Cooperative societies will be formed with bottom up initiative, not with top down policy Region/State work committees to organize residents to form cooperative societies with trustworthy and reliable people, rather than forming them perfunctorily

NAY PYI TAW, 20 June – Chairman of Rural Development and Poverty Alleviation Central Committee President U Thein Sein addressed the central committee meeting (1/2011) today.

The following is the translation of the full text of the speech by President U Thein Sein.

Out of Myanmar's total population of about 60 million, 70 percent live in rural areas.

For the socioeconomic improvement of needy rural people, the previous government laid down and implemented five rural development tasks. And good results have been achieved to a certain degree in the education, health, transport, safe water supply and agriculture sectors.

With a view to improving the socio-economic life of the rural people and alleviating poverty by creating more economic opportunities in rural areas making best use of such results, a workshop was held in Nay Pyi Taw on 20 May this year.

The workshop was attended by Myanmar economic experts, who worked at home and abroad, retired ambassadors, economist professors from universities of economics, businessmen, Union Ministers and departmental heads. It was held for three consecutive days under the title "National Level Workshop on Rural Development and Poverty Alleviation".

It was an extensive meeting as all the attendees cordially and openly discussed their economic views and experiences in conformity with prevailing conditions.

After collecting the points included in the discussions, there are eight tasks when we have found out and chosen the tasks that should and can be implemented for rural development and poverty alleviation. They are:

- (a) Development of agricultural production sector
- (b) Development of rural productivity and

- cottage industries
- (c) Development of micro saving and credit enterprises
- (d) Development of rural cooperative tasks
- (e) Development of rural socio-economy
- (f) Development of rural energy
- (g) Environmental conservation.

According to all-round surveys of living conditions of households, jointly conducted by UNDP and the Ministry of National Planning and Economic Development, the poverty rate of Myanmar has decreased from 32% to 26%. However, poverty rate must be reduced by half in a period between 1990 and 2015 according to Millennium Development Goal-1. This is why Myanmar's poverty rate must be reduced by 16% by 2014-2015.

(See page 7)

In a bid to ensure rural development and alleviate poverty, private companies, NGOs, INGOs and social organizations will have to cooperate with the government. If the savings of a society are not enough to provide loans for members, related companies should provide funds at reasonable rates through agreements.

Four political objectives

- * Stability of the State, community peace and tranquillity, prevalence of law and order
- * Strengthening of national solidarity
- * Building and strengthening of discipline-flourishing democracy system
- * Building of a new modern developed nation in accord with the Constitution

Four economic objectives

- * Building of modern industrialized nation through the agricultural development, and all-round development of other sectors of the economy
- * Proper evolution of the market-oriented economic system
- * Development of the economy inviting participation in terms of technical know-how and investment from sources inside the country and abroad
- * The initiative to shape the national economy must be kept in the hands of the State and the national peoples

Four social objectives

- * Uplift of the morale and morality of the entire nation
- * Uplift of national prestige and integrity and preservation and safeguarding of cultural heritage and national character
- * Flourishing of Union Spirit, the true patriotism
- * Uplift of health, fitness and education standards of the entire nation

PERSPECTIVES

For rural development and poverty alleviation

About 70% of the 60 million people of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar reside in rural areas. The five rural development programmes are making a good headway.

Addressing the National Workshop for Rural Development and Poverty Alleviation held at the Myanmar International Convention Centre in Nay Pyi Taw on 20 May with the aim of scaling up rural development and alleviating poverty, President U Thein Sein presented programmes to seek more effective processes than previous ones.

The attendees frankly shared experiences with one another and compared notes in accordance with objective conditions. The Union level central committee, work committee and Region and State level work committees formed to expedite the tasks are now implementing the plans in a practical way.

The Central Committee for Rural Development and Poverty Alleviation held its Meeting (1/2011) at the President Office in Nay Pyi Taw this morning. It will lay down and supervise policies. The Union level work committee will assign duties to every Union minister for a plan, and render assistance to Region and State level work committees.

Rural areas will soon enjoy development and poverty alleviation if Region and State level work committees effectively implement the plans laid down by the central committee, in cooperation with residents in 330 townships and 82 sub-townships.

About 17 wounded in car bomb explosion in Colombia

BOGOTA, 20 June— The Colombian authorities confirmed on Sunday that 17 people were wounded in a car bomb explosion in the southwestern Colombian City of Popayan around midnight on Saturday.

The blast occurred near a bridge where a group of people were celebrating the triumph of Atletico Nacional at Colombia's soccer championship Saturday night.

Police blamed the rebel ELN (National Liberation Army) for the terrorist act, which also destroyed 15 homes and left 15 districts without power.

A regional police commander, Orlando Pineda, said on Sunday that a middle-aged driver was arrested by police who stopped the car bomb at a checkpoint before it reached its intended destination — the city's downtown.

Bomb blast kills Iraqi civilian

BAQUBA, 20 June— An Iraqi civilian was killed and three others injured in a car bomb blast in Baquba, the centre of northeast Iraq's Diala Province, officials said.

"A sticking bomb blew off in a taxi in central Baquba, killing its driver and wounding three university students, who were in the car," a security source told Aswat al-Iraq news agency.

Officials said the students in Sunday's incident were taken to a nearby hospital for treatment.

Diala Province has had several security violations recently, including the explosion of a booby-trapped car Tuesday that killed eight and wounding another 27, the report said.

Baquba is about 40 miles northeast of Baghdad.

Three soldiers, four militants killed in clashes in Pakistan's tribal area

ISLAMABAD, 20 June—At least three Pakistani soldiers and four Taliban militants were killed and 13 security personnel were injured in a clash that broke out Sunday in a tribal area in northwest Pakistan, reported local Urdu TV channel DAWN.

According to the report, the clash took place in Mohmand Agency near the Pakistani-Afghan border when a group of armed militants launched an attack Sunday morning on a check post in the Baizai area of Mohmand Agency.

The militants used rockets to target the security forces and the forces also fired artillery shells at the hideouts of the militants, the report quoted security sources as saying.

Pakistan said that militants have recently launched several attacks on the border check posts from Afghan soil.

According to Pakistani officials, militants have carried out at least four incursions into the Pakistani territories from Afghan side in less than a month and nearly 40 Pakistani security personnel and civilians have been killed in these attacks.

Pakistan raised the issue of militants' incursion from Afghan territory with the Afghan President Hamid Karzai when he was on a two-day visit in Islamabad on 10 to 11 June. Karzai has promised to stop militants if proved that they are using Afghan soil.

Deputy chief of Pakistan Taliban Maulvi Faqir Muhammad said last week that he is in the northeastern Afghan Province of Kunar and would attack Pakistani forces in the Bajaur tribal region.

Another leader of Pakistan Taliban Maulana Fazaullah is believed to have crossed into Afghanistan's Nuristan Province and has regrouped his fighters there. Fazaullah led bloody campaign against Pakistani forces in Swat valley in 2008 and 2009.

11 killed in US drone strike in NW Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, 20 June—The death toll of US drone strike launched in Pakistan's northwest tribal area of Kurram Agency on Monday morning has risen to 11, reported local Urdu TV channel Geo.

Nine out of the 11 suspected militants killed in the strike were foreigners, said the report, adding that one militant commander was also killed in the strike.

According to the report, the US drones fired four missiles at about 10:30 am local time at two suspected targets in the Khardand area of Kurram Agency, which is situated very close to the Afghan border.

The two targets each hit by two missiles of US drones included one vehicle suspected of carrying militants and one militants' hideout in the mountainous areas of the afore-said agency.

This is the first US drone strike ever reported in the Kurram Agency since this year.

Prior to this, all the other strikes were carried out in North and South Waziristan, two strongholds of militants hiding along the Pakistan-Afghanistan border area.

Monday's US drone strike is the 37th of its kind (counted on daily basis) in Pakistan in 2011. To date, a total of 315 people have reportedly been killed in such strikes since this year.

Tierra del Fuego has too many beavers

USHUAIA, (Argentina) 20 June—More than 200,000 beavers, descendants of 25 imported in 1946, are busy wreaking environmental havoc in Argentina's far south, scientists say.

The problem is that the beavers, hunted in North America by wolverines, bears and other animals, have no natural predators in Tierra del Fuego, The Washington Post reported Friday. As they multiply, they cut down trees and build dams that flood the forests, killing still more trees.

Pablo Kunzle, a trapper with the Argentine parks service, has a love-hate relationship with his prey.

"They're hydraulic engineers," he said, pointing to a dam in a pristine river valley. "They're almost the perfect machine."

The Argentine navy originally brought beavers to Tierra del Fuego, an island split between Argentina and Chile.

The goal was to establish a trade in beaver pelts, which never took off.

Now the beavers have moved across the Straits of Magellan and at least one colony is thriving on the Brunswick Peninsula in Chile.

"We think they could occupy all of Patagonia," said Laura Malmierca, a parks service biologist.

Efforts to popularize beaver meat as a human food have fallen flat.

The next step may be importing sharpshooters for a massive kill.

Afforestation will hardly dent warming problem

PARIS, 20 June—Schemes to convert croplands or marginal lands to forests will make almost no inroads against global warming this century, a scientific study published on Sunday said.

Afforestation is being encouraged under the UN's Kyoto Protocol climate-change treaty under the theory that forests are "sinks" that soak up carbon dioxide (CO2) from the air through photosynthesis.

But environmental researchers, in a new probe, said that even massive conversion of land to forestry would have only a slender benefit against the greenhouse-gas problem. This is partly because forests take decades to mature and CO2 is a long-lasting molecule, able to lurk for centuries in the atmosphere. But another reason is that forests, even as they absorb greenhouse gas, are darker than croplands and thus absorb more solar heat — and in high latitudes, this may even result in net warming. Vivek Arora of the University of Victoria in British Columbia and Alvaro Montenegro of St. Francis Xavier University in Nova Scotia modelled five scenarios in which afforestation was carried out over 50 years, from 2011 to 2060.

They used a Canadian programme called CanESM1 that simulated the impacts on land, sea and air if Earth's surface temperature rose by some 3.0 degrees Celsius (5.4 degrees Fahrenheit) by 2100 compared to 1850.—Internet

Scientists discover cause of gray hair

NEW YORK, 20 June—Scientists at the Ito Lab at New York University's Langone Medical Centre say they have identified the protein that causes gray hair. Researchers, using black mice as test subjects, isolated a protein identified as 'wnt' as the cause of gray hair and that a cure will eventually be found, ABC News reported. Mouse and the human hairs are very similar in the way that they are structured and the way they contain melanocyte stem cells," said Piul Rabbani, the graduate student leading the study. "We found that the wnt signaling pathway is activated the same way."

He said the wnt protein coordinates pigmentation between cells and the breakthrough means the wnt protein could be added to hair grooming products or supplements, putting an end to graying hair. "Our hair follicles and the pigmentation from the melanocyte stem cells work in a very similar fashion, so it definitely can be applied at some point in the future," Rabbani told ABC News.

New Internet era beckons with company domain names

SINGAPORE, 20 June—A global body that charts the course of the Internet is set to vote in Singapore on Monday on a potentially revolutionary plan to open up new domain suffixes for private companies.

Under the changes to be discussed at a meeting of the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN), businesses would no longer be restricted to the list of generic top level domains (gTLDs) that include .com, .net and .org when they apply to register a website address.

Industry observers say global giants such as Apple, Toyota and BMW, to cite examples from various regions, could be in the vanguard of launching websites with their own domain names.

"New gTLDs represent one of the biggest changes to the Internet since its inception," said Michele Jourdan, communications manager for the ICANN.

New rocketplane 'could fly Paris-Tokyo in 2.5 hours'

PARIS, 20 June—European aerospace giant EADS on Sunday unveiled its "Zero Emission Hypersonic Transportation" (Zehst) rocket plane it hopes will be able to fly from Paris to Tokyo in 2.5 hours by around 2050.

"I imagine the plane of the future to look like Zehst," EADS' chief technical officer Jean Botti said as the project was announced at Le Bourget Airport the day before the start of the Paris International Air Show.

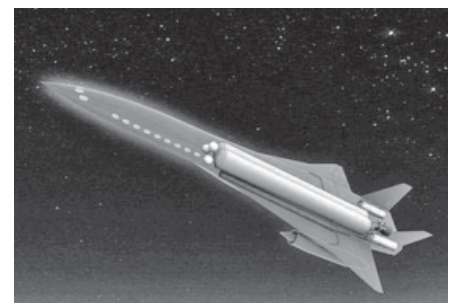

The low-pollution plane to carry between 50 and 100 passengers will take off using normal engines powered by biofuel made from seaweed before switching on its rocket engines at altitude.

The rocket engines, powered by hydrogen and oxygen whose only exhaust is water vapour, propel the plane to a cruising altitude of 32 kilometres (20 miles), compared to today's passenger jets which fly at around 10,000 metres. "You don't pollute, you're in the stratosphere," Botti said.

To land, the pilot cuts the engines and glides down to Earth before reigniting the regular engines before landing.

EADS hopes to have a prototype built by 2020 and for the plane to eventually enter service around 2050.

Portable pools as risky as in-ground pools

COLUMBUS, 20 June— The lead researcher of a new US study on drownings says a child dies every five days in a portable pool during the warm-weather months.

The study, being published Monday in the journal Pediatrics, calls for effective and affordable protection devices for the pools, which range from small wading pools to large inflatable and other soft-sided pools.

It says 209 children under 12 died and 35 nearly drowned from 2001 to 2009. Ninety-four percent of the children were younger than 5. The numbers are comparable with findings for in-ground pools.

The study was conducted by researchers at Nationwide Children's Hospital in Columbus and Independent Safety Consulting in Rockville, Md.

The Association of Pool & Spa Professionals in Alexandria, Va, agrees with the report's findings, underscoring the importance of constant adult supervision supplemented by safety devices.

Scientists develop new approach for cancer vaccine

LONDON, 20 June—Scientists have developed a technique that uses a library of DNA taken from organs in which tumours can form and harnesses the body's immune response to create a vaccine designed to treat cancer.

In a study published in the journal Nature Medicine on Sunday, researchers from Britain and the United States said that in early tests in mice with prostate cancer, their experimental vaccine was able to shrink tumours, suggesting it could be developed in future into a treatment for cancer patients.

"Using the immune system to treat cancer is a very exciting area at the moment," Alan Melcher of Leeds University, who co-led the study, said in an interview. "What we've done is to develop a new approach which builds on a promising foundation."

He said the method could potentially be used against other forms of cancer such as skin or breast cancer, but added that the research was at an early stage and it would be several years before a vaccine could be developed for testing in humans.

Immunotherapy treatments — medicines that enlist the help of the body's immune system to fight disease — are a relatively new form of potential cancer treatment.

An immunotherapy drug called ipilimumab, or Yervoy, made by Bristol-Myers Squibb, was approved by the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) in March as the first drug to help advanced melanoma patients live longer.

And last April, the FDA approved Dendreon Corp's Provenge, a therapeutic vaccine designed to stimulate the immune system to attack prostate cancer.—Reuters

Study to evaluate online smoking cessation

SEATTLE, 20 June— A Seattle research centre is recruiting adult US smokers for a study of online smoking cessation programmes, researchers say.

Study director Jonathan Bricker, a clinical psychologist who specializes in smoking-cessation research at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Centre, says that online smoking-cessation programmes are improving but could use some improvements. "Quit-smoking Web sites reach millions of adults 24 hours a day. Unfortunately, these Web sites have low success rates," Bricker, of the Cancer Prevention Programme in the Hutchinson Centre's Public Health Sciences Division, says in a statement. "Our team has revamped our Web site to improve the experience for people in the study, which will help us find ways to boost the success rates of quit-smoking Web sites." Study participants will learn new tools for dealing more effectively with dealing with the urge to smoke and receive step-by-step quit guides and create personalized plans for staying smoke-free.—Internet

Nokia headlines Asia telecoms expo in Singapore

SINGAPORE, 20 June—One of Asia's biggest telecommunications fairs opens in Singapore on Tuesday with tablets and smartphones taking centre stage and Nokia making a fresh bid to attract a new generation of consumers.

As in past years, industry behemoth Apple which has a stranglehold on the tablet market will not be present at CommunicAsia — instead it stages its own iconic events in California. But Nokia will be back at CommunicAsia after a 10-year absence as the troubled Finnish giant looks to make a big splash at the annual expo. It will be joined by Asian brands as well as BlackBerry maker Research In Motion (RIM) of Canada at the four-day trade fair. Nokia's chief executive Stephen Elop will deliver a keynote address Tuesday in which he will provide an overview of the company's new strategy and an update on its partnership with US software giant Microsoft.

Elop is also expected to speak on the importance of the regional market to Nokia, which accounted for at least eight out of every 10 phones sold in Asia in its heyday, according to CommunicAsia. Nokia declined to say why the company decided to return to the expo after its last participation in 2000 but one analyst said the move showed how important the region is to the company's future.—Internet

Japanese exports drop 10.3 percent in May

TOKYO, 20 June—Japan's exports dropped for the third straight month in May, hit by massive production losses in the auto sector following the March 11 earthquake and tsunami disasters, the government said Monday.

Exports fell 10.3 percent year-on-year to 4.76 trillion yen ($6 billion). Imports rose 12.3 percent to 5.61 trillion yen, resulting in a trade deficit of 853.7 billion yen — Japan's second-biggest after a 967.9 billion yen deficit in January 2009, the finance ministry said.

"Exports were down again as auto shipments tumbled in the month. Automakers struggled with parts shortages after the quake, and did not see a recovery in production in May," said economist Hajime Inoue at the Japan Research Institute Ltd.—Internet

Russia to receive fatal bacteria strain from EU

Moscow, 20 June—Russia's chief sanitary inspector Gennady Onishchenko said on Sunday that Moscow is expected to receive a strain of the fatal E coli bacteria on Monday, which has forced Russian authorities to impose a ban on EU vegetable, according to local media reports.

"The strain has been sent by the Rome research centre, which cooperates with the World Health Organization. But we have not received it yet, considering that today is Sunday," Onishchenko was quoted by RIA Novosti news agency as saying.

In recent days, EU has urged Russia to lift its ban on the imports of fresh vegetables from all EU member states following an outbreak of the E coli bacteria, but Moscow insisted to lift the ban only if receiving details from the EU on the source of the E coli outbreak.

The deadly E coli outbreak has so far killed 38 people, mostly in Germany, and sickened thousands of others. The virus was reported to be traced to bean sprouts from a farm in Germany's Lower Saxony region. Russia is the EU's largest market for vegetable exports. It buys 1.1 million tons of vegetables, valued at 600 million euros (858 million US dollars), from the 27-nation bloc every year, accounting for a quarter of the EU's total exports.—Xinhua

Herb used in Indian curries can spice up things in the bedroom

LONDON, 20 June—A herb used to add flavour to Indian curries can also spice up our sex lives, according to a new study.

Researchers found that men taking fenugreek can boost their sex drive by at least a quarter.

Sixty healthy men aged between 25 and 52 took an extract of the herb twice a day for six weeks.

Their libido levels were monitored using a scoring system to assess any changes after three and six weeks.

Within six weeks, their scores had soared by an average of 16.1 to 20.6 – a 28 percent rise, reports the Daily Mail.

Meanwhile, another group of men taking dummy pills saw their scores fall.

Fenugreek seeds contain compounds called saponins which are thought to stimulate production of male sex hormones including testosterone.

Beijing police destroy nearly 500 kg of drugs

BEIJING, 20 June—Police in Beijing incinerated nearly 500 kilograms of drugs on Sunday, prior to the International Day Against Drug Abuse and Illicit Trafficking, which falls on 26 June.

The destroyed drugs, weighing 489.39 kilogrammes, were seized by Beijing police in 2008 and 2009, said Ma Guoyun, deputy director of the municipal narcotics control office.

The drugs, including heroin, ice (methamphetamine hydrochloride), cocaine and marijuana, would have been priced at about 260 million yuan (about 40.2 million US dollars) in the black market, Ma said.

He said Beijing police incinerated the confiscated drugs every two years, during which the drugs were kept as core evidences for criminal cases.

"In the process, no toxic gas and wastes were created in the high-temperature incinerator we used," he added.

The move to destroy the drugs before the international anti-drug day was a demonstration of the police's zero tolerance policy on drug trafficking and dealing, said Jiang Liangdong, deputy head of Beijing Municipal Bureau of Public Security.

Cooperative societies will be formed with...

In order to implement these tasks effectively, the Union level central committee, work committee and region/state level work committees have been formed.

The central committee will adopt and supervise policies. For the Union level work committee, Union Ministers will take charge of a task each and support the region and state level rural development and poverty alleviation work committees, which will have to take practical measures.

Region and state level work committees are to go down to 330 townships and 82 sub-townships and accomplish the abovementioned tasks in cooperation with the rural people who really want to work in their own and public interests.

At the same time, it is necessary to ensure rural security and the rule of law by means of education, warning and taking action in order to implement the tasks more effectively.

Today's meeting will adopt a framework of the rural development and poverty alleviation action plan. The work committee is to coordinate matters with the supporting committees and state and region committees. Then, state and region committees are to draw and implement detailed plans that are suitable for their regions. The duration of the plan implementation is from 1 July 2011 to 31 December 2015.

Formation of associations lies at the centre of the process. Congenial people will form associations in townships and villages for mutual interest. They will be reconstituted into village cooperative societies when they win public trust.

Township associations will become township cooperative syndicates and village associations, village branch cooperative societies. The programme will be put into reality about two years later with shares in line with the procedures laid down by the Ministry of Cooperatives. Cooperative societies will be formed with bottom up initiative, not with top down policy.

It is required of the Work Committee for Rural Development and Poverty Alleviation, in talk with the supporting committees, to organize workshops in States and Regions with township representatives. Workshops are also to be held in townships to form societies with congenial persons.

The Work Committee will have to form related departments and subcommittees for eight sectors and make field trips down to villages in one township after another. Every member will have to contribute a share. Private cooperative credit societies will be formed in accordance with the law to lend a member an amount of money that is three times the amount he has saved.

In a bid to ensure rural development and poverty alleviation, private companies, NGOs, INGOs and social organizations will have to cooperate with the government. If the savings of a society are not enough to provide loans for members, related companies should provide funds at reasonable rates through agreements.

Farmers should get secondary income in addition to primary income. To alleviate poverty and to be free from debts, not every farmer can afford advanced methods and has capital. It is difficult for the Work Committee and subcommittees to provide technical support and capitals for every farmer. Therefore, township syndicates and village Sub-societies (village branches) are formed.

Concerning cooperative societies, for farm animals, farmers raise on a manageable scale such as cow, buffalo, chicken, pig, duck, goat and fish, cooperative societies are to be formed as necessary according to their wishes. Integrated farms will be set up with interested farmers. Villages each of which raises fish, goat or chicken with OVOP system will be formed as village livestock and fish and meat production syndicates (village branches). Seasonal crops are in harvest after at least four or five months. Combined farms should be erected for farmers to get secondary income in intervals. By running an integrated farm, a household can have self-employed jobs, incomes, organic fertilizers and bio-fuel.

Region/State work committees are to organize residents to form cooperative societies with trustworthy and reliable people, rather than forming them perfunctorily. If so, rural areas will enjoy development and alleviate poverty. In conclusion, if the processes are implemented intensively, rural areas will be able to enjoy development with less poverty. Therefore, respective Region or State work committees and supporting working committees are urged to lay down necessary in-depth programmes through cooperation and coordination.

Deputy Foreign Affairs Minister and party visit Thailand

Deputy Minister for Foreign Affairs U Maung Myint speaks to Myanmar workers at pineapples-factory of Natural Fruits Co Ltd., in Prachuabkirikhan.—MNA

NAY PYI TAW, 20 June—Myanmar Delegation led by U Maung Myint, Deputy Minister for Foreign Affairs of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar paid a visit to Thailand from 14th to 17th June 2011, at the invitation of Mr Chalermchai Sri-On, Minister for Labour of the Kingdom of Thailand.

During his visit, Deputy Minister and party accompanied by his counterpart and party visited the Registration center for Myanmar migrant workers at the Samutsakorn Province on 15th June 2011 where one-stop service is conducted for the convenience of the workers. The registration process for the Myanmar migrant workers was stopped 3 years ago. However, at the request of Myanmar side at the Myanmar-Thai Meeting held in Pyin Oo Lwin earlier this year, the Registration process was re-launched again by Thai Government. It is learnt that approximately 85 registration-centers for the illegal migrant workers were opened throughout the country.

The Deputy Minister together with the Thai Minister met with the media at the registration center and answered their questions. In his reply to the questions, he said that all illegal as well as legal Myanmar workers overseas must be taken care and thus, all Myanmar Embassies and consulates-general overseas are always ready to service the interest of Myanmar Nationals and workers. As soon as the information was received, the consular officers of the Embassy or consulate-general immediately went to help and take necessary action on the incident. For instance, in the car accident recently-happened in Mahachai Samutsakorn Province, Thailand and quarrel between the Myanmar workers and security guards of the chicken-factory in Phetchabun District of Thailand, officials from the Myanmar Embassy took active role in resolving the issues. Apart from that, Myanmar Ambassador and officials from Israel themselves visited Jordan with which Myanmar has no diplomatic tie and Embassy and solved the quarrel between Myanmar workers and others. Therefore, it is expected that the important role of Myanmar missions abroad can be clearly understood.

Afterwards, the Myanmar delegation and Thai Labour Minister Mr Chalermchai Sri-On were present at the Myanmar-Thai coordination Meeting on re-opening of registration for Myanmar illegal workers held on 16th June 2011 morning at the Colonial Hall of Sofitel Centara Grand Hotel in Prachuabkirikhan.

Myanmar delegation visited pineapples-factory of Natural Fruits Co Ltd. In Prachuabkirikhan and cordially met with 400 Myanmar workers as arranged by president of the factory.

In his address delivered to the Myanmar workers, the Deputy Minister said that all illegal as well as legal Myanmar workers overseas and at home must be taken care and their interest must also be protected. Myanmar missions abroad are also trying their best to assist the Myanmar people. If there is any difficulty, Myanmar workers may contact with the Ambassador at any time and ask for help. It is satisfying to see Myanmar workers holding Temporary Myanmar passports, by legally working in Thailand, are Austrian biker cycles down volcano at 102 mph, breaks world record!

LONDON, 20 June—A daredevil mountain biker from Austria has set a new world record for speed by cycling down the side of Nicaragua's 2388 ft Cerro Negro volcano at over 100 mph.

Markus Stockl, who already holds the speed record for riding down an icy mountainside slope, hit a top speed of 102 mph - smashing the previous record held by Eric Barone.

Wearing just a thin Lycra suit and a specially adapted, aerodynamic crash helmet, professional downhill racer, the daredevil biker navigated the volcano's notorious shifting gravel and ash surface to claim the record - but had to do it twice after the recording equipment failed.

"On the first record attempt a strong wind was rattling the speed recording system attached to the bike and it recorded an error," the Daily Mail quoted Stockl as saying.

"So I had to climb back up the volcano and do it again - thankfully it worked out fine and we had the record.

The Austrian pro biker, who is nicknamed Hercules, bought his first bike aged 15 - only to find out it had no suspension.

But on 31 May, the 36-year-old sped down the volatile volcano's 45-degree slope on a bike built from parts totalling thousands of pounds.

His next goal he says is "to break the snow record for special bikes with an stock bike."—Internet

Extraction from pigs' bladder helps re-grow US soldier's leg

LONDON, 20 June—An American soldier, who damaged his leg muscle in an explosion in Afghanistan, is seeing his leg re-grow after he was injected with a growth promoting substance extracted from pigs' bladder. Marine Isaias Hernandez lost 70 percent of his right thigh muscles when an enemy mortar exploded when he was carrying out repairs to a truck.

Just 19-years-old when he was wounded, the soldier would have had to get his leg amputated, had he not chanced upon this miraculous treatment. "It was a remarkable recovery," the Daily Mail quoted Stephen Badylak, the tissue engineering director at the McGowan Institute for Regenerative Medicine at the University of Pittsburgh as saying.

Since the experimental growth hormone was used, Hernandez has regained most of the strength in his right thigh. The pioneering new treatment allows for a revolution in how potential amputee victims are treated. It also offers hope to the hundreds of maimed veterans returning from conflicts with severe limb trauma.—Internet

Illinois man offers half his yearly salary in search for a bride!

LONDON, 20 June—A former soldier from Illinois is offering half of his annual salary to anyone who can find him a wife after his many attempts to woo women had failed. Paul Gutierrez, 38, who has had the most tragic relationship history, has offered the reward for matchmakers on his blog, titled: 'Can Anyone Find Me A Wife'.

"If anyone can find me a girlfriend, who eventually becomes my wife, I'll gladly donate 50 pc of my income (For one year) to his or her favourite charity," the Daily Mail quoted him as writing. "Or, if that's not good enough...I'll happily walk across the country in a wedding dress to raise money for his or her favourite charitable cause No joke!" he added.

The website is a collection of hilarious tales of Gutierrez's failed attempts at find a wife and he has listed 38 reasons why single women should fall in love with him. He pointed out that he has served in the military and that he has never had a girlfriend before. He also mentions his dalliance with mail order brides on the site, although these were just as unsuccessful. The 38-year-old man also wrote that he is 'disease and drug free' and insisted that potential girlfriends must first sign a contract before they go on a date.—Internet

EU allows drug tests on pets

LONDON, 20 June—Concerns have been raised in Britain over a European Union directive allowing drug tests on pets, a media report said Sunday.

The plan could trigger a dramatic rise in the number of pets used in laboratory experiments, the express.co.uk reported. British law allows tests only on animals bred for research.

"Dropping UK standards to meet the EU lowest common denominator is wrong and will be seen by the British public as a huge betrayal," the report quoted a spokesman for the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals as saying.

The European Commission, the executive body of the EU, has given the British government till 2013 to adopt the legislation.

The directive will allow puppy farms and cat breeders in Britain to supply animals to laboratories abroad. Ministers are concerned the directive would weaken Britain's tough animal welfare laws. Junior Home Office minister Lynne Featherstone has launched a three-month consultation exercise, the report said.

The British Union for the Abolition of Vivisection (BUAV) says that dogs, such as beagles, can have substances dripped into their eyes or be forced chemicals and drugs.

Less educated Americans more likely to die of cancer

Less educated Americans more likely to die of cancer.—XINHUA

BEIJING, 20 June—American Cancer Society discloses that higher education appears to be a game changer when it comes to cancer, according to foreign media reports on Sunday.

The research indicates that the gap is widening in cancer death rates between college graduates and those who only went to high school.

Cancer death rates for those who didn't finish high school are almost three times higher than those of college graduates. The gap was especially wide for lung cancer, but it was also palpably large for breast, colon, and prostate cancer.

For lung cancer, the death rate was five times higher among the least educated Americans than the most educated.

Ahmedin Jemal, ACS Vice President of Surveillance Research, said that higher smoking and obesity rates among lower-income Americans combined with less access to medical services mainly expounds the disparity. Researchers concluded that bridging the education-socioeconomic gap would have prevented about 60,000 premature cancer deaths in 2007 alone in people in the 25-64 age group.

Marilyn Monroe "subway" dress sells for $4.6 million

BEVERLY HILLS, 20 June—The pleated ivory dress that blew around Marilyn Monroe in an iconic scene from "The Seven Year Itch" sold for $4.6 million at a weekend auction of Hollywood costumes — far exceeding its estimate. The so-called "subway" dress is perhaps the most recognizable in movie history. In Billy Wilder's 1955 movie, a passing train sent a draft through a grate as Monroe giddily stood above it proclaiming, "Isn't it delicious?"

The William Travilla design was estimated to sell for between $1 million and $2 million, the crown jewel at a 12-hour auction of nearly 600 costumes and pieces of memorabilia being sold by actress Debbie Reynolds in Beverly Hills on Saturday.

Monroe's red-sequined dress from "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" went for $1.2 million. Its pre-sale estimate was $200,000 to $300,000. Audrey Hepburn's Ascot dress from "My Fair Lady," carrying the same estimate, sold for $3.7 million.

Gyrfalcons are 'secret seabirds'

LONDON, 20 June—The world's largest falcon, the fast, taloned gyrfalcon, is a secret seabird, scientists have discovered. Gyrfalcons living in the high Arctic overwinter out at sea, spending long periods living and hunting on pack ice.

It is the first time any falcon species has been found regularly living at sea. The birds likely rest on the ice and hunt other seabirds such as gulls and guillemots, over what appears to be one of the largest winter ranges yet documented for any raptor.

"I was very surprised by this finding," said ornithologist Kurt Burnham who made the discovery. "These birds are not moving between land masses, but actually using the ice floes or pack ice as winter habitat for extended periods of time." "Previously, all species of falcon were considered to be land-based birds." Dr Burnham of the High Arctic Institute, Illinois US and the University of Oxford, UK, together with colleague Professor Ian Newton of Centre for Ecology and Hydrology in Oxford, studied the seasonal movements of gyrfalcons (Falco rusticolus) by tagging 48 birds with radio transmitters.—Internet

Donor chips in $10,000 to LA County

Los Angeles County officials say they gratefully cashed the $10,000 check they received from an anonymous donor in the Pacific Northwest.

The cashier's check came in the mail last month with a note asking the county to put it to good use. "In this time of economic difficulties, governments need all the help they can get," the note said. "Please put this anonymous check to good use. God bless you." The county Auditor-Controller's Office reported the donation, which was mailed in Everett, Wash., to the county Board of Supervisors. The board will formally vote to add the money to the general fund at their 5 July meeting, the Los Angeles Times said Saturday.

Assistant Auditor-Controller John Naimo told the newspaper the county gets donations from members of the public on occasion, but they are usually earmarked for a specific purpose and definitely make the donor's identity known.

Some of the skinny dippers also happened to be sponsored, and raised more than $8,000 for the Marie Curie cancer charity.

Jelly Belly creates scented iPhone cases

California candy company Jelly Belly announced it has created a line of jelly bean-scented cases for the iPhone.

Jelly Belly said it teamed with ESI Cases and Accessories to create iPhone cases scented like the company's Strawberry Cheesecake, Very Cherry, Blueberry, Licorice and Berry Blue jelly beans, TechNewsDaily reported Friday.

The companies said the cases, which are also available for the iPod Touch, iPod Nano and some BlackBerry phones, can be teamed with unscented earbuds shaped like Jelly Belly beans. The items are sold separately and each cost $14.99.

"These jelly bean-shaped headphones are ideal for any consumers that want to make a fun impression with their friends and as they walk down the street," ESI Chief Executive Elliot Azoulay said.

Police arrest man trying to buy pot online

Police arrested a Vernon, Conn., man who tried to buy marijuana on Craigslist, officials said.

Michael Krebes, 31, put an ad on Craigslist Thursday looking to buy pot, WVIT-TV reported.

East Central Narcotics Task Force members answered the ad posing as drug dealers and set up a time and place to meet Krebes, police said. The police set up surveillance and when Krebes showed up, he was arrested. Krebes was charged with criminal possession of less than 4 ounces of marijuana and released on $2,500 bond.

Actress Cicely Tyson salutes strict mom

DETROIT, 20 June—Actress Cicely Tyson told an audience in her home town of Detroit that her strict childhood set the stage for her acting career.

Tyson was honoured Saturday at fundraising luncheon for the Braylon Edwards Foundation and said she wasn't even allowed to go to the movies as a kid.

The lack of exposure to movies, however, didn't cool her ardor for

'Green Lantern' lights up the box office

LOS ANGELES, 20 June—Superhero comic book adaptation "Green Lantern" was the box-office champion this weekend, with an estimated $52.6 million in North American ticket sales as it debuted at number one.

Canadian heart-throb Ryan Reynolds stars as superhero Hal Jordan and Blake Lively as love interest Carol Ferris in the $200 million live-action movie in which Green Lantern Corps warriors try to defeat supervillain Parallax.

One foe "Green Lantern" did defeat this weekend was "Super 8," which marked its second box office week with $21 million at the number two spot. The JJ Abrams sci-fi thriller had debuted at number one last week.

Amy Winehouse cancels shows after Belgrade blunder

LOS ANGELES, 20 June—English pop singer Amy Winehouse, whose promising career has been crippled by substance abuse problems, cut short a European tour on Sunday after fans in Belgrade jeered her shoddy opening-night performance.

Winehouse, 27, sporting her trademark bouffant hairdo and figure-hugging dress, struggled to perform her songs and keep her balance as her band gamely played on. On some tunes, the audience did most of the singing.

On other occasions, Winehouse lectured her bandmates, and anxiously clutched her arms. She appeared to be reading the lyrics from a teleprompter.

Obinna signs for Locomotiv Moscow

LAGOS, 20 June — Nigerian international forward Victor Obinna has joined top Russian club Locomotiv Moscow on a four-year deal, his agent said on Sunday. "Obinna has signed a four-year contract with Locomotiv and he has passed his medical in Moscow," his representative in Nigeria Tony Adele said.

The 24-year-old striker has moved to Russia as a free player after Inter Milan did not activate a clause on his contract that would have kept him at the San Siro. No fee was disclosed, but it is widely believed to have matched an offer tabled by Turkish giants Galatasaray, who were willing to pay Obinna two million euros a year. Compatriot Osaze Odemwingie left Locomotiv last year under a cloud of controversy following a racist attack by fans of the Moscow club.

Obinna returned to Italy from holidays in his native Nigeria late last week to take a decision on his club future after he played this past season on loan from Inter to West Ham, who were demoted from the English Premier League. — Internet

US, Panama reach Gold Cup semi-finals

WASHINGTON, 20 June — Panama booked their CONCACAF Gold Cup semi-final berth in dramatic style, beating El Salvador 5-3 on penalties after Luis Tejada equalized in the 90th minute. Panama on Sunday lined up another match against their Group C rivals the United States, who had second-half goals from Jermaine Jones and Clint Dempsey in a 2-0 victory over Jamaica in the quarter-finals of the regional championship for North and Central America and the Caribbean.

In Wednesday's other semi-final, Mexico will face Honduras. Defending champions Mexico advanced with a 2-1 victory over Guatemala on Saturday, when Honduras defeated Costa Rica 4-2 on penalties after the two teams were

Schleck will pounce at Tour de France, team insist

SCHAFFHAUSEN, 20 June — Schleck's Leopard team insist the Luxemburger will emerge from a mitigated nine days of racing on the Tour of Switzerland primed for a far more crucial yellow jersey battle next month.

Schleck has finished runner-up to Alberto Contador on the Tour de France the past two years and, despite insisting it could be a seven-way battle for the yellow jersey next month, he remains the Spaniard's biggest rival.

A thrilling end to the nine-day race on Sunday saw American Levi

Leipheimer, who was 1min 59sec behind Italian Damiano Cunego before the final time trial over 32.1 km, snatch overall victory from the Lampre all-rounder by just four seconds. Cunego licked his wounds, and Leipheimer celebrated a win that came largely thanks to his time trialling expertise, there were arguably more questions than answers about Schleck's form ahead of the Tour de France from 2-25 July.

Serena Williams sees Wimbledon as 'stepping stone'

WIMBLEDON, 20 June — Yanking off a sneaker with pink accents and purple laces, Serena Williams revealed the scar that starts atop her right foot and meanders up her leg.

It's a jagged, several-inch remnant — and always-there reminder — of two operations to repair the damage Williams did when cut by glass while leaving a German restaurant last July, just days after winning Wimbledon. That was the first in a series of health scares that wound up sidelining her for about 11 months.

"To this day, I don't know" exactly how the injury happened, Williams said on Sunday, on the eve of this year's tournament at the All England Club. "Something must have fallen." "It's, like, the biggest mystery next to the Loch Ness Monster. I've never been able to figure it out," she added. "I just remember standing up the whole time, thinking, 'Ohhhhh, that really hurts.'"

McIlroy buries Masters meltdown and wins US Open

BETHESDA, 20 June — The proof of Rory McIlroy's remarkable resiliency was the silver trophy at his side and the pages of a record book that he changed during four mind-boggling days at the US Open.

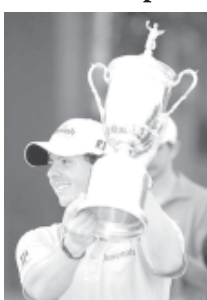

For his father, it was a phone call right after a most crushing collapse at Augusta National two months ago.

Poised to fulfill his potential and become the youngest Masters champion since Tiger Woods, McIlroy shot 80 in a final round that was painful to watch. Gerry McIlroy, who worked three jobs so his son could pursue his passion, was home in Northern Ireland when the phone rang some 20 minutes after it was over. "I said, Rory, are you OK, son?" Because you always fear for your kids," the father said Sunday. "And he says, 'Dad, um, I have no problem with it at all. I hit a few bad shots. And if you play golf, then you'll understand that.'"

The father had his country's flag draped over a green shirt during a momentous celebration at Congressional on Sunday.

McIlroy, the 22-year-old who can make golf look easy even in the toughest of circumstances, buried that Masters memory the way he bur-

Tottenham can help Modric win top titles: Redknapp

LONDON, 20 June — Tottenham manager Harry Redknapp says he feels the club have to show wantaway midfielder Luka Modric he can achieve his goals with the club as the Croatian ponders overtures from Chelsea after announcing he is ready to move on from White Hart Lane. The 25-year-old Croatia international has indicated he would like to link up with Chelsea, although Spurs' chairman Daniel Levy poured cold water on the possibility of a deal "at any price."

Redknapp told the BBC he thinks Modric does not need to join "a bigger club" to win top prizes as long as Tottenham bolster their squad. "I think we have to show him our ambition, which we will do," Redknapp told BBC Radio 5 Live's Sportsweek. "If we can add one or two good players to our squad there's no reason we can't have another great season. "So Tottenham could be a great club for him to stay with for the next few years. That's what we're hoping for."

Tottenham have rejected a £22million offer from Chelsea — a bid ridiculed by Redknapp — and the Spurs boss confirmed Sunday that other clubs were sniffing around his prize asset. "Chelsea are not the only club that have been in for him," he said. "There have been other clubs — top, top clubs. But if Tottenham are looking to go anywhere we can't be selling Luka. We have to do something to keep him at the club. We can't afford to sell Luka Modric if we want to be a successful club."
