Strive for speedy rural development

As the majority of the population of Myanmar lives in rural areas, the government has placed a special emphasis on rural development by taking measures necessary for enhancing socio-economic status of rural people. Rural development tasks are being implemented to ensure better transport, to supply safe drinking water, to improve health and education standards of rural people and to boost rural economy.

To ensure better transport, lots of river-crossing bridges are being constructed and intervillage roads as well as those linking rural areas and urban areas built. With the emergence of new roads and bridges, rural people can now travel from one place to another easily and trading of local products have become brisk and rural areas are developing in proportion to urban areas.

Ceremonies to open new tube-wells were held in Indaw, Kanlun (North) and Kanthaya villages in Kyaukpadaung Township on 17 February. As a result, more than 3,000 villagers living in these villages have now access to safe drinking water.

Recently, a people's hospital was inaugurated in Bilin Township, Mon State, a station hospital at Kyauktaung village, Pauktaw Township, Rakhine State, and rural health centres at Yaygyaw and Twantaytarwa villages in Twantay Township, Yangon Division. More and more station hospitals and clinics are to be opened to provide health care to more and more people in rural areas.

In addition, new buildings for basic education schools, new affiliated high schools and new rural libraries appear in various regions. As a result, rural youths have come to have more opportunities to pursue education and adults are now able to broaden their horizons.

As regional authorities, social organizations and well-wishers are enthusiastically offering financial support and contributing voluntary labour to rural development endeavours being undertaken by the government, we believe that rural areas will soon be able to fully enjoy development in health, education, social and economic sectors.

FAO meeting on agricultural biotechnologies to be held in Mexico

ROME, 23 Feb— The UN Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) said on Monday that the conference on agricultural biotechnologies in developing countries will be held in Mexico in early March.

The developing countries are currently facing growing food insecurity, a situation exacerbated by climate change that could worsen the living conditions of millions of people, said the Rome-based UN food agency.

The conference, which will be held in the city of Guadalajara on 1-4 March, will discuss how agricultural biotechnologies can help the developing countries, the FAO said in a Press release.

The meeting will also explore opportunities and partnerships to strengthen the capacity of developing countries to choose and use appropriate biotechnologies, the FAO said.

"It is imperative that agricultural biotechnologies should also be used to address the needs of small-holders, fishers and forest-dependent people in developing countries to face food insecurity and climate change," the FAO said.—Xinhua

Operation on Taleban claims Afghan civilian lives

KABUL, 23 Feb — As the NATO-led Operation Moshtarak, or Together, against Taliban bastion in southern Afghanistan entered its 10th day on Monday, the number of casualties inflicted on non-combatants is on the rise.

The latest airstrike against suspected Taliban militants in the troubled southern region on Sunday left 27 civilians including four women and a child dead and injured another dozen, according to a statement issued by the Presidential Palace.

The country's Cabinet, while previously put the number of casualties at 33, in a sharp reaction strongly condemned the incident, calling on NATO-led troops to avoid harming innocent citizens.

The Cabinet warned that harming civilians would negatively affect the war on terror.—Xinhua

Iran warns airlines over not calling Gulf Persian

TEHERAN, 23 Feb — Airlines not referring to the waterway between Iran and the Arabian peninsula as the Persian Gulf will be banned from Iranian airspace, the Transport Minister told local media on Monday.

The warning was directed specifically toward the airlines of neighbouring Gulf Arab countries who have a history of referring to the body of water as the "Arabian Gulf."

"The airlines of the southern Persian Gulf countries flying to Iran must use 'Persian Gulf' on their flight monitors," Hamid Behbahani told the IRAN daily.

Airlines ignoring the warning would be banned from Iranian airspace, while repeat offenders would have their planes grounded in Iran and "the companies' flight permits to Iran cancelled."

The report said Iran expelled a Greek flight attendant from the private Iranian airline, Kish Air, for using "Arabian Gulf" on a monitor over the weekend.

Iranians are traditionally sensitive over the historic name of the waterway between Iran and seven Arab nations. Last month the Saudi-based Islamic Solidarity Sports Federation said it cancelled the Islamic Solidarity Games in April because its Iranian host planned to use Persian Gulf on banners and medals.—Internet

Japan's gov't maintains economic assessment

TOKYO, 23 Feb—The government of the Democratic Party of Japan (DPJ) said on Tuesday that the economy is slowly picking up, despite risks to the nation's economic recovery, in a report released by the Cabinet office. "Economic conditions are continuing to improve, but cannot yet continue without measures because factors such as the high unemployment rate mean there are still risks," the report said.

On exports, the report changed its view to say that they are "increasing moderately." In January, it had said they were increasing and led by exports to Asia.

On imports the report also changed its view from January's "improving" to "moderately improving" for February, citing a decline in raw materials being brought into the country.

The report also cut its assessment on fixed investment for the first time in seven years, saying it was getting weaker, and citing the policy of the government of Prime Minister Yukio Hatoyama, which has looked to cut money directed into large public-works projects. The report also acknowledged that Japan is currently suffering from mild deflation. Government data released earlier this month showed that while Japan's GDP increased, it had posted the biggest drop in prices in more than 50 years.

Oil drops below $80 after 3-week rally

SINGAPORE, 23 Feb—Oil prices retreated below $80 a barrel on Tuesday in Asia as investors mulled whether sluggish US crude demand justified a 14 percent rally over the last three weeks.

Benchmark crude for April delivery was down 34 cents to $79.97 a barrel at midday Singapore time in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The contract added 25 cents to settle at $80.31 on Monday.

Oil has jumped from $69.59 a barrel on 5 Feb on investor optimism that the global economy will rebound strongly from recession last year. Yet growing inventories of crude, gasoline and diesel fuel suggest demand in the US remains weak.

Some analysts expect crude demand in the US and Japan will gradually follow overall economic growth and lift prices. Goldman Sachs expects crude to trade between $85 and $95 for most of this year.

"Continuing growth in the two largest developed market economies suggests that the economic recovery is still on track," Goldman Sachs said in a report. "We expect that Japanese oil demand will break the trend of the past decade and grow in 2010."—Internet

Peru buses crash head-on; 38 dead, 58 hurt

LIMA, 23 Feb—Two buses crashed head-on along a remote stretch of highway in northeast Peru on Monday, killing at least 38 people and injuring 58, police said.

Tanzanian-flagged ship fights off pirates

DUBAI, 23 Feb—The US Navy says the crew of a Tanzanian-flagged ship has successfully fought off a pirate attack in the Gulf of Aden before a US warship arrived and apprehended the pirates.

The Navy’s 5th Fleet, which is based in Bahrain, UAE, said on Monday the MV Barakaale 1 signalled for help from the international anti-pirate task force after pirates tried to board the vessel from a skiff.

The statement said the American destroyer USS Farragut dispatched a helicopter that gave chase to the pirate skiff, firing warning shots across its bow that brought it to a halt.

Sailors from the USS Farragut then boarded the pirate vessel and detained the eight men on board.

Seoul to propose international cyber security body at G20 summit

SEOUL, 23 Feb—South Korea is to propose setting up an international cyber security body at the G20 summit in Seoul in November, local media reported citing government officials on Tuesday.

“We are planning to propose organizing a comprehensive cyber security body with its headquarters possibly based in Seoul,” an unnamed official from the Ministry of Public Administration and Security was quoted as saying by Yonhap news agency.

The official added the ministry will map out the plan in the first half of this year in order to present the proposal at the Group of 20 Summit.

The plan comes shortly after a number of private and government websites in the United States and South Korea encountered DDoS (distributed denial-of-service) attacks last July, prompting the international community to recognize the need for a world anti-cyber threat organization, media said.—Xinhua

New snowfall prediction method created

SALT LAKE CITY, 23 Feb—University of Utah scientists say they’ve developed an easier way for meteorologists to predict snowfall amounts and density.

The method is based on a study of 457 winter storms during eight years at 9,644 feet in the Wasatch Range of Utah’s Alta Ski Area. Professor Jim Steenburgh, chairman of atmospheric sciences at the university, said the method has been adopted by the National Weather Service for use across Utah — and it could be adjusted for use anywhere.

The method was created after researchers determined forecasters could predict snowfall density most accurately using only two variables: temperatures and wind speeds at mountain crest level. “We’ve developed a formula that predicts the water content of snow as a function of temperature and wind speed,” Steenburgh, said. “This is about improving snowfall amount forecasts — how much snow is going to fall. As a nice side benefit for the ski community, this will tell you whether you’re going to get powder or concrete when it snows.

The new method is also helpful to avalanche forecasters, said doctoral student Trevor Alcott, the study’s first author. “We’re forecasting snow density, which is related to the stability of freshly fallen snow.”—Internet

Arizona dog is world’s tallest

An Arizona canine is now the world’s Top Dog.

Giant George — all 43 inches tall and 245 pounds (111 kg) of him — was named the world’s Tallest Living Dog and Tallest Dog Ever by Guinness World Records on Monday.

The four-year-old gray Great Dane from Tucson, Arizona, made it into the record books after Guinness dispatched its own inspector to verify his height, measured from paw to shoulder.

Giant George, who has his own website — www.giantgeorge.com — as well as Facebook and Twitter pages, beat out his nearest rival, Titan, a Great Dane from San Diego, California.

And there’s no dog house for this plentiful pooch, who consumes about 110 pounds (50 kg) of food each month. Owner Dave Nasser says George sleeps on his own queen-sized bed inside the house.

Egypt to receive stolen sarcophagus from US

The US will return to Egypt a 3,000 year old wooden sarcophagus confiscated at the Miami Airport after being shipped from Barcelona, the Culture Ministry announced on Monday.

The brightly painted sarcophagus dates back to the 21st Dynasty (1070-945 BC) and belonged to a private individual called Imesy, said the statement, though last year antiquities head Zahi Hawass linked it to a pharaoh called Ames.

Customs officials at Miami International Airport seized the coffin in October 2008 from a shipment coming from Spain after the importer could not present the proper documentation to prove ownership.

This undated photo released by the Egyptian Supreme Council of Antiquities in Cairo, Egypt on 22 Feb, 2010, shows a 3,000 year old wooden sarcophagus dated back to the 21st Dynasty and belonged to a private individual called Imesy. Egypt says the United States has agreed to return a 3,000 year old wooden sarcophagus that illegally left the country 40 years ago.

Car crashes into pool, no injuries

GREEN COVE SPRINGS, 23 Feb—Florida authorities said a motorist and his passenger, a golden retriever, were not injured when their Mazda 3 hatchback plunged into a swimming pool.

Witnesses said the pool at Eagle Harbour apartments in Clay County was empty Saturday when the car crashed into the water, leaving only the top of the vehicle visible from above the water, WJXT-TV, Jacksonville, Fla, reported on Monday.

Neighbours said the driver appeared relaxed but disoriented after escaping the car with his canine.

"He wasn't panicked, he was really, really calm," witness Neal Mars said. "I was pretty sure he had no idea what just happened."

Authorities said the man and the dog were treated at the scene for minor injuries. Investigators said they have yet to determine the cause of the incident. Tow truck driver Mike Tewkesbury said it took three drivers four hours to free the car from the pool.

13 million preterm births per year

SEATTLE, 23 Feb—Preterm birth is the largest cause of child mortality and those who survive can experience serious short- and long-term health issues, US researchers said.

Experts from the Global Alliance to Prevent Prematurity and Stillbirth of Seattle Children's Hospital wrote in the journal BMC Pregnancy and Childbirth that globally, 13 million babies are born preterm and 3.2 million are stillborn each year.

Neonatal deaths account for more than 42 percent of mortality in children under age 5 — a rise from 37 percent in the year 2000, the report said. In addition, 1 million stillbirths that could be prevented with existing interventions occur each year during childbirth.

The report outlines the urgent need for increased focus and research to investigate further the magnitude, causes and consequences of preterm birth and stillbirth. Additionally it makes recommendations to speed up development of diagnostics, treatment and prevention strategies, with careful attention to ethical considerations, the researchers said.

"For the first time ever, experts from around the world have agreed to a comprehensive, evidence-based approach to solving this global tragedy," experts at the Global Alliance to Prevent Prematurity and Stillbirth said in a statement.—Internet

Terror suspect Zazi pleads guilty to NYC bomb plot

NEW YORK, 23 Feb—Najibullah Zazi, a former Denver Airport shuttle driver in the US state of Colorado pleaded guilty on Monday to conspiring to use bombs in the United States, to commit murder in a foreign country and to support al-Qaeda.

The 25-year-old native of Afghanistan but legal permanent resident of the United States entered the plea before Chief US District Judge Raymond Dearie in Brooklyn, NY, who scheduled sentencing for 25 June. Zazi faces a life in prison.

He faces a life prison sentence without parole in the plea deal.

Zazi was arrested in September 2009 as part of the 2009 US al-Qaeda group accused of planning to carry out acts of terrorism against the United States. FBI said he attended courses and received instruction on weapons and explosives at an al Qaeda training camp in Pakistan in 2008.

On 9 September, 2009,

he rented a car, to drive from his home in Denver, Colorado, to New York City. According to The New York Times, this trip triggered a series of arrests on 15 September, 2009.

Investigators are cited as saying Zazi was caught on surveillance video purchasing items in a beauty supply store in Colorado that could be used to make a bomb, which would be detonated in time for the eighth anniversary of the 11th September terrorist attacks.—Internet

Infections in US hospitals kill 48,000, cost billions

WASHINGTON, 23 Feb—Nearly 50,000 US medical patients die every year of blood poisoning or pneumonia they picked up in hospital, a study published on Monday shows.

Hospital-acquired sepsis and pneumonia in 2006 claimed 48,000 lives, led to 2.3 million extra patient-days in hospital and cost 8.1 billion dollars, according to the study, led by researchers from the Centre for Disease Dynamics, Economics and Policy at Washington-based Resources for the Future.

Together, the two hospital-acquired infections — also called nosocomial infections — account for about one-third of the 1.7 million infections US patients pick up every year while in hospital, the study published in the Archives of Internal Medicine shows.

They are also responsible for nearly half of the 99,000 deaths a year from hospital-acquired infections reported by the Centres for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The study found that patients who underwent invasive surgery during their initial hospitalization were more likely to pick up a secondary infection while in hospital, and elective surgery patients were at even higher risk of nosocomial infection.—Internet

Indonesia mulls new capital as Jakarta sinks

JAKARTA, 23 Feb — It has been the economic heartbeat of the world's fourth most populous country for almost 500 years, but Jakarta's days as Indonesia's capital could be numbered.

Choked with traffic and garbage, the city on the northwest Java coast has been pushed to breaking point as its population surges above 12 million and its foundations sink under the weight of rampant development.

Floods displace thousands of people and cause millions of dollars of damage every year, and are predicted to get worse with rising sea levels, unchecked logging in catchment areas and the blocking of canals with rubbish.

A World Bank study has found that by 2025 the sea could be lapping at the gates of the presidential palace in the centre of the former spice capital, known until 1942 as Batavia.

This could explain why President Susilo Bambang

Yudhoyono recently revived a radical plan to shift the capital to a new location. "Going forward, the idea of moving the centre of the administration must again be considered and developed, considering Jakarta has become exceedingly crowded," Yudhoyono told reporters in December.

Similar proposals go back to previous presidents Sukarno and Suharto, who decades ago foresaw the eventual breakdown of Jakarta.

Commerzbank reports 1.6-billion-euro loss

FRANKFURT, 23 Feb — Germany's second largest bank, Commerzbank, on Monday reported a 1.6-billion-euro (2.2-billion-dollar) net operational loss in the fourth quarter of 2009 that it blamed on asset writedowns.

The loss eclipsed forecasts from analysts surveyed by Dow Jones Newswires, who were expecting a shortfall of 1.02 billion euros.

The bank said in a statement that "against the background of difficult markets," it suffered a trading loss of 561 million euros in the final three months of 2009 linked to insurance guarantees.

It described the fourth quarter as "typically seasonally weak."

Commerzbank, badly hit by the global finance crisis, did not disclose its annual results. But over the first nine months of 2009 its net loss came to more than 2.68 billion euros. The bank last year carried out a recapitalization with German government aid in the amount of 18.2 billion euros.

It is expected to release annual results on Wednesday.

UK oil exploration firm starts Falklands drilling

LONDON, 23 Feb — A British oil exploration company said on Monday it began drilling near the Falkland Islands, a development that could worsen tensions between Britain and Argentina, which fought a war over the disputed islands nearly three decades ago.

Desire Petroleum PLC said it started drilling for oil about 60 miles (100 kilometres) north of the disputed Falkland Islands, despite strong opposition from Argentina. The country claims the south Atlantic islands as its own and calls them Las Malvinas.

"The well is being drilled to an estimated target depth of circa 3,500 metres (11,500 feet)," the company said in a statement. "Drilling operations are expected to take approximately 30 days." Argentina lost a seven-week war over the islands to Britain in 1982 and the two countries have to resolve their differences since pledged peacefully. But

UN warns of threat from hi-tech waste in 3rd World

BALI, 23 Feb — Sales of household electrical gadgets will boom across the developing world in the next decade, wreaking environmental havoc if there are no new strategies to deal with the discarded TVs, cell phones and computers, a UN report said on Monday.

The environmental and health hazards posed by the globe's mounting electronic waste are particularly urgent in developing countries, which are already dumping grounds for rich nations' high-tech trash, the UN Environment Programme study said.

Electronic waste is piling up around the world at a rate estimated at 40 million US tons (36 million metric tons) a year, the report said, noting that data remain insufficient.

China produces 2.6 million US tons (2.3 million metric tons) of electronic waste a year, second only to the United States with 3.3 million US tons (3 million metric tons), it said.

UNEP Executive

Director Achim Steiner said the globe was ill-prepared to deal with the explosion of electronic gadgets over the past decade.

"The world is now confronted with a massive wave of electronic waste that is going to come back and hit us, particularly for least-developed countries, that may become a dumping ground," Steiner told The Associated Press ahead of a UNEP executive meeting in Bali.—Internet

The Miami Herald, in a brief article over the weekend, said it was discontinuing the "voluntary payment programme" launched in December.

"After evaluating two months of response, we've decided to end the programme," the newspaper quoted Elissa Vanaver, a company vice president and assistant to the publisher, as saying.

Vanaver declined to say how much money the effort had raised.

The Miami Herald on 15 December began running a link at the bottom of

The link took readers to a page which asked them to "please consider a voluntary payment for the Web news that matters to you." Readers could contribute to the newspaper using a major credit card.

Pele says World Cup games should have five officials

MEXICO CITY, 23 Feb—Pele says FIFA should field a match official behind each goal to assist the referee at the World Cup in a bid to avoid scandals like Diego Maradona's infamous handball at the 1986 tournament.

Pele says he is in favour of five match officials being used in each game at the World Cup in South Africa starting on 11 June, but is opposed to the introduction of video replays as he says stopping play to review a potential foul could impede a possible counterattack.

UEFA introduced the experiment of using five match officials in the Europa League this season.

Ivanovic hires Steffi Graf's former coach

Serbia's former women's tennis world number one Ana Ivanovic

BELGRADE, 23 Feb—Serbia's former women's tennis world number one Ana Ivanovic has hired Heinz Gunthardt, formerly Steffi Graf's coach, her website reported on Monday.

Gunthardt, who helped Graf win 12 Grand Slam titles, "will accompany Ana to the BNP Paribas Showdown in New York next week, thus marking the pair's first event together," Ivanovic's website anaivanovic.com said.

"The appointment of Gunthardt ends, or at least suspends, Ana's active participation in the Adidas Player Development Programme: the 22-year-old was formerly working with Sven Groeneveld on a part-time basis," the statement said.

After a series of losses in 2009, Ivanovic has fallen to number 23 in the WTA rankings and was knocked out in the second round of the Australian Open in January.

In 2008, Ivanovic was briefly world number one, after winning the French Open.—Internet
