New chapter in history of Philippines and Myanmar opened

RODRIGO Duterte, the President of the Republic of the Philippines, spoke yesterday of the enduring bond between his country and Myanmar, which has had a six-decade diplomatic relationship, longer than the existence of the ASEAN organisation, of which both countries are members.

At an official state dinner last night, Mr Duterte and President U Htin Kyaw both gave speeches that highlighted the significant history shared by the two nations.

"My visit happens at an auspicious time for the Philippines and Myanmar," Mr. Duterte said last night at a state banquet in Nay Pyi Taw held in his honour. "Last year, we marked the 60th anniversary of the establishment of Philippines-Myanmar bilateral relations. This year, we turn the page for a new chapter of ties that should rightly be stronger and deeper. Six decades of formal diplomatic relations have seen the growth of an abiding and flourishing friendship. With our common historic experiences and shared dreams of peace, progress and prosperity for our peoples, we have a unique bond that we must continue to nurture and strengthen. We have sought and seen remarkable progress and active cooperation in the areas of agriculture, labor, and trade and investment. And we aim for more."

Earlier in the day, a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) was signed between the countries on food security and agricultural cooperation.

Maungtaw Investigation Commission inspects Rakhine housing sites

MEMBERS of the Maungtaw Investigation Commission, who have already visited north Rakhine several times, arrived at Zinpaingnyar village's post-primary school yesterday morning and met with residents from Zinpaingnyar and Wapeik villages who returned home after being displaced by armed conflicts.

In the meeting, there were discussions on numerous matters, such as the need to know the language so it is easy to communicate with the people concerning health, social welfare and the economy and so that they can cooperate with respective administrative bodies at different levels after assessing experiences encountered in the region.

It was also said that the arrested are required to have the protection of the law in compliance with rules and regulations, and to be eligible for punishment according to the findings from trials.

Only if there are accurate statistics and data for providing subsidies will the respective departments and organisations be able to help to solve difficulties, so it is necessary to report the correct situations and needs to ward and village-tract administrators.

And, if actions for asking for help were made in accord with the facts described in the notice-boards, necessary help will be provided. Afterward, designating days and dates for the family members to meet those arrested over the October incidents and arrangements for transportation and getting permission to meet the arrested were clarified, following questions raised by the villagers.

Commission members then arrived at Wapeik village, inspecting the construction sites for housing estates to resettle families whose dwelling places were lost in the October incidents, which was being implemented under the instruction of the Rakhine State Cabinet.

The construction was being managed by the Maungtaw district and township management committee. U Myint Khaing, chairman of Maungtaw township management committee explained in detail.

In the village of Wapeik, each family will be helped in getting a plot.

It is learnt that the housing estate will be built with a street crossing in the middle of the village, path going around the village and an entrance way linking with Maungtaw-Kyeinchaung.

The religious edifice existing in the village will remain intact and the use of the building will be granted as previously allowed.

Afterward, commission members inspected the trials for the 42 suspected of involvement in the armed attacks at the court of justice (Maungtaw District Court) in Buthidaung. —Aye Mya (Mandalay), Aye Min Thu

In turn President U Htin Kyaw said the rich history the countries have shared has been a mutually beneficial relationship.

“Myanmar has always attached great importance to her relations with the Philippines,” President U Htin Kyaw said last night. “Last year, our two countries celebrated the 60th Anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic ties. We are happy to witness a steady growth in friendship and mutually beneficial co-operation between Myanmar and the Philippines. The bonds of friendship between our two countries have been strengthened as we are working hand in hand in building a better and stronger ASEAN Community. As a fellow member of ASEAN, Myanmar will support and fully cooperate with the Philippines’ efforts towards a successful stewardship of ASEAN this year.”

ASEAN, an organization of 10 Southeast Asian countries, elects one country to be the host of the organization. The Philippines was selected this year.

President Duterte noted that Myanmar has helped his country in times of need, and expressed a desire to return the kindnesses.

“I thank you and the people of Myanmar for the timely assistance, particularly for those affected by typhoon Pablo, which hit my island of Mindanao, the earthquake in Bohol, and Typhoon Haiyan,” Mr. Duterte said. “Indeed, it is in times of need that you know that the Philippines is ready to support Myanmar in its own humanitarian challenge.

President Duterte was referring in part to Myanmar’s ongoing challenges in Rakhine State.

Earlier in the day during a meeting with State Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu Kyi, Mr. Duterte donated US$300,000 to the State Counsellor, who is chairperson of the Central Committee for the Implementation of Peace and Development in Rakhine State, to be used for humanitarian assistance for Rakhine State.

The two countries share more than just geographical affinity, and it is to their mutual benefit to continue and deepen their close relationship, Mr Duterte said.

“My visit demonstrates the commitment of my country to expand cooperation with Myanmar on a broad range of issues.

As developing countries, we face many similar and complex problems. We must not be afraid to confront them head on.

We should use our friendship as a solid base, a fulcrum of collaboration that transforms challenges into opportunities.

In defense and security, we must work closer to address the threats of terrorism and violent extremism that can undermine the economic progress we have so far achieved. We should be unrelenting in our fight to dismantle the apparatus of the illicit drug trade. This menace is a challenge that knows no borders and affects us all in the region,” Mr. Duterte said.

President U Htin Kyaw echoed Mr. Duterte’s thoughts.

“I would like to reassure Your Excellency of Myanmar’s readiness to work closely with the Philippines both in bilateral and other regional and international contexts to enhance our bilateral cooperation and promote peace, stability and prosperity in the region and the world as large. Once again, I would like to express my deep appreciation and sincere thanks to Your Excellency Mr Rodrigo Roa Duterte for this opportunity to share our hopes and joys,” President U Htin Kyaw said.

Rice exports through normal trade rose in March

THE rice export through normal trade has risen this month, according to the Myanmar Rice Federation (MRF).

Myanmar received more demand from the African market this year, offsetting the drastic decline in rice exports to China via the Muse border resulting from the continuing armed conflicts in northern Shan State, said U Ye Min Aung, the general secretary of the MRF.

About 200,000 tonnes of rice was shipped to Africa through sea routes in March, a higher volume from that of last year, he added.

Low-quality rice exported to European Union countries fetched US$315 per tonne in 2015. This year, low-quality rice fetched only from US$280 to $300 per tonne, whereas price of high-quality rice was about US$375 per tonne.

Although rice export prices this year were not as high as that of last year, the dollar price in the local currency exchange market was on the rise, allowing the merchants financially to do well, said U Aung Myint, the secretary of Myanmar Rice Merchants Association.

Myanmar exported rice of 1.4 million tonnes in 2012-2013 FY, 1.2 million tonnes in 2013-2014 FY, 1.8 million tonnes in 2014-2015 FY and 1.4 million tonnes in 2015-2016 FY, according to statistics from the Commerce Ministry.—Phyo Lwin Aung (AMIA)

Entrepreneurs from Japan and China to open machinery sales centres

ENTREPRENEURS from Japan and China will reportedly open machinery sales centres in the country in the middle of this year as the Commerce Ministry granted permit for anyone with a bank account of at least Ks750million at the Central Bank of Myanmar to open a sales centre.

Japan and China, the main producers of industrial machinery and equipment, are exploring the Myanmar market. Four businessmen from Japan and China are reported to have opened sales centres in Yangon and Mandalay. The centres are wholly foreign owned, sources said.

Currently, the machinery sales centres are permitted for those who directly open the sales centre, distribute the machines as an official representative and import them as the sales representative.

Foreign investors will open centres hoping to take advantage of the promising market in industrial machinery. They will extend their businesses depending on the market shares, said Ko Aung Win, a manager of a machinery sales centre.

Foreign investors will import and sell new and used equipment such as bulldozers and cranes. In addition, four local companies are also preparing to open sales centres.—200

The ministry upgraded Myitkyina-Sumprabum-Putao road into an all-weather facility to cut travelling time to about 10 hours. Previously, it took 24 hours in the open season and about seven days during the rainy season to travel between the two destinations.

Machanbaw Bridge

The muddy part of the road was reinforced to become usable during the rainy season. The 102-mile section was paved with tar or concrete. Soon, the 840-

The completion of the five-year Thanbyuzayat-Phayathonzu road will cut the travelling time between Yangon and Bangkok to just 12 hours. Concrete laying of the Hpa-an-Nonglon-Eindu road is under BOT system. The No 2 Thai-Myanmar Friendship Bridge at Myawady will be opened soon. It is an important link of the east-west corridor that will eventually connect India and China via Myanmar.

JICA and World Bank loan

Kalay-Falam-Haka road, Haka-Gangaw road and Thaingwin-Tiddim road in Chin State are being upgraded under JICA loan and Kalay-Falam-Haka road in Chin State under World Bank loan. After the opening of Natzan and Baynu bridges the road can be used in all seasons.

Yangon-Mawlamyine-Dawei-Myeik in Mon State and Taninthayi Region and Thanbyuzayat-Phayathonzu are also under upgrading project. Moreover, Thanlwin Bridge (Chaungzon) linking Mawlamyine and Belugyun will be opened soon. The bridge will ensure safe and sound trip to the island and link it with the mainland.

Because of the curves at Myetkwe hill range, it took one hour and 20 minutes to travel on the 16-mile Buthidaung-Maungtaung road in Rakhine State. As the said part of the road has been strengthened and extended the travel time can be cut to just 40 minutes.

New axis

Maungtaung-Angumaw section of Kanyindan-Alethankyaw-Angumaw road has been upgraded into an all-weather road. It took only two and half hours to drive on the road, down from there and half hours in the past. A new axis for Sittway-Ponnagyun-Pauktaw-Minbya road has been searched for shortening the travel time.

Panzin Creek Bridge on Buthidaung-Yathedaung Road will be put into service soon. Its completion will shorten the travel time to Buthidaung by car. The use of z-crafts to cross the creek is a life-threatening adventure. The bridge will be much useful for the students crossing the facility twice every school day.

bridge was completed as a substitution to Tarsai bridge in Namhsan Township, Shan State (South) that is losing its durability. A new Gokhtaik Viaduct in Nawngkhio Township in Shan State (North) will be erected on Mandalay-Muse road which is notorious for its many inclines and curves. The construction of the new viaduct on the section linking Nawngkhio and Kyaukme townships will start soon.

A number of roads in Sagaing Region have already been concreted to become all-weather facilities. Soon Chindwin Bridge will be opened and the facility will ensure safe crossing on the river and cut travel time. Moreover, the bridge will help enhance border trade with India and develop Sagaing Region and Chin State.

Chindwin Bridge (Htamanthi-Pinma)

Completion of the Chindwin Bridge (Hkamti) and Chindwin Bridge (Homalin) will facilitate transport to Naga Self-administered zone and will help the remote area enjoy social, health, education and economic improvement. Additionally, one more bridge on the river — Chindwin Bridge (Htamanthi-Pinma) — will also be built.

In Taninthayi Region, Dawei-Myeik and Meik-Tonkha sessions of Yangon-Kawthoung road were cemented. Moreover Dawei town circular road has been also cemented. Of the 26 bridges under construction in the region, 24 will be completed this year.

feet Machanbaw Birdge will be opened. After the opening of the bridge heavy trucks can travel on the road in all seasons.

As the Belu Creek Bridge on Toungoo-Leiktho-Loikaw-Hopone road is losing its durability the new one with the durability of withstanding up to 60-ton trucks has been built. The 270-feet long concrete facility will be put into service in the very near future.

ADB loan

Eindu-Kawkaik section of Myawady-Kawkaik,-Hpa-an-Kyaikhto-Yangon road or the east-west corridor of Kayin State is being upgraded under ADB loan. A new Thaketa Bridge in Yangon is being constructed with advanced methods under JICA assistance. Sixty per cent of the project has been completed at present. The completion of Kokkkowa Bridge will cut travel time between Bago and Ayeyawady regions as the road avoids passing through the crowded Yangon. Plans are under way to build Dala Bridge and No 3 Bago River Bridge under foreign loan. Dala Bridge will help extend the Yangon urban area and develop the extended parts.

The two-lane Yangon-Pathein road will be extended to a four-lane facility with the help of ADB loan. Most of the parts of the road pass through Ayeyawady Region. Ngathaingchaung-Gwa Road project will be implemented with World Bank loan.

Yangon-Mandalay Expressway is being extended to upgrade the facility and to ensure road safety. Moreover, raised median will be turn into depressed median. ICT for Development

Kyaw Myaing

MARCH is the last month of the financial year and very soon we will be starting a new year. It is thus an opportune time to look back how much the new NLD-led government has accomplished during its one year in office.

Taking the reins of government after years of rule by military rule was not going to be an easy task. When it took power in April 2016, the new government was faced with many challenges and opportunities. However on the plus side, the new government led by NLD had an overwhelming majority in the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw. If we look at the opportunities, the new government has the tremendous support of the people.

Let us look at the challenges. After years of military rule the country was beset with many problems and one of the biggest challenges was to boost the morale of the people and to instill confidence and hope.

The most critical and sensitive problem that loomed overhead like a dark cloud was the problem of the long-standing armed conflicts that had continued since the country gained Independence in 1948. In order to solve this problem, State Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu Kyi reformed the NPC - National Peace Centre and renamed it the National Reconciliation and Peace Centre with a special emphasis on the word "reconciliation".

Then how does ICT fit into this scenario. ICT means Information and Communication Technologies. In UN circles, especially at the UNDP - United Nations Development Programme headquarters, ICT for Development is a phrase widely used by development professionals. It means how to use information and communication technologies for development purposes.

Leaving aside the natural resources that Myanmar is endowed with, it is the opinion of the writer that ICT as a tool can be used to uplift the morale of the people and to prepare them for the long and arduous journey towards our goal of a modern, developed Democratic Federal Union. The people are the country's most valuable asset and for democracy to be sustainable we need an educated citizenry. Beginning with the administration of President U Thein Sein in 2011, Myanmar has seen many reforms in the political, economic and social spheres. However, much remains to be done and nation building is a never ending task. For all citizens of Myanmar who understand the immensity of the problems in almost every sector of the economy, opportunities also come with challenges.

In my opinion, one of the biggest opportunities that we have is the fact that Internet access is getting much better and communication networks are expanding day by day. Furthermore, smart phones and SIM cards have become more affordable for ordinary citizens. This in itself presents us with a tremendous opportunity to mobilize and guide our people towards our national goals, the biggest of which is to achieve internal peace.

One of the simplest ways to use ICT for Development is to encourage the establishment of Knowledge Centers all over the country. To set up such a center, the most important ingredient is the "team". What we need is a group of highly motivated young people who are willing to volunteer their time to set up a KC or Knowledge Center. They would of course need encouragement and support from NGO's and community leaders.

It is true that the current government and many NGOs and private sector companies have been working hard to set up libraries in urban and rural areas. However, we need to take these efforts a step further and onto the next stage.

Now that all government ministries have their official websites and more and more Myanmar citizens are able to use smart phones, we may say that Myanmar is now poised to move onto the next stage of development. Therefore, let us use our smart phones wisely to disseminate knowledge, promote feelings of brotherhood and peace, discuss ways and means of protecting our youths from the dangers that lurk on the Internet and make sure that we use social media networks like Facebook for entertainment, learning and knowledge sharing instead of being misled by ruthless people who use FB to spread their messages of hate and intolerance. In short, let us act smart, and be smart now that we have these smart phones in our hands. Use these ICT tools for development wisely.

Let us conserve the corals

Kyaw Soe (Kawthaung)

KAWTHAUNG of Tanintharyi Region has a beautiful long coast studded with isolated islands with their own white sand beaches and also richly endowed with various trees and plantations, mangrove swamps, wide varieties of fauna and flora and different species of birds. The most striking off shore feature of the region is coral reef that attracts all the local visitors and tourists as well.

With the development of tourism in Myanmar, the number of both local visitor and the foreign tourist to Kawthaung are rapidly increasing as the area is widely famous for its pristine beautiful natural endowments, especially coral reef and variegated sea weeds. Tourists make a remark that the pristine and unspoilt natural features of Kawthaung coastal area is more attracting than Phuket of Thailand.

Kawthaung having the pristine corals has become the main attraction spot in Myanmar Tourism Industry.

Coral reefs are constructed by small living marine creatures called corals of coelentrata class that usually flourished in tropical marine region. The moving living corals once attached to a rock become sedentary for life and build their house secreting calcium and form the coral reef. Some corals are living solitary life while some are in colony. Reproduction in the colony makes growth of the colony having hard calcareous (calcium carbonate) structures and eventually forming the great reef being composed of the calcareous remains of assorted species of coral creatures with different forms, shapes and colours.

The coral reefs also play an important role in ecology of marine habitat. Coral reefs are breeding and growing places of some types of fish. According to the researches, there are 42 fish species, 42 species of crabs, 50 species of hard-shelled snails, 41 species of clams, 35 species of sea leech, 73 species of sea weeds, 11 species of algae and 333 planktons.

Most of the tourists and local visitors visit Kawthaung and its off-shore islands with ardent passion to see and record the corals and marine life of the sea by snorkeling.

Some fishermen and greedy businessmen lacking awareness on environmental conservation do the grasping and stupid works such as catching fish with dragging net in the shallow part of the sea, fish catching by blasting, anchoring the fishing boats in the reef area and careless disposal of waste and garbages. Such hazardous and selfish activities are the major challenge to the conservation of corals and the rare species of marine fauna.

Competitions in all sectors are now highly keen in the world of globalization and the tourism industry is not an exception. So beautiful attractions especially corals along the unspoilt coastal region become the lifeblood of Myanmar hospitality industry which is the source of national income without any limit. The awareness campaigns were done by some tour companies, nevertheless not so effective as the campaign did not have the wide coverage of the region. The tourists, marine workers and people living in coastal villages should expansively be include in the activities of awareness campaign.

Kawthaung having the pristine corals has become the main attraction spot in Myanmar Tourism Industry.

Tourists make a remark that the pristine and unspoilt natural features of Kawthaung coastal area is more attracting than Phuket of Thailand.

More domestic visitors going to Viet Nam this Thingyan

FOR those domestic travellers who wish to celebrate Thingyan in another country, Viet Nam seems to be the most popular destination, according to outbound tour operators.

The country has seen significant growth of outbound tourism, tour operators said.

The number of local travellers who chose Vietnam, a Southeast Asian country on the South China Sea, for an overseas trip has gradually increased, followed by Singapore, an island city-state off of southern Malaysia. In previous years, neighbouring Thailand topped the list of popular outbound trips.

relatively inexpensive at about US$500 compared to other outbound trips. The cost starts approximately $550 per head. Based on destinations, accommodations and travel period, prices of package tours are different, an official from Nice Style Travel and Tour Company. For those wishing to visit Singapore, a trip will cost between $850 to $1,100 per person.

I now have no problem with anxiety: Zayn Malik

NEW YORK — Singer Zayn Malik says he now has no problem with anxiety and was mainly dealing with it when he was in One Direction.

Although the 24-year-old singer had to cancel some solo performances due to his anxiety last year, he now insists that it was only an issue when he was in One Direction and he has it under control, reported New York Daily News.

"I now have no problem with anxiety. It was something I was dealing with in the band," Malik says in an interview to Sunday Times Style magazine.

And he believes opening up about his issues with food helped.

"People saw strength in that, and they didn't seem to expect it from a guy, but they expect it from a female, which to me is crazy. We're all human. People are often afraid to admit difficulties, but I don't believe that there should be a struggle with anything that's the truth.—PTI

Kim Kardashian opens up about Paris robbery on reality show

LOS ANGELES — In the latest episode of "Keeping Up With the Kardashians", Kim Kardashian West tearfully chronicled the events of her Paris robbery as her sisters Khloe and Kourtney sat by her side and listened.

The reality star suffered the most horrific ordeal of her life when a group of armed burglars forced their way into the apartment she was staying at in France five months ago, tied her up and brandished a gun at her while demanding money and making off with USD 10 million worth of jewellery.

For some weeks after the incident, Kim took a break from social media and the spotlight in general to re-evaluate her life and security, according to The Hollywood Reporter.

While recalling the incident, Kim says in the clip, "They asked for money. I said, I don't have any money. They dragged me out to the hallway on top of the stairs. That's when I saw the gun, like clear as day.

"I was kind of looking at the gun, looking down back at the stairs and I was like, I have a split second in my mind to make this quick decision."

According to Kim, she contemplated escape but realised that there was ultimately nothing she could do to get away from the situation.

"Am I gonna run down the stairs and, like, either be shot in the back... It makes me so upset to think about it but, like, either they're gonna shoot me in the back or if I make it and they don't, if the elevator does not open in time or the stairs are locked, then like... There's no way out."—PTI

'Beauty and the Beast' smashes records with towering $170 million debut

LOS ANGELES — This is what makes Disney such a powerhouse.

"Beauty and the Beast," the studio's latest live action update of a cartoon classic, waltzed its way to a towering $170 million debut this weekend, setting a new record for a March opening and solidifying the Mouse House's status as the dominant player in the film business. No other company can match the streak that Disney is currently enjoying, thanks to a series of multi-billion acquisitions that put the likes of Pixar, Marvel, and LucasFilm in its Magic Kingdom.

"Beauty and the Beast" represents another part of Disney's branded strategy. It's the latest fairy tale adaptation to hit screens. Others in the lucrative group include "Alice in Wonderland," which picked up $1 billion worldwide, "Cinderella" with its $543.5 million global haul, and last year's "The Jungle Book," which racked up a mighty $966.6 million after finishing its run. Remakes of "Dumbo" and "Mulan" are already in the works, as Disney commits to putting a live action spin on the bulk of its animated properties (Fans of "Treasure Planet" may be out of luck).

The latest fairy tale follows Belle, a bookish girl in France played by Harry Potter film veteran Emma Watson, who helps a tortured Beast (Dan Stevens of "Downton Abbey" fame) break out of his shell. In the process she lifts a curse that's left the Beast's kingdom populated by talking household items. "Beauty and the Beast" didn't muck about with the elements that made the 1991 film so beloved. Director Bill Condon kept the basic plot intact, while fleshing out a bit more of Belle's backstory, and retaining a soundtrack that includes "Be Our Guest" and "Belle." All those elaborate musical numbers and chatty cutlery don't come cheap. "Beauty and the Beast" carries a hefty $160 million budget. It should make that money back manyfold after ticket sales are tallied and new lines of princess wear are whipped up to satisfy new generations of Belle lovers.

Most major studios steered clear of "Beauty and the Beast." The only other new release of note, "The Belko Experiment," debuted to $4.1 million, which its backers say is success given its model. The film boasts a unique distribution strategy. "The Belko Experiment" opened in 1,341 locations, roughly a third of the theater count for a major studio offerings. The theaters are chosen because they are more popular with horror fans. Orion, an MGM label, backed the film and is distributing it with BH Tilt. That label is overseen by "The Purge" and "Insidious" producer Blumhouse. It's trying to find more cost-efficient ways to bring smaller films to the masses. "The Belko Experiment" follows a group of American corporate types, who are locked in a high-rise office in Bogota, Colombia.

They are ordered by a voice on the intercom to kill one another in a gray flannel-version of Social Darwinism.

With "Beauty and the Beast" dominating ticket sales, last weekend's champ, "Kong: Skull Island," fell 53% to $28.8 million. That pushes the monster movie's domestic haul to $110.1 million. Warner Bros. and Legendary Entertainment teamed up to produce the remake of King Kong.

Fox's "Logan" took third place, pulling in $17.5 million and bringing the R-rated superhero tale's stateside total to $184 million. Universal and Blumhouse's "Get Out," a thriller about a black man whose girlfriend's white family holds a sinister secret, nabbed fourth position. It made $13.2 million, bringing its gross to $133.1 million. With a budget of $4.5 million, the film is one of the year's most profitable. Lionsgate's "The Shack" rounded out the top five generating $6.1 million and pushing the faith-based drama's earnings to over $42.6 million.

In limited release, "T2 Train-spotting," a sequel to the 1996 cult comedy about a group of heroin addicts, opened in five locations, earning $180,000. Ewan McGregor reprises his role as a drug-addict Scot. The actor also has a supporting turn playing Lumiere, a candlestick, in "Beauty and the Beast." Sony is releasing "T2," which is heavily geared towards European audiences. The drama has already made $34 million overseas.—Reuters

Prague’s Old-New Synagogue gets first new Torahs since World War Two

PRAGUE — Prague’s medieval Old-New Synagogue received two new Torah scrolls on Sunday, the first ones since World War Two shattered the country’s once-thriving Jewish community.

The Torahs, funded by donations to the Prague Jewish community, were written in Israel and brought into the synagogue in a ceremony that included scripting of the final letters by guests and members of the community, and a street dance.

“After years when Torahs were being destroyed, burnt ... the community today celebrates with its rabbi a new Torah scroll after many, many years. That is the best expression of the development of the Prague Jewish community,” said deputy head of the Jewish Community of Prague, Frantisek Banyai.

The Old-New Synagogue is over 700 years old, one of the oldest existing synagogues in Europe. Apart from its significance to the community, it is the main attraction of Prague’s Jewish Town, a popular destination for visitors.

Before World War Two, there were about 125,000 Jews living in what is now the Czech Republic. About 80,000 were killed during the war.

The Czech Federation of Jewish Communities estimates 15-20,000 Jews live in the Czech Republic now, although only about a quarter is registered with Jewish communities or other Jewish groups. —Reuters

Norway unseats Denmark as world’s happiest country — report

NEW YORK — Norway displaced Denmark as the world’s happiest country in a new report released on Monday that called on nations to build social trust and equality to improve the wellbeing of their citizens.

The Nordic nations are the most content, according to the World Happiness Report 2017 produced by the Sustainable Development Solutions Network (SDSN), a global initiative launched by the United Nations in 2012.

Countries in sub-Saharan Africa, along with Syria and Yemen, are the least happy of the 155 countries ranked in the fifth annual report released at the United Nations.

“Happy countries are the ones that have a healthy balance of prosperity, as conventionally measured, and social capital, meaning a high degree of trust in a society, low inequality and confidence in government,” Jeffrey Sachs, the director of the SDSN and a special advisor to the United Nations Secretary-General, said in an interview.

The aim of the report, he added, is to provide another tool for governments, business and civil society to help their countries find a better way to wellbeing.

Denmark, Iceland, Switzerland, Finland, Netherlands, Canada, New Zealand, Australia and Sweden rounded out the top ten countries.

South Sudan, Liberia, Guinea, Togo, Rwanda, Tanzania, Burundi and the Central African Republic were at the bottom.

Germany was ranked 16, followed by the United Kingdom (19) and France (31). The United States dropped one spot to 14.

Sachs said the United States is falling in the ranking due to inequality, distrust and corruption. Economic measures that the administration of President Donald Trump is trying to pursue, he added, will make things worse.

“They are all aimed at increasing inequality — tax cuts at the top, throwing people off the healthcare rolls, cutting Meals on Wheels in order to raise military spending. I think everything that has been proposed goes in the wrong direction,” he explained.

The rankings are based on six factors — per capita gross domestic product, healthy life expectancy, freedom, generosity, social support and absence of corruption in government or business.

“The lowest countries are typically marked by low values in all six variables,” said the report, produced with the support of the Ernesto Illy Foundation.

Sachs would like nations to follow United Arab Emirates and other countries that have appointed Ministers of Happiness.

“I want governments to measure this, discuss it, analyze it and understand when they have been off on the wrong direction,” he said. —Reuters

Vietnamese capital to pilot automated street parking

HANOI — An automated car parking technology will be piloted on two streets in Viet Nam’s capital Hanoi in the second quarter of 2017.

Specifically, the new technology for car parking management will be implemented on downtown Ly Thuong Kiet and Tran Hung Dao streets, reported Viet Nam’s state-run news agency VNA on Monday.

Under the project, surveillance cameras will be installed at the parking lots, recording the number of vehicles, their parking duration and the number of parking slots available. The information will be relayed to a data processing centre.

A sensor device will be attached to the camera poles to read electronic parking cards and record vehicles’ information, such as license number, vehicle type, time-in and time-out.

Parking fees will be calculated based on parking duration, which vehicle parkers can pay in cash or via bank transfer.

The project is part of efforts to improve urban order by monitoring the number of vehicles using parking lots and preventing the lack of transparency in collecting parking fees, said Nguyen Duc Chung, chairman of Hanoi People’s Committee.

There are currently some 1,100 parking lots in the city, and 200 of these operate on the roads with people watching the vehicles and collecting fees. —Xinhua

Mourinho would prefer Europa League glory to top-four finish

LONDON — Manchester United manager Jose Mourinho said he would rather win the Europa League this season than finish in the top four of the Premier League, even if his side will be fighting their hardest to do both.

United, who won the League Cup last month, moved up to fifth in the league, four points behind fourth-placed Liverpool, with a 3-1 league win at Middlesbrough on Sunday. They face Anderlecht next month in the Europa League quarter-finals.

"If I can choose, I will choose the Europa League rather than to finish fourth because it gives us the same — Champions League football," the 54-year-old told the club website.

"It is a trophy, it is prestige, it is Europe and it means playing a European Super Cup fixture next year."

The Portuguese manager acknowledged the importance of a top-four finish but said the club's rivals had a distinct advantage in not having to campaign on both European and domestic fronts heading into the final stretch of the season.

"I know Chelsea, Tottenham, Liverpool, Arsenal, Manchester City do not play in Europe, they only have one match per week," he added.

"But we are going to fight like we did (against Middlesbrough)." —Reuters

'I will soon get over my disappointment' — Liverpool's Klopp

LONDON — Liverpool manager Juergen Klopp said that the "little disappointment" he felt after losing a lead in Sunday's 1-1 Premier League draw at Manchester City will have given way to satisfaction with a point by Monday.

In a game of many chances and a number of controversies over penalty decisions, either side could easily have won, as Klopp agreed.

"Maybe it's OK, but I'm not happy in this moment," he told Sky Sports.

"Give me a few hours and then I'm happy. To get a point at Manchester City for (any) team in the world is absolutely OK."

"There were a few situations where we couldn't defend their quality. We could have won this game, because we forced the goalkeeper into a few outstanding saves."

"We had three or four open goals in the six yard box. They had their moments too."

The result left Liverpool in fourth place, 13 points behind leaders Chelsea and a point adrift of third-placed City.

Klopp agreed with the general view that it was a fine match in difficult wet conditions.

"A lot of good football from two highly motivated sides, both wanted to win until the last seconds," he added. —Reuters

City hit back to earn a draw with Liverpool

LONDON — Manchester City had to come from behind to hold Liverpool 1-1 as both teams lost ground in the Premier League following victories for Chelsea and Tottenham Hotspur.

City, in third place, stayed a point ahead of the Merseysiders with a game in hand thanks to Sergio Aguero's equalising goal.

Knocked out of the Champions League by Monaco in midweek, City fell behind when full back Gael Clichy conceded a penalty six minutes after half-time and James Milner scored from the spot against his old club.

Liverpool, who had come into the game more after a slow start, were pegged back 18 minutes later when Aguero scored from Kevin de Bruyne's fine low cross.

In a game that had been expected to produce plenty of goals, City made the better chances early on, with Simon Mignolet having to push De Bruyne's low cross-shot round a post and then stopping Leroy Sane's effort with his feet, David Silva blasting the rebound carelessly over the bar.

Liverpool's most optimistic moment in the first half an hour was when Sadio Mane felt he was tripped by Nicolas Otamendi in the penalty area.

It was one of number of strong penalty appeals by both sides, City claimed one next as Milner appeared to catch Raheem Sterling.

Towards halftime Liverpool came into the game more, Willy Caballero saving from Adam Lallana and Roberto Firmino.

They continued to make the better chances after the interval and were rewarded on the hour.

Clichy bundled into Firmino from behind and the reliable Milner calmly converted his seventh successful penalty of the season.

Shortly afterwards Firmino should have doubled the lead when sent clear by Philippe Coutinho's pass but Caballero raced out to save.

City improved as they sought an equaliser which came as Aguero beat Ragnar Klavan to De Bruyne's perfect cross.

De Bruyne, who had been moved to the right flank in a tactical switch by Pep Guardiola, then hit a post and Aguero missed a good chance, but so did Lallana for the visitors.

"It was an intense game and both sides went for it," Milner told Sky Sports.

"We are disappointed that when we have been up we have not got three points, but a draw was fair in the end."

"It is not the easiest of days coming here, so we can't be too disappointed with a point." —Reuters
