The Republic of the Union of Myanmar State Administration Council: Five-Point Road Map

1. Priority will be given to fully realizing peace, stability and rule of law throughout the Union to safeguard the socioeconomic life of the people.
2. People-centred development work that enhances socioeconomic well-being will be undertaken to ensure the country's prosperity and food security.
3. Processes will further continue to consolidate a genuine, disciplined multiparty democratic system and build a Union based on democracy and federalism.
4. Priority will be accorded to work aligned with the agreements set out in the Nationwide Ceasefire Agreement, in order to achieve enduring peace for the entire nation.
5. Upon accomplishing the provisions of the state of emergency, free and fair multiparty democratic elections will be held in line with the 2008 Constitution, and further work will be undertaken to hand over State duties to the winning party in accordance with democratic standards.

Yangon-based parties checked: UEC

UNION Election Commission members U Aung Saw Win, U Aung Moe Myint, U Ko Ko Lwin, and U Than Aung Kyaw met chairpersons, and members of the Myanmar People's Democratic Party (MPD), People's Pioneer Party and National Political Alliances League Party, and inspected the parties' processes at the Yangon Hluttaw Building yesterday morning.

During the meeting, the UEC members stressed that political parties must organize to meet the specified party strength within 90 days from the date of registration of political parties under the political party registration laws and maintain the proper opening of party offices within 180 days.

They also instructed that the party's financial rules be drafted and implemented following the instructions and that the use of the party's flag and signs be properly followed as per the legal requirements.

They also emphasized that they should be careful not to disturb the public during the campaign and that the proportional representation system (PR) will be applied in the next election, so that the representatives of their party will have more opportunities to be elected, and they should train and build strong political parties.

They specifically said that according to the upcoming guidelines on election laws and regulations, during the election period, the violation of rules and regulations by some smaller party members may have a big impact on the relevant parties so officials at all levels of the party should strictly enforce the law.

To ensure the transparency of the election, representatives of political parties will be allowed to participate in the compilation and verification of ballots, so they will cooperate in the success of the election, he added.

Afterwards, Myanmar People's Democratic Party (MPD) Chairman U Htay Kyaw and Peo-

Union Election Commission members and members of political parties discuss the conditions of the party's activities at the Yangon Hluttaw Building yesterday.

K600 per kilo set to equalize taxi fares

JOINT Secretary U Lyan Cing Mang of the Yangon Region Private Transport Supervision Committee said that K600 per kilometre has been designated to standardize taxi fares.

After discussions among members of the City Taxi Association in the third week of June, they agreed to set K1,500 once the passenger gets on the taxi, and K600 for each kilo ride for the convenience of both taxi drivers and passengers.

“Now, it was announced on 23 June to let the public know that if passengers hire a taxi, they can pay in kilos. Travellers need to know how much the price is per kilo, and they also need to know how far they can travel in kilos. Therefore, to know the kilos, they have to ask the taxi driver for the kilos on the dashboard in the car,” U Lyan Cing Mang elaborated.

“Currently, the taxis operating in Yangon are City Taxi vehicles that use CNG, gasoline, and diesel, so taxi drivers who use gasoline are asking for more fares.

“CNG drivers also have to wait in line and ask for a fare just like the taxi drivers who use gasoline as an excuse to fill up with CNG.

“There are those who note that this linear setting is good”, he stated. He added that the companies that provide serves through the application will only charge the rate set now.

There are more than 60,000 taxis in Yangon Region, but currently, only 30,000 are registered as “City Taxi”.

Vehicles that are not registered as city taxis will be banned from entering restricted areas such as airports for security reasons, according to the Yangon Region Transport Committee (YRTC). — GNLM/KZL

Renowned classical song composer, music director Sandya Ngwe Soe passes away

SANDYA Ngwe Soe (pianist), composer and music director, passed away at 85 years of age at his house located in Yankin Township at 1 am on 24 June.

“Sandya Ngwe Soe is my childhood friend. He has an unusual gift as he can play the world music. It is such a huge loss for the music field. I am very sad about it. He played music for most of the songs of Twantay Thein Tan,” said U Myint Lwin, chairman of the Myanmar Music Association.

Sandya Ngwe Soe was born to film director U Ba Thin and Daw Tin Tin in Wakema Township on 22 November 1938 and he had a passion for music since childhood.

He entered the music field in 1959. His first piano piece was the Thingyan song of “Saung Myat Nwe” Thingyan group broadcast by the Windermere Crescent radio station.

He won the gold medal and silver shield in Myanmar’s traditional performing arts competition of the musical arts research federation held at Kaba Aye Hill.

He played the piano for broadcasting bands, records, Myanmar classic movies and song albums.

He was the main pianist of renowned singer and actor Twantay Thein Tan and he played 90 per cent of Twantay Thein Tan’s songs.

His famous songs were “Hla Par Tal May Yal”, “Pan Pay Paya Say Sabai Tagone” “Anar Hmar Nay Par Kwal”, Ako Pyaw Tae Chit Sakar” and “Sabai Lolo Hninsi Lolo”. The funeral will be at Yay Way cemetery at 11 am on 26 June.

His wife Daw Nyunt Nyunt Aye is the singer of the “Pan Nini Ma Pay Nae Kwal Ma Pan Chin Bu” song. — GNLM/KTZH

Palm oil prices spiking in domestic market

IT is so hard to buy palm oil in Yangon’s market in late June 2023 and the market sees price fluctuation, the sellers pointed out.

The wholesale reference price for palm oil in Yangon was set at K3,860 per viss for a week from 19 to 25 June 2023. The market price hit approximately K7,000 per viss, indicating a sharp rise of K3,000 per viss.

“Some traders are hiking the prices because of the purchase difficulties. Only the consumers are battered in this situation”, said Ma Khin Win from Mayan-gon Township, told the Global New Light of Myanmar (GNLM) on 23 June.

The opening prices in the wholesale markets of Mandalay and Myingyan were K7,200 per viss on the morning of 23 June.

There was palm oil inflow from foreign countries, with 6,300 tonnes on 23 June. The international price for palm oil was US$840 per tonne on 23 June, which plunged from $877.5 on 20 June. The prices of palm oil were K7,100-7,400 per viss in the Mandalay market.

Last August 2022, Kyat weakening against the US dollar and high gold price pushed up the palm oil price to K10,000 per viss, while the reference was only K4,140 per viss on 17 August.

Some sellers speculated a price hike in the coming days like an event that happened in mid-August 2022. — TWA/ EM

Banking transactions for imports on Myanmar-China border to commence 1 August

BANKING transactions for imports in the Myanmar-China border will be started from 1 August 2023, according to a news bulletin 10/2023 dated 23 June 2023 issued by the Trade Department under the Ministry of Commerce.

Initially, the banking transaction system was exercised on 1 November 2022 at the Myanmar-Thailand border points. And, this system will proceed to the Myanmar-China border from 1 August 2023.

The importers must use the banking system with foreign currency (Yuan) purchased from local banks or export earnings deposited in local bank accounts, the CBM directed.

Additionally, companies need to show export earnings or income statements, credit advice or bank statements while seeking a licence from the department.

The import licence will be granted for the amount not exceeding the account balance after screening the bank statement or export earnings or foreign currency purchase records.

Importers who have already sought import licences are required to bring in the goods by 31 August 2023. If they failed to import before the deadline, their import licence will get cancelled.

CBM declares crackdown on forex market manipulators, illegal hundi business operators in Yangon, Mandalay

UNDER the guidance of the Monitoring and Steering Committee on Gold and Currency Market, the Central Bank of Myanmar clamped down on the foreign exchange market manipulators and illegal hundi money transfer service operators in Yangon and Mandalay cities, according to its notification on 23 June.

The monitoring task force and on-ground task force intensified crackdowns on those grey market players in big cities Yangon and Mandalay this month.

The task force made inspections at the gold shops and refineries in Mandalay. Some were found doing illegal money transfer businesses with solid proofs so they will face prosecution under the existing laws, according to the statement.

Furthermore, hundi business operators without the relevant licence and digital money service providers without licences were allegedly found. Those 51 individuals and one company will face actions under the existing laws.

Afterwards, those operators and two companies were found providing illegal money transfer services for online gambling and will be prosecuted under the existing laws.

Inspection and prosecution against those unscrupulous traders who intend to interfere with the free and fair operation of the market and are involved in illegal foreign currency holding and illegal money transfer businesses will be carried out under the Foreign Exchange Management Law and the related laws. — NN/EM

Securing safe and healthy food production in Myanmar

MYANMAR faces a critical challenge as a significant portion of its population confronts daily food poisoning and non-infectious diseases caused by the consumption of food products contaminated with infectious viruses, dyes, and chemicals. Sadly, despite awareness of these risks, individuals often have no choice but to purchase and consume unsafe food due to limited alternatives in their daily routines, resulting in a range of illnesses and foodborne ailments.

The World Health Organization (WHO) reveals that over 200 diseases, including diarrhoea and cancer, stem from the consumption of food containing bacteria, viruses, parasites, and chemicals. Shockingly, approximately 1.6 million people worldwide suffer from fevers each day due to the consumption of unsafe foods. Tragically, on average, 340 children under the age of five lose their lives daily due to diseases triggered by unsafe food. Myanmar recognizes the intrinsic value of food as medicine, emphasizing that medicine is also nourishment for the human body. Consequently, there is a collective aspiration to secure safe and wholesome food to mitigate the adverse consequences of an unsound production chain. To achieve this objective, it is imperative for authorities, food producers, and consumers to collaborate in manufacturing safe and secure food for the entire population.

Food processors, manufacturers, farmers, and animal farms in Myanmar must acknowledge their responsibility and be accountable for the safety of their products. Conversely, authorities face challenges in implementing robust food safety management systems and enforcing existing regulations, which are fundamental to ensuring food security. It is therefore crucial for relevant authorities to prioritize strict supervision of food security, enforce compliance with established standards for food production, and regulate manufacturing practices.

Myanmar recognizes the intrinsic value of food as medicine, emphasizing that medicine is also nourishment for the human body. Consequently, there is a collective aspiration to secure safe and wholesome food to mitigate the adverse consequences of an unsound production chain. To achieve this objective, it is imperative for authorities, food producers, and consumers to collaborate in manufacturing safe and secure food for the entire population.

As such, addressing food safety and security is a matter of utmost importance in Myanmar. By implementing stringent measures, enhancing accountability, and promoting widespread awareness, we can establish a system that guarantees the provision of safe and secure food for all. Let us unite our efforts to produce food that fosters and sustains the health and well-being of every individual in the country.

Commemorative Article for 36th International Day Against Drug Abuse and Illicit Trafficking

Let's Prevent the Perils of Narcotic Drugs in a Collaborative Manner

By Aung Shinn

USING narcotic drugs not only spoils the individual users but also impacts their family, friends, the country's resources and society as a whole. Drug users might be infected with many diseases, including HIV/AIDS. Additionally, the drug addict will immediately face negative social consequences. For instance, if the addict has a family, the offspring of the drug users will have to grow up with the pitiful trauma of being neglected by the family and the neighbourhood.

Such negative effects on individuals and families do not stop here but affect the environment and society as a whole. Drug production, especially in methamphetamine production areas, can have a major impact on the environment as a result of chemical poisoning. The resources for the care and treatment of drug addicts and their families have also become a burden for the respective countries affecting their functions. Narcotic drugs can cause social, economic and educational setbacks creating a disabled generation and human society, and might even lead to the destruction of the entire world. Finally, the entire world may even be in a state of destruction. For this reason, all the countries of the world are combatting narcotic drugs considered as a common enemy of mankind. 26th of June is recognized as the International Day against Drug Abuse and Illicit Trafficking and has been conducting its ceremony annually reaching its 36th occasion in 2023.

State Administration Council Government's Anti-Narcotic Drug Campaign

Like the rest of the world, the developing country Myanmar has been fighting against drugs that have been rooted in the country since the colonial era through a collaborative effort of Tatmadaw personnel, security force members and the people. Along with the rapid developments in technology, the production methods and chemicals become abundant which resulted in easier production and manufacture of synthetic drugs and narcotics. So, successive governments of Myanmar have stepped up anti-narcotic efforts.

The Central Committee for Drug Abuse Control (CCDAC), which was formed under the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Law (1993), was reorganized with 19 members and 21 tasks by order number (25/2022) of the State Administration Council on 21 January 2022. The Central Committee reorganized 11 working groups to speed up anti-drug measures.

Therefore, during the term of the State Administration Council, a large number of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances were seized, and the list of seizures is shown by year:

Pon Thay Ahtway (Mindset by Carol S Dweck, PhD)

MINDSET by Carol Dweck is a fundamental book that everyone should read. It focuses on changing the way we think to fulfil our potential. Within the book, Professor Dr Carol Dweck explores the power of our mindset and how success does not just depend on our abilities or talent but rather on how we approach our goals; with a fixed or growth mindset. So, what is a fixed mindset then?

A fixed mindset is the belief that our “intelligence is static” and we cannot reach our full potential. People with a fixed mindset try to avoid challenges.

They give up easily, ignore useful feedback and feel threatened or jealous by the success of others. Basically speaking, every time you’ve told yourself “I’m not smart enough” or “I will never succeed”, that’s your fixed mindset talking.

Having a growth mindset is the opposite of a fixed mindset. It’s the belief that our “intelligence can be developed” therefore reaching high levels of achievement. People with a growth mindset try new things, learn from their mistakes, embrace challenges and welcome feedback. They strive to be better every day. Throughout the course of the book, Carol compares these two mindsets. She shows us how a fixed mindset is usually the default mindset but how we can start adopting a growth mindset instead.

Carol Dweck draws upon case studies of well-known and famous people as examples to support her points. And this actually helps me to appreciate the book even more as I could relate it to the people whom I was familiar with. This book can guide people of all strata with different talents and qualifications to achieve success in their respective fields with their different roles and capacities. This book is believed to be of great use to parents, teachers, managers, CEOs and company staff.

This book includes eight units. What appeals to me most is the unit in which the writer deals with the CEO’s disease. He said that if a person is boosting that he is at the top of an organization, pulling the string from behind or if he is insisting that he is a perfect man, he can be said to be suffering from the CEO disease.

As a whole, this entire book is a takeaway. Mindset has taught me a lot about my mindset issues and got me asking myself some very difficult and challenging questions.

The writer highlighted the advantages and disadvantages of both mindsets—the fixed mindset and the growth mindset. She tells us to figure out what triggers our fixed mindset so that we can be ready for when it next shows up. We must not let our fixed mindset limit us. So, if you’re going to buy any book by this monk, make sure it is this one by Carol, and invest in your mindset.

Tae Tae Tway (Think Straight by Darius Foroux)

THIS book reveals the recipe for taking control of your mind so that you can improve your life, career, relationship and business etc. Darius Foroux wrote this little book in a way that you can read it more than once. And I hope that this book serves as an anchor to you, especially during trying times.

Darius Foroux is the author of seven books, and the creator of six online courses. He comes from Holland where he was brought up. His parents are immigrants from Iran. Darius Foroux has contributed articles to the Time, NBC, Fast Company Inc and Observer etc on thinkings on policies, get-rich-quick tips, social behaviours and change of mindset. In addition to writing, he is a young entrepreneur doing the distribution of books in cooperation with Penguin Random House.

This book contains 31 units, which are all written crystal clearly. The opening unit is titled, “You Become What You Think.” This unit is about a man who had to struggle hard throughout his life. As a medical school student, he had contemplated suicide. Coupled with anxiety and hallucinations, the young student believed there was no way out of it. His depression seems to have passed onto him from his father; thus being a biological inevitability.

Nevertheless, he kept these thoughts of suicide at bay and began rationalizing the concept of suicide. When he came across an essay by a French philosopher; his belief in free will strengthened. His thought of free will was not the ability to do anything. Instead, it was the freedom to think anything. He was then able to break free from the clutches of depression. This young man grew up to be one of the leading psychologists of America, William James. The basis of his teaching is to control thoughts. While James openly admits that consciousness cannot be controlled, a conscious effort can be made to choose which thought gets our focus. The gist of Think Straight focuses on the number of thoughts a person has every day, and pointless most of them are. The author; Darius Foroux, doubts the productivity of a preoccupied mind. In this book, he explains how our thoughts tend to work against us, instead of for us.

By admitting that people have no control over their minds, people let their minds free. Instead, one must master his mind. Foroux says that people have the choice of what they think, however, people rarely use it. Once the mind is brought under control, we can revolutionize every aspect of our life.

In the unit titled, “A Very Brief History of Thinking,” philosophers from the dawn of the time have emphasized the importance of thoughts. The notion of ‘thoughts are important’ has been revised to ‘not all thoughts are equal’. The ancient philosophers realized that the human brain was a machine to solve problems. The best way to realize the above situation is to write down thoughts every two hours. Categorize them as useless or useful. Simple logic suggests that a useless thought must be eliminated.

Commemorative Article for 36th International Day Against Drug Abuse ...

Regarding the effective measures to combat narcotics and synthetic drugs, public participation and cooperation play a crucial role after realizing the harmful effects of drugs. Therefore, the Ministry of Information, the Ministry of Education and the Myanmar Police Force are conducting awareness programmes continuously. So as to make the youth, as well as the general public, become aware of the danger of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances and avoid taking the drugs, plans are being developed to educate them effectively through mass communication methods such as radio, television, video, movie, dramatic art and music.

International Cooperation

Myanmar has signed three United Nations Conventions on Narcotic Drugs for drug control and has been cooperating with International Narcotics Control Board (INCB), United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC); non-governmental organizations; regional countries as well as with countries outside the region on drug control issues. In addition, Myanmar is also working closely with Yangon-based United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC); the Australian Federal Police (AFP); US Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA); China National Narcotics Control Commission (NNCC); and the Office of Narcotics Control Board (ONCB) of Thailand.

Cooperation with ASEAN

Countries

Myanmar as an ASEAN member country, is actively participating in drug control activities in the ASEAN region. Myanmar has been cooperating all round in these activities by attending ASEAN Ministerial Meeting on Drug Control (AMMD); ASEAN Senior Officials Meeting on Drug Control (ASOD); ASEAN Airport Interdiction Task Force Meeting (AAITF); ASEAN Seaport Interdiction Task Force (ASITF) Meeting and ASEAN Drug Monitoring Network (ADMN) meeting. In order to build a safe and drug-free community, Myanmar is cooperating in implementing the ASEAN Work Plan on Securing Communities Against Illicit Drugs (2016-2025) established by ASEAN.

Cooperation with Mekong MoU Signatory Member States

The Golden Triangle is the area in which the eastern Shan State of Myanmar, the northern part of Thailand and Laos, and the southwestern part of China meet. As the region still remains the largest producer of opium and heroin in the world today, the Mekong Agreement was signed by the regional countries of Myanmar, Thailand, Laos and China in 1993 to take anti-narcotic drug measures in the region. After Cambodia and Vietnam became signatories of the agreement in 1995, six Mekong regional countries have been cooperating in drug control activities. Myanmar representatives have been participating in the ministerial-level meeting held once every 2 years and the meeting of high-level officials as well as the meeting of central officials held once a year, which is alternately hosted by the Mekong MoU member countries. The Mekong MoU signatory countries have been cooperating in the prevention of the spread of narcotic drugs to other countries of the world through the Golden Triangle area, exchanging information related to the production and trade of drugs among the member countries.

Cooperation with BIMSTEC Member States

In 2004, the first BIMSTEC meeting on the prevention and suppression of terrorism and transnational crimes was held on December 9 in New Delhi, India. At the meeting, sub-working groups were formed and the member countries were assigned to the respective areas of responsibility. As for Myanmar, it is taking responsibility to hold the meeting of the Sub-Group on the Prevention of Illicit Trafficking in Narcotic Drugs, Psychotropic Substances and Precursor Chemicals. The psychotropic drugs produced in Myanmar territory are the result of precursor chemicals which are brought into Myanmar from foreign countries. Therefore, it is crucial to seize the precursor chemicals that will come into Myanmar from foreign countries in order to eliminate the production of psychotropic drugs in Myanmar territory. Accordingly, Myanmar has been putting an emphasis on the prevention and control of illicit chemical transactions in the region, working together with regional countries.

MoUs/LoAs

With the aim to collectively prevent and control drug trafficking, Myanmar has signed a total of 24 Memorandums of Understanding (MoU/LoA) with the United States, Bangladesh, China, India, Korea, Laos, the Philippines, Russia, Thailand and Vietnam; In addition, efforts are being made to sign a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) with Indonesia, and an amendment to the Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) signed with the Philippines is in progress.

A Milestone of the State Administration Council (SAC)

Drug use negatively affects not only the users themselves but also the entire human society. In addition to losing the power of the youths, the money obtained from drug crimes increases the strength of criminals and insurgent organizations threatening the security and stability of the countries in the region. In particular, the production and sale of narcotics, including opium cultivation in Myanmar, are mainly carried out in the areas dominated by ethnic armed organizations. It is directly or indirectly related to their survival as a means of income. Therefore, the elimination of narcotic drugs is also an important process to end the armed conflict and facilitate the peace processes in Myanmar.

In viewing today's drug problem, it is found that it is required to adopt a multi-pronged approach that encompasses the entire source of the problem and tackle it by interdepending on the sectors of public health, higher standard of living, humanity, development, fundamental freedom and human rights besides the sector of effective anti-narcotic drug measures and legal actions.

Myanmar, a developing country, intensely has suppressed opium, heroin and other psychotropic drugs in successive eras, and a large number of members of the Tatmadaw and Myanmar Police Force had sacrificed their lives for the country in anti-narcotic measures.

During the tenure of the State Administration Council, it can be witnessed that the Government has intensified its efforts, as a national duty, to eliminate and combat against cultivation and production of opium, the production and sale of synthetic drugs, trafficking of illicit chemical substances, drug-related arms smuggling and money laundering and also taken rehabilitation measures for drug victims. In executing this, the success of the anti-narcotics activities under the State Administration Council Government has been achieved thanks to the comprehensive cooperation of the people. Such achievements are proved by the destruction of poppy fields, the seizure of large quantities of narcotic drugs, and effective legal actions taken against drug users and drug dealers in the community due to the information provided by the people.

I wrote this article to celebrate the 36th International Day against Drug Abuse and Illicit Trafficking which will fall on 26 June 2023 by expressing the spectacular performance of the State Administration Council, the Provisional Government of Myanmar and the Central Committee for Drug Abuse Control, with the active participation of the people, in Myanmar's drug elimination efforts that will mark a milestone until the world ends.

New date for Ariane 5 rocket's final launch after delay

EUROPE'S workhorse Ariane 5 rocket will blast off for the final time on 4 July, its operator Arianespace said on Friday, after a previous launch was called off due to a technical problem.

After 27 years of launches, the 117th and last mission to take off on an Ariane 5 rocket was originally scheduled for 16 June from Europe's spaceport in Kourou, French Guiana, but was called off the day before.

It is now targeted for launch between 6:30 pm to 8:05 pm Kourou time (0930 to 1105 GMT) on 4 July, Arianespace said in a statement.

The new date was set "following the replacement of the three pyrotechnical transmission lines identified as doubtful on the Ariane 5 launcher," the French firm said.

The pyrotechnical lines are involved in separating the boosters from the rocket.

Boosters help lift the rocket off the ground before being jettisoned.

The rocket and its payload of one French and one German communication satellite were stable and safe in Kourou, Arianespace added.

The postponement earlier this month marked the latest blow for European space efforts. — AFP

Biden wins endorsement from abortion rights groups

WITH abortion a hot-button issue in the US 2024 presidential race, Joe Biden on Friday won the endorsement of leading groups advocating for reproductive rights.

Planned Parenthood, NARAL and Emily's List threw their support behind Biden's reelection bid along with his running mate Vice-President Kamala Harris.

"When people want to know where @JoeBiden and @KamalaHarris stand on reproductive freedom, we tell them: they are unwavering," Planned Parenthood, the country's leading abortion provider and advocacy organization, said on Twitter.

In endorsing Biden and Harris, NARAL, another powerful abortion advocacy group, said the pair "have done more to defend and expand reproductive freedom than any other administration in history."

Christian right

On the other side of ever-deepening political divide, abortion opponents from the conservative Faith and Freedom Coalition were to hold a rally in Washington Friday, with Republican presidential hopefuls Donald Trump and far-right Florida Governor Ron DeSantis, slated to speak.

The American Christian right played a central role in getting the landmark Roe v Wade decision overturned on June 24 last year.

Since then, 20 states, mainly located in the center and south of the country, have enforced bans or strong restrictions on abortion, while liberal-leaning states on the eastern and western coasts have passed new protections. — AFP

G20 event emphasizes global action for promoting adolescent mental health

Highlighting the alarming increase in mental health challenges among youth, the recently concluded G20 event focused on 'Health of Youth-Wealth of Nation' called for increased attention and investment by G20 nations in this area. PHOTO: ANI

MENTAL health is a critical concern among today's youth. It profoundly affects their development, impairing growth and hindering their ability to reach their full potential. According to United Nations (UN) data, approximately one in seven teenagers suffers from mental health issues worldwide, with half of them experiencing symptoms as early as the age of 14. The condition has been further exacerbated in the aftermath of COVID-19. A survey conducted by UNICEF and Gallup in the first half of 2021 revealed that around 14 per cent of youngsters between age 15 to 24 in India reported often feeling depressed or having little interest in doing things.

Highlighting the alarming increase in mental health challenges among youth, the recently concluded G20 event focused on 'Health of Youth-Wealth of Nation' called for increased attention and investment by G20 nations in this area. In line with the upcoming G20 summit, the event was organized by the Union Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, in collaboration with Partnership for Maternal, Newborn and Child Health (PMNCH) in the national capital. Attending the event, Associate Director, HIV/AIDS, UNICEF, Anurita Bains and Youth Advocates from Nepal and Iraq stressed the need to prioritize youth mental health and provide them with adequate support to overcome it.

Talking about involving youth in formulating mental health programmes for them, Bains said, "UNICEF aims to integrate mental health response into existing programmes, ensuring healthcare workers and teachers are equipped to recognize and support individuals with depression and mental health issues."

Sharing the details, she added that UNICEF is also exploring partnerships with global donors to expand mental health programmes and the input of young people through the platform directly influences the development of their health programmes. — ANI

People injured in China restaurant blast recovering well: expert

PEOPLE injured in a restaurant gas explosion in northwest China on Wednesday night are recovering well after receiving treatment at hospital, a medical expert said Friday. Two patients with slight burns and injuries will be discharged soon. For those with severe burns, doctors have completed wound debridement and will provide treatment for air passage and lung injuries, said Lyu Guozhong, director of the national emergency medical research centre. All patients are recovering well, Lyu said. The explosion occurred at Fuyang Barbecue Restaurant on a busy street in Yinchuan, capital of Ningxia Hui Autonomous Region, when liquefied petroleum gas leaked from the restaurant, killing 31 people and injured seven. — Xinhua

EU welcomes Meta plans for tough content rules

European Commissioner for Internal Market Thierry Breton is meeting with executives of big tech platforms during a visit to San Francisco. PHOTO: AFP

THE EU on Friday cautiously welcomed efforts made by Meta, the owner of Facebook and Instagram, to prepare for new European rules on content moderation that kick in on 25 August. Meta CEO Mark Zuckerberg “was very involved and knew exactly where we stand,” EU commissioner Thierry Breton told reporters after talks at the social media giant’s California headquarters.

“Now we expect the promising commitments I heard today to translate into results. I will be particularly vigilant on progress regarding disinformation and child protection,” he said. Breton said that more than 1,000 people were working on implementation at Meta of the European Union’s Digital Services Act

(DSA) and that the company had agreed to carry out a “stress test” in July to ensure it was prepared for the new rules.

The test would take place at Meta’s EU headquarters in Dublin, with video app TikTok also signed up to carry out the procedure with EU officials.

The EU commissioner made a two-day visit to San Francisco eight weeks before the DSA comes into full force for the world’s biggest platforms, including Meta’s Facebook and Instagram, as well as TikTok and Twitter. The DSA is one of the most ambitious legislations on controlling online content since the advent of social media, putting major obligations on how platforms deal with the free flow of speech. — AFP

Cameroon, Croatia, Viet Nam put on money-laundering ‘grey list’: FATF

INTERNATIONAL money-laundering watchdog the Financial Action Task Force announced Friday it had put Cameroon, Croatia and Viet Nam on its “grey list” of countries under increased monitoring.

The three nations join 23 others on the list which are “actively working with the FATF to address the strategic deficiencies in their regimes to counter money laundering, terrorist financing and proliferation financing”.

Other countries on the grey list include Albania, South Africa and the United Arab Emirates (UAE).

The announcement came on the final day of the FATF’s plenary meeting in Paris. The 39-member body, which is based in Paris, has a grey list of countries requiring closer monitoring and a black list of nations classed high-risk. — AFP

Japan to issue new banknotes in July 2024, 1st renewal in 20 yrs

JAPAN will issue new banknotes as early as July next year in their first renewal since 2004, putting the face of Eiichi Shibusawa, known as “the father of Japanese capitalism”, on the new 10,000 yen bill, a source familiar with the matter said Saturday.

The new 5,000 yen note will carry Umeko Tsuda, an educator who pioneered women’s higher education, while the new 1,000 yen note will feature microbiologist Shibasaburo K tasato, who developed a serum therapy for tetanus.

The backs of the three banknotes will adopt images of the Tokyo Station building, wisteria and a work on Mt Fuji by ukiyo-e artist Katsushika Hokusai, respectively. They will include holograms to prevent forgery.

The notes, to be issued by the Bank of Japan, are currently being printed by the National Printing Bureau, the source said. — Kyodo

Tourist arrivals in Türkiye surge to 4.5 mln in May: ministry

THE number of foreign tourists to Türkiye surged to 4.5 million in May, amounting to a 16.2-per cent year-on-year increase, the Culture and Tourism Ministry said Friday.

The Mediterranean resort of Antalya topped the list of most popular destinations by hosting 1.51 million visitors, slightly leading Istanbul with 1.5 million visitors, followed by the Aegean province of Mugla and the northwestern province of Edirne, hosting 380,899 and 349,123 foreigners respectively, according to the ministry figures.

Antalya is famed for its beautiful beaches and inviting waters, while Istanbul straddling Europe and Asia is a popular tourist attraction with its Ottoman-era palaces, Byzantine heritage and museums.

Russians topped the list of visitors, followed by Germans and Britons.

According to the data, 14.3 million foreign tourists visited Türkiye between January and May this year.

The country has kept its target of receiving 60 million tourists and earning 56 billion US dollars in tourism revenue in 2023 despite the devastating earthquake earlier this year and the recent elections, Culture and Tourism Minister Mehmet Nuri Ersoy told Turkish business daily Dunya on Friday.

In 2022, 51.4 million tourists visited Türkiye, bringing the country 46.3 billion dollars in revenue. — Xinhua

WeChat Pay of China launched in Nepal

WECHAT Pay, a mobile payment service run by China's tech giant Tencent, was launched on Thursday in Pokhara, a popular tourist destination in Nepal.

Tencent is joining hands with Nepal's NMB Bank Ltd to bring WeChat Pay service to the South Asian country.

"I firmly believe that this collaboration will set new avenues for safe, secure and convenient cross-border merchant payments for Chinese tourists in Nepal," Guru Prasad Poudel, an executive director from Nepal Rastra Bank, the country's central bank, said at the launch ceremony.

"It will further enhance cross-border trade, tourism and remittances in both countries," he added.

Addressing the ceremony, Chinese Ambassador to Nepal Chen Song said that it is the right time and "full of great significance" to launch and promote WeChat Pay in Nepal.

He spoke of an increasing number of Chinese tourists going overseas year by year and "the favourable prospects of the Chinese tourist market" in Nepal.

"China is ready to enhance the synergy of policies with Nepal, not only limited to traditional sectors, but also breaking new ground in emerging fields such as financial service trade, unlocking great potential for mutual cooperation and benefits," Chen said.

UK police drop controversial case against French publisher

UK police said Friday that they were taking no further action against a French publisher who was controversially stopped at London's St Pancras station under terror legislation and arrested. Ernest Moret, who works at left-wing French publisher Editions La Fabrique, was travelling to the London Book Fair in April when he was detained by British border officers after arriving from Paris.

He was bailed, and later released under investigation. But Metropolitan Police said Friday that they had been advised by the country's prosecution service that "the evidential test has not been met, therefore, no further action will be taken."

UK police faced criticism over the arrest under terrorism legislation for "obstructing" the search, which was allegedly prompted by his participation in recent pension reforms protests in France. Police said they stopped him and arrested him on suspicion of "wilfully obstructing a Schedule 7 examination".

Schedule 7 allows specially trained officers to search and detain individuals and goods passing through the UK's border to determine whether they may be involved or used in "acts of terrorism". — AFP

Asian, European markets fall again as traders eye more rate hikes

EQUITY markets sank Friday and oil extended a sharp selloff after a string of interest rate hikes by central banks revived worries about the global economy.

Eyes are also on Tokyo after forecast-beating inflation figures fuelled speculation on whether the Bank of Japan (BoJ) will shift away from its ultra-loose monetary policy that has dragged on the yen.

The optimism that characterised the first half of June — fuelled by hopes the Federal Reserve was close to the end of its hiking cycle — has given way to concern that officials still had several more in them as they bat-the stubborn price rises.

Last week's decision to stand pat after 10 straight increases added to the sense of hope, but warnings Wednesday from boss Jerome Powell that more work was needed took the wind out of traders' sails.

He told US lawmakers that two more this year was "a pretty good guess".

His comments came as the Bank of England

(BoE) lifted rates more than expected, while officials in Switzerland and Norway also tightened. That followed hikes last week in the eurozone, Australia and Canada.

And Türkiye, which for two years had followed President Recep Tayyip Erdogan's unorthodox policy of dealing with high inflation by cutting rates, changed course and nearly doubled its borrowing costs.

However, some observers are sceptical the Fed will follow through with its warnings as US inflation continues to subside, falling to 4.0 per cent in May from 4.9 per cent in April. The Fed's target is 2.0 per cent. — AFP

Iran plans to extend its new hypersonic missile's range

IRAN plans to extend the range of its recently developed Fattah hypersonic missile by as much as 600 km, IRGC Aerospace Force Commander Amir Ali Hajizadeh has revealed.

“The fact that we have built the Fattah missile with [the current range of 1,400 km, ed.] does not mean that we will not have a missile with a range of 2,000 km with these characteristics in the future.

Rather, this is its current range, and in the future we will extend its range,” Hajizadeh said at a ceremony at Mazandaran University, northern Iran on Wednesday.

“Today”, the commander said, Iran has “achieved all complex technologies in the defence industry,” and will have more “good news for our beloved people in the field of missiles” in the future. Iran depends on its conventional ballistic and cruise missile arsenal as its main deterrent against foreign aggression, casting off nuclear weapons and all other kinds of weapons of mass destruction as incompatible with the tenets of Islam. The country built up its defence industry from scratch over the past forty years after being cut off from its traditional Western arms suppliers after the 1979 Revolution, developing and fielding an array of missiles, drones, radars and other advanced weapons systems, and creating a homegrown defence electronics sector.

The Islamic Republic took a major step in rocket science earlier this month when it unveiled the Fattah, which is reportedly capable of accelerating to 13-15 Mach and manoeuvring during flight. Footage accompanying the missile's unveiling showed its launch, touchdown on target, and engine testing, revealing that it is fitted with a thrust-vectoring nozzle that allows for steering in flight, thus making its trajectory unpredictable. — SPUTNIK

Bangladesh arrests chief of Islamist militant outfit

BANGLADESH police have arrested the leader of an Islamist organization at his hideout in Dhaka, officers said Saturday, months after the launch of a crackdown against the group.

Shamin Mahfuz, the founder of Jamaat al Ansar fil Hindal Sharqiya, is accused of helping to run militant training camps in the country's restive Chittagong Hill Tracts.

Police said Mahfuz was arrested late Friday along with his wife in an industrial suburb of the capital, where they were found with a pistol, explosives and bomb-making materials.

“An anti-terrorism case has been filed against Mahfuz. We seek 10 days of remand to question him,” Mohammad Asaduzzaman of the Dhaka Metropolitan Police counter-terrorism unit told reporters.

Lawyers for Mahfuz could not be reached for comment.

Asaduzzaman said the Sharqiya founder had first been detained in 2014 and came into contact with other outlawed extremist groups while in prison.

He said Mahfuz had brokered a deal for the organization to use training camps run by the Kuki-Chin National Front (KNF), a mainly Christian tribal insurgent group. — AFP

Russia, China block move for new Antarctic marine reserves

MEMBERS of a multinational group on Antarctic conservation failed to agree Friday on a roadmap for the creation of three new marine protected areas -- a goal that has proven elusive for years. “No agreement was reached. It was not possible to obtain... a road map” for protected areas in the seas around Antarctica, Cesar Cardenas, a member of the Chilean Antarctic Institute and part of the Chilean delegation, told AFP.

Cardenas said Russia and China resisted new protected areas.

The bid to create the sanctuaries around Antarctica to counter climate change and protect fragile ocean ecosystems would safeguard nearly four million more square kilometres (1.5 mil-

Simon Chinn to make a documentary about the four Indigenous children who survived 40 days alone in the Amazon after a plane crash that killed their mother, the country's president said Friday.

Gustavo Petro, who is attending a climate summit in Paris, said he had “a first meeting” with

Chinn, a two-time Oscar winner for the documentaries “Man on Wire” (2008) and “Searching for Sugar Man” (2012). The four children -- Lesly (13), Soleiny (9), Tien Noriel (5) and one-year-old Cristin -- were the only survivors of a small plane crash in the Amazon on 1 May. — AFP

Putin delivers address following Wagner armed mutiny attempt

THIS comes after the head of the Wagner Group private military company Yevgeny Prigozhin has faced a criminal case for inciting an armed mutiny.

Russia's Federal Security Service announced a criminal case Friday against Yevgeny Prigozhin, the head of the mercenary organization known as the Wagner Group, claiming he incited "armed rebellion" after he claimed Russia's military killed a "huge" number of Wagner paramilitaries in an attack on a Wagner Group camp, as tensions reach a fever pitch between the paramilitary group and Moscow.

The FSB said that there was a threat of escalation on Russian territory. The Russian Defence Ministry said that social media reports about alleged Russian military strikes on camps belonging to PMC Wagner were not true. — SPUTNIK

Major US highway reopens two weeks after overpass collapse

A section of one of America's busiest highways, which collapsed some two weeks ago after a fire, reopened Friday, officials said. An overpass on Interstate 95 in Philadelphia collapsed on 11 June after a tanker crossing underneath burst into flames. One person died and several traffic lanes were taken out of service.

Pennsylvania Governor Josh Shapiro earlier predicted it would take months to fully restore the road, but state transportation authorities were able to construct a temporary roadway, filling it in with a recycled glass aggregate and paving over it.

Among the solutions authorities used to speed up their work was a vehicle ordinarily used to dry car racing tracks after the rain — to make the asphalt dry enough for lines to be painted.

In a statement Friday, President Joe Biden lauded the round-the-clock efforts by operating engineers, labourers, and carpenters. He added that the emergency repair was federally funded and "all approvals were given as quick as possible".

Referring to the damaged I-95 stretch, he said: "I know how important it is to people's quality of life, the local economy, and the 150,000 vehicles that travel on it every day." — AFP

Singapore holds first LGBTQ rally since gay sex decriminalized

HUNDREDS of people wearing pink attended Singapore's annual "Pink Dot" LGBTQ rally on Saturday, the first to be held since the city-state decriminalized gay sex last year.

Brandishing rainbow flags and sporting glittery makeup, participants gathered in a downtown park — the only place in Singapore where protests are allowed without a police permit.

"I'm celebrating today because it's been a really long fight," said Ernest Seah, a gay 58-year-old artist and teacher, while sitting on a pink inflatable couch.

"And you know, it's great that love wins and the government understands that."

Singapore's parliament last year repealed a British colonial-era law that penalized sex between men with up to two years in jail, although the statute was not actively enforced.

But at the same time lawmakers passed a constitutional amendment bolstering the existing definition of marriage as between a man and a woman.

The amendment essentially closed the door on any future legal challenges that could establish equal marital rights for LGBTQ people.

Describing the mood as one of "celebration and joyousness", Pink Dot's spokesperson Clement Tan said it was a "relief" to hold the rally with the law no longer on the books.

He declined to specify what Pink Dot, one of Singapore's leading LGBTQ advocacy groups, would focus on next.

"We recognize that post repeal, people need a moment to breathe," he said. — AFP

Sierra Leone votes amid crippling economic crisis

SIERRA Leoneans voted Saturday in a general election in which President Julius Maada Bio is seeking a second term amid a crippling economic crisis that sparked deadly riots last year. One of the world's poorest countries, Sierra Leone was battered by a brutal 1991-2002 civil war and the Ebola epidemic a decade later. More economic misery followed due to the Covid pandemic and Russia's invasion of Ukraine, which notably spiked food prices in the import-dependent West African nation. Boubacar Conteh, 27, from Wellington in the east of Freetown, waited since four in the morning to cast his ballot.

"I want my country to change — I need change," he said. Twelve men and one woman are vying for the top job and incumbent Bio's main challenger is Samura Kamara of the All People's Congress (APC) party. — AFP

CONCACAF suspends four players after USA-Mexico brawl

CONCACAF meted out suspensions to Weston McKennie and Sergino Dest of the United States and Mexico's Cesar Montes and Gerardo Arteaga on Friday in the wake of the stormy Champions League clash between the two nations. The United States triumphed 3-0 in the semifinal match that saw both sides finish with nine men.

Montes was shown a red card for an ugly wild kick at Folarin Balogun and McKennie was dismissed for his role in the fracas which followed.

Arteaga and Dest were sent off after another mass brawl.

CONCACAF, football's governing body for North and Central America and the Caribbean, said on Friday that McKennie and Montes have been suspended a further three matches, in addition to their automatic one-match bans.

Dest and Arteaga were suspended an additional two games.

Dest and McKennie are not in the US squad for the CONCACAF Gold Cup that starts on Saturday, but the sanctions will be a blow for Mexico in the competition, with both Montes and Arteaga in the Gold Cup squad. — AFP

Lamphun Warriors renews long contract with Maung Maung Lwin for five years

LAMPHUN Warriors FC announced a new contract extension with Maung Maung Lwin, captain and winger of the Myanmar national team, for five years until the 2028 football season of the Thailand League.

In 2022, he won the Thai League II with Lamphun, making him the first Myanmar footballer to win a trophy abroad.

He scored three goals with two assists in 22 matches in the Thai League.

"It is certain that Maung Maung Lwin will continue to create a new page of history with the fans of Lamphun province", as stated by the Lamphun Warriors FC.

Premier League rivals seek to profit from Chelsea's fire sale

CHELSEA have embarked on a fire sale following their stunning spending spree, trimming their bloated squad in an effort to comply with financial regulations as they prepare for a new era under Mauricio Pochettino. In their first year under the ownership of an American consortium, Chelsea spent more on transfer fees than any club has ever done in a 12-month period, only to finish 12th in the Premier League – their lowest placing since 1994. The arrival of RB Leipzig forward Christopher Nkunku this week has added to the outlay of more than £500 million ($635 million).

But most of Chelsea's business is focused on departures, with key players in the squad that won the Champions League just two years ago set to leave. — AFP

Ireland's Maguire strikes late for Women's PGA Championship halfway lead

IRELAND'S Leona Maguire birdied three of her last four holes to take a one-stroke second-round lead on Friday in the Women's PGA Championship at rain-soaked Baltusrol.

Maguire, who started the day three off the pace, shook off a slow start that saw her par her first five holes before a bogey at the 15th. She responded with a birdie at the 17th and grabbed another at the fourth before a bogey at the fifth.

Then she cantered home with birdies at the sixth, seventh and ninth to card a three-under 68. Her five-under total of 137 put her one clear of a group of three on 138: England's Mel Reid, Norway's Celine Borge and China's Lin Xiyu. — AFP
