Arsenal's Wilshere back in full training after 14 months

LONDON, 20 Sept—Arsenal midfielder Jack Wilshere returned to full training on Thursday after 14 months out with a persistent ankle problem.

The 20-year-old had become a regular for the London club and forced his way into the England side before being struck down.

"We are so pleased Jack is back in full training. It's been 14 months and that's a long time for someone at his age. It's an eternity, but it's great news," manager Arsene Wenger told the club website (www.arsenal.com).

"We have to give him a few training sessions to see how he copes and responds to it. That's the delicate, sensitive stage - to choose when to bring him in and out. We'll have to handle that day-by-day."

Fellow midfielder Emmanuel Frimpong has also resumed full training after injuring his cruciate ligaments when on loan at Wolverhampton Wanderers in February.

Iran says six powers to meet before more nuclear talks

Iran

ISTANBUL, 20 Sept—Iran's chief nuclear negotiator Saeed Jalili said on Wednesday he and European Union foreign policy chief Catherine Ashton had agreed to defer more nuclear talks until she has consulted the six world powers she represents next week.

Jalili said his talks with Ashton had been constructive. "We evaluated the common points and what we could do for further cooperation and future meetings," Jalili told a news conference in Istanbul, after meeting Ashton late on Tuesday.

He said they had agreed to renew contact after Ashton has met the six powers seeking to rein in Iran's nuclear programme. The United States, Russia, China, France, Germany and Britain have sought to persuade Iran to scale back its nuclear work by intensifying economic sanctions and diplomatic pressure. They fear Iran is developing an atomic bomb capability, but Tehean says its nuclear programme has only peaceful purposes.

Ashton is expected to meet the six powers on the margins of the United Nations General Assembly in New York next week.

Though three rounds of talks with Iran since April have made little progress, neither side wants to stop negotiating because of concerns that a breakdown of diplomacy could lead to war.

Israel, believed to be the Middle East's only nuclear-armed state, says any Iranian atom bomb would threaten its existence and that it may attack Iran if diplomacy and sanctions fail.

In Vienna, the head of Israel's atomic energy commission said Iran carried out its nuclear activities "with impunity" as international measures had no effect on the programme. "Iran is utterly indifferent to decisions and wishes of the international community," Shaul Chorev told the annual assembly of the 155-nation International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA).—Reuters

Obama, Karzai discuss 'insider' attacks in Afghanistan

WASHINGTON, 20 Sept—President Barack Obama and Afghan President Hamid Karzai agreed on Wednesday to press forward with a US-Afghan security pact, the White House said, despite the curtailment of NATO operations in response to a surge in "insider" attacks on foreign servicemen.

"The two presidents discussed a range of issues, including efforts to stem insider attacks on US, coalition, and Afghan forces," the White House said in a statement summarizing a video conference call between the two leaders.

They also agreed to continue implementation of a Strategic Partnership agreement signed in May during Obama's visit to Afghanistan, the White House said.

The White House said

on Tuesday there would be no change in Obama's timeline for gradually handing over security responsibility to Afghans and eventually withdrawing US troops. NATO has agreed to remove most of its forces in 2014.

At least 51 foreign troops have been killed in "insider" attacks this year in which Afghan security personnel have turned their weapons on their Western mentors.

NATO ordered a cutback on Tuesday in operations with Afghan forces in response to a surge of insider attacks, but said the restriction was temporary and would not derail the security handover.

Amid court challenges, early voting begins in US election

US

WASHINGTON, 20 Sept—The 6 November election is still seven weeks away, but early, in-person voting begins in two states on Friday, even as Democrats and Republicans battle in court over controversial plans to limit such voting before Election Day.

Idaho and South Dakota are the first states to begin early voting on Friday, although North Carolina has been accepting absentee ballots by mail since 6 September. By the end of September, 30 states will have begun either in-person or absentee voting, and eventually all the states will join in.

Much of the focus of the early voting period will be on the politically divided states of Ohio and Florida, which could be crucial in deciding the race between Democratic President Barack Obama and Republican Mitt Romney.

The states have also been the venues for court battles in which Democrats have accused Republican-led legislatures of trying to limit early voting periods in order to suppress turnout of working-class and minority voters.

Such voters make up large percentages of those casting ballots before Election Day, and they tend to back Democrats. Absentee ballots, popular among military voters, tend to favour Republicans.

The restrictions on early voting are among several election laws passed by Republican-led legislatures since 2010. Other new laws, also challenged by Democrats and voting-rights groups, have been aimed at limiting voter registration and requiring voters to show photo IDs. Republicans say the laws are aimed at preventing voter fraud.

World Bank, IMF see worsening Palestinian fiscal crisis

Palestine

RAMALLAH, 20 Sept—A gathering crisis in the Palestinian economy will worsen unless foreign funding increases and Israel eases long-standing curbs on development, the World Bank and International Monetary Fund said on Wednesday.

"Looking ahead, with persisting restrictions, financing difficulties with aid shortfalls, and stalemate in the peace process, there is a high risk of a continued economic slowdown, a rise in unemployment, and social upheaval," the IMF said.

In a separate report issued ahead of a conference on Palestinian aid in New York next week, the World Bank forecast a $1.5 billion (924.3 million pounds) deficit in the PA budget in 2012, with donor funds expected to cover just $1.14 billion of this shortfall.

"Donors do need to act urgently in the face of a serious fiscal crisis facing the PA (Palestinian Authority) in the short term," Mariam Sherman, the World Bank's country director for the West Bank and Gaza Strip, said in a statement.

The PA, which exercises limited self-rule in the West Bank, receives most of its aid from the United States, the European Union and Arab nations. But over the past several years there has been a shortfall in aid coming from Arab states resulting in the PA being unable to pay salaries to its 153,000 civil servants on time, on several occasions this year.—Reuters

Violent storm hits Paraguay, Bolivia, Uruguay, killing seven

Disaster

MEXICO CITY, 20 Sept—A violent storm with winds up to 150km per hour (kph) ripped through west-central South America early on Wednesday, especially Paraguay, Bolivia and Uruguay, killing at least seven people and injuring many others, according to reports reaching here.

In Paraguay, the storm killed five people and injured 80, civil rescue units told local press.

Among the victims were four Armed Forces cadets who died when the roof of their dormitory collapsed, and a woman whose car was crushed by a falling water tank in the Paraguayan capital of Asuncion.

The severe storm began in Paraguay on Tuesday afternoon, pummeling its southern cities of Encarnacion and Pilar with hail, and ripping off roofs and uprooting trees in the country's central and southern regions.

The worst hit area was the suburbs of Mariano Roque Alonso, 15km from Asuncion, where the cadets were stationed and many homes were destroyed.

Medical and rescue units said the injured were being treated at different facilities, including the Military Hospital and Police Hospital.

In Bolivia, at least two people died after an eight-hour torrential downpour that began at 5am local time (0900 GMT) sparked flash floods in the eastern city of Santa Cruz, where scores of homes were damaged. A local police report identified the two victims as teacher Sara Rivera, 74, and her son Marco Antonio, 47, who died when their vehicle was swept up by floods.

NASA rover snaps pictures of an eclipse from Mars Science

CAPE CANAVERAL, 20 Sept— NASA's Mars rover Curiosity, dispatched to determine if the planet most like Earth in the solar system could have supported microbial life, has taken on a second job — moonlighting as an astronomer.

Last week, Curiosity outfitted its high-resolution camera with protective filters and took pictures of the sun as Phobos, one of Mars' two small moons, sailed by. It was a tricky shoot.

Phobos and its sister moon Deimos are closer to Mars than our moon is to Earth, so they shoot across the sky relatively quickly. Phobos takes less than eight hours to circle Mars. Deimos takes about 30 hours to make the trip.

Last Thursday, the moons started to cross paths.

"Phobos grazed the edge of the sun, as seen from Curiosity. We had basically a partial eclipse," astronomer Mark Lemmon, with Texas A&M University, told reporters during a conference call on Wednesday.

The rover took more than

Not all the pictures have been radioed back to Earth. Curiosity has a partner in the project. From the other side of the planet, the rover Opportunity was expected to try to shoot the eclipse on Wednesday.

Aside from pretty pictures, the images should help scientists learn more about Mars' internal structure. Like Earth's moon, Mars' moons have some gravitational pull that slightly change the planet's shape.

"That in turn changes the moons' orbits — Phobos is slowing down, Deimos is speeding up, like our moon," Lemmon said. "This is something that happens very slowly over time."

In 10 million to 15 million years, Phobos is expected to be so close to Mars that it will be torn apart by the planet's gravity.

The moons' passages by the sun, captured by NASA's rovers, help scientists nail down their orbits and determine how fast they are changing.

That information in turn is used to assess how much Mars is deformed as the moons go by.

Curiosity resumed skywatching on Tuesday, when both moons passed overhead.

"This was a really hard thing to do. The timing was very precise," Lemmon said.

The next Martian eclipses will take place in about 11 months. By then, Curiosity should be in a better vantage point.

The rover's eventual science target is a three-mile-high mound of sediment rising from the floor of the Gale Crater impact basin where Curiosity landed six weeks ago.

customers. The problems followed issues with the website of Bank of America Corp on Tuesday amid threats on the Internet that a group was planning to launch cyber attacks on a US bank.

JPMorgan Chase spokesman Patrick Linehan said: "We're experiencing intermittent issues with Chase.com. We apologize for any inconvenience and are working to restore full connectivity."

A Bank of America spokesman reported no continuing problems on Wednesday. "Our online banking services have been, and are, up and running," Mark Pipitone said. "The vast majority of our customers have not experienced any issues."

'ENSURE CONSTANT DILIGENCE'

The short advisory from the industry group urged banks and other industry members to "ensure constant diligence in monitoring and quick response to any malicious events."

The Reston, Virginia-based group is owned by dozens of firms, including the two banks, as well as Citigroup Inc, Goldman Sachs Group Inc and Morgan Stanley. Insurers including American International Group, Allstate Corp and State Farm Insurance also belong to the group, as do credit card companies MasterCard Inc and Visa Inc.

The advisory also cited a warning from Microsoft Corp that hackers have attacked some of its customers by means of a security bug in its widely used Internet Explorer browser.

Microsoft has yet to release software to fix that security flaw. The German government advised the public to stop using Internet Explorer until an update is released. The US Department of Homeland Security has advised users to follow steps recommended by Microsoft to reduce the risk of attacks but noted that those measures may not fully secure the browser.

Tech giants form new Internet lobby group Tech

SAN FRANCISCO, 20 Sept— Google, Facebook, Amazon and 11 other technology heavyweights on Wednesday announced that they have formed a lobby group, vowing to strengthen and protect a free and innovative Internet.

The group, called "The Internet Association," is the first trade association representing the interests of the Internet economy in the United States, it said in a Press Release. The association now has 14 members, namely Amazon.com, AOL, eBay, Expedia, Facebook, Google, IAC, LinkedIn, Monster, Rackspace, Salesforce.com, TripAdvisor, Yahoo and Zynga. Although Apple and Microsoft are absent from the list, the group said it represents "the unified voice of the Internet economy."

"A free and innovative Internet is vital to our nation's economic growth," said Michael Beckerman, President and CEO of The Internet Association. He said those companies "understand the future of the Internet is at stake" and they "must work together to protect it." Beckerman recently stepped down as a top aide to US House Energy and Commerce Committee Chairman Fred Upton. The group is based in Washington.

Tech giants have been more politically savvy these years as US lawmakers are putting more attention to issues like on-line privacy and competition.

RIM shares rise on Microsoft file technology license deal Tech

TORONTO, 20 Sept— Research In Motion's shares jumped on Tuesday after it signed a patent licensing deal with Microsoft Corp to use one of the technology company's file storage systems. Microsoft said the patent being licensed by RIM greatly expands the size of files that flash memory devices can handle and increases the speed at which those files can be accessed. The technology also provides the ability to seamlessly transfer data between a variety of different devices.

"This is potentially money out of RIM's coffers for the right to use the ex-FAT patent in its technology. But what it does for investors and others is provide a glimpse into what the BlackBerry 10 devices can do," said Kevin Restivo, a mobile device analyst at global research firm IDC.

RIM has seen its once dominant position in the smartphone market slip away to Apple Inc, Samsung and other competitors, and the company's fate may depend on the success of its new line of devices, the BlackBerry 10, which is set to hit the market early in 2013. RIM hopes the BlackBerry 10 will help it regain market share that has been ceded to snazzier devices such as Apple's iPhone and others that run on Google Inc's Android operating system.

"I think there is some anticipation and speculation around the devices that RIM will launch as a result of the announcement today," Restivo said. Bank group warns of heightened risk of cyber attacks Tech

SAN FRANCISCO, 20 Sept—A financial services industry group warned US banks, brokerages and insurers on Wednesday to be on heightened alert for cyber attacks after Bank of America and JPMorgan Chase experienced unexplained outages on their public websites.

The Financial Services Information Sharing and Analysis Centre, which is widely known as FS-ISAC, raised the cyber threat level to "high" from "elevated" in an advisory to members, citing "recent credible intelligence regarding the potential" for cyber attacks as its reason for the move.

The problems with the websites at the two banks came after an unidentified person posted a statement on the Internet threatening to attack Bank of America and the New York Stock Exchange as a "first step" in a campaign against US companies. The posting said the attacks would continue until the firm that had stirred up anti-US protests across the Middle East was "erased" from the Internet.

It was not possible to identify the person who posted the statement. Nor was it clear if the threat had anything to do with the issues at either of the two banks.

Dan Holden, director of security research at Arbor Networks, said that several US banks were under assault by a distributed denial of service (DDoS) campaign. He declined to identify them by name.

An outside security contractor who was familiar with the attacks said that they were "massive" in scope.

Denial-of-service attacks seek to disrupt websites and other computer systems at the targeted organization by overwhelming their networks with computer traffic.

FRAUD ALERT

The move by FS-ISAC came just two days the FBI published a "fraud alert" advising financial services firms that cyber criminals may be disrupting service to their websites in a bid to keep banks from noticing a recent surge in fraudulent large-sized wire transfers. (1.usa.gov/SUGCDZ)

"Often these DDoS attacks are part of a more sophisticated blended threat - One that utilizes DDoS as a diversion for more complex, difficult to detect techniques with the intention to extract customer data or financial information," said Holden of Arbor Networks.

An FBI spokeswoman declined to say if the tactics cited in the fraud alert were related to the problems experienced by the two banks.

BofA cutting 16,000 jobs by year end in cost-plan acceleration: WSJ Business

CHARLOTTE, (North Carolina), 20 Sept— Bank of America Corp (BAC.N) is planning to cut 16,000 jobs by year end as it speeds up a company-wide cost-cutting initiative amid declining revenues, the Wall Street Journal reported on Wednesday.

The job cuts would put the second-largest US bank a year ahead of schedule in eliminating 30,000 jobs under a programme called Project New BAC.

The job cuts could shrink the bank's workforce below that of rivals JPMorgan Chase & Co (JPM.N) and Wells Fargo & Co (WFC.N).

The reductions were outlined in a document given to top management, the Journal reported.

Since taking the helm in 2010, Chief Executive Brian Moynihan has been working to streamline and reduce risk at a company that has lagged rivals in recovering from the financial crisis, largely due to mortgage-related losses.

Bank of America spokesman Larry Di Rita declined to comment. The bank had 275,460 employees at the end of the second quarter.

Under Project New BAC, Bank of America has said it planned to eliminate $5 billion in annual expenses and 30,000 jobs by the end of 2013, largely through cuts in consumer and technology areas.

A second phase is expected to eliminate $3 billion in annual expenses by mid-2015 by making undisclosed cuts in capital markets, commercial banking and wealth management areas.

In the second quarter, cost savings from the first phase were running at an annual pace of $970 million, behind a goal of $1 billion, the Journal said, citing the document.

Bank of America is one of many financial companies slashing thousands of jobs amid new regulations and a tepid economy that are crimping revenue.

Corporate investment in US start-ups rises 16 percent in second quarter Business

SAN FRANCISCO, 20 Sept — Corporate-backed venture groups invested $2.1 billion in the quarter ended 30 June, up 16 percent from the same period in 2011, underscoring the continued allure start-ups hold for their more established competitors.

The corporate-backed funds invested in some 118 companies in the United States, according to a report released on Thursday by consultancy CB Insights, with internet companies winning almost one-third of the cash.

Healthcare and the automotive/transportation sectors each took 20 percent.

Most deals involved co-investors from traditional venture capital firms such as First Round Capital, Index Ventures, and Sequoia Capital.

Big companies like to invest in start-ups to keep an eye on potential new technologies and players in their fields. Financial gains are typically less important than the strategic insights the bigger companies gain.

Health Boston Scientific to buy privately held heart device maker

BOSTON, 20 Sept— Medical device maker Boston Scientific Corp said it would buy privately held heart device maker BridgePoint Medical Inc to gain access to its product that restores blood flow in blocked coronary arteries.

Minneapolis, Minnesota-based BridgePoint's catheter-based system is approved by the US Food and Drug Administration and European health regulators to treat chronically occluded coronary arteries — which are blocked typically for 3 months or longer — that prevent blood circulation to critical areas of the heart. These devices are designed to permit endovascular treatment in cases that may otherwise require a patient to undergo surgery.

Financial terms of the deal, which is expected to close in the fourth quarter, were not disclosed by Boston Scientific. The deal is not expected to impact Boston Scientific's earnings in 2012 and 2013, but will add to earnings after that. Six million Americans likely to pay healthcare tax in 2016 Health

WASHINGTON, 20 Sept— US budget experts raised their forecast on Wednesday of how many Americans will probably have to pay a penalty in 2016 for not buying health insurance to 6 million from 4 million. The 50 percent increase was likely to draw fire from Republicans on the campaign trail who want to repeal President Barack Obama's signature healthcare law and who reject the penalty as a government intrusion into the lives of individuals.

But the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office said some of the increase reflects state opposition to an expansion under the healthcare law of the Medicaid programme for the poor, which is most unpopular in states with Republican governors or Republican-majority legislatures. CBO, which issued its last forecast in April 2010, also attributed the larger number of people facing penalties to a bleaker economic picture that will mean higher unemployment and lower wages and salaries.

There are now 49 million people without health insurance in the United States, according to the US Census Bureau. Under the Affordable Care Act, better known to the public as "Obamacare," more than 30 million people would become eligible to buy subsidized private insurance or receive Medicaid coverage in 2014.

The law requires most Americans to have some form of health insurance — known as the individual mandate. The law stipulates that those who do not acquire health coverage will face a penalty.

The penalty is scheduled to rise in 2016 to $695 or 2.5 percent of household income, whichever is greater. That year is when the law's provisions are expected to operate fully.—Reuters

Smoking, drinking tied to earlier pancreatic cancer Health

Two shots of liquor and cigarette are seen at a bar in Prague on 12 Sept, 2012.—REUTERS

NEW YORK, 20 Sept—People who smoke or drink heavily may develop pancreatic cancer at an earlier age than folks who avoid those habits, a new study suggests.

It's long been known that smoking is a risk factor for developing pancreatic cancer — a disease that is rarely caught early and has a grim prognosis. Only about five of every 100 people diagnosed with the cancer are still alive five years later. The evidence on heavy drinking has been more mixed, but some studies have suggested it's also a risk factor. Now, the new results show the disease may strike smokers and drinkers earlier in life.

"If you do have these habits, and you're going to develop pancreatic cancer, the age of presentation may be younger," said lead researcher Dr Michelle A Anderson, of the University of Michigan Health System in Ann Arbor.

Her team also found that the effect disappeared for former smokers or drinkers if they had quit 10 years or more before being diagnosed.

On average, the risk of developing pancreatic cancer in your lifetime is about one in 71. And the average age at diagnosis is 72, according to the American Cancer Society.

But in this study, current smokers and heavy drinkers were diagnosed a decade earlier than that.

That could be an important motivator for people to quit smoking or curb their drinking, according to Anderson. "That's potentially an extra decade of life," she said.

The findings, reported in the American Journal of Gastroenterology, are based on 811 patients in a pancreatic cancer registry. Those who were current smokers were typically diagnosed around age 62, versus age 70 among non-smokers. Heavy drinkers, meanwhile, were typically diagnosed at age 61 — almost a decade earlier than non-drinkers. Heavy drinking was defined as roughly three or more standard drinks a day. A 12-ounce beer or five ounces of wine would equate to a standard drink.

The findings do not prove that smoking or drinking led to the earlier cancers. But Anderson's team did account for a number of other factors, like body weight and family history of pancreatic cancer. And smoking and heavy drinking were still linked to earlier diagnoses.

What's more, Anderson noted, there was a "dose" effect. Smokers who went through more than a pack a day were diagnosed at a younger age than people who smoked less than a pack per day. And once people had refrained from smoking or heavy drinking for a decade, the excess risk of an early cancer seemed to disappear.

According to Anderson, the findings could have implications in the future, if widespread screening for pancreatic cancer becomes a reality.—Reuters

US official says Benghazi consulate was "terrorist attack"

US

WASHINGTON, 20 Sept—The assault on the US consulate in Benghazi last week in which four Americans died was a "terrorist attack" that may have had an al-Qaeda connection, a top US counterterrorism official told Congress on Wednesday.

Rocket-propelled grenades and mortars struck the consulate on 11 September, the anniversary of the 2001 attacks on the United States. US Ambassador Christopher Stevens and three other Americans died.

"They were killed in the course of a terrorist attack on our embassy," Matthew Olsen, director of the National Counterterrorism Centre, said in response to a question at a Senate hearing.

Olsen said whether the attack was planned for 11 September was under investigation, but the information so far indicated it was "an opportunistic attack" that "began and evolved, and escalated over several hours."

There were well-armed militants in the area, he said. "What we don't have at this point is specific intelligence that there was a significant advance planning or coordination for this attack."

Whether or not the attack was planned well in advance has become a point of dispute between the Obama administration and Republican lawmakers who say it bears the hallmarks of a premeditated assault. Senior Libyan officials have said the attack was planned in advance.

At the same hearing, Republican Senator Susan Collins said she agreed with Libyan officials that the attack was premeditated, planned and associated with the 11 September anniversary. She expressed concern about the security at the attack, and it appeared that a "number of different elements" were involved, including individuals connected to militant groups. Reuters

EU, China leaders meet amid growing trade disputes

one of few bright spots in Europe and a critical source of growth for the region's economy, which has slumped under the weight of the debt and banking crises, with EU gross domestic product falling and unemployment steadily rising.

Trade between China and the EU, the world's biggest trading bloc with a market of 500 million people, rose to 428 billion euros in 2011, having doubled in size since 2003. Chinese companies are increasingly investing in Europe, while the Chinese government is an important buyer of the debt of euro zone governments. China's foreign exchange reserves are the world's largest at $3.24 trillion, and economists say roughly a quarter of that consists of euro-denominated assets.

At the same time, trade disputes are intensifying. In the latest spat, the European Commission accused China of selling solar panels below cost on the EU market, angering Beijing and threatening wider business ties. Beijing has not linked purchases of EU government bonds to trade disputes, said Zhang Yongjun, an economist at the China Centre for International Economic Exchanges, a Beijing government think-tank.

"But the two issues concern the bilateral relations and cannot be separated." An EU official played down the problems ahead of Thursday's summit, which he said would not be a summit for big decisions but rather a meeting focused on "consolidation". Mexico's Pena Nieto optimistic on labour reform bill

SAO PAULO, 20 Sept—Mexico's incoming president Enrique Pena Nieto on Wednesday raised pressure on his Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) to back a labour reform proposed by the outgoing administration, saying he was optimistic Congress would pass it.

The draft bill put forward this month is viewed as a litmus test of cooperation between the centrist PRI and President Felipe Calderon's conservatives. The lower house of Congress has 11 more days to either approve or reject it.

The reform aims to soften Mexico's antiquated labour laws and force its trade unions to become more transparent, which has raised the hackles of the PRI's powerful union base.

However, Pena Nieto, who takes office on 1 December, fell short of a majority in the new Congress and is likely to need support from Calderon's National Action Party (PAN) to pass his own economic reforms.

The labour reform is also a test of whether the PRI, which has sought to reinvent itself behind the youthful Pena Nieto, is prepared to break with the past by risking the wrath of unions.

Speaking at a news conference after a meeting with Brazilian business leaders in Sao Paulo, Pena Nieto talked up the bill's chances of success when he was asked about it.

"I am very optimistic. I think there's a great chance the debate on this plan will allow common ground and consensus to be found among different political forces," he said.

"I support it and hope all political forces work towards constructing rather than obstructing."

The bill aims, among other things, to make public the accounts of trade unions, which have long been viewed as corrupt and prone to self-enrichment.

PRI union leaders in Congress have already said the bill contains elements they cannot accept. But reformers within the PRI, which became a byword for corruption during the seven decades it ruled Mexico between 1929 and 2000, say failure to pass a bill would send a message that the party has not changed, and complicate working with Calderon's PAN. Reuters

Police begin enforcing controversial Arizona immigration measure

US

PHOENIX, 20 Sept—Arizona police on Wednesday began enforcing a controversial "show-your-papers" provision of a state law targeting illegal immigration as civil rights groups prepared to document allegations of racial profiling.

Police in the border state with Mexico are now authorized to begin conducting immigration status checks of anyone they stop for any reason and suspect of being in the country illegally after a federal judge on Tuesday lifted an injunction against the provision requiring such checks.

The measure, upheld by the US Supreme Court in June, is part of a broad Arizona clampdown on illegal immigration signed into law in 2010 by Republican Governor Jan Brewer, an outspoken foe of President Barack Obama's administration on immigration. Brewer has said the law was needed because of the federal government's failure to secure the border with Mexico. She said enforcement would be free of any racial profiling.

"It's definitely a new phase, and one where we'll be looking very carefully to monitor for civil rights violations in the state," said Karen Tumlin, managing attorney with the National Immigration Law Centre, one of a coalition of groups that challenged the law.

"There is a hotline set up ... where folks can report any violations or questionings or detentions that happen under the law," she added.

The US Supreme Court, in upholding the measure even as it struck down three other Arizona immigration provisions, has left open the door for legal challenges, saying constitutional or other challenges could proceed once the measure took effect.

Rights activists who have fought a two-year legal battle against the measure have said they are ready to go to court quickly if they learn of instances of racial profiling or illegal detention.

Opponents of the measure are also pinning hopes on a legal challenge filed with the 9th US Circuit Court of Appeals that seeks an injunction to halt the law's enforcement. Reuters

Colombia's Santos faces tougher peace talks— Pastrana

Colombia

BOGOTA, 20 Sept—The last Colombian president to negotiate with Marxist rebels says current leader Juan Manuel Santos will face an even tougher time in new talks because of opposition from the far right and doubts about whether rebel leaders are united.

Andres Pastrana led the last attempt at peace more than a decade ago, but those talks collapsed and they were seen as having helped the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia, or FARC, build up their fighting forces.

Half-way through his four-year term, Santos is staking his reputation and political future on a new round of peace talks set to start in October with the drug-funded FARC rebels, who took up arms almost 50 years ago in a conflict that has killed tens of thousands.

Pastrana is warning that possible divisions inside the FARC could make it a lot more difficult to reach a peace deal.

“Are the FARC united? Are all the (FARC divisions) in the negotiation?” Pastrana asked rhetorically in an interview late on Tuesday with Reuters at his office.

“During our negotiation, one knew that when (FARC founder Manuel) Marulanda was there and took a decision, it was monolithic. Today, are these decisions monolithic or is there a front that wants to continue drug trafficking or that doesn’t want to enter into a peace process? That is the doubt.”

Pastrana’s negotiations from 1999 to 2002 gave rebels a demilitarized area the size of Switzerland, but further talks collapsed after guerrillas hijacked an airplane.

The failure paved the way for conservative Alvaro Uribe to take over the presidency with a clear mandate to crack down on the FARC.

A decade of Uribe’s US-backed offensive more than halved the guerrilla army’s ranks and pushed it back to remote jungle and mountain hide-outs.

Down but not out, the FARC increased its attacks in the last two years of Uribe’s government and has continued to harass government forces since Santos took office.

Russia says USAID's exit due to intervention in domestic political affairs

Russia

MOSCOW, 20 Sept—Russia confirmed on Wednesday that the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) will leave the country from 1 Oct, accusing the agency has tried to influence domestic political affairs.

“This decision (to shut down USAID) is made due to attempts of the agency to influence political processes, civil society institutions, and elections at various levels, through distribution of grants,” Russian Foreign Ministry spokesman Alexander Lukashevich told reporters here. “Serious questions arose from USAID activities in Russian regions, especially in the North Caucasus,” he said. Moscow has warned Washington several times that such activities did not in line with aims of bilateral humanitarian cooperation, the spokesman added. However, Lukashevich also noted that Russia would like to cooperate with USAID in the third country over humanitarian aid projects. “But such cooperation should adhere to principles of equality, respects of each other’s interests and non-interference in domestic affairs,” he stressed. USAID is America’s primary official foreign aid agency.

Unemployment mounts as Iran's economy falters

Iran

DUBAI, 20 Sept—A wealthy Iranian businessman sits in the lobby of one of Dubai’s most luxurious hotels, shaking his head as he laments the state of Iran’s economy.

“Business is drying up, industry is collapsing. There’s zero investment,” he said. “I know. I see it with my own eyes.”

He is en route from Europe, where he runs a company that makes electrical goods, to Iran, a trip he makes several times a year.

Iranians are reeling under tough economic sanctions imposed by Western countries since the start of the year over the Islamic Republic’s pursuit of its nuclear programme, which Washington says is a drive to develop a weapons capability.

Inflation is running at 25 percent officially, and could in reality be double that, economists say, and hundreds of thousands have lost their jobs as trade embargoes have curbed export prospects and made it difficult for many Iranian companies to obtain vital raw materials.

Even when they do so, a plunge in the rial currency—which has halved in value over the last 12 months—has pushed up overheads, forcing employers to cut payrolls.

“We’re close to seeing mass unemployment in cities and queues for social handouts. There are few alternatives for those people and many will end up on the bread line,” said Mehrdad Emadi, an Iranian-born economic adviser to the European Union, who is based in the UK.

A series of conversations conducted by Reuters with Iranians by telephone reveal how widespread unemployment is becoming. They requested that their identities or the names of their employers not be revealed because of the sensitivity of the issue.

Mona, 31, lost her job in the human resources department of a large private contractor in the oil, gas and construction industries six months ago and has struggled to find work since.

The company started to trim its workforce of 6,000 three years ago but conditions sharply deteriorated last year and many staff didn’t receive their wages for months.

Mona says she lost her job after she and some of her colleagues wrote a letter to their managers protesting about their withheld wages.

“At first I was only concerned about how to spend my time but soon the reality of the horrible economic situation kicked in,” she said by telephone from Teheran.

Hillsborough disaster policeman referred to watchdog

LONDON, 20 Sept—A senior police officer accused of helping orchestrate a cover-up to place blame for Britain’s worst football stadium disaster on drunken, rowdy fans could face an investigation leading to possible prosecution, officials said on Wednesday.

The Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC), which investigates complaints against the police in England and Wales, said West Yorkshire police had referred Chief Constable Norman Bettison’s case to it on Tuesday following complaints from members of the public.

Bettison worked on the flawed operation at the Hillsborough Stadium in 1989 when 96 football fans died in a crush.

He used to serve in the South Yorkshire police in northern England and is currently the most senior officer on the West Yorkshire force.

A report published last week by the Hillsborough Independent Panel produced evidence of a police cover-up after the crush caused by overcrowding at the 1989 FA Cup semi-final between Liverpool and Nottingham Forest.

The report said more than 100 statements taken at the time had been doctored to remove evidence that painted the police in a negative light. The authorities sought to shift the blame to Liverpool fans, portrayed as drunk, aggressive and ticketless.

It also criticised the emergency services for their poor handling of the incident.

The first complaint alleges that Bettison “was involved in the production and supply of misleading information” relating to Hillsborough.—Reuters

Knowledge promotion for all

The scope of library services go far beyond library science as there are restrictions concerning literary and artistic works and the rules of intellectual property rights staff of the profession should know well and observe. So they must have the knowledge on protecting intellectual property rights and related rights as well. Only then they can offer better services for the public in connection with the intellectual property.

Intellectual property or IP refers to all kinds of the creations of the mind. IP is divided into two categories: Industrial property and Copyright, which includes literary and artistic works. IP we are dealing with daily at the libraries concerns with Copyright, which includes novels, poems and plays, films, musical works, artistic works such as drawings, paintings, photographs and sculptures, and architectural designs and those of performing artists in their performances, producers of phonograms in their recordings, and those of broadcasters in their radio and television programs.

Systematic establishment of a fair and effective copyright protection system will be much valuable for socio-economic development of every country.

Now, Myanmar is in the process of drafting a new copyright law that conforms to current situation. The new law will help our libraries and archives provide better services for readers while observing the copyright rules like their counterparts in other countries.

Truly, libraries and library services can enhance public knowledge or in other words intellectual development in one way or another. Leaders of world nations and academics of various fields unanimously herald the 21st century as "Knowledge Age". In fact, all fields of knowledge are facing challenges of the knowledge age itself. And the only way to overcome these challenges is the knowledge promotion for all. Here, libraries and library services are the core of knowledge promotion for all.

Mexico detains 16 guards over prison break

MEXICO CITY, 20 Sept—A local judge on Wednesday ordered the detention of 16 prison guards in connection with Monday's mass prison break at a northern Mexican jail along the border with the US state of Texas.

The prison's director and 15 guards are to be detained for 40 days while prosecutors investigate their possible role in the escape, the Coahuila state attorney general's office said in a statement.

After taking testimony from the guards, Coahuila state prosecutor Homero Ramos said investigators were looking into the possibility that several inmates escaped through the prison's gate with the help of the guards. Coahuila's Public Security Secretary Jorge Luis Moran indicated at a Press conference that recaptured inmates "confirm the hypothesis that inmates escaped through the main gate and that there was total complicity, collusion and betrayal on the part of prison employees."

Moran said the majority of the escaped inmates had connections with the Zetas drug cartel, and its leaders, with the help of the prison staff, had arranged the jailbreak. State police officers were attacked by gunmen with high-caliber weapons and grenades when they tried to reach the prison immediately after the escape, raising suspicions that the Zetas were involved, he added.—Xinhua

SACRAMENTO, 20 Sept—A California prison inmate was shot and wounded and 12 others were sent to the hospital with stab and slash wounds and head trauma on Wednesday after a riot at the California State Prison-

Sacramento in the city of Folsom, prison officials said. Rioting involving 60 inmates broke out in the late morning, prompting prison officers to fire six shots with a rifle, wounding one of the inmates, officials said.

The prisoner who was shot had undergone surgery, a spokeswoman for the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation said, but his condition was unknown.

California's state prisons have been plagued by hunger strikes, occasional violence and overcrowding and remain at more than 50 percent above capacity, despite a massive shifting of

China, Mexico vow to enhance press cooperation

BEIJING, 20 Sept—China and Mexico on Wednesday vowed to establish a regular exchange mechanism between the press of the two countries and strengthen their cooperation.

The pledge came out of a meeting between Liu Yunshan, publicity chief of the Communist Party of China (CPC), and Alejandra Sota Mirafuentes, general coordinator of media and communications of the Mexican Presidential Office, at the Great Hall of the People in Beijing.

China is ready to take this year, the 40th anniversary of bilateral ties, as an opportunity to strengthen exchanges between the press, especially new media, and cooperate in various ways in order to contribute to the two countries' political mutual trust and friendly relationship, Liu said.

He added that China will work with Mexico to further develop their strategic partnership and promote the long-term and stable development of bilateral reciprocal cooperation.

Sota, who is on her first China visit, said she hopes to learn more about China during the visit, promote press cooperation and establish a regular exchange mechanism. She said enhancing dialogue and cooperation between Mexico and China, two influential developing countries, will benefit the two countries and peoples and help maintain the overall interests of all developing countries.—Xinhua

UK needs more ambitious electric car grant scheme — MPs UK

LONDON, 20 Sept—Britain needs a more ambitious programme to encourage the uptake of low-carbon vehicles, as sales of the cars have disappointed, a committee made up of MPs said on Thursday.

As part of its aim to reduce carbon dioxide emissions to 80 percent below 1990 levels by 2050, the government has offered 25 percent off the price of a plug-in electric car capped at 5,000 pounds.

Plug-in cars, such as the Chevrolet Volt, Nissan Leaf, Toyota Prius and Vauxhall Ampera, typically cost in excess of 20,000 pounds. The government expects to see tens of thousands of plug-in vehicles, which have a longer driving range than all-electric vehicles but which still need to be charged, on the roads by 2015, but demand has been weak, said a report by the Transport Select Committee.

In 2011, 1,052 vehicles eligible for the plug-in car grant were registered. The committee said consumer demand was lagging behind and that the subsidy was ineffective because the purchase price was still too high.

"So far, Department for Transport expenditure on plug-in cars - some 11 million pounds — has benefited just a handful of motorists," said Louise Ellman, chair of the committee.

"Ministers should not sit back and hope that the government's policy on plug-in cars will reduce transport carbon emissions. Far more work is required to ensure that this programme is a good use of public funds."

Emissions from domestic transport account for around a quarter of the UK's total carbon dioxide emissions, with car emissions accounting for over half of that amount.

There is also uncertainty over the number of charging points being installed across the country.

"It is unclear whether the provision of public charging infrastructure encourages demand for plug-in cars. Indeed, the government does not even have a register of all the charge points installed at public expense," Ellman said.

The government should set milestones for the number of plug-ins it expects to see on the roads so the success of its low-carbon vehicle strategy can be assessed, the report said.

The effort to shift the prison population followed a US Supreme Court directive to cut the state inmate population to 110,000 after the nation's top court ruled that overcrowding in the 33-prison system was causing "needless suffering and death."

No prison staff were injured during the Folsom brawl, authorities said. Four of the 12 wounded inmates sent to hospitals were treated and returned to the prison, officials said. The condition of the other wounded inmates was not provided.

China's top legislator pledges cooperation with Malaysia's easternmost state Malaysia

KOTA KINABALU, (Malaysia) 20 Sept—China will encourage its enterprises to step up cooperation with Malaysia's easternmost state of Sabah, said China's top legislator Wu Bangguo on Wednesday.

The pledge was made during a meeting between Wu, chairman of the Standing Committee of China's National People's Congress (NPC), and Musa Aman, chief minister of Sabah State of Malaysia.

Wu is paying a stopover visit to Kota Kinabalu, capital of the Sabah state, before heading for Fiji, the last stop of his four-nation tour which also involves Iran, Myanmar and Sri Lanka.

China encourages relevant provinces and cities to conduct mutually-beneficial cooperation with Sabah state in such areas as infrastructure, port construction and manufacturing, and supports Chinese enterprises to take positive attitudes to explore market in the state, said Wu.

As the Sabah state has rich tourist resources, the two sides should make joint efforts to make tourism a new growth point for pragmatic cooperation, Wu said.

On China-Malaysia relations, Wu said China has always fostered bilateral ties from a strategic and long-term perspective, and will work together with the Malaysian side to deepen political trust and win-win cooperation so as to bring about benefits for the two peoples.—Xinhua

Radioactive shipment returned to India

COLOMBO, 20 Sept—Sri Lanka has returned a metal shipment that arrived on an Indian vessel after local tests showed they were radioactive, the Power and Energy Ministry said here on Wednesday.

The consignment, contaminated with a radioactive material, has been discovered by the port authorities in a 40-foot container and upon testing it has been found that 125 units of stainless steel and aluminum products were all contaminated.

The tests, which were carried out by the Atomic Energy Authority (AEA), had revealed significant traces of Cobalt 60, which is a highly radioactive element used in the treatment of cancer. Power and Energy Ministry spokesman D. Ramanayake told Xinhua. "The container has been returned to India and the AEA will inform the Indian authorities of the radiation contamination. Sri Lanka's AEA will continue to test materials shipped to Sri Lanka," he said.

The AEA also kept the container secluded for about a week after it arrived at the Colombo port.

Sri Lankan authorities have not decided whether they would take legal action against the owners of the shipment.—Xinhua

Cambodia's flash floods kill two, force evacuation of nearly 4,000 families

PHNOM PENH, 20 Sept—At least 2 people were drowned and nearly 4,000 families have been evacuated to higher ground due to flash floods that have been hitting the provinces of Banteay Meanchey, Preah Vihear, Siem Reap, and Kampong Thom, according to the latest report of the National Committee for Disaster Management (NCDM) on Wednesday evening.

"The two dead persons were adults," Keo Vy, chief of the Cabinet of the NCDM, told Xinhua by telephone. "One was in Kampong Thom and the other in Banteay Meanchey."

He said that all the evacuees are in Banteay Meanchey only because other affected provinces are not in serious conditions.

According to Keo Vy, the floods also submerge 8,033 hectares of rice paddy and 1,530 hectares of cassava crops in Banteay Meanchey.

Cambodia's Ministry of Water Resources and Meteorology on Monday warned of heavy rains throughout this week and said some 13 provinces out of the country's 24 cities and provinces could suffer from flash floods.

Possible flood-hit

Cambodia

provinces are Oddar Meanchey, Preah Vihear, Banteay Meanchey, Battambang, Pursat, Kampong Chhnang, Siem Reap, Kampong Thom, Kampong Speu, Takeo, Kandal, Prey Veng and Kampot.

Floods usually hit Cambodia between August and October. Last year, the floods killed at least 250 Cambodian people and affected some 1.4 million people in the country, according to the NCDM.

Moreover, nearly 3,000 kilometers of gravel roads and some 180 kilometres of national roads had been damaged.

Last year's floods cost the country about 521 million US dollars.

Israeli air strike kills three Hamas officers in Gaza Middle East

GAZA, 20 Sept—An Israeli air strike on a vehicle killed three Palestinian security officials in the Hamas-Islamist ruled Gaza Strip on Wednesday, Palestinian medics and Hamas said.

The Israeli military confirmed it had launched an air strike in Gaza but had no further comment.

Hamas and Palestinian hospital officials said a raid after darkness fell in the town of Rafah on Gaza's border with Egypt killed three officials responsible for overseeing tunnels used to import goods from Egypt.

In a statement, Hamas said "Israel has assassinated three of our officers as they were doing their duty in protecting the security of our people."

Pakistani military says kills 29 Taliban near Afghan border Pakistan

PESHAWAR, 20 Sept—The Pakistani military said it killed 29 Taliban fighters on Wednesday in the final stage of an operation aimed at forcing hundreds of insurgents back across the border into Afghanistan.

Soldiers used artillery, helicopter gunships and fighter jets against the insurgents, accused of beheading 17 Pakistani soldiers in June.

The battle was the culmination of weeks of operations in the remote valleys of the Batwar area of Bajaur tribal agency near the border.

It highlighted once again the difficulty of preventing insurgents from crossing the border to launch attacks or flee from Pakistani or NATO forces bolstering the Afghan government.

Around 400 militants had crossed from Afghanistan into Pakistan on 23 August and attacked villages, said a senior security official based in Khar, the main town of Bajaur.

The army launched operations that killed around 120 militants, another security official said from the border town of Peshawar. Twenty-five soldiers also died in the fighting.

"The militants escaped to their sanctuaries in Afghanistan and even left the bodies of their slain fighters," said the Peshawar-based official.

He said the armed forces were now establishing posts along that section of the Afghan border to thwart future incursions.

A spokesman for the militants confirmed the attacks were staged by fighters from several regions.

Pakistan and the United States, which has by far the largest foreign contingent in Afghanistan, have accused each other of failing to secure the border.

Some US officials say

Pakistan deliberately lets some insurgents through, a suggestion Pakistan strongly rejects.

Joint efforts to secure the long and mountainous border were hampered by a NATO strike against a Pakistani base last November that killed 24 Pakistani soldiers and severely damaged relations between Pakistan and the United States for several months.

British bankers see average bonus shrink to 12,000 pounds

LONDON, 20 Sept—Britain's financial workers watched their bonuses fall to 12,000 pounds on average last year, down about 11 percent from a year earlier, as regulation and tough economic conditions squeezed the sector, official data showed.

The handouts were still more than eight times the national average, according to the figures released by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) on Wednesday.

British banks like Barclays and Royal Bank of Scotland have been under pressure to stop a high-reward, high-risk culture that was blamed for the financial crisis. Pay structures have also been changed, with many firms lifting base salaries while cutting bonuses.

The total amount of bonuses paid out to British financial service staff fell to 13 billion pounds in the latest financial year, down almost a third from the peak of 19 billion pounds four years ago, the ONS said.

Banks are also trying to cut costs to lift profitability as tougher regulations and a slowdown in investment banking bite.

Streamlined visa process draws more tourists to US

WASHINGTON, 20 Sept—Mexico, China and Brazil, along with other countries, are contributing more to the US tourism industry thanks to a streamlined visa process and reduced wait time, the White House said on Wednesday.

The White House released a progress report saying the Departments of State and Homeland Security were surpassing the goals set by President Barack Obama in January in terms of visa interview time and visa processing capacity to boost the tourism industry in the country.

The report said 88 percent of non-immigrant visa applicants worldwide are interviewed within three weeks of submitting their applications, as against the goal of 80 percent envisioned by Obama.

"In key markets such as China, consular officers are keeping interview wait times to an average of five days in 2012 while managing a year-on-year 37 percent increase in visa demand," the report said. Like Mexico and Brazil, China has passed the 1-million-visa milestone, the report noted.—Xinhua

Lindsay Lohan arrested in NY for hitting pedestrian

NEW YORK, 20 Sept— Lindsay Lohan was arrested on Wednesday after a pedestrian told police that her car struck him as the "Mean Girls" actress was driving into a hotel in New York, New York City police said.

Lohan's vehicle clipped a 34-year-old man in an alley, around 2:30 am, police told Reuters, and the man later went to a nearby hospital saying he had an injured knee.

The 26-year-old actress, who has been in and out of court, rehab and prison since a 2007 drunk driving arrest in Los Angeles, was arrested for leaving the scene of an accident. Police arrested her as she left the Dream hotel in lower Manhattan.

She was charged with a misdemeanor and released, the New York police department's Office of Public Information said.

Lohan's spokesman in Los Angeles said he believed the claims would not be proved.

"While some of the facts are still being gathered, it appears that this is much ado about nothing. We are confident this matter will be cleared up in the coming weeks and the claims being made against Lindsay will be proven untrue," spokesman Steve Honig said in a statement.

Celebrity website TMZ.com, quoting sources at the hotel, said surveillance video of the incident made it hard to tell whether Lohan's car made contact with the pedestrian or, if it did, how hard.

The New York Daily News identified the man as Jose Rodriguez, a cook who was leaving his workplace, the adjacent Maritime hotel, when the incident occurred.

Singer Shakira pregnant with first child

LOS ANGELES, 20 Sept— Colombian singer Shakira said on Wednesday she is expecting her first child, with her Spanish soccer player boyfriend Gerard Pique.

"As some of you may know, Gerard and I are very happy awaiting the arrival of our first baby! At this time we have decided to give priority to this unique moment in our lives and postpone all the promotional activities planned over the next few days," Shakira, 35, wrote on her website.

The singer, who did not specify a due date, is bowing out of a music festival in Las Vegas this weekend.

In the near future she will be juggling both motherhood and work. Earlier this week the singer, along with R&B star Usher, were confirmed to replace Christina Aguilera and Cee Lo Green for the fourth season next year of NBC's hit singing contest "The Voice."

Disney film to show how "Mary Poppins" flew from book to screen

LOS ANGELES, 20 Sept— The tale of how the world's most beloved nanny, Mary Poppins, flew from the pages of a popular book onto the big screen is the subject of a new film starring Tom Hanks and Emma Thompson, Disney said on Wednesday.

The film called "Saving Mr Banks" began production on Wednesday. It tells of Walt Disney's 20-year pursuit of the film rights to author PL Travers' novel "Mary Poppins," Walt Disney Co's movie studio said in a statement.

Hanks will play Walt Disney, marking the first time the legendary animator and film producer has ever been depicted in a dramatic film. Thompson will play Travers, who reluctantly granted Disney the film rights while demanding script and character control that clashed with Disney's vision for the movie musical.

"Mary Poppins" was released in 1964 and won five Oscars, including a best actress award for Julie Andrews in the title role, best original score and best song for "Chim Chim Cher-ee."

The story of the magical English nanny who flies with her umbrella has also been made into a hit stage musical, playing on Broadway. The Cameron Mackintosh production was also a hit in London's West End.

John Lee Hancock, whose best-known films include "The Rookie" and "The Blind Side," will direct "Saving Mr Banks." The film also stars Colin Farrell as Travers' father and Rachel Griffiths as her aunt.

"Saving Mr Banks" will be released sometime in 2013, Disney said.

Dave Matthews Band's "Away From the World" debuts at No 1

LOS ANGELES, 20 Sept— US rock group Dave Matthews Band's new album, "Away From the World," landed in the top spot on the Billboard 200 on Wednesday - the band's sixth straight No 1-debuting studio album.

But the album's 266,000 sales figure was the band's smallest album launch since 1996's "Crash," which sold 254,000 copies in its first week, according to Nielsen SoundScan figures.

For only the second time in history, the top six albums on the Billboard 200 chart are debuts, the music publication said.

Country music quartet Little Big Town's new arrival, "Tornado," took the second place slot after selling 113,000 copies. It was the group's best ever sales week.

Bob Dylan's latest studio album, "Tempest," landed in the N 3 spot. It sold 110,000 copies. In fourth position, The Avett Brothers' "The Carpenter" sold 98,000 copies.

Rock act the xx's second album, "Coexist," landed in the No 5 spot, while ZZ Top's "La Futura" came in at No 6 — the legendary rock band's highest debuting album ever.

On the digital songs chart, country-pop crossover artist Taylor Swift held on to the top spot for the fifth straight week with her single "We Are Never Ever Getting Back Together."

US album sales so far in 2012 stand at 207.29 million units, down 5 percent from the same time last year.

Basquiat poised to set record at New York art auction

NEW YORK, 20 Sept— An early work by Jean-Michel Basquiat could set an artist's record in November when it is expected to sell for some $20 million, auction house Christie's said on Tuesday.

The untitled 1981 work, which has been in a private collection for two decades and has been featured in virtually every major Basquiat retrospective, depicts a fisherman displaying his catch hanging at the end of a line.

Christie's estimates the painting will sell for about $20 million, which along with its commission would bring the price to well above Basquiat's auction record of $20.1 million, set in June in London.

"Great works by Basquiat have become close to impossible to find in recent years," said Loic Gouzer, international specialist of post-war and contemporary art at Christie's, said in a statement. "The market has been waiting a long time for a work of this caliber and freshness.

"Basquiat is increasingly being recognized as a grand master of post-war art alongside de Kooning, Warhol and Pollock," Gouzer said.

"We expect it to set a new record."

The auction house did not identify the seller but catalogs from recent exhibitions of the work identified him as French fashion photographer Patrick Demarchelier.

Basquiat burst onto New York's burgeoning art scene more than 30 years ago and quickly drew attention and respect for his powerful, jarring and sometimes controversial canvases that drew heavily on his Haitian and Puerto Rican heritage. Basquiat, whose career was the subject of a feature film and a documentary, died in 1988 at the age of 27.

Gouzer said that unlike most artists who win acclaim, "Basquiat created his best paintings at the beginning of his career. 'Untitled 1981' unites all the elements of energy, freedom and boldness that one looks for in Basquiat," he said.

The painting will be sold on 14 Nov following public exhibitions scheduled for London, Paris and New York.

Tiger happy with 2012 season, despite major drought

ATLANTA, 20 Sept—Tiger Woods has not won a major title in more than four years but he is delighted with his progress this season, highlighted by three victories on the PGA Tour, after a frustrating 2011 campaign cut short by injury.

The American former world number one missed three months, and two of the four majors, last year after injuring his Achilles during the Masters in April.

"This has been a really good season to come back from last year, not being able to play at all, and then being able to train properly and practice properly," Woods told reporters on Wednesday ahead of this week's Tour Championship.

"Hence I'm producing the results I know I can produce. I've made some great strides this year. I went from probably most of my career not being a very good driver of the ball to now being one of the better ones out here on tour.

"That is exciting for me. That is one of the reasons why my scoring average is where it's at right now. I've been very consistent."

Helped by his three wins on the 2012 PGA Tour, Woods lies second behind Rory McIlroy in the FedExCup points standings coming into this week for the fourth and final playoff event of the season.

He also occupies second place in the scoring average charts, his 68.892 being trumped only by McIlroy's 68.836.

"My short game is finally starting to come around too, which is nice," said Woods. "I made some good changes this summer, and they're finally starting to click in."

Asked what he still needed to do to clinch a 15th major title, Woods replied: "I think just putting it all together at the right time. I've put it together at three events this year. They just happen to be not the major championships."

"I just need to have those weeks where I put it together and coincide with a major. They're not easy to do. I haven't really done it that often. I've done it 14 times...so they're a little harder to do."

Midfielder Toni Kroos added a second when he scored with a 20-metre drive in the 76th minute.

Defensive-minded Valencia, in their first encounter with Bayern since losing to the Germans in the 2001 Champions League final, cut the deficit with a header from Nelson Valdez in stoppage time.

Bayern should then have made it 3-1 but substitute Mario Mandzukic saw his penalty saved by keeper Diego Alves after Adil Rami was sent off.

Bayern coach Jupp Heynckes sprang a surprise with his starting lineup, leaving top scorer Mandzukic on the bench and bringing in the experienced Claudio Pizarro. He also gave 40-million euro-signing Javi Martinez his first competitive start.

The hosts enjoyed the majority of possession but were made to work hard as cautious Valencia defended deeply.

Kroos tried his luck from 20 meters with a powerful drive but Alves was well-placed to save. Bayern, who are top in the Bundesliga, kept at it and Schweinsteiger broke the deadlock after a well-timed pass by Arjen Robben.

Valencia, with only one win in four league games in Spain so far, posed no real threat, waiting for a chance to break and mainly relying on Algerian Sofiane Feghouli's speed for any offensive spark.

Kroos forced another good Alves save with a 20-metre missile on the hour before finally beating the Brazilian after he was left unmarked outside the box.

Floyd Mayweather must pay Manny Pacquiao over $113,000 for legal fees

Boxing

NEW YORK, 20 Sept—Manny Pacquiao is still waiting to fight Floyd Mayweather Jr, but he claimed a victory of sorts on Wednesday when a federal judge ruled Mayweather must pay Pacquiao more than $113,000 for failing to give a deposition in a defamation suit, according to several media reports.

The majority of the money will likely go to Pacquiao's attorneys, who had filed suit on behalf of their boxer client for defamation after Mayweather told reporters and others that Pacquiao uses performance-enhancing drugs.

"Calling a professional athlete a cheater is the most serious charge one can make," Pacquiao's original lawsuit said. "Accusing an athlete of using performance-enhancing drugs—however baseless and lacking in evidence—is toxic."

Mayweather was scheduled to sit for a deposition sometime between June and October last year, but never showed up. One of his arguments was that he was too busy training, but investigators obtained photos of Mayweather at various nightclubs across the country showing him dancing, drinking and spending significant amounts of money.

"Mayweather decided that he, not the court, would determine if and when his deposition would take place," according to the motion.—Reuters

Messi double gives Barca comeback win over Spartak

Soccer

BARCELONA, 20 Sept—Lionel Messi started his and Barcelona's Champions League campaign with a bang when he struck twice to secure a 3-2 comeback win for the favorites at home to Spartak Moscow in their Group G opener on Wednesday.

Barca were flirting with a first home defeat in 17 European games when Spartak took a shock 2-1 lead in the 59th minute at the Nou Camp before Messi, top scorer in the competition the past four seasons, leveled 19 minutes from time.

The Argentine World Player of the Year was set up by Cristian Tello, scorer of the home side's 14th-minute opener, and then nodded in the winner in the 80th minute from a center by substitute Alexis Sanchez.

It was an impressive comeback from the La Liga side, bidding for a third European crown in five years, and ensured a winning debut in the competition for new coach Tito Vilanova.

Spartak were level 15 minutes after Tello's opener without even having to shoot on goal when fullback Daniel Alves turned the ball into his own net.

Alonso seeks to tighten grip in Singapore

SINGAPORE, 20 Sept—Ferrari's Fernando Alonso will aim to consolidate his Formula One championship lead around the streets of Singapore on Sunday, seeking a third win in the night race to extend his 37-point advantage in the standings. The twice world champion has been a master of consistency this season, winning three races and claiming a top-five spot in seven others, and goes into the final seven races of the season in prime position to win his first title since 2006.

While his Ferrari has often struggled in qualifying, his race pace has been competitive and he arrives in southeast Asia buoyed up by another rousing drive at his team's home track in Monza, where he finished third after starting 10th on the grid.

"In all the simulations and all the predictions we had, it was never a podium finish, so basically it's much better than expected," the Spaniard said after the Monza race.

"The race went like a movie for us, like a dream."

More encouraging for Alonso is that the 23-turn Marina Bay Street Circuit has proved a happy hunting

Real back on track after rousing night in Europe

Real Madrid's coach Jose Mourinho takes his seat before the start of their Champions League Group D soccer match against Manchester City at the Santiago Bernabeu stadium in Madrid, on 18 Sept, 2012.—REUTERS

MADRID, 20 Sept—Jose Mourinho got the response he wanted from his players and Cristiano Ronaldo is celebrating his goals again after Real Madrid's rousing fightback to snatch a 3-2 Champions League win at home to Manchester City on Tuesday.

Needing a convincing performance in Europe after a dreadful start in La Liga, Real twice came from a goal down in the Group D opener at the Bernabeu before Ronaldo struck a 90th-minute winner to send the home fans into raptures and silence the boisterous City supporters high up in the giant arena.

The fight the Real players showed to turn the game around was in stark contrast to the limp displays that led to shock domestic defeats at Getafe and Sevilla.

The victory against the English champions has transformed a club on the verge of crisis into a team full of belief they can secure the 10th European title that has eluded them since 2002.

Mourinho launched a series of stinging attack on his players after the La Liga setbacks but after wildly celebrating Ronaldo's goal the Portuguese told reporters Real could scarcely have played better.

"In Seville (on Saturday) we had players who did not win a ball in 90 minutes," he said.

"Today was the opposite. The team was solid, compact, recovered balls and were committed to play aggressively.

"Real Madrid wants that historic tenth title and we will fight for it."

Concern in the Spanish capital about Real's early-season wobble was exacerbated by Ronaldo's revelation at the start of this month that he was "sad" for professional reasons.

The Portugal forward's bombshell prompted speculation he was seeking an improved contract and could even leave the club that made him the world's most expensive player when they bought him from Manchester United for 94 million euros ($122.72 million) three years ago.

FSA warned Barclays on Diamond approval

LONDON, 20 Sept—Britain's financial regulator warned Barclays Plc two years ago that its approval of Bob Diamond as chief executive could change if there was an adverse outcome from the Libor interest rate rigging investigation, documents showed. Andrew Tyrie, the chairman heading a parliamentary inquiry into the Libor scandal at Barclays, said the evidence in the documents was "at variance" with the impression it received from Barclays Chairman Marcus Agius when it quizzed him in July.

The Financial Services Authority (FSA) released documents to Tyrie after a report by his committee indicated the regulator had not raised Libor as a concern at the time it approved Diamond's promotion to CEO. The regulator said on Wednesday that a September 2010 file note of a meeting between its CEO Hector Sants and Agius, at which the approval of Diamond was discussed, said Sants "stressed that this is an ongoing (Libor) investigation and the FSA's position could change so the board should be aware."

Diamond resigned in July after Barclays was fined over $450 million (277.4 million pounds) for rigging Libor benchmark interest rates. The Libor inquiry unearthed long-standing criticism by the FSA of Barclays for having an aggressive culture and for taking too many risks.

Lawmakers at the inquiry also accused Diamond, who had long been one of the most high profile and highest paid bankers and who became Barclays CEO at the start of 2011, of misleading them.

The file note, released by Tyrie's Treasury Select Committee, also said Sants told Agius that the regulator's relationship with Diamond had to improve.

"HS (Sants) explained that the relationship with BD (Diamond) had not reached the level of openness, transparency and willingness to air issues with the FSA as is the case with John Varley," it said, referring to Diamond's predecessor as CEO.

It said Agius agreed and would make sure Diamond "steps up" to improve and that Varley would "coach" him to help the relationship.

The note said Agius said "whilst BD (Diamond) is very competitive ... he suspects he will now see him mature and relax given he has now achieved his goal" of becoming CEO.—Reuters

Cambodia launches telecoms regulatory body

PHNOM PENH, 20 Sept—Cambodia officially launched the Telecommunications Regulator of Cambodia (TRC) on Thursday in a bid to supervise the country's fast-growing telecoms sector, officials said.

Speaking at the launching ceremony, So Khun, Minister of Posts and Telecoms, said the TRC will govern rules and regulations in the sector with authority over spectrum and fair price setting for telecoms operators.

"This is a new achievement for the country in reforming telecoms sector," he said. "The regulatory body will help to build more confidence among investors."

The TRC is authorized to inspect and supervise on techniques and administration on the construction, operation, distribution and use of networks and telecommunications as well as information technologies.

At the event, Mao Chakrya, TRC's newly-appointed director general, vowed to strengthen existing laws and regulations, to formulate new rules and regulations to keep up with the development of sophisticated technologies and to ensure a fair and transparent atmosphere for telecommunications operators.

Telecommunications witness a significant progress in recent years.

According to the ministry's report, by June this year, the country's eight mobile phone operators have sold out 19.64 million SIM cards, exceeding the country's population of about 14.5 million.

In terms of internet use, the kingdom has about 30 internet service providers serving 1.86 million customers.

Louisiana man arrested in university bomb threat case

NEW ORLEANS, 20 Sept—A man has been arrested in connection with a bomb threat that led to the evacuation of Louisiana State University, but he does not appear to be linked to recent threats against other universities, school police said on Wednesday. William Bouvay, 42, of Baton Rouge, was arrested late on Tuesday on charges of communicating false information of a planned bombing, the university police said. LSU's Baton Rouge campus was evacuated after receiving a phone call on Monday warning of multiple bombs.

Students were later allowed to return to their dormitories after police swept buildings at the university, which has 29,000 students and 4,700 faculty and staff. No explosives were found. Police said the bomb threat was made from a deactivated cell phone that was only able to make emergency calls. Investigators pinpointed a GPS location from which the call was placed, then searched the area and identified Bouvay as a suspect. When questioned, he admitted making the threat, police said. The Louisiana case was similar to several other recent cases. On Friday, threats were phoned in to the University of Texas at Austin and North Dakota State University, prompting evacuations of both campuses. No bombs were found.

Also on Friday, Hiram College in Ohio was evacuated following an e-mailed bomb threat, and Indiana's Valparaiso University, issued a security warning, saying that an unspecified threat was made via a graffiti message. Captain Cory Lalonde of the LSU Police Department said authorities "have found nothing whatsoever that would link this incident" with others. "Quite the opposite, we have every indication that this is strictly an isolated incident to LSU and the Baton Rouge area," Lalonde said.

University of Texas police have determined that "some of these threats nationally are related, but our investigation is still open," said spokeswoman Rhonda Weldon, who declined to elaborate.—Reuters

Chelsea face reality check as quest begins to emulate Milan

LONDON, 20 Sept—If Chelsea are to become the first club in the Champions League era to win back-to-back titles, they are going to have to eliminate the mistakes that cost them victory in their 2-2 draw with Juventus on Wednesday.

The Italian champions handed them a reality check at Stamford Bridge as Chelsea began their quest to emulate

Franco Baresi's AC Milan side that boasted the Dutch trio of Ruud Gullit, Marco van Basten and Frank Rijkaard and were the last to lift successive European Cups in 1989 and 1990.

That trophy was paraded around Stamford Bridge before the opening Group E match against Juve, but if Chelsea are to retain their glittering prize, they cannot let teams escape as Juventus did.

Coach Roberto di Matteo said before the game they would not underestimate Juve, back in the competition after a two-year absence and coming to London after going unbeaten for 42 games in Serie A.

"So far, it's been impossible for anyone to win it twice, so we will try to do the impossible," di Matteo said on Tuesday.

After his side established a 2-0 lead with both goals
