Abe leaves for Middle East, Africa to secure energy, exports

TOKYO, 9 Jan — Prime Minister Shinzo Abe on Thursday left for a week-long trip to the Middle East and Africa, where he will meet with the leaders of four countries to discuss economic cooperation aimed at helping Japan secure energy resources and increase exports.

Abe will arrive in Oman the same day on the first leg of the trip before visiting the three African nations of Ivory Coast, Mozambique and Ethiopia.

In Oman, Abe will hold a summit with Sultan Qaboos bin Said and is expected to call for the stable supply of oil and natural gas from the Gulf state to Japan. They will also discuss bilateral cooperation on maritime security, including antipiracy measures, Japanese officials said.

With the trip, Abe will have visited all six oil producers making up the Gulf Cooperation Council since taking office in 2012. Japan has been in talks since 2006 with the GCC, also involving Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Kuwait and Qatar, on liberalizing trade in goods and services.

In Africa, Abe will announce Japan's continued support for development on the continent. He will

Iran, big power nuclear talks hit snag on centrifuge research

UNITED NATIONS, 9 Jan — Negotiations between Iran and six world powers on implementing a landmark November deal to freeze parts of Teheran's nuclear programme in exchange for easing some sanctions have run into problems over advanced centrifuge research, diplomats said. The dispute over centrifuges highlighted the huge challenges facing Iran and the six powers in negotiating the precise terms of the 24 November interim agreement. If they succeed, they plan to start talks on a of a new model of advanced nuclear centrifuge that Iran says it has installed, diplomats said on condition of anonymity. Centrifuges are machines that purify uranium for use as fuel in atomic power plants or, if purified to a high level, weapons.

"This issue (centrifuges) was among the main factors in stopping the previous technical discussions on 19-21 December," a Western diplomat told Reuters on condition of anonymity. Other Western diplomats confirmed that centrifuges

Thai anti-government protesters march, consumer confidence slumps

BANGKOK, 9 Jan — Protesters trying to topple Thailand's prime minister marched in Bangkok again on Thursday, because of the crisis. Caretaker Prime Minister Yingluck Shinawatra has called an election for February 2 but the protesters, aware she would probably win on the back of support in the rural north and northeast, want her to step down and be replaced by an appointed "people's council" to push through electoral reforms.

The protests took off in November when the government tried to force through a political amnesty bill that would have let former premier Thaksin Shinawatra, Yingluck's brother, return from self-exile without serving jail time for corruption.

On Thursday, the protesters marched from their camp at Democracy Monument in the historic quarter, drumming up support for Monday when they plan to blockade main roads and prevent government ministries from functioning.

The turmoil is the latest twist in a conflict pitting Bangkok's middle class and royalist establishment against the mostly rural supporters of Yingluck and Thaksin, who was ousted as prime minister in a military coup in 2006. — Reuters

Security alert in southern Russia after five bodies found

MOSCOW, 9 Jan — Russia has put security forces on combat alert in the southern Stavropol region after the discovery of five bodies with gunshot wounds and an explosive device, a regional security spokesman said.

Russia has already tightened security before next month's Winter Olympics in Sochi, on which President Vladimir Putin has staked a lot of political and personal prestige, and is on high alert after suicide bombers killed at least 34 people in separate attacks in the southern city of Volgograd last month.

The five corpses were discovered on Wednesday in four cars in two separate districts outside the regional capital Stavropol, a gateway to the North Caucasus, where Russia faces an insurgency by Islamist militants who have threatened to try to prevent the Olympics going ahead.

An unidentified explosive device was also found near one of the vehicles, said a spokesman for Russia's Federal Security Service (FSB) in Stavropol. No other details were immediately available.

Putin said after the Volgograd attacks that he would annihilate all "terrorists" in Russia.

The Winter Olympics open in Sochi on 7 February. The Black Sea resort is on the western edge of the Caucasus mountains where the insurgents want to carve out an Islamic state.

The head of Russia's Olympic Committee has said no more can be done to safeguard the Games because every measure possible is already in place.

Russian forces went on combat alert in Sochi on Tuesday and about 37,000 personnel are now in place to provide security at the Games, Russian officials say. — Reuters

Fuel meltdown experiment eyed to learn more about Fukushima crisis

TOKYO, 9 Jan —The Japan Atomic Energy Agency is planning to melt a small nuclear fuel rod in an experiment at its research facility in March to figure out how meltdowns occurred at the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power plant in 2011, officials said Thursday. The experiment could offer clues about the state of the fuel left inside the three crippled Fukushima Daiichi reactors, which remains uncertain. Removing the fuel from the reactors will be the biggest challenge in dismantling the plant.

"We hope to use the data obtained through the experiment to improve the accuracy of the analysis of the Fukushima accident," a JAEA official said.

Aunt of N Korean leader in coma

SEOUL, 9 Jan — Kim Kyong Hui, aunt of North Korean leader Kim Jong Un and wife of the purged and executed official Jang Song Taek, is in a vegetative state after undergoing brain surgery, a Seoul daily reported on Thursday.

Citing an intelligence official in the United States, the JoongAng Daily said that Kim had surgery for a brain tumour in 2013 in Paris. After the surgery, she lost a lot of weight, dropping to 35 kilograms, the official said.

North Korea's state media announced Jang's execution last month, labeling him a "traitor for all ages." Her fate has been the focus of attention of North Korea watchers since Jang's execution.

The younger sister of Kim Jong Un's father, the late leader Kim Jong Il, she was seen last month in a Korean Central Television film purported to praise the current leader's achievements. She appeared in a scene believed to have been filmed when Kim Jong Un visited, in December 2012, the Kumsusan Palace of the Sun, where the leader's grandfather Kim Il Sung, the founder of North Korea, and others are laid to rest.

Panama Canal refuses to pay $1 billion more for expansion work

PANAMA CITY, 9 Jan —The Panama Canal on Wednesday rejected a proposal that it pay $1 billion to continue work on expanding the waterway, and warned the building consortium behind the project that it could bring in others to finish the job.

For the past week, the Panama Canal Authority (PCA) has been fighting with the consortium led by Spanish builder Sacyr over cost overruns in the plan to install a third set of locks for one of the world's most important cargo routes.

On Tuesday, there were signs the two sides were narrowing their differences. But on Wednesday, Italian builder Salini Impregilo weighed into the debate with a separate proposal that suggested a deal was still some distance away. Impregilo said it had put forward two alternative solutions that involved the authority paying $1 billion to the consortium known as Grupo Unidos por el Canal (GUPC) to complete the work. But that announcement from Italy prompted an immediate rebuff from the head of the PCA, Jorge Quijano. The $1 billion payment "is impossible. It is outside the contract," Quijano told reporters in Panama City.

The consortium had threatened to suspend work on the massive infrastructure project by 20 January unless the PCA paid for $1.6 billion in cost overruns. The authority has rejected that demand but has said it is willing to consider detailed claims.

Quijano said the PCA had a plan ready to bring in a third party to finish the expansion if no deal is reached with the consortium to keep the project running in the weeks ahead. Bechtel, a US engineering company which lost out to Sacyr when the project was awarded in 2009, had been tipped by some analysts as a likely beneficiary of the dispute.

Quijano said the third party was not Bechtel, but did not elaborate on which other companies could step up. "We are not going to have another contract like we have with GUPC right now. We'll have another contractor that works directly for us to administer the rest of the contractors

Norway hopes for resumption of peace talks between Philippine gov't, leftist rebels

MANILA, 9 Jan — Visiting Norwegian Foreign Minister Borge Brende expressed hope on Thursday that the Philippine government and leftist rebel group Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) will resume stalled peace talks in the coming months. Norway is the mediator in peace negotiations between the Philippine government and the leftist rebels.

"We're committed to continue as facilitator in (peace talks) as long as this is the interest of the government of the Philippines," Brende told reporters in an interview. He said he will be discussing "opportunities" to resume the stalled negotiations during his meeting with Philippine President Benigno S Aquino III in the afternoon.

"I think the presidency of Aquino is here for several years and we are looking into the opportunity to resume talks in the future," said Brende. Talks between the Philippine government and the CPP's negotiating arm, the National Democratic Front of the Philippines, has been suspended since 2011 over the leftist rebels' demand for the release of some of their detained commanders.—Xinhua and people," he said of the contingency plan.

The project was originally expected to cost about $5.25 billion, but the overruns could raise it to near $7 billion. Impregilo's proposal showed signs of a split in the consortium that has been expanding the canal. People familiar with the discussions said that Impregilo perceived Sacyr as too soft in negotiations and said the Italian company could be trying to wrest control of the project.

There was no immediate word from Sacyr on Impregilo's move. Halting construction on the project would be a setback for companies eager to move larger ships through the century-old waterway such as liquefied natural gas (LNG) producers who want to ship exports from the US Gulf coast to Asian markets.

Libya's PM warns may sink oil tankers nearing east ports

TRIPOLI, 9 Jan —Libya may sink tankers trying to load at eastern ports seized by armed protesters in an escalating confrontation over control of oil exports, Prime Minister Ali Zeidan said on Wednesday.

His warning came after Libya's navy fired shots at the weekend to ward off a tanker that the state-run National Oil Corp (NOC) said tried to load at one port that has been out of government control for six months.

Brent crude rose above $107 a barrel on Wednesday, supported by the new worries over Libyan supplies, which have been slashed since summer by the blockade of three key eastern ports.

Negotiations to end the protests have failed as eastern federalists, whose self-styled Cyrenaica government seeks more autonomy from Tripoli, have threatened to ship oil independently to world markets in defiance of Zeidan.

Protesters on Tuesday said they would guarantee security for vessels docking at the three eastern ports, inviting foreign tankers to load crude and bypass government control.

"Any country, or company, or gang trying to send tankers to take oil from the seized ports without coordinating with the NOC, we will deal with them — even if we are forced to destroy or sink them," Zeidan said. "We warn all countries there will be no leniency."

An oil tanker is seen at the port and Zawiya Oil Refinery, 55 km (34 miles) west of the city of Tripoli in this 22 Aug, 2013 file photo. —REUTERS

The confrontation is a major challenge two years after the fall of Muammar Gaddafi in Libya, where former rebels, militias and tribesmen have all resorted to force to make demands on a state that is still mapping out the new democracy.

In the east, the Cyrenaica regional authority and its armed protesters have taken over Ras Lanuf, Es Sider and Zueitina ports, which previously accounted for 600,000 barrels per day in crude exports.

On Monday, the Libyan navy said it fired warning shots at a Maltese-flagged tanker trying to reach Libya to load oil at Es-Sider, but the tanker's owners accused Libya forces of firing on them in international waters.

BOJ policymaker calls for more easing if prices move below forecast

TOKYO, 9 Jan — A Bank of Japan policymaker said on Thursday the central bank should further ease its monetary policy "without hesitation" if the economy and prices are judged to move considerably below its projection.

"I believe additional monetary easing measures should be taken without hesitation so as not to jeopardize the BOJ's credibility, whenever downside risks to the BOJ's baseline scenario are judged to have materialized," Sayuri Shirai said in her speech in Singapore, according to the text released by the BOJ.

The central bank introduced large-scale monetary easing policy in April last year, aiming to achieve 2 percent inflation in about two years.

Japan's consumer prices excluding fresh foods rose 1.2 percent in November from a year before for the sixth straight month of increase.

Despite the continued increase in consumer prices, Shirai said there may be "high uncertainty" about meeting the goal in about two years due to consumers' concern about a rapid decline in real disposable income as well as firms' cautiousness about raising sales prices.

"I personally consider that it may take some time" before the impact of monetary easing fully materializes, she said.

Obama edges closer to decisions on intelligence reforms

WASHINGTON, 9 Jan — President Barack Obama consulted intelligence officials on Wednesday on ways to rein in US surveillance practices as he nears the end of a review likely to lead to changes as to how bulk telephone data is handled as well as restrictions to spying on foreign leaders.

Obama, who could announce his intelligence reforms in a speech as early as next week, is acting in an attempt to restore Americans' confidence in US intelligence services after damaging disclosures from former spy contractor Edward Snowden about the sweep of surveillance practices.

Obama reviewed the progress of the administration's review in a meeting with James Clapper, the director of US intelligence, and Keith Alexander, the National Security Agency director, as well as Attorney General Eric Holder and Vice President Joe Biden.

"This was an important chance for the president to hear directly from his team as he begins to make final decisions about how we move forward with key intelligence collection programs," said Caitlin Hayden, spokeswoman for the White House National Security Council.

Obama also met with members of the Privacy and Civil Liberties Oversight Board, a bipartisan independent panel that has been reviewing US surveillance practices, including the collection of telephone data and the operations of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court.

The privacy oversight board said it would offer its findings to Obama in late January or early February, meaning its recommendations will not get to the president until after he has already announced his reform plans.

Japan marks record high 11.25 million foreign visitors in 2013

TOKYO, 9 Jan — Foreign visitors to Japan totaled a record high 11.25 million in 2013, up 2.08 million from a year earlier and topping the 10 million threshold for the first time, according to preliminary data released by the Justice Ministry's Immigration Bureau of Japan.

Immigration officials said the weak yen, which helped lower travelling costs in Japan, as well as eased visa requirements for Southeast Asians was behind the increase.

The total included those who were staying in Japan for extended periods of time and made re-entries after leaving the country. Excluding those re-entrants, arrivals came to approximately 9.55 million, also a record high and up about 2 million from 2012.

South Koreans were the largest group of visitors to Japan, totaling 2.3 million, followed by 2.16 million Taiwanese and 980,000 Chinese. The Chinese total excludes those from the Hong Kong special administrative region.

Chinese visitors gradually increased after plummeting in the wake of Tokyo's purchase in September 2012 of Japan-administered islets claimed by China from a private Japanese owner.—Kyodo News

Turkish police purge reaches top ranks amid graft scandal

ANKARA, 9 Jan — Turkey's deputy police chief has been sacked, the most senior commander yet targeted in a purge of a force heavily influenced by a cleric accused by Prime Minister Tayyip Erdogan of plotting to seize the levers of state power.

Erdogan's AK Party meanwhile submitted plans to parliament to allow government more say over the naming of prosecutors and judges. Erdogan argues that a judiciary and police in the sway of the Hizmet (Service) movement of cleric Fethullah Gulen contrived a graft investigation now shaking his administration.

The police website said the deputy head of the national police, Muammer Bucak, and provincial chiefs, among them the commanders in the capital Ankara and the Aegean province of Izmir, were removed from their posts overnight.

The government has ousted hundreds of police since the graft affair erupted on 17 December with the detention of dozens of people including businessmen close to the government and three cabinet ministers' sons. Among the dozens questioned, most have been released. A remaining 24, including two of the ministers' sons, remain in custody, according to local media. Iraqi prime minister says victory certain as Falluja assault looms

BAGHDAD, 9 Jan — Iraqi Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki vowed to eradicate al-Qaeda in Iraq and predicted victory as his army prepared to launch a major assault against the Sunni Islamist militants who have taken over parts of the city of Falluja.

Fighters from the al-Qaeda-affiliated Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL), which is also active across the border in Syria, overran police stations in Falluja and another city in Iraq's western Anbar province last week.

The campaign by al-Qaeda gunmen to form a radical Islamic state in parts of Iraq and Syria has rung alarm bells in Western capitals and provided further evidence that the Syrian civil war is exporting instability throughout the region.

In a televised address on Wednesday, Maliki also thanked the international community for its support in the fight against al-Qaeda and urged the group's members and supporters to surrender, promising clemency.

The prime minister spoke for the second time this week with US Vice President Joe Biden, the White House said in a statement. Biden urged Maliki to keep working with local leaders and welcomed a decision to compensate tribal militiamen who may be wounded or killed in action against ISIL.—Reuters

Jordan on "alert" as tension rises on borders with Iraq, Syria

AMMAN, 9 Jan — Jordanian officials said this week that the country is closely following up the situation on borders with Iraq and Syria after radical groups took control of some of these areas.

In a Lower House session on Tuesday, Jordan's Prime Minister Abdullah Ensour said his country is concerned about terrorism and is closely following up the developments in Iraq's Anbar Province, where al-Qaeda-linked groups took control of some areas bordering Jordan.

Jordan's security is part of the region's security, he said during the session.

"Terrorism is an issue of concern to Jordan," said Ensour, referring to the emergence of radical groups inside Iraqi and Syrian territories bordering Jordan.

In an interview with state-owned Jordan Television, Foreign Minister Nasser Judeh said Jordan is "on alert" in the field and at the political level," referring to the fighting in Iraq and al-Qaeda-linked group's control of some towns there and its impact on the kingdom.

The Islamic State of Iraq and Levant (ISIL), which is an al-Qaeda-linked faction, currently has control over Fallujah and parts of Ramadi in Iraq's western Anbar province, which borders Jordan.

On Tuesday, at least 10 al-Qaeda militants were killed in clashes between Sunni tribes and al-Qaeda fighters in two major cities of Iraq's western province of Anbar, security sources and official TV said. Anbar Province has been the scene of sporadic clashes between Iraqi security forces, tribesmen and al-Qaeda militants. The security situation deteriorated in the province last week, when Iraqi police dismantled an anti-government protest site outside Ramadi, Anbar's provincial capital city.

Food, beverage companies slash calories in obesity fight

NEW YORK, 9 Jan — A voluntary effort by the world's largest food and beverage companies to remove billions of calories from the products they sell in the United States to help combat the nation's obesity epidemic has far exceeded its five-year goal, according to an independent evaluation released on Thursday.

In May 2010, 16 of the nation's biggest food and beverage companies, from Coca-Cola Co to Kraft Foods Group, pledged to remove 1 trillion calories from the US marketplace by 2012 and 1.5 trillion by 2015, compared with a 2007 baseline. In fact, as of 2012 they sold 6.4 trillion fewer calories, found an analysis by researchers at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (UNC).

"Reports like this, and the fact that they exceeded their commitment by four-fold, really shows that you can make progress in giving American families more healthy options," said Larry Soler, president of the Partnership for a Healthier America, a non-profit chaired by first lady Michelle Obama. The group was formed in 2010 to work with the private sector on anti-obesity strategies.

At the time, critics said the Partnership relied too heavily on the good will of the industry and could not replace the role of tighter regulation on how food is manufactured and

Malaysian government to help people cope with rising cost of living

KUALA LUMPUR, 9 Jan — The Malaysian government has prepared 10 types of aid packages to help people cope with the current and future rising costs of living, an government official said on Thursday.

Deputy Finance Minister Datuk Ahmad Maslan told reporters that the 10 aid packages include basic subsidies, assistance to farmers, fishermen, oil palm workers and rubber tappers, reduction of income tax cuts, health subsidies, educational assistance, affordable housing projects, assistance to the poor, funds for the development of entrepreneurs as well as salary increases and bonuses for civil servants.

He did not deny that rationalization of the budget made by the government in reducing the national deficit recently had caused prices of three types of items to rise, namely oil, sugar and electricity.

But he said the aid packages had been created to help people to achieve a high level of income so as not to be burdened with rising costs in the future.

Asian shares ease, dollar firms; Friday's US jobs in focus

TOKYO, 9 Jan — Asian shares wavered on Thursday after a lackluster performance on Wall Street overnight and ahead of a key US jobs report due out the following day, while the dollar hovered near a seven-week high against a basket of currencies.

Market reaction was muted to a slowdown in China's annual consumer inflation in December, which decelerated to 2.5 percent from the previous month's 3 percent, more than the market had expected.

MSCI's broadest index of Asia-Pacific shares outside Japan .MIAPJ-0000PUS shed 0.4 percent after snapping a five-day losing streak on Wednesday. Despite the yen's weakness, Japan's Nikkei benchmark .N225 shed 1.5 percent, giving up some of its 1.9 percent bounce in the previous session after losing nearly 3 percent in the first two trading days of 2014. Financial bookmakers expected UK, German and French shares .FTSE .GDAXI .FCHI to open steady on Thursday, ahead of the European Central Bank's policy meeting. Analysts doubt it will do more than flag its readiness to act when needed, despite another surprising fall in euro zone inflation.

Overnight, the US Standard & Poor's 500 .SPX finished nearly flat, while the Dow Jones industrial average .DJI slipped 0.4 percent. The dollar .DXY was little changed at 81.031 against a basket of major currencies, not far from a seven-week high of 81.166 set on Wednesday after payrolls processor ADP said US private employers added a bigger-than-expected 238,000 jobs in December, the strongest increase in 13 months.—Reuters

Bone marrow stem cells could defeat drug-resistant tuberculosis

LONDON, 9 Jan — Patients with potentially fatal "superbug" forms of tuberculosis (TB) could in future be treated using stem cells taken from their own bone marrow, according to the results of an early-stage trial of the technique.

The finding, made by British and Swedish scientists, could pave the way for the development of a new treatment for the estimated 450,000 people worldwide who have multi drug-resistant (MDR) or extensively drug-resistant (XDR) TB.

In a study in The Lancet medical journal on Thursday, researchers said more than half of 30 drug-resistant TB patients treated with a transfusion of their own bone marrow stem cells were cured of the disease after six months.

"The results ... show that the current challenges and difficulties of treating MDR-TB are not insurmountable, and they bring a unique opportunity with a fresh solution to treat hundreds of thousands of people who die unnecessarily," said TB expert Alimuddin Zumla at University College London, who

China inflation hits 7-month low, eases tightening fears

BEIJING, 9 Jan — China's annual consumer inflation slowed more sharply than expected to a seven-month low of 2.5 percent in December, easing market fears of monetary policy tightening although the central bank is tapping the brakes on bank liquidity.

But analysts warn inflation may quicken in coming months as the government pushes market-oriented reforms to liberalize energy and utility prices.

Obama agrees to 4-year extension for International Space Station

WASHINGTON, 9 Jan — The Obama administration wants to keep the International Space Station, a $100 billion orbital research outpost that is a project of 15 nations, flying until at least 2024, four years beyond a previous target, NASA said on Wednesday.

The extension will give the US space agency more time to develop the technologies needed for eventual human missions to Mars, the long-term goal of NASA's human space programme.

Keeping the station in orbit beyond 2020 also opens a window for commercial companies and researchers to benefit from hefty US investment in the outpost. NASA's costs for operating the station, which flies about 250 miles above Earth, run about $3 billion a year. About half that sum is spent on transporting crew and cargo.

"Ten years from today is a pretty far-reaching, pretty strategic-looking vision," NASA Associate Administrator Bill Gerstenmaier told reporters on a conference call.

"This extension... opens up a large avenue of research onboard station. It also changes the perspective for the commercial (transportation) providers. Now they can see a market that extends to at least 2024," he said.

In addition to commercial US cargo ships and planned passenger space taxis, companies and research organizations are beginning to make use of the station's unique microgravity environment to develop a range of new products and technologies, including medications and off-the-shelf, shoebox-sized satellites.—Reuters

France fines Google over data privacy

PARIS, 9 Jan — France's data protection watchdog has fined Google 150,000 euros after the US search engine ignored a three-month ultimatum to bring its practices on tracking and storing user information in line with local law.

The privacy watchdog, known as CNIL, has also ordered Google to post the decision on its google.fr homepage for 48 hours within eight days of being officially notified of the ruling.

At issue was the new approach to user data that Google began in March 2012, in which it consolidated its 60 privacy policies into one and started combining data collected on individual users across its services, including YouTube, Gmail and social network Google+.

It gave users no means to opt out. "The company does not sufficiently inform its users of the conditions in which their personal data are processed, nor of the purposes of this processing," CNIL said in a statement.—Reuters

Apple, Samsung CEOs agree to mediation in US patent fight

SAN FRANCISCO, 9 Jan — Apple Inc(AAPL.O) and Samsung Electronics have agreed to attend a mediation session to be held on or before 19 February, as they prepare to clash in court in March over smartphone patents.

Apple CEO Tim Cook and Samsung CEO Oh-Hyun Kwon will attend the session with in-house lawyers only, according to a Wednesday court filing. Their legal teams had met on 6 January to "discuss settlement opportunities," the filing read.

Neither company immediately return messages seeking comment.

Apple and Samsung are embroiled in a legal battle over smartphone patents across several countries that mirrors their global battle for supremacy in the mobile device market.

The technology rivals are facing a March trial date in the United States over Apple's claims that Samsung infringed its patents.

In the last two years, Apple and Samsung have gone to trial twice in San Jose, California federal court, and juries have awarded Apple a total of roughly $930 million.

Apple said in court documents filed in December that it has paid its leading outside law firm approximately $60 million to wage patent litigation against Samsung.

The case is Apple Inc v Samsung Electronics Co Ltd, US District Court, Northern District of California, 11-1846.

Wearable technology leads future trend in 2014 CES

LAS VEGAS, 9 Jan — Wearable devices make up this year's hottest technology in the International Consumer Electronics Show (CES), which kicked off Tuesday at the Las Vegas Convention Centre.

More than a dozen firms displayed new wearable products, most directed at health and fitness. These devices are equipped with computer chips that can monitor users' heart rate, steps taken, and even location.

People in the near future could choose their wearable devices from head to toe, use it to manage their life, and track their health condition.

Not only a record or output device, more wearable gadgets support inter-communication with wearers. Intel CEO Brian Krzanich unveiled a new "personal assistant" earpiece named Jarvis, which is Intel's answer to the voice-activated Google Now and Apple's Siri.

Almost all wearable devices are as companions to smartphones. There is one exception that the Neptune Pine is a stand-alone device. This Android-based smart watch is a social-media hub, video game console, media player and platform for two cameras, all in a 2.4-inch device that rides on a person's wrist without the need of a connection with a phone.

In addition to developing reference devices for wearable technology, Intel will offer a number of accessible, low-cost entry platforms from 2014 on.

During the trade show, Krzanich also unveiled Intel Edison, a Pentium-class PC the size and shape of an SD card with built-in wireless capabilities and support for multiple operating systems. These products are aimed at helping lower entry barriers for individuals and small companies to create innovative Internet-connected wearables or other small form factor devices.

Alibaba to set up mobile gaming platform in China

BEIJING, 9 Jan — E-commerce giant Alibaba Group Holding Ltd said on Wednesday it would set up a mobile gaming platform in China, venturing into a fast growing sector dominated by tech rival Tencent Holdings Ltd.

Mobile gaming is hugely popular in China, home to the largest number of smartphone users in the world. In 2013, mobile gaming revenue accounted for 11.24 billion yuan ($1.86 billion), or 13.5 percent of the overall Chinese video gaming market, the world's third largest.

Liu Chunming, a former Tencent executive who now heads Alibaba's digital entertainment business, said in a statement the mobile gaming platform would be offered free to developers for the first year.

He did not say, however, when it would be set up and the statement gave few other details.

Alibaba spokeswoman Florence Shih said the platform would be launched in the near future. "We're not making mobile games, we're the platform operator," she added.

A person familiar with the matter said the platform may have its own dedicated app or could be integrated into existing Alibaba apps such as e-commerce app Mobile Taobao or Laiwang, a social messaging app.

Civic education needed in reform process

(Edited by KW)

Nowadays, our country is on the right track to democracy. A wealth of reforms is taking place in every administrative body of the country since the new government has taken office. But the people at the grassroots level still do not enjoy the fruits of these democratic reforms.

Every country in the world has to face challenges and difficulties in a transitional period. It is normal that every country that carries out transformation from one system to another has similar problems.

Myanmar has been dealing with the consequences of armed conflicts since the country regained independence in 1948. That is why the country has long been lacking democratic practices.

Democracy and civic education are intertwined. Civic responsibility is defined as the "responsibility of a citizen". It is comprised of actions and attitudes associated with democratic governance and social participation. The importance of civic responsibility is paramount to the success of democracy and philanthropy.

Schools should teach civic responsibility to students with the goal of producing responsible citizens and active players at a community and government level. Civic responsibility is tied to the philanthropic sector in many ways. Civic education is a method to teach civic responsibility. It is a way to promote and enlighten responsible citizens committed to democratic principles. Civic education is a means to actively engage people in the practice of democracy.

White House defends Biden, Obama over former Pentagon chief’s memoir controversy WASHINGTON, 9 Jan — The White House on Wednesday continued to defend Vice President Joe Biden and President Barack Obama amid an escalating controversy over former Defence Secretary Robert Gates’ new memoir.

Questions related to Gates’ criticism in his new memoir against Biden, Obama and top aides in the White House dominated the White House daily briefing on Wednesday.

White House spokesman Jay Carney stressed that Obama and the rest of the White House team “simply just disagree with that assessment” of Gates about Biden.

Gates unleashed severe criticism against Biden, according to excerpts of the book which were released by several leading US newspapers on Tuesday and Wednesday.

“I think he has been wrong on nearly every major foreign policy and national security issue over the past four decades,” Gates wrote.

In defending Biden, Carney said, “As a senator and as a vice president, Joe Biden has been one of the leading statesmen of his time and he has been an excellent counselor and adviser to the president for the past five years.”

In his memoir, Gates also doubted Obama’s leadership and commitment to his own Afghanistan strategy and accused the White House staff of being too controlling over national security issues, who “took micromanagement and operational meddling to a new level.”

Gates described a pivotal meeting in March 2011 to discuss the US withdrawal timetable. “As I sat there, I thought: The president doesn’t trust his commander, can’t stand Karzai, doesn’t believe in his own strategy and doesn’t consider the war to be his,” he wrote. “For him, it’s all about getting out.”—Xinhua

Poland to be in top 20 richest countries by 2022

WARSAW, 9 Jan — Polish Prime Minister Donald Tusk claimed that Poland will join the 20 richest nations in the world by 2022, local press reported on Wednesday.

This would happen thanks to investments made possible by funds from the European Union (EU) allocated for Poland in the years 2014-2020, said Tusk, following the cabinet meeting which approved spending programmes within the current long-term EU budget.

“Poland’s GDP per capita should reach 80 percent of the EU average” by the year 2022 which would put Poland among the world’s 20 richest nations, he told a Press conference after the meeting.

“Currently Poland’s GDP is at 67 percent (of the EU average) and we had more or less 50 percent at the start” when Poland joined the EU in 2004, he added.

Tusk said that EU funds for Poland would reach almost 500 billion PLN (170 million US dollars) in the years 2014-2020.—Xinhua

US judge denies request for delay in Indian diplomat case

NEW YORK, 9 Jan — A federal judge has denied a request by a lawyer for Indian diplomat Devyani Khobragade to delay proceedings in a visa fraud case that has strained relations between the United States and India.

In an order issued on Wednesday, US Magistrate Judge Sarah Netburn in Manhattan refused to extend the 13 January deadline by which a preliminary hearing must be held or an indictment filed in the case.

In asking Netburn on Monday to extend the deadline, Khobragade’s lawyer, Daniel Arshack, said it was negatively interfering with plea negotiations with the government. But Netburn ruled that Arshack had only sought a delay of the preliminary hearing and that such an extension would not alter the deadline for filing an indictment.

Arshack said he and his client are considering their options. Preet Bharara, the US Attorney in Manhattan, whose office is handling the case, opposed the delay, arguing that plea discussions can continue following indictment in the case.

A spokeswoman for Bharara’s office did not immediately return a message seeking comment.

Khobragade, who was deputy consul-general in New York, was arrested on 12 December and charged with one count of visa fraud and one count of making false statements about how much she paid her housekeeper.

Her arrest enraged India, which is demanding that all charges be dropped against her. On the day of her arrest, she was strip searched. The arresting authority, the US Marshals Service, said the strip search was a routine procedure imposed on any new arrestee at the federal courthouse.—Reuters

Fiji appoints Electoral Commission members

SUVA, 9 Jan — Fiji has appointed the members of the Electoral Commission that will supervise the 2014 general election, the government announced Thursday. The commission is made up of seven “prominent” citizens from various walks of life headed by its chair, leading legal practitioner Chen Bunn Young, former president of the Fiji Law Society, said the Ministry of Information.

Aiyaz Sayed-Khaiyum, Fiji’s attorney general and minister responsible for elections, said each member of the commission brings a unique perspective and set of skills to the task of supervising the upcoming general election.

“I want to thank them all for accepting their roles on the commission, which is a vital component of the (Voreqe) Bainimarama government’s plan to hold a free and fair election to the very highest international standards,” said Sayed-

Khaiyum. Under the terms of the 2013 Constitution, which was endorsed by Fijian President Ratu Epeli Nailatikau on 6 Sept last year, the Electoral Commission is responsible for the registration of voters and the conduct of free and fair elections.

The commission is also responsible for voter education, the registration of candidates for election, the settlement of electoral disputes and monitoring and enforcing compliance with any written law governing elections and political parties.

Under the Constitution, the chair of the commission needs to either be a judge or a legal practitioner who is able to become a judge.

Fijian Prime Minister Voreqe Bainimarama has said he will form a political party and run for the upcoming general election, which will be held by 30 September this year.

Ex-Prime Minister Hosokawa mulls running for Tokyo governor

TOKYO, 9 Jan — Former Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa is considering running in the 9 February Tokyo gubernatorial election, sources close to him said on Thursday.

Hosokawa plans to propose an end to Japan's dependence on nuclear power generation and is looking to see if he can gain support from Junichiro Koizumi, another former prime minister known for his anti-nuclear stance. Hosokawa, 75, is expected to run as an independent, without running on any party's ticket. The Liberal Democratic Party and its ruling coalition partner, the New Komeito party, have moved toward backing former health minister Yoichi Masuzoe, but LDP members might be divided over their stance if Koizumi decides to support Hosokawa.

Hosokawa joining the race would likely affect the power balance since he could also gain support from opposition parties such as the Democratic Party of Japan and the People's Life Party, which share the idea of phasing out nuclear power entirely. Also within the Japan Restoration Party, lawmakers who belonged to the former Hosokawa-led Japan New Party in the past have expressed their intention to lend personal support to his campaign.

Hosokawa, who served as prime minister between August 1993 and April 1994, has been away from politics since he resigned as a House of Representatives member in May 1998. He made his antinuclear stance clear following the tsunami-triggered Fukushima Daiichi nuclear crisis in March 2011. Among those running for the Tokyo governorship are Kenji Utsunomiya, a former head of the Japan Federation of Bar Associations, and former Air Self-Defence Force chief Toshio Tamogami.

Official campaigning for the election to choose Naoki Inose's successor is scheduled to start 23 January. Inose resigned last month over his receipt of 50 million yen from scandal-tainted hospital chain Tokushukai.—Kyodo News

Pakistan's former President Zardari appears in court in corruption cases ISLAMABAD, 9 Jan — Pakistan's former President Asif Ali Zardari on Thursday appeared before an anti-graft court in corruption cases for the first time since he has stepped down in September.

Judge of the National Accountability Court did not frame charges against Zardari and adjourned the hearing until 18 January, his two defence lawyers said. The National Accountability Bureau (NAB) had ordered reopening of five corruption cases against the former president in October just few weeks after he stepped down on completion of his five-year term.

Zardari's defence lawyer, Farooq H Naek said his client appeared in a case related to the illegal construction of a Polo Ground in the Prime Minister's House from government money during the government of his spouse Benazir Bhutto.

Farooq Naek told reporters that he would file an application for exemption of Zardari from personal appearance if the court again ordered his appearance. "The former President appeared before the court as we believe in the rule of law. Asif Zardari is a brave man and if necessary he would again appear in the court," he said.

Former Interior Minister and a leader of Zardari's Pakistan Peoples Party, Senator Rehman Malik, said that Zardari appeared in the court despite security threats. None of the case had been heard for five years due to Zardari's immunity as the president. The former president, the co-chairman of the main opposition Pakistan People's Party, now eyes a biggest political role.

Zardari faces five corruption cases that are related to favouritism, misuse of power by Zardari during his party's previous government of his slain spouse Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto and allegedly receiving kickbacks in awards of contracts.

Officials say the government of Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif had not approached the court for reopening of the cases as ministers say it does not want political polarization. However, the anti-graft bureau had reopened the five references cases.

Former President Pervez Musharraf had withdrawn all cases against Zardari under a controversial amnesty deal in 2007. The Supreme Court had later canceled the National Reconciliation Ordinance and reopened all corruption cases against Zardari and nearly 8,000 other people including political leaders and former government officials.—Xinhua

China boosts pensions for corporate retirees

BEIJING, 9 Jan — The State Council will increase enterprises' retirees' pensions by 10 percent.

The decision was made at the Cabinet's executive meeting led by Premier Li Keqiang on Wednesday. The move will benefit more than 74 million people who have retired from domestic enterprises.

The State Council urged government departments to reform their endowment insurance and pension systems. The meeting also pledged to improve the social assistance system, which helps disadvantaged groups. The social assistance system, when revamped, will offer financial aid that will meet the disadvantaged groups' standards of living.

The central government has allocated more than 98 billion yuan ($16 billion) to help disadvantaged groups, and the government has asked that local authorities make sure the money will be given to the needy in a timely manner. It also encouraged non-profit organizations to take part in the relief effort.

Singapore to set basic wages for cleaners, security guards

SINGAPORE, 9 Jan — Singapore's government is going to introduce a compulsory licensing scheme leading to mandatory basic wages for cleaners and workers in security sector, Deputy Prime Minister Tharman Shanmugaratnam said on Wednesday.

Nevertheless, the minister said that the moves are targeted approaches to use the industry licensing schemes to raise wages in certain sectors and that it is not a national minimum wage.

The scheme will make it mandatory for specified sectors to adopt a progressive wage model with basic wage levels set in accordance with the role of the employees, so as to raise wages progressively as workers' productivity improves through skills upgrading and training.

All cleaning companies will come under the scheme in September, with the entry-level pay for cleaners set at 1,000 Singapore dollars (800 US dollars) monthly. This is about 20 percent higher than the current median basic wage for cleaners.

Details for the security sector are still being worked out.

PH gov't assures safety of coming Black Nazarene feast

MANILA, 9 Jan — The Philippine government assured on Wednesday that security measures have been in place for the annual feast of the Black Nazarene in Manila city where hundreds of thousands of devotees are expected to flock to on Thursday.

Philippine Presidential Spokesperson Edwin Lacierda said that police and traffic personnel have been deployed to ensure the safety and smooth flow of the Black Nazarene's procession from Quirino Grandstand to Quiapo Church, both in Manila, a city of Philippine capital of Metro Manila.

He said there is no plan to jam phone signals in areas where the procession will take place since there was no terrorist threat being monitored.

In 2012, the government had to jam phone signals following reports of terrorist attack during the annual feast of the Black Nazarene.

"There is no such plan this year (of jamming the phone signals)," Lacierda said, adding that the authorities will maintain health station at strategic points of the procession route.

On Thursday, devotees of the Black Nazarene are expected to flock to Manila to take part in the almost daylong procession, also known as the grand Traslacion, which highlights the yearly event.

Overseas Egyptians vote on draft constitution

TUNIS, 9 Jan — The Egyptian community in Tunisia, along with their compatriots all over the world, started casting ballots on their nation's new draft constitution on Wednesday, Egyptian Ambassador to Tunis Ayman Mousharafa said.

The vote, held at the Egyptian embassies in foreign countries, will go on until 12 January.

"About 171 Egyptians are registered as voters in Tunisia. They will have to vote on the new constitution at the embassy in Tunis between 8 and 12 January," Ayman Mousharafa said.

Cuba to partially privatize taxi service

HAVANA, 9 Jan — Cuba plans to partially privatize its taxi service as part of the country's recent economic reforms to streamline a bloated public sector and make such service more efficient, the Government Gazette announced on Wednesday. Cuba's taxi drivers, who up to now have worked as employees of the state-run taxi service, will become self-employed workers who lease their cars from the state.

This plan was made after the success of a pilot project carried out in the capital Havana since 2010 and at the beach resort of Varadero since 2011, official daily Granma reported, adding the privatization plan would be implemented gradually around the country. Debora Canela Pina, an expert from Cuban Transportation Ministry, was sure that the change would lead to improvement in the quality of taxi service in Cuba.

"More than just changing the appearance of taxis, the new scheme forms part of an operating model that changes the companies' structures, their administrative personnel and taxi drivers, with the fundamental aim of raising the quality of services being offered today," she said.

The new model "considerably decreases the amount of time clients wait after requesting the service and maintains the obligation of using a taximeter or official rate," she added.

In the future, drivers will be in charge of taxis' maintenance, fuel and repairs and can decide how many hours to work. Passengers will be able to pay in Cuban pesos or US dollars. The new model is set to be put into practice nationwide by the end of 2014.—Xinhua

Delta authorities pledge to battle smog together

BERLIN, 9 Jan — After months of anticipation, authorities in Shanghai and Jiangsu, Zhejiang and Anhui provinces, as well as eight ministry-level agencies, have launched a coordinated mechanism to fight and control air pollution in the region.

The new mechanism covering the Yangtze River Delta was announced in Shanghai on Tuesday during its first work conference.

At least 21 weather-related deaths since Sunday in US

BEIJING, 9 Jan — The deep freeze that has shattered century-old temperature records in US is slowly easing its grip.

Winds are calming and the mercury is rising slightly, and forecasters predict warmer weather across much of US in the coming days. Yet many places in the country's midwest and eastern states, which have borne the brunt of the Arctic blast, are still experiencing temperatures of over twenty degrees Celsius below zero. The so-called polar vortex has left at least 21 people dead since Sunday. Demand for natural gas has also hit an all-time high.

Obama wishes German chancellor "speedy recovery" from injury

WASHINGTON, 9 Jan — US President Barack Obama on Wednesday wished German Chancellor Angela Merkel "a speedy recovery" from her injury sustained in a skiing accident in December, as Washington is trying to rebuild trust with Berlin and other allies damaged by extensive US spying.

In their conversation over the phone, Obama also congratulated the chancellor on her formation of a new cabinet, the White House said in a readout of the talks.

It said the two leaders discussed their agenda for 2014, including the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership negotiations and a NATO summit, and looked forward to "working closely together to advance our shared interests."

Obama invited Merkel for a revisit to Washington "at a mutually agreeable time" in the coming months, as the chancellor met with the president at the White House in June 2011.

Merkel cited "a serious breach of trust" when she spoke to Obama over the phone in October in an angry response to US spying on her mobile phone communications. She later said, "New trust must be built for the future."

Washington's mass domestic and global spying programme, as unveiled by Edward Snowden, a former National Security Agency contractor, has sparked outcries in other European countries and other continents, as their leaders were targeted as well.

unprecedented levels of air pollution last month.

Leaders in the six provinces and provincial-level cities and regions of Beijing, Tianjin, Hebei, Shanxi, Shandong, and the Inner Mongolia autonomous region met in October to seek solutions to the worsening air pollution in the region.

The Pearl River Delta region in the south is also considering the creation of such a working mechanism.

Yang Xin, professor at Fudan University's department of environmental science and engineering, said the mechanism in the Yangtze River Delta region is important because it spans different administrative authorities and will play a major role in the region's efforts to fight and control air pollution.

"Unlike the Pearl River Delta region, which consists mainly of cities in Guangdong Province, the Yangtze River Delta region involves three provinces and a municipality, and a mechanism covering so many different areas is a real breakthrough," he added.

Scientific studies have demonstrated that pollutants generated in one area can be delivered to other areas in the same region, and regional authorities won't succeed in fighting pollution by making individual efforts alone, he said.

LOS ANGELES, 9 Jan — Actress Sandra Bullock swept the 40th People's Choice awards on Wednesday with four wins, cementing her status as a favourite among the fan-selected winners, while singer Justin Timberlake dominated the music categories with three wins.

She also won favorite movie duo alongside her "Gravity" co-star George Clooney, while the film won favorite drama movie.

Bullock later joined McCarthy on stage to pick up the favorite comedy movie award for "The Heat."

Singer Timberlake, 32, who returned to the musical spotlight in 2013 with the two-part release of "The 20/20 Experience" after more than five years away to focus on his acting, picked up three awards including favourite album.

"I'd like to thank my parents for continuing to instill in me that no dream is too big. I'd like to thank my team that puts up with my ridiculous neuroses all the time — sorry, but not really, because look at this," the singer said on stage, referring to his award.

Timberlake also won favorite male artist and favorite R&B artist, but was beaten in the favorite pop artist category by Britney Spears, who won her first People's Choice award in her career spanning 15 years.

Actor Robert Downey Jr was named favourite action movie star for his leading role in Disney-Marvel's "Iron Man 3," which also won favorite movie and action movie.

"I am Iron Man and this is for the people," the actor said dramatically after asking for a spotlight and triumphant music on stage during his acceptance speech.

Adam Sandler won favourite comedic actor for the fourth consecutive time, this year for "Grown Ups 2." While his films have failed to gain much favor with critics in recent years, Sandler is a favourite at the People's Choice awards.

"This means a lot to me. I appreciate this, I really do, I really do. I think about the fans out there and how nice you've been to me all these years," the comedian said.

Beyonce 'Frozen' out of top spot on Billboard 200

LOS ANGELES, 9 Jan — Disney princesses ousted Queen Bey from her three-week reign atop the weekly Billboard 200 album chart on Wednesday, as the soundtrack to Disney's latest film "Frozen" knocked Beyonce's self-titled album from the top spot.

The "Frozen" soundtrack sold 165,000 copies in the week ending 5 January, and follows on the film's continued box office success since its November release, taking in more than $600 million worldwide. The soundtrack has sold more than 500,000 copies since its release in December.

"Frozen" follows the story of two princess sisters, one of whom later becomes queen of her Nordic kingdom but has special freezing powers, accidentally casting an eternal winter over their realm, which her sister tries to overturn.

R&B star Beyonce's self-titled album, released as a surprise without any fanfare last month, slipped to No 2 this week with sales of 130,000. The album, which was released exclusively through Apple Inc's iTunes digital store on 13 December and was not available to other retailers until 21 December, topped the chart for three consecu-

Moyes banks on better luck in Swansea sequel

LONDON, 9 Jan — The threat of a fourth consecutive defeat is looming large for Manchester United and their manager David Moyes, yet the beleaguered Scot feels things are on the verge of turning for his struggling side.

Swansea City return to Old Trafford for the second time in a week on Saturday, buoyed by their victory at the same ground in the FA Cup third round and no doubt encouraged for another assault by their opponents' ongoing problems.

Sunderland became the latest club to upset Moyes's team in the first leg of their League Cup semi-final on Tuesday, the first time since 1932 that United had lost their first three games of the year.

The two cup defeats followed a stinging home reverse in the league against Tottenham Hotspur that left United seventh in the table and 11 points adrift of leaders Arsenal.

Yet Moyes, hand-picked by predecessor Alex Ferguson and given the security of a six-year contract, is not panicking.

"I've been here before and done it before," Moyes said on the club website (www.manutd.com).

"I just sense that it's on the verge of turning, we're about to get a bit better. You need a little bit of good fortune to go for you, and it looks as if we're not getting enough of that at the moment.

"I can sense in the dressing-room that there's an urge to fight our current position."

United's fans booed them off the pitch following their cup defeat by Swansea, but it was a different story at the Stadium of Light where they made an effort to rally behind Moyes's cause, singing his name despite their team's limp performance.

Moyes described their support as "exceptional",

Manchester United manager David Moyes

but is well aware that it is a results business and those in the boardroom as well as on the terraces will soon start demanding an upturn in fortunes.

Alonso's current deal expires at the end of the season and the lack of an announcement of a new contract until now had prompted speculation he might accept a lucrative offer from an English Premier League club. Federer rallies with Laver in rare Australian Open warm-up

MELBOURNE, 9 Jan — Roger Federer traded shots with his hero Rod Laver on Wednesday in the stadium that bears the Australian great's name before promising that his hunger for grand slam titles remains as strong as ever.

The 17-times grand slam champion beamed with pride after enjoying a few rallies with the 75-year-old, who was dressed in traditional whites and impressed a packed crowd with his movement ahead of Federer's exhibition match with French world number 10 Jo-Wilfried Tsonga.

"Hitting with Rod Laver for me clearly is an absolute dream come true," Federer told reporters after a crowd-pleasing 6-7(5), 6-3, 7-5 win over Tsonga in the fund-raising event for his charity, the Roger Federer Foundation.

"It's in his arena as well, it's named after him and he deserves it so much.

"He told me that his wrist was hurting less on the forehand so he asked me to play there a bit more often.

"While I was playing my racket was feeling extremely heavy, that means I was very nervous which I really was because you don't want to miss a shot.

"I was happy we had some rallies. What an honor it was for me and I hope that the crowd enjoyed it and I'm very thankful that he was willing to do something like this because it's not normal in any way and that's why I really appreciate it."

Jimenez sees 50 as the chance to break more records

DURBAN, 9 Jan — Miguel Angel Jimenez is embracing the transition to 50 and has set himself the goal of breaking an 87-year-old Ryder Cup record this year.

The pony-tailed Spaniard has already defied Father Time by extending his record as the oldest winner of a European Tour event and now, just days past his 50th birthday, says he wants to be the oldest competitor at the Ryder Cup too.

"If I play well, I believe I will be on the team," he told reporters on Wednesday ahead of Thursday's start of the Volvo Golf Champions tournament at the Durban Country Club, which marks the first event of the new year on the European Tour.

It is an event for which Jimenez qualified by successfully defending his Hong Kong Open title in December, extending his own record as the oldest winner in Tour history.

"It would mean a lot, a lot to me. I'm still breaking records. It would be nice. I broke my own record of being the oldest winner, so it would be nice to get another record," he added.

The oldest Ryder Cup competitor for Europe was Ted Ray, who was 50 years, two months and five days old at the inaugural contest in 1927.

Brain-dead California teen gets surgery at new facility after court fight

SAN FRANCISCO, 9 Jan — A California girl who was declared brain-dead after a tonsillectomy last month and later moved to a new care facility after a legal battle has undergone surgery to insert feeding and breathing tubes, a family attorney said on Wednesday. Jahi McMath, 13, was transferred from Children's Hospital and Research Center in Oakland, outside of San Francisco, where she had remained without brain activity for nearly four weeks, to an undisclosed Catholic care centre on Sunday night.

Doctors at the new care center performed tracheostomy and gastrostomy surgeries, Christopher Dolan, attorney for the girl's family, said in a Twitter message on Wednesday.

"She is doing very well, and now getting the treatment she should have gotten 28 days ago," Dolan said. "Doctors are optimistic that her condition has stabilized."

support of pro-life groups, including one founded by the family of Terri Schiavo, a Florida woman who died in 2005 after a 15-year battle over whether to keep her body alive in a persistent vegetative state.

It was not clear when the procedures took place. On Monday, Dolan told a Press conference that Jahi had "wasted away at Children's Hospital (and) that she might not make it."

McMath was admitted to Children's Hospital on 9 December to have her tonsils removed and for other procedures to address sleep apnea. After the surgery, she went into cardiac arrest and suffered brain swelling.

The hospital declared her brain-dead on December 12 and made plans to remove her from the ventilator, but her family has fought in state and federal court to keep her on life support.

A restraining order barring the hospital from removing that life support had been set to expire on Tuesday. An online fundraiser launched by Jahi's mother, Nailah Winkfield, seeking to raise $20,000 to pay for her daughter's transfer exceeded $55,000 on Wednesday.—Reuters

Messi strikes twice in Cup on injury return

MADRID, 9 Jan — Lionel Messi came off the bench and scored twice on his return from injury and Cesc Fabregas also netted a double as Barcelona strolled to a 4-0 win at home to Getafe in their King's Cup last 16, first leg on Wednesday.

Messi was given a rousing ovation by the home fans when he replaced Andres Iniesta in the 64th minute at the Nou Camp, the World Player of the Year's first appearance since straining a thigh muscle in November.

Dominant Barca, who rested a number of regulars, were already two goals ahead by the time the Argentina forward entered the fray after Fabregas headed them in front in the eighth minute and added a penalty in the 63rd.

Messi looked fit and sharp during his half-hour on the pitch and his successful return to action is good news for Barca coach Gerardo Martino with Saturday's La Liga clash at title rivals Atletico Madrid looming.

His first goal came in the 89th minute when he collected a loose ball in the penalty area and slotted into the corner from close range.

His second in added time was a trademark dash in from the right wing and he left the Getafe defenders floundering before lifting the ball high into the net and bringing the adoring home faithful to their feet.

There was a festive atmosphere despite the giant stadium being less than half full and former Barca coach

Tito Vilanova, who is battling the cancer that forced him to step down at the end of last season, was watching from the stands. If they successfully negotiate next week's second leg in Madrid, Barca will meet Rayo Vallecano or Levante, who play their first leg on Thursday, in the quarter-finals.

"It's clear that he (Messi) hasn't forgotten how to play football," Barca captain Carles Puyol said in an interview with Spanish television broadcaster Antenna 3.

"He has been training very well and as you could see those are the kind of goals the best players can produce," the Spain defender added. "There is a very long way to go in the league but it's a very important game (on Saturday) against what I think is one of the best teams in the world."

"Let's see what we can do and the important thing now is to recover well from tonight's efforts."

Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Speaker calls for thoughtful review of Constitution

NAY PYI TAW, 9 Jan—Thura U Shwe Mann, Speaker of Pyidaungsu Hluttaw and Pyithu Hluttaw, has said that a review of the constitution should not harm the current stability, peace making process and democratic transition.

Speaking at three separate meetings with local people from Myaungmya, Labutta and Patheingyi districts in Ayeyawady Region today, the speaker suggested several objectives – to improve the situation without harming the country's current stability, to encourage peace, national unity and national reconciliation and to achieve progress without harming the democratic transition. He said it was necessary to take these things into account when amending the constitution.

The Joint Committee for Reviewing the Constitution has been formed and the committee has received advice from political parties and experts, the speaker said.

He stressed the importance of long-term objectives when reviewing the constitution, saying that it would be a mistake if things that should be changed are not changed and if things that should not be changed are changed hurriedly.

Practicing democracy should be based on the history of a country and it is impossible to copy the democratic system of other countries, he added. The MPs and members of the supporting committees are working together to build and establish basic infrastructures for the development of the townships, he added. He also urged the people to cooperate with them as part of efforts to conduct the poverty alleviation programmes laid down by the president.

The speaker also pledged, on behalf of MPs, that they will work in the best interest of the people in terms of introducing laws.
