Build peaceful and prosperous society

Today is time to build a new nation through democracy with the fulfillments in political, economic, social, education and health sectors. Earnest efforts are to be made to overcome various challenges while grasping the good opportunity.

The government has been carrying out the tasks for public wellbeing and economic opportunity in over fourth months after being elected by the public. Especially, efforts are being made in undertaking the tasks for enabling the rural farmers, odd-job earners and vendors in urban and rural areas to enjoy the benefits.

In meeting with responsible persons from economic and social fields, associations and organizations in Nay Pyi Taw on 17 August, President U Thein Sein pointed out, "Upholding Our Three Main National Causes, we will address the issue in accordance with the constitution. Any individuals and organizations in the nation that have different views from the government should not take account of disagreements and we always invite them to work with us for common goals in the national interests."

Myanmar is a Union constituted with mini-unions. Myanmar is teeming with natural resources blessed with farourable weather and fertile soil. It is owned by all the citizens. All the people are responsible for safeguarding the nation not to lose national unity and solidarity that has been flourishing for many years. All the people are to be peaceful and prosperous for the nation and need to build a fine society for generation to follow.

In the successive periods, our country had to take so long time, dealing with issues of instability and unrest, which was merely a sheer waste of time. All the people lost so long precious time to strive for development of the State. Today, all the people should have stopped quarreling with each other, and individuals and organizations should no longer find fault and put blame on each other.

While building the nation in new era, all honest and innocent persons with good attitude love the mother land. All the national people living in the same place through thick and thin are to build a peaceful and prosperous society through full strength of solidarity.

Russia's 5G fighter makes first demonstration flight

MOSCOW, 18 Aug—Russia's Sukhoi T-50 fifth generation fighter performed its first demonstration flight at an international aviation show Wednesday.

Experts at the MAKS 2011 International Aviation and Space Show said the pilots did not perform any acrobatic stunts because the plane was still going through a series of test flights.

It was important for the manufacturers to show that "the plane no longer exists just on paper, but is fleshed out in metal and up in the air". The T-50, developed under the programme Future Aviation System for Tactical Air Force at Sukhoi, will be the jewel in the Russian air force crown.

The service has relied on the Mikoyan MiG-29 and Sukhoi Su-27 family of combat aircraft as the core of its fighter force since the mid-1980s, but these aircraft are seen as approaching obsolescence, officials said.

The T-50 is Russia's first new major combat aircraft designed since the fall of the Soviet Union. When an operational fighter based on it is put into service, possibly as soon as 2015, it will be the Russian Air Force's first stealth aircraft, featuring low-observable technology that makes it almost impossible to detect with radar.

Like its US counterpart, the F-22 Raptor, it will be able to cruise at supersonic speeds, and be capable of pulling high-G manoeuvres that older aircraft cannot match thanks to thrust-vectoring exhaust nozzles and a hit-tech flight control system.

The T-50 made its first flight at the Komsomolsk-on-Amur factory airfield in Siberia in January, and since then two prototypes have been undergoing flight tests at the Zhukovsky flight test centre near Moscow.

Four police officers killed in explosion in Colombia

BOGOTA, 18 Aug—Four police officers were killed and three others were wounded on Wednesday when an explosive device went off in Narino Province, in southern Colombia, bordering Ecuador.

The incident, occurring five days after a similar device exploded near the Colombia-Ecuador border, killed three policemen and one policewoman when they were driving in Inda Zabaleta to set up a checkpoint.

The three injured were receiving medical attention in hospital.

According to the primary investigation, the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC), the country's largest rebel group, was blamed for the attack, which was believed to be an act of revenge for the arrest of one of its members.

The government was to set up a special security council to find out the culprit and strengthen regional security.

Children with kidney disease face many health woes

NEW YORK, 18 Aug—Poor growth, heart problems and delays in puberty are among the problems experienced by children with mild to moderately impaired kidney function, new research says.

The study of 586 children with chronic kidney disease also found that even when some of them took medications to treat these health problems, including high blood pressure and metabolic issues, the conditions became more common as kidney function decreased.

The study appears online in the August issue of the Clinical Journal of the American Society of Nephrology.

"We were hoping to identify risk factors for CKD progression and see if these can be targeted to slow the decline of kidney function and prevent its complications," study author Dr Susan Furth, of the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, said in a journal news release.

"Our findings suggest that more aggressive interventions to improve blood pressure and metabolic abnormalities may be areas where interventions could slow chronic kidney disease progression and decrease the prevalence of cardiovascular disease in children and young adults with chronic kidney disease," Furth said.

The next step for Furth and colleagues is to use the findings from this study to design clinical trials with more aggressive interventions.—INTERNET

Chew Sugarless Gum

Bacteria that contribute to dental plaque crave sugar. These bacteria produce plaque acids that aid in tooth decay by breaking down tooth enamel.

Chewing sugarless gum, however, can help promote a healthier mouth, the American Dental Association says. The ADA mentions these possible benefits of chewing sugarless gum:

Chewing helps boost the production of saliva, which can help wash away acids that can damage teeth.

Increased saliva includes more calcium and phosphate, which can help strengthen tooth enamel.

Sugarless gum contains sweeteners — such as aspartame, sorbitol or mannitol — that don't contribute to cavities.—INTERNET

US FDA approves new drug for skin cancer

WASHINGTON, 18 Aug—The US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) on Wednesday approved Zelboraf (vemurafenib) to treat patients with late-stage (metastatic) or unresectable (cannot be removed by surgery) melanoma, the most dangerous type of skin cancer.

Zelboraf is specifically indicated for the treatment of patients with melanoma whose tumours express a gene mutation called BRAF V600E. The BRAF protein is normally involved in regulating cell growth, but is mutated in about half of the patients with late-stage melanomas. Zelboraf is a BRAF inhibitor that is able to block the function of the V600E-mutated BRAF protein.

The FDA approved the drug based on a 675-patient study in which patients received either Zelboraf or a chemotherapy drug. The study is ongoing, but 77 percent of people on Zelboraf are still alive, compared with 64 percent of those taking the older drug.

The most common side effects reported in patients receiving Zelboraf included joint pain, rash, hair loss, fatigue, nausea, and skin sensitivity when exposed to the sun, according to the FDA. Zelboraf is marketed by South San Francisco based-Genentech, a member of the Roche Group.

What's the age of the moon? It could be waning

WASHINGTON, 18 Aug—That old moon might not be as antique as we thought, some scientist think. They say it's possible that it isn't a day over 4.4 billion years old.

But other astronomers disagree with a new study's conclusions. They think the moon is up to its typical age-defying tricks and is really pushing 4.6 billion as they have suspected all these years.

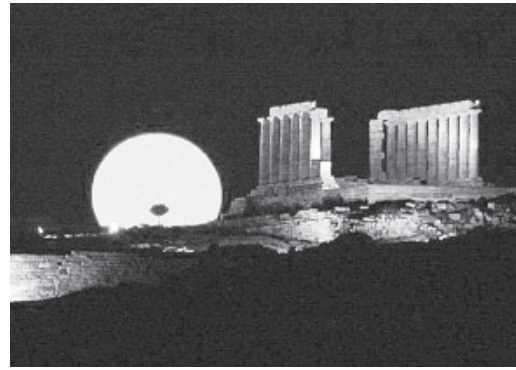

Either way, the new analysis of an important moon rock brought back by the Apollo 16 mission is showing that the moon isn't ready to give up its true age and origins quite yet, even though scientists thought they had it all figured out a decade or two ago.

"It's not as ancient as we might think," said study chief author Lars Borg, a geochemist at the Lawrence Livermore National Lab. His study appears online Wednesday in the journal Nature.

The study uses new techniques and radioactive isotopes of lead and other elements to date the moon rock at 4.4 billion years old. What's key is that this is a special type of rock that would have floated up to the moon's crust soon after its theorized ocean of molten rock cooled.

That supposedly happened soon after the moon formed as a result of a spectacular crash between Earth and a planet. The chunks that broke off formed the moon.

That means there are two possibilities, Borg said. Either the moon is 200 million years younger or the accepted theory of a molten rock ocean on the moon is wrong, he said.

Borg acknowledges that some moon rocks have been dated at nearly 4.6 billion years old. But those conclusions could be wrong because of weaker rock dating techniques used in the past, he said.

Science 'Living fossil' eel found in Pacific Ocean

WASHINGTON, 18 Aug—US scientists say a remarkably primitive eel has been discovered living in a reef off the coast of the Republic of Palau in the Pacific Ocean.

Researchers at the Smithsonian and partnering organizations say the fish they've dubbed a "living fossil" exhibits many primitive anatomical features unknown in the other 19 families and more than 800 species of living eels, and have classified it a new species belonging to a new genus and family.

and fewer than 90 vertebrae have only been found in fossil forms from the Cretaceous period 140 million to 65 million years ago, a Smithsonian release reported Wednesday.

"The equivalent of this primitive eel, in fishes, has perhaps not been seen since the discovery of the coelacanth in the late 1930s," said Dave Johnson, ichthyologist at the Smithsonian's National Museum of Natural History.

"We believe that such a long, independent evolutionary history, dating back to the early Mesozoic [about 200 million years ago], retention of several primitive anatomical features and apparently restricted distribution, warrant its recognition as a living fossil.

"The discovery of this extraordinary and beautiful new species of eel underscores how much more there is to learn about our planet. Furthermore, it brings home the critical importance of future conservation efforts—currently this species is known from only 10 specimens collected from a single cave in Palau."

Skype WiFi app offers iOS users cheap global net access

WASHINGTON, 18 Aug—Skype has announced news of Skype WiFi (basically a rebranding of Skype Access) with the launch of a new iOS app, available for free from Apple's App Store.

The app enables iPhone, iPad and iPod touch owners to connect to the Internet via a million WiFi hotspots worldwide at places such as hotels, airports, train stations, convention centres, bars and restaurants.

The service isn't free, but the rates are very competitive (from $0.06 per min), with charges being made through your Skype Credit account. You only pay for the time you're online, not the amount of data you use.

In a blog post on Wednesday, Skype's Shadi Mahassel wrote: "Skype WiFi is great for travelers all over the world: It's a must-have app, for your iPhone or iPad whether you're on a business trip or enjoying holidays abroad." He added: "Paying on a per-minute basis for WiFi Internet access is great when you're abroad as you can avoid data roaming charges when you update Facebook, send a tweet, make a Skype call or upload photos."

How useful will the app be? Well, maybe not so much in the US, where a great many restaurants, cafes and the like already offer Internet access, and free access at that. Outside the US, however, such a service is not quite so widespread, so it's during those business trips or vacations in other countries that you might find yourself tapping into the service.

Those interested in Skype WiFi can try out the new app for free from 7pm ET Friday August 19 to 7pm Sunday 21 August, for a maximum of 60 minutes.

To use Skype WiFi, all you need to have is a Skype account and some Skype credit – and of course, a Skype WiFi hotspot.—Internet

New York City testing "pay by phone" parking metres

NEW YORK, 18 Aug—New York City is rolling out support for a Web-based initiative that ties text messaging and smartphone apps into making payments on expiring parking metres.

and visitors to the Big Apple will be able to send a text message with the metre number and purchase time for that metre. The city will also provide access through an app if users are on a smartphone, although text messaging works as well. The city is rolling out initial support for 300 parking metres that will be tested over a one-year pilot programme in a busy commercial area in the outer boroughs.

While there are plenty of meters in the city that take credit cards, the Web service also alerts users by text when the parking meter is about to expire. Users can simply increase the amount of time on the metre, up to the maximum allowed limit, with a text or purchase within the application. This technology will make it more difficult for users to continue feeding meters beyond the maximum time as there's a timestamp when the initial purchase was made. Parking enforcement officers could hypothetically tie into a city-wide network of the metres to be alerted when metres are going to expire. If the web service also requires models of cars to be registered, parking enforcement could halt people manually feeding metres after the initial purchase through the service.—Internet

Sustainable energy structure highly needed

BEIJING, 18 Aug—As one of the world's largest energy consumers, China faces the urgent task of creating a sustainable energy structure.

Coal currently plays a dominant part in China's energy consumption, making up 70 percent of its fuel consumption. However in developed countries, it only accounts for 30 percent. It is 40% higher than the world's average. In sharp contrast, nuclear power accounts for less than 1 percent of total consumption, 5 percent lower than the world's average.

While natural gas, accounts for nearly 4 percent of consumption, around a fifth lower than the world's average. Oil accounts for less than 20 percent of consumption, 16 percent less than the global average. But, oil imports exceeded 200-million tons for the first time last year, signaling a dependency rate of more than 50 percent.

Texas teen claiming to be 500-yr-old vampire bites woman

WASHINGTON, 18 Aug—A teenager has been jailed in Texas after breaking into a stranger's apartment and biting her neck, asserting he was a 500-year-old vampire who "needed to feed".

According to Houston Chronicle, police in Galveston arrested 19-year-old Lyle Monroe Bensley last weekend on charges of burglary with intent to commit assault.

Police told the newspaper that the accused was wearing only a pair of boxer shorts when he forced his way into the 50-year-old woman's apartment, whom he did not know, making growling and hissing noises while biting and hitting the victim in her bed.

The victim luckily escaped with minor injuries and called the police, who arrested the "needed to feed" vampire in the parking lot of the apartment complex.

"He was begging us to restrain him because he didn't want to kill us," Fox News quoted Galveston Officer Daniel Erickson as saying.

"He said he needed to feed. 'I'm a vampire and I've been alive for over 500 years,'" Bensley reportedly told the police.

Landslide kills three miners in gold-rich S Philippine village

DAVAO CITY, 18 Aug—Three people have been killed when a landslide hit a mining village in southern Philippines, police said on Thursday.

Search and rescue operations by police and soldiers are continuing for other possible victims following the landslide in Manurigao Village, New Bataan Town, in Mindanao's minerals-rich Compostela Valley after 7 pm Tuesday, according to Superintendent Jose Carumba, spokesperson of the Davao regional police. The victims, all small-time miners, were resting inside their tent when part of the mountain collapsed, burying them amid a heavy downpour, Carumba told Xinhua by

US to invest 510 M dollars in advanced biofuels

WASHINGTON, 18 Aug — US will invest up to $510 million over three years to promote the production of biofuels for marine and aerial transportation. "Biofuels are an important part of reducing America's dependence on foreign oil and creating jobs here at home," President Barack Obama said in a communique released Tuesday by the White House. "But supporting biofuels cannot be the role of government alone.

That's why we're partnering with the private sector to speed development of next-generation biofuels that will help us continue to take steps towards energy independence and strengthen communities across our country," he said. The project will focus on "drop-in" biofuels, so called because they can be processed using current refining and distribution infrastructure. Advanced biofuels are liquids with high energy content obtained from crops requiring low levels of fertilizers and have high productivity per hectare, as well as from agricultural and logging waste plus other biomass matter including algae.

Some experts believe that advanced biofuels will soon outstrip corn-based ethanol as a component of the fuel supply for transportation in the US.—Internet

Death toll in Ecuador from adulterated alcohol rises to 45

QUITO, 18 Aug—Ecuador's Health Ministry said Wednesday the death toll from consuming adulterated alcohol has climbed to 45, while another 161 were hospitalized for intoxication.

The Health Ministry said in a statement that 10 more people have been reported dead in the Andean Provinces of Tungurahua and Azuay during the past few days.

The incident first occurred on 14 July in the coastal town of Urdaneta in Los Rios Province, where eight were initially reported dead after drinking alcohol contaminated with methanol while celebrating traditional holidays. Adulterated alcohol has caused deaths in nine of Ecuador's 24 Provinces, causing 11 deaths in Tungurahua, 10 in Azuay, two in Guayas, one in Pichincha and one more in Manabi. "These cases are being kept under observation," the Health Ministry said, advising one to stop consuming homemade alcohol because of the danger of being poisoned.

China's search giant Baidu under fire on ads

BEIJING, 18 Aug—Chinese internet giant, Baidu, has come under fire for its search ads.

In a special report by CCTV, the nation's dominant search engine was found to have promoted the registration of fake websites on its search platform, leading to fraud. Now, Baidu could be facing tougher rules at a time when it is cementing its dominance of the booming internet market.

Since the report was broadcast, shares of the Nasdaq-listed company have tanked - losing nearly a tenth of its value, or 5 billion US dollars in just two days. Baidu has built its share of China's search market up to over 70 percent since Google's high-profile exit last year.

However, some analysts remain optimistic, saying the steep fall in Baidu's share price is likely to be short-term, and they say the company is still a buy unless regulators decide to introduce measures "which will limit its ability to monetise its search platform".

Marshall Islands report blames behavior for BP spill

Oil is burned off the surface of the water near the source of Deepwater Horizon oil spill where BP will begin to test a new cap placed over the leak in the Gulf of Mexico off the Louisiana coast on 13 July, 2010.

INTERNET

WASHINGTON, 18 Aug—Failure to react to repeated signs of problems with BP Plc's Macondo oil well in the Gulf of Mexico and bypassing basic well control standards caused last year's deadly blowout, the flag state for the drilling rig that exploded and sank said on Wednesday.

The Marshall Islands, where Transocean Ltd registered the doomed Deepwater Horizon rig, also said in a report on its investigation that failure to follow well abandonment plans approved by US regulators played a part.

The rupture and explosion killed 11 workers and spewed more than 4 million barrels of crude into the Gulf in the worst-ever US offshore oil spill.

The report did not specifically blame any of the companies involved, from well owner BP and driller Transocean to blowout preventer maker Cameron International Corp and well-sealing cement maker Halliburton.

By sharp contrast, the Coast Guard and US Bureau of Ocean Energy Management in April released a draft report citing serious safety lapses by Transocean in the lead-up to the accident.

Transocean has strongly disputed those conclusions.

Bill Gallagher, the Marshall Islands' senior deputy commissioner of maritime affairs, told Reuters in an interview that his agency's report was meant to "put forth some observations to the International Maritime Organization" to suggest possible changes to enhance rig safety.

Animals for Safari Park...

for the news about the arrivals of the animals.

By good fortune, I had an opportunity to meet Director U Zaw Min of the Zoological Gardens Division and party at the parlour of the Zoological Gardens (Nay Pyi Taw). I noticed a foreigner accompanying them. I later learnt that he was Mr. Mike Bester who exported the animals to Myanmar.

When asked about the animals kept in the zoological gardens and the fresh arrivals of the animals, Director U Zaw Min said that the animals were delivered on the direct flight of Boeing cargo aircraft from South Africa; that the airplane arrived there over 8 am on 9 August; that as soon as the airplane arrived at the airport, the animals were delivered directly to respective zoological gardens; and that the animals totaled 58.

The animals are two male and four female white lions, one male and three female brown lions, a pair of white tigers, two male and two female yellow tigers, two male and four female giraffes, a pair of hippopotamuses, three male Gnu species deer and nine female deer, four male Nyala species deer and eight female deer, six female zebras, one male and three female ostriches; totaling 17 male and 41 female animals.

He said that white lions, Gnu deer and Nyala deer were new species to Myanmar; that an order was placed for them for public study, and other animals were for reproduction; that many species of animals were on the verge of extinction and some had been extinct; that therefore, world countries kept animals not only for public study but also for their reproduction; that processes for reproduction of animals were being carried out in the zoological gardens and the Safari Park in the nation; that animals produced from closely related members of the same family may be physically-handicapped and blind with poor genes since born, so those animals were imported to avoid inbreeding.

New generation white lions.

Of the arrivals, one male and three female white lions, a pair of white tigers, one male and three female ostriches and a pair of hippopotamuses will be kept in the Zoological Gardens (Nay Pyi Taw); two female brown lionesses, Gnu deer, Nyala deer, zebras and the remaining ostriches, in the Safari Park; brown lions and a pair each of brown lions and white tigers, in the Zoological Gardens (Yangon); and a pair each of brown lions and white tigers, in Zoological Gardens (Yadanabon).

He said that all the animals had been sent to respective zoological gardens; that a pair more of white lions and a pair more of ostriches would be sent to the Zoological Gardens (Yangon); that then, they were kept in the Zoological Gardens (Nay Pyi Taw); that the houses and pastures were being built temporarily in the Zoological Gardens (Yangon) and they had planned to send the animals as soon as the building of the animal houses and pastures were built.

The animals imported from South Africa are the second batch. Those of the first batch have been sent to Nay Pyi Taw since 29 November 2010. The first batch comprises 60 animals of giraffes, white rhinos, zebras, ostriches, Barbary Sheep, camels, brown lions, Inparla deer and kangaroos.

Mr. Mike Bester said that he arrived in the nation on the same flight to help zookeepers with keeping the animals and keeping methods; that he was accompanied by a veterinary surgeon; they would stay in Myanmar for about one week till the that time, the majority of the trees were just grown.

Administrator Deputy Director of the Safari Park U Ye Htut said that previous to the park, there were not many trees in the park; that many trees were grown to set up the park; and that that rainy season, it rained a lot and trees grew very fast and the area was overgrown with trees and shrubs. In the park, animals such as Asian deer, domesticated wild oxen, kangaroos, white rhinos, camels, giraffes, ostriches, zebras, Barbary Sheep, tigers and lions are kept in national conditions.

Asian deer were found running here and there out of joy. The park is like Migadavun Forest. Kangaroos were coming towards us to welcome us. Then, we visited the houses of Gnu deer and Nyala deer that have different colours and appearances

New arrival giraffes.

Some of the animals to be sent to Myanmar were hunted in the jungle in Africa, and some were chosen pedigree ones from zoological gardens and Safari Park in Africa; that the animals were kept quarantines for about three months to ensure that they were free from infectious diseases and other diseases; and that only after the processes were the animals sent by air to Myanmar, he added.

Director U Zaw Min and party and I then went to the Safari Park, which is lush and green with trees and woodlands, like a natural forest. The park was opened on 12 February (Union Day) this year. At the places where they go to, rest, eat and sleep; that in next several days, they would be kept in natural conditions; and that the new arrivals would be on display for public study when they got used to the places.

Then, we made an around-the-park trip. The park is in national conditions with plains, slopes and hills and mole hills. Giraffes and zebras were in groups in their pastures. The male Barbary Sheep with long mane and long antlers was lying for a rest with his female mates.

Mr. Mike Bester said that both the Zoological Gardens and Safari Park in Nay Pyi Taw were attracting visitors and animal houses were kept really clean; that he wanted to take his zookeepers from his own zoo to the gardens and park to observe them; and that he was very pleased to see that zookeepers kept animals with loving-kindness.

Pointing to the giraffes, zebras and ostriches, he said that the animals of the first batch were growing fast and were in good health; that nurturing process and correct places are important for their good health; that the park has a perfect natural area; and that in particular, the man-made rock mountain and caves for Barbary Sheep were very good.

Inside a house were a pair of white lions. They are the first of their species to Myanmar. They will soon be sent to Yangon.

It was very pleasant to view giraffes in the Zoological Gardens (Nay Pyi Taw) with high natural mountain ranges in the back ground. They seemed still strange to the places and people. Hippopotamuses were found cooling themselves in a pool. Mr. Mike Bester said that he had ever seen only two natural booths for hippopotamuses in the world: one in the Zoological Gardens (Nay Pyi Taw) and another, in Bush Garden Park in the US.

We then visited the tiger houses. The male tiger is about three years old, and the tigress, about two and a half years old. Both of them are larger in size than white ones.

The Zoological Gardens (Nay Pyi Taw) keeps 547 heads of 86 species of mammals, birds and reptiles. The new arrival of animals has brought the animal population in the gardens to 559. The number of animals in Safari Park (Nay Pyi Taw) has increased from 183 to 219; that in the Zoological Gardens (Yangon), to 1101; and that in Yadanabon Zoological Gardens, to 663. The animals kept in the zoological gardens and the Safari Park number 2542 of 175 species.

Previously, the Zoological Gardens (Yangon) had only one giraffe. It will soon receive a pair more of giraffes and a pair more of white lions.

Before long, the people can watch new species of animals in the Zoological Gardens (Nay Pyi Taw).

Florida police foil bomb plot at Tampa school

TAMPA, 18 Aug—Florida police said on Wednesday they arrested a 17-year-old who had material to make pipe bombs at his home and had planned to attack and cause mass casualties at the Tampa high school that had expelled him.

"We were probably able to thwart a potentially catastrophic event the likes of which the City of Tampa has not seen and hopefully never will," Tampa Police Chief Jane Castor told a news Conference.

Police named the suspect, who was detained and charged on Tuesday, as Jared Cano, 17, and said his target was Freedom High School in Hillsborough County.

Castor said Cano had hoped "to cause more casualties than were suffered at Columbine." In April 1999, two students at Columbine High School in Colorado killed 12 students and one teacher in one of the deadliest school massacres in US history.

Tampa police, acting on an informant's tip, learned that Cano had planned his attack for the first day of classes next week, Castor said. Cano has been arrested in the past on various charges including burglary and carrying a concealed weapon, police said.

Police searched Cano's home and found pipe bomb material including fuel sources, shrapnel, plastic tubing and timing and fusing devices. They also found a journal with drawings of rooms in the school and statements apparently indicating his intention to carry out a deadly attack, authorities said.—Reuters

Chavez to nationalize Venezuelan gold industry

CARACAS, 18 Aug—Venezuela will nationalize its gold industry and is moving its international reserves out of Western countries, President Hugo Chavez said on Wednesday in a combative step ahead of his re-election bid next year.

The moves will make the finances of South America's biggest oil exporter even murkier as the 57-year-old socialist leader gears up for an election battle that was already looking close even before he was recently diagnosed with cancer.

Chavez has put large parts of Venezuela's economy under state control and is now targeting the gold industry after his government quarreled with foreign companies who complained that limits on how much gold they could export hurt their efforts to secure financing and develop projects.

"I'm going to approve a law to begin taking the gold areas, and there I count on (the military) because there continues to be anarchy, mafias, smuggling."

Toronto-listed Rusoro, owned by Russia's Agapov family, is the only large gold miner operating in Venezuela. It produced about 100,000 ounces of gold in Venezuela last year.

Importation of New Zealand apples threaten Australia's local industry

CANBERRA, 18 Aug—Australian Nationals Party Senate leader Barnaby Joyce on Thursday warned that importation of New Zealand apples will threaten local fruit industry.

A ban on importation of New Zealand apples into Australia has been in place since 1921, following an outbreak of fireblight in 1919. Biosecurity Australia on Wednesday gave approval for the importation of New Zealand apples into Australia.

Joyce said the Nationals fear the decision threatens the health of

Hendra virus claims three more horses in Australia's New South Wales

SYDNEY, 18 Aug—Three more horses have died from the Hendra virus on the New South Wales (NSW) north coast of Australia, the NSW Department of Primary Industries confirmed on Thursday.

Two horses have died on a South Ballina property and one horse has died on a Mullumbimby property, Ian Roth, the Chief Veterinary Officer from the NSW Department of Primary Industries, said on Thursday.

The Department of Primary Industries has quarantined both properties after the horses died.

The latest cases follow the death of another horse at a different property near Ballina on Monday, where two other horses were also deemed to be at risk and continue to be monitored.

Roth said seven properties in NSW had now been affected by the Hendra virus. "It's critical horse owners maintain vigilance against this virus," he said in a statement.

The most recent deaths bring the total number of horses killed by the virus in the state in the past eight weeks to nine. Another 10 Hendra-infected horses in Queensland have died or been put down since 20 June, 2011.

More than 60 people have been reportedly tested for Hendra across NSW and Queensland.

The virus is spread from flying foxes to horses and, rarely, from horses to people.

In one case in Queensland it was transmitted from horses to a dog. "Four remaining horses on the South Ballina property and one horse at the Mullumbimby property are currently showing no signs of illness and will be monitored twice daily, Roth said on Thursday.

"People should keep horses away from fruiting and flowering trees that might attract fruit bats or other areas where bats are known to congreg-ate".—Xinhua

Doctors: Shark likely bit US tourist in PRico

SAN JUAN, 18 Aug—A US tourist who was swimming at night in a bioluminescent bay is recovering from a suspected shark bite that occurred in a tiny island near Puerto Rico, a doctor said Wednesday.

The woman underwent surgery for severed tendons near her ankle and is expected to recover, said Dr Edwin Miranda, a spokesman for the Rio Piedras Medical Centre, where the victim was treated.

He said doctors believe the bite may have been caused by a shark, but they are awaiting analysis from a marine biologist Thursday.

Authorities didn't release the woman's name. The newspaper El Nuevo Dia described her as a 27-year-old woman from Idaho who was traveling alone, according to an acquaintance of hers in Puerto Rico.

Marine experts said they suspected a shark was to blame based on descriptions of the extent of the injuries, although they had not seen pictures of the bite. The woman was bitten late Tuesday while swimming at Mosquito Bay in Vieques, an island popular with tourists just east of Puerto Rico.

Three die of rare brain infection from amoeba in water

ATLANTA, 18 Aug—Two children and a young man have died this summer from a brain-eating amoeba that lives in water, health officials say.

This month, the rare infection killed a 16-year-old Florida girl, who fell ill after swimming, and a 9-year-old Virginia boy, who died a week after he went to a fishing day camp. The boy had been dunked the first day of camp, his mother told the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Those cases are consistent with past cases, which are usually kids — often boys — who get exposed to the bug while swimming or doing water sports in warm ponds or lakes. The third case, in Louisiana, was more unusual. It was a young man whose death in June was traced to the tap water he used in a device called a neti pot. It's a small teapot-shaped container used to rinse out the nose and sinuses with salt water to relieve allergies, colds and sinus trouble. Health officials later found the amoeba in the home's water system.

The problem was confined to the house; it wasn't found in city water samples, said Dr Raoult Ratard, Louisiana's state epidemiologist.—Internet

Obesity does not necessarily mean poor health

BEIJING, 18 Aug—It is widely accepted that obesity leads to an increased risk of health complications, but new studies quoted by media Tuesday challenge the conventional notion.

"Our studies challenge the idea that all obese individuals need to lose weight," said Dr Jennifer Kuk, assistant professor in York University's School of Kinesiology & Health Science in Toronto.

One of the studies used data from the Aerobics Centre Longitudinal Study consisting of 29,533 individuals and assessed their mortality in 16 years.

It found no difference in death risks between normal-weight individuals and obese ones. "Since the obese people did not have greater risk of dying than normal weight individuals, they don't need to lose weight," said Dr Kuk.—Xinhua

S Koreans sue Apple over iPhone user information

SEOUL, 18 Aug—A group of some 27,000 South Koreans is suing Apple for $26 million for what they claim are privacy violations from the collection of iPhone user location information.

Each person in the suit is seeking 1 million won ($932) in damages, Kim Hyeong-seok, one of their attorneys, said Wednesday. He said they are targeting Apple Inc and its South Korean unit to "protect privacy" rights.

Apple spokesman Steve Park in Seoul declined to comment. Apple has faced complaints and criticisms since it said in April that its iPhones were storing locations of nearby cellphone towers and Wi-Fi hot spots for up to a year. Such data can be used to create a rough map of the device owner's movements.

Police seek owner of prosthetic leg

Police in Wisconsin said they are hoping someone will come forward with information about a prosthetic leg discovered in a neighbourhood in the early morning.

The Menasha Police Department said the leg was turned over to an officer by a woman who discovered it in the 1000 block of Ninth Street between 4:30 am and 5:30 am 4 Aug, the Appleton Post-Crescent reported Wednesday.

"The leg is a prosthetic leg with a black shoe on the bottom of the leg," the police report states. Officer Aaron Zemlock said the leg has been in the police evidence room for nearly two weeks and no one has come forward to claim it.

"It's certainly a very odd situation," he said. "My understanding is they are pretty expensive. 'It does not appear as though we are doing any follow-up unless someone comes forward and reports (the leg) missing,'" Zemlock said.

Man facing charges over pigeons

A Massachusetts man accused of failing to get rid of hundreds of pigeons said he got rid of the coops but the birds came back on their own.

Edwin Alexanderian, 50, who is due to be arraigned 24 Aug on charges of failure to eliminate a public health nuisance, maintaining a dwelling that is a nuisance and keeping pigeons without a permit, said he followed the city of Brookline's orders to get rid of his two coops and he released the birds in New Hampshire, but many of the pigeons returned on their own, The Boston Globe reported Wednesday.

Neighbours complained to the city that the uncooped pigeons have been defecating on rooftops, patios and porches.

"The poor neighbours have been suffering," said Pat Maloney, Brookline's chief environmental health inspector.

Alexanderian said he is not feeding the pigeons and has done nothing to keep them on his property.

"Of course I'm not guilty," Alexanderian said. "I don't have any pigeons. I got rid of the coops." The man said he plans to fight the charges.

Prisoners complain about TV channels

Inmates at a Swedish prison sent a letter to the Swedish Prison and Probation Service complaining about the selection of channels on the facility's televisions.

The letter, authored by inmates at the Kalmar detention centre, said many prisons and jails offer 10-19 television channels, but their facility has only seven, Swedish news agency TT reported Wednesday.

"All the Swedish Prison and Probation Service detention centres should offer the same selection," the letter read.

However, Bengt Vestberg, head of the Prison and Probation Service for Kalmar, said the channel selection is a matter of cost.

"It is a question of the cost, really. By law we are obliged to show the basic selection of SVT1, SVT2 and TV 4 at the centre. We have also added Eurosport, CNN and some other channels. We really don't think we should spend any more than that," he told Swedish-language paper Ostran.

BARCELONA, 18 Aug—Lionel Messi scored two goals, including the late winner, and Barcelona won its 10th Spanish Supercup with a 3-2 victory over bitter rival Real Madrid that ended with both benches brawling on the field.

Messi fed Andres Iniesta for the 15th-minute opener before scoring his first before the break. Madrid twice rallied through goals by

Chinese architects digitally recreate imperial garden looted by Anglo-French forces

HOHHOT, 18 Aug— Architects from a renowned Chinese university have used digital imaging technology to successfully “restore” an imperial garden that was destroyed about 150 years ago by Anglo-French troops.

Experts from the Beijing Tsinghua Urban Planning and Design Institute said they have created three-dimensional images of 29 scenic spots in Yuanmingyuan, or the Old Summer Palace, located in the northwest suburbs of Beijing.

“The Digital Old Summer Palace” project, presented at the ongoing East Asia Cultural Heritage Protection Seminar in Hohhot, the capital of north China’s Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region, reveals how the garden changed between 1740 and 2010.

Before the project was started in 2009, experts spent 10 years gathering historical documents containing information about the former imperial resort, said Yang Zhaokai, a designer of the institute attached to Tsinghua University.

“We hope to depict every building as historically accurate as possible,” Yang said.

Yuanmingyuan was built in the 18th century during the Qing Dynasty (1644-1911) and was known for its elegant architecture and other aesthetic features. As a symbol of the highest achievements of Chinese gardening, it was once dubbed the Garden of All Gardens.

The garden was plundered by British and French troops in 1860 during the Second Opium War, with many of the buildings inside destroyed as the plunderers set the garden on fire after looting, and the flames lasted several days and nights.

People can log on to www.re-relic.com to take a look at the digital recreations, Yang said, adding that the project is expected to be completed over the next three years.

The East Asia Cultural Heritage Protection Seminar was first held in Seoul, the capital of the Republic of Korea (ROK) in 2007. Experts from China, Japan and ROK hold the seminar every two years to discuss their latest findings regarding cultural heritage protection.

Portugal defeated France 2-0 on Wednesday in Medellin with its stout defence and goalkeeper Mika registering their sixth straight clean sheet in the 3½-week tournament.

"I don't know of any team that has gone into a final without giving up a goal," Portugal coach Ilidio Vale said.
