A future eco-tourism destination

The topography of northern Myanmar had denied easy transport in the area, thus leaving it far from the nation's main transport routes in the past. And this had made northern Myanmar, especially its northernmost parts less developed.

But now, a large number of motor roads and railroads have been built with bridges large and small spanning natural watercourses to form transport networks all across the Union. Infrastructures for development have been built in townships from Myitkyina to Bhamo, Putao, Nagmon and Machanbaw townships in the northern regions.

The government has already built a railway linking Mandalay in the central via Tagaung to Bhamo in the north. It put into service the Katha-Moetagyi railroad that will reach Bhamo in its final stage. In addition, Katha-Sinkhan road is under construction and Myitkyina and Bhamo are now linked with an all-weather road. Smooth transport contributes to economic development.

Absence of peace and stability made Putao a less developed township in the past. Nowadays, peace and stability has brought multi-sectorial development to the area.

The good news is that the township has excellent potentials for eco-tourism as it is blessed with rich biodiversity, pristine forests and picturesque scenes aided with better transport. What we should do is to develop accommodations, services and required infrastructure for the convenience of tourists coming to the area from around the world.

What is more, tourism development will contribute to enhancing trade and prosperity of the township. Hence, we can say that Putao stands witness to the fact that peace and stability brings all-round progress and that progress will help the township become the largest urban area of the northernmost Myanmar, with eco-tourism as its major revenue earner.

Snow storm closes New York schools, snarls transport

NEW YORK, 27 Feb — A major snowstorm pounded the northeastern United States on Friday, knocking out power in hundreds of thousands of homes and forcing all New York schools to close.

Up to 20 inches (50 centimeters) of snow were forecast to fall on New York by Saturday and snowplows worked through the night to keep major avenues clear.

Mayor Michael Bloomberg ordered a rare closure of all public schools, handing 1.1 million students an unexpected long weekend. Columbia and other city universities also closed for the day.

Airlines posted major delays and cancelled hundreds of flights at Newark Airport in New Jersey and JFK Airport in New York.

Power was lost in homes throughout the region, with energy company Con Edison reporting 36,500 outages in suburban New York and about 700 in the city itself.

In New Hampshire, Governor John Lynch declared a state of emergency after the storm knocked out power to more than 330,000 customers.

"High winds and heavy rains have downed trees and power lines across our state, and it is important that the state has all its resources available to manage this situation," Lynch said.

Thousands more homes were without power in Vermont, the government there said.

Three crew members die in cruise liner accident

AL-ARISH, 27 Feb — A luxury cruise liner carrying nearly 1,500 passengers slammed into the pier as it docked on Friday at an Egyptian Red Sea resort in fierce winds, leaving three crew members dead, officials said.

The ship's owner, Costa Crociera, said the vessel sprung a leak on the right side after banging into the dock at about 4:45 am.

"We sadly have to confirm the deaths of 3 crew members," the company said in a statement. "The ship is now safely docked in port."

Other passengers were being put up in hotels and arrangements were being made to return them to their home countries, according to the company.

Witnesses said fierce winds had rocked the area overnight and the ship was slammed part way onto the pier. Bad weather was believed to be the cause of the collision, which left a 2 metre (yard) hole in the body of the ship, according to an Egyptian security official.—Internet

Russia concerned over US missile shield plan

Moscow, 27 Feb — Russia remains concerned over US plan to deploy elements of a missile defence system in Europe, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said on Friday.

"We still have serious questions regarding the true purpose of the US missile defence system. Therefore we will continue to oppose all dubious and unilateral moves in relation to the missile defence that could have a negative impact on international security," spokesman Andrei Nesterenko said at a Press briefing. Nesterenko said Russia was "again witnessing a hasty deployment of missile defence system in Europe when the fragile architecture of European security actually becomes hostage to imaginary missile threats that are defined unilaterally."

Asked about Romania's recent statement that it wants to host US missile interceptors, Nesterenko said Moscow was concerned that it learned about the core decisions not directly from Washington or Bucharest but from media reports.

"Such practices do not conform to our idea about equitable partnership in missile defence," the spokesman said.

The former Bush administration had planned to station a radar system in the Czech Republic and 10 missile interceptors in Poland as part of its missile shield to protect its European allies from missile threats from so-called "rogue states."

In September, US President Barack Obama scrapped the Bush-era programme, which Moscow strongly opposed, while initiating a "phased, adaptive approach" to the plan in Eastern Europe.—Xinhua

ADB maps out new strategy for inclusive economic growth in Asia

MANILA, 27 Feb—Making Asia's sprawling urban areas more sustainable, competitive and environmentally friendly is the focus of an Asian Development Bank (ADB)-organized conference that begins in Manila on Friday.

The conference will look at a new approach for urban development by supporting small- and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) to flourish around industry clusters, and the vital role played by SMEs for sustainable growth and poverty reduction.

Asia's cities have fueled the region's unprecedented economic boom over the past few decades, expanding to form increasingly clustered urban regions. However, growth has come at the cost of environmental stress, overcrowding, and widening income gaps. Without change, these vast urban areas risk becoming economically un-competitive and suffering further environmental degradation.

Given the substantial opportunities for SMEs in areas such as manufacturing, services and agriculture, it is critical for governments to come up with effective strategies and practical investment programmes to facilitate SME cluster development, said Hafeez Rahman, Director General of ADB's South Asia Department.—Xinhua

Two banks close, total hits 22

WASHINGTON, 27 Feb—Regulators seized two banks in Nevada and Washington state on Friday, bringing the year total to 22 as small institutions continue to struggle with bad loans. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp said Rainier Pacific Bank in Tacoma, Washington was closed, and its deposits were assumed by Umpqua Bank of Roseburg, Oregon.

Carson River Community Bank in Carson City, Nevada also was closed, and its deposits were assumed by Heritage Bank of Nevada, Reno, Nevada, the FDIC said.

The agency said earlier this week that the number of "problem" US banks jumped 27 percent during the fourth quarter of 2009 to 702, the highest level since 1993 and a sign that the industry's recovery remains uneven. The vast majority of those banks do not fail, but the size of the list indicates the number of institutions with significant weaknesses.

Rainier Pacific Bank had about $717.8 million in total assets and $446.2 million in total deposits as of 31 December, 2009, the FDIC said.

It said Umpqua Bank would pay the FDIC a premium of 1.04 percent to assume the failed bank's deposits. It also was buying about $670.1 million of Rainier Pacific Bank's assets, and entered in a loss-share transaction on $578.1 million.—Xinhua

VW 2009 profit stalls, group expects a jumpstart this year

FRANKFURT, 27 Feb—Volkswagen, the biggest European carmaker, said on Friday that 2009 profit plunged by nearly 80 percent in the global slump but predicted that sales and operating profit would rebound this year.

VW reported a 79.8 percent drop in net profit to 960 million euros (1.3 billion dollars) on sales that fell by 7.6 percent to 105.2 billion euros.

Analysts polled by Dow Jones Newswires had forecast net profit of 986 million euros, and the news sent VW shares sharply lower in late trading on the Frankfurt stock exchange.

"Revenue and operating profit for 2010 are expected to exceed the prior-year figures" however, the company said in a statement following a supervisory board meeting.

But volatility in interest and exchange rates would continue to dog the net profit figure, it added.—Internet

S Korea's investment abroad shoots up 22% in 2009

SEOUL, 27 Feb—South Korea's overseas investment surged in 2009 from a year ago on the back of a rise in its foreign exchange reserves and its overseas equity holding, the central bank said on Friday.

According to the Bank of Korea (BOK), the outstanding amount of South Korea's investment abroad posted 604.7 billion US dollars, an increase of 109.3 billion US dollars, or 22.1 percent, from the last year. Out of the total increase, a gain of 27.2 billion US dollars came during the fourth quarter, the BOK added.

This was attributable to a sharp increase in foreign exchange reserve assets as well as a rise in the appraised value of South

Korea's overseas investment, the BOK said.

On the other hand, the outstanding amount of foreign investment in South Korea rose to 752.8 billion US dollars, up 144.3 billion US dollars from the end of 2008, according to the central bank. The increase came as there was a shift to large-scale net inflows in foreign portfolio investment, while the appraised value of foreign portfolio investment increased significantly in response to brisk conditions in the local stock and currency markets.—Xinhua

Asia should step up efforts to engage Africa

SINGAPORE, 27 Feb—Former United Nations Secretary-General Kofi Annan on Friday night urged Asia to step up efforts to engage Africa to gain a win-win outcome. In a public lecture at the National University of Singapore on links between Asia and Africa, and how the two could learn from each other and strengthen their partnerships, Annan said that Asia should step up efforts to engage Africa.

Asia has been reaping benefits from its relationship with Africa, including greater market access, for years, he said, adding that it now has a responsibility to help Africa along the path of development it has itself trodden so well.

Annan said that Asia will be helping itself as well if it does more to engage Africa and partner the continent in its development. This is because a prosperous and successful Africa will provide trade opportunities and a louder voice of support for common goals shared by the world, he said.—Xinhua

Canada raises flight fees to cover tighter security costs

OTTAWA, 27 Feb—Canada will charge air travelers extra fees to cover the costs of tightening security, Transport Minister John Baird announced on Thursday.

Baird said the government will put up 1.5 billion Canadian dollars over the next five years to hire more security staff and upgrade equipment, such as body scanners, explosives detection and passenger observation, in Canada's 89 airports. In addition, security will be improved in other airport operations such as the screening of airport staff, he said.

"I understand that new charges are not welcome, but they are necessary to keep travellers safe," Baird said. To cover the costs, fees for travelers will rise by 2.50 Canadian dollars for a one-way flight in Canada, by 4.37 Canadian dollars for transborder flights and by 8.91 Canadian dollars for international flights. "The cost should be borne by those who use these services, not all taxpayers," Baird said, adding that the new security charge is a user fee, not a tax.—Xinhua

Woman in Roman tomb was of African descent

A woman buried in the British city of York 16 centuries ago with signs of great wealth in her tomb was of African descent, scientists said on Friday.

A research team examined skeletons excavated in 1901, using modern techniques, The Guardian reported. In an article published in Antiquity magazine, researchers said at least one-fifth of the bodies appeared to be immigrants or the descendants of immigrants who had come to York from far-flung parts of the Roman Empire.

"We're looking at a population mix which is much closer to contemporary Britain than previous historians had suspected," Hella Eckhardt, an archaeologist from Reading University, said. "In the case of York, the Roman population may have had more diverse origins than the city has now."

York, then known as Eboracum, was one of the most important cities in Roman Britain and became the capital of Britannia Inferior under the Emperor Severus.

Russia, US may clinch new arms deal in March or April

Moscow, 27 Feb—A new nuclear arms reduction treaty between Russia and the United States could be signed in March or April, a Kremlin aide said on Friday.

"The work is continuing. We still consider March or April as the most realistic timeframe for the signing of the treaty," Sergei Prikhodko, Russian President Dmitry Medvedev's top foreign policy aide, was quoted as saying by Russian news agencies.

Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov said on Wednesday that a new arms treaty could be hammered out in the near future if both countries faithfully adhere to agreements reached by their presidents.

Russia and the United States began last year talks on a replacement for the 1991 Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty (START-1) that expired on 5 December, but they failed to reach a deal before the end of 2009.

An outline of the new pact, agreed to by Medvedev and US President Barack Obama last July, includes cutting the number of nuclear warheads each country has to between 1,500 and 1,675.

Ten die in Al-Qaeda-linked attack in Philippines

ZAMBOANGA, 27 Feb—Al Qaeda-linked militants attacked a town in the southern Philippines on Saturday, killing 10 people, military and police spokesmen said.

Members of the Abu Sayyaf extremist group and other gunmen raided the town of Maluso on the island of Basilan before dawn, killing a government militiaman and nine civilians, said Lieutenant Steffani Cacho. Soldiers were sent to secure the area but the attackers fled after burning several houses including the village chairman's, said Cacho.

The attack, led by Abu Sayyaf commander Puruji Indama, was motivated by a personal grudge with the village chairman, said Basilan police chief Senior Superintendent Antonio Mendoza.

The attack came hours after two men kidnapped by the same Abu Sayyaf band in Maluso over three months ago walked free.

Indama kidnapped factory workers Michael Tan, Oscar Lu and Mark Singson on 10 November. Singson's severed head was recovered in early December but Tan and Lu were picked up by police late Friday.—Internet

An anonymous phone call led police to the bomb. The army says it apparently contained nitroglycerine connected to a cell phone.

S Korea, Mexico agree to speed up FTA negotiations

SEOUL, 27 Feb—South Korea and Mexico have agreed to speed up their negotiations for a free trade agreement (FTA) while strengthening their bilateral ties, the South Korean Foreign Ministry said on Friday. The two countries reached agreement at a meeting between South Korean Foreign Minister Yu Myung-hwan and his Mexican counterpart Patricia Espinosa in Mexico City on Wednesday to seek a resumption of FTA talks in the near future, the ministry said.

"Minister Yu requested

Mexico's support for resuming the negotiations for a South Korea-Mexico FTA, which have been stalled since June 2008, and Minister Espinosa responded by recognizing the need to sign an FTA between the two countries, as he agreed to hold more meetings between the two countries at all levels," the ministry said in a Press release.

Minister Yu said at the meeting that an FTA deal between the two countries would lead to a significant increase in the number of jobs in Mexico as the deal would substantially expand South Korean companies' investments to the country, according to the ministry.—Xinhua

Suicide car bomber kills four in NW Pakistan

PARACHINAR, 27 Feb—A suicide car bomber killed three policemen and a child on Saturday in an attack on a police station in a northwestern Pakistani town, police said.

Al Qaeda-linked Pakistani militants have carried out numerous attacks on members of the security forces over the past couple of years, and they stepped up strikes after the army launched an offensive on their main bastion in October.

The blast in the town of Karak, 200 km (125 miles) southwest of Islamabad, came as police were on the alert for attacks on religious processions.

"The blast destroyed part of police station and a nearby mosque," police official Gul Sadi Khan told Reuters, adding three policemen had been killed. "Thirteen people have been wounded and we fear more people are trapped under the debris."

Oil spill sparks food fears on Italian farms

ROME, 27 Feb—Sludge from an oil spill snaking along the Po River reached the province of Parma on Thursday, raising fears that the home of Italy's famed prosciutto, parmesan cheese and other agricultural staples might be at risk of water contamination.

Italian farm lobby Coldiretti insisted Italy's food chain was safe since the Po isn't being used for irrigation these days. But another group of farm owners, Confagricultura, warned that the spring planting season, particularly for water-intensive rice crops, might be at risk unless clean water is ensured. The Po River valley, which extends 27,400 square miles across several northern regions, produces a third of Italy's agricultural output and represents 40 percent of the country's GDP.

Brazil calls for cancellation of Haiti's debt

PORT AU PRINCE, 27 Feb—Visiting Brazilian President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva on Thursday called all creditor countries and agencies to write off Haiti's external debt so that the Caribbean country can apply for new loans to finance the reconstruction after the 12 Jan devastating earthquake.

During the ceremony for signing several agreements with Haiti, Lula said "it is time for the world to express solidarity forgiving that debt, which amounts to about 1,300 million dollars. He told Haiti President Rene Preval that a special meeting of South American Nations Union (UNASUR) has decided to donate 100 million dollars for Haiti.

The Brazilian leader arrived in Haiti on Thursday morning for his first visit since the quake, and has flown over the capital Port-au-Prince to verify the situation in the worst affected areas of the city. "The Brazilian government will do everything that is possible, and especially in agreement with the government of Haiti," he stressed.

"We are subordinate to the orientation of the government of Haiti, to what they want us to do and how we should do it. We are not coming from Brazil and do things the way we want. This country has a government legitimately elected," he stressed. In his dialogue with Preval, the President explained, in addition to debt forgiveness, a priority to start the reconstruction process was detected.—Xinhua

China reports at least 29 injured in Yunnan quake

BEIJING, 27 Feb — At least 29 people were injured and hundreds of buildings damaged in an earthquake in southwestern China's Yunnan Province, reports said on Friday. Dozens of aftershocks continued to rock the area around Chuxiong prefecture where the quake struck shortly before 1 pm on Thursday.

Some registered as high as magnitude 5.0, equaling the strength of the original quake, according to the prefectural government and state media.

Among structures damaged were at least 100 schools, 72 clinics and 1,446 houses. Scores of damaged buildings were being pulled down to guard against collapse. More than 700 soldiers were dispatched to aid the rescue. Quilts, clothing and thousands of tents were rushed to the area, about 60 miles (95 kilometres) northwest of the provincial capital of Kunming. More than 3,000 people were being pro-

The quake hit Tingri county, about 200 miles (320 kilometres) west of the regional capital Lhasa, at 12:42 pm (0442 GMT), the Tibetan earthquake monitoring centre said.—Internet

LOS ANGELES, 27 Feb — Cash-strapped California on Friday officially began the implementation of a plan to sell two dozen state office buildings across the state.

Through the sales, the state hopes to raise more than two billion dollars to pay off some of its long-term debt.

The on-sale buildings, which include the Ronald Reagan State Building in downtown Los Angeles, would be purchased by investors who would in turn lease them to the state for at least 20 years, according to the plan approved by Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger and the Legislature last June.

Under the plan, the state would pay the new owners an estimated 12.2 million dollars a year in rent.

India confirms nine nationals killed in Kabul attacks

NEW DELHI, 27 Feb — India has condemned the twin suicide attacks in the Afghan capital Kabul early on Friday morning in which nine Indian nationals, including Indian government officials, were killed.

"As per the preliminary information provided by Afghan Government officials, up to nine Indians, besides a few others from Afghanistan and third countries, have lost their lives," Indian External Affairs Minister SM Krishna said in a statement issued to the media.

While strongly condemning the "heinous" attacks, Krishna said the terrorists had apparently targeted Indian nationals this time again, following two previous attacks upon Indian embassies in Kabul in 2008 and 2009.

"The deceased Indians include Government officials. A few Indians have been injured, most of whom are reported to be out of danger," he said.

Krishna said some Indian nationals were living in the residential facilities targeted by the militants.

"We are shocked at the inhuman attack on innocent lives earlier this morning in Kabul. We unreservedly condemn the terrorist attack. Our mission is in close touch with the Afghan authorities to get factual details," Indian Ministry of External Affairs spokesman Vishnu Prakash said earlier.—Internet

Pre-Hispanic relics found in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, 27 Feb — Mexican archeologists have found at least 500 stone and ceramic pieces of the pre-Hispanic colonial era in the Chichimeca region of San Luis Potosi and Guanajuato states in central Mexico, local Press reported on Thursday. The relics, which date from 1000 AD to 1800 AD, were found in 37 camps distributed in five areas.

Ruben Manzanilla, an archeologist with the Mexican National Institute of Anthropology and History, told reporters that the relics included tools such as scrapers, knives and pocket knives made of different kinds of rocks. They also found a rock with paintings representing a heron made with some red-colour mineral and another rock with the painting of a possible human face, he added.

"Among the pieces there are small bullets of green or gray obsidian. According to historical records, this type of arrowheads were used by nomad natives in the so-called Chichimeca War against the Spaniards in the 16th century," he said. Manzanilla also said the mortar and pounding stones found there were made by sedentary pre-Hispanic groups, which proves that the nomads traded products with the sedentary groups.

"These activities were documented in history and we were able to corroborate it in these explorations," he said. Archeologists would continue their research in these areas where they found the relics and where El Realito dam is being built, he added.—Xinhua

Giant iceberg 'could change weather patterns'

PARISM, 27 Feb — An iceberg the size of Luxembourg knocked loose from the Antarctic continent earlier this month could disrupt the ocean currents driving weather patterns around the globe, researchers said.

While the impact would not be felt for decades or longer, a slowdown in the production of colder, dense water could result in less temperate winters in the north Atlantic, they said.

The 2550 sq km block broke off on 12 or 13 February from the Mertz Glacier Tongue, a 160km spit of floating ice protruding into the Southern Ocean from East Antarctica due south of Melbourne, researchers said. Some 400m thick, the iceberg could fill Sydney Harbour more than 100 times over.

It could also disturb the area's exceptionally rich biodiversity, including a major colony of emperor penguins near Dumont d'Urville, site of a French scientific station, according to the scientists. "The ice tongue was almost broken already. It was hang-

Canadian passenger train with about 120 aboard derails

OTTAWA, 27 Feb — A passenger train with about 120 people on board has derailed in Quebec province, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (CBC) reported on Thursday. Seven passengers suffered minor injuries, and at least one person was sent to a local hospital while others were treated for shock.

The VIA train went off the track at 4:45 am very close to a house at Saint-

It's not yet clear what caused the accident, but one train car hit the back porch of the house, local police said. Passengers were being transported on buses to Montreal while Canada's Transportation and Safety

Mexican anti-drug plane found, three occupants dead

TIJUANA, 27 Feb — Mexican marines have found the wreckage of a small military anti-drug patrol plane reported missing earlier this week in northern Mexico.

Military officials said Friday that the aircraft's three occupants were found dead at the scene, just south of the Baja California city of Ensenada.

The marines and army conduct joint operations in the region, and it was not immediately clear which branch the victims belonged to.

The plane was on a routine flight to detect drug planting when it went missing Tuesday.

While drug traffickers have sometimes opened fire on official aircraft, Mexico has also had difficulties in safely operating official craft.

Marks drop as kids fail fitness test

NEW YORK, 27 Feb — Getting students to exercise more might not just address obesity issues, but also improve their grades. A US study found physically fit students scored higher in tests than their less fit peers.

Test scores dropped more than one point for each extra minute it took middle and high school students to complete a 1600m run/walk fitness test, according to Dr William J McCarthy and colleagues at the University of California in Los Angeles.

For optimal brain function "it's good to be both aerobically fit and to have a healthy body shape", Dr McCarthy said. Dr McCarthy's team compared physical fitness and body weight measures with scores on California's standardized maths, reading, and language tests among 749 fifth-graders, 761 seventh-graders, and 479 ninth-graders who attended schools between 2002 and 2003.

About half of the students were girls, 60 per cent were white, 26 per cent were of Hispanic ethnicity, and about 7 per cent each were African American and Asian/Pacific Islander. Almost 32 per cent of the students were overweight and about 28 per cent were obese, the researchers reported in The Journal of Pediatrics.—Internet

Drug-resistant malaria 'growing' in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, 27 Feb — Parasites are developing resistance to one of the most important anti-malaria drugs, according to experts.

Artimisinin has been highly effective, particularly in places where resistance to other drugs has developed.

But now some patients along Cambodia's border with Thailand are taking longer to respond to the treatment.

Experts on the disease are meeting village health workers in Cambodia's capital, Phnom Penh, to discuss ways to stop drug-resistant malaria spreading. Malaria Consortium technical director Dr Sylvia Meek says it must be eliminated before it spreads.

"There is a lot of population movement - people coming for instance from Nigeria to Asia - and it's growing and growing," she said. —Internet

Defensive crisis looms for Inter as Milan lurk

ROME, 27 Feb—Inter Milan boss Jose Mourinho will need to employ his greatest powers of tactical and motivational astuteness if his club are to maintain their four-point lead at the top of Serie A this weekend. Inter embark on a tricky trip to Udinese facing the possibility of needing to play two midfielders or youth team players at the back.

The champions have centre-backs Ivan Cordoba and Walter Samuel suspended after being dismissed in last week's game with Sampdoria while Cristian Chivu, Marco Materazzi and Davide Santon are all injured, although Materazzi is a possibility. That leaves Mourinho with possibly only two defenders at his disposal in Brazilians Maicon, a right-back, and centre-back Lucio, thus facing the prospect of having to field two midfielders in his back-line.—Internet

Rangers aim to kill off Celtic title bid

GLASGOW, 27 Feb—Defending champions Rangers will seek to put an end to Celtic's faltering title challenge when the Glasgow rivals meet in the third Old Firm derby of the season at Ibrox on Sunday. Walter Smith's side have a seven-point lead at the top of the Scottish Premier League over the Hoops and a game in hand over their long-time adversaries.

"If we can win this game it would put a serious dent in their championship hopes," said Rangers assistant manager Ally McCoist. "We certainly wouldn't win anything at this stage but you'd have to say it would put a real dampener on things for them."—Internet

PSG take on rivals Marseille in 'Le Clasico'

PARIS, 27 Feb—Eight-time French champions Marseille and under-performing giants Paris Saint-Germain meet on Sunday in what is the country's most bitter footballing rivalry. Tensions run high between the two clubs and the game has become infamous for events off the pitch in recent years.

Authorities are so worried about violent clashes between supporters that Marseille have been granted just 1,500 tickets for the game. Didier Deschamps's men go into the game after cruising through into the last 16 of the Europa League with a 6-2 aggregate victory over FC Copenhagen on Thursday. The one-time European champions even rested 14-goal top scorer Mamadou Niang ahead of Sunday's crunch match.

Gatorade drops Tiger Woods sponsorship

WASHINGTON, 27 Feb—Sports drink brand Gatorade dumped troubled golf star Tiger Woods on Friday, becoming the third major corporate sponsor to abandon him since details of his adulterous affairs surfaced late last year. A representative for the drink, sold by PepsiCo Inc, confirmed late Friday that it had ended its relationship with the golfer, who made a lengthy public apology last week for his infidelities.

"We no longer see a role for Tiger in our marketing efforts and have ended our relationship," a Gatorade spokeswoman said. "Our partnership with the Tiger Woods Foundation will continue. We wish him all the best." Gatorade decided before the sex scandal that it would drop its "Tiger Focus" drink. AT&T and technology outsourcing and consulting company Accenture have already ended their sponsorships, while Gillette has distanced itself from the world-famous athlete, who is considered to be one of the best professional golfers of all time.

Woods had been largely absent from public view for the 12 weeks since he crashed his car outside his Florida home, and as the details of his multiple infidelities unraveled in a flurry of media coverage around the world. Woods, who is believed to be the world's wealthiest athlete, was estimated to have earned 100 million US dollars annually in endorsement deals before he confessed to "infidelity" and said he was taking an indefinite break from professional golf in December.—Xinhua
