US urges DPRK to quit nuclear programme after Pyongyang's peace call

WASHINGTON, 17 Jan — The United States on Thursday renewed its call for the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) to abandon its nuclear programme after Pyongyang's fresh appeal for ending hostilities on the Korean Peninsula. "Our core policy on North Korea remains unchanged," State Department spokeswoman Jennifer Psaki told reporters at a regular news briefing.

Washington and its allies, Japan and the Republic of Korea (ROK), have set Pyongyang's moves to abandon its nuclear weapons and existing nuclear programme as a condition to resume the six-party talks, a mechanism also involving Russia and China.

"We'll continue to hold North Korea to these commitments and its international obligations, and of course as you know, we won't accept North Korea as a nuclear-armed state,"

Psaki said. "But the ball remains in their court and they haven't taken any steps to change the views of the international community on this issue."

The DPRK's National Defence Commission on Thursday called for a halt of verbal and military provocation between Pyongyang and Seoul, and urged practical measures to be taken to prevent a "nuclear disaster" on the peninsula.

Blast wounds 36 anti-government protesters in Thai capital

BANGKOK, 17 Jan—An explosive device tossed at anti-government protesters wounded 36 in central Bangkok on Friday and other violence rippled through the Thai capital after several days of relative calm when the movement appeared to be running out of steam.

At least one protester was seriously hurt.

Police said the device was hurled at protesters marching with their leader, Suthep Thaugsuban, near Chulalongkorn University in the city centre.

"When the incident happened and perpetrators threw the explosive, Suthep was 30 meters away," Akanat Promphan, a spokesman for the movement, told Reuters. Suthep was unharmed.

It was not immediately clear who was responsible and the nature of the device was unknown as forensic experts were prevented from entering the area.

"We have received 12 people who were injured in the blast. One person is seriously injured and the other 11 have sustained various types of injuries, some minor," said an official at Ramathibodi Hospital.

The overall injury toll came from the Erawan Medical Centre, which monitors Bangkok hospitals.

The latest unrest flared in November and escalated on Monday when the demonstrators led by Suthep, a former opposition politician, brought parts of the capital to a standstill and forced many ministries to close.—Reuters

UN inspectors to visit Iran uranium mine on 29 January

ANKARA, 17 Jan — UN nuclear inspectors will soon visit an Iranian uranium mine for the first time since 2005 as part of Teheran's agreement to open its disputed nuclear programme to greater scrutiny, state television reported on Friday.

"Based on our agreement with the agency (IAEA), their inspectors will visit the Gachin mine in southern part of the country on 29 January," Behrouz Kamalvandi, a spokesman for the Atomic Energy Organization of Iran, was quoted as saying.

The Vienna-based International Atomic Energy Agency had no immediate comment. It previously said it wanted to visit the Gachin mine uranium mine to acquire a better understanding of the nature of Iran's nuclear programme.

The West suspects Iran is trying to develop nuclear weapons capability behind the screen of a declared civilian atomic energy programme. The Islamic Republic denies this.

Iran and the IAEA struck a cooperation pact in November entailing six initial steps to be taken by Teheran over the following three months including provision of access to two nuclear-related facilities and relevant information.

Iran's deal with the UN nuclear watchdog is separate from but complementary to its 24 November interim reached with world powers in Geneva under which it is to curb some atomic activity in return for some easing of economic sanctions.

Gov't describes economy as "recovering" for 1st time in 6 years

TOKYO, 17 Jan — The Japanese government on Friday revised upward its basic assessment of the country's economy, describing it as "recovering" for the first time in six years, on the back of robust consumer spending ahead of a planned sales tax hike in April and improvement in business investment.

"The Japanese economy is recovering at a moderate pace," the Cabinet Office said in its monthly economic report, in which it upgraded its views on three of the 14 categories — consumption, business investment and business failures.

It was the first time for the government to specify the country's economy is "recovering" since January 2008, before it started to languish against a back-drop of the global financial crisis triggered by the collapse of US investment bank Lehman Brothers Holdings Inc. in September that year.

Prime Minister Shinzo Abe's 13-month-old administration — which is trying to beat nearly two decades of deflation — also said in the report that prices are "holding firm," and it called on the Bank of Japan to achieve its 2 percent inflation goal "at the earliest possible time."

For three months until last month, the government left its basic economic assessment unchanged, saying Japan's economy "is on the way to recovery at a moderate pace." Last month, it dropped the word "deflation" from the report for the first time in more than four years.

In January, the Cabinet Office raised its views on consumer spending for the second straight month, saying it "is increasing, showing a last-minute rise in demand before a consumption tax increase in some sectors." But the government was concerned that the scheduled 3-percentage-point sales tax hike to 8 percent may make consumers reluctant to buy luxury goods such as cars, stifling the nascent economic recovery and hampering price rises.

19 years after deadly quake, Kobe calls for disaster vigilance

KOBE, 17 Jan — Memorial ceremonies marked on Friday the 19th anniversary of the Great Hanshin Earthquake which devastated the western Japanese city of Kobe and surrounding area, killing 6,434.

Survivors of the March 2011 Tohoku earthquake and tsunami disaster in the country's northeast joined locals at the ceremonies, observing a moment of silence at 5:46 am in honour of the victims of the 17 Jan, 1995 earthquake.

With people who did not experience the disaster accounting for more than 40 percent of Kobe's population, there are concerns the city may be falling behind in disaster preparedness.

"It is our duty as the rebuilders of Kobe to pass on the lessons learnt from the disaster," Mayor Kizo Hisamoto said in a statement.

Kobe is one of many areas likely to be affected by a predicted megaquake originating in the Nankai Trough off central and western Japan.

In central Kobe's Higashi-yuenchi park, where a monument is engraved with victims' names, bamboo lanterns were arranged to form the numerals 1.17 as attendees lit candles.

Australia says breached Indonesian territory while blocking refugee boats

SYDNEY, 17 Jan — Australia will apologize to Indonesia on Friday after its navy breached Indonesian territorial sovereignty several times as part of the government's controversial policy of stopping boats carrying would-be asylum seekers from entering its waters.

Immigration Minister Scott Morrison said he had been told earlier this week about the "inadvertent breaches" on multiple days and immediately informed the Indonesian navy.

A woman reads a newspaper containing an advertisement (R) publicising the Australian government's new policy on asylum seekers arriving by boat, in Sydney on 2 Aug, 2013.—REUTERS

He said Foreign Minister Julie Bishop was unable to reach her Indonesian counterpart Marty Natalegawa to discuss the breaches and that a formal apology would be issued by Australia's embassy in Jakarta later on Friday.

Acknowledgement of the breaches will likely further strain ties that had already hit their lowest point since the 1990s after recent allegations Australia had spied on President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono and other senior Indonesian officials.

Indonesia downgraded its relations with Australia in November as a result of the embarrassing spying allegations, suspending intelligence and military co-operation, including over asylum seekers.

A protracted crisis between the often uneasy neighbors could have serious repercussions. Indonesia is a major importer of Australian agricultural products such as wheat and live cattle. Australia is Indonesia's 10th-largest export market.

Morrison said on Friday Australia "deeply regrets" the breaches of territorial sovereignty but at the same time maintained Australia's right to protect its own borders.

"We have offered the apologies, we have been very clear about what has occurred both with Indonesia and here today," he told reporters.

"But we won't let this setback get in the way of the job we were elected to do, which is stop the boats," he said.

Portuguese president confident about Portugal's upcoming exit from adjustment programme

LISBON, 17 Jan — Portugal will "successfully" exit its adjustment programme in May, President Anibal Cavaco Silva said on Thursday.

"This is a crucial year for Portugal," he said in the Palace of Queluz in Sintra during a ceremony for the presentation of New Year compliments to diplomatic corps in Lisbon.

"As you all know, in mid-2014 the program of economic and financial assistance will come to an end. Despite being some months away from meeting this objective, there are reasons to believe that we will conclude this programme with success. It will be a decisive moment for our country."

Cavaco Silva added that 2013

hadn't been "an easy year for Portugal", but that the economy had shown some positive signs that enabled the country to face this year "with more hope," adding that the country's priorities were to create more jobs.

"2014 will be a year in which we cannot slow down our efforts to create a more solidary and cohesive Europe," he added. "We need to be committed to a more balanced growth in the Eurozone."

Portugal agreed to a bailout programme in 2011 with the European Commission, the International Monetary Fund and the European Central Bank when it found itself mired in an economic recession.

UN chief welcomes opening of Hariri murder trial

UNITED NATIONS, 17 Jan — UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon on Thursday welcomed the start of the trial of four suspects accused of killing former Lebanese Prime Minister Rafik Hariri in a blast.

"The secretary-general welcomes the opening of the trial of the Special Tribunal for Lebanon (STL), nearly nine years after the heinous terrorist attack which killed former Prime Minister Rafik Hariri and 21 others," said a statement issued here by Ban's spokesperson.

"The secretary-general stresses the vital importance of combating impunity for the long-term stability and security of Lebanon," the statement said.

"He notes with gratitude the continuing support of the Government of Lebanon, and of other Member States, for the work of the Tribunal," it added.

The trial began in The Hague on Thursday with opening statements by chief prosecutor Norman Farrell. A case has been brought against four suspects for the assassination of Hariri, who was killed in February 2005 when a bomb exploded in the Lebanese capital of Beirut. The explosion killed 22 individuals and injured 226 others.

Ukrainian parliament pushes through sweeping anti-protest law

KIEV, 17 Jan — Supporters of Ukrainian President Viktor Yanukovich hustled a sweeping law through parliament on Thursday in an attempt to curb anti-government protests, sparking an outcry from the opposition and raising tensions on the streets.

The law, backed by deputies from Yanukovich's Regions Party and allies, also adopted a similar stance to Russia on registration of foreign non-governmental organizations (NGOs), insisting they should pay taxes on profit.

NGOs that were financed from abroad and took part in political activity in Ukraine would be categorized as "foreign agents", it said.

But the law, which ran to more than 100 pages, appeared directed mainly at preparing the ground for action to end the street protests that have been taking place in the capital Kiev and some other cities since November.

Yanukovich's refusal at that time to sign a free trade deal with the European Union in favour of boosting ties with Ukraine's former Soviet master Russia brought hundreds of thousands on to the streets in protest.

Though numbers have dwindled since, several hundred people remain camped out on Kiev's central square of Kiev or are occupying public buildings such as City Hall. On Sunday, at least 50,000 people demonstrated against Yanukovich in Kiev. The law, which still needs Yanukovich's signature, bans any unauthorized installation of tents, stages or amplifiers in public places, on pain of a fine of up to $640 or up to 15 days in detention.—Reuters

US urges Syrian opposition to attend peace conference

WASHINGTON, 17 Jan — US Secretary of State John Kerry on Thursday urged the Syrian opposition to attend a key peace conference which aims at bringing an end to the three-year conflict in Syria. Kerry called on the Syrian Opposition Coalition to vote favourably at a meeting on Friday to participate in the much-anticipated peace conference in Geneva on 22 January.

“We do so knowing that the Geneva peace conference is not the end, but rather the beginning,” Kerry said. The top US envoy said the conference, known as Geneva II, is a process that is the best opportunity for the opposition to achieve the goal of a political solution “for this terrible conflict that has taken many, many, too many lives.”

Kerry reiterated that the goal of the conference is to establish a process to form a transitional governing body in Syria to bring about an end to the civil war. The war has triggered “one of the planet’s most severe humanitarian disasters” and created the seedling grounds for extremism, he noted.

He added that any names put forward for leadership of Syria’s transition must be agreed to by both the government and the opposition, which is “the very definition of mutual consent.” Kerry also expressed deep concern about the rise of extremism in Syria, which he said is the “strongest magnet for terror of any place today.” Western governments have backed the opposition fighting against the Syrian government but are increasingly concerned about the growing influence of Jihadist groups in Syria.—Xinhua

Destruction of most dangerous Syrian chemicals may be delayed

ROME, 17 Jan — The removal and destruction of the most dangerous agents in Syria’s chemical arsenal will likely be delayed because of security and logistical problems, but the final deadline of the end of June for eliminating all chemicals remains, the head of the world’s chemical weapons watchdog said on Thursday.

Hundreds flee homes as heatwave fans Australia bushfires

SYDNEY, 17 Jan — Extreme heat and high winds fanned dozens of bushfires across Australia on Friday, prompting hundreds to flee their homes in some of the worst conditions seen since Black Saturday in 2009.

One person died in the Grampians bushland in the southeastern state of Victoria, about 300 km (186 miles) west of Melbourne, where bushfires are burning out of control amid temperatures which have hit above 40 degrees Celsius (104 degrees F), destroying or damaging houses.

Victoria was the hardest hit, with 70 bushfires burning out of control. Dozens of blazes are burning in South Australia, Western Australia and New South Wales. Authorities have issued seven emergency warnings to severely affected areas, prompting hundreds of residents to flee their homes.

Victoria Fire Services Commissioner Craig Lapsley said conditions were “up there” as the worst since the Black Saturday fires that killed 173 people in 2009. Lapsley said the 21,000-hectare (81-sq-mile) fire in the Grampians bushland was so intense it had “created its own weather”, triggering lightning and spot fires.

Strong wind changes and thunderstorms forecast for later Friday could exacerbate conditions, he said. “There is a stronger southerly wind expected to come through there tonight and that could create worse conditions for the fire and cause it to spread further,” a spokeswoman for Victoria’s Country Fire Authority told Reuters.

Australia’s south and southeast have been in the grip of a heatwave for nearly a week, with climate experts warning of even longer and hotter heatwaves to come, raising questions about its long-term position as an agricultural powerhouse.

Japan envoy concerned as Virginia steps into Sea of Japan name row WASHINGTON, 17 Jan — Japan’s Ambassador to the United States expressed concern on Thursday about legislation being debated in Virginia to require school books to use the name “East Sea” as well as “Sea of Japan” for the waters between Japan and the Korean Peninsula.

“I wonder if it is fair in primary and secondary education to (only) back one side over a matter of international dispute,” Ken-ichiro Sasae told a group of Japanese reporters in Washington.

The Japanese government maintains the Sea of Japan is the only internationally established name for the waters, while the South Korean government has demanded use of the name East Sea.

“I’m concerned about this kind of move,” Sasae said. “We will make efforts to make sure the move (in Virginia) does not spill over” to other parts of the United States.

Virginia is home to an increasing number of Korean Americans, mainly in northern areas close to Washington. Some counties in Maryland, neighbouring Virginia, have already decided to use textbooks with both the Japanese and South Korean names for the waters, despite objections from the Japanese government.

Both Democrat and Republican members of the Virginia legislature sponsored the bills

Top leaders urge more efforts to promote “mass line” campaign

BEIJING, 17 Jan — Top leaders of the Communist Party of China (CPC) have called for more efforts to promote a campaign to boost ties between the Party and the people.

The “mass line” campaign was launched in June 2013, with aims to boost ties between CPC officials, Party members and the people, while cleaning up four undesirable work styles -- formalism, bureaucracy, hedonism and extravagance.

President Xi Jinping and six other members of the Standing Committee of the Political Bureau of the CPC Central Committee are in charge of supervising campaign implementation in designated provincial-level regions.

They have attended provincial Party leadership meetings, conducted study tours and given instructions during past months, with achievement made, particularly in cleaning up undesirable work styles.

Official figures released on Thursday showed 22,457 official cars and 519 government building projects had been canceled in the seven provinces by the end of 2013.

Meetings held by provincial Party committees or governments have been reduced by 35 percent and official documents decreased 15 percent.

Public spending on official receptions, overseas trips, and vehicle purchases and maintenance in the seven provinces has decreased by 3.373 billion yuan (556.9 million US dollars).

A total of 6,820 officials in the provinces have been punished for violating the “eight-point” anti-bureaucracy rules as of the end of 2013.

Results in streamlining administration and delegating power to lower levels have also been seen in these provinces.

A total of 1,193 items of administrative approval have been canceled or delegated to lower levels.

Toward global citizenship

Despite all the peace efforts, violence and unrest still persist in many parts of the world. Though the last decade saw fewer hostilities, the growing threat of terrorism, extremism, and sectarian violence sounds alarming bells to the global population with tensions running high in certain places.

So, there arises a question—what is the key to secure peace? The answer is simple. Humanity. There would be no more war if only we saw each other as human beings equal and same. Except for the colors, we all are the same made of flesh and blood. But in real world, the global citizenship is just a concept which has never been embraced. We still think we are different.

Tolerance and mutual respect are vital for building peaceful societies. Every man is born equal and no one should be discriminated on the grounds of his color, race, and religion. Diversity is surely an asset and not a threat. Peace will not prevail as long as we refuse to embrace diversity. It takes all sorts to make, but not to kill, the world.

We believe that the power of diplomacy, dialogues and engagement will be able to conquer the violence and silence the guns across the world. Lasting peace cannot be achieved through the barrel of a gun; it can only be attained through understanding. The global ceasefire is a thousand miles journey, but to reach this goal, all we need to do it to accept that we belong to each other.

The close interrelationship between peace and prosperity is obvious and undeniable. The future of the world largely depends on the present situation of younger generation. How we let them grow up would shape the future of the world. Shall we let them grow up in peace or with daily trauma and pain of war atrocities? Shall we let them see bright side or dark side of the life? It is up to you.

“If we have no peace, it is because we have forgotten that we belong to each other,” said Mother Teresa.

Abe planning to attend Sochi Olympics opening, meet with Putin

TOKYO, 17 Jan — Prime Minister Shinzo Abe is planning to visit Russia to attend the 7 February opening ceremony of the Sochi Winter Olympics, responding to requests from Russian President Vladimir Putin as the two countries address long-standing territorial talks, government sources said on Friday.

Abe is expected to hold a summit with Putin during the visit, but the timing and location are not yet known. His plan to attend the opening of the sports event comes after decisions by other countries, including the United States and Germany, not to send their leaders in opposition to Russia's antigay legislation.

The talks between Abe and Putin would be a further sign of an improving relationship between their countries since Abe took office in December 2012. He has shown his eagerness to address a decades-old territorial dispute that has prevented the two countries from signing a peace treaty following World War II. They directly met four times last year, including when Abe visited Moscow in April, with the agenda also including bilateral economic cooperation aimed at boosting Japanese investment in developing Russia's Far East, where abundant oil and gas reserves have been confirmed.

Putin initially asked Abe to visit Russia for the Olympics when they met in October on the sidelines of an international conference.

As Japan annually holds a government-sponsored rally on 7 February to seek the return of the Russian-administered islands off Japan's northernmost prefecture, Abe initially decided to pass on joining the ceremony, the Japanese sources said. But he has changed his mind out of a desire to further enhance his personal relationship with Putin in the hope of giving momentum to the territorial talks, the sources said.

Abe is considering leaving for Sochi after joining a rally to be held in Tokyo to remember the 7 February, 1855, conclusion of a Japan-Russia treaty on commerce and navigation, under which Russia accepted that the islands, called the Northern Territories in Japan and the Southern Kurils in Russia, are part of Japan.

The islands were seized by the Soviet Union in 1945 following Japan's surrender in World War II.

Rahul Gandhi will not run for PM, says India's Congress party

NEW DELHI, 17 Jan — India's Nehru-Gandhi scion Rahul Gandhi will not run for the post of Prime Minister as the ruling Congress party's candidate in the upcoming general elections, the party said on Thursday. "Sonia Gandhi has taken a decision that Rahul Gandhi will not be the party's prime ministerial candidate. He will, however, lead the poll campaign," the party spokesperson Janardan Dwivedi told the media.

The latest announcement came just hours after Indian Road Transport Minister Oscar Fernandes said that Rahul Gandhi was Congress party's natural choice for prime ministerial candidate. It also put to rest speculation about the Congress party planning to nominate Rahul Gandhi as the prime ministerial candidate at a meeting in the national capital Friday.—Xinhua

Cambodian, Laotian FMs to meet next week on ties

PHNOM PENH, 17 Jan — Cambodian Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Hor Namhong would meet with his Laotian counterpart Thongloun Sisoulith next week to explore possibilities to further boost bilateral ties, the Cambodian Ministry of Foreign Affairs said on Friday.

The two top diplomats would co-chair the 12th meeting of the Cambodia-Lao Joint Commission for Bilateral Cooperation, to be held from 23 to 24 Jan in the cultural city of Siem Reap Province in northwestern Cambodia, said a press statement from the ministry.

"The Joint Commission will discuss a number of issues of bilateral cooperation including political and security, economic and cultural cooperation, and sub-regional economic cooperation," the statement said.

At the end of the talk, both sides will sign the agreed minutes of the meeting, it said.

Cambodia shares about 504 km of border with Laos to the northeast. Trade and investment ties between the two neighbors remain low.

On tourism side, Laos is the 4th largest source of tourists to Cambodia. According to the data of the Cambodian Tourism Ministry, during the first ten months of last year, Cambodia received 339,000 Laotian tourists, up 68 percent year-on-year.

Gov't OKs plan to seek World Heritage status for old industrial sites

TOKYO, 17 Jan — The government on Friday approved a plan to recommend old industrial facilities in eight prefectures for inclusion on UNESCO's list of World Heritage cultural sites in 2015.

The government plans to submit its recommendation to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization by the end of this month, government officials said.

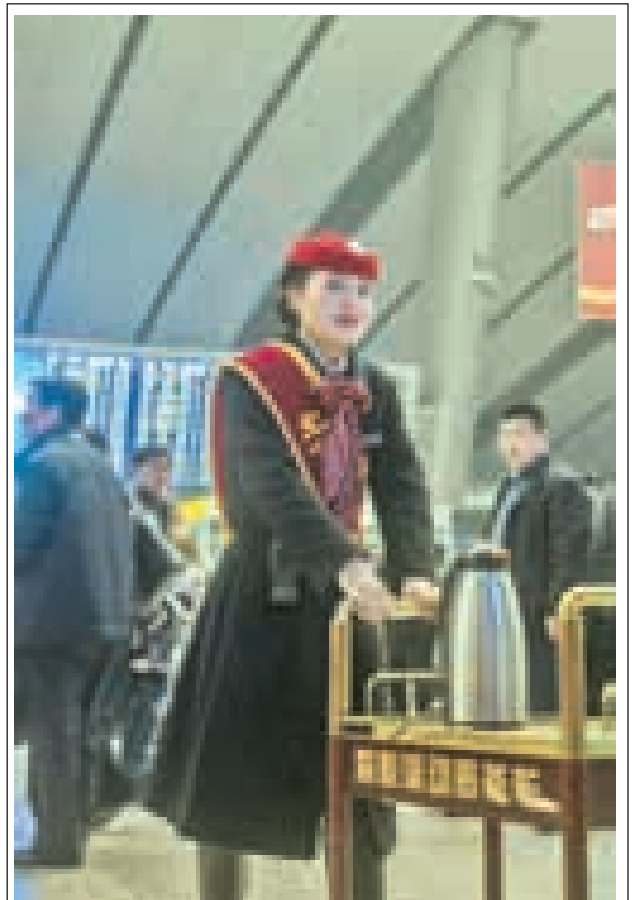

The plan to recommend the "Sites of Japan's Meiji Industrial Revolution" was approved at a Cabinet meeting.

The sites comprise a total of 23 facilities, including the Hashima coal complex in Nagasaki, which represents Japan's industrialization from the late 19th to the early 20th centuries. Some of the facilities, such as the Nagasaki shipbuilding yard, are still partly in operation. The facilities are located in Iwate, Shizuoka, Yamaguchi, Fukuoka, Saga, Nagasaki, Kumamoto and Kagoshima prefectures.

Members of an advisory body to UNESCO are expected to visit the facilities from the summer to autumn this year for on-site inspections, and the World Heritage Committee is expected to decide whether to list them at its meeting in 2015, the officials said. South Korea has asked Japan to reconsider seeking the listing of industrial facilities where Koreans were pressed into slave labor during World War II.—Kyodo News

New Zealand sends more cyclone relief supplies to Tonga

WELLINGTON, 17 Jan — The New Zealand government announced on Friday it was stepping up relief assistance to Pacific island neighbour Tonga in the wake of Tropical Cyclone Ian, which struck last week.

"Following a request from the Tonga government, New Zealand will supply 300 emergency shelter kits, which can provide interim shelter to over 2,000 people, and assist the New Zealand and Tongan Red Cross with the provision of clean water on the islands of Ha'apai," Foreign Affairs Minister

Murray McCully said in a statement.

"We will also make a further 300,000 NZ dollars (250,459 U.S. dollars) available to New Zealand non-government organizations working with partners on the ground," said McCully.

"Cyclone Ian has resulted in the loss of one life and caused significant damage to buildings and some infrastructure. New Zealand continues to work closely with Tongan authorities and will consider all further requests for assistance."

UN envoy condemns alleged FARC attack in Colombia

BOGOTA, 17 Jan — A UN envoy on Thursday condemned a deadly motorcycle bomb blast that Colombian authorities blamed on the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC) guerrilla group. Fabrizio Hochschild, the UN representative in Colombia, said civilians were bearing the brunt of the armed conflict in Colombia, and called on the FARC, which is in peace talks with the government, to stop its attacks and end five decades of fighting in the country.

"If there are peaceful talks, both sides must try their best to prevent the conflict from continuing to cause violence against civilians," said the envoy in a statement.

The blast, which killed a woman and wounded 25 others, took place early Thursday morning in front of the city hall in the town of Pradera -- Colombia's southwest department of Valle del Cauca. At that time, Colombian President Juan Manuel Santos was having a Council of Ministers meeting in Popayan -- a city near Pradera.

Condemning the attack, Santos said via Twitter that "we consider the attack to be a vile terrorist action." "The Defence Ministry is moving to the site. What irrational and contradictory behavior on the part of the FARC!" Santos said.—Xinhua

Emergent water supply policies unveiled as extreme drought hit central Kosovo

PRISTINA, 17 Jan — The mayor of Pristina Shpend Ahmeti approved on Thursday a restriction water policy regulation, as the capital is mostly hit by the consequences of the drought.

Central Kosovo is facing an unusually dry winter, with two water reservoirs declining to extreme minus 13 metres.

"Because of the actual lack of water supply in the public system, the municipality is forced to undertake emergent measures, in order to provide enough drinking water for the population during the emergent period", said Ahmeti.

Among the restrictions "drinking water is not allowed for washing cars, roads, paths, for construction, gardens", reads the regulation which is in effect from Thursday until September 2014.

Ahmeti warned that based on this regulation the inspectorate will increase monitoring checks in line with the emergent measures.

"Individuals could be fined with 150 euros (204 US dollars), while institutions with up to 300 if found abusing the drinking water", warned Ahmeti.

Arieta Mjeku, a spokeswoman of the "Pristina" regional water supply company, told local media that strict reductions must be imposed if the winter drought continues.

According to her some districts already are experiencing water supply reductions.

The beds of two lakes, Batllava and Badovc, which supply almost half a million people in and around capital Pristina have declined to a record minus 13 meters below the normal level.

Kosovo and the region are experiencing an unusually warm winter with lack of snow and rain.

Arjun Kapoor: I'm single and happy

MUMBAI, 17 Jan — Arjun Kapoor, who has been linked to his 2 States co-star Alia Bhatt, says he is single and happy.

Beyonce writes essay on gender inequality

LOS ANGELES, 17 Jan — Beyonce Knowles-Carter has taken up the issue of gender inequality by writing an essay on it.

The 32-year old singer wrote the essay titled 'Gender Equality is a Myth' for 'The Shriver Report', a media initiative led by Maria Shriver that seeks women empowerment in US.

"We need to stop buying into the myth about gender equality. It isn't a reality yet. Today, women make up half of the US workforce, but the average working woman earns only 77 per cent of what the average working man makes.

"But unless women and men both say this is unacceptable, things will not change," Beyonce wrote.

Beyonce has also urged for working together to provide 100 per cent equal opportunities to women.

"Women are more than 50 per cent of the population and more than 50 per cent of voters. We must demand that we all receive

Double for Messi but Neymar injured in Barca win

BARCELONA, 17 Jan — Quicksilver Lionel Messi scored twice as Barcelona beat Getafe 2-0 and qualified 6-0 on aggregate for the King's Cup quarter-finals but they lost Neymar to injury midway through the first half.

Messi and Neymar were returning to the starting lineup but the Brazil forward lasted less than 25 minutes as he twisted his ankle turning awkwardly by the touchline and was taken away on a stretcher.

However, after the match Barca coach Gerardo Martino told reporters: "The injury to Neymar isn't as serious as it seemed and he'll be back playing soon."

It was Argentina captain Messi's first start since he injured his hamstring last November and the diminutive forward looked sharp in front of goal.

After slotting home his first in the run-up to half-time, Messi struck again after the break following a trademark mazy run when he hurdled several challenges and a dive by goalkeeper Jordi Codina before tucking the ball into the net.

Midfielder Xavi came on as a second-half substitute for a landmark 700th appearance for Barcelona.

Real Sociedad also progressed with a 1-0 win at Villarreal, having drawn 0-0 in the first leg of their last 16 tie.

"We had the right intensity and pressured well. We didn't give Getafe many chances to get into the game and then when Messi scored it appeared as though the tie was over," Martino told a news conference.

"Leo showed that he was ready to play 90 minutes. That was the plan for Neymar, (Cristian) Tello and other players to have a full match. Messi was accumulating minutes in previous games and at some point we would decide that he should start.

Barca rested several players, including Sergio

Busquets and Jordi Alba who were left behind in Catalonia.

Messi has been brought back slowly to allow him to build up his hamstring and he started in attack alongside Neymar and Tello.

The Argentine fired narrowly wide in the opening minutes having been found by Neymar, and then Tello blazed past the post moments later.

At the other end, Juan Rodriguez, given a rare chance in Getafe's lineup, volleyed straight at Barca keeper Victor Valdes from six metres.

Alexis was brought on for the injured Neymar and, as Barca stepped up the pressure, Messi gave them the lead when he side-footed a Tello cross into the corner of the net.

He added another midway through the second half with a fine run that left several Getafe defenders, and Codina, in his wake before calmly finding the back of the net.—Reuters

Moyes is the right man for United, says Van Persie

LONDON, 17 Jan — Manchester United striker Robin van Persie believes manager David Moyes must be given time to sort out the club's problems after a difficult start to the season.

United are seventh in the table with little chance of retaining their Premier League title and went out of the FA Cup at their first hurdle after an erratic beginning under Moyes, who replaced Alex Ferguson in the close season.

"Moyes needs time, he's new," Netherlands international Van Persie was quoted as saying on the BBC on Thursday. "The manager is our leading man and he will change things around."

Van Persie, who joined United from Arsenal for 24 million pounds ($39.23 million) in 2012 and spearheaded their title success last season, has missed much of the current campaign through injury to add to the club's difficulties.

They visit Chelsea on Sunday knowing a defeat could leave them 14 points adrift of leaders Arsenal, who host struggling Fulham on Saturday, which is a remarkable turnaround from last term when United

Li Na rallies to beat Safarova in third round of Australian Open

MELBOURNE, 17 Jan — Two-time finalist Li Na saved a match point before clawing back to record a three-set victory over Czech Lucie Safarova in the third round of the Australian Open here on Friday.

The Chinese fourth seed, a finalist in 2011 and last year, won 1-6, 7-6 (7-2), 6-3 in two and a half hours to set up a clash with Russian 22nd seed Ekaterina Makarova for a place in the quarter-finals.

Li served inconsistently and failed to take advantage of key break-point chances for much of the first two sets.

But she dominated the tiebreaker, then broke the 24th-seeded Safarova in the eighth game of the deciding set before serving out.

"In the beginning she played very nice, very good and it was tough to find any rhythm," Li said of her opponent.

"I'm happy I was able to fight and win the match. I just tried to play at the baseline and move the ball around the court."

Ferrer wears down Chardy to reach fourth round

MELBOURNE, 17 Jan — Third seed David Ferrer wore down Frenchman Jeremy Chardy in blistering heat to reach the fourth round at a 15th consecutive grand slam with a 6-2 7-6 (7-5) 6-2 victory at the Australian Open on Friday.

Even the super-fit Spaniard, whose brick-wall playing style should suit the conditions, was troubled by the hot weather as he prowled the baseline for 132 minutes in temperatures higher than 42 degrees Celsius (108 Fahrenheit) on Rod Laver Arena. "I won in three sets, so it's good," said the 31-year-old, a semi-finalist at Melbourne Park for two of the last three years.

"I know today maybe was the last day with this heat, with these conditions, and it's good for your body, because is very difficult to play with these conditions.

"Maybe it was my best match this week." Ferrer was not able to entirely keep his cool for the whole match and took his frustrations out on his racket after losing his only service game of the match to give Chardy a 5-3 lead in the second set.

After recovering to stave off two set points and move 2-0 ahead following a tiebreaker, Ferrer rattled through the third set in convincing fashion.

"I was angry in this moment, and I was a little bit nervous," he said of the racket-smashing. "The key was sure in the second set. In the important moments I got lucky and not him, no? It was a miracle I won the second set." Ranked third in the world after Andy Murray missed the back end of last season, Ferrer is probably the least fancied third seed at Melbourne Park since Nikolay Davydenko in 2007 and a 66-1 outsider with the bookmakers.

Ferrer's relatively easy draw, though, means he could easily go deep into the second week at Melbourne Park despite his next opponent Florian Mayer defeating the Spaniard at last year's Shanghai Masters. One thing for certain is that if and when he loses, Ferrer will not go down without a fight.

"I am a fitness player I need to run every point," he said. "I am a fighter, no? I try to fight every point."

China to implement standardized training for medical graduates in 2015

BEIJING, 17 Jan — China will set up standardized training in 2015 for medical graduates before they become resident doctors, according to the National Health and Family Planning Commission on Friday.

According to a guideline issued by seven departments, including the commission, health organs at all levels should stipulate concrete policies and set up guarantee systems to pave the way for standardized training nationwide. Wang Chen, vice head of the science and education division of the commission, said that, drawing from world experience, a graduate must receive strict training before he or she becomes a clinical doctor.

However, China does not currently have a national standard for training, and training to become resident doctors depends on the hospitals where they are employed, leading to differential medical levels across regions, Wang said.

Wang explained that graduates of the same medical class may develop different professional levels just because they enter different hospitals after their graduation. Standardized training will provide professional skills equally, which is conducive to balancing medical treatment in different regions, said Wang.—Xinhua

Zheng Jie fails to reach the fourth round at Australian Open

MELBOURNE, 17 Jan — China's Zheng Jie failed to make into the fourth round at the Australian Open after she losing to Aussie wildcard Casey Dellacqua in straight sets her on Friday.

Dellacqua raced through the first set in 33 minutes and broke Zheng's serve again in the opening game of the second set. Zheng, a former Australian Open and Wimbledon Open semifinalist, got back on level terms.

But the Chinese took a five-minute medical timeout to be treated for heat stress after the seventh game.

Though she dropped her serve immediately after the resumption, 28-year-old Dellacqua broke straight back and then served the match out.

"I think she adapted better to the hot weather," said Zheng. "And I played my worst match of the tournament today." Xinhua

UN urges international efforts to tackle successive crisis in Mali

UNITED NATIONS, 17 Jan — The top UN official in Mali on Thursday called for active international efforts to tackle the successive crisis in the West African country and build a durable basis for peace and reconciliation.

Bert Koenders, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, made the call while briefing the Security Council on the work of the UN Mission in Mali (MINUSMA).

Noting the country was able to move forward despite challenges, he said "free and transparent" presidential and legislative elections, which took place over the summer, prompted a "full return to constitutionality" in the country.

Koenders said President Ibrahim Boubacar Keita sorted out such priorities as national reconciliation, the fight against impunity and corruption, reform of the security sector and the reinforcement of institutional capacity and development, including the northern regions, to stabilize and economically revitalize the country.

The special envoy urged the government to quickly implement the goals, with support from the international community, which stands ready to assist.

As the head of the MI-

NUSMA, Koenders said the mission will continue to carry out human rights protection activities, including combating sexual violence.

Mali held a successful presidential vote in August to end a crisis unleashed by a military coup in March 2012.

Al-Qaeda's branch in North Africa AQIM and other rebels had swept through northern Mali after the coup before being routed by French and African troops in January 2013.

The West African country has restored control of its northern part, but is grappling with a situation where rebels are capable of sporadic attacks.

Serena into fourth round after easy win over Hantuchova

MELBOURNE, 17 Jan — Serena Williams powered past Daniela Hantuchova 6-3 6-3 at the Australian Open on Friday to advance to the fourth round.

The world number one had lost their only other encounter at Melbourne Park, in the third round in 2006 when the Slovakian beat her in straight sets, but she made no mistake this time around.

Williams looked as if she was conserving energy and doing just enough to get through the match as the temperature touched 38 Celsius (100 Fahrenheit), and relied on her booming serve and blistering forehand to get her out of trouble on crucial points against the 31st seed.—Reuters
