Building of a Union system is the most reliable system for our country

THROUGH historical experience, it is not enough to foster a multiparty democratic system alone in our nation-building, and it can be seen that the building of a Union system in the oneness of opportunity through a peaceful co-existence of multi-ethnicity is the most reliable system for our country.

Striving for declining basic goods prices

Some unscrupulous persons not wishing to see peace and stability and development of the country attempted to cause political crises of the country by imposing economic sanctions and raising commodity prices. The government could overcome such difficulties. No to raise foodstuff prices, it is necessary to successfully improve agriculture and livestock farms. Agricultural lands in the region must be efficiently utilized. Agriculture and livestock farms must be actually beneficial, contributing to the food supplies of Yangon population. Ayethaya of southern Shan State sends eggs and Bago and Ayeyawady regions duck eggs to Yangon Region but the prices of goods are too much higher than the actual ones. The Senior General stressed the need to scrutinize higher prices of consumer goods than the deserved prices. Primarily, it is necessary to produce goods in Yangon Region and collect products from other regions at fair prices so that the people of Yangon Region do not face the impacts of higher prices for goods.

Do meritorious deeds by easing DHF tension among people

DENGUE haemorrhagic fever is one of the very dangerous diseases which mostly starts outbreak in early monsoon in Myanmar. Such a disease can pose threats to people, mostly under 15 years of age but those people above 15 years are also suffering from DHF unexpectedly.

Unfortunately, patients may lose life in suffering from DHF. According to the statistics of the Ministry of Health, a total of 1,717 people became victims of DHF, seven of who died of the disease during the period from 1 January to 20 May 2023. It spotlighted that anyone should not underestimate outbreaks and impacts of DHF in society.

Social organizations and health staff need to inform people about the symptoms of DHF and ways to prevent such a disease in time before monsoon. Whenever they find DHF patients, they should have to provide necessary treatments to the patients so as to ease the tensions of patient families. If so, health staff and health organizations will win more trust and reliance of the people.

Social organizations and health staff need to inform people about the symptoms of DHF and ways to prevent such a disease in time before monsoon. Whenever they find DHF patients, they should have to provide necessary treatments to the patients so as to ease the tensions of patient families. If so, health staff and health organizations will win more trust and reliance of the people. As most of the DHF patients are children under 15 years of age, their sufferings can spread to their families. It can be said that easing or removal of plights from any other can be defined as doing meritorious deeds. As most of the Myanmar people are Buddhists, not only people but health personnel have to ease the tension, sufferings and plights of others for their worrying about outbreaks of DHF as much as possible.

India's trinity of technologies can push Africa's digital and physical connectivity

BY S VENKAT NARAYAN
Our Special Correspondent

Sunil Bharti Mittal

ment and the G20, Bharti Airtel Chairman Sunil Bharti Mittal, who is heading the B20 Council, has said.

The B20 is the official G20 dialogue forum with the global business community, and its recommendations are often incorporated in the G20's work programme.

African integration has evinced a special interest from Prime Minister Narendra Modi since it is an area where he wants to leave a legacy, Mittal said in an interview to Business Standard. The recommendations will be officially released at the B20's final upcoming final meeting in August.

"The main pillar on which our work is based is the need to establish digital and physical connectivity. A massive infrastructure intervention is required to create and connect border roads, waterways and train lines. To raise digital connectivity, India's digital stack, including our biometrics, Jan Dhan technology and mobile connectivity, can be leveraged," he said.

India is also keen to share its indigenously developed digital stack with African nations, inquiries from many of which have already come, officials have confirmed.

"India wants to use this as an opportunity to project its soft power; rather than as an economic agenda or a business opportunity to populate as many countries across the globe, and especially the global south with the Indian stack," Mittal said.

Mittal has been closely associated with the continent since 2010 when Airtel Africa began operations. It now has the largest geographical and economic footprint in Africa among Indian corporates, serving 14 markets, primarily in east and central Africa. With a total user base of 140 million as of end-2022, the company is the second-largest in the African continent.

Equally, it is also the second-largest carrier in terms of subscribers in Africa's largest economy — Nigeria owing to its cheap data plans. With 54.6 million data customers and 31.5 million customers using mobile money, Airtel Africa is positioning itself to tap the vast well of consumer demand for these services.

Another pillar of B20's recommendations will be on transforming agriculture and the food system in Africa.

"Parts of Africa, such as the DRC (Democratic Republic of Congo), are extremely fertile, but still there aren't many crops. The Congo basin can feed the world, especially in the aftermath of the crisis in Ukraine and global wheat prices soaring. Africa can feed the world for decades to come. There would be no food shortage if everybody focuses on Africa, and it would grow those nation's economies," Mittal stressed.

He suggested India's agriculture universities can take forward their collective work on the green and white revolutions and partner with African institutions.

Improving barriers to trade and logistics is another important focus area, a senior functionary of Confederation of Indian Industry (CII) said.

Africa is a huge continent of 54 countries, with a $3.14 trillion nominal GDP as of 2023 and 1.43 billion people. But internal trade between African economies remains much lower than their trade with external partners.

In 1897, his first novel was published with the title, 'Liza of Lambeth.' Dropping the stethoscope, he picked up the pen. In our country of Myanmar, there emerged doctor-turned-writers in the 1980s, which was the golden era of novels in Myanmar. All the novels of Somerset Maugham are the best sellers. They are all famous across the world. Thanks to the effort exerted by the translators, Somerset Maugham is not strange to the readers of Myanmar. The Painted Veil is an American drama based on a woman called Kitty, who comes from the south of Kingston. Beautiful but dangerous, she is always surrounded by men. And she is always ready to dance with the man who invites her to do so. She is easy to make friends with but she will not hesitate to reject the proposal made by the men. However, her jealousy over her sister has forced her to get married to Walter, a young doctor working at a laboratory in Hong Kong as a bacteriologist. This is in fact not a love marriage. Bored with their unhappy married life, she started an extramarital affair with a secretary from the Hong Kong Administration. In fact, his paramour is a married with two children. But their affair was discovered by her husband soon. And Walter threatened his rival with a lawsuit. As the secret lover of Kitty tended to become the Administrator of Hong Kong, he had no choice but to abandon her. Thus, Kitty and her paramour were separated, and Walter brought his wife Kitty to another place. What is worth noting is the advice given by the headmistress of a Christian Convent School. The mother said, "You can't find peace at work or in happiness, in this convent school and on this earth. You can find peace only in your soul."

The Class is a novel based on the student's life at the University of Harvard. The period was between 1954 and 1958. The book is about the five fictional members of this class: Andrew Eliot, Jason Gilbert, Theodore Lambros, Daniel Rossi and George Keller. The Class follows the diverse fates of five members of Harvard's Class of 1958, recounting the way their lives intertwine, and coming to a dramatic conclusion at their class reunion 25 years later. Andrew Eliot comes from the Boston Brahmin Eliot family. Due to his background, he feels the pressure of high expectations, which causes him to suffer from a lack of confidence. He is otherwise laid-back and friendly, and a good friend to all his classmates. To experience life without privilege and to fulfil his military obligation, he serves in the Navy as an ordinary swabbie. Unfortunately, his wife is a serial adulteress and alcoholic and demands a divorce, leaving him estranged from his own son and daughter with limited visitation. Jason Gilbert Jr has the makings of a perfect son, of whom any parent would be proud. Despite this, the one thing that troubles him is his constant conflict with his identity as a Jew. He experiences prejudice at several points, when denied admission to Yale and when denied invitation to the punches of Harvard's final clubs. He sees more pervasive racism when a popular black athlete is denied entrance to the HastyPudding Club, and when a drill instructor punishes him during his service in the Marines. Theodore Lambros was born to a working-class Greek family and is admitted to Harvard with no scholarship after graduating from Cambridge Latin School. He thus must work as a waiter to support himself throughout his schooling, unable to afford to live on campus. This makes it difficult for him to truly 'belong' to his class. All the same, he endures and eventually achieves his ambition of securing a professorship in the classics at Harvard. Daniel Rossi is a talented pianist. His father disowns him for his choice of Harvard in light of President Pusey's refusal to cooperate with the McCarthy hearings, particularly after the death of his older son in the Korean War. Daniel chooses Harvard on the advice of his mentor in music, who likens the McCarthy persecutions to those of the Third Reich which he himself fled. George Keller enters the US as a Hungarian refugee following the student uprising in 1956 and is granted a place in the Harvard class of 1958. His determination and fierce loyalty to his country of refuge eventually result in a position in the White House as a protege of Henry Kissinger. The lesson learnt from their ups and downs as well as successes and failures is that there is always a trade-off or opportunity cost.

Pointing to the global Trade Facilitation Agreement at the World Trade Organization (WTO) that came into effect in 2017, Mittal said it was heavily geared towards Africa so that cross-border trade becomes easy, and better technologies are introduced.

"A lot of money was also given to Africa to upgrade its tech, and harmonize its tariff codes. But it still did not happen," Mittal said. The B20 is therefore taking into account past experiences to chart a quick road map towards intra-continent trade.

The African Free Trade Continental Agreement, which is envisaged to create a European Union (EU) type of economic bloc, is in various stages of implementation by 46 of the 54 countries across the continent.

Experts have pushed for Africa to trade as much as possible within the continent, and the AFCTA is expected to boost income by $450 billion in trading economies by 2035.

Finding the funds needed for implementing the B20 recommendations, usually a challenging task when it comes from Africa, may be a smaller problem than earlier. While G20 nations have promised to prioritize the economic development of the global south, funds have been scarce till now.

Mittal, however, stressed that a large corpus of funds had been identified by the B20, which has already been committed. In 2022, the United States announced plans to invest at least $55 billion in Africa over the next three years. The funds will be utilized to implement the B20 recommendations.

Toxic smoke dissipates over northeastern US

RESIDENTS of the northeastern United States were breathing more easily Friday as smoke from Canadian fires gradually cleared after blanketing several cities in a noxious haze this week. In New York and Washington air quality was classified as "moderate" by the US Environmental Protection Agency.

In the American capital, the sky was blue again Friday morning, but as a measure of precaution, children at city public schools were still prohibited from spending recess outdoors.

Air quality improved after winds blowing over the Canadian province of Quebec, where the fires are raging, changed direction, Ryan Stauffer, a NASA scientist specializing in air pollution, told AFP.

The concentration of fine particles in the air was up to twenty times lower Friday morning in Washington, compared to the same time on Thursday, Stauffer said.

Thick skies and an acrid smell hung over the region for days, with air pollution exceeding some of the most contaminated cities in the world in South Asia and China.

Flights were delayed at many airports due to reduced visibility, and masks reappeared on the streets. On Friday, some 140 fires were still active in Quebec, including nearly 80 that were deemed to be out of control. More than 13,000 people have been evacuated since the beginning of June. Hundreds of foreign firefighters were in Canada to assist with the gigantic fires, many of which are located in remote boreal forest areas. With nearly 900,000 hectares affected, according to official figures, Quebec is experiencing an unprecedented fire season. — AFP

GM reaches deal for access to Tesla's North American chargers

TESLA will open its North American electric vehicle charging network to cars from rival General Motors beginning in 2024, Tesla CEO Elon Musk and GM Chief Mary Barra announced Thursday.

Under the agreement – which is similar to a collaboration unveiled last month between Ford and Tesla – GM vehicle owners will have access to Tesla's 12,000 "superchargers," said a GM news release.

The Tesla network will initially require an adaptor for GM cars in 2024. But beginning in 2025, GM vehicles will be built with direct access to the Tesla system without an adaptor, GM said. — AFP

Small shops boom as Cuban private sector takes hold

LIKE mushrooms after the rain, small stores are springing up all over Havana, many run from homes or garages as the private sector finally gains a foothold in communist Cuba.

Small businesses, only authorized in 2021, are mounting a challenge to companies run by the one-party state which are emptier every day as Cuba battles a shortage of foreign currency and sky-high inflation amidst its worst economic crisis in 30 years.

From garages, porches or small rented shops, Cubans sell anything from beers and sweets, meat, dairy and groceries that are becoming increasingly difficult to find elsewhere.

“If you need something you can’t find (in the state-run stores), they have it! They have the things you need,” client Maria Leonor, 73, told AFP as she emerged from one of the new private outlets. After six decades of exclusively state-owned commerce, in August 2021 the government approved a law approving small and medium enterprises. The sea change came as Cuba reeled from the after-effects of the Covid-19 pandemic, which flattened its critical tourism industry, and the tightening of US sanctions.

Yogurt on the menu

At the neighborhood store “El Bodegon 21,” a colorful array of products are arranged prettily on wooden shelves -- a stark contrast to the monotony of indistinguishable cans and empty refrigerators in grey-hued state shops.

For customers like Leonor, these new stores offer a chance to find products, like yogurt, missing from the official market.

An added benefit: Cubans can buy at the private stores with the local peso while government stores require payment in foreign currency, which is hard to come by.

But the downside, prices are “quite high,” said Leonor. — AFP

Australia’s Qantas lets female cabin crew ditch high heels

AUSTRALIA’S national airline announced on Friday that it will scrap its gender-based uniform guidelines, allowing male cabin crew to wear make-up and giving women the option to ditch high heels.

Qantas said it had overhauled its guidelines to better reflect modern expectations, and to make uniforms more comfortable for staff from “diverse cultural backgrounds”.

The airline has drawn attention for its fastidious style guide in the past, which banned handlebar moustaches, policed the length of sideburns, and specified the ideal shades of eyeliner.

The changes came at the insistence of labour unions, who urged Qantas to scrap rules such as the requirement that female staff wear make-up.

“Fashions change and so have our style guidelines over the years,” the airline said in a statement.

“Our uniform standards have always been reflective of the times.”

Qantas said the new “style and grooming guidelines” would ditch the previous “male” and “female” uniform categories. — AFP

Pakistan failing in every economic index: key survey

PAKISTAN failed to meet any economic growth targets for the fiscal year 2022-23, according to a key government report released Thursday — a day before the new budget is to be presented to the national assembly. GDP growth was a miserly 0.3 per cent, while agriculture, industrial output, and exports all failed to meet their targets.

Pakistan’s economy has been stricken by a balance-of-payments crisis as it attempts to service high levels of external debt, while months of political chaos have scared off potential foreign investment.

Inflation has rocketed, the rupee has plummeted and the country can no longer afford imports, causing a severe decline in industry. The country was also ravaged by record monsoon floods last year that left almost a third of its territory underwater, laying waste to vast swathes of farmland and leaving tens of millions homeless. — AFP

India’s central bank expects growth rate at 6.5% this fiscal year

THE rate of inflation in India during the current fiscal year (April 2023-March 2024) is expected to remain above four per cent, while the country’s economy is likely to grow at 6.5 per cent, Governor of the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) Shaktikanta Das said on Thursday.

Announcing the monetary policy in the financial capital Mumbai, the central bank governor said the Indian economy was strongly placed at a time of global uncertainties.

“We can derive satisfaction from the fact that the Indian economy and the financial sector stand out as strong and resilient in a world of unprecedented headwinds and swift cross currents. Unlike the previous three tumultuous years, the uncertainty on the horizon appears comparatively less and the path ahead somewhat clearer,” he said in a statement. The RBI governor said India’s economic activities remained resilient and surpassed previous projections. — Xinhua

Rubber ducks come back to Hong Kong waters

TWO giant inflatable rubber ducks are making a splash in Hong Kong's Victoria Harbor, marking the return of an art installation last seen in the city's waters a decade ago. The pair of yellow ducks, titled "Double Ducks" and themed on the classic bathtub toy, was created by Dutch artist Florentijn Hofman. He has taken his installation on a world tour since launching it in the Netherlands in 2007.

The 2013 edition in Hong Kong featured a single duck 16.5 metres in height. The current ducks measure a more impressive 18 metres each. Project organizer AllRightsReserved in a press release said having a pair of ducks brings to mind the Chinese characters meaning "happiness" and "friend", both featuring two identical components next to one another.

"Double duck is double luck" Hofman said in the release, adding the work emphasizes friendship and getting connected. "Due to COVID we learned that spending time together is so valuable. Making moments and memories for real, living in the here and now, are things to cling on to," said the 46-year-old Dutch artist. His work has travelled to 12 locations across four continents, according to the project organizer, including South Korea, Taiwan and Japan. — Kyodo

Canada's unemployment rate rises to 5.2% in May CANADA'S unemployment rate rose 0.2 percentage points to 5.2 per cent in May, the first increase in nine months, Statistics Canada said on Friday.

According to the national statistical agency, the youth (aged 15 to 24) unemployment rate was 10.7 per cent in May, up 1.1 percentage points from April. Among people aged 55 and older, the unemployment rate edged up 0.2 percentage points to 4.1 per cent. The unemployment rate for those in the core working age (25 to 54) was 4.3

per cent without monthly change. Overall employment was little changed in May, as employment fell by 77,000 for youth, and it increased by 63,000 among people in the core working age, the agency said.

The employment rate, the percentage of people aged 15 and older who are employed, declined by 0.3 percentage points to 62.1 per cent in May. This reflected strong population growth in the month and little change in employment, the agency said.

The number of employees held steady in the private and public sector, while there was a decline in the number of self-employed workers, said Statistics Canada. — Xinhua

Russia to deploy weapons in Belarus: Putin

RUSSIA will deploy certain types of weapons in Belarus after 8 July, Russian President Vladimir Putin said on Friday when meeting with his Belarusian counterpart Alexander Lukashenko.

“As you know, on 7-8 July, the preparation of relevant facilities will be completed, and we will immediately begin measures related to the deployment of the relevant types of weapons on your territory,” Putin said in a conversation with Lukashenko in Russia’s Black Sea resort of Sochi.

“So everything is going as planned and everything is stable,” he added.

In March this year, Putin said that Russia, at the request of Minsk, would deploy its tactical nuclear weapons in Belarus, just as the United States had been doing on the territories of its allies.

The construction of a special storage facility for tactical nuclear weapons on Belarusian territory would be completed in July, he said. — Xinhua

AI statue designed by Michelangelo on show in Sweden

A historical dream team of five master sculptors, including Michelangelo, Rodin and Takamura, have trained artificial intelligence (AI) to design a sculpture dubbed “the Impossible Statue”, now on show in a Swedish museum. “This is a true statue created by five different masters that would never have been able to collaborate in real life,” said Pauliina Lunde, a spokeswoman for Swedish machine engineering group Sandvik that used three AI software programmes to create the artwork. Shaking up traditional conceptions about creativity and art, the stainless steel statue depicts an androgynous person with the lower half of the body covered by a swath of material, holding a bronze globe in one hand.

On show at Stockholm’s National Museum of Science and Technology, the statue measures 150 centimetres (four feet 11 inches) and weighs 500 kilogrammes (1,100 pounds). The idea was to create a mix of styles from five famed sculptors who each made their mark on their era: Michelangelo (Italy 1475-1564), Auguste Rodin (France 1840-1917), Kathe Kollwitz (Germany 1867-1945), Kotaro Takamura (Japan 1883-1956) and Augusta Savage (US 1892-1962). — AFP

Russia working to ‘produce Iranian drones’ next year, White House says

RUSSIA is receiving materials from Iran to build a drone factory on its territory that “could be fully operational early next year,” White House national security spokesman John Kirby warned Friday.

The White House released a satellite image of the location of the prospective plant in the Alabuga special economic zone, some 900 kilometres (560 miles) east of Moscow. “The Russia-Iran military partnership appears to be deepening,” Kirby said in a statement, citing US intelligence information.

The White House said it would release a new government advisory to assist businesses and governments “to ensure they are not inadvertently contributing to Iran’s (drone) programme.” — AFP

Six civilians killed in Somalia hotel siege

SIX civilians were killed and 10 wounded in a six-hour siege by Islamist Al-Shabaab militants at a beachside hotel in Somalia’s capital Mogadishu, police said Saturday.

The Al-Qaeda-linked jihadists have been waging an insurgency against the internationally backed federal government for more than 15 years and have often targeted hotels, which tend to host high-ranking Somali and foreign officials.

“Six civilians were martyred in the attack... and 10 others were wounded. Three brave members of the security forces were martyred during the rescue operation,” the Somali Police Force said in a statement.

The assault, for which Al-Shabaab claimed responsibility, began just before 8:00 pm on Friday (1700 GMT) when seven attackers stormed the Pearl Beach hotel, a popular spot at Lido Beach along Mogadishu’s coastline.

It ended at around 2:00 am, police said, after a fierce gunfight between security forces and the militants, all of whom were killed during the battle.

“The security forces managed to rescue 84 people including women and children and elderly people,” the police statement added. — AFP

Italian special forces save Turkish cargo ship from ‘pirates’

ITALIAN special forces boarded a cargo ship sailing from Türkiye to France on Friday, after the crew were threatened by “pirates” off the Italian coast, the defence ministry said.

Marines dropped onto the vessel from helicopters after a number of “stowaways” used knives to threaten the crew, Defence Minister Guido Crosetto told reporters.

The ministry told AFP the aggressors appeared to be migrants, though their nationalities were unknown.

The ship was the Galata Seaways, a roll-on roll-off cargo ship — designed to carry vehicles — sailing under a Turkish flag with reportedly 22 crew members.

It set off from Topcular in Türkiye on 7 June and was headed for Sete in southern France.

Some 15 stowaways had boarded the ship in Türkiye, in the hope of reaching Europe, but were discovered by the crew, the Repubblica daily said.

“The migrants tried to take some of the crew hostage inside the bridge,” ANSA news agency said. The drama unfolded as the ship — some 200 metres long and 20 metres wide — was sailing in Italian waters, near the island of Ischia.

The captain managed to radio for help, sending an urgent request to Ankara, which then alerted the Italian authorities, according to reports.

After special forces stormed the ship, some of the stowaways were arrested but others “barri- caded themselves in the depths of the hold,” the Repubblica said.

“The ship is very big and it is not difficult to hide,” minister Crosetto told a television show.

“When they heard the heli- copter, (some of the stowaways) ran, then probably tried to escape by sea in the dark,” he said.

“However, the ship is sur- rounded. We will see in the next few hours... who the pirates are and what they wanted to do,” he said. — AFP

Messi gets rockstar welcome in China ahead of Australia friendly

FOOTBALL superstar Lionel Messi arrived in Beijing by private jet on Saturday and was greeted by hundreds of jubilant fans, with his World-Cup-winning Argentina set to face Australia in a friendly match next week.

"Messi! Messi!" chanted several hundred fans who were waiting for him at the airport, many wearing the blue-and-white striped jersey of the Albiceleste's No 10, according to social media images. Several hundred others waited outside his hotel, not far from the banks of the Liangma River, popular with Beijingers for strolls.

This is Messi's seventh trip to China, the last being in 2017, according to local media.

World champions Argentina will play a friendly against Australia on 15 June at Beijing's newly-renovated 68,000-capacity Workers' Stadium. By mid-day, the arrival of global sporting superstar Messi was the most talked-about topic on the Weibo social network.

"I absolutely want to see Messi!" wrote one user, echoing others' comments. "I am still feeling the emotions of the match of when Argentina secured the World Cup," said another, referring to the Albiceleste's victory after an epic final against France in December. — AFP
