NAY PYI TAW, 18 Aug—A ceremony to hoist golden umbrella atop Laygyun Manaung Pagoda built in 1086 ME in Inwa Era by the King Tanninganway at Thawtapan Ward of Sagaing was held in conjunction with the consecration ceremony this morning.

President U Thein Sein and the congregation took the Nine Precepts from Zeyathin Pali Tekkatho Monastery Sayadaw of Sagaing.

The members of the Sangha recited Parittas. The President donated diamond orb, Buddha tooth relic and offertories to the Sayadaw.

The Chairman of Union Election Commission and party, members of the Pagoda

Board of Trustees offered pennant-shaped vane, jewellery items and alms to members of the Sangha.

The Rector Sayadaw of International Theravada Buddhist Missionary University delivered a sermon and shared merits gained together with the congregation.

The President and party hoisted atop diamond orb, pennant-shaped vane and tiers of umbrella atop the pagoda and then offered flowers, water and oil lights to the Buddha image.

Members of the Sangha consecrated the pagoda.

Linzin Diversion Weir to benefit over 71000 local people in Salin Township

Linzin Diversion Weir and irrigation system were built in 1927 on Salin Creek near Linzin Village of Salin Township in Magway Region. Diversion weir, 750 feet long and seven feet high, is of concrete work. It has two 60x7.5 square feet sand sluice gates and three valves in 20x4.5 square feet size each.

In 2012, the irrigation facility could supply water to 32980 acres of monsoon paddy out of 34332 acres according to the statistics. A total of 1352 acres of farmlands of Linzin irrigated area in the farthest area of the diversion weir missed the chance to get the irrigation water.

Thanks to the emphasis of the leaders of the State, the diversion weir is under repair from 2011-12 to 2013-14. In this regard, three miles long Salin main canal, 3.30 miles long two feeder canals, 4.20 miles long minor canals and 20 canal structures were repaired in 2011-12 fiscal year.

In 2012-13, 17 miles long Salin main canal, 33.03 miles long ten feeder canals, dredging of sand at the diversion weir and 62 canal structures were maintained. In 2013-2014, 10.03 miles long three feeder canals, four minor canals, 51 canal structures and placing of gravel along 20 miles long main canal are being repaired.

Upon completion of all maintenance works, a total of 34332 acres of farmlands can be placed under paddy and over 2000 acres under crops at full capacity. Moreover, the diversion weir will benefit over 71000 local people from 116 villages in the irrigated area and increase their per capita income as a drive for implementation of rural area development and poverty alleviation schemes.

Fire Prevention

Fire drill practised on platform of Shwesayan Pagoda

THATON, 18 Aug—With the aim of avoiding loss and damage of ancient pagodas and religious edifices in outbreak of fire in Thaton Township of Mon State, Township Fire Services Department and Shwesayan Pagoda Board of Trustees jointly organized the fire drill on the platform of the pagoda on 13 August noon.

Staff Officer U Saw Tun of Township FSD said, "We wish all the pilgrims should offer lights with the use of candle and oil lamps and joss sticks to the Buddha images systematically. Due to undisciplined acts, the fire engulfed various kinds of property in many examples. The heritages of the ancient buildings lost in the fire. These loss and damages cannot be substituted with new ones. Therefore, we coordinated with the Pagoda Board of Trustees and demonstrated fire drills for enabling the pilgrims and shopkeepers to have knowledge on danger of fire. We will coordinate with Ovadaçariya Sayadaws, members of the Sangha and members of the Pagoda Board of Trustees to keep the water taps on the platform of the pagoda so as to quickly put out the fire if the fire breaks out at any place of the pagoda."

Shwesayan Pagoda is one of the most magnificent ones in Thaton Township. Stone inscription chamber, Buddhology Museum, Sasana Beikman, Dhammayon, Celestial Beings King Pagoda, Pitakat Pagoda and other stupas in addition to many ancient buildings are located in the precinct of the pagoda.

It is related to the history of Suwunnabhumi ancient city.

Bomb hits Iraq's main commodity port, traffic unaffected

BASRA, (Iraq), 18 Aug—A truck bomb exploded at Iraq's main commodities port near the oil-exporting southern city of Basra, wounding four people on Saturday, but officials said shipping traffic at the Umm Qasr docks was not affected. Umm Qasr port, near Iraq's border with Kuwait, sits at the top of the strategic Gulf waterway and does not export oil. Imports handled there include grain shipments and heavy equipment used in the energy industry.

The blast damaged an out-of-service Iraqi ship anchored there and wounded four porters, the head of the Basra provincial security committee, Jabbar al-Saedi, told Reuters.

"It's a serious breach to the port security and a terrorist act targeting Iraq's economy," he said.

The truck had been parked near one of the port's unloading berths, he added. Shipping movements and unloading operations at the port were not disrupted by the explosion, said Mahdi Askar, an official with the state-run General Company for Maritime Transport.

The site is close to the city of Basra, about 420 km (260 miles) southeast of the capital Baghdad.

Iraq's economic infrastructure has been hit hard by frequent militant attacks. An oil export pipeline between Iraq and Turkey has been bombed about 30 times since the start of the year, the oil ministry said last week. The pipeline was hit again late on Friday. Sunni Muslim militant groups, including al-Qaeda, have stepped up their insurgency against Iraq's Shi'ite-led government in the past four months.

More than 30 people were killed and scores wounded in Baghdad on Thursday after a series of car bombs, part of a wave of violence that has taken the monthly death toll to the highest levels in around five years.

British police studying new information on Princess Diana death

LONDON, 18 Aug—British police said on Saturday they were assessing new information about the deaths of Princess Diana and her friend Dodi al Fayed in a Paris road crash in 1997.

London's Metropolitan Police did not elaborate on the information, or its source, but Britain's Sky news television station said it had come from the parents-in-law of a former soldier and had been passed on by the Royal Military Police. Sky said it understood the new information included an allegation that the deaths of Diana, Dodi and their driver were caused by a member of the British military.

A royal spokeswoman said there would be no comment. The Metropolitan Police said in a statement that it was assessing the "relevance and credibility" of information into the deaths that it had recently received.

"This is not a re-investigation and does not come under Operation Paget," it said, referring to an investigation by a former head of the Metropolitan police, John Stevens.

Diana and Dodi and their chauffeur were killed when their car crashed in a road tunnel while pursued by photographers after the couple left the Ritz hotel in Paris on 31 Aug, 1997.

The untimely death of Diana, who divorced heir-to-the-throne Prince Charles in 1996, sparked an outpouring of public grief that culminated in huge crowds lining the streets of London for her funeral.

Dodi's father, Mohammed al Fayed, the former owner of Harrods department store, alleged that the couple had been killed on the orders of the British establishment. Stevens concluded there was no evidence of murder and said that driver Paul had been drunk and going too fast.

Up to 100,000 face evacuation in Russia's flood-hit far east

MOSCOW, 18 Aug—As many as 100,000 people may be evacuated from their homes near Russia's border with China if the region's biggest floods for 120 years get worse, Russian media reported on Saturday. The floods, caused by a month of unusually heavy rain, are not expected to start receding until early September, the head of Russia's hydrometeorology monitoring service told news agency Ria Novosti.

Television footage showed residents rowing boats past half-submerged houses and military vehicles dumping gravel to counter the floodwater, which has already led to the evacuation of about 170,000 people from the Amur, Khabarovsk and

"The damage is extensive, but the most significant achievement is there have been no casualties ... we cannot relax, there is still a lot of work to be done," Russian President Vladimir Putin said in a televised address. Water has swamped huge swathes of the countryside with 400,000 hectares of agricultural land submerged, causing potential damage of more than 2 billion roubles ($60 million), Putin's envoy to the region Viktor Ishaev was quoted as saying. In 2012, flash floods killed 171 people and damaged more than 4,000 homes in southern Russia's mountainous Caucasus region.

Though silent, Israel remains worried by Egypt upheaval

JERUSALEM, 18 Aug—Israel has looked on at upheaval in Egypt largely in silence, keen to avoid disrupting strategic security cooperation with a military it sees as critical to curbing attacks by Islamist militants in neighbouring Sinai, officials and analysts said. Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu had aides instruct cabinet ministers to avoid public comment about Egypt, according to an official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

"Israel and the United States see the situation in Egypt very, very differently and justifiably the prime minister wouldn't want Israeli cabinet ministers to publicly criticise American policy," Giora Eiland, a former national security adviser, said on Channel 2 television. In private, one senior Israeli official expressed alarm at US President Barack Obama's condemnation of the bloodshed in Egypt and cancellation of a joint military exercise with Cairo.

"Eyebrows have been raised," the official said. Israel worries that any sign of wavering US support for Egypt's military may embolden Islamist militants sympathetic with the Muslim Brotherhood, ousted by the Egyptian army after a year in power. Eiland backed the crackdown by Egyptian army chief General Abdel Fattah al-Sisi on the Brotherhood this week.

"Sisi in the situation he faced, had no choice but to do what he did," said Eiland, adding he thought Western outrage at the scale of the bloodshed was understandable. Almost 800 people have been killed so far. Israel wants to avoid any disruption of its security cooperation with Egypt, which stems from a 1979 peace treaty — the first of only two such accords between Israel and Arab countries.

Military ties with Egypt have helped Israel strategically in a region where it is otherwise largely isolated, as well as rein in weapons smuggling to Palestinian militants in Gaza, which is ruled by Islamist group Hamas.

Airtel plans 4G network expansion in Kolkata

KOLKATA, 18 Aug — Telecom major Airtel is considering expanding its existing 4G network in Kolkata that could attract an investment of Rs. 1,500 to Rs 3,000 crore. "Airtel officials had met me to increase fibre network coverage by anywhere between 500km and 1000km for expanding 4G services," Kolkata Municipal Corporation (KMC) mayor-in-council (engineering and health) Atin Ghosh said.

"We had provided Airtel the draft licensing agreement required for cable laying and they have said they will revert in the next 7-10 days," he said. "If they lay 1000 km of optical fibre for 4G, the investment will be in excess of Rs 3000 crore," Ghosh added.

The development comes after Mukesh Ambani controlled Reliance Jio Infocomm sought to start 4G network across the city and held a meeting with KMC to obtain right of way for some 750 km of optical fibre network.

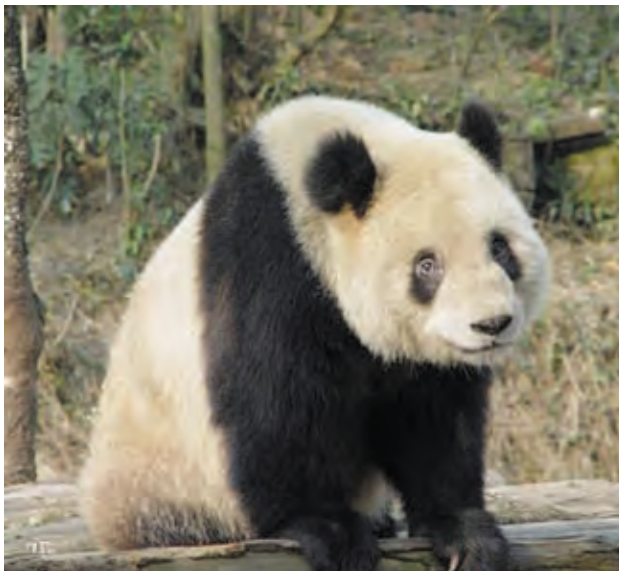

Airtel without divulging the subscriber base of 4G said they had launched the service in April and the coverage is only in the central business district of city and so far they invested Rs. 600 crore for the network in city.

Panda gives birth in semi-wild environment

CHENGDU, 18 Aug — A giant panda born in captivity gave birth to a cub in a semi-wild environment without human interference in a panda base in Ya'an City, southwest China's Sichuan Province, on Sunday. Through surveillance cameras in the semi-wild training center of the Bifengxia Panda Base, researchers were able to observe the mother, Princess, give birth to a cub at 1:46 am in the wild garden full of weeds.

Huang Yan, deputy chief engineer of the panda base, said on Monday that five to six cubs were born every year under the semi-wild training programme, which started in 2010 and is aimed at preparing captive giant pandas for going back to the wild. "Under the programme, we select qualified cubs and release the baby pandas to the wild along with their moms, so that they have a better chance of survival there," Huang said.

Princess, 11, was the first giant panda in the world to be brought up by people right after its birth. Her mother refused to feed her. Similar problems arose when Princess delivered her first twin cubs in 2003. Experts used toys and VCDs to teach her how to nurse her cubs. Already experienced in labour, Princess on Sunday held the cub and licked its body skillfully after delivery. Giant pandas are one of the world's most endangered species. About 1,600 of the animals live in the wild, mostly in the mountains of Sichuan, while more than 300 live in captivity.

Vienna giant panda couple give birth to third cub by natural conception

VIENNA, 18 Aug — A baby giant panda was born in Schoenbrunn Zoo on Wednesday, the third birth by a panda couple who have lived in Vienna for over 10 years, the zoo announced on Thursday. The baby panda, 10 centimetres in height and about 100 grams in weight, is now carefully taken care of by its mother Yang Yang in a whelping box.

No one could approach the baby, therefore, the gender of the baby could not be identified yet. To protect the cub, the panda house are closed to visitors. The birth of the third baby giant panda marked a new record of natural conception of giant panda in Europe, since the couple in Vienna are the unique pair in Europe which mated naturally and successfully had their babies.

The giant panda couple in Vienna zoo have given birth to 3 cubs by natural conception. Fu Long and Fu Hu, their eld children, have been sent back to China when 2 years old as per a loan agreement between China and Austria.

Facebook reveals daily users for US and UK, data aimed at advertisers

NEW YORK, 18 Aug — One out of three people in the United States — more than 128 million — visit Facebook every day, and about 24 million in the United Kingdom do the same, the company said on Tuesday, releasing regional data for the first time as a way of helping advertisers understand how people use the social network. It is also part of a larger push to go after dollars earmarked for TV commercials, the top choice among advertisers when they launch campaigns.

"We would like to be able to be explicit and say this is the amount of people you can reach tomorrow, or the amount of people you can reach when you are launching a movie," said Carolyn Everson, Facebook vice president of global marketing solutions. Consider that almost 6 million people tuned in to watch the mid-season premier of AMC's highly anticipated series "Breaking Bad" on Sunday. With more than 1 billion users, there is little doubt about the popularity of the world's No 1 social network, but advertisers often need much more data to make decisions.

Rebecca Lieb, a media and advertising analyst at Altimeter Group, said one billion is an abstract number. "As impressive and as big as Facebook is, by breaking it down more regionally we are getting more of an idea," she said. Facebook also released on Tuesday the number of active monthly and daily mobile users in the United States and the UK. Television commands the largest share of advertising money spent in the United States at 39 percent, according to eMarketer research, which estimated that $66.3 billion in ad dollars would go towards TV this year. Digital advertising represents about 25 percent of 2013 estimated advertising spend at $42 billion.

Still, there is a shift occurring: the average time spent daily with digital media is expected to surpass TV viewing for the first time this year, according to eMarketer. Under-scoring the change taking place in people's habits, WPP founder and Chief Executive Martin Sorrell expects up to 45 percent of the agency's business to go towards digital within five years, he wrote in post on LinkedIn. — Reuters

UNSG's message for World Humanitarian Day

19 August 2013

Every year on August 19th, we mark World Humanitarian Day in honour of aid workers who have lost their lives in the line of duty.

We commemorate their sacrifice and reaffirm our commitment to the life-saving work that humanitarians carry out around the world, every day, often in difficult and dangerous circumstances where others cannot or do not want to go.

This year's commemoration marks the 10th anniversary of the attack on UN headquarters in Baghdad that killed Special Representative Sergio Vieira de Mello and 21 other United Nations colleagues and partners. That tragedy was among the inspirations for this Day.

Sergio was a vocal advocate of the values and mission of the United Nations. He touched the lives of all who met him, and helped millions of poor and vulnerable people in a life of service on several continents. His death was a great loss to the United Nations, but his legacy has motivated many people to pursue humanitarian work.

This year, our World Humanitarian Day campaign is calling on people to answer a question: What do you think the world needs more of? I urge people everywhere to go to www.worldhumanitarianaday.org and tell us, in one word, what you think.

My word is "teamwork." In a time of global challenges, people and countries need to work together in common cause for peace, justice, dignity and development. That is the humanitarian spirit. That is the humanitarian imperative of the United Nations.

Canada's telecoms to change tack in anti-Verizon crusade

TORONTO, 18 Aug — Canada's three biggest wireless companies plan to attack Verizon Communications Inc's role in the US government's electronic spying scandal, as they scramble to force Ottawa to rethink rules that encourage Verizon to set up in Canada, according to four sources.

The Canadian government has so far spurned an intense lobbying effort from the trio — Rogers Communications, BCE Inc and Telus Corp — by insisting its policies will cut Canadians' wireless bills.

The planned campaign, which has yet to get a final green light, will focus on how Verizon's entry into Canada could open the door to overreaching surveillance and a loss of privacy for Canadians, said the sources, who declined to be named as the plans are not yet public. If the companies sign off on the proposals, the ads will start appearing in newspapers, online and on radio next week in the hope that they will swing public opinion behind the three players and persuade the government to change its mind.

Telus, BCE and Rogers declined to comment on any changes to the campaign. Under current rules, new entrant Verizon could bid in a 2014 auction for two of four prime blocks of the spectrum that wireless companies need to operate mobile services, while the existing big players can only bid for one block apiece. Verizon can also buy one or more of the smaller telecom firms, an option that is not open for the three Canadian firms.

Sources told Reuters in June that Verizon had offered between $600 million and $800 million for newcomer Wind Mobile and was in talks with another upstart, Mobilicity. Verizon has said only that it is exploring the possibility of a Canadian entry. — Reuters

Soft drinks linked to behavioral problems in young children

WASHINGTON, 18 Aug—US researchers said Friday children as young as five who consume soft drinks every day are more likely to have behavioural problems such as aggression, difficulty in paying attention and social withdrawal.

Previous studies have found that soft drink consumption is associated with aggression, depression, and suicidal thoughts in adolescents but the relationship had not been evaluated in younger children.

It the new study, the researchers from the Columbia University, the University of Vermont, and the Harvard School of Public Health assessed about 3,000 five-year-old children enrolled from 20 large US cities. Mothers reported their child's soft drink consumption and completed the child behavior checklist based on their child's behaviour during the previous two months. The researchers reported in the Journal of Pediatrics that 43 percent of the children consumed at least one serving of soft drinks per day, and 4 percent consumed four or more.

Children who drank four or more soft drinks per day were more than twice as likely to destroy things belonging to others, get into fights, and physically attack people, they said. The kids also had increased attention problems and withdrawal behavior compared with those who did not consume soft drinks. "We found that the child's aggressive behavior score increased with every increase in soft drinks servings per day," Shakira Suglia, an assistant professor of epidemiology at the Columbia University's Mailman School of Public Health, said in a statement.

"Although this study cannot identify the exact nature of the association between soft drink consumption and problem behaviours, limiting or eliminating a child's soft drink consumption may reduce behavioral problems," Suglia said.—Xinhua

NTT West subsidiary begins interpretation service by smart phone app

OSAKA, 18 Aug—A call centre company which is a subsidiary of Nippon Telegraph and Telephone West Corp has started to offer interpretation services through a smartphone application for foreigners living in Japan.

The Osaka-based company, NTT Marketing Act, launched the service on 1 August in five languages—English, Chinese, Korean, Spanish and Portuguese.

The app for Android phones is designed to be used in situations such as procedures at government offices or conversations in hospitals for those who do not speak Japanese, the company said.

Users speak with the call centre staff through their smartphone in their native language and then pass them onto the other parties concerned for the staff to translate into Japanese, according to the company.

New green policy gives industries a big boost

BEIJING, 18 Aug—China will speed up development of the energy-saving sector and make it a pillar of the national economy by 2015, top policymakers said on Sunday. The State Council vowed in a statement to spur technological innovation, expand demand for energy-saving products and boost the environmental-protection service industry.

According to the State Council, the value of the energy-saving industry's output will reach 4.5 trillion yuan ($728 billion) by 2015, an average annual growth of 15 percent. Wang Xiaokun, an energy analyst at Sublime China Information, a Chinese commodities consulting firm, said the policy gives clear direction to the industry and brings opportunities to investors, including private companies. The government will play a leading role and allow non-State capital to invest in energy-saving projects.

"The government encourages low-carbon and energy-saving development, which means business opportunities to the suppliers for such industries," said Wang. "For instance, the equipment manufacturers for power plants and grid will benefit from the policy." Ren Junming, a commentator on Xinhua-net.com, said the policy is significant in terms of expanding domestic demand and promoting upgrading of traditional industries. China will invest 1.8 trillion yuan in the renewable energy industry during the 12th Five-Year Plan (2011-15) and spend another 2.3 trillion yuan on energy-saving and emissions reduction, Xie Zhenhua, deputy director of the National Development and Reform Commission, said in late July.

China has committed to reduce its carbon emissions per unit of GDP by 40 to 45 percent by 2020 from the 2005 level and raise its non-fossil energy consumption percentage to 15 percent of its energy mix. From 2006 to 2012, China's energy consumption per unit of GDP was reduced by 23.6 percent, equivalent to a reduction of 1.8 billion metric tons of carbon emissions. Market share of high-efficiency energy-saving technology and equipment will rise from the current 5 percent to 30 percent by the end of 2015, Xie said.

"Facing the promising green and low-carbon markets, related companies should increase their investments in research, development and the application of low-carbon technology to strengthen their competitiveness in the global market," said Xie. "By coping with climate change and adapting to the new trend, companies can make profits and fulfill social responsibility at the same time." The market share of energy-efficient products will increase at least 50 percent by 2015, the State Council said. Urban sewage treatment capacity will also increase to 200 million cubic meters per day by 2015.

Habits linked to obesity may differ for boys and girls

NEW YORK, 18 Aug—Some behaviors, such as TV watching and eating school lunches, were linked to obesity among sixth grade boys and girls in a new study, but other risk factors were gender specific. Involvement in sports, for example, was tied to a lower risk of obesity in boys but not girls and drinking milk was linked to lowered risk among girls but not boys, according to researchers from the University of Michigan Health System in Ann Arbor. The study's authors, led by Dr Elizabeth Jackson, write in the journal Pediatrics that understanding obesity risk factors for specific genders may help target programmes aimed at weight loss or preventing weight gain in children.

The US Centres for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that about 17 percent of children and teens are obese. For the new study, Jackson and her colleagues used data collected between 2004 and 2011 from 1,714 sixth-grade students at 20 middle schools in and around Ann Arbor. Overall, about 18 percent of boys and 16 percent of girls were obese, which is defined as children who are in the top-fifth percentile of body mass index—a measurement of weight in relation to height. Among boys who were not obese, about 56 percent participated in at least 20 minutes of vigorous physical activity at least five times per week, compared to about 43 percent of boys who were obese. But there was no difference between the percentage of obese and non-obese girls who reported regular vigorous physical activity. Playing on at least one sports team was also linked to decreased risk of obesity for boys but not girls.

The lack of an association between obesity and physical activity in girls may be explained by girls not reporting some activities like cheerleading or dance, because children may not consider those activities sports, the researchers write.

They did find, however, that drinking two or more servings of milk per day was tied to about a 20 percent decreased risk of obesity among girls but not boys. One possible explanation is that milk is displacing sugary drinks in the girls' diets, Jackson's team writes. In addition to those gender-specific risk factors for obesity, the researchers found that heavy TV-watching and regularly eating school lunches were each tied to an increased risk of obesity for both boys and girls.

Watching more than two hours of TV was linked to a 19 percent increased risk of obesity and almost always eating school lunches was linked to a 27-to-29 percent increased risk. The new study cannot prove that any of the children's habits caused their obesity. For example, the authors point out in their report, a child regularly eating school lunches might be eligible for the meals because of low family income—itsself a risk factor for obesity."

This isn't really showing that school lunches caused obesity, but it's appropriate to point out that the school lunch programme hasn't had the effect we would have liked," Daniel Taber, assistant professor at the University of Texas School of Public Health in Austin, said.

"It's pointing out that the school lunch programme needed improvement because it wasn't preventing childhood obesity," Taber said. The US Department of Agriculture (USDA) set new standards for school lunches in January 2012 that set maximums for calories offered during lunch and mandate that only skim or reduced-fat milk are offered to students. Prior to 2012, the USDA only set minimum calorie counts for school lunches. Now, the agency requires school lunches to fall between 550 calories and 850 calories—depending on a child's grade level.

Earlier this year, Taber published a study that found stricter lunch standards—like the ones implemented in 2012—were tied to healthier body weights among students (see Reuters Health story of 8 April, 2013 here:.) "It's not that you want to steer kids away, you want to improve the school lunch programme, which is exactly what they've been doing this past year," he said. Jackson and her colleagues write that more research is needed to find out how much children may benefit from improving school lunches and reducing TV time, while also learning more about gender-specific risk factors for obesity.—Reuters

Wildfire threatens Idaho resort towns as 2,250 homes evacuated

SALMON, (Idaho), 18 Aug—A fast-moving central Idaho wildfire forced the evacuation of 2,250 homes near the tourist towns of Hailey and Ketchum as firefighters lost ground on Saturday against the blaze that also threatens the Sun Valley ski resort.

Blaine County Sheriff Gene Ramsey called for occupants on the outskirts of both towns to leave without delay. He expanded evacuation zones to include residential developments north of Ketchum.

The fast-moving wildfire has burned more than 92,000 acres (37,230 hectares) of sagebrush flats, pine forests and granite canyons in the Sawtooth Range west of a highway that connects Hailey, a town of about 8,000 people, to Ketchum and Sun Valley to the north.

More than 1,000 people have fled upscale subdivisions on the southern outskirts of Ketchum, where some homes are worth tens of millions of dollars. The area features the vacation getaways of such celebrities as former California Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger and actor Tom Hanks.

The blaze has sent towering columns of smoke over the tourist towns nestled in a narrow mountain valley known for premier hiking, biking, fishing and skiing. An animal shelter on the west side of Hailey, where flames enveloped a mountain ridge and raced toward a city park below, was safely emptied of dogs and cats, said Blaine County Deputy Sheriff Anita Selner. Hundreds of firefighters were battling to keep flames from crossing to the east side of the highway that links the threetowns and is the only developed road out of the valley.

The so-called Beaver Creek fire has claimed one primary residence, one bunkhouse and six other buildings since being sparked by lightning on 7 Aug, federal fire information officer Sandy Miller said.

Roughly 30 people stayed overnight at an American Red Cross shelter in Hailey, where onlookers gathered as air tankers equipped with fire retardant and helicopters with water buckets flew overhead.

"A lot of people are just watching the fire and our customers are talking about nothing else," said Alexis Sualdez, barista at Zaney's River Street Coffee House in Hailey. "People are pretty worried." The valley is crisscrossed by recreation trails and gated subdivisions of log mansions and luxury homes that border the Sawtooth National Forest.

Turkey's Erdogan says Kurds have not withdrawn as agreed

ISTANBUL, 18 Aug—Turkish Prime Minister Tayyip Erdogan has said the separatist Kurdistan Workers' Party (PKK) has failed to withdraw its fighters from Turkey as agreed, a condition for Kurdish rights to be expanded as part of a peace process.

Erdogan did not say what this meant for the process, seen by many as the best chance yet to end a conflict that has killed more than 40,000 people, mainly Kurds, since 1984, but indicated that a Kurdish rights package would be unveiled soon.

"The promises made by the PKK to withdraw from Turkish soil have not been fulfilled," the newspaper Vatan quoted him as saying on his way back from Turkmenistan late on Friday.

"Only 20 percent have left Turkey, and they are mostly women and children." The PKK feared its fighters, estimated at around 2,000, would be attacked as they withdrew to bases in the northern Iraqi mountains, but so far a ceasefire declared in March has largely held. The PKK has not said how many of its fighters have left, but says clashes could resume if Ankara does not take concrete steps by the start of September.

Erdogan said on 8 Aug. that parliament may cut short its summer recess, due to end on 1 Oct, to pass the "democratisation package". A senior Justice Ministry official told Reuters last week that the package would include provisions for wider Kurdish-language education.

But Erdogan, under pressure from nationalists for offering concessions to militants officially deemed terrorists, denied this, and said the measures would not "disturb the Turkish public", Vatan reported.

He also ruled out any general amnesty for PKK fighters, who have been promised safe passage out of Turkey, but not rehabilitation.—Reuters

Afghan forces kill 36 Taliban fighters in 24 hours

KABUL, 18 Aug—Afghan police in coordination with the national army and the NATO-led troops have killed 36 armed Taliban militants across the country over the past 24 hours, Interior Ministry said in a statement released here on Saturday.

During the operations which had been carried out in Nangarhar, Baghlan, Zabul, Logar and Paktia provinces, five more militants sustained injuries and four others made captive. Police have also discovered and defused 31 different types of anti-personnel and anti-vehicle mines placed by the militants for destructive activities in Parwan, Kandahar, Ghazni and Helmand Provinces. However, it did not say if there were any casualties on the security forces. Taliban militants have not made any comments.—Xinhua

Four Kenyan policemen killed in suspected al Shabaab raid

GARISSA, (Kenya), 18 Aug—Four Kenyan police officers were shot dead in the border county of Garissa when 40 heavily armed men, suspected of belonging to Somali militant group al Shabaab, attacked a police post, a senior regional government official said on Saturday.

The east African nation, which sent its troops into Somalia in late 2011 to pursue the al-Qaeda-linked militants, has suffered a string of gun and grenade attacks claimed by al Shabaab group as retaliation. "Four administration police officers were killed during the attack and we are now preparing to transport their bodies from the scene," Garissa County Commissioner Rashid Khatto said.

"Our initial assessment points to the attackers being al Shabaab militants who crossed over the border and carried out the hit and run attack," he said.

Bomb injures guard at Egypt's mission in Benghazi, Libya

BENGHAZI, (Libya), 18 Aug—A bomb blast ripped through the garden wall of the Egyptian consulate in the eastern Libyan city of Benghazi on Saturday, injuring a security guard who needed hospital treatment, witnesses said.

They said at least five children were also cut by flying glass from the explosion, which blew out windows and significantly damaged a building opposite the consulate and vehicles. There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the attack. Witnesses said the bomb had apparently been hidden inside a briefcase.

Police cordoned off the scene as investigators combed the area for clues. They later reopened the street but posted extra police outside the consulate.

Egyptian security forces are conducting a crackdown on Muslim Brotherhood supporters following last month's ousting of Islamist President Mohamed Mursi.

At least 800 people have been killed in three days of violence after security forces broke up

Brotherhood protest camps in Cairo set up to demand Mursi's reinstatement.

Islamists across the Middle East have condemned the crackdown and some have staged protests in their own countries. Lawlessness has blighted large areas of Libya following the 2011 war that toppled Muammar Gaddafi.

African envoys seek solutions to rampant poaching

NAIROBI, 18 Aug—African Ambassadors accredited to Kenya began a two-day retreat at the Tsavo National Park in the southwest of Kenya on Friday to assess the impact of poaching in the East African nation.

The retreat, organized by Kenya's Mission to the UN Office at Nairobi (UNON), is intended to increase awareness of poaching and its negative impact on the country and region's prosperity and heritage.

"The retreat is part of a programme developed by the African Ambassadors where they travel regularly to different parts of Kenya and contribute to socio-economic projects," said a statement from Kenya's ministry of foreign affairs.

The retreat comes after conservationists have warned that poaching could eliminate elephants in the next 10 years unless measures are undertaken to curb this crisis.

Protecting Kenya's 38,000 elephant herd is both an ecological and economic imperative. Kenya has been identified as one of the leading transit routes for smuggling ivory out of Africa, with several incidents of ivory seizures and recovery of wildlife carcasses in recent days.

Kenya Wildlife Service (KWS) estimates that more than eight tonnes of raw and worked ivory have been seized since 2009. The demand for ivory in the Far East has attracted criminal cartels to Kenya, who are feeding the insatiable demand.

Conservationists warn that unless the demand is extinguished, poachers will wipe out Africa's elephants.

The retreat whose theme is "Poaching and Prosperity: The Challenges and Opportunities of Protecting Elephants and Rhinos" is expected to build synergies among the African representatives for the development of a common African position on poaching, particularly in elephants and rhinos.

"This is intended to help start a process in which African countries collectively increase their engagements with regional and global enforcement agencies in order to enhance the effectiveness of anti-poaching efforts," the statement said.

The Ambassadors, who also serve as their countries' Permanent Representatives to UNEP, will be taken through the challenges of poaching faced in Kenya, which are similar to the experiences of other African countries.

Professor Judy Wakungu, Cabinet Secretary for Environment, Water and Natural Resources spoke on the policies and mechanisms the Government has adopted to address the poaching crisis in the country.—Xinhua

Defiant Hezbollah leader says ready to fight in Syria

BEIRUT, 18 Aug — Hezbollah leader Sayyed Hassan Nasrallah accused radical Sunni Islamists on Friday of being behind a car bomb that killed 24 people in Beirut and vowed that the attack would redouble his group's commitment to its military campaign in Syria.

In a fiery speech to supporters, one day after the deadliest bombing in the capital since Lebanon's civil war ended two decades ago, Nasrallah raised the stakes by pledging to join the battle in Syria himself if needed.

Thursday's blast in the Shi'ite militant Hezbollah's south Beirut stronghold followed months of sectarian tension and violence in Lebanon fuelled in part by Hezbollah's intervention against Sunni Muslim rebels in Syria's civil war.

"It is most likely that a takfiri group was responsible for yesterday's explosion," Nasrallah said, referring to radical Sunni Muslim factions linked to al-Qaeda, many of whom are fighting with Syrian rebels against President Bashar al-Assad. "If you think by killing our women and children ... and destroying our neighbourhoods, we would retreat from the position we took (in Syria) you are wrong," he said in a combative speech broadcast by videolink from a secret location to his supporters.

"If we had 100 fighters in Syria, now they will be 200. If we had 1,000, they will be 2,000. If we had 5,000 they will be 10,000. If the battle with these takfiri terrorists requires that I and all Hezbollah should go to Syria, we will go."

Thursday's blast came a month after a car bomb wounded 50 people in the same district of the Lebanese capital — an attack that Nasrallah also blamed on takfiris, who consider all but the most radical Sunnis to be infidels whose blood can be spilt.

Defence Minister Fayez Ghosn said a Syrian man had been arrested for suspected involvement in

in its neighbours' conflict.

Zuma's government pulls out of commemoration for mine killings

MARIKANA, 18 Aug — South Africa's ANC government pulled out at the last minute from a memorial ceremony marking the anniversary of the nation's bloodiest post-apartheid labour violence, drawing attention to the dominant party's loss of support among many mineworkers.

President Jacob Zuma's government had planned a unifying day of prayer and reflection to commemorate the killings by police last year of 34 striking platinum workers at Lonmin's Marikana mine. The deadliest incident of its kind since the 1994 end of white-minority rule, it shocked South Africans and the world.

But just hours before the planned commemoration went ahead on Friday at the mine northeast of Johannesburg, a government spokeswoman said no one from Zuma's government would appear. More than a dozen seats for cabinet ministers on the main stage were empty when ceremonies started.

Zuma, who faces an election next year, has come under fire from critics over the government's clumsy handling of what has come to be known as the "Marikana massacre", including questions over alleged police brutality.

The Marikana killings were among 60 deaths during a wave of illegal strikes and labour violence in the country's mines that started last year and spilled over into this year. The violence helped trigger credit downgrades for Africa's biggest economy and dented the image of the ANC government.

Zuma's ruling ANC said it would not participate in Friday's memorial because the event was being organized by a Marikana support group, which includes the hardline Association of Mineworkers and Construction Union (AMCU).

"We are not participating in this activity," ANC spokesman Ishmael Mnisi told Reuters. "People are taking advantage of a tragedy for their own political benefit."

Bus plunges off cliff in Bolivia, killing 10, injuring 25

LA PAZ, 18 Aug — At least 10 people were killed and another 25 injured Friday when a passenger bus plunged into a ravine more than 100 meters deep in southern Bolivia, according to a preliminary report by transit authorities.

The bus belonging to the San Lorenzo company was traveling along the road linking the departments (states) of Cochabamba and Tarija when it plummeted off the ridge near Falda La Quenua, 50 kilometres from Tarija's capital.

The driver of the bus reportedly lost control of the vehicle before it veered off the road at around 9 am local time (1300 GMT), the report said.

The head of Tarija's Transit Department, Angel Mantilla, said rescue teams were searching for the bodies of the victims and attending to the injured.

A caterpillar tractor was being used to retrieve the bus from the bottom of the ravine, he added.

Several passengers were quoted by local radio stations as saying the driver had fallen asleep at the wheel.—Xinhua

Colombian rebel chief willing to shake president's hands

BOGOTA, 18 Aug — The top leader of the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC) insurgent group, Rodrigo Londono Echeverri, said on Friday he would like to "shake hands" with President Juan Manuel Santos, despite the president having ordered his destruction.

Londono is better known by the nom de guerre "Timoleon Jimenez" or "Timochenko."

Londono indicated in an interview aired on Friday by local media that he was looking forward to that moment once an agreement is reached between the government and the rebels to end five decades of armed conflict, but dismissed the possibility of a meeting between the two before ongoing peace talks conclude with a peace deal.

"If we reach a peace accord that is socially just, rest assured that from the oldest guerrilla fighter to the newest, they are going to back it," said Londono, promising that the rebels will lay down their weapons once a peace deal with the government is signed.

Still, Londono said he was concerned by Santos' recent order to have him and other rebel leaders killed, while the two delegations continue to negotiate an end to the fighting.

"It's worrisome that Santos believes that to make progress at the talks in Havana, our bomb-felled bodies must be laid out on the negotiating table," Londono said.—Xinhua

An important correlation

Because of raindrops all the plants grow and thrive well on Earth the only planet in this Universe that harbors life. Monsoon turns the environment green, with plants blossoming colorful flowers and bearing fruits sweet or sour. From a single plant and a single flower to forested areas and dense jungles rain is their life blood.

What's more, rains not only benefit the plants, but also the whole world supplying water for crops and supporting life on Earth. Rain is a blessing for flora and fauna and also for the mankind.

Fundamentally, more trees mean more precipitation. Rains support trees and vice versa. So there is correlation between trees and rains as they are relying on each other.

Beyond doubt, a place where trees flourish possesses a favorable climate. On the other hand an area with fewer trees is exposed to natural disasters like droughts and floods and even to desertification. In fact, forest depletion invites these disasters. Experts say that forest areas are dwindling at a rate of one acre per second while the damage rate is at 57 million acres per year. That's alarming.

Firewood requirements, burning forest for certain reasons and industrial invasion are some of the main sources of daily forest depletion which never comes alone but always with a more evil companion—global warming. The worst is that long-term forest depletion is even harming ecosystem.

As trees benefit mankind, we all are responsible for their existence and safety. We must avoid all acts including firewood cutting and forest burning that destroy trees. As there is correlation between trees and precipitation, rain will come as long as we have thriving forests. So, let's always protect and preserve this important correlation.

SOCI, (Russia), 18 Aug—Russian President Vladimir Putin met visiting Chinese State Councilor Yang Jiechi here on Friday, with both sides pledging to deepen their strategic ties.

Putin asked Yang to conveyed greetings to his Chinese counterpart Xi Jinping, noting that he and Xi had agreed to lift the Russia-China relationship to a new level.

Russia has the will and confidence to work with China to fully implement bilateral relations development plans, keep close contact at top levels, and deepen pragmatic cooperation, strengthening coordination on international affairs, and safeguard global and regional peace and stability, he added.

"I'm eagerly expecting President Xi Jinping's visit to Russia next month for the Leaders' Summit of the Group of Twenty to be held in St. Petersburg and a meeting with him," Putin said, adding that they will exchange views on major international and regional issues and further push forward major programmes of cooperation.

The two countries will continue joint efforts and contribute to a successful summit of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization (SCO) which is to be held in Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan, so as to safeguard regional security and stability, and promote common development among SCO member states, Putin said. ## Six killed, 30 wounded in separate attacks in Iraq

BAGHDAD, 18 Aug—At least six people were killed and 30 others wounded in separate violent attacks in Iraq on Friday, police said.

A roadside bomb exploded near a popular playground in the Gazaliya area in western Baghdad, killing five people and injuring 17 others, a police source told Xinhua on condition of anonymity.

Also one person was killed and six others were wounded when a roadside bomb went off near some shops in the Syidiya area in southwestern Baghdad, the police source said.

Seven policemen were wounded when a roadside bomb targeted their patrol in Samurra, some 120 km north of Baghdad, he added.

Iraq is witnessing its worst eruption of violence in recent years, which raises fears that the country is sliding back to the full-blown civil conflict that peaked in 2006 and 2007, when monthly death toll sometimes exceeded 3,000.

The UN Assistance Mission for Iraq recently reported that over 1,000 Iraqis were killed and more than 2,300 wounded in acts of terrorism and violence in July, the deadliest month in more than five years.

Syrian refugees pour into Iraq at new crossing, UN says

GENEVA, 18 Aug—Thousands of Syrian refugees poured into the Kurdistan region of northern Iraq on Thursday, taking advantage of a new bridge along the largely closed border, the United Nations said on Friday. Between 5,000 and 7,000 refugees followed a first group of some 750 people who crossed the pontoon bridge at Peshkhabour over the Tigris River, and more buses were seen dropping off families on the Syrian side, it said.

"Thousands of Syrians crossed into northern Iraq yesterday (Thursday) in a sudden, massive movement," Adrian Edwards, spokesman of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), told a news briefing in Geneva.

Most were families with women, children and the elderly, mainly from Aleppo, Hassakeh and other embattled areas of Syria where fighting has intensified in the civil war, now in its third year, that has driven nearly 2 million refugees abroad. ## Israel's Livni sees peace talks aiding Arab world alliance shift

JERUSALEM, 18 Aug—Israel's top peace negotiator said on Friday newly resumed talks with the Palestinians also held a wider opportunity for Israel to seek alliances with Arab world moderates against militants in the Middle East.

The US-brokered talks were renewed last month after a three-year stand off, the latest session on Wednesday coming amid a row over new plans by Israel to expand its enclaves in territory Palestinians want for a state.

The sides have provided little detail about the talks, hoping a lower profile may help them reach Washington's ambitious goal of reaching a deal for Palestinian statehood in nine months, despite wide gaps over key issues.

Livni, speaking after a meeting about the negotiations with visiting UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon on Friday, declined to say whether any progress had been made.

She said the talks have provided an opening "not only to relaunch negotiations but also to change the allies and alliances in the region."

"I believe there are parts in the Arab world that for them relaunching the negotiations can be an opportunity to support this and to work together against the extremists," she added, alluding to the turmoil in Egypt and Syria's civil war.

Ukraine mulls complaint to WTO over blocked exports to Russia

KIEV, 18 Aug—The Ukrainian government intended to decide by Monday whether to ask the World Trade Organization (WTO) to rule Russia's blocking of its products, local media reported on Friday.

"We will prepare a clear plan of action by Monday, but I can say it will definitely include such an option," Economic Development and Trade Minister Igor Prasolov told reporters.

He said that from now on all the certified Ukrainian products will undergo examination by domestic laboratories before they cross the Russian border.

Kiev has no plans to hamper imports from Russia, he said, adding that the two sides have not conducted official negotiations on the trade tensions yet.

The Russian Customs

Service stopped all Ukrainian imports on Wednesday for new and time-consuming checks on all Ukrainian cargoes. Restrictions that Moscow slapped on Ukrainian products left scores of trains and trucks queued at the border.

Ukraine's Federation of Employers has sounded the alarm bell, saying that Russia's move could incur losses up to 2.5 billion US dollars in the second half of this year.

Ukraine's exports to Russia in the second half of this year were expected to worth 8.5 billion dollars.

Analysts believe escalated trade tensions between Ukraine and Russia were waged by Moscow to discourage Kiev from signing a cooperation pact with the European Union scheduled for November.

During the meeting with King Sihamoni, Liu extended warm welcome to him for attending the opening ceremony of the second Asian Youth Games in Nanjing and spoke highly of his efforts to further enhance the traditional friendship between China and Cambodia. Liu said that

Cambodian police arrests 4 suspects for distributing anti-government pamphlets

PHNOM PENH, 18 Aug — Cambodian authorities have arrested four people for producing and distributing hundreds of leaflets, aiming at inciting weapon violence to topple the government, a statement from the spokesman for the National Police said on Saturday.

"The arrest was made on Thursday when the suspects were producing and distributing hundreds of leaflets, appealing to armed forces to use weapons to overthrow the government," said the statement.

"This action is a criminal offence that will be punished based on the Penal Code, and it is not the legal rights and freedom or political activity," it said.

The Phnom Penh Municipal Police has sent the four suspects including two females to the city's court for legal action.

"Making and distributing such leaflets is an intentional activity to create weapon violence and to cause serious social instability; thus, the perpetrators will be punished in accordance with the law in effect," the statement said.

According to the statement, the suspects had given out those pamphlets at the behest of Suon Sereytha, president of the Khmer People Power Movement, which is a US-based, self-described "civil political movement" against the Cambodian government.

Suon Sereytha, who is currently living overseas, used to mobilize illegal armed forces and is wanted by Cambodian police for inciting criminal conduct.

Lifting self-defence stricture won't lead to military action

TOKYO, 18 Aug — Defence Minister Itsunori Onodera said on Saturday that lifting Japan's self-imposed ban on exercising the right to collective self-defence would not lead to overseas military deployment of Self-Defence Forces.

"We will never go to other countries for military actions," Onodera said in a Tokyo Broadcasting System Television programme.

Japan "will also determine by itself if it should exercise the right to collective self-defence," even if requested to do so by other countries, he added.

The remarks come as the government of Prime Minister Shinzo Abe plans to review its interpretation of the war-renouncing Constitution to pave the way for Japan to exercise its right to collective self-defence.

So far Tokyo has taken the position that while Japan has the right to come to the defence of an ally under armed attack, it cannot exercise the right because of the limits imposed by the country's pacifist Constitution.

Onodera said, "It would be extremely difficult under the current interpretation to address a case in which a US warship deployed to protect Japan were to come under attack on the high seas," apparently stressing the need to promote debate on the plan.

The plan has come under fire not only from opposition parties, such as the Japanese Communist Party and the Social Democratic Party, but also the New Komeito party, the junior coalition partner of Abe's Liberal Democratic Party, on the grounds that it will allow Japan to use force overseas.

Philippines suspends hunt for ferry disaster survivors; 32 dead, 170 missing

CEBU, (Philippines), 18 Aug — Worsening weather and sea conditions on Saturday forced the Philippines to suspend a search for survivors of a ferry disaster that killed at least 32 people and left 170 missing, authorities said.

The ferry sank on Friday after a collision just outside the central port of Cebu with a cargo vessel owned by a company involved in the world's worst peacetime maritime disaster nearly 30 years ago.

Divers will resume searching early on Sunday, Transportation Secretary Joseph Emilio Abaya told a news conference in Manila, after heavy rain brought by a typhoon and low pressure had reduced visibility at sea almost to zero.

"Diving operations stopped because of weather conditions," Abaya said, adding that 661 of the 831 passengers and crew on the ferry had been accounted for. With 32 dead and 629 rescued, there are 170 missing. Just 17 of the dead have been identified.

"But we've got information that some bodies have been recovered, and we expect the number of missing to decrease, and we expect the casualties to increase."

Many of the survivors were sick from swallowing oil and seawater, disaster officials said.

Scores, sometimes hundreds, of people die each year in ferry accidents in the Philippines, an archipelago of 7,100 islands with a notoriously poor record for maritime safety. Overcrowding is common, and many of the vessels are in bad condition.

The 40-year-old ferry was approaching Cebu late in the evening when it was struck by the departing cargo vessel, the Sulpicio Express 7, leaving two huge holes in the latter's bow. The ferry sank in minutes, about a kilometre off Cebu.

Small planes and helicopters also scoured the waters and coastal areas of Cebu island for survivors, officials said.—Reuters

Passengers escape death after airline engine catches fire in Ghana

ACCRA, 18 Aug—All passengers of a local airline in Ghana, Antrak Air escaped death after one of the engines of the airplane flying to Accra caught fire above ground immediately it took off at the Tamale Airport in northern Ghana on Friday morning.

This had caused one of the fans of the plane to stop functioning, compelling to make force landing to save the lives of the passengers, local media quoted Charles Nyaaba, one of the passengers on the plane, as saying.

Frightened passengers prayed and screamed while the pilot steered the faulty airplane to land and save their lives, he said.

The airline is yet to comment on the incident but is expected to issue a statement on the incident soon.

A similar incident occurred last year when an Antrak Air plane traveling from Tamale to Accra nearly caught fire while it was about to take off.

Syrian rebels kill 11, mainly Christians, in checkpoint attack

BEIRUT, 18 Aug—Syrian rebels killed at least 11 people, including civilians, in an attack on a checkpoint west of the city of Homs on Saturday that official state media described as a massacre.

Most of those killed were Christians, activists and residents said. Some were from the National Defence Army, a militia which fights alongside President Bashar al-Assad's soldiers, and others were civilians, they said.

"Terrorists today committed a massacre, killing 11 people ... in Homs countryside," the state news agency SANA quoted an official as saying.

tory for Human Rights said rebel gunmen had attacked the checkpoint, killing five militia fighters and six civilians, including two women. It said the rebel fighters had also sustained losses.

A resident who visited the site of the overnight attack said he saw the remains of a destroyed checkpoint and two civilian cars nearby, whose passengers may have been caught up by chance in the fighting.

He said the checkpoint had been used as an artillery base to bombard the rebel town of Hosn, about 2 km (1 mile) away, which lies below the towering Crusader castle Crac des Chevaliers.

Many Christians fleeing the violence in Homs city over the past two years have settled in the Christian villages around the area where Saturday's attack took place.

Some have joined the pro-Assad forces, fearing for their future were the president to be toppled by rebel forces increasingly led by radical Islamist brigades, some with links to al-Qaeda.

More than 100,000 people have been killed in Syria's civil war, which grew out of a 2011 uprising against 40 years of dynastic rule by the Assad family, and nearly 2 million more have fled the country as refugees.

Akshay Kumar: I do movies according to market demand

NEW DELHI, 18 Aug — Bollywood superstar Akshay Kumar says his choice of films is dictated by the market demand and he does not mind playing regular action-comedy roles. Last year, the 45-year-old actor dominated the screens with his masala entertainers Housefull 2, Rowdy Rathore, Joker, and Khiladi 786. Akshay's previous movies Desi Boyz, Tees Maar Khan, Khatta Meetha and De Dana Dan were also in the comedy genre.

"Such films were running so what should I do! You have to do sometimes what people like. I do feel the need to change but I have to see what the market wants. Whatever the demand is the product has to be the same. It is not my choice," Akshay said.

The actor seemed miffed to be asked about choosing similar looking roles lately but said he is breaking the mould with Special 26 and his upcoming film Once Upon A Time in Mumbai Dobaara! where he is playing a negative role after his 2001 release Ajnabee. "It felt amazing to take out the gun and keep it on the hero's head. For the first time I got an opportunity to do that. I about the film is that it has a hint of dark humour which wasn't there in the first part," he said. Akshay revealed that the makers have kept the film's ending open, hinting at a part three to the franchise.

"I think the producers want to make a part three so I run away in the end and don't get beaten up by the hero. They have kept the ending open. I don't know if there are any plans but if it happens I will surely be back."

His three films in the past have made it to the 100 crore club, which has

Williams to face Azarenka for Cincinnati crown

CINCINNATI, 18 Aug—World number one Serena Williams fought her way to a 7-5, 7-5 win over defending champion Li Na to reach the final of the Western and Southern Open on Saturday and close in on one of the few titles to elude her.

The 31-year-old American can fill that hole in her resume on Sunday when she takes on Belarusian world number two Victoria Azarenka, who was a 4-6, 6-2, 6-3 winner over 2009 champion Jelena Jankovic of Serbia.

Williams, who has been critical of her performance in Cincinnati despite making it to the final for the first time, was not at her dominating best against Li but it was a good enough effort to put herself in line for a $1 million bonus.

Her appearance in Sunday's final combined with a win last week in Toronto has put Williams at the top of the US Open Series bonus challenge and sends her to Flushing Meadows with a chance to compete for the largest payout ever awarded at the year's final grand slam.

Williams can pocket $3.6 million, with the million-dollar bonus supplementing the $2.6 million cheque for winning the women's singles at the US Open.

In a career that has generated 54 singles titles including 16 grand slams, Williams has won just about everything there is to win in her sport but Cincinnati, one of the WTA Tour's most prestigious tournaments, is not among them.

"I definitely would not have predicted myself being in the final here at all," said Williams, who will be chasing a career-high ninth title in a single season on Sunday.

"I came in here not playing my best and then now I'm in the final. It's just almost weird."

"It was definitely a little scratchy but I was able to get through. I just tried to stay positive. "When I was down, I just got really relaxed and I felt like, you know, Serena, you don't really have much to lose. So just kind of relax and get through it."—Reuters

Nadal to meet Isner in Cincinnati final

CINCINNATI, 18 Aug—Rafa Nadal continued his perfect run on the North American hardcourts taming Czech Tomas Berdych 7-5, 7-6 (4) at the Western and Southern Open on Saturday to setup a final showdown with big-hitting American John Isner.

Earlier, unseeded Isner had blasted his way into the final with a 6-7 (5), 7-6 (9), 6-3 marathon win over Argentine Juan Martin Del Potro.

atically different look from what tennis fans might have hoped with the ATP Tour's 'big four,' world number one Novak Djokovic, number two Andy Murray, number three Nadal and five-time Cincinnati champion Roger Federer all featuring in the last eight.

But after a day of upsets that saw only Nadal survive, the partisan crowd still had plenty of reason to cheer as Isner carried the US flag into the semi-finals picking up his first career win in five tries

Problems for Wenger after openingday Arsenal defeat

LONDON, 18 Aug—An opening-day Premier League defeat, a growing injury list and the weight of an unspent transfer kitty hang heavily over Arsenal as they head into Wednesday's Champions League playoff clash with Fenerbahce.

Arsenal suffered a shock 3-1 home defeat by Aston Villa on Saturday, finding themselves unable to capitalise on Olivier Giroud's early goal as Christian Benteke scored twice and full back Antonio Luna grabbed a debut goal for the visitors.

Matters were made worse by injuries to Kieran Gibbs, after a clash of heads with Andreas Weimann, Alex Oxlade-Chamberlain, who came off second best in a challenge with Luna, and Bacary Sagna, Tomas Rosicky and Aaron Ramsey.

Influential midfielder Mikel Arteta is already out for around six weeks with a thigh problem while injuries kept Nacho Monreal, Thomas Vermaelen and Abou Diaby out against Villa.

Despite having up to 70 million pounds ($109.29 million) to spend on new players, Arsenal have only brought in French youth international striker Yaya Sanogo in the close season.

Manager Arsene Wenger has also seen high-profile pursuits of Gonzalo Higuain, Luis Suarez and Luiz Gustavo, who made a strong debut for German club VfL Wolfsburg on Saturday, fall through.

Wenger again said he would splash some cash before the transfer window shuts on 2 September but fans at the Emirates Stadium made their feelings clear with calls of "spend some money".

Should they lose the two-legged playoff against Fenerbahce and miss out on the Champions League for the first time, attracting big-name talent will become even harder.

Wenger acknowledged there were issues ahead of the first leg in Istanbul.

"It's a big disappointment to lose a game like that because we prepared well, apart from the fact the players were away on international duty," he told the club website (www.arsenal.com).

Bolt completes sprint double with ease

MOSCOW, 18 Aug—Usain Bolt completed yet another crushing sprint double on Saturday and hardly needed to extend himself to achieve it as he took his third successive world 200 metres title in the year's fastest time of 19.66 seconds — easing down.

Fellow Jamaican Warren Weir improved on his Olympic bronze by taking silver in a personal best 19.79 from lane eight while Curtis Mitchell won bronze for the United States in 20.04, just preventing another Jamaican podium sweep as he beat Nickel Ashmeade by a hundredth of a second.

"When I entered the straight, I felt tired, my legs felt a little heavy. And my coach told me not to push too hard if it was possible, so I backed off a little," Bolt said.

"The 200m is my favourite event so this victory is very important for me. The atmosphere at the stadium was wonderful tonight.

"My goal is to defend (for a second time) my titles at the next Olympics as it hasn't been done before by anyone. And this world championships is a stepping stone towards that goal."

Bolt, the world record holder with his 19.19 from Berlin four years ago, won the 100 metres last weekend having completed the sprint double twice at the Olympics and also in the 2009 world championships.

He was always in command from lane four on Saturday and halfway round the opening bend he loomed over diminutive British teenager Adam Gemili in lane five like an ocean going liner swamping a dinghy, before disappearing into the distance.

After a slow start to the season when he was hampered by injury, Bolt has been on an upward curve in the last few weeks and his 19.73 in Paris six weeks ago was the fastest time of the year before Saturday's race.

American Tyson Gay, who ran 19.74 in June and was the last man to beat Bolt in a global 200 when he won the 2007 world championships, was unable to challenge him again in Moscow having failed a doping test.

After winning the 10 metres gold Bolt will hope to complete another hat-trick in the 4x100m relay on Sunday, when gold would draw him level with American trio Allyson Felix, Carl Lewis and Michael Johnson with eight world titles.

Reuters

Rebounding nicely from a shock first round upset at Wimbledon, Nadal has been in sizzling form picking up his 58th career title last week in Montreal while extending his hardcourt winning streak to 14-0 with a run to the final in Cincinnati. A win on Sunday in his first Cincinnati final would give the third ranked Spaniard his ninth title of the year and leave him the red-hot favourite heading into the US Open which begins on 26 August in Flushing Meadows. "It's a very nice feeling," said Nadal. "For me, this one is a tournament that I never was able to play very well.

"I said last week, in Cincinnati I never felt that I was playing well and this year the situation is different. "I am having the right feelings on court. I'm playing aggressive."

Nadal had the only break of a tight opening set to take the first set off the Czech in Cincinnati and grab a 1-0 lead. In the second, Berdych, battling to end a run of 13 straight losses to the Spaniard, broke to go up 4-2 only to watch Nadal break right back and go onto take the tiebreak (7-4) and the match.

A contest between the towering 6-foot, 10-inch (2.06m) Isner and the 6-foot, 6-inch (1.98m) Del Potro was always going to be a bruising baseline battle and the match more than lived up to predictions as the two giants slugged it out for 2 hours and 47 minutes. The semi-finals had a dra-against the seventh seeded Argentine.

Isner, who delivered the biggest shock of the quarter-finals toppling Djokovic, has traditionally saved his best for the home crowd with 13 of the his 15 career ATP Tour final appearances coming in the US and he proved once again to be a crowd pleaser pounding 23 aces past his opponent.

Since retiring in the second round at Wimbledon with a left knee injury Isner has been in sizzling hardcourt form putting together a 15-3 match record while picking up his seventh career title in Atlanta followed by a runner-up finish in Washington. "I've been winning a lot of matches this summer but I feel like this tournament here is where I'm really starting to put it all together," Isner told reporters. "No offence to the other guys I've beaten prior to this but like you just said, I've beaten three top-10 guys in a row. "I have been playing well, really in pretty much all facets of my game.

"There's definitely some stuff I can always improve on, but I do think I'm playing well." In a tight opening set that failed to produce a break, it was Del Potro taking the initiative winning the tiebreak 7-5. The 2009 US Open champion had looked poised to end the contest in two sets serving for the match at 5-4 only to double-fault on match point opening the door for Isner.

The 28-year-old American seized his chance but it was not easy needing five set points before clinching the tiebreak 11-9.—Reuters

Iran has 18,000 uranium centrifuges, says outgoing nuclear chief

DUBAI, 18 Aug—Iran has installed 18,000 uranium-enrichment centrifuges, the country's outgoing nuclear chief was quoted as saying by Iranian media on Saturday. The US and its Western allies are pressing Iran to curb its uranium enrichment programme, which they suspect is aimed at developing a nuclear weapons capability, but Iran refuses and insists its nuclear activity is for purely peaceful purposes.

New Iranian President Hassan Rouhani, a former nuclear negotiator who oversaw a previous deal to suspend Iran's uranium enrichment, has welcomed new talks with world powers over the programme but has insisted on Iran's right to enrich uranium. Iran has 17,000 older "first-generation" IR-1 centrifuges, of which 10,000 are operating and 7,000 are ready to start operations, the ISNA news agency quoted Fereydoon Abbasi-Davani, outgoing head of the Atomic Energy Organization of Iran (AEOI), as saying. A May report from the UN nuclear watchdog indicated that Iran had by then installed roughly 16,600 IR-1 machines in two separate facilities. Abbasi-Davani also said there were

1,000 new, more advanced centrifuges ready to start operations, in a reference to IR-2m centrifuges, which once operational would allow Iran to enrich uranium several times faster than the IR-1 machine. The IAEA in its last report in May said Iran had installed a total of 689 such centrifuges and empty centrifuge casings. Rouhani on Friday appointed Ali Akbar Salehi, Iran's previous foreign minister, to take over the AEOI. Salehi, who once headed the agency, is seen as a pragmatist, as opposed to the more hardline Abbasi-Davani.—Reuters

Mexico captures leader of cocaine-trafficking Gulf Cartel

MEXICO CITY, 18 Aug—Mexican security forces on Saturday caught the leader of the cocaine-trafficking Gulf Cartel, the second major gang boss capture in just over a month as President Enrique Peña Nieto fights cartel violence.

Mario Ramirez Trevino, known as X-20 or "The Bald One," was captured in Mexico's northern Tamaulipas state on Saturday morning, according to a government statement.

The government said it would give more information about Ramirez' capture at a news conference on Sunday.

Ramirez had not long been the leader of the Gulf Cartel, whose former boss Jorge Costilla, alias "El Coss," was caught in September. The Gulf Cartel's power has waned in recent years in a feud with Mexico's most brutal gang, the Zetas, which began life providing protection to the cartel's operations in north-eastern Mexico.

The US government had offered a $5 million bounty for Ramirez, as Washington says his cartel controls most of the cocaine and marijuana trafficking to the United States from Matamoros in Tamaulipas state. Mexico's marines last month arrested the leader of the Zetas, Miguel Angel Trevino, a few miles (km) from his hometown of Nuevo Laredo on the US border. More than 70,000 people were killed during former president Felipe Calderon's six-year offensive against drug cartels and over 6,000 have died since Peña Nieto took office in December.—Reuters

Swiss horn blowers blast away world record on mountain

GORNERGRAT, (Switzerland), 18 Aug—More than 500 Alpine horn players blew away the world record for the largest ensemble of people playing the instrument on Saturday in the Swiss region of Zermatt, home to the Matterhorn mountain.

The musicians, clad in traditional Swiss costume, gathered on the Gornergrat ridge, more than 3,000 metres (10,000 feet) above sea level, to perform a piece specially composed for their wooden horns.

The 508 players broke a record set in 2009, when 366 musicians took part in a concert. The instrument, known as an alphorn and traditionally used for herding animals, can be up to four metres long. It has to be propped up on the ground and its player usually has to stand up to sound it because of its size.—Xinhua

English Language Competition for colleagans kicks off

NAY PYI TAW, 18 Aug—The Central Level English Language Competition for Students from Universities, Degree Colleges and Colleges opened at MICC here at 8 am today with an address by Union Minister for Education Dr Mya Aye.

Speaking on the occasion, the Union Minister said that English language competitions like essay, impromptu talk, round-table and debate competitions are held in the respective universities every semester.

Today's English language competition is more challenging than the previous one as it consists of three kinds of competition; essay, impromptu talk and round-table discussion. Under the rule of the competition, the contestants must take part in all three kinds of competition.

A total of 16 postgraduate students and 24 undergraduate students are going to take part in this central level competition.

In this competition all contestants have to compete in three kinds of essay, round-table discussion and impromptu talk in English. They must answer the questions by four judges—one from the British Council and three from Australia.

Sky Net TV channel broadcasts this competition held today and tomorrow's live. Winners' demonstration and awarding ceremony will be held at 3:30 pm tomorrow.

MMPE, MMS hold talks over censorship principles, rules

YANGON, 18 Aug—To seek ways for encouraging creation and making attractive movies, Myanmar Motion Picture Enterprise and Myanmar Movies Society held a meeting, focusing on censorship principles and rules for films and videos at the MMPE's head office here today.

Deputy Minister for Information U Paik Htwe and responsible personnel of Myanmar Motion Picture Enterprise and Myanmar Movies Society attended the meeting.

Out of 10 censorship principles and rules of the film and video censorship board, four have been relaxed and the remaining ones are being considered and advised based on art creation since December 2011.

U Lu Min, Chairman of Myanmar Movies Society, declined the fact that the society would protest against the board if it tightens the censorship principals and rules.

He also stressed the importance of the voices of the people and called for freedom and accountability in creating films and videos.

During the meeting, film directors and responsible personnel discussed facts found when films and videos were censored and ways for encouraging artistic creativity in making films and videos.

The participants of the meeting also discussed the closed cooperation and coordination with trust between the Myanmar Motion Picture Enterprise and Myanmar Movies Society.—MNA

Fertilizer Factory No 5 needs to send fertilizer to farmers timely

NAY PYI TAW, 18 Aug—Union Minister for Energy U Zeyar Aung inspected Fertilizer Factory No.5 of Myanma Oil and Gas Enterprise in Kangyidaunt Township on 16 August, calling for making efforts for running the factory at full capacity.

During the visit, the Union minister urged responsible personnel of the factory to make more efforts for transporting fertilizer to farmers before the cultivation season and for achieving standard quality of the product of the factory.

He also inspected the production process of the factory and measures for safety at the work site.

During his tour of inspection, the Union minister also visited the Paper Factory (Thabaung) of Myanma Paper and Chemical Industries under the Ministry of Industry and assisted in making arrangements for getting the factory up and running again.

In the evening, the Union minister went to the Liquefied Natural Gas Factory (Nyaungdon) and inspected the control room and LNG storage tanks and fulfilled the requirements.
