Stay away from drugs for your health and happiness

Worldwide, abuse of opium, heroine, opium oil and marijuana is on the increase. Stimulant tablets produced from chemicals are mushrooming across the globe. It is a grave threat to any nation or region, rich or poor.

Abuse of narcotics is mostly common among the youth. As drugs are associated with abusers, producers and drug pushers, it can cause social and economic losses. As the image of its community can be tarnished, every nation and region is attaching great importance to rooting out narcotic drugs.

Myanmar is throwing itself into carrying out drug elimination tasks as a national duty. The 15-year drug elimination plan has been laid down as a project from 1999 to 2014 and is being carried out with might and main. The drug eradication tasks are picking up thanks to the concerted efforts of the government and the people. The project tasks are making headway.

In December, 2010, altogether 298 drug cases could be exposed. Legal action was taken against over 400 people involved in drug-related cases.

Meanwhile, the poppy plantations from the regions where there is a tradition of growing poppy are being destroyed in cooperation with the local people. In the 2010-2011 poppy cultivation season, more than 10,000 acres of poppy plantations were destroyed nationwide.

Various kinds of drugs and stimulants still constitute a threat to mankind and the social environment. So, the government side by side with the people is steadfastly carrying out drug elimination tasks in order to create a drug-free society where every member of the public can enjoy health and happiness.

Bomb kills three in Pakistan

PESHAWAR, 22 Jan—Three people including two paramilitary soldiers were killed in a roadside bomb blast in northwest Pakistan's tribal District of Orakzai on Saturday, officials said.

An improvised explosive device planted by militants went off in the town of Ibrahimzai during a routine patrol by paramilitary soldiers, a security official said.

"Two soldiers and one civilian were killed in the blast," Abdul Qadir, a local administration official, said.

Seven other people — one soldier and six civilians — were wounded in the explosion near the bazaar in Ibrahimzai, he said.

A military official in the provincial capital Peshawar confirmed the incident, saying the wounded had been taken to the local hospital.

Orakzai is one of the most lawless areas in Pakistan's northwest tribal region, which is made up of seven rugged districts near the Afghan border.

Washington has branded the semi-autonomous tribal belt as the epicentre of Al-Qaeda and its Taliban allies fighting in Afghanistan.

Families reject Blair apology over Iraq dead

LONDON, 22 Jan—Former Prime Minister Tony Blair offered an emotional apology for the deaths of soldiers and civilians in Iraq, as he testified Friday to Britain's inquiry into the war.

The 57-year-old Blair, making a second appearance before the panel to clarify evidence he gave to the same panel a year ago, also urged Western leaders to confront a growing threat posed by Iran.

Addressing the five-member panel scrutinizing Britain's role in the unpopular war, Blair acknowledged that in phone calls and messages in 2002 — months before Parliament approved Britain's role in the conflict — he reassured US President George W Bush and told him: "You can count on us."

Alongside his evidence, the inquiry published a previously unseen 2002 memo from Blair to his chief of staff, in which the leader called for a "gung-ho" approach toward Saddam Hussein's regime. Critics of the war hope the inquiry will conclude Blair had been determined to back the US invasion, whether or not it was supported by the public, Parliament or legal opinion.

Following his initial hearing, Blair was sharply criticized for suggesting he had no regrets over the decision to join the 2003 US-led invasion. "That was taken as my meaning that I had no regrets about the loss of life," Blair said Friday, his voice faltering with apparent emotion.—Internet

MELBOURNE, 22 Jan—Record floods described as a giant "inland sea" were moving to inundate several communities in southeast Australia, as officials warned the waters could linger for days.

The floods, which have hit 75 towns across Victoria state and affected 1,770 properties, are estimated to cover an area 90 kilometres (56 miles) long and 40 kilometres wide, ABC radio reported on Saturday. "We know that this is the most significant flooding in the north west of Victoria since records began about 130 years ago," a spokeswoman for the State Emergency Service said.—Internet

520-day flight simulation nears 'landing' on Mars

MOSCOW, 22 Jan—After 233 days in a locked steel capsule, six researchers on a 520-day mock flight to Mars are all feeling strong and ready to “land” on the Red Planet, the mission director said Friday.

The all-male crew of three Russians, a Chinese, a Frenchman and an Italian-Colombian has been inside windowless capsules at a Moscow research centre since June. Their mission aims to help real space crews in the future cope with the confinement and stress of interplanetary travel.

The researchers communicate with the outside world via emails and video messages — occasionally delayed to give them the feel of being farther than a few yards (metres) away from mission control.

The crew members eat canned food similar to that eaten on the International Space Station and shower only once a week.

None of the men has considered abandoning the mission, although they are free to walk out at any time, mission director and former cosmonaut Boris Morukov told reporters on Friday.

“They are still motivated, but there is a certain fatigue, which is natural,” he said.

The six men are due to “land” on Mars on 12 Feb and spend two days researching the planet. They then begin the monthslong return flight to Earth, expected to be the most challenging part of the mission.

NEW ORLEANS, 22 Jan—Forensic testing of a key piece of evidence in the Gulf oil spill investigation could take twice as long as expected.

An investigator with the US Chemical Safety Board — one of the groups monitoring the testing — said Friday his agency has been advised the examination may not finish until 20 March.

The Interior Department had said testing of the 300-ton blowout preventer that failed to stop oil from spewing into the Gulf of Mexico following last year's rig explosion would take two months once it started 16 Nov.

That timeframe passed on Sunday. The device, raised from the seafloor 4 Sept, sat at a NASA facility in New Orleans for two months before testing started.

A federal investigative team overseeing the testing isn't commenting.—Internet iPad 2 won't have 2048 by 1536 resolution but iPad three might

NEW YORK, 22 Jan—It's unlikely the rumored iPad 2 tablet will have a screen resolution of 2048 by 1536 pixels—four times that of the current 1024-by-768 iPad. But future iPads might, according to research firm IDC.

Citing sources from component manufacturers, Taiwanese trade publication Digitimes reported Thursday that Apple will boost the iPad 2's resolution to “widen the company's technology gap with its competitors.” Apple will begin mass production of the iPad 2 by the end of February, the report stated.

But IDC research manager Tom Mainelli believes the 2048 by 1536 prediction is premature.

“I think the Digitimes story probably got the resolution right, but the iPad version wrong,” Mainelli told PCWorld via email. “Our sources say Apple has requested that manufacturers begin work on displays with that resolution for the iPad 3.”—Internet

Insider Software launches WEBSIWYG

WASHINGTON, 22 Jan—Insider Software, the maker of FontAgent Pro font management software, has announced the debut of WEBSIWYG, a Web-based font-catalog service that lets users view and request fonts on networked FontAgent Pro Servers.

The new service lets FontAgent Pro Server customers preview all fonts available on their organization's font servers without requiring them to first install the font files on their client computers. With WEBSIWYG (pronounced web-zee-wig), authorized users can log into FontAgent Pro Server 4 to see what fonts are available, filter search results, and view expanded previews of the fonts they're interested in.

By offering users the ability to preview fonts in any Web browser, administrators allow them to explore the enterprise font server the same way they explore font vendor Websites. Health Tip: Protect against peanut reactions

If your child is allergic to peanuts or nuts, strict precautions can help prevent a life-threatening reaction.

The Nemours Foundation offers these suggestions:

- * Ban nuts from your home, or take precautions to avoid cross-contamination of foods.
- * Avoid serving your child meals that you didn't make, or meals for which you haven't seen a complete ingredient list.
- * Talk to all food service people in a restaurant about the nut allergy. Before you eat, make sure they're confident they can avoid cross-contamination.
- * Prepare your child's snacks and meals for school, and for outings with friends.
- * Have the child or caregiver carry an epinephrine pen. Prepare an action plan, in the event of anaphylaxis, for your child's teachers, principal or day-care workers.—Internet

HEPA filter may improve air near wood-burning stoves

NEW YORK, 22 Jan—HEPA filters may help lower the risk of cardiovascular disease caused by exposure to indoor air pollution, a new study suggests.

Canadian researchers looked at 45 adults from 25 homes in a small community where wood-burning stoves were the main sources of pollution. HEPA (high-efficiency particle air) filters were placed in each home's main activity room and in each participant's bedroom.

The HEPA filter was operated normally during one seven-day period and without the internal filters during another seven-day period. The participants did not know when the filters were being operated normally, the study authors noted.

Air sampling devices were installed in the homes, and the participants were asked to record their activities, locations and proximity to pollution sources every hour. Blood and urine samples were collected from the participants at the end of each seven-day period.

The researchers found that the HEPA filters reduced levels of airborne particulate matter, resulting in improved blood vessel health and reductions in blood markers associated with an increased risk of cardiovascular disease.

The study was published online 21 Jan ahead of print in the American Journal of Respiratory and Critical Care Medicine.

"HEPA filters are a potentially useful intervention since they are relatively inexpensive to purchase and operate and can effectively remove tiny particles that can be inhaled, to improve air quality inside homes where the majority of time is spent," study author Ryan Allen, an assistant professor at Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, British Columbia, said in a news release from the American Thoracic Society.—Internet

Another case was found at a pig farm in Pohang, about 400 km southeast of Seoul. Seven cities and provinces have been hit by the disease in the country's worst outbreak of FMD.

British retail sales suffer slump due to snow

LONDON, 22 Jan—Retail sales in Britain tumbled in December by a record amount, official data showed Friday, as shoppers avoided the high street and companies struggled to deliver online sales due to heavy snow.

Sales dived 0.8 percent in December from November, despite the run-up to the crucial Christmas trading period.

Retail sales were also flat in December compared with 12 months earlier, the Office for National Statistics (ONS) said. That was the weakest 12-month performance since January 2010. Food stores witnessed a record 3.4-percent plunge in sales last month compared with December 2009, the ONS added.

"One factor to blame was that December 2010 was the coldest December in 100 years," said ONS statistician Kate Davies. "Another factor was a 5.0-percent rise (year-on-year) in prices of goods sold at food stores."—Internet

Russia forecasts grain harvest up to 85 mln tons

MOSCOW, 22 Jan—Russia could harvest 80-85 million tons of grain in 2011, First Deputy Prime Minister Viktor Zubkov said Friday.

Zubkov visited the southern Krasnodar Region, where Russia's best grain areas were located, Interfax news agency reported.

According to Zubkov, the areas under crops should increase by 25-30 percent this year.

"We are increasing the spring crop area because we did not sow enough winter crops due to the temperature," Zubkov said, adding that the government's embargo on grain exports would stay in force as decided earlier. The government will supply farmers from a grain intervention fund starting February, lend farmers 150 billion rubles (about 5 billion US dollars), and curb prices for mineral fertilizers and fuel.

In 2010, Russia suffered a 37-percent drop in crops, to 60.9 million tons, because of a summer drought that destroyed 13.3 million hectares of grain or 30 percent of the area under crop in 43 regions of the country.

Euro hits two-month high on less concerns about debt crisis

NEW YORK, 22 Jan—The euro hit a two-month high above 1.36 dollars in late New York trading on Friday and its break of important technical levels suggested more gains to come as concerns about the eurozone debt crisis started to ease.

This week, meetings have been held to assure some investors that a plan to counter Europe's debt crisis would be completed soon. And on Friday, a closely followed survey of German business confidence rose to its highest level in two decades, which also boosted confidence in the euro.

The dollar was broadly lower Friday as stocks were driven higher by strong earnings from General Electric Co. The safe-haven dollar tends to drop when assets such as stocks and commodities rise.

Japan culls 10,000 chickens to contain bird flu

TOKYO, 22 Jan—Japan has begun slaughtering some 10,000 chickens at a poultry farm in western Miyazaki prefecture in a bid to contain an outbreak of bird flu, according to the local government.

Officials in the prefecture, 900 kilometres (560 miles) southwest of Tokyo, said 36 chickens were found dead on Friday at the poultry farm.

Preliminary tests confirmed that six of the birds had died of the H5 subtype of the avian flu virus, the officials said.

In an effort to prevent a larger outbreak, the local government decided to slaughter all the chickens at the farm while setting up 20 checkpoints for disinfection and banned any movement of chickens within 10 kilometres.

It was the first bird flu outbreak since 2007 in Miyazaki, where a foot-and-mouth outbreak also forced the slaughter of almost 300,000 farm animals last year.

In Tokyo, Prime Minister Naoto Kan set up a task force Saturday morning to "promptly" introduce necessary measures to contain the bird flu outbreak, officials said.

In order to reach desired goal, BIMSTEC need...

the early conclusion of the BIMSTEC FTA will bring us more trade and investment.

Connectivity is another important element of the socio-economic development of our region. Therefore, we need to work together for the implementation of the BIMSTEC Transport Infrastructure and Logistics Study (BTLS) and to harness its potential so that the benefits are spread to each corner of the region.

doing so, we will become less dependent on imported oil. We also need to promote more cooperation among BIMSTEC countries to promote government and private investment in natural gas infrastructure.

We are gathered here while human tragedies are affecting almost every corner of the world due to natural disasters. With natural disasters, we are witnessing our development efforts being threatened. Although we have agreed to set up BIMSTEC Centre for Weather and Climate to promote regional cooperation on disaster risk reduction and management among our countries,

Poverty is an issue which our group is tackling on daily basis. We have focused poverty alleviation in the context of ensuring food security in our region. While recognizing poverty as multidimensional and complex issue, we must work together in drafting the Poverty Plan of Action (PPA). In doing so, BIMSTEC Ministerial Meeting on Poverty Alleviation can be convened in Nepal in the near future.

Since founding of our grouping in 1997, we have witnessed our grouping being evolved into an important framework for regional cooperation reflecting the political will of the seven member countries. Regular interactions at various levels have taken place and two Summits, twelve Ministerial meetings and fifteen Senior Officials' Meetings have been held so far. In order to keep up and sustain the momentum of our grouping, there is an urgent need for early establishment of the Permanent Secretariat.

A year and a half ago, Myanmar assumed the BIMSTEC Chairmanship. Under our Chairmanship, the member states were tasked with finding an amicable solution to the establishment of BIMSTEC Permanent Secretariat. It is learnt that there were long and arduous negotiations among member countries. Myanmar commends the efforts made by them and appreciates the constructive discussion, understanding and flexibility demonstrated in negotiations. There still remains much to be done. The group needs to move forward with further detailed discussions for the actual realization of the Secretariat. The emergence of the BIMSTEC Permanent Secretariat will be followed by the appointment of an Executive Director and we look forward to working closely with the new Executive Director.

The Prime Minister in conclusion said that he hoped the delegates would achieve success in their deliberations and enjoy the warm hospitality of Myanmar. He then posed for documentary photos together with Foreign Affairs Ministers of BIMSTEC member countries.—MNA

There still remains much to be done. The group needs to move forward with further detailed discussions for the actual realization of the Secretariat.

One such benefit is the contribution towards promotion of tourism sector. Tourism, as you are all aware, is a lucrative business that is beneficial in terms of income generation, employment generation, boosting local economy, boosting improved transport system, to name a few. It is also the industry that is already established in each of our countries. Furthermore, it is also a sector that BIMSTEC is promoting for development. In this connection, Myanmar would like to suggest exploring the idea of devising joint tour programmes involving all BIMSTEC countries. These tour programmes will aim not only to promote tourism industry itself but also can promote social and cultural aspects of our respective countries. Myanmar views that BIMSTEC countries can work together to promote BIMSTEC's cultural, national heritage, eco or nature tours. Myanmar would propose that the Group should look into such possibility for the future undertaking.

Energy security is one of the pressing issues which our grouping is highly aware of and trying to overcome. We highly appreciate the Ministers responsible for energy for the establishment of BIMSTEC Energy Centre. Our sincere appreciation goes to the Government of India for hosting the BIMSTEC Energy Centre. After establishing the BIMSTEC Energy Centre, we must work together to promote utilization of natural gas as clean energy for the region. In more efforts are still needed to obtain our goal.

We have signed the BIMSTEC Convention on Cooperation in Combating International Terrorism, Transnational Organized Crime and Illicit Drug Trafficking during the 12th BIMSTEC Ministerial Meeting in Nay Pyi Taw. Signing of the convention reflected the collective cooperation and determination of our member countries to combat the menace posed by terrorism, organized crime and trafficking.

Our Group should not be complacent with just signing of conventions and agreements among us. Being able to sign the agreements is a beginning in the right direction. It is an initial step to what we want to achieve. Thus, in order to reach our desired goals, Myanmar urges that based on shared interest, we need to move forward to the vigorous implementation stage with appropriate and effective action plans.

The emergence of the BIMSTEC Permanent Secretariat will be followed by the appointment of an Executive Director and we look forward to working closely with the new Executive Director.

Unemployment drops slightly in Latin America and Caribbean Region

SANTIAGO, 22 Jan—Unemployment in Latin America and the Caribbean Region fell by 0.6 percent to 7.5 percent in 2010, according to a joint report issued Friday by the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean (ECLAC) and the International Labour Organization (ILO).

Thanks to a 6-percent economic growth rate last year, unemployment is expected to fall further by 0.2-0.4 percent this year, the report said.

However, the employment situation in the region is still quite uneven, which would hurt job growth in the long run, it said.

ECLAC executive secretary Alicia Barcena and the ILO’s director for the region Jean Maninat said countries in the region should strengthen their macroeconomic policies and improve political coordination at regional and global levels. The report also noted regional challenges in transforming development modes with a view to achieving sustainable economic growth.—Xinhua

Inflation worries mean an uncertain 2011 for British workers and businesses

LONDON, 22 Jan—Inflation in Britain hit 3.7 percent for December, according to government statistics, a rise of 0.4 percent on November, giving rise to complex and sometimes contradictory fears for businesses and for workers.

New highs in commodity prices, with oil pushing at the 100 US dollars a barrel mark and foodstuffs suffering inflation across the globe, are making their effect felt with higher prices on British high streets. 4 January also saw Value Added Tax (VAT), a sales tax on many goods and some services, raised from 17.5 percent to 20 percent as part of the coalition government’s tactics to reduce its near record public spending deficit of 149 billion pounds (about 238 billion US dollars) for 2010/11. This will push inflation figures upwards even more over the next 12 months as the rise works its way through the figures.

Inflation in Britain is higher than in other comparative parts of the world. In the eurozone, for instance, inflation was pushed up to 2.2 percent in December, above its 2 percent target but still not close to the British levels.

A major tool for controlling inflation is the interest rate set by Britain’s central bank, the Bank of England (BOE), and each month, the BOE’s Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) meets to fix interest rates, which have been held at a record low of 0.5 percent since March 2009, in a continued attempt to boost the economy.—Xinhua

Facebook raises $1.5 billion, valued at $50 billion

The logo of social networking website “Facebook” is displayed on a computer screen. Facebook announced on Friday that it had raised $1.5 billion in a private share offering that valued the social network at approximately $50 billion.—INTERNET

SAN FRANCISCO, 22 Jan—Facebook announced Friday that it had raised $1.5 billion from investors in a private share offering that valued the booming social network at approximately $50 billion.

“Our business continues to perform well, and we are pleased to be able to bolster our cash position with this new financing,” Facebook chief financial officer David Ebersman said in a statement.

“With this investment completed, we now have greater financial flexibility to explore whatever opportunities lie ahead.”

Facebook said US investment bank Goldman Sachs completed an oversubscribed offering to its non-US clients in a fund that invested $1 billion in Facebook Class A common stock.

Russia’s Digital Sky Technologies, The Goldman Sachs Group, Inc, and funds managed by Goldman Sachs meanwhile invested $500 million in Facebook Class A common stock at the same $50 billion valuation.

Facebook also said it expected to surpass the ceiling of 500 shareholders sometime this year and would start filing public financial reports no later than 30 April, 2012.

US Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) rules require firms with 500 or more shareholders of record in a given type of stock to publicly disclose certain financial information. Facebook, the world’s top social network with nearly 600 million members, said it had “no immediate plans” for the newly raised funds, indicating it “will continue investing to build and expand its operations.”—Internet

US banks show recovery in 2010

NEW YORK, 22 Jan—Business bounced back at the major US banks in 2010, with most showing improved earnings, but some of the largest firms faced lingering symptoms of the crisis and faced new curbs on lucrative business. Quarterly earnings season got under way this past week with most banks serving Wall Street and Main Street showing better health, but with legislation and a new financial reality weighing on a few.

“The banks are getting healthier but are having trouble increasing revenue,” said Gregori Volokhine, at Meeschaert Capital Markets, pointing to the end of some profitable business that sustained banks during the boom years. While a rosier credit market allowed firms to put rainy-day savings back to work, curbs on own-account trading and the end of the bond market boom made growth difficult.—Internet

Pill slows spread of skin cancer in half of cases

LONDON, 22 Jan — A new drug for skin cancer can slow the spread of the disease in half of patients, thereby extending their lives, a study says. A trial of 680 patients at the Royal Marsden Hospital, London tested a drug that attacks a genetic mutation found in half of all skin cancer cases. The drug was effective on patients with advanced malignant melanoma. The study has been welcomed by Cancer Research UK, but not yet published for review by other cancer specialists.

Dr Lesley Walker from Cancer Research UK, said she hoped that the drug would become available to patients quickly: "There are very few options for patients with advanced melanoma, so these results are really encouraging. The drug is not yet licensed and unavailable to patients not on a clinical trial, but we hope that these results will change this situation very rapidly."

Malignant melanoma is now the second most common cancer in young adults — aged 15-34 — in the UK. Rates of melanoma are rising faster than any other common cancer.

The cancer is treatable if caught early, but survival rates are low once the cancer spreads. The new drug targets a specific faulty gene — the mutated BRAF protein. This is present in around half of all melanoma cases.

Man wearing Obama mask robs Austrian bank

A man who robs banks wearing a rubber mask of US President Barack Obama has struck again, Austrian police said Friday.

The disguised thief robbed a bank in the town of Handenberg in Upper Austria just before the bank closed at 6:00 pm (1700 GMT), police said in statement.

Police believe the same man, disguised by his Obama mask, has been carrying out such bank raids for the past two years.

He threatened the bank's employee with a gun, shouting: "This is a hold-up. Give me the money."

The robber — who apparently spoke with a local dialect — initially fled by foot with the money in a black shoulder bag.

Witnesses said they then sped off in a dark car with a Salzburg region number plate.

No one was hurt during the hold-up, police said.

The statement did not say how much money the robber made off with, but the daily Kronenzeitung, in its online edition, put the amount at 10,000 euros (13,500 dollars).

S Korean accused of cooking up phone claim

A South Korean has been arrested for allegedly cooking his mobile phone in a microwave and then claiming damages from the manufacturer Samsung Electronics, police said Friday. The 28-year-old identified only as Lee is accused of accepting compensation of five million won ($4,500) from the firm after claiming his phone had exploded while being charged.

But the National Institute of Scientific Investigation concluded the phone was "artificially modified" due to exposure to electromagnetic waves in a microwave, police said in a statement. Lee staged about 50 one-man protests in front of Samsung Electronics' headquarters and at Incheon International Airport before receiving compensation.

Man United 5 Birmingham 0: Another Berbatov Hat-trick the Highlight for Reds

ManU, 22 Jan—A third hat-trick of this increasingly prolific season for Dimitar Berbatov continued Manchester United's unbeaten streak in a victory which hardly required the league leaders to break sweat.

The Bulgarian, whose 18 goals this season now include a three against Liverpool and five against Blackburn, set United on their way to a 22nd consecutive unbeaten league game this season - 27 dating back to last - after two minutes. He headed in from close range after John O'Shea had steered a Ryan Giggs corner towards the far post.

Just after the half-hour, Roger Johnson gifted Anderson the ball in midfield and Wayne Rooney's through ball allowed Berbatov to beat the same Birmingham defender and keeper Ben Foster with a confident finish.—Internet

Kaka says step it up Benzema

MADRID, 22 Jan—Brazilian star Kaka warned out-of-favour Real Madrid attacker Karim Benzema that he needs to do more to convince coach Jose Mourinho that he is the answer to the Spanish giants' striker crisis. "Benzema is a great player. During training you can clearly see his qualities. He can be an important player for Real, it all depends on him," said Kaka. "Sometimes he stays a little out of the game and we believe that he can do a little more."

Benzema's position at the club has come the spotlight after Argentine striker Gonzalo Higuain was ruled out of action through injury. After Real's 1-1 draw with bottom club Almeria last weekend, club general manager Jorge Valdano was reported to have questioned why French international Benzema started the game on the bench.—Internet

Arsene Wenger, Manager of Arsenal

LONDON, 22 Jan—Arsenal boss Arsene Wenger believes that Manchester United could match his achievement of seven seasons ago by completing a Premier League season unbeaten, but believes the Old Trafford giants have had luck on their side. "Do you ask me can they still do it?" Wenger is quoted by Saturday's Guardian newspaper.

"Certainly, because they have not been beaten yet. Have they been a bit lucky until now? Certainly, but we'll see. "You really think about winning the championship but with five games to go, you think about: 'Oh, we can add something to that'. That's what happened with us. But you don't think about that with 16 games to go."—Internet

Vickers back behind the wheel after medical scare

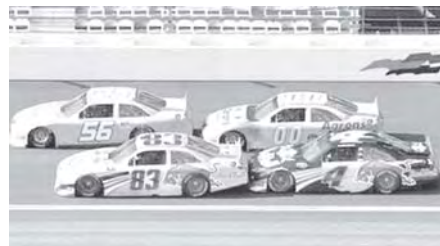

DAYTONA BEACH, 22 Jan—After eight months away from racing, Brian Vickers is back and ready to run a full season. Vickers stepped away from NASCAR last year after doctors found clots in his leg and lungs. Treatment included blood thinners, two procedures to close a hole in his heart and the insertion of a stent into his left leg.

He considered quitting, but decided to return for the 2011 season because of his "love for racing." He says win or lose, "I'm happy to be back." Vickers got back in his No. 83 Toyota for the first time during a private test in Orlando last week. He turned even more laps at NASCAR's three-day open test at Daytona. He finished treatment in November and has been cleared to race a full-time schedule without limitations.—Internet

Wolverhampton Wanderers 0-3 Liverpool

LIVERPOOL 22 Jan— Liverpool secured their first win since Kenny Dalglish took over as manager from Roy Hodgson.

Fernando Torres slotted the Reds in front at Wolverhampton Wanderers with a simple finish after being set up by Raul Meireles on 36 minutes.

Meireles himself added the second five minutes after the break with a stunning strike. Daniel Agger's long punt forward was only partially headed clear by Christophe Berra, under pressure from Dirk Kuyt, and Meireles lashed a brilliant dipping 25-yard volley inside Wayne Hennessey's left-hand post.
