Country's current situation – only our internal affairs

IN democracy, Hluttaw is the highest political stage. Ethnic groups for their part must represent the Hluttaw on a larger scale in the political stage. The current situation in the country is only our internal affairs. The forthcoming election is just our nation's election, not a world election. It is just necessary to ensure that the election will be free and fair for our citizens.

Technologies and skills of human resources can contribute to booming the State economy: Senior General

In the electricity sector, governments in successive eras have approved electric power projects but revoked and suspended some of them for various reasons. As such, the Senior General called for bravely implementing short-term, medium-term and long-term plans for electrification.

The Senior General underscored that it is necessary to emphasize collection between MSME businesses and heavy industries to invite foreign investment. If foreign investment can be invited to manufacturing, agriculture and livestock, textile and garment industries, it can generate jobs for local people to raise per-capita income.

The Senior General stressed that region and state chief ministers have to invite ethnic businesspersons to operate manufacturing industries in livestock breeding zones and industrial zones.

To improve MSME businesses, an economic environment must be created by reducing hindrances to initiating new businesses, smoothening the flow of capital, strengthening awareness and entrepreneurship and joining the international supply chain to speed up the information network and information distribution.

The Senior General pointed out that the central committee has to assist in initiating the digital economy for MSME businesses by applying digital technology.

Vice-Chairman of the Central Committee SAC Vice-Chairman Deputy Prime Minister Vice-Senior General Soe Win explained the formation of the central committee and work committees and undertaking for the development of MSME businesses.

Secretary Union Minister for Industry Dr Charlie Than reported on accomplishments for minutes of previous meetings and future plans.

Central Committee member Deputy Prime Minister Union Minister U Win Shein, Union ministers, chief ministers of regions and states, the chairman of Nay Pyi Taw Council, the governor of Central Bank of Myanmar and officials reported on undertakings of relevant ministries and organizations for booming MSME businesses and future plans.

After hearing the reports, the Senior General highlighted the encouragement to MSME businesses, firmness of land policies, formation of manufacturing cooperative societies, systematic management of natural resources, betterment of communication system, implementation of the public transport system, and concerted efforts of relevant ministries, region and state governments and partner organizations for encouraging domestic production.

In his speech, the Senior General said that region and state governments have to secure success in operating businesses suitable for their regions. Relevant governments need to decide the operation of manufacturing in regions and states with the use of domestic raw materials. Human resources must be combined with production technologies. Technologies and skills of human resources can contribute to booming the State economy. The Senior General stressed the need to control the correct ways and means for loans. The Senior General urged authorities of regions and states to generate electricity by using bio-gasifiers and solar systems on their own programmes while the government is implementing the electrification projects. — MNA/TTA

Take severe action against those who commit illegal trade

AS THE government imports basic personal goods from foreign countries to meet the local demand, it is necessary to strive for manufacturing the same products for domestic consumption as well as exporting the surplus to foreign markets.

Every manufacturing industry needs raw materials. If such materials cannot arrive in the market in time, finished goods production industries will face disadvantages, causing high prices for products. At the same time, basic personal goods at cheap prices from other countries will flow into the domestic market through illegal ways and means, harming the standing of SME businesses in Myanmar.

Now is the time for all citizens of Myanmar to understand the legal and illegal trade process which benefits the whole nation and the people. Domestic manufacturing industries based on legal trade are based on the encouragement of the people for their booming economy as well as for the booming State economy so as to alleviate poverty in all walks of life.

smuggled commodity owners and vehicle owners who intentionally commit illegal trade again, they have to close companies and confiscate vehicles. Moreover, those owners have to sign the assurance not to commit illegal trade again.

On the other hand, people should not purchase and consume smuggled products as a national duty. Even if domestic products are expensive, they have to use them as encouraging the domestic industries in order to give a helping hand to MSME businesses for their long-term standing. Only when MSME businesses boom at home, the prices of products manufactured at home will decline for a long time.

Now is the time for all citizens of Myanmar to understand the legal and illegal trade process which benefits the whole nation and the people. Domestic manufacturing industries based on legal trade are based on the encouragement of the people for their booming economy as well as for the booming State economy so as to alleviate poverty in all walks of life.

That is why it is necessary to effectively eradicate illegal trade in continuity. As part of conducting faster examining the cargo trucks along the trade routes, officials from checkpoints and posts have to apply QR codes and E-lock systems in examining the products and whether they were imported illegally or not.

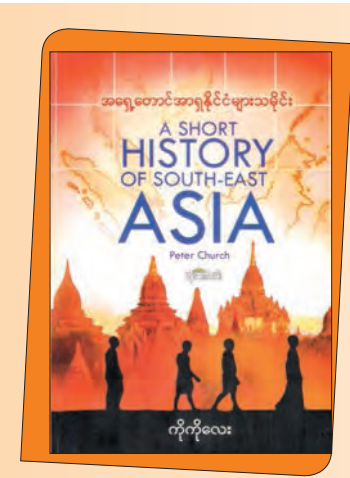

Authorities need to effectively take action against those who repeatedly committed illegal trade measures. Moreover, severe action must be taken against those who did not stop committing offences in illegal trade, under the Customs Law and other related laws. Such an action must be punishment for those offenders not to dare commit more offences due to the deterrent action.

In the past, authorities seized restricted goods in illegal trade and smuggled goods but allowed the owners to pay these items in ransom money. Currently, such a way will not be an effective action for offenders. In taking severe action, if authorities arrest

Ahshay Taung Asia Naing-Ngan Myar Thamaing
(A Short History of South-East Asia by Peter Church)

Peter Church, the writer of the book under review, said that he wrote this book as he was urged by Mr Lee Kwan Yu, who said that he should compile a book of the profiles of all ASEAN member nations.

The region of South-East Asia (SEA) is located in the southeast of Asia, to the South of China, to the East of India and to the North of Australia. And South-East Asia is divided into two parts – the mainland and the peninsula. The South-East Asia Peninsula or the Indo-China Peninsula is part of the South-East Asia Region. This region is located adjacent to Mainland Asia, to the East of India, to the South of China, to the West of the Indian Ocean and to the East of the Pacific Ocean. The countries located on the mainland/peninsula are Cambodia, Laos, Myanmar, Thailand and Viet Nam while the countries located on the peninsula are: Brunei, East Timor, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines and Singapore.

When people talk of nations, history and policy are generally the main topics to discuss. Nonetheless, there are certain people who prefer to talk about the institutions of the nations. Yet there is another topic, which requires a deep understanding, geopolitics. To develop the economy of a nation, the geography of that nation is needed to be well aware. Likewise, it is also of vital importance to understand the geopolitics of the neighbouring nations as well as to be well aware of the associations or the regional groupings. To build up an ideology, the geopolitics of the neighbouring nations and also their geoeconomics must be understood. As geopolitics has become important, the following factors and facts must be known: how the people of a nation are distributed or spread; what their cultures are; what their natural resources are; the cultivable acreage; the production system and their products; their geographical conditions; their climates;

their river systems; whether they have the coastal areas or not, the delta areas or not or the deserts; their trade routes; and their forest and industrial raw materials. This book will be of great help for the readers to know the above-mentioned facts and factors. Only the salient points were stated in the book as the writer had to cover all 10 members and the observer status nation. The writer is found not to be biased in mentioning the historical facts. He is not subjective in his presentation. Regarding the history of Myanmar, he is found to have been honest. He touched on the history of Maung Pauk Kyaing fairly and squarely. However, he was rather straightforward in depicting Dabinshwehtee, the King of Hanthawady. He said the King was a drunkard, who died of drunkenness. And when he criticized the First Anglo-Burmese War, Peter Church was rather direct, attributing the Burmese defeat to its lack of international experience. He was honest in saying that the Burmese soldiers were rather proud and overconfident in themselves. This is the reason why they were defeated. Burmese failed to employ the diplomatic channel. Instead of making the negotiations, the Burmese were belligerent. This mentality had caused their defeat by the British.

WHO backs farmers to grow food instead of tobacco

THE World Health Organization said Friday it was helping a growing number of farmers turn away from tobacco to help strengthen food security, particularly in Africa.

Ahead of World No Tobacco Day on Wednesday, the WHO said it had teamed up with other United Nations agencies to support farmers wishing to convert from growing tobacco to growing food.

The scheme's pilot in Kenya has proved successful and now the UN wants to export it to other countries and continents.

“A record of 349 million people face acute food insecurity and that is up from 135 million in 2019,” Ruediger Krech, the WHO’s director for health promotion, told reporters in Geneva.

“Then we have 124 countries which grow tobacco as a cash crop, covering an estimated 3.2 million hectares of land. Approximately 200,000 hectares of land are cleared every year for tobacco crop growing.”

Beyond its effects on the health of smokers and farmers, tobacco growing poses a problem for food security, according to the WHO.

The UN health agency is concerned that tobacco companies are gaining an increasing foothold in Africa, with a rise of nearly 20 per cent in tobacco plantations across the continent since 2005.

“It is often said that tobacco farming would be so important for economic growth. This is a myth that we urgently need to dispel,” said Krech. He said it only accounts for more than one per cent of gross domestic product in five countries: Malawi, Mozambique, Zimbabwe, Tanzania and North Macedonia.

“So the profits go to the global tobacco companies.”

Dependency ‘trap’

The WHO accuses the tobacco industry of trapping farmers in a “cycle of dependency”, giving them little control over product prices and quality.

“They’re trapped. They need to repay the debt before they can discontinue the work for big tobacco,” said Krech.

Three UN agencies — the WHO, the Food and Agriculture Organization and the World Food Programme — have set up a credit programme to help farmers pay off their tobacco industry debts and change their crop.

The scheme was launched in Migori county in southwest Kenya, where 2,040 farmers have been helped in the first year.

“We were really positively surprised to see so much interest,” said Krech. “But they saw that this is a viable alternative,” making triple the profits.

“They have already shifted to growing high iron beans. This moving away from growing also meant that children can go to school instead of growing tobacco.

Lee Kuan Yew Hnit Zagar Samyi: Citizen Singapore: How to Build A Nation
(Conversations with Lee Kuan Yew by Tom Plate)

Zakir Hussain, the political editor of the Strait Times, has provided his opinion on this book under review. This book is basically the transcripts of dialogues with Mr Lee Kuan Yew, who is a utilitarianist. He is known to be a Confucian, who believes in Wu-Lun (Five Relationships). His definition of Public Policy is the greatest good for the greatest number. His son Hsien Loong has become the Prime Minister of Singapore. Tom Plate concluded that Lee Kuan Yew can be characterized as ‘Plato meets Machiavelli,’ in that, he’s searching for utopia on earth but also realistic enough to get things done.

The writer said Mr Lee has a brilliant insight into the personality of the people, that he was rather open and candid, that he can provide guidance in many aspects with his experience as a veteran politician and that he has participated not only in the regional affairs but also in the global issues.

This book has 24 episodes. And the way of presentation is vibrant. In addition to the interviews with Mr Lee, Mr Plate has also included his own views. Additionally, the book includes remarks by international leaders and academicians and also the management science researchers. The remarks include those of Dr Henry Kissenger and ex-premier of Singapore Mr Goh. Not only their remarks but also those of John Major, the British Prime Minister (1990-1997), Dr Mahathir, the Malaysian Prime Minister (1981-2003), an ex-Vietnamese Ambassador to the European Union, and Jimmy Carter, the President of the United States of America (1977-1981). They have all good opinions about Mr Lee Kuan Yew.

The original writer of this book is an American named Tom Plate. He has been a columnist with the Los Angeles Times since 1955. He has conducted four personal interviews with Mr Lee Kuan Yew before he wrote this book under review. And these interviews are exclusive. He said that the objective of his interviews is to find out how intelligent he is and how deeply he knows things in many aspects.

How Mr Lee is frank can be seen in his conversation with Mr Ban Ki Moon. Once Mr Ban invited Mr Lee to a big lunch during which the former asked the latter whether Mr Goh will contest the United Nations Secretary-General position. Mr Lee replied that Mr Goh would not apply for the UNSG position because he was not cut out for a diplomat, who is required to exercise great restraint and show patience in doing the negotiations. He also said that Mr Goh is suitable for Singapore only.

This book will also be good for reporters who need to know how to conduct a good interview.

YGEA lowers gold reference price as spot gold price dips

THE spot gold price declined below US$1,946 per ounce, prompting the Yangon Region Gold Entrepreneurs Association (YGEA) to reduce the reference price to K2,292,600 per tical (0.578 ounce or 0.016 kilogramme).

When spot gold price climbed to $2,040 per ounce, the YGEA hiked the reference rate to above K2.4 million per tical in early May 2023.

Meanwhile, pure gold hovered at approximately K3 million per tical in the unofficial market.

Consequently, there is a large price difference of over K700,000 per tical between the YGEA's reference price and the price in the unofficial market.

YGEA calculated the price depending on the Central Bank of Myanmar's reference exchange rate of K2,100, with some addition, while the US dollar is exchanged at K2,890 in the unauthorized forex market.

The US dollar exchange rate weighs on domestic gold prices. The YGEA requested sellers to make gold transactions below K2.9 million per tical on 27 April when the gap between the reference price and the market price is wide. Following the bankruptcy of the US bank, the gold price soared. Despite the gold gain in the global market, Myanmar's forex market sees no movement at all. Consequently, YGEA requested its members not to buy them competitively, tracking the upward trend in the gold spot price, as per YGEA's statement released on 20 March.

Afterwards, the YGEA called for the members to make gold transactions with only immediate payment and avoid verbal transactions over calls without having any physical stocks.

The YGEA is not bound to have any responsibilities for market manipulation in the unofficial market. As a result of this, its members are asked to strictly adhere to the rules and regulations of the association while making gold transactions.

At present, the authorities concerned are attempting to deal with market abuse and inspecting and prosecuting market manipulation is being undertaken.

Moreover, the Central Bank of Myanmar will inspect those manipulators to interfere with market stability through digital platforms, according to the notification dated 20 March.

The soaring dollar exchanging at over K4,500 drove the pure gold price up to a record-high of K3.7 million per tical in late August 2022.

Gold ornaments are seen at one gold outlet.

For the gold price to decline, the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation has been selling gold ingots under the competitive bidding system in Yangon, Mandalay and Nay Pyi Taw.

With an aim at reducing gold prices, the YGEA and Mandalay Region Gold Entrepreneurs Association sold gold bullion supplied by the executive members and the members as well. — NN/EM

CBM says no plan to change reference exchange rate

THE Central Bank of Myanmar (CBM) has no plan to change the reference exchange rate and it will maintain USD liquidity and Kyat Liquidity providing operations, according to the CBM's notification released on 26 May.

Additionally, the CBM will sell more foreign currencies at the FX counters of the relevant banks.

To stabilize and enhance the FX market, the CBM has been providing liquidity through local banks. It helps reduce the need for US dollar liquidity and Kyat liquidity for the businesspersons and stabilize the exchange rate, the statement mentioned.

However, those unscrupulous are attempting to take advantage of some people by manipulating the FX market with false rumours.

This being so, the CBM announced that it has no plan to change the reference exchange rate. The CBM will continue to provide USD liquidity and Kyat liquidity.

Those studying abroad, working abroad under the foreign recruitment program of the Ministry of Labour and going abroad for medical treatment are entitled to buy large amounts of foreign currencies at the banks' FX counters and the CBM has planned to sell the cards for international payment during the set period.

The CBM warned the people of malicious rumours regarding the FX market.

Investigation and prosecution of market manipulation to hike the exchange rate in the local forex market by disseminating incorrect information will be undertaken under the provisions stipulated in the Central Bank of Myanmar Law and Foreign Exchange Management Law. Tipping off about the manipulators can be done through the CBM's email: gov.office@cbm.gov.mm. — NN/EM

14 Indo-Pacific nations to strengthen supply chain for critical items

Trade ministers from the economies that form the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum meet in Detroit on 25 May 2023. PHOTO: KYODO

MINISTERS from the United States, Japan and 12 other Indo-Pacific nations will agree at their meeting Saturday in Detroit to bolster supply chains for chips, medicine and other critical items in the event of an emergency under a US-led economic initiative, sources familiar with the matter said Friday.

The enhanced supply chain resiliency will be the first agreement among 14 member countries of the Indo-Pacific Economic Framework, representing 40 per cent of global gross domestic product, and could help counter China's economic influence in the region.

Supplies of food, energy and key industrial products, such as semiconductors, were disrupted by the COVID-19 pandemic and Russia's war in Ukraine.

The IPEF partners, also including Australia, Indonesia, India, South Korea and Thailand, aim to respond to emergencies more promptly, ensuring the procurement of vital goods and sharing of information, under a new scheme, according to the sources.

The US led initiative covers four pillars — fair trade, supply chain resilience, clean energy and proper taxation and anti-corruption — and is also regarded as a symbol of the world's biggest economy's reengagement in the fast-growing region after its withdrawal from the Trans-Pacific Partnership free trade deal in 2017.

Russia and China, which are deepening their economic and security partnership amid increasing tensions with the United States and other countries, are not part of the IPEF. — AFP

Japan PM vows to set up digital research centre at ASEAN institute

JAPANESE Prime Minister Fumio Kishida pledged Thursday to set up a research centre on digital innovation at the Economic Research Institute for ASEAN and East Asia, aiming to enhance reliable data collaboration and utilization in the region.

At the three-day Group of Seven summit through Sunday in Japan's western city of Hiroshima, the leaders from the advanced economies confirmed the importance of security in data collaboration involving personal information and intellectual property across borders.

Kishida made the latest proposal regarding digital innovation in a speech at an event in Tokyo. The research institute of the 10-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations is based in Indonesia's capital of Jakarta.

Earlier in the day, Kishida held bilateral talks at his office with Lao President Thongloun Sisoulith, the Japanese Foreign Ministry said.

Kishida told Thongloun, who became president in March 2021, that Japan will make efforts to promote infrastructure investment in Laos, as the two countries will mark the 70th anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations in 2025.

S Korea freezes policy rate at 3.5% for 3rd time

SOUTH Korea's central bank on Thursday froze its policy rate for the third successive time this year on the back of lower inflationary pressure and greater worries about an economic downturn.

Bank of Korea (BOK) Governor Rhee Chang-yong and other monetary policymakers decided to leave the benchmark seven-day repurchase rate unchanged at 3.50 per cent.

It was in line with market expectations. According to the Korea Financial Investment Association's poll of 100 fixed-income experts, 89 per cent predicted the rate freeze this month.

The BOK put the rate on hold in February and April after delivering seven back-to-back rate hikes by 3.0 percentage points between August 2021 and January 2023. The successive rate freeze came amid lower inflationary pressure. The country's consumer prices rose 3.7 per cent in April from a year earlier, falling below four per cent in 14 months. — Xinhua

Toyota puts liquid hydrogen-powered car into 24-hour race

TOYOTA Motor Corp on 27 May entered a racing car powered by liquid hydrogen into a 24-hour endurance race in central Japan, making it the first such car in the world to participate in an official race.

The move is the latest endeavour by the Japanese automaker to popularize hydrogen as a cleaner alternative to fossil fuel amid tightening environmental regulations worldwide since it does not emit carbon dioxide when burnt.

Toyota, the developer of the world's first mass-produced fuel cell vehicle, Mirai, has said offering a wide range of green vehicles, including hybrid cars, is more effective in cutting their carbon footprint than just focusing on electric vehicles. The entry comes as the use of hydrogen gains popularity across industries. Four major motorcycle makers in Japan, including Kawasaki Motors Ltd., said earlier this month they will jointly develop hydrogen-powered engines with an eye to launching them on two-wheelers.

The race at Fuji Speedway in Shizuoka Prefecture will be held through Sunday.

Toyota started to run a hydrogen engine car in a race in May 2021, using gaseous hydrogen. It initially aimed to enter a liquid hydrogen vehicle into a race this March, but the plan stalled after a vehicle caught fire during a test run. — Kyodo

Google withdraws 'Slavery Simulator' game app after Brazil outcry

GOOGLE has withdrawn a gaming app that allowed players to buy, sell and torture black virtual "slaves" after a racism outcry in Brazil.

Dubbed "Slavery Simulator," the Portuguese-language game saw players trade in slaves and strategize to prevent the abolition of slavery in order to amass virtual riches. The prosecutor's office said it had opened an investigation for "hate speech" related to the game downloaded by hundreds of people.

The app itself had come with a disclaimer condemning "all types of slavery" and insisting the game was "solely for entertainment purposes."

After withdrawing the app from its Play-store, Google said in a statement that "applications that promote violence or hatred against groups of people or individuals because of their skin color or ethnic origin" would not be allowed on its platform.—AFP

OpenAI chief seeks to calm fears on job losses

The boss of OpenAI, Sam Altman, has been on a global tour to charm national leaders and powerbrokers. PHOTO: AFP

THE boss of OpenAI, the firm behind the massive-ly popular ChatGPT bot, said on Friday that his firm's technology would not destroy the job market as he sought to calm fears about the march of artificial intelligence (AI).

Sam Altman, on a global tour to charm national leaders and powerbrokers, said in Paris that AI would not — as some have warned — wipe out whole sectors of the workforce through automation.

"This idea that AI is going to progress to a point where humans don't have any work to do or don't have any purpose has never resonated with me," he said.

Asked about the media industry, where several outlets already use AI to generate stories, Altman said ChatGPT should instead be like giving a journalist 100 assistants to help them research and come up with ideas.

ChatGPT burst into the spotlight late last year, demonstrating an ability to generate essays, poems and conversations from the briefest of prompts. — AFP

Pakistan welcomes first direct cargo ship from Russia

AS Russian exports to Asia continue to rise, a Russian container ship, Crystal Saint Petersburg, just docked at Karachi Port after making a maiden journey in just 21 days.

On 25 May, a landmark event took place in Pakistan's southern port city as the Russian cargo vessel arrived at Karachi International Container Terminal (KICT) marking the beginning of a direct shipping link between the two nations.

Loaded with 2,000 transshipment containers, Crystal Saint Petersburg's arrival is highlighting the profound market access and cost-saving benefits it brings to Pakistani exporters targeting Russia's extensive consumer market.

It's worth noting that India and China became the largest buyers of Russian energy last month, accounting for more than two-thirds of the country's coal exports sent to Asia. Meanwhile, South Korea, Viet Nam, Malaysia, and Sri Lanka have also become significant buyers of Russian energy items, with Saudi Arabia and the UAE stepping up their purchases of Russian fuel. The ceremonial welcome that Crystal Saint Petersburg received upon her arrival is a testament to the budding trade ties between the two nations. — SPUTNIK

Al-Shabaab strikes African Union army base in Somalia

AL-SHABAAB fighters raided an African Union military base housing Ugandan troops in Somalia on Friday, triggering a fierce gun battle.

It was not immediately known if there were any casualties in the attack, which was claimed by the Al-Qaeda-linked jihadist group.

A car laden with explosives was driven into the base in Bullo Marer, 120 kilometres (75 miles) southwest of the capital Mogadishu, leading to a gunfight, local residents and a Somali military commander told AFP.

Pro-government forces backed by the AU force known as ATMIS launched an offensive last August against Al-Shabaab, which has been waging an insurgency in the fragile Horn of Africa nation for more than 15 years.

ATMIS said the Bullo Marer camp came under attack at 5 am (0200 GMT) by Al-Shabaab militants "using Vehicle Borne Improvised Explosive Devices (VBIEDs) and suicide bombers".

"Reinforcements from ATMIS' Aviation Unit and allies managed to destroy weapons in possession of the withdrawing Al-Shabaab militants," it said in a statement. — AFP

Thousands converge in Belgrade for pro-govt rally after mass protests

THOUSANDS of government supporters took to the streets of the Serbian capital, Belgrade, on Friday to rally behind President Aleksandar Vucic, following a string of big demonstrations against his administration in the wake of two mass shootings this month.

The "Serbia of Hope" rally is widely perceived as a government response to the opposition-led protests that have seen tens of thousands demonstrate in one of the largest mass demonstrations to rock the Balkan country in decades.

Vucic's supporters arrived by bus and train from across Serbia throughout Friday, sparking accusations from human rights groups that people were being pressured into attending.

"I trust these people who lead the country and that is why I am here, to support this gathering," Branko Marovic, 82, told AFP.

The president hailed Friday's event as "a gathering where we will try to unite Serbia and show that it has a future".

The protests against the government first took shape earlier this month following back-to-back shootings within 48 hours — including a massacre at an elementary school in Belgrade. — AFP

France, Netherlands ink deal on Caribbean ‘footrace frontier’

FRANCE and the Netherlands have signed a historic accord demarcating the border between the two countries on the island of Saint Martin in the Caribbean.

Around 400 years ago, two groups of runners — one Dutch, one French — are said to have set off from the same point on the Caribbean island of Saint Martin to trace the border between their nations.

Starting from a bay on the east coast and running in opposite directions, the runners in 1648 eventually met on the west coast of the island, with a straight line between the two points forming the international border ever since.

According to the legend, the Gallic runners were faster, handing France by far the larger share of the roughly 90-square-kilometre (35-square-mile) tropical paradise, which they called Saint Martin.

The Netherlands took the southern part, which they named Sint Maarten, with the athletic feat and the peaceful coexistence of the two colonial powers leading

France and the Netherlands have now agreed to officially recognize the border that was drawn up 400 years ago. This agreement will make sure that the border between the two countries on Saint Martin will stay the same. to the territory being dubbed the “friendly island”. The agreement was signed for France on Friday by Interior Minister Gerald Darmanin and for the Netherlands by Silveria E. Jacobs, prime minister of the autonomous government of Sint Maarten.

“This historic agreement will help facilitate the process of rebuilding the island, which was severely affected by Hurricane Irma in 2017,” the French interior ministry said in a statement.

The text of the agreement “preserves the principle of free movement of goods and persons established by the Concordia accords of 23 March 1648”.

The agreement also “establishes a joint monitoring commission charged with monitoring and maintaining the border” which had been disputed at its eastern end. “It illustrates the quality of the friendly relations between France and the Netherlands, eager to reinforce their trusting cooperation on the island of Saint Martin,” it said.

It stressed “the shared desire of the territorial council of Saint Martin and the autonomous government of Sint Maarten to continue to develop their close ties and their joint projects of cross-border cooperation,” it said. — AFP

The links to Ukraine corresponded with assessments by multiple intelligence services, according to Spiegel. — AFP

Pakistan establishment closes ranks in crackdown on Khan

WITH military courts, intimidation of the press and mass arrests, Pakistan’s rulers are seeking to destroy former prime minister Imran Khan’s support ahead of elections, analysts say. Khan’s brief arrest earlier this month sparked days of street protests freighted with anger at the powerful army perceived to have orchestrated his downfall.

Islamabad has labelled the violence “anti-state”, justifying huge roundups and the revival of army courts to try civilians who targeted government and military buildings.

Journalists, lawyers and activists in Khan’s Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) party report campaigns of intimidation and influence which they blame on the “establishment”, a euphemism for the military backing the civilian government. — AFP

Ex-FIFA vice-president Temarii charged over 2022 World Cup vote

FIFA'S disgraced former vice-president Reynald Temarii of Tahiti has been charged with corruption by French prosecutors probing Qatar's 2022 World Cup bid process.

The charge, the first to emerge from the years-long investigation, is for passive corruption and was confirmed by France's financial crimes prosecutors (PNF). Temarii is a former president of the Oceania Football Confederation (OFC).

But he was forced out in 2010 after being implicated in a vote-selling scandal during an undercover newspaper sting before the controversial awarding to Qatar of last year's football showpiece.
