Democracy system introduced to the Union of Myanmar still in its infancy

It is required of entire national people to safeguard, build together newly-introduced democracy system adopted with combined efforts of government, people and Tatmadaw

NAY PYI TAW, 12 Feb—The following is the translation of the message sent by Chairman of the State Peace and Development Council Senior General Than Shwe on the occasion of the 64th Anniversary of Union Day.

Esteemed national brethren,

On the occasion of the 64th Anniversary of Union Day, I would like to extend my warmest greetings to the entire national brethren of you residing in amity and harmony throughout the Union of Myanmar, wishing you every blessing.

The Union of Myanmar has a very long history. Sovereignty resided over the territory in the times of Myanmar monarchs who managed to unify the whole country into a consolidated one. Yet, in times of disintegration of national unity, Myanmar was under foreign invasion. In late Konbaung Period, our country lost independence and sovereignty and fell under alien subjugation.

It was not very difficult for the colonialists to annex Myanmar due to great gap of armed power. But it took a long time for them to complete their crackdown over armed revolts launched in many regions by national races. Therefore, the colonialists exercised a long-term plan to rule the mainland and highlands separately. They drove a wedge among national races who had been living through thick and thin. In consequence of the divide-and-rule policy practised for over 100 years, some self-centered leaders with servile attitude fell under complete sway of the colonialists.

It was the colonialists who intended to keep putting highlands under their political control even when they had no choice, but to grant mainland independence. Therefore, colonial officers in charge of highlands sowed enmity on purpose among highlanders. However, young patriots were farsighted enough to avoid falling into the political snare set by the colonialists, and they worked together to enable the whole nation to regain independence.

Again in the post-independence period, there emerged many national race armed groups due to various reasons. Some of the groups racially indoctrinated the people. Nevertheless, the entire people remained consolidated with Union Spirit. Not only did armed insurgents gradually meet their end, but also the nation lagged behind other countries in development stemming from armed insurrection.

Indeed, the Union of Myanmar is a sovereign nation, home to all national races. The people of all national races have equal rights to settle and reside in any place within the country, enjoy freedom of business and practise religious faiths they profess, and the right to elect and the right to stand for election.

Unlike in some other countries, Myanmar does not see any social and racial discrimination, and the people of all national races are the same, national brethren. Therefore, in times of clandestine schemes to drive a wedge among national races with power-craving attitude or foreign aid and abet, all national races have to uphold at risk to life the national duty of Our Three Main National Causes namely Non-disintegration of the Union, Non-disintegration of national sovereignty, and Perpetuation of sovereignty.

Esteemed national brethren,

All national races have to participate in exercising legislative, executive and judicial powers democratically according to the constitution of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar that resides over the Union. In addition, it grants representatives of national races the right to take part in enacting Region or State, and Self-Administered Areas Law for the national races, each of which has a moderate population. Now, hluttaw sessions are being held with hluttaw representatives according to the sixth step and a modern, developed democratic nation is being built with administrative bodies formed by hluttaws according to the seventh step of the State's seven-step Road Map.

The democracy system introduced to the Union of Myanmar is still in its infancy. Therefore, it is required of the entire national people to safeguard and build together the newly-introduced democracy system, which has been adopted with the combined efforts of the government, the people and the Tatmadaw. In the process, it is mandatory for all national brethren to tackle any forms of disruptions to the new system.

Moreover, I would like to cordially and respectfully urge all national brethren to work in concert, exerting consolidated national unity for perpetuation of the Union of Myanmar that has stood for thousands of years.

PERSPECTIVES

Accomplish Union Day objectives

February 12, 2011 (today) is the 64th Anniversary Union Day. More than 100 national races such as Kachin, Kayah, Kayin, Chin, Bamar, Mon, Rakhine and Shan have been residing together in the Union of Myanmar for years countable by the thousands.

Today is a day on which Myanmar achieved national unity to regain its sovereignty and independence by freeing itself from the yoke of imperialism.

It is vitally important that the national people must imbue themselves with Union Spirit no matter which part of the Union they are living in order not to lose the already-achieved independence and sovereignty. Only the Union Spirit is true patriotism all the national people must maintain and safeguard.

Despite having different cultures, languages and customs, all the national brethren share common characteristics such as having a heart of gold, honesty, helpfulness and magnanimity.

On this auspicious occasion, the national brethren are urged to work together upholding the objectives of the 64th Anniversary Union Day to further consolidate national consolidation for perpetuation of the Union by crushing every attempt to break up the Union.

Car bomb kills eight pilgrims on way to Iraqi shrine

BAGHDAD, 11 Feb—A car bomb killed eight pilgrims Thursday on the road to one of Iraq's holiest Shiite shrines, a highly sensitive site still being rebuilt after a 2006 attack that sheered off its gleaming golden dome and engulfed the country in years of sectarian bloodshed.

Women and children were among those killed in a group of pilgrims headed to the shrine in Samarra for Friday ceremonies marking the death of Shiite Islam's 11th imam, a ninth-century successor to the Prophet Muhammad.

The al-Askari mosque became the epicentre of Iraq's worst violence. Sunni insurgents wearing uniforms set off two bombs in February 2006 that destroyed the site in a provocation that unleashed Shiite militiamen who hunted down Sunni clerics and attacked mosques in retaliation — the beginning of years of intensified bloodletting in Iraq.—Internet

US man ordered held 14 more days in Pakistan

LAHORE, 11 Feb—A prosecutor says a Pakistani judge has ordered that an American man detained in a pair of shooting deaths remain in custody for 14 more days.

Abdus Samad says the judge also has ordered that the Pakistani government clarify whether or not the man enjoys diplomatic immunity, as the US says he does.

The US says the American, identified by Pakistanis as Raymond Davis, shot two Pakistanis dead in late January in self-defence because they were trying to rob him. Washington insists his detention is illegal under international agreements covering diplomatic immunity.

The dispute over his fate has strained the alliance between the two countries.

Afghan suspect recounts lead-up to suicide blast

KABUL, 11 Feb—An Afghan man publicly confessed Thursday to helping a suicide bomber cross the Pakistani border so he could attack a Kabul supermarket popular with foreigners, in a rare glimpse of how such operations are organized.

Wearing a thick black beard, handcuffs and an orange prison jumpsuit, 33-year-old Mohammad Khan, an employee of an Afghan cell phone company, described how he traveled to Pakistan's North Waziristan tribal area to help mediate the release of two French journalists held by the Taliban for more than a year.

Together with another friend, Khan headed to the militant stronghold of Miram Shah, where they met with local commanders of the Haqqani network, a militant group closely allied with the Taliban that carries out cross-border attacks from sanctuaries in Pakistan.

On the trip back, they brought with them another passenger.

"Who's he?" Khan

said he asked his friend. He was told the man's name was Shuwaib. Only after they made it through the rugged mountains back to heavily policed Kabul did he find out the man was a suicide bomber hoping to hit foreigners in the capital.—Internet

Natural gas explosion in Pa kills five people

ALLENTOWN, 11 Feb—A thunderous gas explosion devastated a rowhouse neighbourhood, killing five people, and suspicion fell on an 83-year-old cast-iron gas main. The fiery blast was the latest natural gas disaster to raise questions about the safety of the nation's aging, 2.5-million-mile network of gas and liquid pipelines.

The explosion, which flattened a pair of rowhouses and set fire to a block of homes late Wednesday night, occurred in an area where the underground gas main lacked shut-off valves. It took utility workers five hours of toil in the freezing cold to punch through ice, asphalt and concrete and seal the 12-inch main with foam, finally cutting off the flow of gas that fed the raging flames.

Dorothy Yanett, 65, said she was in her living room with her husband awaiting the evening news when she heard a series of booms.

US space shuttle unharmed after tool accident

US space shuttle Discovery is moved to Kennedy Space Centre's launch pad 39-A for its final mission in space.—INTERNET

WASHINGTON, 11 Feb—Inspectors found no damage to the Space Shuttle Discovery or to its external reserve tanks after a thin multi-piece measuring tool fell during repair work, NASA said Thursday.

The accident has not compromised Discovery's 24 February mission to the International Space Station (ISS), said Allard Beutel, spokesman at the Kennedy Space Centre in Florida.

A feeler gauge — a 13-part metal tool about as thick as a piece of paper held together by a retainer screw — came apart late Wednesday and fell from the launch pad, Beutel said.

The accident took place as technicians changed a seal at the ground umbilical carrier plate, or GUCP, on the shuttle's external fuel tank.

"Engineers have identified minor foam damage to the backside of the external tank, which will not need repair. All components from the gauge have been located," NASA said in a statement. The mission will get a green light and a launch time after NASA officials meet on 18 February.

The shuttle was initially set to launch on 5 November but the attempt was scrubbed after hydrogen leaks were detected.—Internet

Asteroid's near hit changes its orbit

PASADENA, 11 Feb—An asteroid passing Earth at just 3,400 miles was the closest near miss on record, and Earth's gravity sent it into an entirely new orbit, US researchers say.

The approach of the small asteroid 2011 CQ1 last week was so close the object's path through space was bent by 60 degrees, the biggest orbital change ever recorded by astronomers, NewScientist.com reported.

The change was large enough to shift the asteroid, slightly more than a yard across, from one category of objects into another, scientists at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., said. "Prior to the Earth close approach, this object was in a so-called Apollo-class orbit that was mostly outside the Earth's orbit," JPL's Don Yeomans said. "Following the close approach, the Earth's gravitational attraction modified the object's orbit to an Aten-class orbit where the asteroid spends almost all of its time inside the Earth's orbit." However, 2011 CQ1's close approach to Earth will likely be the last time we'll see it, Emily Lakdawalla of the Planetary Society said. "We'll probably never be close enough to it again to be able to pick its dim light out from the background of stars."—Internet

Bone indicates our ancestor walked upright

PHOENIX, 11 Feb—US researchers say fossil evidence suggests a key human ancestor could walk upright consistently, a major advance in human evolution. A 3.2-million-year-old foot bone found at Hadar, Ethiopia, indicates the diminutive, human-like species Australopithecus afarensis had arches in its feet, suggesting upright locomotion, the BBC reported on Thursday. Arched feet, the researchers say, are critical for walking the way modern humans do.

"[The bone] gives a glimpse of foot anatomy and function," says William Kimbel, director of the Institute of Human Origins at Arizona State University. "The bone that was recovered from the Hadar site has all the hallmarks of the form and function of the modern human foot."

Paleontologists knew A. afarensis spent some of its time standing up from examination of the first discovered skeleton of the species, dubbed "Lucy," also found near Hadar in the Ethiopian rift valley.—Internet

Password reuse is all too common, research shows

WASHINGTON, 11 Feb—A British security researcher has analyzed password data made public by Anonymous group hacks against Gawker and rootkit.com, and found that many users with accounts at both sites used the same password for their login credentials. In fact, compared to previous research on the issue, the data suggests more and more people are reusing passwords.

Password reuse across different Websites represents a risk because all a hacker need do is crack one site to be able to access other sites the individual uses. The requirement by many Websites that users log in with their e-mail addresses makes password reuse an even more serious issue, because it means the same username is used across multiple sites.

In most cases, e-mail addresses are not confidential. Analyzing the data, researcher Joseph Bonneau found that 456 legitimate e-mail addresses overlapped at both Gawker and rootkit.com.

Private jet makers target India's super-rich

BANGALORE, 11 Feb—The growing list of billionaires in India is an enticing prospect for executive jet makers seeking to recover from a slump in demand caused by the global financial crisis.

Prominent among exhibitors at the ongoing Aero India 2011 air show in Bangalore were manufacturers such as US-based Gulfstream and Brazil's Embraer — both hoping to seduce corporate high-flyers with their luxury private planes.

The global private jet market had a hard landing in 2008-09, with jet prices plunging by up to 30 percent and actual flying time falling by an estimated 40 percent. But India's fast-growing economy minted 17 new billionaires in 2010,

HAILING THE 64th ANNIVERSARY UNION DAY:

Panglong Conference of 1947 and today's objective conditions of the nation

Thakin Tin Mya

Union Day is in its 64th anniversary on 12 February 2011. It was on 12 February 1947 on which General Aung San and leaders of national races such as Kachin, Chin and Shan signed Panglong Agreement in Panglong with the concept that national unity was essential for regaining independence. At that time, Myanmar was still under the rule of the British government. Becoming well aware that their divide-and-rule policy would be no longer effective if national races managed to build consolidated unity among them, the British government resorted all possible ways to sow enmity and drive a wedge among national brethren. In order to overcome that obstacle, the people had to show great resilience and tenacity.

The Tatmadaw is well convinced that it will be able to defend the people against threats posed by internal and external elements only if it can shape the future of the nation in cooperation with national races.

With this subject in view, the Tatmadaw government set up rescue and relief camps in Ayeyawady Delta in the aftermath of the cyclone Nargis that hit hard the nation in May 2008, causing large-scale death and destruction. During the catastrophe, many houses were ravaged, so it built housing estates, and regenerated the seawater-torn farmlands using heavy machinery in the storm-hit areas. It was very hard to travel from one place to another in the delta in the rainy season. Therefore, the government also provided boats for the victims. In addition, it built cyclone shelters. The benevolent attitude the Tatmadaw government showed to the storm-ravaged areas will always be with the people.

Despite the natural disaster, the State Constitution could be approved with the support of over 92 per cent of the people including national races in May 2008. The Tatmadaw government organized the multiparty democracy general election in November 2010. At Pyidaungsu Hluttaw session held in Nay Pyi Taw, U Thein Sein was elected as the President, and Thiha Thura U Tin Aung Myint Oo, and Dr Sai Mauk Kham (a) Maung Ohn, as Vice Presidents.

Objective conditions of the nation at present and in the past are quite different from each other, but Daw Aung San Suu Kyi is very loud in her plan to hold second Panglong conference to build national unity, which is simply unnecessary. I do not believe the movement will be successful. She is among those who are pessimistic about whatever the Tatmadaw government works.

Once, Commander-in-Chief of Defence Services Senior General Than Shwe cordially received Daw Aung San Suu Kyi. He said that the Tatmadaw was building roads and bridges in the interest of the people, calling on her to comment whether the construction projects were beneficial to the people or not. Under her animosity towards General Ne Win, she, having a look at Na Win Dam near Pyay, said that Na Win Dam was not good. In Myanmar, a sense of grudge has brought evil consequences to the people so many times. Stemming from grudge and animosity showed towards each other among national races, Myanmar fell under the yoke of the colonial rule. The entire people had to try very hard for many years to regain independence.

It is said that the Tatmadaw government in the past was ruling the nation with Martial Law. But indeed, it was reigning over the country in line with the law, opening courts.

The slogan of the Tatmadaw government is to build a discipline-flourishing democratic nation. The Tatmadaw government is ruling the nation, but not in an indiscriminate and irresponsible way. The people will have to derive democracy rights as well as shoulder responsibilities in line with the rules and regulations. Those who are desirous of enjoying democracy rights, but unwilling to carry out duties do not deserve citizenship in Myanmar.

General Aung San, father of Daw Aung San Suu Kyi, was assassinated by the group led by Galon U Saw, a sycophant currying favour with the British government. Therefore, it is fair to say that General Aung San sacrificed his life to enable Myanmar to regain independence.

It was his strong belief of General Aung San that Myanmar would regain independence only through consolidated unity among national races. So, he tried to build national unity, signing Panglong Agreement with representatives of national races in Panglong on 12 February 1947. Therefore, the entire people have to take a solemn vow on the 64th Anniversary Union Day to safeguard the Union of Myanmar hand in hand with the Tatmadaw.

Fiber-optic communications cable arrives in Cuba

HAVANA, 11 Feb — A long-awaited undersea fiber-optic cable linking Cuba with the outside world arrived on the island on Wednesday, promising a bandwidth bonanza for a country saddled with exorbitant telephone rates and among the slowest Internet connection speeds on the planet. The cable connecting Cuba with key ally Venezuela was brought ashore in the eastern resort of Siboney in a ceremony attended by dignitaries from the two countries, the state-run Prensa Latina news agency reported.

The cable is not expected to be operational until the summer, but its arrival is a landmark for an island that often feels cut off from the outside world, 52 years after Fidel Castro's revolution turned it from decadent American playground to crumbling Soviet satellite. When finished, the cable is expected to increase Internet speed 3,000-fold and be capable of handling about 80 million simultaneous phone calls.

That's good news in a country where Web pages open at the speed of molasses oozing out of a jar. A recent report by Akamai Technologies Inc said Cuba has the second slowest Internet speed in the world, besting only the tiny Indian Ocean-island chain of Mayotte. And that's for those lucky enough to have online access. — Internet

Fetal surgery better for kids with spine defect

LOS ANGELES, 11 Feb—Pregnant women were afraid to have it. Doctors were afraid to do it. Hospitals stopped performing the surgery because the government wanted evidence it was safe and worth doing.

Now, a landmark study shows that an operation to fix a hole in the spine while the fetus is still in the womb leads to better outcomes for children with spina bifida. The operation showed such a clear benefit over waiting until the infant is born that the study was stopped early.

Arizona sues US government over illegal immigrants

PHOENIX, 11 Feb—Arizona is counter-suing the US government, charging that Washington has failed to protect it from an invasion of illegal immigrants and related violent crime, its governor has said.

The lawsuit, which seeks federal compensation, is in response to a federal lawsuit filed by President Barack Obama's administration last year challenging Arizona's enforcement of a new immigration law along the US-Mexican border.

"Our citizens have lived with this dark cloud for too long. It's time for the federal government to do its job and secure the border," said Governor Jan Brewer, announcing the lawsuit outside the federal courthouse in Phoenix.

The lawsuit notably charges that the US federal government has failed to reimburse Arizona for more than $760 million in costs for incarcerating illegal immigrants.

"While control of the border is a federal responsibility, illegal aliens who successfully cross the border and commit crime in Arizona become an Arizona responsibility," said Attorney General Tom Horne.

Gunmen kill eight in violent north Mexico border city

CIUDAD JUAREZ, 11 Feb—Gunmen barged into a bar in the battered border city of Ciudad Juarez and opened fire late Thursday, killing seven women and one man, authorities said.

Three other people were wounded at the "Las Torres" bar and were in critical condition, said Arturo Sandoval, spokesman for Chihuahua State prosecutors. Sandoval said investigators were still trying to determine who was behind the attack. Ciudad Juarez is the centre of a fierce turf war between the Sinaloa and Juarez drug cartels, and has become one of the world's most dangerous cities. More than 3,000 people were killed last year in the city of 1.3 million residents across from El Paso, Texas. Meanwhile, a shootout between troops and armed men killed nine people in a central Mexican state that has seen a rise in drug violence, the government said Thursday.

The gun battle erupted after soldiers came under fire while investigating a tip about the presence of armed men in Tabasco, a town in the southern part of Zacatecas state, the Defence Department said in a statement.—Internet

No fine for 16-years-late postcard

The Swedish postal service said it will not force a man whose postcard arrived 16 years late to pay a $2.50 fee. Posten recently sent Einar Persson in Ljusdal a copy of the postcard, which was postmarked 25 Nov, 1994, with a notice informing him a $2.50 payment would be required to claim the original item, but officials said the fee was levied in error, Swedish news agency TT reported Thursday.

Persson, who said the sender died in 1995, challenged the fee and officials said the worker who assigned the fine likely did not notice the date of the original sending. Posten officials said fines are commonly assigned when there is not enough postage on the card, but there should not have been a fee in this case.

Teacher suspended over blog entries

A Pennsylvania school district said a high school English teacher was suspended after she referred to students on her blog as "dim" and "rat-like." The Central Bucks School District, headquartered in Doylestown, said teacher Natalie Munroe, who has been with the district since 2006, has been suspended pending an investigation after parents complained about more than a year's worth of blog entries with disparaging comments about students, CBSPhilly.com reported on Thursday.

Munroe, who admitted to authoring the blog entries, wrote about students she referred to as "frightfully dim," "rat-like" and likely to "open fire on the school," the report said. She also once wrote "I hate your kid" and said one student "seems smarter than she actually is."

Thirty-two percent of Russians reject a sun-centred Solar system, four percent more than in 2007 when a similar survey was conducted, the Russian Centre of Public Opinion Research showed.

The survey highlighted scientific superstitions among Russians and was released as Russian President Dmitry Medvedev called this week for national lunar and deep space programmes.

The survey also found 55 percent of Russians believe that radioactivity is a human invention.

Twenty-nine percent believe humans lived in the era of dinosaurs. Women are more likely than men to believe scientific superstitions, the survey found.

LOS ANGELES, 11 Feb—Troubled US starlet Lindsay Lohan said Thursday she would never steal, a day after she pleaded not guilty to the theft of a $2,500 necklace from a Los Angeles jewellery store.

The 24-year-old actress told followers on her Twitter account that she had not been brought up to be dishonest — and also lamented "absurd" press comment about a tight-fitting dress she wore to court on Wednesday. "I would never steal, in case people are wondering. I was not raised to lie, cheat, or steal," said Lohan, who was released on bail after her latest brush with the law, but warned she could face jail if she breaks the law again. Lohan, who completed a court-ordered spell in rehab for drug addiction last month, allegedly walked out of the jewellery store in Venice Beach — the seafront area of LA where she lives — with the gold necklace on 22 January.—Internet

Coens' "True Grit" opens the Berlin film festival

BERLIN, 11 Feb—"True Grit" opened the Berlin film festival on Thursday, as the eclectic Coen brothers demonstrated how their multiple-Oscar-nominated western avoided being just a remake of the 1969 John Wayne classic.

"True Grit" is screening out of competition in Berlin, the first of the year's major European film festivals. It opens a varied 10-day programme that includes Ralph Fiennes' debut as a director in "Coriolanus," and JC. Chandor's finance thriller "Margin Call," starring Kevin Spacey and Demi Moore.

Joel and Ethan Coen returned to the Berlin festival for the first time since 1998's "The Big Lebowski." The new movie also reunites them with Jeff Bridges, who plays an aging, cynical marshal hired by a 14-year-old girl (Hailee Steinfeld) to track down her father's killer (Josh Brolin).—Internet

Lampard says England's future brighter

COPENHAGEN, 11 Feb — Frank Lampard believes England's future is beginning to look brighter after many of Fabio Capello's new selections made a big impact in Wednesday's 2-1 friendly victory over Denmark. Lampard was named captain for the first time in his international career as he won his 84th cap but it was relative new boys Ashley Young, Darren Bent, Jack Wilshere and Scott Parker who made a real impact in Copenhagen and gave Capello encouragement that his team is finally getting over their World Cup hangover.

Bent scored only his

second goal for England in his eighth appearance as he equalised Daniel Agger's early opener and then Young, only recently converted from winger to striker by Aston Villa, hit the winner in the Parken Stadium — his first ever for England. Arsenal teenager Wilshere made his full debut and showed real promise while Parker also made an international return as a second-half substitute and now becomes a trivia question king after winning his fourth cap, each one while he was playing for a different club; Charlton, Chelsea, Newcastle and West Ham.

England now go to Cardiff for a Euro 2012 qualifier against Wales next month and Lampard believes spirits should be high. Lampard said: "I was very proud to lead the team out it was very nice for me person-ally."

Mexico welcomes new coach with 2-0 win

ATLANTA, 11 Feb — Jose Manuel del la Torre was encouraged but far from satisfied with a win in his debut as Mexico's coach. Javier Hernandez scored in the 249th minute and Edgar Pacheco in the 56th to give Mexico a 2-0 exhibition victory over Bosnia-Herzegovina on Wednesday night in del la Torre's first game as coach of El Tri. Mexico struggled for a half before breaking through.

"I think it's a good start," de la Torre said. "It's always good to start a new project."

You have to keep in mind that we had little time together."

De la Torre was selected to replace Javier Aguirre after Mexico was eliminated from last year's World Cup by Argentina in the second round. De la Torre had coached Toluca, one of Mexico's most successful clubs in recent years.—Internet

France coach Blanc level-headed despite success against Brazil

PARIS, 11 Feb — France coach Laurent Blanc sought to cool expectations surrounding his side's potential after seeing them extend their winning run to five consecutive games with a 1-0 defeat of 10-man Brazil. A goal from star performer Karim Benzema nine minutes into the second half was the difference between the sides at the Stade de France on Wednesday, after Brazil's Hernanes had been sent off following an ugly high kick on Benzema.

It followed France's impressive 2-1 win against England in November and suggests that Blanc's bid to restore Les Bleus to former glories after their World Cup humiliation is firmly on the right track. France have now won their last five games since the shock 1-0 loss at home to Belarus in their Euro 2012 qualifying opener, but Blanc warned that stellar showings in friendly games would ultimately count for nothing.

Scots treble sinks Northern Ireland

DUBLIN, 11 Feb — Kenny Miller celebrated being handed the Scotland captaincy by scoring in a 3-0 Nations Cup win against Northern Ireland at Lansdowne Road here on Wednesday. Miller, now with Turkish side Bursaspor, gave the Scots an early lead before James McArthur made it 2-0 before the break, with Kris Commons adding a third goal after half-time. Both sides were hit by injuries and withdrawals but Craig Levein, the Scotland manager, told Sky Sports: "The most pleasing thing was the way they played as a team."

"All the effort they put in made the game easier, that was what pleased me the most." McArthur was a late replacement for Scott Brown, who was injured in the warm-up, and Levein added: "It couldn't have been easy for him. It can't be easy to come in at the last second and stamp your authority on the game but I thought James did it." Northern Ireland manager Nigel Worthington was heartened ahead of his side's Euro 2012 qualifiers despite this loss.—Internet

Adriano in alleged drink-driving case

AS Roma's Brazilian striker Adriano

RIO DE JANEIRO, 11 Feb — AS Roma's Brazilian striker Adriano, has had his driving licence confiscated by police after refusing to take a drink driving test, media reports said on Wednesday. Adriano refused to be breathalysed and had his licence confiscated, police major Marco Andrade told sports website Globoesporte. He admitted he had been drinking to a police officer, the site said.

"But he was not aggressive and did not show anyone a lack of respect," Andrade said. Under Brazilian law, a driver can refuse to take a test but then faces being disciplined as if he had been caught driving while under the influence of alcohol.—Internet

Marino, Points atop the leaderboard at Pebble

PEBBLE BEACH, 11 Feb — DA Points knew it was going to be a great week at the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am when he found out Bill Murray was his amateur partner. It got even better on Thursday. Points found Murray's antics to be more amusing than annoying, and it showed in his play. With eight birdies on the Shore Course at Monterey Peninsula, he opened with a 7-under 63 and shared the lead with Steve Marino.

Some might think he shot a 63 despite having Murray in his ear all day. Points says he shot 63 because of him. "I know people talk about his antics, or he's a showman while he's out there, making lots of comments and talking while people are getting ready to hit shots," Points said.

Sharapova out of Paris Open, Clijsters eyes top spot

been suffering from a throat infection since the weekend and consulted a doctor on Thursday morning before deciding to pull out, having been granted a place in the draw as a wild card.

"I've really done everything to be ready, but unfortunately, I'm unable to play," Sharapova said in a statement. "I want to apologise to my fans and to thank the tournament for having been so understanding and supporting me." Sharapova was replaced by 'lucky loser' Stephanie Cohen-Aloro of France who went on to lose 7-5, 6-3 to America's Bethanie Mattek-Sands in the second round.—Internet

The new NBA record: 2,562 times 3 for Ray Allen

Boston Celtics' Ray Allen (20) acknowledges the crowd after hitting a 3-pointer against the Los Angeles Lakers to break the NBA record for 3-point baskets, during the first quarter of a basketball game in Boston on Thursday.—INTERNET

BOSTON, 11 Feb — Ray Allen broke the NBA record for 3-pointers on Thursday night, sinking two in the first quarter against the Los Angeles Lakers as the man he passed, Reggie Miller, sat courtside working the TV broadcast.

Allen hit his second 3 of the game with 1:48 left in the first quarter to reach 2,561 in his career — a number that flashed on the scoreboard in green and white while the TD Garden erupted in applause. The 38-year-old Celtic celebrated little as he got back on defense, but at the next whistle went over to Miller for a hug and a handshake, then bumped fists with Lakers star Kobe Bryant.—Internet

Moderate quake
'strikes off Japan'

TOKYO, 11 Feb—A 5.4 magnitude quake struck close to the Japanese coast on Thursday, the US Geological Survey (USGS) said, but no tsunami warning was immediately issued.

The quake hit at 10:03 pm (1303 GMT) 34 kilometres (21 miles) east southeast of Iwaki on the main island of Honshu and 212 kilometres northeast of the capital, Tokyo, the USGS said.

The agency recorded the depth of the quake at 28 kilometres. Around 20 percent of the world's most powerful earthquakes strike Japan, which sits on the "Ring of Fire" surrounding the Pacific Ocean. Tectonics experts have warned of a 70 percent chance that the "Big One" — a magnitude-seven earthquake or worse — will strike the greater Tokyo region, home to around 35 million people, within the next 30 years.—Internet
