Unveil new era by casting votes

Emergence of a peaceful, modern and developed new democratic nation is the aspiration of the entire people. Concerted efforts have been made for ensuring peace and stability of the State, development in all aspects and transition of democratization process during the period of over 20 years.

Throughout the Union, peace and stability prevails. Development infrastructures such as roads, bridges and dams, and education and health infrastructures have been constructed in the entire nation. New factories and workshops of industrial regions and industrial zones are manufacturing various items of personal and household goods with momentum. Human resources are being nurtured and turned out constantly.

Time has come to build new democratic nation. The Constitution has been approved in accord with the democratization process. The multiparty democracy general election will be held on 7 November 2010 in line with the Constitution.

Systematic arrangements are being made to hold the free and fair election. Candidates to the election are actively canvassing for votes. Likewise, eligible voters are ready to cast votes for correctly choosing the candidates who will serve the interest of the State and the people.

The upcoming election will be free, fair, clean and transparent. The votes are to put a tick on the ballot paper for the candidate in the polling booth of the polling station and then fold the ballot paper and put it into the ballot box in the presence of the people. Candidates or their representatives will be present all the time when votes are cast and finally counted.

The voters will cast votes for the candidates who will serve the interests of the State and the people without seeking self-interest. All the people wishing to enjoy fruits of peace, tranquillity, development and democracy will unveil new era in the democracy history of the nation by casting votes at the polling stations.

BBC to apologize for aid-for-weapons reports

LONDON, 4 Nov—The BBC will apologize on Thursday for reports this year which may have given the impression that millions of pounds raised for Ethiopian famine relief by the Band Aid music charity were used by rebel groups to buy weapons, the British state broadcaster said.

Irish singer Bob Geldof complained bitterly about the March reports, which originated from "Assignment" on the public-funded broadcaster's World Service radio programme.

He challenged the BBC to substantiate its stories. At the time the World Service said it stood by its report.

"Since their inception over 26 years ago, Band Aid and Live Aid have been subject to meticulous governance, auditing and independent reviews," Geldof said in a statement on Thursday.

"The BBC's misleading and unfair coverage had the potential to be extremely damaging to public faith, not only in Band Aid, but also other charitable campaigns and people's willingness to donate their cash to disaster funds."

Geldof added that the reports were an "unusual lapse" in the broadcaster's standards, and added that it was BBC journalist Michael Buerk's dispatches from Ethiopia which prompted him to start raising money for famine relief in the first place.

False alarm over package at Glasgow Airport

LONDON, 4 Nov — Parts of Glasgow Airport were evacuated late on Wednesday after a suspicious package was found in the departures security area, but the incident turned out to be a false alarm, police said.

The package was discovered by staff at about 7:55 pm (1955 GMT) and the army bomb disposal unit was called in, a Strathclyde Police spokeswoman said.

Governments tightened aviation security earlier this week after two US-bound bombs sent in air cargo from Yemen were intercepted in Dubai and Britain. Earlier on Wednesday, Greece suspended overseas shipment of mail and packages for 48 hours after dozens of small parcel bombs were sent to foreign governments and embassies this week.

Baghdad bombs death toll reaches 64, minister says

BAGHDAD, 4 Nov—The death toll from a series of bomb blasts in mainly Shi'ite areas of Baghdad on Tuesday has reached 64 with 360 wounded, Iraq's health minister said.

The bombings occurred hours after a memorial service for some of the 52 hostages and police killed in a church raid on Sunday, and as the Iraqi government vowed to improve security for Iraq's Christian minority.

The attacks appeared to demonstrate that a weakened but stubborn insurgency has a greater capacity to carry out large-scale strikes than US and Iraqi officials have acknowledged.

Iraq remains in political limbo almost eight months after an inconclusive election, raising fears Sunni Islamist groups such as al Qaeda might exploit tension to reignite a sectarian war.

"The death toll from Tuesday's terrorist attacks is 64 martyrs and 360 wounded. Most of the wounded received medical treatment and only 86 stayed at hospitals," Health Minister Saleh al-Hasnawi told state television on Wednesday.

An Interior Ministry source said on Tuesday the total killed was 76 and 271 were wounded, while other sources said the toll was at least 40.

Qantas plane lands safely in Singapore after scare

SINGAPORE, 4 Nov — A Qantas Airways A380 landed safely in Singapore on Thursday after running into engine trouble, one of the most serious incidents for the world's largest passenger plane in its three years of commercial flight.

The Airbus A380, which had originated in London and was carrying 459 people, suffered trouble with one of its four engines shortly after it had left the island state en route for Sydney. Australian officials said no one on board was injured. Qantas, which operates six A380s, said it was grounding the aircraft pending a full investigation.

"We will suspend all A380 takeoffs until we are fully confident we have sufficient information about (flight) QF32," Qantas Chief Executive Alan Joyce told reporters in Sydney.

There have been no fatal incidents involving A380s since they were launched in 2005 amid great fanfare as the greenest, quietest — as well as the biggest — jetliner. Earlier this year, one of the planes operated by Qantas burst two tyres when landing in Sydney, and in September 2009 an A380 was forced to turn around in mid-flight and return to Paris.

A380s use Rolls-Royce engines. This particular plane had Trent 900 engines and was built in 2008.

Greek letter bomb attacks put Europe on high alert

ATHENS, 4 Nov—European counter-terrorism officials were on high alert this evening after suspected Greek terrorists unleashed an unprecedented two-day wave of parcel bombs targeting embassies in Athens, international organizations and foreign leaders both in Greece and abroad.

By tonight, at least 11 letter bombs had been detected in the Greek capital, one addressed to Nicolas Sarkozy and eight to the embassies of Bulgaria, Russia, Germany, Switzerland, Mexico, Chile, the Netherlands and Belgium. Greek police said international postal and parcel services would be suspended for two days.

In Berlin, German authorities destroyed a bomb addressed to Chancellor Angela Merkel. The package was sent from Greece two days earlier by UPS delivery and resembled the Athens parcel bombs, according to German interior minister Thomas de Maizière.

Sarkozy, in London for a meeting with David Cameron, said French authorities were working with Greek police.

"The threat is very serious. We are extremely vigilant and I am following it very closely," he told reporters. A further two bombs were destroyed in controlled explosions at the Athens airport — one addressed to the European Union's highest court in Luxembourg and the other to law enforcement agency Europol in the Netherlands. Two mail bombs were sent to Greece's 300-seat parliament building in Syntagma square. In each case the bombs were delivered by courier, according to police. No injuries were reported.—Internet

Newly discovered walls buffered Sphinx from Egypt's sand

CAIRO, 4 Nov — A routine excavation has uncovered ancient walls surrounding the Great Sphinx of Giza, Egypt's Supreme Council of Antiquities (SCA) announced on 2 Nov. The walls were likely built to protect the Sphinx from blowing sand, said SCA Secretary-General Zahi Hawass, who is overseeing the excavation.

During routine digging, SCA researchers found two segments of mud wall on the Giza Plateau, where the pyramids of Giza and the Sphinx stand. Both walls stand just under 3 feet (1 metre). One runs north-south and is 282 feet (86 metres) long, while the other runs east-west and is 151 feet (46 m) long. The walls are part of a larger enclosure previously found north of the Sphinx, according to Hawass. As told in ancient Egyptian texts, King Thutmose IV once went on a hunting trip near the Sphinx. After the trip, he dreamt that the Sphinx wanted him to clear the sand surrounding its body. According to Thutmose, the Sphinx promised that if he restored the statue, he'd become king of Egypt.

So Thutmose had the sand cleared and built a wall to preserve the Sphinx. Until now, researchers thought the wall was only built on the northern side of the Sphinx. The new finding disproves that theory. The researchers also found a third wall to the east of the temple of King Khafre, the builder of the second-largest pyramid in Giza and the likely builder of the Sphinx. According to Hawass, the wall may be part of the settlement that grew up around King Khafre's pyramid after the monarch's death around 2532 BC. In this village, priests and officials oversaw the mortuary cult of the dead king.

Harry Potter blamed for fuelling India owls' demise

LONDON, 4 Nov — Indian Environment Minister Jairam Ramesh has blamed fans of boy wizard Harry Potter for their role in the dwindling number of wild owls. He said that Harry Potter books and films featuring his feathered friend Hedwig are popular in India and had contributed towards the demise of owls. Mr Ramesh said there had been an increase in people wanting to buy them from illegal bird traders. He was speaking to mark the launch of a report on India's owl population. Written by the leading conservation group, Traffic, the report calls for tougher measures to protect owls ahead of Diwali, the Hindu festival of lights, which starts on Friday. Implanted chip 'allows blind people to detect objects'

LONDON, 4 Nov — A man with an inherited form of blindness has been able to identify letters and a clock face using a pioneering implant, researchers say. Miikka Terho, 46, from Finland, was fitted with an experimental chip behind his retina in Germany. Success was also reported in other patients. The chip allows a patient to detect objects with their eyes, unlike a rival approach that uses an external camera.

Details of the work are in the journal Proceedings of the Royal Society B. Professor Eberhart Zrenner, of Germany's University of Tuebingen, and colleagues at private company Retina Implant AG initially tested their sub-retinal chip on 11 people. Some noticed no improvement as their condition was too advanced to benefit from the implant, but a majority were able to pick out bright objects, Prof Zrenner told the BBC.

However, it was only when the chip was placed further behind the retina, in the central macular area in three people, that they achieved the best results. Two of these had lost their vision because of the inherited condition retinitis pigmentosa, or RP, the other because of a related inherited condition called choroideraemia. RP leads to the progressive degeneration of cells in the eye's retina, resulting in night blindness, tunnel vision and then usually permanent blindness. The symptoms can begin from early childhood.

Omega-3 pills fail to work in Alzheimer's patients

CHICAGO, 4 Nov — Omega-3 pills promoted as boosting memory didn't slow mental and physical decline in older patients with Alzheimer's disease, a big disappointment in a multimillion-dollar government-funded study. "We had high hopes that we'd see some efficacy but we did not," said Dr Joseph Quinn, an author of the $10 million study and a researcher at Oregon Health and Science University.

The results with pills containing DHA, an omega-3 fatty acid, highlight "the continued frustration over lack of effective interventions" for the memory-robbing disease, an editorial said, published with the study in Wednesday's Journal of the American Medical Association. DHA occurs naturally in the brain and is found in reduced amounts in people with Alzheimer's disease.

Some smaller, less rigorous studies suggested that mental decline could be slowed or prevented by eating fish, the main dietary source for omega-3 fatty acids, or supplements like fish oil pills that contain fatty acids including DHA. The study used capsules of DHA oil derived from algae. Omega-3 fatty acids in fish or supplements have been shown to help protect against heart disease and are being studied for possible effects on a range of other illnesses including cancer and depression. — Internet

Deep Impact spacecraft closing in on Comet Hartley 2

HOUSTON, 4 Nov — After five years as a lonely sentinel in space, an American spacecraft that has already crossed paths with one small comet is about to visit another icy wanderer: Comet Hartley 2. The spacecraft in question is Deep Impact, a NASA probe launched in 2005 that visited the Comet Tempel 1 on 4 July of that year and smacked the comet with an impactor vehicle to kick up material and see what it was made of.

Astronomers used telescopes in space and on Earth to watch the Deep Impact's comet collision, and now they're ramping up again for the spacecraft's flyby of Comet Hartley 2. The comet flyby occurs on Thursday (Nov. 4) at about 10:01 am EDT (1401 GMT). But Deep Impact's new comet rendezvous — which NASA calls EPOXI — won't be noticeable to Earth-based observers when the spacecraft makes its closest approach to Hartley 2. Unlike in 2005, when Deep Impact's impactor raised a cloud of dust from the nucleus of Tempel 1, no such audacious maneuver is planned during its flyby of Comet Hartley 2. As a result, ground based observers will see no changes in the appearance of the comet and besides, the spacecraft itself is far too small to be seen using ground based telescopes.

Paris cafe awning saves falling baby

PARIS , 4 Nov — A baby girl had an amazing escape after she fell from a seventh-floor apartment in Paris and bounced off a cafe awning into the arms of a passerby. Le Parisien newspaper praised the quick reflexes of the man who was alerted to the drama by his young son to the drama.

The son spotted the 18-month-old baby, who was playing alone with her young sisters, just before she fell.

As luck would have it, the hero was also a doctor and rapidly checked the girl to establish she was not injured before handing her on to paramedics.

She was taken to the hospital for observation. The child’s parents were being questioned by police about why the children were left alone momentarily to play in the apartment.

Teen shot dead in Sydney

SYDNEY , 4 Nov — Sydney police are looking for a group of males after a teenager was shot dead in the city’s west this morning. An emergency call just before 5am alerted police and paramedics to the incident at Greenfield Park.

The caller reported hearing a number of shots fired. On arriving they found a boy badly wounded and, despite attempts to revive him, he died at the scene.

Fairfield police acting Commander Murray Johnston says a group of males had entered the home before the shooting.

“Occupants of a residence in Smithfield Road, Greenfield Park answered a knock at the door,” he said.

“They were confronted by three to four males where a number of words were exchanged. “After that a number of shots were fired and a 17-year-old resident of the premises sustained fatal wounds.”

Police have closed streets in the vicinity as they conduct investigations.

‘Romanian’ girl, ten, gives birth to baby

JEREZDELA FRONTERA, 4 Nov — A 10-year-old girl has given birth in southern Spain, with authorities now evaluating whether to let her and her family retain custody of the baby. The baby was born last week in the city of Jerez de la Frontera, said Micaela Navarro, the Andalusia region’s social affairs minister.

Ms Navarro told reporters the father of the baby is also a minor, and both the mother and the baby were in good health. Her department declined to give further details, such as the sex of baby. Spanish newspapers said the mother is of Romanian origin. The daily Diario de Jerez quoted medical staffers who treated the girl as saying they were told by her mother that giving birth at such a young age is common in their country.

Medical experts warn that because young girls are still growing themselves, they are at higher risk during pregnancy. Studies have shown that teenage girls are more likely to give birth to premature babies and their infants have a higher chance of dying by age one.

We shall vote

(Enjoying Fundamental Rights of Citizen)

Myint Maung (Phil. Q)

Elections will take place on a grand scale in our Union of Myanmar soon. It will go down in the annals of Myanmar history. The previous elections were held in various forms, but there will be no other election like the one that will take place in November this year.

Our citizens have understood that the Fundamental Rights of Citizen will be fully practiced in the forthcoming elections. Utilizing effectively such Fundamental Rights of Citizen they have, citizens who are eligible to vote are going to choose candidates who can promote the interest of the people. It is a practice of enjoying the right to elect the representatives.

Aiming to serve the interest of the people, some voter citizens are going to enjoy the right to stand for the election by nominating themselves as candidates.

So I would like to say that the forthcoming elections as well as cause for holding the elections is blessed with a significant characteristic. What sort of characteristic does it possess?

I remembered that the upcoming elections was the outcome of the State Constitution overwhelmingly approved by the entire people in 2008 as well as the 2008 Constitution was that of the National Convention. Delegates to NC were chosen as people's representatives from all walks of life to take part in discussions. After holding comprehensive discussions among the representatives in the National Convention, basic principles were laid down for the Constitution. Well-experienced intellectuals and intelligentsia who represent all walks of life drafted the State Constitution that is the most suitable for the nation's current political situation in compliance with the principles.

Our vote is crucial to taking first step on the right course toward democratization. In practising democracy really, rather than talking about it, we have to exercise correctly our Fundamental Rights of the Citizen in hopes of placing right persons in right places. We strongly oppose acts of disturbing the people from exercising voting right because such acts are preventing the people from embracing the fundamental rights of the citizen. So we all eligible voters are to go to polling stations on 7 November and cast votes enthusiastically.

The draft of the Constitution was approved with the majority votes of the people in the referendum. Thus the elections have taken shape in accord with the people's desire. Making analysis on emergence of upcoming elections and interrelationship between its cause and effect, participation of the people was obvious in every stage of the whole process.

I would like to strongly say a point that it was a process implemented by the people themselves for the public interest in accord with the desire of the great majority of the people. It was a characteristic that must be seen as a democratic practice that had been done meeting essence and high standards. It was practised in accord with the definition of Democracy, of the people, by the people, for the people.

Scholars said democracy is a system, in other words, is a practice. We, citizens of the Union of Myanmar, dutifully practised the democracy because we did it without losing ourselves in the name of democracy and the present Tatmadaw government guided us to be able to practise the democracy correctly under its visionary leadership. There are Civil Responsibilities for the public voters to discharge as the citizens of a democracy. I would like to present them in brief.

As social behaviours,

- voting,
- serve on juries,
- tolerant of political and cultural differences,
- participate in creating and evaluating public policy,
- As code of ethics,
- to be just and lawful,
- to be civic-minded

(In exercising the individual own right and freedom, taking consideration for the interest of the whole society.)

Out of responsibilities, we are going to carry out the responsibility of voting for choosing reliable candidates in the forthcoming elections.

The upcoming elections are the first step for shaping the nation into democratic one. According to the experiences we encountered in our life,

(See page 9)

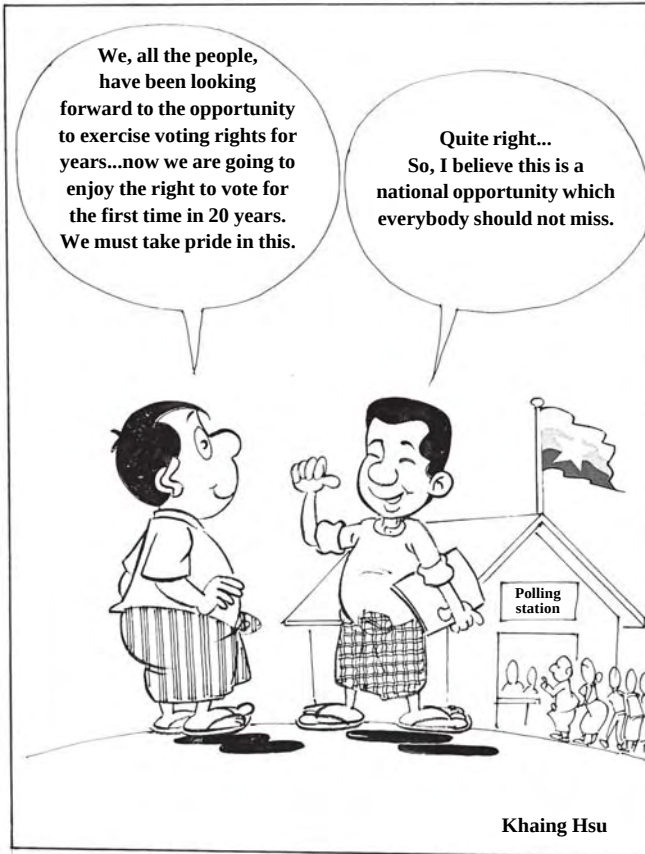

The draft of the Constitution was approved with the majority votes of the people in the referendum. Thus the elections have taken shape in accord with the people's desire. Making analysis on emergence of upcoming elections and interrelationship between its cause and effect, participation of the people was obvious in every stage of the whole process.

We shall vote

we all have understood to what extent the first step is important.

Our vote is crucial to taking first step on the right course toward democratization. In practising democracy really, rather than talking about it, we have to exercise correctly our Fundamental Rights of the Citizen in hopes of placing right persons in right places. We strongly oppose acts of disturbing the people from exercising voting right because such acts are preventing the people from embracing the fundamental rights of the citizen. So we all eligible voters are to go to polling stations on 7 November and cast votes enthusiastically.

Myanmar-sponsored draft resolution on nuclear disarmament adopted at the First Committee of the UNGA

NAY PYI TAW, 4 Nov—Myanmar headed to table a draft resolution on nuclear disarmament at the United Nations General Assembly since 1995, Golden Jubilee Anniversary of the United Nations. The resolution could be adopted yearly through voting system.

Myanmar-sponsored draft resolution on nuclear disarmament was adopted at the First Committee of the United Nations General Assembly on 28 October

At the First Committee of the current 65th Session of the United Nations General Assembly, the draft resolution which has 37 co-sponsors was adopted with 107 votes in favour, 44 against and 20 abstentions.

Operative paragraph (15) of the draft resolution calls for early commencement of negotiations on treaty banning the production of fissile materials for nuclear weapons. Initially, nineteen members of the European Union decided to vote against this paragraph but later changed their stance and voted in favour. Therefore, the said paragraph was adopted with 154 votes in favour, 3 against and 8 abstentions.

It was a significant development for the main sponsor Myanmar. Therefore, 19 members of European Union voted in favour of early fissile materials contained in the said resolution.—MNA

University of Computer Studies (Pakokku).

In building up a modern, developed nation, development of human resources plays an essential role. In developing human resources, successful completion of basic education of every citizen is the first priority. To be able to turn out highly-qualified intellectuals and intelligentsia, the government has laid down international-standard 30-year National Education Promotion Programme in line with political, economic and social basics of the future nation. In doing so, the government is striving for the development of basic and higher education sectors step by step.

Looking back to the country's education history, ordinary people in the age of Myanmar Kings had to learn education at monastic

Instructions to be followed in voting process

1. Try to know your serial number of ballot list in order to cast vote without any delay.
2. Voting process can be quick by giving your serial number of ballot list to the ballot list inspector.
3. Put a tick in the box next to the candidate and the symbol you want to choose on your ballot paper.
4. Do not sketch or write anything on your ballot paper, except putting a tick.
5. Do not sketch anything impossible to decide whether it is a tick or cross on your ballot paper.
6. Make sure that your ballot paper is not torn.
7. Put the ballot paper you have put a tick on into the ballot box concerned.

Notable points to avert having votes cancelled

Election Rule 66 (c) states that the following types of ballot papers shall be cancelled.

- (1) A ballot paper that does not have the seal of the commission
- (2) A ballot paper that does not have the signature of the returning officer
- (3) A ballot paper with more than one tick to favour more than one candidate
- (4) A ballot paper with no tick
- (5) A ballot paper with an unclear tick
- (6) A ballot paper the returning officer decides to be a fake one
- (7) A ballot paper with a mark designed to hint
- (8) A torn-up ballot paper

To amplify the provisions on cancelled votes for the knowledge of voters,

- (1) A voter must put a tick in the square box shown against the name of the candidate he favours.
- (2) If a voter puts at least two ticks or crosses in square boxes shown against candidates, the ballot paper is cancelled.
- (3) A vote with no tick is cancelled.
- (4) If a ballot paper carries only one mark in a box, but the mark is not clear enough to decide whether it is a tick or cross, it is cancelled.
- (5) However, if a vote is cast with one tick to favour only one candidate, it can be deemed to be a firm vote even if the tick is in the square box, or it passes through the line of the square box, or it is put diagonally or horizontally, or it has a bent line at its end or not.

To decide whether a ballot paper is valid or invalid is up to the returning officer. Candidates to hluttaws, their election representatives, and the representatives of a polling station are allowed to check the cancelled votes. The reason why a vote is cancelled will be put on record with the designated form.

Fixing cargo security system would cost billions

LONDON, 4 Nov — The technology exists to safeguard the world's air transport system against threats like the Yemen-based mail bombs, but the cost may be too high to be practical.

Analysts warn that the cost of screening every piece of air cargo in a bid to prevent terrorists from downing airliners might bankrupt international shipping companies, hobble already weakened airlines and still not provide full protection.

"In a worst case, it would stop world trade," said James Halstead, a longtime consultant with the Aviation Economics firm. "UPS and FedEx would probably go bust. We'd have a full-disaster scenario." The cost of the extra effort, he said, "would be almost too much to consider."

Many countries already conduct extensive checks of cargo, Halstead said. But the increasingly sophisticated technology used by terrorist groups makes further refinements extremely difficult.

NEW YORK, 4 Nov—A fan of "Law & Order: Criminal Intent" relentlessly harassed one of the television show's stars, approaching her on filming locations and composing creepy missives about her on the Internet, a federal prosecutor said on Tuesday in opening statements at his trial.

Charles Nagel of Philadelphia is charged with interstate stalking, stemming from his "obsession" with actress Kathryn Erbe, Assistant US Attorney Allon Lifshitz told jurors in federal court in Brooklyn.

When Erbe tried to ignore Nagel, he grew angry and tried to confront her, the prosecutor said.

Defence attorney Robert Datner called his client "an interesting character" who meant no harm.

Nagel, who has pleaded not guilty, merely "went to a public place seeking autographs and photographs," the lawyer said.

Erbe, 44, has starred for nine seasons as Detective Alexandra Eames on the crime series.

Tomas seen regaining power, pose threat to Haiti

KINGSTOWN, 4 Nov — No longer a hurricane, Tropical Storm Tomas weakened over the Caribbean on Monday, but forecasters warned it was likely to regain power and threaten Haiti's crowded quake refugee camps by the weekend.

Study finds Hemophilia drug can damage heart

BOSTON, 4 Nov — Using high doses of Novo Nordisk's anti-clotting medicine to treat dangerous bleeding in non-hemophiliacs may raise the risk of heart attack or related complications, researchers said on Wednesday. The drug, NovoSeven, is a genetically engineered version of factor VII, a key protein missing in some people with the bleeding disease hemophilia.

Some doctors prescribe the drug in "off-label" use to stop unwanted bleeding associated with stroke, trauma, surgery, transplantation and other medical conditions. Doctors may prescribe any approved drug for any reason they want to. But this drug may not be worth the risk, said Dr Marcel Levi of the University of Amsterdam and colleagues at Novo Nordisk. Their analysis of 35 studies found that the overall likelihood that an artery would clog was 68 percent higher with NovoSeven therapy compared to a placebo. The risk of heart attack, angina or related complication more than doubled, the researchers reported.—MNA/Reuters
