Do research, increase crop production

Peasants and workers are basic strata of the people. Improving socio-economic life of the basic strata people can uplift prestige of the nation.

The government is placing emphasis on enhancement of socio-economic life of the rural people. At present, rural development and poverty alleviation are being implemented through various ways and means. Boosting agricultural products plays an important role in development of socio-economy of the rural people. Especially, ways and means are to be sought for increasing per-acre yield of crops.

The Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation is striving for rising per acre yield of crops by conducting researches. Priority is being given to distribute quality strains of crop seeds, apply modern systematic cultivation methods for various crops and produce quality strains of high yield crops.

The farmers rely on incomes through cultivation of seasonal crops. Quality and high yield crops can increase their incomes. Quality strains of crops are to be used to raise per-acre yield. It is necessary to effectively use modern cultivation methods, inputs, fertilizers and pesticides.

Minimizing loss and wastage from seeding to harvesting period, quality of products and strong market of value-added products benefit the farmers.

Today, ministries concerned and experts are conducting research on necessities of crop production. They are producing high-yield quality strains. Modern cultivation methods bring better results for boosting crop production. All in all, departments concerned, experts and farmers are to harmoniously strive for development of agriculture sector.

900 bodies found in mass grave in Iraq

BAGHDAD, 8 July—Iraqi authorities have dug up a mass grave with some 900 bodies, believed to be Kurds killed under late Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein's regime in 1980s, a State-run daily said Thursday.

The bodies have been found near Iraq's central City of Diwaniyah, Xinhua reported.

The corpses were found in Al Shanafiyah area, some 50 km southwest of Diwaniyah, capital city of Al Qadisiyah Province, Al Sabah newspaper quoted a provincial council member as saying.

"Judicial teams from the Iraqi Human Rights Ministry arrived at the site where the bodies were buried in trenches at the local cemetery of Al Amharri in Al Shanafiyah," Dakhil Saihoud, a member of the provincial council and head of the council's justice and accountability commission told the newspaper. Mass graves in Iraq became well-known since the US-led invasion of the country, as dozens of mass graves made during Hussein's rule were discovered. But dozens of other graves, discovered later, were made during the chaos and the bloodshed that followed the 2003 Iraq war.—Internet

Two killed in suicide bomb attack in E Iraq

BAQUBA, 8 July—Two policemen were killed and 19 people wounded, including four police officers, in a suicide car bomb attack targeted a convoy of a police commando chief in Iraq's eastern Province of Diyala, a provincial police source told Xinhua on Thursday.

The attack occurred on Wednesday night when a suicide bomber drove his explosive-laden car into the convoy of police vehicles carrying Lieutenant Colonel Abdul-Hameed, chief of the 3rd Battalion of Diyala's police commando, while moving in al-Hadeed area, northwest of the provincial capital city of Baquba, some 65 km northeast of Baghdad, the source from Diyala's operations command said on condition of anonymity.

The blast killed two police commandoes and wounded four officers, including Hameed, and ten commandoes, the source said, adding that five passers-by were also wounded by the blast.

Separately a roadside bomb went off on Thursday morning near a butcher shop and wounded the shop owner and two civilians in al-Gatoon area, some six km west of Baquba, the source added.

Afghan, NATO forces fire rockets into Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, 8 July—Afghan and Nato-led troops fired rockets into Pakistan's northwest tribal region of North Waziristan on Friday, causing no injuries, local TV channel reported.

Residents were quoted as saying that around 18 mortar shells landed near a Pakistani checkpoint at Ghulam Khan border area, adding Pakistani force returned fire.

The incident took place a day after Pakistani, Afghan and NATO military officials met in the Pakistani northwestern city of Peshawar to discuss preventing repeat of cross border firing.

The Afghan president's office said in Kabul that Pakistani Prime Minister Yusuf Raza Gilani had agreed in telephone conversation with Afghan President Hamid Karzai on the establishment of a joint military commission to address problems emerged on the Afghan and Pakistani border.

Pakistan's Foreign Office spokesperson blamed militants for the current cross border attacks, saying there is a common concern on this issue. Pakistan said that 55 security personnel were killed and over 80 others injured in five cross border attacks in Dir District, Bajaur and Mohmand tribal regions in a month time. Afghanistan claimed that hundreds of rockets and artillery rounds were fired into eastern Kunar and Nangrahar Provinces from Pakistani territory, killing 40 people and injuring 50 others.

Giant Swedish space balloon fizzes out: space centre

STOCKHOLM, 8 July—Swedish scientists were forced to halt a ground-breaking project Thursday to test the impact of stars when a balloon carrying an X-ray telescope began leaking helium, a space centre said Thursday.

"We sent it up without any problems, but then we were forced to take it down. It was leaking, and when a balloon leaks it loses height," said Johanna Bergstroem-Roos of the Esrange Space Centre, near Kiruna in northern Sweden. "These things happen," she told AFP.

The PoGoLite (Polarised Gamma-ray Observer), a two-tonne telescope dangling from an enormous balloon filled with one million cubic metres of helium was launched at 1:57 am (2357 GMT Wednesday) from Esrange and was brought back to earth shortly after 7:00 am. Space centre officials could not say exactly how far the balloon had gone, only saying it "did not go very far" and never made it past the mountain range on the Swedish-Norwegian border.

It had reached an altitude of about 35 kilometres (22 miles), just short of its 38-kilometre altitude goal. The PoGoLite's aim was to study the x-rays emitted by neutron stars, pulsars and black hole systems.—Internet

NASA launches space shuttle on historic final mission

CAPE CANAVERAL, (FLA) 8 July—The space shuttle Atlantis soared into the heavens and the history books Friday (July 8), kicking off the last-ever mission of NASA's storied shuttle programme.

Despite a bleak forecast of thunderstorms and clouds, the shuttle beat the weather in a stunning midday launch, sailing into the sky on one final voyage. The countdown toward liftoff took a dramatic pause at T minus 31 seconds while ground crews verified that a vent arm at the top of the shuttle was fully retracted. NASA was quickly able to push on toward liftoff.

Atlantis blasted off just after 11:26 a.m. EDT (1526 GMT) from Launch Pad 39A here at NASA's Kennedy Space Centre, thrilling huge throngs of spectators who had descended on Florida's Space Coast to see the swan song of an American icon. NASA estimated that between 750,000 and 1 million people turned out to watch history unfold before their eyes.

Alert system to notify consumers of online piracy

WASHINGTON, 8 July—Hollywood studios, recording labels, artists and Internet service Providers have created a programme to alert Internet subscribers when their accounts are used to access movies, songs and other content that entertainment companies consider unauthorized.

The new "copyright alerts" system is intended to educate consumers about online piracy by sending up to six electronic messages notifying subscribers when their accounts are used to download or share such content. Internet service Providers would send the alerts to a subscriber after receiving a notice from a copyright holder. Consumers who ignore the notices could face "mitigation measures," such as slower Internet connections or redirection to a special website that provides information about copyright protections.

Internet service providers would not be required to terminate any subscriber accounts or hand over subscriber names to copyright holders.

Among the groups and companies participating in the new programme: the Motion Picture Association of America and member companies including Walt Disney Studios Motion Pictures and Sony Pictures Entertainment Inc; the Recording Industry Association of America and member companies including Universal Music Group Recordings and Warner Music Group; Independent Film & Television Alliance; and Internet services Providers including AT&T Inc, Comcast Corp and Verizon Communications Inc.—Internet

Health Tip: Fears and Phobias

People with phobic anxieties, like fear of crowded places, fear of heights or fear of going outside, are at higher risk for heart disease than those with fewer or no anxieties.

Several studies have suggested that anxiety and anger are associated with an elevated risk of sudden cardiac death. This is when death occurs within one hour of the onset of symptoms; it's usually associated with a lethal heart rhythm disturbance.

The following questions, suggested by the American Heart Association, may help you determine if you need to see a mental health professional:

- * Do you have an unreasonable fear of being in enclosed spaces like shops, elevators, etc?
- * Do you find yourself worrying about getting some incurable illness?
- * Are you exceptionally afraid of heights?
- * Do you feel panicky in crowds?
- * Do you worry unduly when relatives are late in coming home?
- * Do you feel more relaxed indoors?
- * Do you dislike going out alone?
- * Do you feel uneasy traveling on buses or trains even if they are not crowded?

Higher aspirin dose better for diabetes

EDMONTON, 8 July— Higher daily doses of aspirin, as much as 325 milligrams daily, may play a role in preventing heart attacks for those with diabetes, Canadian researchers say.

Scot Simpson of the University of Alberta and colleagues looked at data from 21 studies that focused specifically on diabetic patients who had suffered a previous heart attack or stroke.

Simpson discovered patients with previous cardiac episodes who were taking a low dose of aspirin daily — usually 81 mg — had very little benefit in terms of prevention of a second heart attack or a decreased risk of mortality.

"We found that, if those patients took up to 325 milligrams of aspirin per day, they had a 23 percent lower risk of death," Simpson says in a statement.

People with diabetes are at an increased risk of cardiovascular disease, and there is evidence that suggests as much as 60 percent of deaths in diabetics are attributable to heart disease, Simpson said.—Internet

Unhealthy lifestyle may kill sex

COPENHAGEN, 8 July — Overweight, physical inactivity, high alcohol consumption, smoking and hard drugs are linked to sexual dysfunction in men, Danish researchers say.

Dr Morten Frisch of Statens Serum Institut in Copenhagen used nationally representative survey data from 5,552 Danish men and women ages 16-97 in 2005 to study the association of lifestyle factors with sexual inactivity and sexual dysfunction.

The study, published in the Journal of Sexual Medicine, says a number of unhealthy lifestyle factors are associated with increased risk of not having a partner-related sex life by up to 78 percent in men and up to 91 percent in women.

Among those who had a sexual partner, the risk of experiencing sexual dysfunction was greater in men who lead unhealthy lives and more than 800 percent in men using hard drugs, the study says. Women who used hashish had almost three times increased risk of have difficulties or inability to reach climax during sexual activity with a partner compared with non-users, Frisch adds.—Internet

NTT DoCoMo plans green-energy cellphone masts

TOKYO, 8 July—Japan's largest mobile phone operator, NTT DoCoMo, plans to start powering its cellphone tower network with renewable energy such as solar, wind or biomass, the company said Friday. The move could one day allow the company to feed excess electricity back into the grid, and would also act as a safeguard during power grid outages caused by natural disasters such as the 11 March quake and tsunami.

NTT DoCoMo, which has 90,000 cellphone relay stations, will start the project by building some 10 renewable energy facilities in fiscal year 2012 to supplement the conventional electricity supply, media reports said.

Daisuke Sakuma, a spokesman at NTT DoCoMo, told AFP that "we are planning 'green transmission stations,' which would be run on eco-energy such as bio-fuel cells, wind or solar power." "We have not decided details yet, including how many stations would be operated that way," he said, adding that the company could one day sell excess energy, although for now its aim was to meet its own power needs. Sakuma said the move could also help protect the system against widespread blackouts.

Hopes formed over past 100 days

Banya Aung

It was the 30th May on which the seventh of the State's seven-step Road Map was launched to build a modern and developed democratic nation with State leaders elected by Hluttaws, and the government and administrative bodies formed by Hluttaws. That day, the President in his inaugural speech to the session of the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw announced the start of Myanmar's democratization and made further clarification to the new government's policies on domestic affairs, and foreign policies. And in meeting with heads of Union level bodies, Union ministers and deputy ministers, the President elaborated on stances, concepts and proceedings to be implemented in pursuit of domestic policies.

The international community keeping an eye on political changes in Myanmar and the people watching the policies of the new government expressed warm welcome to the two addresses. Myanmar affairs analyst Professor David Steinberg of Georgetown University commented that the President's speech was the most important among the speeches delivered by State leaders since 1962. A local columnist said that the President's speech made him excited as it implied signs of hopes.

However, some persons have doubts about the speech, whereas many are showing their positive attitude to it. Those who are in doubt can be divided into two groups. Those of the first group are worried about what types of challenges and restrictions the government will have to tackle to put the points in the speech into reality and to materialize formidable tasks. Those of the other group are represented by certain organizations that are opposed to whatever the government does. Indeed, they cannot find any faults in the President's speech that states various points to serve the national interests, takes into account the stances and conditions of those with different views and stances, and is free from authoritative tones. So, they are claiming that the new government is not willing to implement the points in the speech, and the global community has to wait and see what the government will do.

Over three months into the office of the new government, Myanmar has seen a number of positive changes. The change is that executive and legislative officials have come to deliver open speeches about objective conditions and requirements of the nation. Words such as good governance, clean government, flourishing democracy, fundamental rights of citizens, the rule of law, transparency, accountability, anti-corruption and partiality, programmes to reduce gap between the rich and the poor, and compatible society are not new to the people. But, it is a landmark in many years that a head of State states these words in his speech. A person must know where he is before he starts to try to achieve his goal. So, it is widely said that the President's speech is a policy speech to handle public affairs in the history of Myanmar.

In view of the progress of the nation over past 100 days, the new government is working in compliance with the plans of action in the President's speech. The President recognized that there are many persons who are in doubt about the new government and do not accept the constitution when it comes to national reconsolidation. The President in his address stressed the importance of showing benevolent attitude in order that those persons are no longer skeptical about and come to cooperate with the new government. And he suggested that everyone who is in favour of Myanmar's interest serve national interests in the framework of the law, and the new government would welcome all acts done in the framework of the law. He also urged individuals, organizations and unlawful groups that do not accept the constitution to stand for election and try to seize power in a democratic way if they wanted to amend the constitution in accordance with the provisions stipulated in Chapter XII of the constitution.

On 16 May, the government granted general amnesty to 14,758 prisoners, who were serving their terms for their violation of existing laws, to participate in nation-building tasks. In addition, with a view to ensuring national reconsolidation, the government is addressing the issue relating to an old political party that has been defunct and still opens doors to the party for cooperation with the government in the national interests. Moreover, the President said that the government still opened peace doors to national race armed groups that do not accept the constitution and cling on to armed struggle line, and the national race groups that have disregarded peace built between the State and them and are committing bomb blasts, thereby showing the government's benevolent attitude to the people and hunger for national reconsolidation. These points indicate progress in the political page of the nation.

Another page of political headway is in connection with international relations. In his speech, the President reaffirmed that Myanmar would keep exercising non-aligned, free and active foreign policy, and disclosed the nation's fervour of cooperating with the international community in reconstructing nation. Furthermore, he urged the foreign countries that are in favour of the people's socioeconomic improvement to recognize positive changes in Myanmar and cooperate with the nation, which met the recognition of the international family. In past 100 days, many international organizations visited and proposed to visit Myanmar. The government allowed all persons and organizations that have goodwill to Myanmar and view developments of Myanmar without personality cult to visit Myanmar, and the President, Vice-Presidents and Union ministers received them. Those delegations are from China, India, Japan, ASEAN countries, even from the US, Australia and EU that have been making Myanmar isolated from the international community for years.

Moreover, UN, international organizations and INGOs are now in talk with related ministries and are holding workshops to cooperate with Myanmar in the health, education, economic and environmental conservation sectors. In the process, Myanmar officials at all levels held open discussions about challenges Myanmar is facing and plans to overcome them. Therefore, even many organizations that have showed negative attitude to Myanmar recognized that there were many positive changes in Myanmar. ICRC's projects to observe prisons to provide aids that have been adjourned for several years, were resumed on 1 July. So, Myanmar will soon see tasks for greater progress of prisons.

In relation to the economic sector, the National Workshop on Rural Development and Poverty Alleviation was organized at Nay Pyi Taw on 20 May for development of rural areas that are home to folks who make up 70 % of the nation's population, and alleviation of poverty. At the workshop, the President said that economic growth was critical to national development; and that the government would review monetary policy, financial policy, trade policy and investment policy for economic development, and in that regard, the government would work together with relevant departments, experts and associations. The National Workshop on Rural Development and Poverty Alleviation is the first of its kind in Myanmar. Rural development programmes have the top priority because rural people are the major workforce of the nation, and rural development contributes towards poverty alleviation and nation's economic development. At the first-day session of the workshop, the President not only delivered a speech but also listened to all reports by resource persons, questions of the attendees and resource persons' replies to the queries. The President's attending the workshop from start to end showed the government's political will for reforms. A foreigner attendee remarked that frank discussion about the government's economic and agricultural policies in front of the President was the first in over 60 years, and reflected the Myanmar's new political arena with emergence of the constitution.

Besides, workshop on promotion of national education standard, workshop on environmental conservation and e-Government workshop took place in the nation.

In his speech, the President pledged that reviews would be carried out in various administrative aspects, and appropriate policies and work programmes would be adopted when it was opportune. To prove the pledge, many restrictions were lifted, amendments were made to procedures, and tax rates were reduced for smooth operation in the economic and trade sectors. And as pledged by the President, pension rates have been increased since July according to the nation's economic strength and financial situations.

To comply with the President's advice to recognize the important role of journals and newspapers that are the fourth estate, and respect their positive suggestions, a new system has been brought into force that 82 journals, 96 magazines and other publications are to be submitted for scrutinization only after they are in circulation. Many of the restrictions on particular periodicals that come out only after they are submitted to the Press Scrutiny and Registration Division have been lifted. So, particular types of political, economic and social stories that were never allowed to feature in publications can be seen now.

Apart from development in the executive sector, the legislative sector has made progress as supported by the fact that the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw is gearing up for effective implementation of the duties entrusted by the constitution. At the first regular session of the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw, related ministers responded to 106 questions, and proposals submitted by MPs, and 43 of them were discussed for resolutions. The questions and proposals reflect the stances of the voters. Therefore, it can be said that the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw complied with the public wishes. The emergence of the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw symbolizes political changes in Myanmar. To put it another way, emergence of political space for the people and political parties represents a turning point in Myanmar's politics.

Now, the first session of the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw is over. The committees of the two Hluttaws are holding talks and workshops, and exchanging visits with the parliaments of other countries in order that Hluttaws will become strong with competence, and they will be well capable of discharging their two major duties: legislation, and check and balance among Hluttaws, the government and judicial bodies. In addition, as addressed to the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw by the President, assessments are being carried out to meet the criteria of whether or not existing laws protect public and national interests, comply with the constitution, can be exercised in practice, and conformity with international conventions and agreements Myanmar is exercising. The programmes for strengthening legislative organs are designed to ensure correct democratic practice in Myanmar.

Deducing from abovementioned points, there have been three types of progress in the Myanmar's political sphere that has emerged according to the constitution, as follows:—

(a) Executive and legislative bodies are correctly reviewing objective conditions of Myanmar and identifying challenges being faced by the nation, and have come to in cooperation with the people to surmount those challenges.

(b) Executive and legislative bodies have come to ascertain, respect and respond to public stances.

(c) Executive and legislative bodies have become willing to deal with the international community all the more and have come to recognize international community's concerns over Myanmar affairs.

The President's speeches and work of the Union government and Region/State governments indicate that transformation processes are well underway. However, some are highly critical of the new government, claiming that American Presidents make remarkable reforms during 100 days after their taking office, but Myanmar's political changes are not satisfactory in 100 days.

It is a notable point that in the Western democracies including the US, democratic institutions have been settled for many years. Myanmar has yet to complete establishment of democratic institutions for its transformation. Therefore, as said by the President, the nation has to deal with intimidating challenges. All the reforms are being disrupted by internal and external elements. So, Myanmar also has to get rid of stereotypical traditions and policies that have been rooted since the centralization system. A more demanding task is to cope with outside disruptions and pressure on the nation for transformation processes, stemming from lack of national unity. These days, there were many bomb blasts to destroy roads and railroads and structures in public areas, and many attempts being made through Websites to spark underground political unrest.

I would therefore like to say that not only the government and legal political parties but also organizations outside Hluttaws are responsible for smooth and speedy democratization in Myanmar. The common goal can be achieved sooner than expected if all work in harness. Therefore, the President has opened opportunity door to all persons and organizations to take part in the democratization process. Those who have not accepted the constitution yet should grasp the golden opportunity. If they choose correct path, the hopes due to the progress made over past 100 days will come to fruitions in a short time.

Leading Committee for preparation for...

Union Minister U Hla Tun gives a report.—MNA

The first task of the leading committee is to lead tasks of all preparations for the success of holding the SEA Games. Reconstituted and extended subcommittees under the leading committee are construction of sports ground and hostels subcommittee, training subcommittee for taking part in every sports event and for having success, preparation for successful holding of opening and closing ceremonies subcommittee, invitation, reception and liaison subcommittee, registration and sports events technical subcommittee, ceremony planning subcommittee, accommodation subcommittee, transportation subcommittee, health and medical subcommittee, fundraising and prize-giving subcommittee, information and records subcommittee, communication subcommittee and security subcommittee. These subcommittees are assigned to respective duties.

Of thirteen, three subcommittees which have to take many times to make systematic preparations are construction subcommittee, training for having success subcommittee and opening and closing ceremonies subcommittee. Reviewing construction works being implemented by construction subcommittee for timely completion of construction of sports grounds and hostels, construction of Zabuthiri Sports Ground has been completed by 74 per cent, Zabuthiri Gymnasium by 4.5 per cent, Zeyathiri Sports Ground by 61 per cent and Sports Village by 27 per cent.

As 28 months away, it is required to finish construction of planned sports ground and gymnasiums six months ahead the Games and to organize those concerned for timely completion of construction of sports ground, gymnasiums and administrative offices which are necessary to be built. Only when construction of sports grounds and gymnasiums are completed in time, will athletes have more times for their trainings.

Likewise, it is necessary to coordinate finishing works of sports grounds and gymnasiums which are under construction to be suitable with the situations needed for the Games and to make preparation for installation of international standard sports gear meeting set standards.

Likewise, the next one is the training subcommittee for participation in the games and for achieving victories. It is necessary to search potential new generation athletes, keep them at the camp undergoing training with modern sports techniques under the supervision of local and foreign coaches, and send them to foreign countries to practise joint exercises with host athletes. Moreover, the athletes are to be sent to foreign countries so as to take part in the sports competitions as much as possible for gaining experiences and invite foreign sports teams to compete with the local selected athletes with a view to exposing strong and weak points of the national teams and change training techniques if necessary.

Another task is to commence the arrangements for training referees and juries internationally recognized and giving training to the youths who will discharge duties of interpreter and liaison for the foreign sports contingents at the games.

The opening and closing subcommittee is to take time for making preparations to successfully hold the opening and closing ceremonies on a grand scale so as to create the image that may bring remarks of the foreign guests whether the nation develops or not. It is necessary to rehearse the demonstrations on presentation of Myanmar fine arts, nationalistic spirit and warmly welcome that will be included in the programmes of accepting the Flag of the Games and Performing the Entertainment at the XXVI SEA Games to be held in Indonesia on 22 November 2011.

Preparations are to be made to traditional culture of national races, fostering of the Union Spirit, Myanmar traditional dances depicting development of the State at the opening and closing ceremonies through modern IT technologies like similar ceremonies of other countries. Remaining subcommittees are also to place emphasis on preparatory tasks in their respective sectors to successfully hold the games.

In accord with the motto "Myanmar sports the world to conquer", all the officials are to strive for showing off high prestige and integrity of Myanmar to the sports teams from various countries in hosting the XXVII SEA Games and to bring the honour to the State through deserved victories in the games.

Chairman of the Leading Committee for Preparation for the XXVII SEA Games Union Minister for Sports and for Hotels and Tourism U Tint Hsan reported on sports events to be included in the XXVI SEA Games, sports games of Myanmar teams in the games and training the athletes at the camps, plans for holding sports events in the XXVII SEA Games and medals for the winners, sports venues for respective events to be hosted, requirements of more sports grounds/ gymnasiums and administrative buildings, and renovation of halls of the sports federations.

Member of the Leading Committee Chairman of the Sports Grounds and Hostels Construction Subcommittee Chairman of Nay Pyi Taw Council U Thein Nyunt reported on efforts being made for timely completion of stadiums and swimming pools and preparations for more buildings.

Member of the Leading Committee Chairman of the Preparations for Opening and Closing Ceremonies Subcommittee Union Minister for Information and for Culture U Kyaw Hsan submitted reports on formation of Preparation for Successful Opening and Closing Ceremonies Subcommittee, duties and functions of nine subcommittees and formation, adopting four aims on the training for presentation of dances to be performed by the Ministry of Culture while accepting the Flag of the SEA Games at the closing ceremony of the XXVI SEA Games, preparations on a grand scale for presenting 18 programmes at opening ceremony and 14 programmes at closing ceremony of the XXVII SEA Games, estimation of necessary strengths of manpower, materials and money for the opening and closing ceremonies and plans for sending delegations to the People's Republic of China and Indonesia.

Chairman of the Security Subcommittee Union Minister for Home Affairs Lt-Gen Ko Ko, Chairman of the Fund Raising and Prize Giving Subcommittee Union Minister for Finance and Revenue U Hla Tun, Chairman of the Transport Subcommittee Union Minister for Transport U Nyan Tun Aung, Chairman of Communication Subcommittee Union Minister for Communications, Posts and Telegraphs U Thein Tun, Chairman of the Health and Medical Subcommittee Deputy Minister for Health Dr Win Myint, Chairman of the Invitation, Reception and Liaison Subcommittee Deputy Minister for Transport U Win Shein, Chairman of Information and Records Subcommittee Deputy Minister for Information U Soe Win, and Secretary of the Leading Committee Deputy Minister for Sports U Aye Myint Kyu reported on their respective sectors on preparatory tasks.

After reviewing the reports, Vice-President Dr Sai Mauk Kham said that as success in sports is the pride of a nation Myanmar is to show off its prestige and integrity to the world by successfully holding the XXVII SEA Games in Nay Pyi Taw and achieving deserved victories in the sports events. Those present at the meeting are to carry out the tasks under the directives laid down at the meeting plus their own experience.

Managements are to be made for timely completion of neat and tidy sports grounds, gymnasiums and sports villages, equipping international level sports aids at the sports complexes and showing Nay Pyi Taw as high standard capital.

Especially, Myanmar athletes are not to decline their training tempo so as to bring prestige to the State.

All the subcommittees are to submit the thorough plans on accommodation, reception, transport, communication, health and security for the sports contingents.

In conclusion, the Vice-President stressed the need to strive for providing guests and athletes of foreign countries with progress of the nation, honesty, politeness, hospitalities, goodwill and fair cheers of encouragement of Myanmar people.

Notice on drawing monthly pensions for service personnel pensioners, political pensioners

NAY PYI TAW, 8 July — It has been announced that the pensioners are to contact pension departments (head office/branch) in person as quickly as possible together with their pension books and orders approving their pensions.

If there are no pension departments in their townships, increased pension forms can be available at township general administration offices. Those forms and pension books are to be submitted to related departments, which will issue a slip of paper proving that the related documents have been received. If pensioners cannot submit pension orders, they can submit their pension books alone.

If pensioners cannot go personally to pension departments (head office/branch) or township general administration departments for health reasons, a representative can be sent on their behalf. For the pensioners with poor health, pension departments (head office/branch) or general administration departments are to sign their increased pension forms by scrutinizing and approving that those pensioners are still alive and send them to their mother units.

Even though pensioners fail to mention all the points in the form, their increased pension forms will be accepted only with an adequate amount of evidence. The forms requiring other supplementary points are to be filled out by mother units, which can do so with the help of the Pension Department if necessary.

The Ministry of Finance and Revenue has announced that departmental personnel responsible for issuing pension forms, filling up the forms, receiving the pension forms, increased pension permits and paying monthly pensions are to carry out such procedures with goodwill for the convenience of the pensioners.—MNA

Facts about increased pension rates

The State announced on 30-6-2011 that it has increased pension rates of State service personnel pensioners and political pensioners. As those increased pension rates will start as from this month (July), not only the pensioners themselves but also the entire nation are happy and delighted with that news.

It has also been reminded that the pensioners are to contact the departments concerned in person as soon as possible together with their pension books and orders approving their pensions. These days, the Pension Department is being crowded with pensioners and their families and relatives inquiring about the details of increased pension rates. The following are the answers to the questions and other necessary noteworthy points.

1. Q: What kind of pension is included in the increased pension rates?
A: All are included such as military and civil personnel.
2. Q: Are all who started drawing pensions before 2010 entitled?
A: All who started enjoying pensions before 1-1-2010 are entitled.
3. Q: How many pensioners are there?
A: There are more than 800,000 State service personnel pensioners and more than 40,000 political pensioners.
4. Q: According to the increased pension rates, what is the minimum rate and maximum rate?
A: The minimum rate is about K 20,000 and the maximum rate, about K 110,000.
5. Q: I would like to know details about the political pensions.
A: The monthly pensions of political pensioners who started drawing pensions before 1-4-2006 will increase to the rates in proportion to civil salary rates that were increased on 1-1-2010.
6. Q: We have learned that pensioners need to go personally to departments concerned to draw their monthly pensions. So, what are the plans for old pensioners with poor health?

A: The responsible department has arranged to send an officer or representative of the department concerned to the old pensioners.

7. Q: Please explain other points on the increased pension rates for public knowledge.

A: Increased pension forms can be available free of charge at Pension Department (Head Office/Branch), township departments, enterprises and their branches. Plans have been made for pensioners to collect the forms in their native towns so that they don't need to go to the places where they started drawing pensions. If there are no mother units and branches in the towns of the pensioners, township general administrative departments will accept the forms and send them to the departments concerned.

8. Q: Is it necessary for a pensioner, who retired from Myitkyina Township Police Force and is drawing his monthly pension from Mawlamyine Bank, to submit his increased pension form to Myitkyina?

A: No, it isn't. The form can be submitted to Mawlamyine Township Police Force. It will accept the form, meet the pensioner in person and signed and send the form to the department concerned.

9. Q: For a military service personnel member, who retired from Kachin State regiment or unit and now lives in Yangon, what does he have to do to draw his pensions?

A: He has to go to Yangon Region Controller of Military Accounts (CMA). It has been coordinated with CMA.

10. Q: For some retired teachers, what do they have to do as the towns they retired from are a bit distant from the towns from where they are drawing their monthly pensions?

A: It has also been coordinated with the Ministry of Education so that they can go and contact the office of township education officer concerned.

11. Q: Is it necessary to submit an endorsement from the police force proving that a pensioner is not convicted?

A: No, it will have been approved that departments concerned will meet the pensioners in person.

12. Q: For some pensioners who have not drawn their monthly pensions for about four or five years, is it possible for them to draw their pensions again? If so, what are the procedures?

A: Yes, they can draw their pensions. They have to submit the receipt of pensioner, the receipt of drawing officer and a pensioner's fingerprint, photo and signature to the Pension Department together with the following necessities by mentioning the month they last drew their monthly pensions.

- (a) The application of a pensioner saying that he will resume drawing his monthly pensions
- (b) The reason why he failed to draw his pensions
- (c) The endorsement from the police station concerned proving that he is free from criminal changes
- (d) The endorsement from the ward administrator concerned proving whether he went abroad in that period or not

If such a kind of application with the points mentioned above comes to the Pension Department, the new permit order is to be issued by the departments concerned of the pensioners, and separate orders will be issued to Myanmar Economic Bank. Pensioners from enterprises and departments can draw their pensions with the permission of the head of department together with the abovementioned points.

Malaysian hostage crisis ends, 34 hostages safe

MUAR, 8 July—Police stormed in a local kindergarten on Thursday in Malaysia's Southern Johor State and gunned down a man who had held 30 children and four teachers hostage for several hours.

State police chief, Jalaluddin Abdul Rahman, told reporters that the man was hit by a single shot in his head and was critically injured.

"All the 30 children, aged between three and five years, and their four teachers are safe," he said.

They were currently being examined for any injuries.

The hostage-taker, said to be mentally deranged, had on Thursday morning trespassed the kindergarten with a machete and a hammer and threatened to kill the children.

Failing to persuade the man to release the hostages, police shot teargas into the kindergarten compound and entered the building before firing shots at the man.

Texas executes Mexican after US court rejects appeal

NEW YORK, 8 July — A Mexican citizen has been executed in the US state of Texas for the rape and murder of an American girl after the Supreme Court rejected a White House-backed appeal to spare the man's life. Humberto Leal Garcia, 38, received a lethal injection on Thursday evening.

The Obama administration previously said the sentence would put the US in breach of international obligations. Leal was not told he could have access to Mexican consular officials, in violation of the Vienna Convention. Roughly one hour before Leal was taken to the death chamber, the Supreme Court justices voted 5-4 to allow the sentence. — Internet

Polar bears have maternal Irish brown bear ancestors

DUBLIN, 8 July — The maternal ancestors of modern polar bears were from Ireland, according to a DNA study of ancient brown bear bones. Scientists in the UK, Ireland and the US analysed the teeth and skeletons of 17 brown bears that were found at eight cave sites across Ireland. The new research has been reported in the latest edition of Current Biology. Previously, it was believed that today's polar bears were most closely related to brown bears living on islands off the coast of Alaska.

However, analysis of mitochondrial DNA — which is passed from mother to child — has shown the extinct Irish brown bears are the ancestors of all today's polar bears, the scientists said. Their work provides evidence of the two species mating opportunistically during the past 100,000 years or more. Hybridisation has been recorded recently in the wild where grizzly bears have encroached on polar bear

China to strengthen quality supervision of six types of exports

BEIJING, 8 July — China's quality supervision agency said on Friday that the country will step up monitoring of six types of exports to crack down on infringements of intellectual property rights and counterfeiting. The six types of exports include toys, clothes, footwear, small household appliances, furniture and bags, Wang Xin, director of the department of supervision and inspection of the General Administration of Quality, Supervision, Inspection and Quarantine, said at a meeting. — Xinhua

Suicide rates in Europe 'linked' to financial crisis

LONDON, 8 July — The financial crisis "almost certainly" led to an increase in suicides across Europe, health experts say. The analysis by US and UK researchers found a rise in suicides was recorded among working age people from 2007 to 2009 in nine of the 10 nations studied. The increases varied between 5% and 17% for under 65s after a period of falling suicide rates, The Lancet reported.

Researchers said investment in welfare systems was the key to keeping rates down. In particular, they argued supporting people back into work or having programmes to stop them losing their jobs in the first place was more important than giving them benefits. The team used World Health Organization data to compare rates in the 10 countries, including the UK. — Internet

Flamingo collection a Guinness record

A Florida woman said her collection of 619 flamingo-related items has earned her a place in the Guinness Book of World Records.

Sherry Knight, of Lecanto, said she has been collecting flamingo paraphernalia for years and recently received the news that she is a Guinness World Record holder, Bay News 9, St Petersburg, reported Thursday.

Aussie couple infected with toothed worms

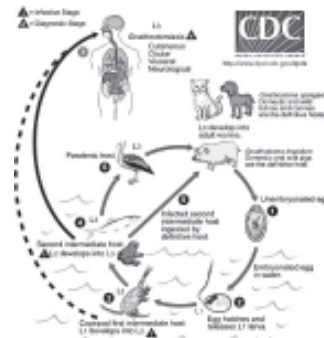

An Australian doctor said a couple in Victoria are believed to be the first in the country to become infected with a species of parasitic worms with teeth.

Dr Andrew Fuller of the Alfred hospital in Prahran said the couple are believed to have ingested the gnathostomiasis larvae when they caught and ate a fish, likely a black bream, during a Western Australia camping trip, The (Melbourne) Herald Sun reported Wednesday.

Fuller said the tiny worms have teeth allowing them to "go anywhere they like in the body."

"They move under the skin and cause itchy lumps that can make you feel sick — and it can be very hard to diagnose," the doctor said.

He said symptoms of infection include fever, muscle pain, vomiting and skin irritations resembling an orange peel.

Fuller said the couple recovered after receiving a course of antibiotics. He said he has treated the condition before, but the couple are believed to have been the first to contract the worms in Australia.

Indiana stops requiring cursive teaching

The Indiana Department of Education has issued a directive allowing schools to discontinue teaching cursive with an increased focus on keyboarding skills.

The directive said schools in the state can individually choose whether cursive teaching will cease, decrease or stay the same while students at all schools will be expected to become proficient in keyboard use, Time magazine reported Thursday.

John Legend accused of stealing song

NEW YORK, 8 July—R&B star John Legend has been accused by songwriter Anthony Stokes of ripping off his demo song. In a lawsuit filed in New Jersey, Stokes stated that he gave the tape to Legend in 2004 after a concert.

The 32-year-old promised to listen to the song, but never got back to Stokes, reports Tmz.com. The songwriter, however, insists that the track called "Maxine's Interlude", released in 2006, is a little too similar to his song "Where Are You Now?", which was on the demo. He now is demanding unspecified damages.—Internet

Nicolas Cage's daughter-in-law denies divorce talk

WASHINGTON, 8 July—Just days after Nicolas Cage's son Weston took to Facebook to announce his intention to divorce wife Nikki Williams, she has denied it and claimed that they are in rehab together following their arrest for domestic violence last weekend.

Williams, however, confirmed reports she is pregnant with the couple's first child and hinted at the fact the weekend's drama may have been sparked when Cage caught her drinking alcohol.

"I did drink the night before the arrest. I suppose my hormones got the best of me. That was the only occasion I consumed alcohol since I found out that I'm pregnant and I really regret my decision to do so," Williams told TMZ.com.

She insists her husband's divorce comments were premature, adding "We love each other very much." Williams said both she and Weston are back in rehab together.

"We are not pressing charges against each other and we are working through our issues," she added.—Internet

Imogen Thomas loses 5K pounds in bank account theft

LONDON, 8 July—Imogen Thomas has suffered a loss of 5,000 pounds - thanks to the swindlers who pumped out the amount from her bank account.

The 28-year-old ex-lover of Man United ace Ryan Giggs only came to know about the theft after coming back home from a week in the US, reports the Sun.

The 'shocked' former 'Big Brother' housemate reported the theft to her bank, which called in the cops. The accused offenders reportedly used the model's card details to gamble thousands on websites.—Internet

Lazio close to Cisse signing, says Reja

French international striker Djibril Cisse

ROME, 8 July—French international striker Djibril Cisse is poised to join Lazio from Greek giants Panathinaikos, the Roman club's coach Edy Reja confirmed on Thursday. "(Cisse) has always been our top target, but first we need one of our strikers to find another team," said Reja. "Usually I only talk about players who have officially been transferred, but if he does come, we'll have a player capable of making a difference." Lazio are reportedly looking to sell their Argentine forward Mauro Zarate.

According to the Italian news agency Ansa, 29-year-old Cisse will arrive for a fee of six million euros ($8.6m) and will signing a four-year contract worth 2.1 million euros per season. The former Liverpool striker would become Lazio's sixth summer signing, after German striker Miroslav Klose, Italian goalkeeper Federico Marchetti, Albanian midfielder Lorik Cana, Bosnian full-back Senad Lulic and French full-back Abdoulay Konko.

Zidane to be Real Madrid sporting director

REAL MADRID, 8 July—French great Zinedine Zidane said on Thursday he will be the new sporting director of Real Madrid's first team next season. The 39-year-old former midfielder, who played for Real between 2001 and 2006, has been a special advisor to club president Florentino Perez since 2009, helping create a link between the squad and the Bernabeu management. "I will be the first team's sporting director," Zidane told reporters on the sidelines of a charity match in Madrid.

The three-time FIFA World Player of the Year said he was still not sure what his functions would be, although Spanish media said it would involve working more closely with Real coach Jose Mourinho. "We will see. Everyone asks me the same thing," he said, add-

US 2020 Olympic bid still possible

DURBAN, 8 July—US and international Olympic leaders made progress in negotiations on a new revenue-sharing deal Thursday that could lead to a last-minute American bid for the 2020 Summer Games, officials from both sides told The Associated Press. The International Olympic Committee and US Olympic Committee held a new round of talks aimed at resolving the financial issues that have strained relations for years and contributed to defeats for New York for the 2012 Games and Chicago for 2016.

"It was constructive and positive and there's a strong desire on both sides to find something that's going to work for everybody," USOC CEO Scott Blackmun told the AP.

Blackmun and USOC chairman Larry Probst met for more than hour over lunch with a delegation including IOC executive board members Gerhard Heiberg and Richard Carrión and director general Christophe De Kepper.

Americans: Quarterfinals or final, bring on Brazil

DRESDEN, 8 July—The Americans can read a draw as well as anyone else. To win a third World Cup title, they were going to have to see Brazil at some point. OK, so it's happening earlier than they expected. But quarterfinals or the final, the Americans insist they're ready for Brazil and dynamic playmaker Marta. Excited about it, too.

"Obviously nobody wants to lose in a World Cup," Lauren Cheney said on Thursday. "We're still smiling, we're still enjoying this journey. Our belief in each other is unbelievable. No matter what happens, we believe we can make it and carry on. That's what we did. From the coaching staff on down, we all still have a lot of confidence."

The expectation all along has been that the top-ranked Americans would win their group, setting up a showdown with two-time defending champion Germany in the semifinals. Win that game, and the US would play Brazil for yet another title — this one at the World Cup. The US beat Brazil to win the gold medal at the last two Olympic Games; Brazil was runner-up at the 2007 World Cup after knocking the Americans out in the semifinals.

Leonardo says PSG talks will take time

PARIS, 8 July—Leonardo confirmed on Thursday that he is in talks to become the new sporting director of Paris Saint-Germain but said he did not know how long the negotiations would take. During a Press conference at San Siro here, the Brazilian said he opened talks "four days ago" with representatives from Qatar Sports Investments (QSI), who recently acquired a controlling 70 percent stake in the club.

"In France, they say: 'Leonardo's coming, he's not coming...'" But I've spoken to the (PSG) directors and there are so many things to see and discuss that I don't know how long it will take." Leonardo, who played for PSG in the 1996-97 season, was officially released from his contract as Inter Milan coach last week. "(Inter president Massimo) Moratti has treated me like a son," added Leonardo.—Internet

Club America beats Timbers 1-0 in int'l exhibition

PORTLAND, 8 July—Angel Reyna scored the game's only goal in the 16th minute and Club America beat the Portland Timbers 1-0 in an international exhibition match Thursday night.

With a Major League Soccer rivalry game coming up Sunday at home against Seattle, the Timbers rested most of their starters against Club America.

During the ninth minute, Vicente Sanchez ripped a shot that Timbers goalie Adin Brown tipped away with a finger. Four minutes later, Daniel Montenegro blasted a 20-yard shot that got past Brown but hit the left post.

Club America's early assault eventually paid off. During the 16th minute, Sanchez crossed a ball to Reyna, who nailed a 10-yard shot past Brown for a 1-0 lead.

Equatorial Guinea boss dreams of Brazil job

DRESDEN, 8 July—Equatorial Guinea coach Marcello Frigerio admitted he would love to one day lead the national team of his native Brazil and praised the performance of his captain Anonman at the 2011 Women's World Cup. The Brazilian-Italian coach, who took over from Jean-Paul Mpila in March, said hearing the Brazilian national anthem before the Equatorial Guinea v Brazil Group D match had a special meaning.

"When they played the Brazilian national anthem that was a special moment for me because it's the national anthem of my home country," said the 40-year-old Frigerio also admitted it would be a huge honour to hear the anthem as boss of the Brazilian national team. "Of course that's the goal of everyone - to be the coach of the Brazilian national team," said Frigerio.—Internet

Germany confident ahead of WCup quarters

LEVERKUSEN, 8 July—Host nation Germany has a favorable path toward the women's World Cup final as it looks for an unprecedented third straight title. Brazil and the United States play each other in perhaps the most intriguing quarterfinal matchup in Dresden on Sunday, and Germany will not have to meet the winner unless both make the final. The Germans still face a tough task against fourth-ranked Japan in Wolfsburg on Saturday. Germany has a "good chance of winning", according to goalkeeper Nadine Angerer. But she added: "We shouldn't be careless and think everything will easily go to plan."

Birgit Prinz, the tournament's all-time top scorer with 14 goals, is unlikely to start after her poor showing in Germany's first two games. "I don't think I'll be playing from the start," the 33-year-old striker said.
