India, France propose to buy Myanmar’s avocado this year

FRANCE offered to buy eight tonnes of Amara avocado variety while India proposed to purchase 1,000 tonnes of Hass avocado in the upcoming avocado season, said an official of Myanmar Avocado Producers and Exporters Association.

The harvest season for avocados of export quality will commence in early November. The association is endeavouring to meet the demands of those foreign countries.

“We receive purchase orders from global markets. However, we have weak infrastructure in warehouses and logistics for avocados. An avocado processing factory is under construction in Hopong City. We have received a purchase order for eight tonnes of Amara avocado from France and 1,000 tonnes of Hass avocado from India.

PhaungdawU Buddha Images arrive at Helya Ywama Temple

ON the second day of the Inlay PhaungdawU Pagoda Festival, the PhaungdawU Buddha Images arrived at the Helya Ywama Temple on 16 October and will be worshipped for two nights, according to the Board of Trustees.

The Inlay PhaungdawU Buddha Images began their tour around the lake, visiting 21 temples on 15 October after a three-year suspension in Nyaungshwe Township, Shan State (South).

The PhaungdawU Buddha

Images commenced their tour from the Yadana Temple to the Shweinntein Village Temple at 7:30 am on 15 October, marking the start of the PhaungdawU Pagoda festival.

The festival was bustling with visitors, including local pilgrims, and featured 20 boats for alms offerings, including barges and decorated boats.

Additionally, the festival includes rowing competitions, such as the men's over-100-rower, 46-rower, and women's 26-rower boat races. There is also an Individual Boat Competition.

After spending one night at Shweinntein Temple, the decorated barge carrying Buddha images arrived at Helya Ywama Temple on 16 October and stayed there for two nights.

The remaining 19 temples will be visited on other days, and the PhaungdawU Buddha Images will return to the original Yadana Temple on 1 November. — TWA/MKKS urging all ethnic armed organizations to be present at the meeting to participate in the process.

Representatives of EAOs discussed that although some organizations issued statements that the NCA has nullified, the NCA does not nullify with firmness and sustainability, and they continue working towards firm realization of the NCA.

The Senior General clarified the needs of all stakeholders to emphasize the development of the nation with the same will and to participate in taking measures of peace and stability for the nation and relevant regions.

Representatives of EAOs submitted their suggestions for proper ways to restore internal peace and organize NCA non-signatories to join the NCA.

The Senior General underscored that the Government and Tatmadaw continue the realization of the NCA process, by signing the NCA and discharging the State responsibilities under the Constitution (2008) due to voting frauds in the 2020 multiparty general elections.

He also explained the implementation of the State Administration Council on two national visions: prosperity of the State and food security as well as two political visions: strengthening the genuine, disciplined multiparty democratic system and building the Union based on democratic and federal system.

Those EAO representatives reported on appropriate situations for ensuring internal peace and regional development in addition to region-wise education promotion.

Incidence of childhood diabetes reach nearly 400 within nine years

CURRENTLY, about 200 children are receiving medical treatment for diabetes.

According to Yangon Children's Hospital, there are nearly 400 children with diabetes in Yangon Region over the past nine years, and 200 children are currently receiving medical treatment.

Yangon Children's Hospital opens an outpatient department and is treating type-1 diabetes and type-2 diabetes. All types of diabetes are caused by high blood sugar and is a chronic disease.

Type 1 diabetes is a condition in which the pancreas can no longer produce insulin, and if blood sugar cannot be controlled with medication, insulin injections are required.

According to the statistics,

A doctor takes a blood test to see if the child has diabetes.

the patient must receive treatment for diabetes throughout his life. There is no cure for type 1 diabetes, so prevention is the only way to respond the disease. Type 2 diabetes can be reduced by making changes to the child's life style and changing diet and behavior.

People with a family history of diabetes, sedentary people, and those who eat sugary foods are more likely to develop type 2 diabetes.

According to the Ministry of Health, if children have symptoms of type 2 diabetes, such as excessive urination and frequent thirst, as well as gradual weight loss and weight gain, they should see nearest pediatrician.

Childhood hormone-related diabetes is a lesser-known condition. Since January 2014, Yangon Children's Hospital has opened an outpatient department for patients with this disease and is treating them every Tuesday. — TWA/KZL

US$16,551.306 mln earned from foreign trade volume in more than six months period in 2023-24 FY

THE trade volume reached US$16,551.306 million in the first six months of the 2023-2024 financial year. From 1 April to 6 October, Myanmar exported $8,712.336 million and imported $7,838.97 million. Imports exceeded exports by over $870 million, resulting in a trade deficit of $873.366 million.

Myanmar exports agricultural produce, livestock products, fishery products, minerals products, forest products, finished industrial products, and other items to foreign countries. Investment goods, commercial raw materials, consumer goods, CMP raw materials, etc. are primarily imported from foreign countries.

To boost Myanmar's exports, the National Export Strategy (NES) 2020-2025 is currently in effect. The key priority sectors of the NES 2020-2025 include agriculture-based food production, textile and clothing, industrial and electrical, fisheries, forest products, digital products and services, logistics services, quality management, trade information services, innovation and entrepreneurship, among others. — TWA/CT

150 labour disputes resolved in Yangon Region's 44 townships in nine months

YANGON Region Chief Minister U Soe Thein said during a seminar on labour dispute settlement held on 14 October at the UMFCCI that 150 labour disputes have been resolved in 44 townships, Yangon Region, and compensations of K148.3 million and US$48,000 have been issued to 363 workers within nine months.

Most cases of disputes between employer and employee arise from dismissals, disruption of working relationship between management and workers, request of allowance for monthly regular attendance, factory closure and layoffs.

"The best way for the employer and employee is to negotiate and reach a settlement in the workplace. A good working relation between employer and employee can bring mutual benefits. If no settlement is reached, they can file a complaint with the arbitration teams in the relevant townships. If disputes arise, they need to be resolved in accordance with the law," U Myint Naung, Union Minister for Labour has once said.

The township level arbitration teams are supposed to solve the disputes of interests while disputes relating to rights are to be solved by relevant departments. The Arbitration Council is to investigate and decide the cases that do not reach agreements at township level arbitration process and the council is the last resort to settle disputes. If a party involved in a dispute is not satisfied with the council's decision, he or she still have the right to submit the case to the Supreme Court of the Union to reach fair settlements.

Watermelon exporters fail to profit from current price

WATERMELON exporters are making a loss with the current price of approximately 1,500 Yuan per tonne, said Sai Khin Maung from the Khwanyo Fruit Trading Depot.

Quality of watermelons deteriorates as they are produced in monsoon season and half of them are ruined, he continued.

“If the offering price is 1,500 Yuan. It cannot cover the freight rate and general cost. Another problem is that half of them do not meet quality. The market will recover when quality watermelon season commences,” he elaborated.

Myanmar’s watermelon is primarily exported to China. Myanmar’s fruit traders are facing a series of challenges with the changes in China’s Customs clearance system.

In early February, tight inspections of Chinese Customs hindered truck transport. That being so, only 20-30 trucks were able to pass the checkpoint despite high demand. Consequently, watermelon was sold out at the depots on the China side, and more than 500 trucks queued in line on the Myanmar side.

In 2021, the COVID-19 restrictions hindered Myanmar’s watermelon and muskmelon exports to China. Chinese Customs Regulation increased delay. Long delays of trucks caused harm to watermelon quality and only one in five trucks heading to China remained undamaged with quality watermelons.

On 1 April, Nantaw and Sinphyu border were suspended in the wake of COVID-19 impacts. China has closed down the major border crossing of Man Wein from 30 March 2021 following the COVID-19 cases in Myanmar.

On 8 July 2021, the two remaining cross-border points Kyinsankyawt and Pansang were suspended. As a result of this, the border trade between Myanmar and China was completely halted.

Among the Sino-Myanmar border points, the Kyinsankyawt border resumed operations on 26 November 2021.

Trade activity at the Muse-Mang Wein crossing point, which performed the majority of trade between Myanmar and China, resumed on 14 January 2023. Additionally, other goods except agricultural products (watermelon, muskmelon), minerals and fisheries products are allowed to be sent to China through that border point.

Additionally, Nantaw and Sinphyu border points, which is the major border crossing, were reopened on 25 January 2023. Myanmar exports about 400,000 tonnes of black gram worth US$352 mln

ACCORDING to the Ministry of Commerce, approximately 400,000 tonnes of black gram, valued at US$352 million, were exported abroad.

Furthermore, between 1 April and 6 October, goods worth $734 million, including various beans and pulses weighing 884,627 tonnes, were shipped abroad. Among these exports, black gram led the way with 396,841 tonnes, valued at US$352 million. Mung beans and pigeon peas were also exported, amounting to $163 million and $95 million, respectively.

The price of black gram RC reached its highest point on 11 October 2023, at K2,650,000 per tonne, remaining at K2,649,000 on 14 October. During the second week of October, when the price increased, 95 containers of black gram RC weighing 2,280 tonnes were reportedly traded.

Reportedly, the price for a tonne of exported FOB black gram FAQ ranges from $990 to $1,010, while SQ is priced between $1,095 and $1,115, and pigeon peas range from $1,350 to $1,370.

Despite fluctuations in the price of black gram, the price of pigeon peas remained constant for two weeks, from 29 September to 14 October, at K4,075,000 per tonne.

There are approximately 150,000 tonnes of black gram remaining in the country. While India, a significant consumer of black gram, has introduced a new black gram variety, its quality is not favorable.

In Myanmar, early in 2024, new multi-cropped black grams are expected to become available, particularly from the delta regions. — TWA/CT

Self-sufficiently produced edible oil sold in Mandalay market

U Soe Win Myint, an owner of the Soe Win Myint commodity depot, said that domestically produced edible oil is being produced and sold in the Mandalay market at low rates for consumers.

At present, in order to meet the people’s need for edible oil, locally produced crops are milled into oil and sold in the market. In so doing, a viss of peanut oil is being sold at K15,000, sesame oil at K14,000, sunflower oil at K14,000, mustard oil at K10,000, niger oil at K14,000, and soybean oil at K7,000.

“These days, all the oil mills in and around Mandalay operate, mill the produce into oil, and sell it in the market. Monsoon peanuts are in season too, and sesame produced in the central region is harvested and sold in the market. In addition to peanut and sesame, soybean, niger, sunflower, and mustard are being milled at the same time to produce oil,” he continued. Preserve coastal areas to combat plastic pollution

THE world is witnessing a growing population and an increasing number of travellers, both domestically and internationally. Unfortunately, this has led to a surge in pollution along the coastlines of oceans and seas, which make up over 70 per cent of the Earth’s surface. Iconic beaches worldwide are now bearing the brunt of various forms of pollution. Therefore, it is imperative for all countries to prioritize the conservation of their coastal and marine ecosystems.

Coastal resources encompass natural infrastructures such as mangrove forests, coastal woodlands, and coral reefs. These ecosystems play a crucial role in sequestering carbon dioxide, a major driver of climate change. The depletion of coastal resources could exacerbate climate change, causing harm to vital features like mangrove forests, coral reefs, seagrass beds, archipelagos, deltaic regions, and fisheries. Myanmar, situated in Southeast Asia, boasts

In light of these concerning trends, the people worldwide, including the citizens of Myanmar, need to take action to conserve oceans and coastal areas promptly. This is not only crucial for safeguarding food production but also for mitigating the impact of natural disasters. By recognizing the importance of these coastal ecosystems and adopting sustainable practices, everybody can hope to reverse the tide of plastic pollution that threatens precious oceans and seas. It’s time for a united global effort to protect our coastlines and preserve the health of the planet.

Plastic products, while inexpensive, take hundreds of years to decompose. Consequently, plastic waste can be found in natural water bodies such as rivers, creeks, lakes, oceans, and seas. Shockingly, surveys reveal that between 75 million and 199 million tonnes of plastic waste currently contaminate oceans and seas.

If global consumption, production, and disposal of plastic products continue unabated, the amount of plastic waste entering aquatic ecosystems could skyrocket to an alarming 19 million to 23 million tonnes annually. According to the United Nations Environment Programme, this volume could triple by 2040. Since plastic waste persists in the environment for extended periods, microplastic particles can gradually find their way into the food chain through aquatic organisms.

In light of these concerning trends, the people worldwide, including the citizens of Myanmar, need to take action to conserve oceans and coastal areas promptly. This is not only crucial for safeguarding food production but also for mitigating the impact of natural disasters. By recognizing the importance of these coastal ecosystems and adopting sustainable practices, everybody can hope to reverse the tide of plastic pollution that threatens precious oceans and seas. It’s time for a united global effort to protect our coastlines and preserve the health of the planet.

Selling Rice as a Means of Aiding

It was a day in early May 2004 when the Managing Director (MD), U Min Hla Aung, gave me an instruction to accompany him to the Minister’s office for a crucial matter. I was working as a Deputy General Manager at the Export Department under Myanmar Agricultural Produce Trading.

Upon reaching the ministerial office, the Managing Director quickly went inside to inform the Minister, Brigadier-General Pyae Sone of his presence. In the meantime, I waited patiently outside the minister’s office. After a short wait, the Managing Director came out, and we headed back to our office together. On our way back, the MD asked if I was familiar with a country called Gambia. In fact, I was not aware of it yet, answering that I assumed it to be a country in Africa.

After hearing my response, the Managing Director instructed me, “A VIP from the Gambia (Official name is the Republic of the Gambia) is currently in our country. Having engaged with the high dignitaries, he has sought assistance due to a prevailing food shortage in his nation, necessitating the sale of rice. It is imperative that you collaborate with the General Manager and other pertinent executives to expedite the shipment process. Given the country’s difficulties, plan to sell the rice at the lowest possible price.” Upon returning to the office, the Managing Director called the General Managers to discuss the specific details of exporting rice to Gambia.

I distinctly remembered the directive from the Managing Director, stressing, “There is a food crisis in Gambia, and we must offer our assistance to the best of our ability.” The directive specified the necessity of reducing prices in comparison to other export markets, prioritizing the selection of good-quality long-grain white rice Emata (25 per cent broken). Additionally, it emphasized the importance of approaching this task with a sense of sympathy and a humane perspective. At that point, my knowledge of Gambia was limited, prompting me to gather information from various accessible sources to enhance my understanding of the country.

The Gambia in 2004

The Gambia, situated on the west coast of Africa, was primarily an agricultural country, with an estimated 70% of the population depending on the sector for its food and cash income. The agricultural sector accounted for 30 per cent of GDP and 90 per cent of its export earnings. In 2003, The Gambia’s population stood at 1.4 million. Over two-thirds of the population resides in rural areas and is primarily engaged in agriculture and/or agriculture-related activities. Remarkably, the country had a population density of 128 people per square kilometre, positioning it as one of the highest nations in Africa. The Gambia River is an important source of water for the country’s agricultural sector, but salinity intrusion from the sea has made coastal areas unsuitable for crop cultivation. The production of the country’s agricultural sector has also been fluctuating over the years and because of this, The Gambia is classified as the least developed, low-income and food-deficit country. The country’s food production only caters to 50 per cent of its consumption requirement, primarily rice, requiring an annual expenditure of approximately 40 million US dollars for imports. This circumstance was adversely impacting the nation’s foreign reserves. The primary source of food for The Gambia was local production, supplemented by imports and international aid. With 47 per cent of the population living in poverty and 30 per cent in extreme poverty, food insecurity remained a significant challenge for the country.

According to the “New Rice Policy” introduced in 2003, Myanmar’s Agricultural Produce Trading (MAPT) shifted away from purchasing, milling, and storing rice. Consequently, the rice remaining at MAPT had aged, with a majority containing between seven per cent and 20 per cent yellow grains. Adhering to Myanmar’s standard specification, the tolerance of yellow grain is only two per cent in Emata white rice (25 per cent). This strict criterion made it the MAPT difficult to export good-quality rice to the Gambia. However, under the coordination of the then general managers — U Tin Shwe, U Maung Maung Kyi, and U Myo Oo — the entire staff of MAPT diligently worked to meet Gambia’s request for the purchase of thirty thousand tons of rice. Furthermore, following the guidance of the Managing Director, it was decided to sell the rice at a rate of 161.67 Euros per ton. During that period, the price of Emata White Rice (25 per cent) stood at approximately 180 Euros per ton to regular markets. Selling prices in US dollars faced challenges due to the sanctions imposed by the United States. Following negotiations with representatives from the Gambia, it was agreed to export 30,000 metric tons of rice via two shipments and the Gambia sought prompt shipment. To facilitate this, plans were made to swiftly prepare the rice to be cargo-ready. The contracted value of the rice amounted to 4.85 million euros (4,850,100). Regarding payment, at that time, MAPT’s remaining rice was efficiently managed for quick export and only a telegraphic transfer (TT) system (Advance Payment) was preferable. However, to ensure a smooth transaction and alleviate any difficulties for the Gambia in purchasing rice from Myanmar, it was decided to adopt a letter of credit (LC) system, wherein payment is allowed to be made after the product is shipped. Following successful negotiations with the Gambian delegation, the rice sales contract was formally signed on 6 May 2004, by Mr Tamsir M Manga, Permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Trade Industry and Employment of the Government of The Gambia, and U Min Hla Aung, the Managing Director of Myanmar Agricultural Produce Trading. Mr Momodou Lamin Kujabi and Mr Yusupha Jawara from the Gambian side, and U Tin Shwe, General Manager, and U Kyaw Zaw Maung, Deputy General Manager, also signed as witnesses in the sales contract. Subsequent to the signing of the sales contract, MAPT diligently prepared for the export of rice to Gambia.

Exporting Rice to the Gambia

After the contract was signed, a vessel from Gambia berthed at Yangon port a few days later and loaded 15,000 metric tons of rice. Unfortunately, Gambia was unable to ship the remaining 15,000 tons due to other difficulties, leading to the cancellation of the contract. Despite this setback, the MAPT continued their processes to assess the possibility of Gambia resuming shipments, showing empathy for the Gambian citizens.

Sympathy for the Gambia

Upon entering a contract to supply rice to Gambia, guided by our national leaders, the MAPT facilitated several supportive relief measures with a compassionate and humane approach to assist Gambia, a nation facing an acute food crisis. The measures encompassed the careful selection and collection of good quality rice from various regions of the country and the mobilization of a total of 30,000 metric tons of standardized long-grain Emata 25 per cent rice. The collected rice underwent re-milling to enhance its quality, and it was subsequently sold at a more favourable price compared to rates exported to other countries. These practical measures showcased Myanmar’s sympathy, empathy, and generosity toward the Gambia.

In adherence to the contractual terms, the designated shipment period was scheduled from May to July 2004. Myanmar, in the contract, also granted The Gambia a one-month extension, allowing flexibility in case the shipment couldn’t be dispatched within the initial timeframe. Moreover, within the sales contract, aligning with the policies at that time, a provision stipulated that “if the buyer cannot ship the contracted quantity within the agreed shipment period, inventory carrying charges at the rate of 2 US$ per tonne per week or part of thereof for the unshipped balance shall be paid to the seller”. It’s noteworthy; however, that the MAPT, by the guidance of a higher level, exempted the Gambia from paying such charges for the 15,000 metric tons that they were unable to ship.

The Generous Country

As a state-owned enterprise, the MAPT typically conducts the export of rice to foreign countries through commercial means, employing various market strategies to optimize crop prices. However, in the case of exporting rice to the Gambia, Myanmar adopted a stance driven by humanitarian considerations, prioritizing sympathy, a spirit of friendship, and adherence to the willingness of our leaders of the State to assist the small economy which suffered a food crisis. Under the guidance of the government, the Ministry of Commerce and Myanmar Agricultural Produce Trading strived diligently to accomplish the mission. Despite Myanmar grappling with developmental hurdles and challenges for some reasons, the country did not hesitate to extend support to those in need and the export of rice to the Gambia reflects our nation’s generosity. Myanmar actually is a generous country.

Myanmar marks World Food Day 2023

WORLD Food Day 2023 was held at the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation in Nay Pyi Taw yesterday.

Union Minister for Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation U Min Naung, Union Minister for Cooperatives and Rural Development U Hla Moe, Union Minister for Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation U Khin Maung Yi, deputy ministers, the permanent secretaries, directors-general, rectors and departmental officials attended the event.

Speaking at the event, the MoALI Union minister highlighted the theme of World Food Day—Water is life, water is food. Leave no one behind, saying water is essential to life on Earth.

According to the UN, globally, nearly 2.4 billion people live in countries where the supply of water is limited. Only 2.5 per cent of water is freshwater.

Moreover, 74 per cent of natural disasters that occurred in two decades were due to floods and that caused losses worth US$700 billion.

He then added that the country has an adequate supply of agricultural and livestock products with 154.33 per cent of rice security, 126.2 per cent of cooking oil security and 512 per cent of pulses and beans security so it represents 28.8 per cent of total exports of the country.

He then talked about the need to consider and prepare for the distribution of irrigation water to summer paddy plantations and supply of drinking water to regions as the country might face the possible consequences of El Nino.

Additionally, he pledged to make effective plans for the impacts of El Nino that are likely to occur until mid-2024 through negotiation with the relevant departments, the public, farmers and entrepreneurs.

Cash contributions, donations provided to elderly film artistes

SINCE 16 October, the Myanmar Motion Picture Organization (MMPO) has been giving out cash contributions and donations to the elderly artistes who are unable to attend the 46th Respect Paying Ceremony to Aged Film Artistes, according to MMPO Vice-President U Aye Kyu Lay.

Only 30 senior film artistes could attend the 103rd Myanmar Motion Picture Day and 46th Respect Paying Ceremony to Aged Film Artistes held on 13 October, due to space constraints and health conditions, while no more than 100 senior film artistes were able to attend.

“Due to space constraints and the fact that there are some elderly parents who cannot sit for a long time and have to come in wheelchairs, we paid respect to only 30 people on the day of the ceremony. That’s why we are handing out cash contributions and donations to the remaining 100 senior artistes today. Plans are being made to visit the homes of elderly artistes who are bedridden and unable to come to the ceremony due to ill health. As of this morning, nearly 50 elderly artistes absent in ceremony have come,” U Aye Kyu Lay continued.

There are more than 140 elderly artists who are eligible for the ceremony this year, and the MMPO is contributing K400,000 in cash and about 70 medical supplies to each of the elderly artistes who are unable to attend the ceremony. — ASH/CT

Amusement park stages experiment to find horror ‘sweet spot’

“THIS was the scariest thing I have ever been through,” said Vicki Baath after being hooded and made to feel “like a hostage”.

“I didn’t know where to go and where they would lead me,” said the 45-year-old teacher who was also walked into a dark wood, tied up on a bed and surrounded by creepy voices and forms.

She had just completed a horror-themed experiment that sought to establish the perfect balance between fear and excitement.

In an observation room, researchers and the production team followed the spectacle on a monitor.

The red and the white: Bosnian wine shines on the global stage

AMID the karst soil and harsh sun in southern Bosnia, two grape varieties are making waves outside the mountainous Balkan country rarely associated with world-class wine.

The tough Zilavka and temperamental Blatina wines have even managed to net international prizes thanks to their embrace of tradition along with new techniques.

Wine has deep roots in Bosnia, with historians saying the mountainous country has been producing vino since the days of the Roman Empire. Its southern valleys provide a range of micro climates to grow an array of grapes.

At the age of 77, Grgo Vasilj watches as heaps of dark blue Blatina grapes are crushed, after being picked from one of his vineyards on the outskirts of Medjugorje — a small village famous for its Catholic shrine.

Here, his family has been tending vineyards covering 22 hectares (54 acres) for generations. — AFP

AI, VR take centre stage at Japan's annual electronics show

ARTIFICIAL intelligence and virtual reality took centre stage as Japan's major annual electronics show opened to the media on Monday, with NEC Corp, Sony Group Corp and other major tech companies demonstrating their latest technologies.

A total of 684 companies and organizations, up from 562 last year, are participating in this year's Combined Exhibition of Advanced Technologies, scheduled to open to the public from Tuesday through Friday in the Makuhari Messe convention centre in Chiba, near Tokyo.

It is the first CEATEC to be held after coronavirus restrictions were fully removed. The event was held partly or fully online for the past three years.

Overseas participants have increased to 195 from 146 last year, with a pavilion to showcase Ukrainian companies set up for the first time.

NEC Corp is displaying generative AI software, which it says has a high ability to cope with the Japanese language and is more suited for businesses that deal with confidential information compared with its rival services overseas.

"Our product is easy to install on customers' servers directly, unlike other services that rely on cloud computing," said Kazuya Ishikawa, evangelist at NEC Generative AI Hub, adding, "That makes it easy for our customers to handle sensitive information

Sony Group Corp is exhibiting a series of products that are designed to be easily handled by people with or without disabilities through virtual reality technologies. One of the exhibits is a game utilizing cross-reality, or XR, technology that allows visually impaired people to play virtual catch with smartphones that emit the sound of an imaginary flying ball.

Players throw and catch the virtual ball, taking their cue from the sound of the ball that changes its tone depending on the imagined distance from the players, Sony said.

"This can be also played between people who are physically apart utilizing the combination of real and virtual technologies. It is very popular at nursing homes," a Sony official said.

The maker of PlayStation 5 also unveiled a new controller of the console specifically designed for disabled people while also showcasing a smart monocle for people with impaired hearing that displays what other people have said in letters in real time. — Kyodo

Iraq signs deals with UAE firm to develop three oil, gas fields

IRAQ signed three contracts on Sunday with the United Arab Emirates' Crescent Petroleum to develop three oil and gas fields in the eastern and southern regions of the country, the Iraqi Oil Ministry said.

The ministry said in a statement that the deals would help Iraq produce 400 million standard cubic feet of natural gas per day within 18 months in the blocks of Kilabat-Gumar and Khashim al-Hmer-Injana in the eastern province of Diyala province and Khudhr al-Maa in the southern province of Basra.

Iraqi Oil Minister Hayan Abdul Ghani said the government was keen to increase gas investment projects to reduce gas flaring, which refers to the burning of the natural gas associated with oil extraction, and use the gas for power generation.

Iraq, a member of the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), has more than 145 billion barrels of proven oil reserves and 132 trillion cubic feet of proven natural gas reserves. But it still flares much of its gas wealth and relies on Iranian gas imports to feed its power plants. — Xinhua

Indonesia's trade balance surplus rises slightly in September

INDONESIA posted a trade balance surplus of 3.42 billion US dollars in September, rising slightly compared to the previous month of 3.12 billion US dollars, amidst the decline in the value of exports and imports, Statistics Indonesia (BPS) announced on Monday.

"This is the 41st consecutive month of surplus," said Acting Head of BPS Amalia Adininggar Widyasanti in a press conference, adding that exports in September were registered at 20.76 billion US dollars, down by 5.63 per cent from the previous month, and the recorded imports value was 17.34 billion US dollars, down by 8.15 per cent from August 2023. From January to September, China, the United States, and India are the top three non-oil and gas export destinations for Indonesia, altogether accounting for 42.86 per cent of total exports.

During the first three quarters of this year, China, Japan, and Thailand were the top three nations selling non-oil and gas commodities to Indonesia, with a volume of 45.68 billion US dollars (32.92 per cent), 12.36 billion US dollars (8.91 per cent), and 7.71 billion US dollars (5.55 per cent) respectively. — Xinhua

China-Laos, China-Viet Nam intl cold-chain freight trains begin operation

ON Monday morning, two cold-chain freight trains carrying fruits and vegetables left southwest China's Yunnan Province for Laos and Viet Nam respectively, marking the launch of international cold-chain train services on China-Laos, China-Viet Nam routes.

The two maiden train trips, which began from Yanhe Station of Yuxi City, Yunnan, are expected to reach the Laos capital, Vientiane, and Viet Nam's Lao Cai after about a day's trip.

Currently, one trip is scheduled daily from Kunming of Yunnan to Vientiane for the China-Laos international cold-

Markets wary as Italy budget targets tax cuts

A year after her first budget drew praise for its prudence, Italy’s Giorgia Meloni set out her 2024 plans Monday amid market fears over a loosening of the purse strings.

The far-right leader and her coalition partners agreed around 24 billion euros ($25 billion) in new measures focused on support for households and businesses still struggling with inflation, as well as helping women back to work after having children.

After a cabinet meeting to agree the plans, Meloni said it was a budget that was “very serious and realistic and which does not waste resources, but concentrates them on the main priorities”.

These priorities, financed with 15.7 billion euros in additional debt and unspecified spending cuts, are intended to “defend the purchasing power of families”, she told reporters.

But the largesse comes despite a declining economic outlook for the eurozone’s third largest economy, with Rome having forecast last month lower than expected growth.

And the government now expects a deficit of 4.3 per cent of gross domestic product (GDP) in 2024, up from 3.7 per cent estimated previously.

The market response to that announcement was immediate, with a sharp increase in the cost of Italy’s borrowing costs. — AFP

S Korea’s ICT export falls for 15th month in September

SOUTH Korea’s export of information and communications technology (ICT) products fell for the 15th consecutive month in September amid continued weakness in global demand for locally-made tech products, government data showed Monday.

ICT products shipment sank 13.4 per cent from a year earlier to 18.06 billion US dollars in September, continuing to slide since July last year, according to the Ministry of Trade, Industry and Energy.

Semiconductor export declined 14.4 per cent to 9.99 billion dollars last month on the back of lower chip prices.

Cairo summit on ‘Palestinian cause’ to be held Saturday: Gulf state media

LEADERS in Qatar and Kuwait received invitations Monday for a summit in Cairo to be held on Saturday to “discuss developments and the future of the Palestinian cause and the peace process”.

State media in both countries announced the invitations a day after Cairo announced its intention to host “a regional and international summit on the future of the Palestinian cause”, during a visit by US Secretary of State Antony Blinken.

The Gulf Cooperation Council also announced Monday it would hold an extraordinary meeting of its foreign ministers Tuesday, “to discuss developments of the situation in the Gaza Strip”.

Ten days into the violent war that erupted between Hamas and Israel, diplomatic efforts have yielded little success, as regional and world leaders aid and prevent any regional spillover. Air strikes have killed at least 2,750 people in the Gaza Strip in a relentless aerial campaign launched by Israel in retaliation for a Hamas attack on 7 October that killed 1,400 people. Mostly civilians died on both sides.

Egypt — historically a key mediator between Hamas and Israel — has been pushing diplomatic efforts, urging “restraint” and a return to the political process.

French Foreign Minister Catherine Colonna said on Monday in Cairo that Paris “welcomes Egypt’s initiative” for the summit.

She said it would “show that there is a political horizon that can take into account Israel’s right to security and the Palestinians’ right to a state”.

Blinken — who on Monday returned to Israel after a tour of the region — had said Sunday that “these kinds of initiatives are good ideas”. — AFP

Iran’s president warns of war expansion if Israel continues attacks on Gaza

IRANIAN President Ebrahim Raisi on Sunday warned of the expansion of the conflict if Israel continues its attacks on the Gaza Strip.

“If the Zionist regime seeks to pay for its defeat through the continuation of these crimes (against Palestinians), the dimensions of the developments will expand,” said Raisi in a phone conversation with French President Emmanuel Macron.

Raisi strongly condemned Israel’s attacks on the Palestinians over the past few days and criticized the French government for preventing a rally in support of the Palestinian people, according to a statement published on the website of the Iranian president’s office.

The French president, for his part, voiced concern over the escalation of the crisis in the Gaza Strip and called on Iran to play its influential role in controlling the situation in the region. However, Raisi said that “resistance groups can decide for themselves”.

The Palestinian Islamic Resistance Movement (Hamas) launched a surprise attack with thousands of rockets and the infiltration by scores of militants on Israel on 7 October, prompting extensive Israeli airstrikes on Gaza.

The ongoing conflict, now in its ninth day, has killed about 4,000 on both sides and wounded even more. — Xinhua

US strategic bomber to land in S Korea amid N Korea threat

A US B-52 strategic bomber is scheduled to land at a South Korean air base later this week, US forces in South Korea said on Monday, amid heightened tensions over the threat posed by North Korea’s ongoing nuclear and missile programmes.

The bomber will arrive during the six-day Seoul International Aerospace and Defence Exhibition, which will start on Tuesday, US Forces Korea said in a statement.

The deployment of a US strategic bomber to the region for reasons other than participating in joint military drills is considered to be rare. USFK said that the deployment shows the United States’ commitment to its alliance with South Korea is at an all-time high, in recognition of the 70th anniversary of the alliance.

The aircraft will conduct two flyovers during the biennial event, according to the USFK.

Maj. Rachel Buitrago, the 7th Air Force’s spokeswoman, said the B-52’s deployment and planned flyovers are “part of our continued pledge to promote peace, stability and prosperity on the Korean Peninsula,” according to the USFK statement.

Last Thursday, the US nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Ronald Reagan docked at the South Korean port city of Busan for a five-day visit. The aircraft carrier left Busan on Monday, according to South Korean media. — Kyodo

Myanmar to face MSAR in second leg of World Cup qualifier today

MYANMAR will play against Macau in the second leg of the first-round qualifiers in the Asian Zone of the 2026 World Cup at the Olympic Sports Centre Stadium in Macau at 6 pm Myanmar standard time on 17 October (today).

Due to thrashing its opponent with a 5-1 result in the first leg held on 12 October, team Myanmar possesses a good prospect of advancing to the next stage. As the skills and talent of Myanmar are higher than Macau's in the first leg, Myanmar has a high potential for securing a good result in the second leg.

A press conference on the second leg of the qualifier between Myanmar and Macau took place on 16 October. German Michael Feichtenbeiner, head coach of the Myanmar national football team, unveiled, "We would like to win over the opponent in the away match similar to the home match. So, we will translate all chances to secure the victory. We have no plan to play the defensive style but will pour our efforts into competing with Macau in full swing. Although we won over Macau in the first leg, the latter is capable of competing with us."

Myanmar's midfielder Kyaw Min Oo remarked, "We would like to grasp a win in this match similar to the first match. We regard this match as preparation

Hangzhou Asian Para Games Village opens

THE opening ceremony of the Hangzhou Asian Para Games Village, as well as the welcoming ceremony for the Chinese delegation, was held here on Monday.

Following around one week of transformation, the Asian Games Village has been turned into the Asian Para Games Village to welcome its first batch of residents.

Covering an area of 325,000 square metres, the village has been converted from the media village of the Hangzhou Asian Games and will provide 3,446 rooms for the delegations during the Asian Para Games.

Humanistic concern is prevalent in the village, as tactile paving can access all the facilities and signs are marked in Braille. Over 30 shuttle vehicles will provide around-the-clock transportation services. As there is a height difference of one to two centimeters inside and outside the rooms, rubber ramps are applied for wheelchair access, and protective strips are placed at the wall corners. In the athletes' rooms, beds can be adjusted to differ-

IN the autumn of 2013, China proposed the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), igniting the imaginations of many by rekindling the spirit of the two-millennia-old ancient Silk Road.

Ten years on, the initiative has evolved from a vision into reality through the collaborative efforts of all participating nations, becoming a widely-appreciated public good and a global driver of inclusive growth.

Over the past few decades, the global economy has contended with insufficient inclusivity, imbalances, and increasing wealth inequality. While some countries and regions have made notable strides economically and socially, other parts of the world have grappled with persistent poverty, inequality and developmental obstacles.

A decade ago, and with its strong focus on inclusive growth, the BRI offered the world a timely and practical solution infused with Chinese wisdom to address these very challenges.

As Chinese President Xi Jinping has said, no country or nation should be left behind on the road to the well-being of all humankind. All countries and nations are equally entitled to development opportunities and rights to development.

What exactly is the initiative? Consider it a public road open to all, not a private path owned by one party. All interested countries are welcome aboard to participate and share in its benefits.

As Xi has said, the BRI may be China's idea, but its opportunities and outcomes are going to benefit the world.

How the Belt and Road gives rise to a more inclusive world

By June 2023, China had signed more than 200 BRI cooperation agreements with over 150 countries and 30 international organizations across five continents.

Contrary to protecting the narrow interests of a group of countries that divide the world, China's endeavour to promote multilateralism via the BRI helps create a harmonious world, Kostas Gouliamos, former rector of European University Cyprus, once argued.

The BRI has offered more countries a greater say in the global economy.

From 2013 to 2022, the cumulative value of imports and exports between China and BRI partner countries was 19.1 trillion US dollars, with an average annual growth rate of 6.4 per cent.

Furthermore, the BRI embodies equitable development, striving to assist countries in overcoming poverty and ushering in an era of development.

Looking back over the past decade, the BRI has addressed the significant bottlenecks restricting connectivity and economic growth in most developing countries by constructing essential railway, highway, pipeline, shipping, energy and communications infrastructure.

From the China-Laos Railway that transformed landlocked Laos into a land-linked hub to Kenya's Mombasa-Nairobi Railway contributing two per cent to the African nation's economic growth, notable impactful projects have effectively reduced the cost for countries to participate in international trade, increased access to the global economy and stimulated development.

The ultimate goal of the pursuit of economic growth, development and prosperity is to enhance living standards. To ensure the benefits of cooperation are as widely available as possible, the Belt and Road cooperation focuses on food safety, poverty alleviation and job creation.

Israel military confirms 199 hostages abducted by Hamas

THE Israeli military on Monday raised the figure to 199 people confirmed to have been abducted by Hamas to the Gaza Strip in the militants' cross-border attacks which sparked a devastating war.

"We have updated the families of 199 hostages," military spokesman Daniel Hagari told a media briefing, revising up an earlier figure of 155 captives.

Israelis and foreigners are among those abducted in the Hamas assault on 7 October.

"The efforts on the hostages are a top national priority," Hagari said. "The army and Israel are working around the clock to bring them back."

At least 1,400 people have been killed in Israel and 2,750 in retaliatory strikes on Gaza, according to tolls from officials on both sides. The Israeli military has said the bodies of some 1,500 militants were located in the wake of the attacks. — AFP
