

Tourism promotion in eight destinations launched in Magway Region

THE tourism promotion activities are underway in eight tourist destinations of Magway Region, said U Zaw Lwin Htet, director of the regional Directorate of Hotels and Tourism.

The tourism promotion in eight tourist destinations includes sharing data on destinations with travel agencies for visitors from Thailand and conducting awareness campaigns for local tourist guides, hotels, motels and guesthouses.

“The region boasts eight destinations that the local and foreign travellers visit. We conduct an awareness campaign to ensure that visitors can visit here safely and share the history of these sites. We also negotiate with relevant officials to provide better transport services. The tourists from Thailand and Russia have already explored these sites and so we keep making preparations to promote the tourism industry,” he said.

Myanmar-Thailand border trade earns US$3 bln in 7 months

MYANMAR'S border trade with the neighbouring country Thailand amounted to US$3.034 billion in the past seven months (from April to October) of the current financial year 2023-2024.

The figures plunged from $3.16 billion recorded in the year-ago period, indicating a sharp drop of $125.558 million.

Myanmar conducts cross-border trade with Thailand via the Tachilek, Myawady, Kawthoung, Myeik, Hteekhee and Mawtaung borders. Of them, the Hteekhee border performed the largest trade worth $1.889 billion in the past seven months.

Moreover, the trade values stood at $882.303 million at the Myawady border, $94.397 million at Tachilek, $68.5 million at Myeik, $89.226 million at Kawthoung and $10.39 million at Mawtaung.

Among these border trade camps along Myanmar-Thailand, Mawtaung manages the least amount of trade including export and import activities worth $10.39 million.

2023- 2024 FY H1 palm oil import saves US$38 million compared to last year

DURING the first six months of the 2023-2024 financial year, the import of palm oil is 65,000 tonnes (28 per cent) more than the same period last year, but the cost for oil import was US$38 million less than that of previous year, according to the official data.

In 2022, average 40,000 tonnes of edible oil were imported every month, and the imported prices of palm oil were around $950 to $1,380 per tonne, but in early 2023, the prices decline and are around $850 to $1,000 USD per tonne, respectively. The market price of palm oil in mid-August 2022 was around K10,000 kyats, but it decreased to K5,150 in early December due to the supervision of the relevant authorities.

At the beginning of 2023, the palm oil wholesale price per viss was around K6,000, around K6,500 in April and July before climbing to K8,500 in August. At the end of this period, so called adulterated peanut oil were sold at a high price of around K10,000.

Currently, oil sold in yellow containers with the capacity of 18 litres become common in the market and the price of a viss of palm oil is K4,000 more than that of reference price. There are speculations that long queues beside roads to buy palm oil at the reference retail price of K4,500 per viss may pose traffic accidents.— TWA/TH

Security measures underway as KNPP, PDF terrorists try abducting education staff, students of Loikaw University

KNPP and PDF terrorists launched attacks on Loikaw University using heavy and small weapons yesterday morning and tried to forcibly abduct education workers and students.

The state government cooperated with the relevant officials to evacuate the faculty and students to safe places while KNPP and PDF terrorists intentionally launched such attacks. There are still armed engagements with terrorist groups.

KNPP and PDF terrorists took positions in houses, religious buildings, health and educational buildings to commit terrorist attacks in Kayah State starting December 2021. They also attacked an arch opening ceremony in Loikaw Township marking the 71st Anniversary of Kayah State Day (2023), which fell on 15 January.

Due to their attacks on non-military targets, university students and educational staff, some of the buildings in the university were destroyed and some security force members were injured. The security measures are underway near the vicinity areas.

Because of their attacks, the examination in the third batch of the University of Distance Education that started yesterday was postponed indefinitely, and that was a huge loss for students.

Green gram, pigeon pea price plunge persists following FOB prices dip

THE prices of pigeon peas (red grams) and green grams were on a downward trend in the Yangon market, along with FOB prices decline.

The FOB prices stood at US$1,320-1,340 per tonne of pigeon peas, $720-740 per tonne of green grams from central regions, and $900-930 per tonne of green grams (Shwewah) between 9 and 11 November. The prices slid to $1,290-1,310 per tonne of pigeon peas, $710-730 for green grams from central regions and $890-920 for green grams (Shwewah) on 13 November.

The current FOB prices showed a decrease of $60 per tonne of pigeon peas and $40 per tonne of green gram compared to those recorded on 12-14 October. The prices hit K2,580-2,835 per viss of green grams from the Pakokku area and K3,580 per viss of green grams (Shwewah) on 8 November and decreased to K2,500-

2,835 per viss of green grams from Pakokku area and K3,500 for green grams (Shwewah) on 13 November.

The pigeon pea prices plunged to K3.9 million per tonne on 3 November from K4.075 million per tonne between 29 September and 3 November.

Black gram prices dropped to K2.85 million per tonne on 13 November after it touched a high of K2.937 million on 31 October. The FOB prices of black gram remained unchanged at $1,070-1,090 per tonne on 9-13 November.

India accounts for 90 per cent of Myanmar's pigeon pea exports and 60 per cent of black gram exports. Meanwhile, green grams are shipped to the European Union member countries, China and other external markets beyond India.

Pigeon pea price this year increased to two-thirds of the price recorded in the previous years. Growers expect to earn a handsome profit in the upcoming pigeon pea harvest season in December, said a grower from Mahlaing Township.

Black grams and pigeon peas will be cultivated under an intercropping system in lower Myanmar regions after the harvest of monsoon paddy. They are likely to flow into the market in February 2024. — TWA/KK

Traders curtail chilli pepper prices amid sluggish market

WITH the chilli pepper market slow-moving, traders cut prices of chilli pepper when there is a deal, U Hla Han, a trader of Seinpan Street at Bayintnaung Commodity Centre told the Global New Light of Myanmar (GNLM).

The prices of long chilli peppers processed at cold storage were K13,500-14,500 per viss in the wholesale market at present. As the market is sluggish and the possibility of a price rise is extremely low, we have to reduce the price, U Hla Han stressed. The prices indicated a decrease of K1,000-2,000 per viss these days depending on different varieties.

Chinese bell peppers flowed into Yangon's market at K17,500 per viss in the last week of October. Then, the price increased to K18,000 per viss and was back in decline at K17,000-17,500 per viss.

Sinphyukyun bell pepper processed in cold storage fetched K19,000-22,000 per viss at present. The prevailing price plummeted from K31,000 per viss recorded on 17 November 2022. Despite the rocking kitchen grocery prices, the prices of various chilli peppers are still on the low side this year. Especially, the bell pepper price in November 2023 was down by around K10,000 per viss compared to that of last year.

Thus, traders who keep the huge stocks in their hands are forced to reduce the price in the market. — TWA/KK

Domestic fuel oil prices gain

THE prices of Octane 92 and 95 have risen in the Yangon's market on global cues.

The fuel oil prices were K2,060 per litre of Octane 92 and K2,160 per litre of Octane 95 on 11 November. The prices jumped to K2,130 for Octane 92 and K2,250 for Octane 95 on 13 November. However, diesel prices stayed on the low side of K2,145 per litre of diesel and K2,245 for premium diesel.

The price index set by Mean of Platts Singapore (MOPS), the pricing basis for many refined products in southeast Asia, heavily influences domestic fuel prices, according to the Supervisory Committee on Oil Import, Storage and Distribution of Fuel Oil.

With the MOPS's price index climbing in August 2022, the oil prices hit the highest of K2,605 per litre for Octane 92, K2,670 for Octane 95, K3,330 for premium diesel and K3,245 for diesel. The committee is therefore steering the fuel oil storage and distribution sector effectively so as not to have a shortage of oil in the domestic market and to ensure price stability for energy consumers.

Of 146 petrol stations in Yangon, some stations experienced a high demand for Octane 92 in recent days. Distribution by three terminals did not meet the demand and it was out of stock on 10 November.

However, the petrol stations were urgently filled with stocks on the night of 10 November. Oil tankers docked at port terminals on 11 and 12 November and 15 more are slated to arrive at the Port. This being so, the oil will be distributed to the filling stations in a timely manner as per the committee.

At present, there is a fuel oil security in the market, with stocks of over 13 million gallons of Octane 92, over three million gallons of Octane 95, over 29 million of diesel and over 20 million gallons of premium diesel.

The Petroleum Products Regulatory Department, under the guidance of the committee, is issuing the daily reference rate for oil to offer a reasonable price to energy consumers. The reference rate in Yangon Region is set on the MOPS's price assessment, shipping cost, premium insurance, tax, other general costs and health profit per cent.

The rates for regions and states other than Yangon are evaluated after adding the transportation cost. The retail reference rates daily cover the state-run newspapers and are posted on the media and official website and Facebook page of the department on a daily basis starting from 4 May.

The committee is inspecting the fuel stations whether they are overcharging or not. The authorities are taking action against those retailers of fuel stations under the Petroleum and Petroleum Products Law 2017 if they are found overcharging rather than the set reference rate. As per the statement, 90 per cent of fuel oil in Myanmar is imported, while the remaining 10 per cent is produced locally. The domestic fuel price is highly correlated with international prices. The State is steering the market to mitigate the loss between the importers, sellers and energy consumers. Consequently, the government is trying to distribute the oil at a reasonable price compared to those of regional countries.

Some countries levied higher tax rates and hiked oil prices compared to that of Myanmar. However, Malaysia's oil sector receives government subsidies and the prices are about 60 per cent cheaper than that of Myanmar. Every country lays down different patterns of policy to fix the oil prices. Myanmar also levies only a lower tax rate on fuel oil and strives for energy consumers to buy the oil at a cheaper rate. — NN/EM

YGN palm oil wholesale reference price rebounds this week ending 19 Nov

THE wholesale reference rate of palm oil for the Yangon market bounced back to K4,680 for a week from 13 to 19 November 2023 after price declines in two consecutive weeks, according to the Supervisory Committee on edible oil import and distribution.

The wholesale price was set at K4,725 per viss for the week ending 30 October. The rate was set a bit lower to K4,570 per viss for a week from 31 October to 5 November and continued to decline to K4,560 per viss during the week ending 12 November.

The figures showed an increase of K120 per viss this week compared to that recorded in the previous week.

The Supervisory Committee on Edible Oil Import and Distribution under the Ministry of Commerce has been closely observing the FOB prices in Malaysia and Indonesia, adding transport costs, tariffs and banking services to decide the wholesale market reference rate for edible oil weekly.

Nevertheless, the market price was higher than the reference price. To deal with the overcharging, the Consumer Affairs Department under the Ministry of Commerce informed the consumers of lodging complaints overcharging through the call centre's hotline in late August. The Department urged consumers not to buy palm oil at high prices.

The Department is making concerted efforts to steer the high volatility in palm oil prices in the retail market and offer fairer prices to the consumers, in coordination with the Myanmar Edible Oil Dealers Association and oil importing companies.

The complaints for overcharging can be lodged over hotline 1535 of the call centre of the Consumers Affairs Department or sent to the Facebook page of the Department and the region and state departments concerned.

Myanmar Edible Oil Dealers Association formed a task force for edible oil price stability and started informing the lists of wholesale/retail shops of each company on 28 August, including the address of the shops in the respective townships and the number of available barrels.

The task force will govern the market to meet the satisfaction of the end-users in the supply chain and get easy access to the consumers.

It will also supervise the market to ensure the palm oil sales at wholesale prices are not higher than two per cent of the net profit margin and retail prices are not higher than 10 per cent margin.

The domestic consumption of palm oil is estimated at 1 million tonnes per year. The local palm oil production is just about 400,000 tonnes. To meet the domestic demands, about 700,000 tonnes of palm oil are yearly imported through Malaysia and Indonesia. — NN/EM

Adjust employers and employees to build workplaces

CREATING harmonious workplaces requires a mutual adjustment of expectations between employers and employees. Both parties bear entitlements and liabilities in the establishment of work environments, emphasizing the need for a shared commitment to maintaining pleasant workplaces and contributing to relevant societies.

Employers play a pivotal role in this dynamic, initiating the process by recruiting individuals to contribute to the production of goods or the operation of businesses. Despite a surplus of candidates, employers hold the authority to curate a shortlist, selecting the best fit for their workplaces. While those not selected may possess exceptional qualifications, they lack the grounds to contest the employer's decision. The interview process provides candidates an opportunity to showcase their skills, but ultimately, employers retain the autonomy to shape their workforce.

The successful operation of workplaces, in the long run, necessitates compromise and complete satisfaction between employers and employees. Aligning their expectations ensures a smooth and convenient work process, contributing to the overall success of the workplace. Ultimately, employers and employees must be willing to adjust their anticipations to establish conducive workplaces that foster mutual growth and shared futures.

On the flip side, employees are obligated to fulfil their assignments dutifully in exchange for the agreed-upon salaries or wages. The unwritten agreements and worksite rules form the foundation of the employer-employee relationship. It is a compromise where both parties accept the selection process and commit to serving each other without causing detriment. The candidates who miss chances to join the workplaces and do not pass the personal interviews do not have a chance to tarnish the image of the workplaces and employers. Reversely, employers do not have a chance to defame the candidates for failure in personal interviews.

The successful operation of workplaces, in the long run, necessitates compromise and complete satisfaction between employers and employees. Aligning their expectations ensures a smooth and convenient work process, contributing to the overall success of the workplace. Ultimately, employers and employees must be willing to adjust their anticipations to establish conducive workplaces that foster mutual growth and shared futures.

Let's prevent Diabetes Mellitus

Diabetes screening in progress to mark World Diabetes Day from the previous year.

IN this 21st century, people are not only facing communicable diseases like COVID-19, tuberculosis, and diarrhoea, but they also have to encounter non-communicable diseases. Non-communicable diseases are the result of a combination of genetic, physiological, environmental and behavioural factors and cause premature death around the world. Among the non-communicable diseases, diabetes accounts for a huge global health problem.

Prevalence of Diabetes

According to the International Diabetes Federation's 2021 data, approximately 537 million adults (20-79 years) are living with diabetes. The total number of people living with diabetes is projected to rise to 643 million by 2030. Most of the adults with diabetes live in low- and middle-income countries. And about half are not diagnosed. Moreover, the International Diabetes Federation reported 6.7 million deaths worldwide among adults with diabetes as a result of diabetes or its complications, in 2021.

In Myanmar, according to the WHO step survey conducted in 2014, the prevalence of diabetes in adults (25-65) year is 10.5 per cent. In other words, one in every 10 people is having diabetes. The prevalence of Pre-Diabetes is 19.7 per cent. They will become diabetic in a few years.

Diabetes Mellitus

Diabetes is a chronic metabolic disorder in which the body has high sugar levels for prolonged periods of time. It occurs either when the pancreas does not produce enough insulin or when the body cannot effectively use the insulin it produces. Insulin is a hormone that regulates blood glucose. This increase in blood glucose level causes serious damage to blood vessels resulting in coronary artery disease, stroke, renal failure, blindness, neuropathy and peripheral arterial disease leading to limb amputation. Therefore, people who are at risk of diabetes, should test early, and those who already have the disease, should try to have strict glycemic control, to attain a healthy normal life span.

World Diabetes Day

World Diabetes Day (WDD) was created in 1991 by IDF and the World Health Organization in response to growing concerns about the escalating health threat posed by diabetes. It is marked every year on 14 November, the birthday of Sir Frederick Banting, who co-discovered insulin along with Charles Best in 1922. WDD is the world's largest diabetes awareness campaign. The campaign draws attention to issues of paramount importance to the diabetes world and keeps diabetes firmly in the public and political spotlight. The slogan for 2023 is "Know your risk, Know your response". This year's campaign focuses on the importance of knowing your risk of type 2 diabetes to help delay or prevent the condition and highlighting the impact of diabetes-related complications and the importance of having access to the right information and care to ensure timely treatment and management.

Who is at risk of having diabetes?

Increasing age (>40 years), family history of diabetes, overweight, unhealthy diet, physical inactivity, high blood pressure, ethnicity, impaired glucose tolerance (IGT), and history of gestational diabetes are the risk factors for diabetes. IDF has created an online diabetes risk assessment which aims to predict an individual's risk of developing type 2 diabetes within the next ten years and this can be accessed at www.worlddiabetesday.org. Women who had gestational diabetes during pregnancy have a high risk for developing diabetes and thus should maintain healthy body weight and glycemic status should be checked regularly. A baby born to a mother who has gestational diabetes, also has an increased risk of diabetes in later life, thus maintaining a healthy body weight, and healthy lifestyle is of great importance.

How can we prevent diabetes?

Lifestyle changes can help prevent the onset of type 2 diabetes. It includes eating a healthy diet and maintaining an active lifestyle. A healthy diet means, avoiding food high in sugar, high in salt and saturated fat, and eating more fresh fruits and vegetables, lean meat, nuts and fibre. Doing exercises such as jogging, walking, and cycling, approximately 30 minutes per day (at least 150 minutes per week) can prevent the development of diabetes.

Symptoms of diabetes

The symptoms of diabetes can be mild or absent. If anyone has symptoms like frequent urination, excessive thirst, weight loss, fatigue, numbness in feet, or slow healing of wounds, should check the blood sugar level.

Testing for diabetes

Diabetes can be diagnosed by doing a blood sugar test. Criteria

By Professor Ye Myint
Senior Medical Superintendent
Nay Pyi Taw General Hospital (1,000-bedded)

for diagnosis are:

- Fasting blood sugar - ≥ 126 mg/dL (or)
- Two hours after drinking 75 grammes glucose - ≥ 200 mg/dL (or)
- HbA1c (glycated hemoglobin) - $\geq 6.5\%$ (or)
- Symptoms of diabetes and random blood sugar - ≥ 200 mg/dL

Pre-Diabetes

- Fasting blood sugar - between 100 to 125 mg/dL (or)
- Two hours after drinking 75 grammes glucose - 140 -199 mg/dL (or)
- HbA1c (glycated hemoglobin) - 5.7 - 6.4%

Prevention of complications

Diabetes can cause a variety of serious complications including coronary artery disease, stroke, renal failure, blindness, amputation etc. Diabetes costs lives. Because of high health care cost, combined with loss of income, forces millions of people into poverty. It imposes a huge burden on families as well as on the nations.

To prevent the development of diabetes complications, people with diabetes should follow the following factors.

1. Adopt healthy lifestyle
2. Strictly follow the instructions provided by the health care persons in managing diabetes
3. Take the medications regularly as directed by the health care providers
4. Monitor regularly to keep the blood sugar level within a target range
5. Maintain blood pressure and blood cholesterol within normal level
6. Check regularly for complications

Ministry of Health taking proactive steps

The Ministry of Health has developed a National Strategic Plan to reduce the prevalence of non-communicable diseases including diabetes, aiming for a 20 per cent reduction in the prevalence of diabetes by 2030. To implement this plan, training of basic health staff, continuing medical education programmes, development of guidelines and standard operative procedures, and public health education through multimedia have been carried out.

Inter-ministerial collaborative efforts to reduce the salt and sugar contents of food, and reduce the consumption of alcohol, tobacco and its products, and saturated fat.

Community health clinics (Wednesday-only Clinics), encompassing a total of (7,476) rural health centres (RHC) and Sub centres have been running as one of the non-communicable disease projects under the Ministry of Health since 2017. These clinics provide testing and treating of diabetes, supplying basic medicine, and health education. The Centre of Excellence for Diabetes has been established in tertiary hospitals under the supervision of specialists.

To enable every citizen to attain full life expectancy and enjoy longevity of life, which is the main objective of the ministry, the prevention of diabetes is of utmost importance. Therefore, as the slogan says, "Know your risk, know your response", people should know the risk of diabetes, adopt a healthy lifestyle, detect it early, treat it effectively, and prevent complications, which will lead to a better future.

TECH/ENVIRON WORLD

IN a forest in northern California, a line of people spread out through the trees, setting fire to shrubs and fallen branches in an act of intentional arson aimed at making the woodland better able to cope with future conflagrations.

The operation near Santa Cruz is part of a growing number of prescribed burns intended to reduce the amount of fuel that can feed natural wildfires in an era when human-caused climate change is increasing the likelihood of devastating blazes.

“The best way to fight fire is with fire,” says Portia Halbert, senior environmental scientist with California State Parks, who is supervising the burn.

“It’s not a matter of if it burns, but when it burns: it’s going to burn eventually. And so we want to burn it... when it’s not going to be so extreme that it burns down people’s homes and causes loss of life and property.”

Before the undergrowth is ignited, the earth is turned with shovels to create a containment

Fight fire with fire: controlled burns stem California blazes line.

Branches and shrubs too close to fully grown trees are removed, and hoses are deployed to stop flames from getting out of control.

The idea is to encourage the fire to consume only the forest floor, without spreading to the oaks and redwoods that loom over it.

When wildfire breaks out in the future — as it certainly will — it will have less fuel and will burn cooler and slower, without spreading to the tree tops.

Native American practice

After around 20 years of drought and in a climate that is slowly aridifying, California has seen an alarming number of megafires over the last decade.

These blazes have destroyed millions of acres (hectares) of forest, killed over 200 people and wrought hundreds of millions of dollars of damage.

The scale and cost of these blazes has brought about an understanding that California’s long-established policy of stamping out wildfires as soon as they break out is wrongheaded and counterproductive.

With firefighters having rushed to quell blazes as soon as they could, forests have been transformed into fuel-stuffed tinderboxes — with disastrous consequences when fires inevitably get out of control. — AFP

BMW probes Moroccan cobalt supplier over pollution claims

GERMAN carmaker BMW said Monday it had opened an investigation into a Moroccan cobalt supplier after allegations that its mining operations had polluted the environment.

The mine operated by Managem in Bou Azzer, southern Morocco, had released excessive amounts of arsenic, according to a joint investigation by German daily Sueddeutsche Zeitung and two broadcasters, which was released at the weekend.

“BMW immediately opened investigations and asked our supplier Managem” for an explanation, the Munich-based car giant said in a statement.

“If any wrongdoing on the part of the supplier is actually proven, the BMW Group will of course demand immediate corrective action.”

Dangerous levels of arsenic were detected in water samples from a valley near the mine, a chemist was cited as saying in the media reports.

Current and former employees at the mine also reportedly claimed that Managem was breaching international standards for protecting workers.

Sueddeutsche Zeitung said that Managem rejected the allegations and said it adhered to high environmental and labour standards.

In 2020, BMW signed a cobalt supply contract with Managem valued at 100 million euros ($107 million) that runs until 2025.

Cobalt is among the critical minerals for making electric car batteries, and automakers are competing to secure supplies as the shift from the combustion engine gathers pace.

But manufacturers are facing challenges in finding suppliers that adhere to strict labour and environmental standards. — AFP

South Asia worst in world for water scarcity: UN

MORE children in South Asia are struggling due to severe water scarcity made worse by the impacts of climate change than anywhere else worldwide, the United Nations said Monday.

“A staggering 347 million children under 18 are exposed to high or extremely high water scarcity in South Asia, the highest number among all regions in the world,” the UN children’s agency said in a report.

The eight-nation region, comprising Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Nepal, Maldives, Pakistan and Sri Lanka, is home to more than one-quarter of the world’s children.

“Climate change is disrupting weather patterns and rainfall, leading to unpredictable water availability,” the UN said in its report.

The report cites poor water quality, lack of water and mismanagement such as over-pumping of aquifers, while climate change decreases the amount of water replenishing them.

“When village wells go dry, homes, health centres and schools are all affected,” UNICEF added.

“With an increasingly unpredictable climate, water scarcity is expected to become worse for children in South Asia.”

At the UN COP28 climate conference in December in Dubai, UNICEF said it will call for leaders “to secure a livable planet”.

“Yet millions of children in South Asia don’t have enough to drink in a region plagued by floods, droughts and other extreme weather events, triggered increasingly by climate change”.

Last year, 45 million children lacked access to basic drinking water services in South Asia, more than any other region, but UNICEF said services were expanding rapidly, with that number slated to be halved by 2030. — AFP

Barcelona's Sagrada Familia lights up new towers

A celebratory light show graced the newest towers of Barcelona's Sagrada Familia basilica on Sunday as the iconic attraction moves closer to completion 141 years after construction started.

The final two of the four Towers of the Evangelists, 135 metres (443 feet) high and dedicated to Matthew and John, were finished in September with the addition of figures representing a human bust and an eagle.

The other two, dedicated to Luke and Mark and crowned by cow and lion sculptures, were completed last year.

Archbishop of Barcelona Juan Jose Omella blessed the structures in the basilica on Sunday before the light show kicked off.

The towers will be the basilica's third highest once the site is completed. Only the Tower of Jesus Christ, designed by famous Catalan architect Antoni Gaudi to be the building's summit, remains unfinished.

The developers expect to finish the tower in 2026, coinciding with the 100th anniversary of Gaudi's death.

The basilica's construction committee initially set a 2026 target to complete the entire basilica, but the Covid-19 pandemic set back the project.

The Sagrada Familia "will be finished in 10 years maximum" barring major problems, the head of the committee's board, Esteve Camps, told local newspaper La Vanguardia on Sunday. — AFP

Pampered pooches: Nepal's day for dogs festival

DOGS in Nepal were decked with marigold garlands and bright vermilion paint on Sunday to celebrate a day dedicated to them as part of a Hindu festival.

Kukur Tihar, the second day of the five-day Tihar festival, is reserved for worshipping dogs as agents of Yamaraj, the god of death, and for appreciating their loyalty and companionship to humans. Businessman Sujit Dongol, who celebrated the festival at home, told AFP that his dog was part of the family.

"He is a companion to everyone and is always happy and playful like a child," he said, holding his one-year-old American Bully in his arms.

"We feel happy worshipping a dog that lives with us."

Dog lovers also offer treats and toys to their pets and street dogs during the celebration.

The Armed Police Force held a special ritual to honour and worship their canine force, which is often used during natural disasters and in the detection of explosives and drugs.

"It is a special day," said Ramesh Pokharel, chief of the Animal Health and Dog Handler section of the Armed Police Force.

"Our dogs have helped us a lot, so the security personnel feel happy to celebrate this."

Inspired by Nepal's festival, a similar annual celebration began in Mexico in 2016.

But animal welfare groups say the special treatment should not be limited to a single day and inhumane treatment towards street dogs, such as poisoning them to cull the population or to prevent rabies, must be stopped. — AFP

Thousands line Manchester streets to bid final farewell to Bobby Charlton

THOUSANDS of people lined the streets of Manchester on Monday to pay their final respects to Manchester United and England great Bobby Charlton, who died last month at the age of 86.

The 1966 World Cup winner, widely regarded as one of England's greatest players, died after an accidental fall at his care home on 21 October.

Crowds clapped warmly and held banners as the funeral cortege drove past United's Old Trafford ground on its way to a private funeral service at Manchester Cathedral.

The hearse passed the famous "United Trinity" statue immortalizing Charlton, Denis Law and George Best and through a guard of honour made up of members of the club's Under-18 and Under-21 squads.

There were numerous black-and-white photographs depicting Charlton's long and illustrious career as a player and then as a director at the club. Around 1,000 guests including former United manager Alex Ferguson, England boss Gareth Southgate and Prince William, the Football Association president, arrived for the private funeral service, which started at 1400 GMT, along with current and former players.

Former United captain Bryan Robson, speaking outside the cathedral, told the BBC: "For a player to win the World Cup, win the Champions League and have such a long and successful career you've got to be a fantastic player to be able to achieve that. — AFP

Viet Nam's 2024 pepper inventory forecast at lowest level

THE amount of Viet Nam's pepper inventory for 2024 will be the lowest level in recent years because the country's pepper output of the 2022-2023 crop has all been exported, Vietnam News reported Monday citing the Viet Nam Pepper Association.

In the long term, Viet Nam's pepper supply is expected to be in short supply due to fierce competition from other crops such as durian and passion fruit, according to the association.

The Ministry of Industry and Trade's Import-Export Department forecast that Viet Nam's pepper exports will remain at a low level because the domestic supply is no longer abundant and consumption demand in the US and EU markets has not really improved.

In the last months of this year, the enterprises will export the imported and pre-existing inventory pepper with a volume of about 50,000 tonnes, the ministry said.

By the end of October 2023, Viet Nam exported 223,578 tonnes of pepper of all kinds with a total export turnover of 750.8 million US dollars, according to the General Department of Viet Nam Customs. — Xinhua

Cambodia announces US$ 50 mln loan package to support tour operators in Siem Reap

CAMBODIAN Prime Minister Hun Manet on Monday announced a 50 million US dollar loan package to support tour operators in the northwestern Siem Reap province, which was hard hit by the COVID-19 pandemic.

"The state-owned Small and Medium Enterprise Bank of Cambodia will release an initial loan of 50 million US dollars, with a competitive interest rate, to tour operators in Siem Reap province," he said at the 19th Government-Private Sector Forum in Phnom Penh.

Tour operators play an important role in helping attract international tourists to the kingdom, he said, adding that the move was to revitalize the tourism sector in the province.

"Siem Reap has suffered the worst of all tourist destinations in Cambodia, so it is essential for the government to set out strategies to revitalize the tourism sector in the province," he said.

Hun Manet said the Southeast Asian country has also initiated a "Visit Siem Reap 2024" special campaign to recover tourism in Siem Reap province to the pre-pandemic level.

Siem Reap is home to the UNESCO-listed heritage Angkor Archeological Park, which is the kingdom's most popular tourist destination.

The 401-square-kilometre ancient park recorded 602,570 foreign visitor arrivals in the first 10 months of 2023, a year-on-year increase of 256 per cent, earning nearly 28 million US dollars in revenue from ticket sales, according to the state-owned Angkor Enterprise.

The figures remained low if compared to 2.2 million foreign tourists the park received in the pre-pandemic era in 2019, with a gross revenue of 99 million dollars from ticket sales. — Xinhua

Australian ports reopen after cyberattack

MAJOR ports handling 40 per cent of Australia's freight trade have reopened, operator DP World said Monday, three days after they were crippled by a cyberattack.

DP World cut its systems from the internet when the attack was detected Friday, preventing trucks from unloading or picking up cargo at ports in Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane and Fremantle.

"DP World Australia is pleased to announce that operations resumed at the company's ports across Australia," the operator said in a statement.

The firm said it had successfully tested key systems overnight before reopening.

It said it expected to move 5,000 containers out of the four terminals during the day – not far from industry estimates of their usual daily traffic. Investigations and efforts to protect systems may still cause "some necessary, temporary disruptions" to port services in the coming days, the company said.

DP World said its investigation and remediation work were likely to take "some time".

Shipping bodies said operations at the ports had restarted slowly early in the morning, with priority given to getting imported containers out of the terminals. — AFP

Stocks advance on eve of US inflation data

ASIAN and European stock markets climbed Monday as traders awaited this week's key US inflation data, with traders still concerned the Federal Reserve could lift interest rates again.

Decision-makers at the central bank had lined up last week to warn that more tightening could be warranted to bring prices under control, tempering optimism that the hiking cycle had come to an end.

That sparked a wide sell-off on Friday, though a tech-led surge on Wall Street before the weekend provided traders some support on Monday and the positivity spilled over into Europe.

However, with focus firmly on Tuesday's upcoming US consumer price index data, equity gains were limited while the dollar was mixed.

"The forthcoming CPI report holds the potential to reintroduce the possibility of a rate hike," said Stephen Innes at SPI Asset Management. Investors fret over interest rate hikes because they ramp up the cost of borrowing for businesses and consumers alike, and therefore crimp economic activity. Fears that global rates could remain elevated for an extended period were fanned by European Central Bank President Christine Lagarde, who on Friday forecast a resurgence of inflation. — AFP

Emirates airline announces $52 bln order for 95 Boeing planes EMIRATES airline announced a $52 billion order for 95 Boeing planes on Monday in the biggest sale so far at the Dubai Airshow. A purchase of 55 Boeing 777-9s and 35 777-8s comes alongside an upgrade to an existing order for 30 787 Dreamliners, which rises to 35.

"This order represents a significant investment that demonstrates Dubai's commitment to the future of aviation," Emirates CEO Sheikh Ahmed bin Saeed Al Maktoum told a press conference.

Separately, budget carrier flydubai announced an order for 30 Boeing 787-9s.

With the latest deal, Emirates' order book rises to 295 planes including 205 777X aircraft. The Middle East's biggest airline also ordered 202 GE9X engines to power its 777X fleet.

The 777-9s are expected for delivery in 2025 and the 777-8s are scheduled for 2030, Sheikh Ahmed said.

Also at the airshow on Monday, Boeing announced an order of 45 737 MAX aircraft from budget carrier SunExpress, while speculation is swirling about Turkish Airlines after reports it is poised to book about 350 aircraft.

A bumper week of deals would underline the sector's recovery from the Covid pandemic, which caused havoc in the sector as international travel ground to a halt.

Last week Emirates Group announced record half-year net profits of 10.1 billion AED ($2.7 billion), up 138 per cent from a year earlier, driven by strong demand.

The company unveiled record annual profits of $3 billion in May.

The Middle East's biggest airline posted a $5.5 billion loss in Covid-ravaged 2020-2021, its first in more than three decades, after grounding its fleet and making heavy lay-offs.

Its losses shrank to $1.1 billion in 2021-2022. — AFP

S Korea's Hyundai Motor to build electric vehicle plant in homeland

HYUNDAI Motor, South Korea's biggest automaker, said Monday that it will build a plant dedicated to the production of electric vehicles (EVs) in its homeland in a bid to start mass production in 2026.

Hyundai held a groundbreaking ceremony earlier in the day for the new EV-dedicated plant in Ulsan, some 300 kilometres southeast of the capital Seoul. The company will invest about two trillion won (1.5 billion US dollars) in the 548,000-square-metre EV factory with a capacity to manufacture 200,000 EVs per year. An electric sport utility vehicle (SUV) from Genesis, Hyundai's luxury brand, will be the first model to be produced at the new plant, the automaker said. "The new EV-dedicated plant in Ulsan is the beginning of a promising future for the next 50 years and the era of electrification," Chung Euui-sun, executive chair of Hyundai Motor Group, said. — Xinhua

Campaigners demand Thailand act on air pollution

CAMPAIGNERS on Monday demanded the Thai government urgently pass a "clean air act" as the kingdom braces for its annual peak pollution season.

The Thailand Clean Air Network (CAN), a group of academics and activists, submitted a proposed law to the government along with an open letter urging Prime Minister Srettha Thavisin to act swiftly to ease the "pain and suffering inflicted on the Thai public".

More than two million people sought medical treatment for problems linked to air pollution, according to the health ministry.

CAN warned in its letter to Srettha that "responsible government agencies are unable to effectively manage this problem", pointing to a lack of coordination between ministries.

"There are no management systems in place to address this issue in a fully integrated manner, and as such, state agencies are continuously stuck in a vicious cycle, fixated in addressing only the repercussions of the problem," the letter said.

A draft clean air bill is expected to be put to cabinet this month, but CAN warned that without Srettha's endorsement, there was little chance of any proposal becoming law.

Emissions from industry, along with vehicle exhaust fumes and smoke from stubble burning by farmers, send air quality plummeting in Thailand every year. The worst pollution period is usually from December to February — coinciding with the peak tourist season — but an unexpected spike in Bangkok last month brought hurried promises of action from officials. — AFP

S Korea, US revise deterrence strategy amid N Korea threat

SOUTH Korea and the United States revised a bilateral deterrence strategy on North Korea, the first revision in a decade, during the annual security talks on Monday, aiming to better respond to the country's growing missile and nuclear threat.

South Korean defence minister Shin Won Sik and his US counterpart, Lloyd Austin, met in Seoul and signed the updated Tailored Deterrence Strategy, adopted in 2013, the defence ministry said, though it did not reveal details of the revision.

Austin, referring to recent deployments of many US strategic military assets to South Korea, said at a press conference after the talks that the United States' commitment to providing the country "extended deterrence", which includes the full range of its nuclear, conventional and missile defence capabilities, remains ironclad.

"And through our regular combined exercises, we are continuing to strengthen our shared readiness and our ability to fight tonight if necessary,"

Austin added.

The revision comes as North Korea has shown advancement in its nuclear and missile capabilities. In September last year, the country adopted a law authorizing the launch of pre-emptive nuclear strikes.

Shin said at a press conference that the two defence ministers also stressed the trilateral security cooperation with Japan for the peace and stability of the Indo-Pacific by boosting military drills in quantity and quality. He added that a system to share real-time information on North Korean missiles is part of the cooperation.

Shin, Austin and Japanese Defence Minister Minoru Kihara affirmed the previous day that the system is "in the final stage" towards a year-end launch, Kihara told reporters in Tokyo after holding a virtual meeting with his US and South Korean counterparts. — Kyodo

Joint efforts needed to bring China-US ties back to sound, stable development: FM spokesperson

CHINA hopes the US side will honour its promise of not seeking a new Cold War or conflict with China, and work together with China to bring bilateral relations back to the track of sound and stable development, a Chinese foreign ministry spokesperson said on Monday.

Spokesperson Mao Ning made the remarks in response to a query relevant to the upcoming China-US summit meeting.

According to media reports, an anonymous White House official on 10 November said the goals of the summit meeting were about "managing the competition, preventing the downside risk of conflict and ensuring channels of communication are open", when briefing the media on the upcoming meeting.

"China has already released information on President Xi Jinping's visit to the United States for the China-US summit meeting at invitation," Mao said, adding that the two presidents will have in-depth communication on issues of strategic, overarching and fundamental importance in shaping China-US relations and major issues concerning world peace and development.

Mao said China always follows the guiding principles of mutual respect, peaceful coexistence, and win-win cooperation proposed by President Xi when viewing and dealing with relations with the United States. Major country competition is not in line with the trend of the times and cannot solve the problems of the United States or global challenges.

"China is not afraid of competition, but we are opposed to defining China-US relations by competition," said Mao.

The US side should earnestly respect China's reasonable concerns and legitimate development rights, instead of only emphasizing its own concerns and undermining China's interests, Mao added.

"The attempt to shape other countries according to its own will and model is wishful thinking from the very beginning, which is typical hegemonism and will not succeed," she said. — Xinhua

Klinsmann targets end to S Korea Asian Cup drought

COACH Jurgen Klinsmann on Monday set his sights on ending South Korea’s Asian Cup title drought in Qatar next year, and told fans to blame him if they fall short.

South Korea are regional powerhouses who reached the 2002 World Cup semi-finals as co-hosts but they have not lifted the continental title since 1960. Klinsmann has had mixed results since replacing Paulo Bento in February, failing to win in his first five games before racking up three straight victories.

The German legend said he would accept nothing less than the Asian Cup title when the pandemic-delayed tournament kicks off in January. “We want to go there and win the Asian Cup,” the former Germany and United States boss told reporters. “Win it and not say ‘maybe the final four’ or ‘maybe, maybe, maybe’. Not maybe — we go there to win it.” South Korea will start as one of the Asian Cup favourites, with Klinsmann able to call on star names like Tottenham’s Son Heung-min, Bayern Munich’s Kim Min-jae and Paris Saint-Germain’s Lee Kang-in.

Klinsmann said it was “right” that fans expect his team to lift the trophy and accepted that he will be to blame if they don’t. “We have to aim for the highest goal, and if we don’t reach it then it’s the fault of the coach — no problem,” he said. “But you have to set the goals, clear goals. This is what we will do.”

Nations negotiate terms of plastics treaty in Nairobi

THE latest negotiations towards a global treaty to combat plastic pollution opened in Nairobi on Monday, with tensions expected as nations tussle over what should be included in the pact. Some 175 countries agreed last year to conclude by 2024 a UN treaty to address the plastic blighting oceans, floating in the atmosphere, and infiltrating the bodies of animals and humans.

While there is broad consensus a treaty is needed, there are very different opinions about what should be in it.

As the talks formally opened, Peru's Gustavo Meza-Cuadra Velasquez, chair of the forum's intergovernmental negotiating committee, warned that plastic pollution posed "a direct threat to our environment, human health, and the delicate balance of our planet".

"We have the collective power to change this trajectory," he said. Negotiators have met twice already but the 13-19 November talks are the first to consider a draft text of the treaty published in September and the policy options it contains.

Around 60 so-called "high ambition" nations have called for binding rules to reduce the use and production of plastic, which is made from fossil fuels, a measure supported by many environment groups.

It is not a position shared by many plastic-producing economies, including the United States, which have long preferred to focus on recycling, innovation and better waste management.

The draft presenting the various ways forward will form the basis for the high-stakes deliberations at the UN Environment Programme (UNEP) headquarters in Nairobi.

With more than 2,000 delegates registered, and advocates from environmental and plastic groups also in the room, the negotiations are expected to get heated as the details are hammered out. — AFP

Indonesia election commission confirms presidential candidates

INDONESIA'S election commission on Monday announced the candidates for next year's presidential vote when the world's third largest democracy is due to pick a successor to incumbent leader Joko Widodo.

The February election will see three contenders vying for the Muslim-majority country's top office, with defence minister and former special forces general Prabowo Subianto battling former Central Java governor Ganjar Pranowo and former Jakarta governor Anies Baswedan.

Nearly 205 million people are eligible to vote on 14 February, with the winner set to succeed Widodo after he completes the maximum two terms ruling Southeast Asia's biggest economy. The country's General Elections Commission (KPU) said the three registered candidates were all confirmed for the vote after a series of eligibility and health screening checks, an announcement that marked the start of election season.

"Anies Baswedan and Muhaimin Iskandar, Ganjar Pranowo and Mahfud MD, Prabowo Subianto and Gibran Rakabuming Raka have been declared eligible as presidential and vice-presidential candidate pairs for the simultaneous elections in 2024," KPU commissioner Idham Holik told a press conference. — AFP

All 40 workers in India tunnel collapse 'safe'

RESCUE workers in northern India said Monday they had made contact with 40 workers trapped for over 24 hours after the road tunnel they were building collapsed.

"All the 40 workers trapped inside the tunnel are safe," Karamveer Singh Bhandari, a senior commander in the National Disaster Response Force told AFP, from the site in the Himalayan state of Uttarakhand. "We sent them water and food."

The collapse occurred early Sunday morning, with rescue teams using heavy excavators to clear piles of debris in desperate efforts to reach the 40 men.

Oxygen was being pumped into the blocked portion of the tunnel, with food sent through a water pipe.

Initial contact was made via a note on a scrap of paper, but later rescuers managed to connect using radio handsets.

"Some small food packets were sent in through a pipe which is also taking oxygen inside," rescue official Durgesh Rathodi told AFP from the site.

Rathodi said excavators had removed about 20 metres (65 feet) of heavy debris, but the men were 40 metres beyond that point. — AFP
