened on Thursday in the city of Fuzhou in east China's Fujian Province.

With the theme of "Accelerating the construction of digital China to promote Chinese modernization," the two-day summit focuses on showcasing the latest achievements of the Digital China initiative, and on sharing experiences in digital development.

Participants have the opportunity to witness remarkable progress in areas such as digital infrastructure, the digital economy, and digital society at an exhibition dedicated to digital development. ## Eurozone GDP grows 0.1% in first three months of 2023

THE eurozone economy lumbered forward in the first quarter, official data showed Friday, expanding just 0.1 per cent over the previous quarter as high inflation and interest rates weigh on activity.

Germany, the EU's biggest economy, saw growth stagnate at zero per cent over the previous quarter. Year-on-year, Germany was the only country in the single-currency zone to record a contraction, of 0.1 per cent.

For the European Union overall, GDP expanded 0.3 per cent over the previous quarter, according to the figures from Eurostat, the EU's statistics office.

The weak-but-positive figure for the eurozone mirrored the reading for the last quarter of 2022, which was also 0.1 per cent growth, confirming it had escaped recession but that high inflation was still a dampener.

Although eurozone inflation has eased somewhat, it is still 6.9 per cent on an annualized basis, more than three times the European Central Bank's target of 2.0 per cent. — AFP

China set for railway-trips record on May Day holiday

THE number of passenger trips handled by China's railways is expected to hit 19.5 million on Saturday, the first day of the five-day-long May Day holiday, data from the China State Railway Group Co Ltd shows.

The number is expected to make a new high in terms of single-day passenger traffic,

The country reports strong demand for travel during the May Day holiday, the first long holiday after the seven-day-long Spring Festival holiday, which was in late January.

About 120 million domestic trips are expected to be made by Chinese railway passengers from 27 April to 4 May around the May Day holiday, earlier data shows.

China's railways are maximizing their transportation potential and increasing capacity to satisfy people's travel needs, while improving service quality to ensure that passengers have better experiences.

Apple and Amazon 'committed' to big screen, says theatres boss

MOVIE theatre owners are confident that previously streaming-focused tech giants Apple and Amazon are now "committed" to putting their films on the big screen — even if Netflix still declines to — their trade body's new president told AFP.

This week's CinemaCon event in Las Vegas, where owners of multiplex chains and arthouse screens gather annually, took place in an optimistic mood, after three nervous years blighted by the pandemic and the rapid rise of streaming.

Back in those dark days, some 2,000 US theatres were forced to close forever, while even traditional Hollywood studios like Warner and Disney were skipping theatres and putting major films on HBO Max and Disney+ streaming first.

But since big screens reopened, even Apple and Amazon have pivoted to giving movies like "Air", "Napoleon" and "Killers of the Flower Moon" extended runs in theatres.

The two tech giants reportedly each plan to spend $1 billion per year on movies headed first for the big screen.

"I think their commitment to the theatrical experience is amazing," said Michael O'Leary, who takes over the National Association of Theatre Owners (NATO) this week. — AFP

First Republic bank in limbo as shares fall further

SHARES of First Republic fell further into an abyss Friday amid mounting speculation over the US regional bank's way forward after it reported a big fall in deposits.

After dropping more than 50 per cent earlier on Friday, shares of First Republic finished the day at $3.51, down 43 per cent following numerous trading halts due to volatility.

Now worth only about $654 million, the bank has had a stunning loss of value since its peak days in November 2021 when it had market capitalization of more than $40 billion.

The latest free fall follows First Republic's disclosure on Monday that it lost more than $100 billion in deposits in the first quarter.

The bank also said Monday that its deposit situation had stabilized following a $30 billion infusion of funds announced in mid-March from a consortium of 11 US private banks and that it was "pursuing strategic options". — AFP

Huge fire at Crimea fuel depot after drone strike: authorities

A huge fire broke out on Saturday at a fuel depot in Sevastopol, the main port in Moscow-annexed Crimea, with authorities saying it was the result of a drone attack.

Sevastopol is home to Russia's Black Sea Fleet and has been hit by a series of drone attacks since the Kremlin's Ukraine offensive launched last year.

"A fuel reserve is on fire in the Kazachya Bay district" of the city, the Moscow-installed governor of Sevastopol Mikhail Razvozhayev said on Telegram in the early hours of Saturday.

"According to preliminary information, it was caused by a drone strike."

He said the fire's size was "around 1,000 square metres" and published images of huge clouds of smoke rising into the air.

Razvozhayev called on Crimeans to "remain calm" and in a later post said "nobody was hurt".

He said authorities had "the situation under control" and said there was no threat to civilian infrastructure.

Earlier this week, Russia said it had "repelled" a drone attack on the port.

One family, five candidates: dynasties rule rural Thailand

POLITICS is a family affair for the Thienthong clan, one of Thailand's most enduring political dynasties, with five members running in next month's general election, for two different parties.

They are one of a number of families woven into the fabric of Thai politics — the most famous of which is the Shinawatrass, whose patriarch Thaksin was prime minister from 2001 to 2006 and continues to loom large from exile abroad.

The financial rewards of elected office — an MP earns around $3,500 a month — may be little more than loose change to these ultra-wealthy clans, but the influence it brings can be highly profitable to their business interests. The Thienthong family built their wealth on a successful logistics business in their eastern heartland — which includes a major border crossing to Cambodia — and have dominated the region's politics since the 1970s.

In the run-up to the 14 May vote, theirs is the name plastered on campaign posters along the rough country roads of poor, rural Sa Kaeo province.

Kwanruen Thienthong, her daughter Treenuch and nephew Sorawong are all contesting the three constituency seats up for grabs in Sa Kaeo.

Sorawong is running for Pheu Thai, the main opposition party riding high in the polls, while the two women are with the army-backed Palang Pracharath Party (PPRP) which led the outgoing ruling coalition.

Sorawong's brothers are also running for Pheu Thai: Surachart in a Bangkok constituency, and Surakiat, on the party list.

"Politics is politics. Family is family. We have different standpoints in politics but we're still family," Sorawong tells AFP.

Treenuch began her career as an MP with a forerunner party of Pheu Thai more than 20 years ago but switched to PPRP, was re-elected in 2019 and serves as education minister. For voters in Sa Kaeo the family's track record on the ground matters more than party names or political ideology. — AFP

N Korea raps US-S Korea accord bolstering extended deterrence

NORTH Korea has criticized a recent US-South Korea agreement to bolster Washington's extended deterrence, with the sister of the country's leader Kim Jong Un saying it will expose the region and world to "more serious danger", state-run media said Saturday.

In a statement dated Friday, Kim Yo Jong, a senior official of the country's ruling party, also lambasted US President Joe Biden for his warning that a nuclear attack against the United States or its allies will result in the end of Pyongyang's regime, calling it "a nonsensical remark from the person in his dotage".

Earlier this week, Biden and South Korean President Yoon Suk Yeol agreed on plans for Washington to send nuclear submarines to South Korea in response to North Korea's growing nuclear threat. Yoon was visiting the US capital at the time. — Kyodo

Israeli soldiers storm West Bank refugee camp, injuring 2 Palestinians

Palestinian security sources said that an Israeli army force, backed by armoured vehicles, stormed the outskirts of the refugee camp, and intensive gunfire was heard in several areas.

The armed wing of several Palestinian factions said in separate statements that its militants exchanged fire with Israeli soldiers who stormed the area of Jenin and detonated roadside bombs against the Israeli army vehicles. — AFP

Sudan fighting enters third week as UN says country collapsing

WARPLANES on bombing raids drew heavy anti-aircraft fire over Khartoum on Saturday as fierce fighting between Sudan's army and paramilitaries entered a third week, violating a renewed truce. More than 500 people have been killed since battles erupted on 15 April between the forces of army chief Abdel Fattah al-Burhan and his number two Mohamed Hamdan Daglo, who commands the paramilitary Rapid Support Forces (RSF).

"There is no right to go on fighting for power when the country is falling apart," UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres told Al Arabiya television.

Burhan and Daglo have agreed to multiple truces since the war began, but none has effectively taken hold as the number of dead civilians continues to rise, thousands flee the country and those without the means to escape face an increasing struggle to survive.

The latest three-day cease-fire is due to expire at midnight Sunday (2200 GMT). It was agreed Thursday after mediation led by the United States, Saudi Arabia, the African Union and the United Nations.

Poland announces $2.4 bln air defence deal with Europe’s MBDA

POLAND on Friday announced it had signed a £1.9-billion ($2.4-billion) air defence deal with the UK arm of Europe’s MBDA, which will provide missiles and missile launchers.

The government of the EU member — one of the staunchest supporters of war-torn Ukraine since Russia’s invasion more than a year ago — said the deal would boost Poland’s aerial defence. It concerns “the supply of 44 iLaunchers and several hundred CAMM missiles as well as accompanying equipment”, Poland’s armament agency said.

“The value of the order is around £1.9 billion... Deliveries of the military equipment will take place in 2025-2029,” it added.

Missile maker MBDA called the deal “the largest European short-range air defence acquisition programme in NATO”.

The missiles and missile launchers will go “to support Poland’s modernization and manufacture of a total of 22 PILICA+ air defence batteries.”

A Downing Street press release said British Prime Minister Rishi Sunak hailed the “landmark deal... as a major boost for Euro-Atlantic security”. It added that Poland already uses MBDA’s CAMM.

“It is already deployed to Poland with the British Army to protect its airspace following (Russian President Vladimir) Putin’s barbaric invasion of Ukraine,” Sunak’s office said. Polish Defence Minister Mariusz Blaszczak tweeted that the deal would “reinforce Poland’s aerial defence

Cyberattacks increasing in Japan ahead of G-7 summit

THE number of cyberattacks against companies and government offices has been increasing in Japan since March, ahead of a Group of Seven summit the country is set to host in May, sources familiar with the matter said Saturday.

Troubles caused by DDoS attacks, which attempt to disrupt the online traffic of a server or network by overwhelming it with data, were mostly fixed quickly, the sources said.

“There is a possibility that (Japan) is being targeted as the host of the G-7 summit, and we have warned relevant organizations to stay alert,” an official at the National Centre of Incident Readiness and Strategy for Cybersecurity said.

Tsunehiko Suzuki, a professor of information engineering at Chukyo University, said the attacks may have come as part of preparations for launching a full-scale attack.

The series of attacks began around March 14 and are still ongoing, he said. The summit will be held in Hiroshima between 19 and 21 May, bringing together the leaders of Britain, Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Japan and the United States, plus the European Union. — Kyodo

Greenland unveils draft constitution for future independence

GREENLAND’S lawmakers on Friday got their first look at a draft constitution which the autonomous territory could rely on if it comes to negotiating independence from Denmark.

Developed in secrecy over four years, the 49-paragraph document written in Greenlandic was presented by a constitutional commission to the territory’s parliament, the Inatsisartut, where it will now be discussed.

The text, still in the draft stage, did not come down firmly on several key issues, local media reported — including Greenlandic passport access and the administration of justice, areas still managed by mainland Denmark.

It also made no reference to the monarchy, leaving unresolved the question of whether the queen or king of Denmark would remain head of state.

“For the time being (the draft constitution) is primarily a Greenlandic issue. It will only concern Denmark when Greenland has discussed it and depending on what the politicians decide,” Ulrik Pram Gad, a researcher at the Danish Institute for International Studies and an expert on Danish-Greenlandic relations told AFP. — AFP

Italy lifts block on ChatGPT, AI chatbot owner says

ITALY has lifted its block on ChatGPT after temporarily banning it over data privacy concerns last month, the artificial intelligence chatbot’s owner said Friday.

“ChatGPT is available again for our users in Italy. We are delighted to welcome them back and remain committed to protecting their personal data,” an OpenAI spokesperson said.

ChatGPT caused a global sensation when it was released last year for generating essays, songs, exams and even news articles from brief prompts.

But critics have fretted over how ChatGPT and its competitors collect and process their data.

In March, Italy became the first Western country to take action against the popular AI chatbot. The country’s data protection watchdog had said that US firm OpenAI, which developed ChatGPT, had no legal basis to justify the mass collection and storage of personal data for training the algorithms underlying the operation of the platform. — AFP

Football great Pele enters Portuguese dictionary as an adjective

"PELE," arguably the best footballer in history, is now also an adjective.

On Wednesday, the word "pele" was added to the more than 167,000 words in the Michaelis

Portuguese dictionary printed in Brazil.

For the world's 265 million-odd Portuguese speakers, "pele" can now be used to denote something or someone extraordinary — the sense in which it is already employed informally in Brazil.

"The expression already used to refer to someone who is the best at what they do has been eternalized on the pages of the dictionary!" the Pele Foundation said on Instagram.

Under the new entry, the word is defined as "exceptional, incomparable, unique" — qualities associated with "The King" of football who died in December at the age of 82. — AFP
