Explosions kill 83 at Syrian university as exams begin

BEIRUT, 16 Jan—Two explosions tore through one of Syria's biggest universities on the first day of student exams on Tuesday, killing 83 people and wounding dozens, a monitoring group said.

More than 50 countries asked the United Nations Security Council on Tuesday to refer the crisis to the International Criminal Court, which prosecutes people for genocide and war crimes. But Russia—Assad's long-standing ally and arms supplier—blocked the initiative, calling it "ill-timed and counterproductive."

Each side in the 22-month-old conflict blamed the other for Tuesday's blasts at the University of Aleppo, located in a government-held area of Syria's most populous city.

Some activists in Aleppo said a government attack caused the explosions, while state television accused "terrorists"—a term they often use to describe the rebels—of firing two rockets at the school. A rebel fighter said the blasts appeared to have been caused by "ground-to-ground" missiles.

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights, a Britain-based monitoring group, said 83 people were killed and dozens wounded, but it could not identify the source of the blasts.

"A cowardly terrorist act targeted the students of Aleppo University as they sat for their mid-term examinations," Syria's United Nations ambassador, Bashar Ja'afari, told the UN Security Council in New York. He said 82 students had died and 162 more were wounded.

If confirmed, the government's report of a rocket attack would suggest rebels in the area had been able to obtain and deploy more powerful weapons than previously used.

The crisis has driven hundreds of thousands of people to flee the country, many to neighbouring Jordan, Lebanon and Turkey, where a fire at a camp in the country's southeast killed a pregnant Syrian woman and her three children on Tuesday.—Reuters

The vessel was first deployed in the Baltic in 2011 when unusually thick ice left more than 200 vessels stranded. Similarly cold weather is feared over the coming winter months.

US welcomes French military action in Mali

WASHINGTON, 16 Jan—The United States welcomed the French military action in Mali and was providing support to the French forces, State Department spokeswoman Victoria Nuland said on Tuesday.

"It's absolutely critical to stop the offensive of terrorist groups towards southern Mali, to prevent the collapse of the government, and to accelerate the implementation of the UN Security Council resolutions on Mali," Nuland told reporters at a briefing.

"So, it's in that context that the US very much welcomes the French military action in Mali, which came at the request of Mali's president, as well as support being offered by other governments," she said.

The al-Qaeda-linked rebels in northern Mali are facing increasing pressure after days of bombardment by French war planes and the French decision to deploy more troops on the ground to help Mali's government forces.

During a visit to the United Arab Emirates on Tuesday, French President Francois Hollande said the French forces in Mali will increase from the current 750 to 2,500.

On Friday, Paris confirmed its military operations in Mali to back the government forces in fighting the rebels, who briefly seized the central town of Konna and threatened the southern part of Mali, including the capital Bamako.

17 killed, 133 wounded in bomb attacks in northern Iraq

BAGHDAD, 16 Jan—Up to 17 people were killed and 133 wounded in two bomb attacks targeting offices of Kurdish parties in northern Iraq on Wednesday, the police said.

In one of the attacks, a suicide bomber drove his explosive-laden truck into the entrance of the office of the Kurdistan Democratic Party (KDP), headed by the regional Kurdish president Masoud Barzani, in Atlas Street in a commercial area in the city of Kirkuk, some 250 km north of Baghdad, a local police source told Xinhua on condition of anonymity.

The powerful blast killed up to 15 people and wounded more than 105, many of them were officials and security members at the Kurdish office, the source said.

The toll could rise as many of the victims were transported by ambulances and civilian cars to hospitals and medical centers in the city, the source added. Earlier, the source put the toll at five killed and 90 wounded.

In a separate incident, at least two people were killed and 28 wounded in a car bomb explosion near the office of the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan (PUK), a Kurdish party headed by Iraqi President Jalal Talabani, in the city of Tuz-Khurmato, some 200 km north of Baghdad, a local police source anonymously told Xinhua.

The ethnically mixed cities of Kirkuk and Tuz-Khurmato are part of disputed areas claimed both by the semi-autonomous region of Kurdistan and Baghdad central government.

US House OKs 50-bln-USD aid for Superstorm Sandy

WASHINGTON, 16 Jan—US House of Representatives Tuesday night passed a 50.7-billion-US-dollar bill that would aid those affected by Superstorm Sandy.

In a 241-180 vote, the House adopted the measure which would provide 17 billion dollars in immediate disaster funds for worst hit states of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

The bill also commits 33.7 billion dollars in funds for longer-term reconstruction. The Senate is expected to take up the measure on Wednesday.

The bill was the second of two steps House Speaker John Boehner said he would take to meet the demands of relief for those affected by Sandy. The House voted on 4 January to pass a 9.7-billion-dollar legislation that would make payments to insurance claims related to Sandy.

The federal government has handed the Congress a sweeping relief bill that would provide over 60 billion dollars to those affected by Sandy, which struck late last year. The Senate swiftly passed it, but the House was criticized for its delay.

Windows 8 fails to reignite PC market

LONDON, 16 Jan—Holiday season shoppers shunned Windows 8 desktops and notebooks in favour of tablets and smartphones, resulting in a 4.3 percent fall in PC sales in the fourth quarter, research firm Gartner said on Monday.

Worldwide PC shipments declined to 90.3 million units in the last three months of 2012, Gartner said, indicating that the sector was suffering from a shift in consumer habits as much as a weak global economy.

"Tablets have dramatically changed the device landscape for PCs, not so much by 'cannibalizing' PC sales, but by causing PC users to shift consumption to tablets rather than replacing older PCs," said Mikako Kitagawa, principal analyst at Gartner.

"Whereas as once we imagined a world in which individual users would have both a PC and a tablet as personal devices, we increasingly suspect that most individuals will shift consumption activity to a personal tablet, and perform creative and administrative tasks on a shared PC."

Russia to launch spacecraft to Moon in 2015

Moscow, 16 Jan—Russia plans to launch an unmanned space vehicle to the Moon in 2015, federal space agency Roscosmos said on Tuesday.

"In 2015, the first launch from the Vostochny cosmodrome will be the Luna-Globe launch," Vladimir Popovkin, head of Roscosmos, told reporters. Vostochny is a new Russian space center under construction in the Far Eastern Amur region.

The Luna-Globe vehicle would carry a minimal set of scientific equipment because the mission was mainly aimed to work out the Moon landing operation itself, he said. The 1,400-kg spacecraft would drop a 500-kg landing module on the Moon's South Pole, he added.

The industry was hoping that the latest version of Microsoft's Windows, released in October, would revitalize a sector which had been buffeted by competition from tablets and smartphones over the past year.

But Gartner said the new operating system did not have a significant impact on PC shipments in the quarter, in part because the first Windows 8 devices lacked the excitement of the touch interface found in tablets.

Hewlett-Packard regained the top spot from China's Lenovo Group in the quarter, Gartner said, thanks to its strength in the consumer market, which is a stronger driver than corporate sales in the holiday season. However, the Silicon Valley company's shipments did not grow compared to a year ago.

Despite losing the top spot, Lenovo recorded the strongest growth of the top manufacturers, with a 8.2 percent rise in shipments on a year ago. Dell was in third place, although its sales fell 21 percent year-on-year, while Acer, down 11 percent, was in fourth position.—Reuters

Russia's space strategy charted by Roscosmos until 2030 regards the Moon missions as a step toward a manned flight to Mars.

Russia also plans to launch in 2018 from Vostochny a brand-new manned spacecraft that would gradually replace the Soyuz spaceships, Russia's space working horse since 1967, Popovkin of Roscosmos said.

India significantly hit by cyber-espionage, says Russian firm

MUMBAI, 16 Jan—India is among the nations hit by a cyber espionage that has been targeting diplomatic, governmental as well as scientific research organisation at least for five years, according to a Russian cyber security firm.

Termed as 'Red October', the campaign (named after the famous novel 'The Hunt For The Red October' by Tom Clancy) has significantly hit Russia, Kazakhstan, India, Azerbaijan and Belgium, among others, Kaspersky Lab said in a report on Monday.

The cyber espionage campaign 'Rocra' (short for Red October) has infected hundreds of victims worldwide across eight categories 'Government, Diplomatic/embassies, Research institutions, Trade and commerce, Nuclear/energy research, Oil and gas companies, Aerospace and Military'.

"The earliest evidence indicates that the cyber-espionage campaign was active since 2007 and is still active at the time of writing (January 2013)," the firm said.

Based on Kaspersky Security Network (KSN), the list of countries that have seen most number of infections is topped by Russia at 35. It is followed by Kazakhstan (21) while India, Azerbaijan and Belgium witnessed 15 infections each.

Other nations impacted include Afghanistan (10), Armenia (10), Iran and Turkmenistan (7 each), Ukraine, Vietnam and the US (6 each), Pakistan (5) and Brazil (4).

Only countries that have seen more than five infections have been included in the list.

Cisco eager to regain ground as network security leader

NEW YORK, 16 Jan—After failing to land a big acquisition in the security space last year and suffering a steady decline in market share, Cisco Systems Chief Executive John Chambers is determined to turn around his company's lagging security business - whatever the cost.

The growing expectation, from Silicon Valley to Wall Street, is that Chambers will not be able to do it with its SecureX product range, and needs to go back to the deal table to boost the business with an acquisition in the coming months.

In December, Chambers said he had granted Chris Young—Cisco's first executive for security at a senior vice president level—a "blank check" for the next two to three years to hire and acquire as he sees fit to overhaul Cisco's security business and spark a rebound. Cisco has lost around 10 percent of its market share in network security over the past five years to smaller, more innovative rivals such as Juniper Networks Inc, Checkpoint Systems Inc, and Palo Alto Networks Inc. The network equipment company fell behind in web applications, social media and video streaming that call for more complex security protection than traditional firewalls provide. Mike Rothman, analyst and president at security research and advisory firm Securosis, said Cisco was "years behind in terms of a lot of capabilities" and that Young "better get his M&A people in order".

Cisco is aware of the deficiency and has been actively looking for acquisitions to beef up its network security offerings for some time, three sources familiar with the matter said.

However, there are only a handful of top picks—such as Palo Alto Networks, FireEye, Sourcefire, Fortinet and Barracuda Networks—and Cisco already struck out with at least one before Chambers' "blank check" strategy.

Cisco tried snapping up Palo Alto Networks before the company went public in July 2012, but they could not agree on a deal valuation, two of the sources said. "They tried and they were billions of dollars apart on value," one of the sources said. Java still risky, even after security update, says US

NEW DELHI, 16 Jan—The US Department of Homeland Security warned that a security update of Oracle Corp's Java software for Web browsers does not do enough to protect computers from attack, sticking to its previous advice that the programme be disabled.

"Unless it is absolutely necessary to run Java in web browsers, disable it," the Department of Homeland Security's Computer Emergency Readiness Team said on Monday in a posting on its website.

The software maker released an update to Java on Sunday, just days after the government issued its initial warning on the software, saying that bugs in the program were being exploited to commit identity theft and other crimes.

Security experts have warned that PCs running Java in their browsers could be attacked by criminals seeking to steal credit-card numbers, banking credentials, passwords and commit other types of computer crimes.

The Java software platform, created in the mid-1990s, enables developers to write one set of code that will run on PCs running on Microsoft Corp's Windows, Apple Inc Macs and servers running on the Linux operating system.

Security experts say the bugs only affect one part of the platform software that plugs into Internet browsers. While some researchers have long complained the software was buggy, it started generating more public scrutiny last year after a security scare in August.—Reuters

Dell in talks to go private, shares surge

NEW YORK/SAN FRANCISCO, 16 Jan—Dell Inc is in talks with private equity firms on a potential buyout, two sources familiar with the matter told Reuters, confirming reports that sent shares in the world's No 3

PC maker soaring 13 percent to nearly a eight-month high.

The firms are now holding discussions on a deal with billionaire Chief Executive and founder Michael Dell, who owns about 14 percent of the company, according to one source with knowledge of the matter.

The Wall Street Journal cited unidentified sources as saying TPG and Silver Lake could team up on an offer, possibly in conjunction with other investors such as pension funds. JP-Morgan Chase & Co was also involved in the negotiations, it added.

The first source told Reuters any potential deal could be structured as a management-led buyout with Michael Dell at the helm. Talks had progressed for two to three months, heating up in late 2012, and a deal could be reached in six weeks, the Journal cited sources as saying.

Dell, which has steadily ceded market share to Hewlett Packard and China's Lenovo, declined to comment on what it called rumours and speculation.

The company has lost 40 percent of its value since last year's peak, and is trying to reinvent itself as a seller of higher-margin services to corporations — an internal overhaul that might be conducted away from public scrutiny.

Some analysts say taking the company private, an idea that has surfaced sporadically in past years, makes sense.

But others pointed to the sheer expense of such a deal, an outsized debt burden of some $4.5 billion and murky prospects as a major player in a PC market that's dwindling with the advent of tablets such as Apple Inc's iPad.—Reuters

Facebook shares rise in buildup to mystery event, earnings

SAN FRANCISCO, 16 Jan—Facebook Inc's stock opened on Monday above $32 for the first time since July as anticipation about upcoming products and financial results underscored Wall Street's renewed confidence in the online social network.

Facebook will on Tuesday host its first major Press event at its headquarters in Menlo Park, California, since its troubled initial public offering in May, triggering a guessing game among technology observers and online blogs about what it could unveil — everything from a smartphone to a search engine.

"There's a lot of speculation. Nothing to me seems to be that certain," Jefferies & Co analyst Brian Pitz said. "If I were to bet, I'd think it was something that was ad-platform related. I'm not convinced on the phone," said Pitz, citing previous comments by Facebook's leaders including CEO Mark Zuckerberg that making a smartphone would be the "wrong strategy" for Facebook.

In an email to reporters last week, Facebook invited the media to "come and see what we're building" without providing details.

Some analysts said

the stock's recent gains — shares are up roughly 17 percent since the start of the year—may have more to do with the company's upcoming fourth-quarter financial results, slated for 30 January.

"The stock is up because they have driven a dramatic increase in the ad load of their mobile app which is giving investors hope that they exceeded expectations," BTIG analyst Richard Greenfield said.

Shares were down about 1.3 percent to $31.30 in mid-afternoon trading.

The world's No1 social network with 1 billion users, Facebook became the first US company to debut on stock markets with a value of more than $100 billion. Its value subsequently plunged by more than 50 percent on mounting concerns about slowing revenue growth and the challenges of making money as users shift from personal computers to mobile devices. Facebook surprised Wall Street in the third quarter by announcing that mobile ads accounted for 14 percent of its total ad revenue. Some analysts expect the company to report further growth in its nascent mobile ad business for the fourth quarter.

Boeing, engineers set to resume contract talks on Wednesday

SEATTLE, 16 Jan—Negotiators representing 23,000 Boeing Co (BA.N) engineers are due to restart contract talks on Wednesday after digesting the full terms of the company's latest offer, delivered by email on Monday afternoon. But prospects of an agreement over a new contract seem as far away as ever, even as the US Federal Aviation Administration opens an investigation into the safety of Boeing's 787 aircraft, which will require thorough scrutiny of Boeing's engineering operations.

"The documents just came in two minutes ago, so we haven't even had a chance to look at them," said Ray Goforth, Executive Director of the Society of Professional Engineering Employees in Aerospace (SPEEA), on Monday.

"The negotiating team intends to spend tomorrow looking at them and then we will be meeting with the company at 1 pm Pacific time (2100 GMT) on Wednesday".

The latest offer, made on paper on Friday, and delivered in full electronically on Monday afternoon, boosts raises for professional workers by 5 percent in each of the first two years of the four-year agreement, and 4 percent in each of the remaining years.

Wal-Mart plans to hire 100,000 veterans over five years

NEW JERSEY, 16 Jan—Wal-Mart Stores Inc (WMTN), the world's largest retailer, said it plans to hire more than 100,000 veterans in the United States over the next five years, a move supported by First Lady Michelle Obama.

Most of the veterans will be placed in the company's stores and clubs, and some will be employed in distribution centres, Walmart US Chief Executive Bill Simon said in a speech to be delivered on Tuesday at the National Retail Federation conference.

The retailer will start issuing job offers to veterans from Memorial Day in May. The offers will be given to any honourably discharged veteran within his or her first twelve months off active duty.

"Hiring a veteran can be one of the best business decisions you make ... veterans have a record of performance under pressure," Simon said in the speech,

The commercial mentions how Coca-Cola sells about 180 low- and no-calorie drinks, works to produce better-tasting low-calorie sweeteners and has introduced smaller can sizes.

It also reminds viewers that "all calories count no matter where they come from" and that "if you eat and drink more calories than you burn off, you'll gain weight."

This is not the first time Coca-Cola has used advertising to address this issue, but it is a first for television. The move comes as New York City prepares for an upcoming ban on the sale of sugary drinks larger than 16 ounces (0.5 liter) in places like restaurants, movie theaters and stadiums. In November, voters in two California cities rejected ballot measures for soda taxes.

The commercial will air on Monday on CNN's "The Situation Room with Wolf Blitzer," FOX News' "The O'Reilly Factor," and MSNBC's "The Rachel Maddow Show." It will air on Tuesday during other shows as well.

Corporate Social Responsibility

As Myanmar has kept its door wide open to foreign investors, a number of multinational corporations have entered, perhaps returned after decades of absence, the country. Myanmar has become the latest battleground of so-called 'Cola World' between US soft drink giants CocaCola and Pepsi. General Electric, Visa, MasterCard, Standard Chartered and Western Union represent the big names' return to Myanmar.

Isolated by sanctions, the country had no choice but to deal with a handful of foreign companies and suppliers which might have unconvincing records of business ethics. With a wide range of choice being open to us, now is time to talk about the 'Corporate Social Responsibility' which we gave less priority in the past.

As the global strategic advisory group International Standardization Organization (ISO) suggests, CSR is "a balanced approach for organizations to address economic, social and environmental issues in a way that aims to benefit people, communities and society."

It covers various issues ranging from human rights to working environment, from environmental aspects to consumer issues and social development.

In Myanmar, Foreign Investment Commission chaired by the Union Minister at the President Office oversees incorporation of foreign companies and foreign investments which are said to be assessed by the Ministry of National Planning and Economic Development ahead of the approval of the investment by the commission. Decisive actions against unethical businesses, transparent manners of assessment and consumer awareness measures are required.

As for local businesses to which CSR is mostly unknown, they need to start developing self-regulating mechanism, guaranteeing that their products and services are environmental- and social-friendly and creating better working condition for their employees.

The government also needs to do its part to devise necessary pieces of legislation, develop monitoring mechanism and initiate prosecutions against the breach of social responsibilities by local or foreign corporations.

Obama meets new Saudi Interior Minister at White House

WASHINGTON, 16 Jan—President Barack Obama met Saudi Arabia's new Interior Minister, Prince Mohammed bin Nayef, on Monday to discuss security and regional issues, the White House said.

Prince Mohammed, appointed in November after the death of his father, veteran Interior Minister Prince Nayef bin Abdulaziz, is best known as Saudi Arabia's long-time security chief and has garnered the praise of Western governments for his role in the campaign against al-Qaeda.

"They affirmed the strong partnership between the United States and Saudi Arabia, and discussed security and regional issues of mutual interest," the White House said in a brief of the Oval Office talks between Obama and Prince Mohammed.

Seen as an ally of the West, Saudi Arabia — the world's top oil exporter — has provided critical intelligence to foil al-Qaeda plots, bankrolled pro-Western Arab governments and has supported Washington's attempts to isolate Iran over its nuclear programme.

Prince Mohammed's appointment as interior minister lifted him into a critical role for the ruling al-Saud family and one that had only been held by the current ruling generation. Analysts say he is in tune with King Abdullah's cautious social and economic reforms partly aimed at making Saudi society more open to outside influence.—Reuters

Cuba's Castros meet with Venezuela's top officials

HAVANA, 16 Jan—Cuban leader Raul Castro and his brother and predecessor Fidel Castro met here on Sunday with top Venezuelan officials visiting the Caribbean island country, the Cuban Communist Party's newspaper Granma said on Monday.

The leaders, including Venezuelan Vice President Nicolas Maduro, discussed "the successful outcome" and "promising perspectives" of a recent gathering in Venezuela's capital Caracas of envoys from member countries of the Bolivarian Alliance for the Americas (ALBA) and its energy bloc Petrocaribe.

The "warm" and "fraternal" meeting also served to assess "other aspects of the strategic alliance between" Cuba and Venezuela, Granma stressed.

The meeting took place as Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez continues to recover in Havana from cancer surgery.

Maduro said Venezuelans were "deeply" grateful for the care and attention Chavez has received from his medical team of Cuban doctors.

The Venezuelan delegation also expressed its gratitude to the Cuban government for declaring recently that "any attack against Venezuela will be considered an attack against our homeland."

The statement was made by Cuban Vice President Miguel Diaz-Canel, when he attended a mass rally last on Thursday in Caracas in support of Chavez's presidency, which has come under fire from political opponents who claim his absence and inability to take office on 10 January throws his administration into question. Accompanying Maduro at the meeting were Venezuelan National Assembly President Diosdado Cabello, Oil and Mining Minister Rafael Ramirez, and Attorney General Cilia Flores.

Turkish jets strike multiple targets in northern Iraq

ANKARA, 16 Jan — The Turkish Armed Forces launched a cross-border air operation earlier Monday in northern Iraq after an infiltration attempt by a large group of outlawed Kurdish Workers' Party (PKK) members from Zap camp across the Turkish border, private Dogan news agency reported.

After the information was received, the 2nd Air Forces Command sent two observation planes to the region.

Six F-16 jets took off from the 8th Main Jet Base in Diyarbakir province in southeastern Turkey, passed over the southeastern province of Hakkari, and bombarded 18 different targets in the Zap, Haftanin and Metina regions in northern Iraq.

This is the first cross-border operation by the Turkish Armed Forces in 12 days, according to officials.

The Zap area, a mountainous snow-bound region near the Turkish border in northern Iraq, hosts a major PKK base and training camp.—Xinhua

REUTERS

TOKYO, 16 Jan—Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe on Wednesday left for three Southeast Asian countries as his first overseas trip after he was elected as Japan's Prime Minister last month.

The four-day trip will bring Abe to Vietnam, Thailand and Indonesia, said Japan's Ministry of Foreign Affairs, adding the three countries are "part of the 'growth centre' of 21st century to lead global economic growth."

Abe will hold talks with leaders of the three countries, focusing on strengthening cooperation in trade, investment and infrastructure. The ministry emphasized that Japan will enhance partnership in politics and security with Vietnam and Indonesia through Abe's visit.

Abe's visit follows the separated trips by Deputy Prime Minister Taro Aso to Myanmar and Foreign Minister Fumio Kishida to the Philippines, Singapore and Brunei earlier this month.

The high-level overseas visits have covered major countries in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), indicating Abe's new government put great importance on the region.

China, Mongolia to deepen cooperation in mining,
energy sectors

ULAN BATOR, 16 Jan—China and Mongolia have broad prospects to deepen cooperation in mineral resources and energy, a senior Chinese official said on Tuesday. Zhang Xiaoqiang, Deputy Director of China's National Development and Reform Commission, said the two countries should enhance cooperation in mining and energy areas through joint development of big mining projects and construction of transportation infrastructure. Zhang made the remarks at the third meeting of the China-Mongolia cooperation commission on mineral resources and energy.

Boosting cooperation in mineral resources and energy, which account for the bulk of China-Mongolia economic and trade relations, is in the interests of both countries and can help Mongolia turn its advantages in resources into economic development, Zhang said. Mongolian Mining Minister D Gankhuyag highlighted the rapid development of Mongolia-China economic and trade cooperation, saying that Mongolia has seen Chinese investment rapidly increasing in the country in the last few years. —Xinhua

Singapore's new private home sales hit record high in 2012

SINGAPORE, 16 Jan—A record total of 22,684 new homes were sold in 2012 in Singapore, according to the statistics released on Tuesday by the Urban Redevelopment Authority.

This is higher than the previous record of 16,292 units sold in 2010. A total of 16,027 new units were sold in 2011.

The latest statistics also confirmed a rebound in the demand for new private residential property in Singapore in December, which had prompted harsh cooling measures on 11 January.

The statistics released on Tuesday by the Urban Redevelopment Authority showed that 1,410 units of new private homes were sold in December, up by about 30 percent from November's 1,087 units.

With the executive condominiums included, the sale of new homes came in at 2,259 units in December.

Market analysts are expecting the market to remain subdued for a period of time to come, following the comprehensive set of measures announced over the weekend, including higher extra buyers stamp duties and further restrictions in the down payment and loan-to-value requirements for certain groups of buyers. Despite that, officials said they expected the demand to remain strong given the low interest rate environment internationally.

Harrison says he could surprise Djokovic

MELBOURNE, 16 Jan—Novak Djokovic was well aware of up and coming American Ryan Harrison, even stating that he knew how to beat the 20-year-old, but his second round Australian Open opponent is sure he may be able to give the world number one a surprise on Wednesday.

Two-time defending champion Djokovic will meet Harrison, for the third time in their careers, on Rod Laver Arena, and said after his first round victory over Paul-Henri Mathieu that he felt he knew the American's game and how to beat him.

Harrison, however, underwent intensive training, physical conditioning and scientific physiological testing during the off-season in order to help take his game to the next level. He was told to lose weight in order to ensure he was more effective right to the end of long matches and how to manage his nutrition better and his first round win over Santiago Giraldo had given him confidence to press on against the Serb, he said. "It's an opportunity. I have confidence in myself after all the work I have done during the off season," Harrison told reporters ahead of the Djokovic clash.

"I feel different this year, mentally and physically I have put myself into a position where I feel that I'm going to go forward. "I know that I've got myself into a better condition where I will be stronger and faster than the last time played (in the second round at Wimbledon last year).

"On top of that I'm going to try and play my game... try to control my side of the net... and not get caught up in the hype of the situation and how good he is."

Sacramento mayor says working to keep basketball's Kings in town

TORONTO, 16 Jan—Sacramento's mayor has won consent from the NBA to submit a proposal that would keep the Sacramento Kings from leaving town, a spokesman said on Tuesday, amid reports that an investor group was looking to buy the team and move it to Seattle.

Kevin Johnson, speaking at his annual State of Downtown Breakfast on Tuesday, said National Basketball Association Commissioner David Stern had approved his request to present a counteroffer to the league from a group of investors who would keep the Kings in the California state capital, spokesman Daniel Conway said.

"This morning I unveiled our 'Playing to Win' plan which is modeled on the successful strategy used by the City of San Francisco to keep the Giants and revitalize a section of the city's downtown," Johnson said, a former star for the NBA's Cleveland Cavaliers and Phoenix Suns, said in a written statement released later in the day.

Organizers: Nadal to make comeback at Brazil Open

RIO DE JANEIRO, 16 Jan—Former world No 1 Rafael Nadal will make his long-awaited return from injury at next month's Brazil Open, tournament organizers confirmed on Tuesday.

The 11-time Grand Slam winner has not played since suffering a knee injury during his second-round loss to Lukas Rosol at Wimbledon in June last year. The event will be Nadal's first in Brazil since he won the same tournament—his second career title—as an 18-year-old in 2005.

"I am very happy to be going back to play in Brazil," Nadal told Spain's TV3 on Tuesday. "I am especially happy to come back two weeks earlier than I had planned.

United's commercial director Richard Arnold said, "Manchester United has a huge following in China of 108 million.

We know from our visits there, including the one to Shanghai last summer, that our Chinese followers have always been among the most supportive.

"Through our relationship with CCB we hope not only to give fans an excellent product, but also bring them closer to the club they

Chargers hire Denver's Mike McCoy as head coach

NEW YORK, 16 Jan—The San Diego Chargers have hired Denver Broncos offensive coordinator Mike McCoy as their new head coach, the National Football League team said on Tuesday.

McCoy replaces Norv Turner, who was fired in December after six seasons with the team, including a 7-9 record in 2012 that left the team out of the playoffs for a third straight campaign.

A Broncos assistant for four seasons, McCoy was credited with turning Tim Tebow into the Denver starter in 2011 en route to the playoffs, and orchestrating a Peyton Manning-led offense in 2012 that went 13-3 in the regular season.

The Chargers snapped up McCoy before his second scheduled visit with the Arizona Cardinals about their coaching vacancy.

Scolari rules out Brazil revolution

SAO PAULO, 16 Jan—Brazil coach Luiz Felipe Scolari said on Tuesday he would not make major changes to the team he inherited from predecessor Mano Menezes.

The Selecao's friendly against England at London's Wembley Stadium on 6th February will be Scolari's first game in charge since being appointed as the national coach for the second time in November.

The 64-year-old will announce a 23-man squad for the match at a Press Conference in Rio de Janeiro on 22 January.

"You are not going to see a new national team," Scolari said during a pro-

Brazil coach Luiz Felipe Scolari

motional event on Tuesday. "There will not be many changes made in relation to what everybody has already seen. "It won't be very different because it's the first chance to have a good look at the players." Brazil will be without captain Thiago Silva for the Wembley fixture after the 28-year-old injured his left thigh while playing for Paris Saint-Germain on last Friday. Menezes was sacked by Brazil's Football Confederation (CBF) last November following a poor run of results which included the team's 2-1 loss to Mexico in the London Olympics final.

Former champions Dalian Shide in acquisition turmoil

YONGCHUAN, (Chongqing), 16 Jan—Eight-time champions Dalian Shide club have to register for next season in order to keep their name in Chinese Super League despite financial problems following a failed acquisition.

Shide, once the most accomplished club in China's top soccer league, had not been able to find enough financial support and asked for an acquisition by city rivals Aerbin late last year.

But the acquisition application was negated by the Chinese Football Association (CFA) for breaching if Shide can meet the requirements of CSL.

Sources, who declined to be named, told Xinhua that Shide may meet the requirements but it's most likely that the club can not hold it to the end of next season due to insufficient money.

Shide's swaying attitude also caused some trouble to clubs from lower leagues, such as Shanghai Shenhui and Beijing Baxy. If Shide quit the 2013 season as they had planned, Shenhui and Baxy may keep their positions in CSL and China's League (sec-

Winners' Cup finals.

The club were also famous for its withdrawal from football. In 2000 at the height of their success, then boss of the club Wang Jianlin decided to pull out from football after publically criticizing Chinese referees for match fixing.—Xinhua

Wu Di makes tennis history for Chinese men

MELBOURNE, 16 Jan—History was made when Wu Di became the first Chinese man to have played a Grand Slam match here on Tuesday.

History was also made by Japan's 42-year-old Kimiko Date-Krumm, who shocked 12th seed Nadia Petrova to become the oldest winner of a women's singles match in Australian Open history.

Though ousted by Ivan Dodig of Croatia by 7-5, 4-6, 6-3 and 6-3 in three hours 14 minutes, the 21-year-old Wu, who was qualified via a wildcard tournament in Nanjing, turned a new page for Chinese tennis and is keen to lead Chinese men out of the shadows of their more successful women's counterparts.

While Li Na, who comes from Wu's home city, won the French Open final in 2011, Wu and Zhang Ze, ranked 158, are the only Chinese players in the men's top 350 for now.

"I see hopes through today's match," said Wu. "And I will keep working in the future to reach the top 100." The loss also let Wu see his differences from world-class players.

"Dodig is quite a better player than me. The experience is more important than techniques," said Wu. "He showed how to deal with key points and that's the reason he won." "But I really enjoy today's match. Every game, every set, except the result," added Wu.

Earlier in the day, Japan's 42-year-old Kimiko Date-Krumm knocked out women's 12th seed Nadia Petrova out of Australian Open to reach the second round.

The last time for Date-Krumm to go past the first round at the Australian Open was in 1996. Date-Krumm showed age was no barrier, powering past the Russian 6-2, 6-0 in one hour and four minutes.—Reuters
