Maj-Gen Myint Soe of Ministry of Defence oversees river water pumping project, regional development tasks

NAY PYI TAW, 9 Sept — Maj-Gen Myint Soe of the Ministry of Defence accompanied by Chairman of Mandalay Region Peace and Development Council Commander of Central Command Brig-Gen Ye Aung and departmental officials inspected tarmacking of road section on Yangon-Mandalay Union Highway yesterday.

After hearing reports on progress of road works, Maj-Gen Myint Soe gave necessary instructions.

At the work site of repairing Yintaw Tank near Yintaw Village in Pyawbwe Township of Mandalay Region, Maj-Gen Myint Soe heard reports on work progress, water storage capacity and arrangements being made for supplying water to farmlands presented by the director of Mandalay Region Irrigation Department and project in-charge and fulfilled the requirements.

On his arrival at Ngwechi (6) long staple cotton model farmland at Shwekokko village in Meiktila Township, Maj-Gen Myint Soe heard reports on progress of cotton cultivation and production, and greeted local people.

Ayeyawady Bridge (Yadanabon) reflecting national development

Ayeyawady Bridge (Yadanabon) lying splendidly across the Ayeyawady River, the gift of nature, makes commodity flow swift, for the bridge can reduce traveling time obviously.

If you take a look at Sagaing from Khawataung of Mandalay bank, residential buildings with the greenish mountain ranges in the background will be seen. Sagaing of Sagaing Region shares border with Mandalay of Mandalay Region. But the Ayeyawady River is flowing between them.

Although Inwa Birdge bonded Mandalay and Sagaing together in the past, it is now in aging state. So, the government set down a project to build the Ayeyawady Bridge (Yadanabon) 2000 feet upstream of the Inwa Bridge.

The bridge is 5614 feet long steel girdle type, with 49-foot-wide four lanes motor road flanked by six-foot-wide pedestrian ways, and can withstand 60 tons of loads. Vessels and motorboats can run in the clearance area of the bridge.

While having a stroll on the Ayeyawady Bridge from Mandalay, I witnessed the bridge is beneficial to every national race as it serve as an all-season-use facility, staring at various vehicles driving along the bridge.

Gear up literacy campaign

Literacy can change living standard of a person and helps develop life of families, communities and human society. New knowledge and skills through literacy can create development. As literacy is essential for development and prosperity, all the global countries are placing emphasis on literacy programme.

Myanmar society has sound foundation in the education sector since yore. Only educated and healthy citizens can bring prosperity to the nation.

At present, programmes of formal and non-formal education gather momentum in Myanmar. Over 40,000 primary, post-primary, middle and high schools have been opened throughout the nation for enabling the school-aged children to pursue education conveniently.

Myanmar is steadfastly implementing the literacy programmes in accord with the aim: "Education for All". Basic literacy programme and Continuing Education Programme are being implemented in the non-formal education sector. Due to opening the learning centre and 3-Rs courses, the number of literates has been increasing in the all regions of the nation including border areas.

Literacy campaign are conducted successfully thanks to concerted efforts of the local authorities, education staff, social organizations and local people. In 2010, Myanmar achieved 94.95 per cent of adult literacy rate.

Higher literacy rate of Myanmar is pride of the entire people, reflecting the higher living standard of the people. Literacy campaign for each and every citizen and the Continuing Education Programme are to be geared up in order that Myanmar sees literacy rate on the increase.

Nine dead in Portuguese bus crash in Morocco

RABAT, 9 Sept—Nine Portuguese tourists were killed and 14 injured when their tour bus plunged into a ravine in northern Morocco on Wednesday, the interior ministry said.

Eight of the dead in the accident near the border with the Spanish enclave of Ceuta were female, including a teenager, and one of the injured was a Moroccan guide, medical sources added.

"It was very foggy and drizzling," a witness said. "The coach skidded and fell into a ravine." A Spanish government representative in Ceuta told AFP the bus was carrying Portuguese tourists who arrived on Wednesday morning in the enclave on a cruise ship.

Witnesses quoted by Portuguese media said it was in a convoy of buses when the accident happened some 15 kilometres (ten miles) from Ceuta.

The injured were ferried to hospitals in Tetouan, Fnideq and BOGOTA, 9 Sept—Twelve people were wounded when a bomb exploded outside the Colombian intelligence agency's offices in the southern city of Pasto, near the Ecuadorian border, the Red Cross said.

A "low-intensity package bomb was left outside the Administrative Department of Security (DAS) building, next to a lamppost, by a man who then ran away," Pasto Red Cross official Henry Palacios told AFP.

He said 12 passersby and workers from the DAS building were wounded in the blast and taken to area hospitals.

Narino department Governor Antonio Navarro told Caracol radio that two of the wounded were in serious condition and that the damage wrought by the bomb was considerable.

He said authorities suspect the bombing was the work of the leftist Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC), the country's oldest and strongest rebel group.

Shortly after the blast, DAS agents detained a man and a woman who were leaving the area in a taxi and are suspected of being behind the blast, DAS Director Felipe Munoz said.

Pasto is the capital of Narino department, one of the FARC's strongholds in southern Colombia. On Tuesday, six police officers on road patrol were ambushed and killed in Samaniego.—Internet

14 killed, 24 injured as bus turn turtle in S Afghanistan

KABUL, 9 Sept—Over a dozen people were killed and two dozen others sustained injuries as a passenger bus turned turtle in Ghazni Province south of Afghanistan on Wednesday, a local television channel reported.

"A passenger bus heading for Kandahar from Kabul turned turtle on the highway in Ghazni Province this morning as a result 14 people were killed and 24 others sustained injuries," Tolo broadcast in its news bulletin.

Women and children are among the victims, citing local officials, the television further said.

Reckless driving on congested roads and highways is the main cause of road accidents in Afghanistan.

More than 50 people have lost their lives in road accidents mostly in the restive southern region where militants are active and the law and order is poor, over the past couple of months.—Xinhua

No injuries in Palestinian mortar attack on Israeli kindergarten

JERUSALEM, 9 Sept—Palestinian militants in northern Gaza fired a mortar into a nearby Israeli kibbutz community Wednesday morning that slammed down between kindergarten classrooms.

The shell, which caused slight damage but no casualties, failed to trigger an early-warning system meant to detect rocket fire from the Hamas-ruled area.

The structure's rooms were unoccupied at the time, although children were on their way to classes within about half an hour, local security officials said.

"We heard a loud explosion. I woke up in panic. The shell exploded about 100 metres from my house. The blast was so powerful that it set off the car alarms. It was very frightening," a report on the local Ynet news website quoted a kibbutz resident as saying.

Security officials decided to keep the kindergartens open, but instructed children and staff to remain indoors for the next few hours.

The shelling took place on the eve of Rosh Hashana, the two-day Jewish New Year.

The strike came on the heels of an uptick in mortar and Kassam rocket strikes at Israeli targets since the onset of direct negotiations between Israel and the Palestinian National Authority (PNA) began last week. Gaza militants fired a Kassam towards Israel on Saturday that hit an open field, causing no damage.

Hamas officials bitterly slammed the talks between Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and PNA President Mahmoud Abbas.—Xinhua

Brain scientists discover a tiny traffic cop

WASHINGTON, 9 Sept—Scientists have discovered a protein that helps direct traffic within brain cells.

The discovery of the role filled by the protein, called MEC-17, could play a part in research of diseases like Huntington’s, Parkinson’s and Alzheimer’s, in which brain cells degenerate, the researchers say.

Scientists have known that the degeneration is partly due to changes in the tiny tubes inside brain cells, called microtubules. These tubes work like train tracks inside cells, making sure proteins, nutrients and waste products get to their destinations.

Asteroid near-misses actually common, scientists say

WASHINGTON, 9 Sept—Asteroid near-misses actually commTwo asteroids swooping past Earth Wednesday may have caught the attention of the public, but events like these are not actually rare, NASA scientists say. “This is the first time we’ve seen [two] combined within a 24-hour period, but that’s probably because we don’t know everything that is out there,” said Lindley Johnson, programme executive of the Near-Earth Object programme at NASA head-quarters in Washington.

Single asteroids have been known to make such close passes, but they usually slip by unnoticed, Johnson told SPACE.com.

In fact, with a rough estimate of 50 million unknown asteroids, a 33-foot-wide (10-metre) near-Earth object could pass harmlessly between Earth and the orbit of the moon every day, Johnson added. Such an asteroid might hit Earth’s atmosphere once every 10 years, but because of its small size, it would pose no substantial threat to the people or property below.

New arm chip to stretch from smartphones to servers

NEW YORK, 9 Sept—Arm Holdings has taken the wraps off its next major chip design, promising a five-fold increase in performance that the company hopes will take it beyond smartphones and into new types of equipment such as high-performance routers and servers.

Arm’s top executives launched the Cortex-A15 MPCore at a press conference in San Francisco Wednesday evening. The name is supposed to reflect how much of an advance the chip represents — Arm’s current designs are the Cortex-A8 and the Cortex-A9.

“This is a huge day for us,” said Eric Schorn, Arm’s vice president of marketing. “Today is the biggest thing that has happened to Arm, period.”

Arm chips are used in most of today’s smartphones, including the iPhone and Android-based devices. They are also found in printers, hard disk drives and a myriad of other electronics products. Arm creates the designs for the chips, which are then licensed and manufactured by companies such as Texas Instruments and Samsung.

The A15 is still a long way from shipping in products. In fact, even its predecessor, the Cortex-A9, isn’t expected to appear until the end of this year. Smartphones and other devices using the A15 will go on sale toward the end of 2012, Schorn said.

Operators get creative due to spectrum crunch

NEW YORK, 9 Sept—The spectrum shortage is forcing mobile operators to experiment more with pricing models, new technologies and partnerships, executives speaking at the Mobile Future Forward event in Seattle said on Wednesday.

“There is a spectrum shortage, and demand will exceed supply, and something has to be done,” said Mike Sievert, chief commercial officer for Clearwire.

At the same time, demand for wireless data services is growing fast. The mean average data usage is 0.5GB per month, per user in the US, he said. Users of Clearwire’s USB data sticks, however, consume a mean average of 7GB of data per month, he said. Clearwire’s smartphone users consume less, but “way above the average,” he said.

“It means that when you give people 4G, they use it,” he said. “If the industry average grows to even 1GB or 2.5GB, most carriers in the US are in big, big trouble.”

Using a genome-wide association study, the researchers found that a certain group of genes that react in response to viral infections were present in both rats and humans, and that those same genes were also associated with a susceptibility to type 1 diabetes. Nissan team checks quality in Thai-made March cars

YOKOHAMA, 9 Sept—Thai-made Nissan March subcompact cars—the first major model from a Japanese automaker being mass produced abroad for sale in Japan—are getting extra scrutiny from a team of quality experts to meet choosy consumer standards, a senior executive said on Thursday. The team of about 50 people called "neniri," which means "thorough" in Japanese, is double-checking quality in addition to regular checks, said Toru Hasegawa, president of Nissan Motor Co's Thai operations. Demand for the March in Japan—also known as the Micra in some markets—has been strong since it went on sale in July, with orders topping 20,000 so far.

Nissan is thinking about making other models in Thailand for export, Hasegawa said, as a surging yen, high labour costs and stagnating domestic demand make production in Japan less lucrative for automakers.

Russia hosts discussion on international financial centre

IRKUTSK, 9 Sept—Hundreds of Russian and foreign representatives gathered here Wednesday to discuss building an international financial center in Russia.

Sergei Naryshkin, the head of the Kremlin administration and chair of the round-table conference, said the creation of the financial center should not merely be an idea but rather a "working draft" by implementing Russia's global status.

Establishing an international financial centre, he said, is conducive to a better macro-economic environment in Russia and would enhance the competitiveness of Russia's domestic financial system in the global market.

Meanwhile Naryshkin suggested that the center should not be created at the level of Moscow only, but also of regional megacities.

That view was echoed by Alexander Voloshin, the head of the working group involved in establishing the centre. Voloshin voiced favour for Irkutsk.

"Irkutsk as any other big city is already a regional financial center and the rest is the question of size and scale," he said.

Observing beautifully and sturdily constructed bridge, I viewed construction of extended approach road to the bridge from Mandalay, built by the government to be convenient and traffic safety for drivers.

Approach road is built with RC bore piles, RC beams and rails. It is 612 feet long and 24 feet wide, flanked by 3 feet and 6 inches wide pedestrian ways, and can bear up to 60 tons of loads. Work on construction of the whole project is nearly completed. Tarring on the concrete layer is under way.

Approach road to Ayeyawady Bridge (Yadanabon) from Mandalay bank.

Ayeyawady Bridge (Yadanabon) parallel to old Inwa Bridge across the Ayeyawady River.

To ensure traffic safety on the bridge, the approach road has been built. It can also stand to benefit the drivers of heavy trucks.

Building bridges across the Ayeyawady River is vital for national development and approach road for traffic safety. Under the umbrella of the government, Public Works is making earnest efforts to reach for the stars in the interests of national races.

Let's vote to choose reliable representatives

Maung Motion

Democracy general elections will take place on 7 November 2010. All eligible voters can cast votes in polling stations.

Certain foreign radio stations are dissuading the people from taking part in the voting.

I wonder why they are that ignorant of the fact that the people have waited for years to embrace such a rare opportunity. I wonder if they are not happy with democratization process through voting. And I wonder if they think that Myanmar people are not intelligent enough of choosing reliable, responsible public representatives as yet.

Voting is, indeed, a fundamental right of every citizen. Those deceiving the people into refusing to enjoy the voting right are none other than anti-democracy activists. In reality, every citizen has the right to vote in Myanmar. They are not under any negative influence in that regard. They can vote if they want to and they may not vote if they don't want to; it is up to them. If a citizen, despite having the voting right, does not participate in elections, such a person may be deemed to be an irresponsible opportunist. I do not think such persons deserve democracy. And if so, they are too foolish to enjoy democracy. Now, the country is transforming from the government-centered into public-centered system. Therefore, the people will have to enjoy fundamental rights and take fundamental duties. Voting is a responsibility of every citizen under which they have to express their desire freely. So, I would say every citizen should vote in elections.

Anyone can ask a question "For whom will we have to vote, then?"

The answer is "You may vote for any candidate you favour".

In that case, a voter just has to put a tick in the box beside the candidate he is in favour of. All voters have the right to vote for any candidate. They do not need to claim who they voted for. The secret ballot system is applied in all polling stations to ensure free and fair elections. Rest assured no one can know for who a person voted in elections.

What should be taken into consideration is that which candidates are reliable for national interest.

Voting should not be based on relationship, same location, and canvassing. Voters should try to know what the candidates for the constituency concerned are like.

Some say "I don't think it matters if I don't vote in the election." Democracy is a system in which the strength of every citizen is mobilized to build a democratic nation. Every citizen is responsible for democratization.

Here, I would like to tell a story. Once upon a time, there existed a livestock village of a tribe without much civilization. Villagers raised cattle, goat, sheep, chicken and duck.

One day, the village head set a glazed pot in the middle of the village and said to the villagers that he had a plan to hold a festivity the next day. He asked them to prepare meals for themselves and put a quart (a bottle) of milk each into the pot from the evening onwards. He also said that the villagers might add milk at night, and milk would be boiled and a banquet would be held the next morning.

Commencing the dusk, villagers put milk into the pot till late at night.

The following morning, the pot of milk was opened and it was found that what in the pot was all water, not milk.

Every villager thought that other households would add pure milk into the pot. It did not matter even if he put water. And no one could notice that.

After all, inside the pot was all water due to irresponsibility of every villager.

Nothing added and nothing enjoyed.

The village head said to the villagers that their village remained poor whereas the village to the east and the village to the west of their village had become affluent; that he would like to ask why their village was still poor; that day, they could know the root cause of why their village was poor; and that it was due to lack of goodwill or sense of responsibility. And he exhorted his followers to have a sense of duty. Later, every villager did their bit in the tasks for development of their village. Before long, the village became economically developed.

Only each and every person has a sense of altruistic spirit in a society, will it be possible for such a society to enjoy progress and prosperity. The total strength of everyone is mighty. No sweat to go to the polling station and cast votes. The number of the citizens who have voted in the general elections is an indicator for the political sense of the people.

If the people all take part in the elections, the image projected to the international community by Myanmar will be very positive.

Then, the countries that are in favour of Myanmar will show their praise.

The countries that dislike Myanmar will be shocked.

The countries that want Myanmar to enjoy development will be happy.

The countries that want to get Myanmar into trouble will be unhappy.

So, every citizen is solemnly urged to vote in the elections. Voting is a duty entrusted to every citizen.

Whoever is found guilty of disturbing the people from casting votes in elections may face a one-year prison term or a fine of 100,000 kyats or both. The people should, therefore, weigh the broadcasts aired by certain foreign radios as to the forthcoming elections. They should not let themselves under the sway of such broadcasts.

At first, an eligible voter has to search his name in the list of voters on the board. It will be convenient if he put his roll number into his memory. It will be easy for the polling booth officer or the deputy polling booth officer to identify him if he lets them know what is his roll number in the book of the names of 500 to 1000 voters. Voters should extend a helping hand to those responsible for elections.

If his name is not included yet in the list of voters attached to the board, a voter should inform the ward election commission about that. Every eligible voter is to be on the voters list. Rest assured. (A voter shall not vote twice nor does he vote in two elections. Every voter shall vote only one time).

Suppose today is 7 November 2010 (First Waxing of Tazaungmone, 1372 Myanmar Era):

(1) Go to the polling station and draw a ballot paper. What he just needs is to put the ballot paper into the ballot box. Put a tick-marked vote in the box shown against the name of the Pyithu Hluttaw candidate he favours. That is all he has to do. (Remark: Do not put any cross-marked vote in the box.) If a voter puts a cross mark in the box, his ballot paper will be a canceled vote.

The names and party emblems of candidates are stated on the ballot paper.

A voter can choose the candidate he favours in the polling booth and put a tick-marked vote in the box shown against the name of the candidate. Then, put the paper into the green-coloured ballot box.

(See page 9)

If a citizen, despite having the voting right, does not participate in elections, such a person may be deemed to be an irresponsible opportunist. I do not think such persons deserve democracy.

Let's vote to choose reliable...

(2) He also has to draw another ballot paper to vote for a township candidate to the Amyotha Hluttaw. The number of the candidates to Amyotha Hluttaw may be three to five.

Put a tick-marked vote in the box shown against the name of the favoured candidate. And put the ballot paper into the blue-coloured ballot box.

(3) Also draw the third ballot paper to vote for a candidate to State (or) Region Hluttaw. The number of the candidates to State (or) Region Hluttaw may be two to three. Put a tick-marked vote in the box shown against the name of the favoured candidate. And put the ballot paper into the violet-coloured ballot box.

(4) If a local in Yangon Region is a Kayin national, he also can enjoy the right to choose a candidate for the seat of Kayin people. Draw out a ballot paper. Put a tick-marked vote in the box shown against the name of the favoured candidate. And put the ballot paper into the fourth ballot box.

(5) If a local in Yangon Region is a Rakhine national, he also can enjoy the right to choose a candidate for the seat of Rakhine people. Draw out a ballot paper. Put a tick-marked vote in the box shown against the name of the favoured candidate. And put the ballot paper into the fifth ballot box.

Very clear, in Yangon Region, a Kayin national voter has to put four ballot papers into the four ballot boxes, and a Rakhine national voter also has to put four ballot papers into the four ballot boxes. Other voters have to put three ballot papers into the three ballot boxes (green, blue and violet boxes) to choose three candidates to the Pyithu Hluttaw, the Amyotha Hluttaw and Region Hluttaw.

As to putting ballot papers to choose representatives to Pyithu Hluttaw (green ballot box), the numbers of candidates to townships are not the same. Candidates are free to choose the constituency.

In Yangon Region, there is no constituency in which there is only one candidate. In every constituency, candidates all have to compete for seats.

The numbers of Pyithu Hluttaw candidates for townships each of which can elect one representative are as follows:-

- (1) Candidates for Cocogyun Township 2
- (2) Candidates for Yankin Township 3
- (3) Candidates for Dawbon Township 4
- (4) Candidates for S/Okkalapa Township 5
- (5) Candidates for Kamayut Township 6
- (6) Candidates for Kyauktada Township 7
- (7) Candidates for Hlinethaya Township 8

There is no township in Yangon Region for which nine candidates are nominated.

To vote, it is needed to take into consideration the behaviors of each candidate and party. Elected representatives should be all qualified. And the favoured parties should be the ones with correct policies capable of serving national interests. The people should vote the most reliable, suitable candidates.

Free and fair general elections will be held in the Union of Myanmar from 6 am until 4 pm on 7 November 2010. (Those who have already got into the polling stations before 4 pm are allowed to cast votes till it is already 4 pm.) Voters are hoped to cast votes in the morning in order that votes can be counted ward-wise as soon as possible. (A polling station can be closed before 4 pm if all the voters whose names are on the list all have cast votes.)

The Union of Myanmar is on the verge of another system with enthusiasm of each and every citizen.

Drunken brawl grows into gunfire in Bago

NAY PYI TAW, 9 Sept—Two young men were shot dead in a conflict between drunken young men on Mya Street in Zaiganai (South) Ward, Bago, on 4 September.

The incident is that taxi motorbike carrying an army officer taking responsibility for security of Bago railway station and an officer from another local regiment on their way to the railway station after drinking beer in a beer station slightly hit a three-wheeled taxi motorbike carrying seven young men from Bago around 10 pm on 4 September.

The motorbike of the security officer fell down to the ground, and the seven young men assaulted the officer, and he sustained injuries and fell down on the spot. Despite being begged for their pardon, the seven drunken youth kept attacking the two. So, the officer from another regiment fled the site for Bago Railway Station and informed security members. On his way to the scene, the officer accompanied by four security members again came across the seven men, thus leading to another conflict. One of the four security members opened fire, leading Maung Soe Paing Zaw, 17, and Maung Aung Thu Hein, 21, dead.

The clash between some young civilians and some young soldiers was, indeed, due to drinking. The two late youth were buried in Hsinbyugwin Cemetery on 7 September afternoon. Officers concerned called at the houses of the two victims to beg the pardon of their parents.

The Tatmadaw is a force well-organized in line with military code of conduct, and preserves a fine tradition that servicemen offenders were given punitive action. Now, a lawsuit has been filed to take action against the servicemen who got involved in the incident.

However, some politicians, some anti-government people and certain foreign radio stations are taking advantage of the fight for political gains by inciting riots and protests in the nation. In their plot, they are saying and airing with repetition of the term "Tatmadaw" with the aim of misleading the people misunderstanding the Tatmadaw.

In reality, it was just a drunken brawl in the street between some young soldiers and some young civilians, not a fight between the Tatmadaw and the public. Such cases take place sometimes. So, the attempt to exploit such cases to cause mass demonstrations is deemed to be a destructive act.

Today, the people are not happy with any attempts to undermine State stability and peace, and are keen to help wipe out such elements provoking mass protests for political gains. And they want the government to expose and take action against such instigators.

To comply with the public desire, the government is now gearing up hand in hand with the people for stopping and taking action against those elements deceiving the people into taking to the streets with the intention of destroying State stability and peace.

34 rescued from China oil platform accident

BEIJING, 9 Sept—Emergency teams with helicopters rescued 34 workers on Wednesday from an oil drilling platform that was leaning dangerously in the East China Sea after a storm, and searched for two others still missing, officials said.

The No 3 drilling platform in the Shengli oil field, operated by Sinopec, Asia's largest refiner by capacity, started tilting over on Tuesday, causing four workers to fall into the water and trapping 32 of them on the platform, the Transport Ministry said in a statement on its website.

Rescue helicopters were dispatched to the site from the coastal city of Dalian at around 6 am local time, the ministry said.

The platform was tilting at a 45 degree angle to the sea, around five nautical miles (nine kilometres) from the coast, where the water is 23 feet (seven metres) deep, the official Xinhua News Agency said.

A typhoon caused the platform to tilt, said a man surnamed Sun from the Shengli Oil Management Bureau of Sinopec, also known as China Petroleum & Chemical Corp, in Dongying in Shandong Province.

Sun said winds were blowing at up to 55 miles per hour (24.4 metres per second), causing 13-foot (four-metre) waves.

Devastating Mexico flooding to worsen

VILLAHERMOSA, 9 Sept—Floods that have affected almost one million people in the south and east of Mexico will likely worsen after the opening of a dam and predictions of more rain, a state governor said Wednesday.

"Heavy rains are predicted, not only in Tabasco (state) but also in the whole south-southeastern region, including storms and hurricanes... which would put us in a more critical situation," Tabasco governor Andres Granier told local journalists.

The opening of the region's Penitas dam could release up to 2,000 cubic meters of water per second to the Carrizal and Samaria rivers, which were already at critical levels, Granier said.

"The worrying thing is that for people in Tabasco, the worst — our real rainy season — is starting now," he added.

Fires flare up as Russia pledges better forest protection

MOSCOW, 9 Sept—Forest fires flared again in Russia on Wednesday as President Dmitry Medvedev demanded better protection for the country's prized forests to avoid a repeat of this summer's disaster.

Fresh fires destroyed more than 400 houses in the Siberian region of Altai, officials said, as flames spread across the region's border with the Central Asian country of Kazakhstan.

"The village of Nikolayevka has been entirely taken by the flames. According to preliminary information, 433 houses burned down," emergency ministry spokeswoman Irina Andryanova was quoted as saying by Interfax news agency.

All 1,000 residents of the village were safely evacuated, the spokeswoman said.

An evacuation was underway in the village of Bastan, where flames had already destroyed four houses, she said.—Internet

Four plead not guilty in Tongan ferry sinking case

NUKU'ALOFA, 9 Sept—Four men have pleaded not guilty to manslaughter over the sinking of the Tongan ferry Princess Ashika last year with the loss of 74 lives.

The four, the Shipping Corporation of Polynesia's managing director John Jonesse as well as the ferry captain, first mate and a senior public servant, face up to 25 years in jail if convicted.

At a directions hearing in the Supreme Court on Wednesday, the accused pleaded not guilty and judge Robert Shuster adjourned the matter to 8 October, when a trial date is expected to be set.

The Princess Ashika sank in August last year while on an overnight voyage from Nuku'alofa, the capital of the South Pacific nation, to an outlying island.

Survivors told of water building up in the cargo hold of the boat before the ferry capsized around midnight, trapping sleeping passengers below deck.

An inquiry into the sinking described the tragedy as "scandalous" and found there was a lack of due diligence by the shipping firm and government when the unsafe ferry was bought.

The Princess Ashika, built in the early 1970s, was on its fourth voyage in Tonga when it sank, and the inquiry blamed authorities for allowing it to sail as evidence mounted of its unseaworthiness which led to the 74 deaths.—Internet

Business jet in near-collision with airliner over east London

LONDON, 9 Sept—Incident involving airliner with 232 passengers on board forces air traffic control to introduce stricter safety procedures in area. A near miss involving two planes, one carrying 232 passengers, has forced air traffic controllers to introduce strict safety procedures to prevent the risk of a mid-air collision at a potential blackspot over east London.

The new measures follow a "serious incident" when a business jet was forced to take action to avoid a Heathrow-bound Boeing 777, as the two passed just half-a-mile from each other at heights less than 61 metres (200ft) apart above the busy A12 near Hackney, an accident report reveals today.

Obscure word in headline sparks complaints

The Baltimore Sun says several readers groused about the use of the word "limn" in a recent headline.

The newspaper said it received several complaints about the headline, "Opposing votes limn difference in race," which utilized the synonym for describe, from people who had to look up the definition of the word.

"I had to keep looking at it again and again," Sun reader Carol Shaw wrote in an e-mailed complaint about the Tuesday headline. "I consider myself an educated person ... I have never heard of the word 'limn.' ... To put a word like 'limn' in the headline for the lead article on the front page of this newspaper seems to me to be unbelievably arrogant and patronizing."

The Sun said a check of its records found the word "limn" had been used 47 previous times in the newspaper since 1991, including two headlines.

Mystery eye problem at dairy show caused by cow urine

The cause of a mystery eye ailment that struck about 50 visitors to a dairy pavilion at an agricultural show in Australia has been traced — to cow urine. The Royal Adelaide Show had to close its dairy cattle pavilion after an rising number of people reported sore eyes when visiting the judging marquee. Officials from the South Australia (SA) Health Department were called in to investigate and found the cause of the outbreak was stagnant cow urine.

Show spokeswoman Michelle Hocking told local reporters that a recent spell of wet weather may have created conditions within the pavilion where ammonia from cow urine was released. About 30 people were treated on site by volunteers from the first aid group St John Ambulance but about 20 went to the emergency department of the Royal Adelaide Hospital. "From our institutional memory we can't recall an incident of this nature before," Peter Jackson from the St John Ambulance told Reuters.

'Low pants, no chance'

A Baton Rouge Metro Council member wants the parish to support a public awareness campaign against men who wear their pants so low that their boxer shorts show.

Councilwoman C Denise Marcelle has a slogan for the campaign: "Low pants, no chance." "I hate to see it and I see so much of it in my district," Marcelle said. "It's disrespectful to the elderly, to young kids and to women."

Her resolution, on the agenda for discussion Wednesday, says wearing saggy pants creates negative stereotypes and that "those who wear saggy pants are hurting their chances of becoming employable, educated and productive citizens."

Marcelle said she'd like to pass a law allowing police to cite and fine people for wearing saggy pants that expose their underwear, but recognizes that constitutional issues prevent such a law.

Five most explosive music documentaries

LOS ANGELES, 9 Sept—There are music documentaries that are all about the music — concert films that focus solely on the artistry and thrill of live performance — and then there are juicy ones that are all about backstage ego and volatility. "I'm still here," which follows Joaquin Phoenix's tumultuous transformation from Oscar-nominated actor to shaggy, doughy rapper, would seem to fall into the latter category — if it truly is a documentary, that is, and not an elaborate put-on. Here are some other examples of serious rock-star behavior:

Chicago Mayor Daley hears from Oprah Winfrey

CHICAGO, 9 Sept—Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's decision to not run for another term prompted a call from someone else who's famous name is synonymous with the nation's third-largest city: Oprah Winfrey.

Winfrey was among the notables who have called Daley since his announcement Tuesday that he would give up the job he's had since 1989.

Like Daley, Oprah is giving up her current job, too. She's ending her Chicago-based daytime talk show this season after 25 years.

Daley said on Wednesday he also heard from President Barack Obama, former Vice President Al Gore and White House advisors David Axelrod and Rahm Emanuel.

Swinging sixties British film director dies

LONDON, 9 Sept—Clive Donner, the British film director whose movies helped set the tone for the swinging sixties, died Tuesday at the age of 84, his family said. He had been suffering from Alzheimer's disease and died in London.

Donner's career began at Pinewood Studios outside London when he was 15, his cousin Gavin Asher said. "One of the things he was most proud of was what he did for the careers of quite a lot of British actors including Alan Bates, David Hemmings and Ian McKellen," he said.

right ankle in Real Madrid's 0-0 draw at Real Mallorca on 29 August, and was ruled out for about three weeks.

He missed Portugal's shock 4-4 draw with minnows Cyprus in a Euro 2012 qualifier on Friday and the team's 1-0 loss to Norway on Tuesday. “I feel better and we'll see how it (the injury) develops,” he told reporters in Madrid late on Wednesday. “I'm still not perfect but almost at one hundred percent. I'll return as soon as possible, maybe in two days I can rejoin the squad.” He added that “I believe I can be ready for the match against Ajax” on 15 September, Real's first Champions League group phase match. Internet

Capello confirms he will quit after Euro 2012

LONDON, 9 Sept — England manager Fabio Capello has ruled out the possibility that he will continue in the job after the Euro 2012 tournament, killing off speculation that recent good performances could prolong his stay. The Italian's reputation took a battering after England's dismal World Cup performance, but his stock has bounced back after impressive victories against Bulgaria and Switzerland in Euro qualifiers this month.

The renewed success of his team had raised questions about whether Capello would try and stay on after the European Championships in Poland and Ukraine — but he moved late Wednesday to put an end to such talk. Asked whether he would be leaving after Euro 2012, the 64-year-old responded: “Absolutely. Yes.” “We have to qualify first of course but after that I will be too old — I want to enjoy my life as a pensioner,” he added. Internet

Aston Villa name Houllier as new manager

LONDON, 9 Sept — Former France coach Gerard Houllier was named the new manager of English Premier League side Aston Villa on Wednesday, the club announced. The 63-year-old, who coached Liverpool between 1998 and 2004, has been working as National Coaching Director at the FFF since leaving his last top club, French side Lyon, in 2007.

However, he had been given permission to step down from that position earlier on Wednesday by interim French Football Federation president Fernand Duchaussoy, who also said he would be signing a two year contract.

Tired Tevez unsure he will last to next World Cup

BUENOS AIRES, 9 Sept — Argentinian international striker Carlos Tevez revealed on Wednesday that he could retire from international football before the 2014 World Cup finals in Brazil. The 26-year-old Manchester City star told Argentinian daily Clarín he was unsure of his future commitment to the national side, for whom he scored in the impressive 4-1 friendly victory over world champions Spain on Tuesday.

“The truth is, I don't know whether I will remain in the national side until 2014,” said Tevez, who was part of the side that were humbled 4-0 by Germany in this year's World Cup quarter-finals. “Because while I was able to prepare well for South Africa, I will not be able to do the same for 2014. “I am not really sure whether I will have anything else to give to the national side.” —Internet

Batista gets Argentina job until end of year

BUENOS AIRES, 9 Sept — Interim Argentina coach Sergio Batista will keep the job until the end of the year, a reward for Tuesday's 4-1 victory over World Cup champion Spain. Batista replaced Diego Maradona and opened with a 1-0 win over Ireland last month. He will remain foe an exhibition against Japan and two against Brazil.

Luis Segura, a high-ranking member of the Argentine Football Association, confirmed after Tuesday's victory that Batista will stay on in the job.

He said other candidates will be evaluated at year's end. Others thought to be in the running are Alejandro Sabella of Estudiantes, Miguel Angel Russo of Racing Club and Carlos Bianchi, who is without a club. Internet

Djokovic advances to US Open semi against Federer

NEW YORK, 9 Sept — Blasted by the trickiest winds yet at this year's US Open, Novak Djokovic adjusted his game and blew out French 17th seed Gael Monfils 7-6 (7/2), 6-1, 6-2 to reach the US Open semi-finals.

The Serbian third seed on Wednesday joined Roger Federer, Jimmy Connors, Ivan Lendl and John McEnroe as the only men to reach the US Open

Real Madrid report ‘world record’ revenues

MADRID, 9 Sept — Real Madrid Wednesday announced net profit for the 2009-2010 season jumped 11.5 percent from the previous year on what it said were the highest revenues “of any sports institution in the world.” The big-spending Spanish club reported annual profits of 24 million euros (30.6 million dollars), up from 21.5 million a year earlier. It said gross revenues for the season were 442.3 million euros, up 8.6 percent from the previous year, “an amount that is the highest of any sports institution in the world.” The club said its net debt had fallen 25.1 percent to 244.6 million euros.

Real was listed as the largest revenue-generating football club in the world, ahead of arch-rivals Barcelona and Manchester United of England, in the Football Money League released by the Deloitte business advisory firm in March. Internet

Most penguin populations continue to decline, biologists warn

SCIENCE DAILY, 9 Sept — Penguin biologists from around the world, who are gathered in Boston the week of September 6, warn that ten of the planet's eighteen penguin species have experienced further serious population declines. The effects of climate change, over fishing, chronic oil pollution and predation by introduced mammals are among the major factors cited repeatedly by penguin scientists as contributing to these population drops. Prior to the conference, thirteen of these penguin species were already classified as endangered or threatened. Some penguin species may face extinction in this century.

More than 180 penguin biologists, government officials, conservation advocates, and zoo and aquarium professionals from 22 nations have convened in Boston for the five day International Penguin Conference, which is being hosted this year by the New England Aquarium. The conference is held every three to four years, and this is the first time that it has been held in the Northern Hemisphere.
