Keep your environs clean

To keep towns and villages clean and pleasant is part of the drive for building a modern and developed nation. So, the people should abide by rules and regulations set for sprucing up a particular area.

The government has been upgrading and rebuilding roads for development of towns and villages. If drivers respect traffic rules, there will be a decrease in traffic accidents and damage to roads.

In like manner, the people must refrain from throwing away rubbish and spitting betel spittle indiscriminately onto roads, and displaying goods for sales in public areas. If each and every citizen honours rules and regulations with a sense of responsibility, there will be a growing number of pleasant and beautiful areas.

Indiscriminately throwing away rubbish harms drainage system, which causes bad smell and is detrimental to the health of residents. So, it is needed to dredge, unblock and expand drains regularly.

Gardens and parks are being established and shady trees and landscaping plants are being grown to keep environs green. Anyone can visit those pleasant sites for relaxation and recreation.

Today, rural areas are being integrated with urban areas for urbanization. So, only if each and every citizen is self-disciplined and the people work in concert to keep surrounding areas clean and tidy, will their towns and villages remain beautiful and attractive.

Minute levels of radioactive materials detected in S Korea

SEOUL, 29 March — Minute levels of radioactive iodine and cesium have been detected in South Korea, presumably attributable to radiation leaks at Japan's quake-hit nuclear plant, the Korea Institute of Nuclear Safety said Tuesday.

Traces of iodine-131, cesium-134 and cesium-137 have been detected at twelve radiation detection facilities around the country, the state-run institute said, stressing the minuscule levels of the radioactive materials pose no risk to human health.

The report comes a day after the institute confirmed xenon-133, another nuclear fission product, was detected in northern parts of the country and prompted a daily radiation check throughout the country.

Seawater and marine products will also be subject to radiation checks, according to the government.

Plutonium detected in soil at 5 locations at Fukushima plant

BEIJING, 29 March — Plutonium has been detected in soil at five locations at the Fukushima number-one nuclear power plant, which was damaged by the 11th March earthquake and tsunami in Japan. The Kyodo News Agency quotes an official from the Tokyo Electric Power Company, who says the plutonium is believed to have been discharged from nuclear fuel at the plant.

Officials insist that the plutonium poses no threat to humans. But the power company says the discovery will not suspend work there. Contamination in Unit-two is due to a partial meltdown of the reactor core. However, authorities say pressure inside the containers holding the reactors are stable.

They're also saying it could take weeks to clear out the radioactive water. The latest death toll stands at nearly 11-thousand, with more than 17-thousand still missing.

IAEA: Fukushima plant still serious

BEIJING, 29 March — The director general of the International Atomic Energy Agency says the situation at the Fukushima nuclear power plant remains serious.

Yukiya Amano, IAEA Director General, said, "The difficult situation has not been overcome and takes some time to stabilize the reactors. Radioactivities in the environment, food stuff and water is a matter of concern in the vicinity of Fukushima plant and beyond. Some positive notes are: electrical power has been restored to unit number one, two and three, and fresh water is now available on the site." Amano will convene a high-level conference, possibly in late June, to examine safety procedures at nuclear plants worldwide in the wake of the disaster.

The meeting will focus on assessments of the Fukushima Dai-ichi disaster. The summit will also look at lessons that need to be learned and ways of strengthening the international response to such accidents. He also adds that beyond experts, the IAEA's members will be sending government representatives, saying presence at a "political level" is necessary due to the seriousness of the crisis.—Xinhua

Floods continue to disrupt southern Thailand

BANGKOK, 29 March — All train services to the South have been suspended because of the heavy flooding, according to the State Railways of Thailand on Tuesday.

Nuan-anong Wongchan, public relations chief of the State Railways of Thailand (SRT), said South-bound trains, normally scheduled to leave Bangkok between 1 pm and 10 pm local time, have been suspended, adding that passengers who bought tickets can get a full refund.

Bangkok Post online reported that heavy rain and associated flooding across southern Thailand have been disrupting transport

About 90 percent of land and plantations in Narathiwat Province were flooded, with the water between 40 and 50 centimetres deep. Goods on sale in shops have been ruined as people could not move them to higher ground before the flood water surged into their premises. More sugar means more weight

MINNEAPOLIS, 29 March— In almost 30 years, greater sugar consumption by US men and women corresponded to the same upward trend in body weight, researchers say.

Lead author Huifen Wang, a doctoral candidate in the School of Public Health at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, says the researchers' heart study included six surveys looking at subjects' diet, height and weight, conducted during the period of 1980 to 2009.

"There is limited data available looking at how added sugar intake is related to body mass index," Wang says in a statement. "With the information provided, we examined the trends for body mass index and dietary intake of foods and beverages with added sugars across the six surveys." Consumption of sugars and syrups added to foods during processing, preparation or at the table increased during the past three decades, Wang says.

Although there was a slight decline from 2000 to 2002, the consumption of added sugars remained high among the Minnesotans studied, and although other lifestyle factors should be considered for America's increasing waistlines, public health efforts should advise limiting sugar intake, the study concludes.—Internet

US study ranks walnuts as most healthy nuts

LOS ANGELES, 29 March— Walnuts have a combination of more healthful antioxidants and higher quality antioxidants than any other nut, US researchers have found.

Study findings were presented on Sunday at the 241st National Meeting & Exposition of the American Chemical Society (ACS) in Anaheim, Southern California. Nuts contain plenty of high-quality protein that can substitute for meat, vitamins and minerals, dietary fiber, and are dairy- and gluten-free, ACS researchers said in the study.

Moreover, nuts contain healthful polyunsaturated and monosaturated fats rather than artery-clogging saturated fat, according to the study.

The researchers based their conclusion on analysis of antioxidants in nine different types of nuts: walnuts, almonds, peanuts, pistachios, hazelnuts, Brazil nuts, cashews, macadamias and pecans. They found that walnuts have the highest levels of antioxidants, with plenty of high-quality protein that can substitute for meat, vitamins and minerals, dietary fiber, and are dairy- and gluten-free.—Xinhua

Hot money flows out of S Korea in February

SEOUL, 29 March— South Korea's Capital and financial account, gauging cross-border investments, recorded a net outflow of 2.26 billion US dollars in February, up from January's net outflow of 1.28 billion dollars, the Bank of Korea (BOK) said.

Considering the financial account among South Korea's February balance of payments, "foreigners' stock purchases and banks' short- term external

A&I Minister responds to question about use of pesticides in farms

NAY PYI TAW, 29 March —U Soe Aung of Mandalay Region Constituency-11 raised a question about the use of pesticides in crop farms at today's Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Session. He said it is heard that the use of inefficacy of pesticides in some places have led to destruction of crops while the use of too potent pesticides in some places might have affected the consumers and the environment. Therefore, he said, he would like to know if there is any preventive measure against that.

In response to the question, Minister for Agriculture and Irrigation U Htay Oo said pesticides and fungicides are used in cultivation to prevent the pests. Pesticide law was enacted on 11 May 1990 and procedures drafted on 8 July 1991 to ensure that companies and shops sell genuine chemical pesticides so they can be effectively used by farmers. Pesticide registration groups and technology committees have been formed and systematic measures are being taken for registration and issuance of import permits. Likewise, measures are also being taken to inspect pesticides in terms of quality and danger of toxicity in accord with the international norms and standards and to check samples of pesticides in markets whether or not they are met with set standards. Use and import of 19 kinds of pesticides, which are not suitable on account of their toxicity according to the international convention, have been banned. Import and sale of seven kinds of pesticide used for prevention of pests, rats and malaria are permitted under restriction. Besides, educative measures are being taken for farmers to be able to use pesticides correctly. Anti-pest law was enacted on 16 June 1993, and 10 inspection camps are opened at border areas and international airports. In addition, endorsements of free pests are being issued in accordance with the international standards.

Pesticides that are suitable to be used according to the international convention are sold in markets together with instructions in Myanmar version. For systematic use of pesticides, courses for pesticide users and farmers are being conducted and educative measures taken. Moreover, information about danger of chemicals and microbes is disseminated in agricultural courses. Arrangements are being made to check fruits and vegetables available in markets and export crops whether they have chemical remnants.

So, farmers should use pesticides recognized by the ministry and if they find those products of the same brand suspicious of its inefficacy and low price, they are to inform Myanma Agriculture Service about it for further action, concluded the minister.—MNA

NAY PYI TAW, 29 March—At today's Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Session, Minister for Home Affairs U Maung Oo responded to the query raised by U Aung Thein of Ywangan Constituency on "to assign the duties for administration of ward or village-tract"

U Aung Thein of Ywangan Constituency said that Section 289 of the Constitution of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar states that Administration of ward or village-tract shall be assigned in accord with the law to a person whose integrity is respected by the community. He asked whether or not the aforesaid law is officially issued, and where it can be seen if it has been issued. He would like to know which organization would issue it and when it has yet to be issued.

With respect to the question, Home Affairs Minister U Maung Oo said that he has already replied to the above-mentioned question raised by U Lwin Oo of Thanlyin Constituency, U Aung Kyaw Zan of Pauktaw Constituency and U Hla Maung (a) U Naing Maung Hla of Chaungzon Constituency.

Commerce Minister responds to query on "to open border trade camps in Maesei Township, Mawtaung Region"

NAY PYI TAW, 29 March—At today's Pyidaungsu Hluttaw's session, Minister for Commerce U Tin Naing Thein replied to the questions raised by U Kyaw Khaing Win of Maesei Constituency and U Kyar Maung of Taninthayi Region Constituency No.8.

U Kyaw Khaing Win of Maesei Constituency said that Kayah State has less economic development than other regions. Six of Seven Townships in Kayah

State, except Shadaw Township, lie on the way to Maesei Township. He asked whether or not the government has any plan to open a border trade camp in Maesei Township and when it will be implemented, for the economic development of Kayah State, the nearest border trade route in transporting goods from the heart of Myanmar to Thailand, and boosting the country's trade.

U Kyar Maung of Taninthayi Region Constituency No.8 said that Taninthayi Region includes Dawei, Myeik and Kawthoung Districts. Marine products and other products from these districts should be exported to foreign countries. Now, the products are being sold to Ranoung through Kawthoung. But this route is very long and takes a lot of time. Both the government and the private enterprises would be better off by selling the products from these three districts through border trade route of Mawtaung region in Myeik District.

Regarding the questions, Minister for Commerce U Tin Naing Thein said that since 1988, the government has opened the border trade camps for trade activities with the neighboring countries. In doing so, Muse (105th Mile) border trade camp and Lwejel border trade camp were opened in China-Myanmar border in 1998 and Chinshwehaw border trade camp and Kanpeiktee border trade camp, in 2003; in Thai-

Myanmar border, Tachilek border trade camp and Kawthoung border trade camp, in 1996, Myawady border trade camp in 1998 and Myeik border trade camp in 1999; In Bangladesh-Myanmar border, Maungtaung border trade camp in 1995, Sittway border trade camp in 1998; and in India-Myanmar border, Tamu border trade camp in 1995 and Reed border trade camp in 2003, totaling 12 border trade camps.

In analyzing the years in which the border trade camps were opened, it can be seen that border camps were opened in different times due to different conditions. New border trade camps could only be opened if the region has stability, better transport and smooth trade.

Opening border trade camp needs to have coordination between the two countries. In addition, it needs to have basic infrastructures including trade, customs and banking services. The trade volume between the two countries must reach considerable amount.

In summing up, to open a border trade needs to have the above-said facts. Regarding the questions, the government has no plan to open border trade camps in

Construction Minister answers query raised by U Sai Pao Nat from Shan State Constituency-12

NAY PYI TAW, 29 March—At today's session of Pyidaungsu Hluttaw, U Sai Pao Nat from Shan State Constituency-12 said that dwellers of Panlon Township thanked the government for upgrading Panlon Village to a sub-township. Panlon Township is difficult of access with least development. So, he wondered if Hopang-Panlon Road will be upgraded to an all-weather facility.

In his reply, Minister for Construction U Khin Maung Myint said that the government has been implementing special projects for progress of border areas that lagged behind other regions in development due to various reasons.

Six townships in Shan State—Hopang, Mongmao, Panwaing, Narphan, Metman and Panghsan (Pankham) were grouped into two districts and prescribed as Wa Self-Administered Division. Sub-Panlon Township and Sub-Metkan Township have been established to expedite administrative mechanism and development of the region.

The ministry is building inter-township and inter-region roads and upgrading and maintaining old ones in Wa Self-Administered Division. Like other regions and states, Wa Self-Administered Division has got six township offices and two sub-township offices. The Ministry of Construction, the Ministry for Progress of Border Areas and National Races and Development Affairs and the Defence Services Engineering Unit are building, upgrading and maintaining Kunlon-Hopang Road (11 miles and 4 furlongs), Hopang-Manmeinon-Panlon-Narwee Road (44 miles and 4 furlongs), Hopang-Manmeinon-Pankhun-Mongmao Road (100 miles), Mongmao-Narphan Road (62 miles), Mongmao-Panwaing-Panghsan Road (148 miles), Panghsan-Manmansai-Tarkaw-at-Tangyan Road (88 miles), Mongpyin-Metman Road (73 miles) and Panghsan-Mongpauk Road (20 miles).

In addition, Lonkhut Bailey Bridge (220 feet) on Mongmao-Manton Road, Namtein girder bridge (430 feet) on Kulong-Hopang Road, Namkha Bailey Bridge (216.5 feet) on Panghsan-Mongpauk Road, Namkunlong reinforced concrete bridge (220 feet) on Hopang-Mongmao Road, and Wantarkhet Bailey Bridge on

Canadian girl quizzed about dead baby in London hotel

LONDON, 29 March — A Canadian schoolgirl has been questioned by police after a dead baby was found in a London hotel room. The results of a post-mortem examination on the baby boy on 25 March were "inconclusive", said a Metropolitan Police spokesman.

The baby was found in the hotel room in Hounslow, west London, on 19 March after a group of Canadians who were in England on a school trip went home. British and Canadian police are investigating.

A spokeswoman for Barrie police in Ontario, Canada, said that a 15-year-old girl from the city had been identified as the baby's mother. The spokeswoman explained that the police's priority was to make sure the girl was healthy.

Brass band tribute to chip shop

ISLE OF WIGHT, 29 March — A fish and chip shop has become possibly the first in the world to have inspired a brass band march to be written about it. Composer Andy Norman was so moved by the generosity of the Corries Cabin takeaway in Cowes, Isle of Wight, that he decided to pen the piece of music for the shop.

The conductor of the Cowes Concert Brass Band wrote the music after the shop's proprietor Richard Quigley donated to the group £250 collected during a fundraising event. Mr Norman, 48, said: "I have written several pieces of music for the

400 pound wrestler completes marathon

A 400-pound former national champion sumo wrestler who completed the Los Angeles Marathon in torrential rain may have set a Guinness record, race officials say. Kelly Gneiting, 40, jogged and walked his way through driving rain to finish Sunday's 26.2-mile marathon in 9 hours, 48 minutes, 52 seconds, the Los Angeles Times reported.

"I did it, but it was hell," Gneiting said shortly after crossing the finish line in Santa Monica. "Pure hell." Gneiting — who weighs 400 pounds and has a 60-inch waist — said he thought more than once during the race his blistered, rain-soaked feet would prevent him from finishing the course.

"My feet were on fire," he said. "Twice, blisters popped and just about brought me to my knees — but I kept going."

Aside from completing the marathon, Gneiting succeeded in accomplishing a personal best, improving his time from 11 hours, 48 minutes, 16 seconds from the 2008 Los Angeles Marathon, the Times said.

Gneiting may also have set a Guinness world record for the heaviest person to complete a marathon. That decision will be made after Guinness representatives review his results.

Handcuffed woman drove away in police car

Extinction threat for 45 Australian species

Up to 45 rare species of wallaby, bandicoot and other Australian animals could become extinct within 20 years unless urgent action is taken to control introduced predators and other threats, scientists warned Wednesday.

Dozens of mammals, birds, lizards and other vertebrates in the remote northwestern Kimberley Region are at risk from hunting by feral cats and from destruction of their native habitat by wild donkeys, goats and fires, a study of the conservation needs of the area shows.

"We're in the midst of a massive extinction event in Australia and the north has really been the last stronghold for many species of birds and mammals and reptiles," said Tara Martin, a co-author of the report by the government-funded Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organization.

Nearly 30 percent of the endangered species identified in the study are unique to the Kimberley region, while others, like the golden bandicoot and golden-backed tree rat, have found the area to be their last refuge after being pushed into extinction elsewhere in the country.

"The Kimberley is really their last chance on Earth," Martin told The Associated Press.

The report says immediate funding of $96 million (95 million Australian dollars) is needed to start a range of conservation programs, and that annual funding to protect the region's native animals should be doubled to $40 million (AU$40 million).

It says the most effective ways of combating the threat of extinction are to reduce the number of wild donkeys and goats that are competing with native species for scarce food and water, and to do more to combat wildfires that scorch the landscape. It says attacks by feral cats should also be reduced by educating the community about the threat pets pose to small native animals, building fences, and by ending the poisoning of dingoes in the region.
