Pyithu Hluttaw discusses Myanmar Police Force, passport services

THE seventh session of the second Pyithu Hluttaw held its 18th-day meeting yesterday morning, where five questions related to the Ministry of Home Affairs were answered by Deputy Minister for Home Affairs Maj-Gen Aung Soe and a report on a bill was submitted.

Replying to a question posed by U Bo Gyi of Chauk constituency on the plan to manage the Myanmar Police Force in the matter related to the issuing of court summons and to research (review) the summons method, Maj-Gen Aung Soe said the Myanmar Police Force was cooperating with relevant departments to issue summons to witnesses, so that they show up to court in time, while the Myanmar Police Force was being managed in a manner to ensure witnesses do not fail to appear in court.

plication. Maj-Gen Aung Soe said that from July 2012, a branch of the passport office was opened in Mandalay, while earlier, the Yangon office was the only place where passport services were available.

For the benefit of passport applicants, some 15 more branch offices were opened in Nay Pyi Taw and major towns in the states/regions from January 2014.

The requirements for education clearance, income tax

Form 19 and recommendation from organisations were also removed, while the requirement for monks and nuns to provide a recommendation letter from the ministry of Religious Affairs and Culture was relaxed, and only a recommendation letter from the township Sangha Nayaka committee was needed.

As the biometric system is being used, individuals need some time to apply for a passport. To reduce the waiting time, the immigration department had increased its counters from seven to 12, and combined groups, including the Myanmar Police Force, are making sure there are no cases of applicants being cheated of money, replied the deputy minister.

In response to a question put forth by Daw San San Ei of Mohnyin constituency on extending and opening more methadone clinics and rehabilitation centres in Mohnyin Township, Maj-Gen Aung Soe said the Ministry of Health and Sports had opened 15 methadone clinics in Kachin State and Mohnyin District. The Mohnyin People's Hospital and Hopin People's Hospital each have a methadone clinic. The authorities are coordinating to open methadone clinics in Nuntmun and Namma station hospitals for patients taking methadone medication from Mohnyin People's Hospital and Hopin People's Hospital. Arrangements are underway to set up community-based rehabilitation centres in Myitkyina Town and Tanai Town, replied the deputy minister.

The rehabilitation centres in Myitkyina Town will provide community-based rehabilitation training, and thus, there is no plan to open rehabilitation centres in Mohnyin Township yet, added the deputy minister.

A question by U Thein Tun of Kyaunggon constituency on constructing the Myanmar Police Force head of township office, police stations and police posts in Kyaunggon Township and a question by Dr. U Myint Thein of Nyaunglebin constituency on the plan to open a sub fire station in Nyaunglebin Township were also answered by Maj-Gen Aung Soe.

The Hluttaw was then informed of the receipt of the science, technology and innovation bill, confirmed with an amendment and sent by the Amyotha Hluttaw, while the bill committee report was read and explained by committee member U Nay Myo Tun.—Kyaw Thu Htet ■

Amyotha Hluttaw

Amyotha Hluttaw discusses construction works

THE seventh session of the second Amyotha Hluttaw held its 18th-day meeting yesterday morning at the Amyotha Hluttaw meeting hall in Nay Pyi Taw.

Three asterisk-marked questions were asked and answered by Ministry of Border Affairs Deputy Minister Maj-Gen Than Htut.

Replying to a question posed by U Whey Tin of Chin constituency (11) on the plan to construct a 320foot-long suspension bridge across Palet creek, between Twikinwa Village and Baungku Village in the 2018-2019 fiscal year (FY), the deputy minister said although the ministry was carrying out border area development works using Ks4.364.114 million in the 2017-2018 FY, which included Chin State and other border areas, the plan for the suspension bridge was not included for the 2018-2019 FY. However, it will be included in the projects earmarked for the 2019-2020 FY period and will be undertaken depending on the availability of funds, explained the deputy minister.

In response to a question by U Lal Min Htan of Chin State

constituency (10) regarding the upgrade of a motorcycle road in Chin State, Matupi Township, into an 18foot-wide motor road, the deputy minister said the widening of the 11mile section of the road was being conducted by tender-winning company Gracy Hnin Company in the 2017-2018 FY period, with the Chin State government funding Ks94.05 million. Currently, 60 per cent of the work has been completed, replied the deputy minister.

The deputy minister then replied to a question posed by Daw Khin Swe Lwin of Chin State constituency (9) on the development works conducted by the Ministry of Border Affairs in the 2016-2017 FY in Chin State Kanpetlet Township. The deputy minister said some Ks473.836 million was used by the ministry in the 2016-2017 FY period to build the 300foot-long Bailey bridge, which is capable of withstanding load of more than 13 tonnes, between Kyindwe Village and Hoteponkyin Village in Kanpetlet Township. Besides this, a 400foot-long and 12foot-wide road was built for the border area ethnic national youth development school, new electrical wirings were installed in the school buildings and a 500foot-long and 12foot-wide asphalt road was laid for the household vocational training school.

Regarding the plan on who ought to participate in the development works in the 2017-2018 FY, the Ministry of Border Affairs is implementing the regional development project works by coordinating with the ministry's main projects through submissions made by the states, the Hluttaw representatives, promises and pledges made by the Hluttaw, guidelines of the nation's leaders and the funding available. Funds earmarked by the ministry are submitted for assessment and confirmation by the national financial commission and financial assessment committee, according to the rules and regulations. On receiving the approval and confirmation, it is then submitted to the Hluttaw. It is implemented only when there is confirmation (from the Hluttaw). Invitations for tenders are announced in state-owned newspapers and in accordance with the instructions given by the President's office. As per the guidelines and instructions distributed by the ministry of construction to ministries conducting works under the contract system, the profile of the tendering companies are inspected, tenders are opened in a transparent manner, agreements are signed with tender-winning companies and works are conducted systematically.

Companies winning the tender also have to set up signboards describing details of the work at work sites to provide information not only to the Hluttaw representatives but also to the people; so there is no plan to provide a separate explanation, said the deputy minister.

Replying to whether the Mone Creek Bailey bridge was constructed according to the set standard, he said the SSR1 type Bailey bridge had a load capacity of 12.5 tonnes, according to the standard set for public construction work for village roads. The Ministry of Border Affairs built a SSR2 type bridge that has a load capacity in excess of 13 tonnes. However, as per the request of Kanpetlet Township construction management committee, it was classified as having a load capacity of only 6 tonnes.

Fifth coordination meeting of Consumer Protection Central Committee

A fifth coordination meeting of Consumer Protection Central Committee was held yesterday morning in the Ministry of Commerce meeting hall.

Consumer Protection Central Committee Vice Chairman and Deputy Minister for Commerce U Aung Htoo said consumer protection works are essential in the ASEAN Economic Community (AEC), as Myanmar is a member country of ASEAN. The ASEAN Committee on Consumer Protection (ACCP) was formed under AEC and four strategic goals were set and implemented. Therefore, the Ministry of Commerce is conducting consumer protection works as a focal ministry. In conducting consumer protection works “consumer dispute resolution groups” were formed according to the law in states/regions and district levels while consumer information complaint centres were opened where consumer complaints are accepted and resolved. In addition to this, to effectively protect the consumer, a consumer protection bill (draft) has been drawn up and submitted step by step and it had now been submitted to Pyidaungsu Hluttaw. In the past, complaints were on products but now there are more on services. Especially on telecom services, television and radio services and assurance services of products sold. By conducting consumer protection works, the public will obtain more consumer protection opportunities on one side while production and sale of goods and provision of services will be done correctly enabling the economic development of the country, said the Deputy Minister.

Consumer Protection Central Committee members and officials then discussed the status of departments and regions in implementing consumer protection works and to conduct consumer protection work processes more widely. —Myanmar News Agency ■

Grape prices fall due to low demand

THE price of grapes in the Yangon market has declined following unseasonal rainfall in the Mandalay Region last December and the consequent low yield, which has reduced the demand for grapes, according to a report in Myawady Daily yesterday.

Torrential rainfall results in low yield. The prices this year are much lower than that of last year, said a vine grower from Yamethin Township.

Apart from the local varieties, imported grapes from China and Thailand are also gaining market shares.

The black queen and big black grape varieties are primarily grown in Myanmar.

Currently, there are more than 5,000 acres of vineyards across the country. Grapes are mostly grown in Kyaukpadaung, Meiktila, Mandalay, Sagaing, Monywa, Pakokku, Yenangyoung, Yamethin and Pyawbwe townships. — GNLM ■

UMFCCI, JCCM sign MoU to strengthen economic cooperation

May Thet Hnin

THE Union of Myanmar Federation of Chambers of Commerce and Industry (UMFCCI) and Japan Chamber of Commerce and Industry in Myanmar (JCCM) signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) on all-round economic cooperation and development at the Park Royal Hotel last Wednesday.

Yangon Region Chief Minister U Phyo Min Thein, Japanese Ambassador to Myanmar Tateshi Higuchi and his delegation attended the MoU signing ceremony. Katsuji Nakagawa, chair of JCCM, and U Zaw Min Win, president of UMFCCI, signed the MoU to promote bilateral trade and investment, information and technology exchange, as well as human resource and infrastructural development.

Katsuji Nakagawa noted, "The signing ceremony aims to make the people of the two countries realise Japanese companies have a strong interest in Myanmar, despite the controversial Rakhine issues."

"Myanmar and Japan have established strong economic ties, in addition to the heavy capital brought into Thilawa Special Economic Zone. Japan has helped Myanmar in its economic development effort. With this MoU, more investments are likely to enter the country from Japan," stated U Phyo Min Thein.

"Apart from government-to-government cooperation, Japan and Myanmar also have a business-to-business cooperation in the private sector. During its period of democratic transition, the investment law and the Myanmar Companies Law were enacted. The Myanmar Investment Commission grants incentives to foreign investors. I believe this MoU will bring significant increases in bilateral trade and promote investments," said U Zaw Min Win.

From 1995 to 2017, Japan and Myanmar agreed to enter into 15 MoUs. Bilateral trade between Japan and Myanmar grew 2.2 times between 2012 and 2017.

Speaking during the signing event, the Japanese Ambassador said that Japan would continue to extend its assistance to Myanmar, especially in the field of social and economic development. Also, Japanese companies will invest more in Myanmar in the future, he added. ■

Dr. Win Myat Aye, U Nyi Pu and the visiting delegation then travelled by helicopter to Ngakhuya Village and inspected the temporary repatriation camp there. The ambassadors interacted with the local residents and asked them questions.

The ambassadors, UN agency representatives and other organizations were then given a presentation on the Ngakhuya temporary repatriation centre by Deputy Director for General Administration Department U Zaw Min. He mentioned the different ministries involved in the repatriation process and the departments that were formed to carry out the process. He also pointed out the temporary shelters and basic necessities provided to the repatriates before answering questions posed by the foreign delegates. The group was then shown the repatriation office compound and the houses set up for the repatriates.

The visiting delegation was then taken to the repatriation camp for displaced persons who will return by land in Taung Pyo Letwe Township. The group toured the office compound, the temporary shelters for displaced persons and the bridge connecting Myanmar and Bangladesh borders.

The group then visited Hla Pho Khaung, a transit camp where displaced persons can take up temporary residence. U Ye Htut, Maungtau District Deputy commissioner later explained the further processes of the camp and answered questions put forth by the visiting delegation, before showing the group around the camp.

By noon, the group arrived in Kanyin Chaung Special Economic Zone and inspected the construction process and the border trade situation there. They then travelled to Border Gate (1) in Maungtau Township and inspected the area. The group then went to the local market in Maungtau to assess the free trade in the area and bought some items from the vendors there.

The Union Minister and his entourage travelled back to Sit-tway and returned to Yangon in the evening. The group, led by Dr. Win Myat Aye, comprised of ambassadors and officials from the embassies of Egypt, Finland, Germany, Israel, Italy, Denmark, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, New Zealand, Brazil, Poland and Sri Lanka in Yangon, as well as representatives from United Nations Development Programme, United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs, United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, United Nations Fund for Population Activities, United Nations Human Settlements Programme, World Health Organisation, International Organisation for Migration, Asian Development Bank and United Nations Office for Project Services.—Myanmar News Agency

Conservation project comes just in time for Myanmar elephants

WITH yesterday's launching of the 10-year project for conservation of Myanmar elephants, the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation has taken another important step to protect and conserve wildlife and to prevent conflicts between wild elephants and humans.

The project includes four tasks: to conserve and protect wild elephants and their habitat, to solve the conflicts between humans and elephants, to prevent and crack down on the smuggling of elephant parts, and to manage the keeping of elephants as pets.

This project came about after previous biodiversity conservation projects were reviewed and modernized by experts.

Myanmar has the second-largest number of domesticated elephants in the world after India. Currently, Myanmar has an estimated 2,500 wild elephants in her rainforests.

Myanmar has 4,748 registered elephants that are kept as pets, used for timber extraction and other heavy lifting and at tourism sites for elephant rides.

At least one wild elephant is killed per week by poachers who skin the animals and sell the parts, according to the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation. If this were allowed to continue, experts say, Myanmar could lose its wild elephant population in a matter of years.

A high demand for elephant body parts including skin has turned the country into a poaching hotspot.

Elephants are typically shot with poisoned darts or high-velocity rifles, and die a prolonged and painful death before being skinned, environmental officials said. Their skin, teeth, tusks and other parts are sold locally and overseas.

Elephant skin has long been part of the illegal wildlife trade, but never at such high levels, conservation experts said.

In 2016, 18 wild elephants were killed, according to the ministry, but by August, NGOs working in the field put the figure of poached and skinned elephants at least 30, an average of one killing per week. Official estimates put the wild elephant population in Myanmar at 1,400 to 2,000, but the actual figure could be far lower.

Myanmar signed the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES) to protect Myanmar wild elephants and has passed laws against poaching.

The Myanmar government has also constructed wild elephant reserves to protect the elephants against hunters and has plans for several more in the near future, including Hukaung Valley Elephant Reserve, Alaungdaw Kathapa Elephant Reserve, Shwe U Daung Elephant Reserve, Myauk Zar Mayee Elephant Reserve, Rakhine Wildlife Reserve, and Rakhine Yoma Reserve.

Nationally, Myanmar has set aside 9,205 square miles for elephant sanctuaries. Local and international non-governmental organizations are also planning to expand the amount of land dedicated to wildlife reserves in Myanmar

Myanmar's wild elephants will be wiped out unless we take action now. We would like to call on individuals and organizations across all sectors to speak up and take urgent action before our wild elephants are silenced forever. ■

Marching towards a peaceful and prosperous democratic federal union

Maung Nyein Chan (Commission)

ALL Myanmar nationals were feeling joyous and happy to know that The New Mon State Party (NMSP) and Lahu Democratic Union (LDU) have signed the Nationwide Ceasefire Agreement (NCA) at the Myanmar International Convention Centre II in Nay Pyi Taw on 13 February, 2018.

Formerly, the Union Government and eight ethnic groups including the Karen National Union (KNU), the Restoration Council of Shan State (RCSS), the Pa-O National Liberation Organization (PNLO), the Chin National Front (CNF), the All Burma Students' Democratic Front (ABSDF), the Arakan Liberation Party (ALP), the Democratic Karen Benevolent Army (DKBA) and the Karen National Union/Karen National Liberation Army-Peace Council (KNU/KNLA-PC) signed the NCA. The signing of the NCA by the NMSP and the LDU brought to 10th number of ethnic groups that have signed the agreement, a prerequisite for participating in the peace process.

The NMSP and the LDU are members of the United Nationalities Federal Council (UNFC), and they have been removed from the list of unlawful associations, according to officials.

NMSP's Executive Committee Member Naing Aung Mangae said at the signing of the Nationwide Ceasefire Agreement (NCA),

"The next step after the NCA is holding a national political dialogue, and we are committed to it. There are advantages, as well as disadvantages, in holding this dialogue. The disadvantage is that not all EAOs are on board yet; however, the advantage is that signing the NCA allows us to participate in political dialogues. The NMSP alone cannot bring about change, so we are ready to work together with everyone to create the Federal Republic."

A journey towards a democratic federal union

Signing the NCA is not giving in to the government and Tatmadaw, officials said. While some have ill feelings about it, all ethnic armed organisations (EAOs) should not have skepticism, distrust or anxiety about the NCA, officials said.

The NCA is a landmark agreement between the government and ethnic armed races, and it was first signed on 15 October 2015. The NCA aims at solving political problems through peaceful political dialogue and achieve success in political discussions.

Advantages of signing the NCA

All the ethnic armed groups can live peacefully in their own places and the children will be able to pursue their studies without any difficulties. Smooth and efficient transportation systems will be possible, making for faster shipping of goods that will make commodity prices fall. All this will result in higher living standards for local residents.

The local people can enjoy the fruitful results of peace and the benefits of earning a peaceful living, especially in these areas, infrastructures such as roads, bridges, schools, hospitals and telecommunications offices have been built and local people can now travel freely from one place to another. Everyone can witness that their ways of life and living standards have increased dramatically.

Within the Federal System, it is essential to establish one's own legislation power that all ethnic groups have been craving for.

It is very crucial for all the nationalities living in the union to equally participate in promoting national unity and keeping the Union in perpetuity.

Moreover to ensure national reconciliation, it is necessary not only to establish clear confidence between the nation and armed ethnic groups, but also to create mutual trust among ethnic groups. As the essential need of peacekeeping process is trust, it is necessary to put strong effort in building clear confidence among national brethren. When we have gained national unity and national reconciliation, it is sure for us to be able to build a peaceful and prosperous Democratic Federal Union.

Peaceful Union

Throughout history, ancient Myanmar kings built a strong union through national spirit. In the late Konbaung dynasty, the country fell under the colonisation of the imperialists. Consequently, national brethren became disunited. Having founded the Myanmar Tatmadaw under the leadership of Bogoyoke Aung San, the national people fought against the invaders with the help of the Japanese. However, all the national people suffered from the bitter treatment of fascism. When the Second World War broke out, fascists were driven out of the country.

However, the British colonists who came back to our country again were hesitant to give independence to Myanmar and they intended to give independence only to the mainland but not the hilly regions. Thanks to the efforts of Bogoyoke Aung San and all ethnic races, Myanmar regained her independence in 1948.

After regaining independence, the social standards of our national people declined due to armed conflicts and lack of peace and stability in the country. Such long-lasting armed conflict only left our country's development behind other countries in the region.

For the development of our country, politics and economics go hand in hand and national reconciliation is one of the most important foundations in setting country's economic policy.

The Essence of NCA

The NCA is regarded as the beginning of peace and the original source of political process in Myanmar. The signing of the NCA by the NMSP and the LDU is leading us the right way. The remaining non-signatories should sign the NCA boldly, with decisive spirit, and leave a good legacy for the benefit of posterity so that the future generations can enjoy the fruitful results of the peace process, thereby they will be able to march towards a peaceful and prosperous Democratic Federal Union. ■

Let Us Taste The Health Benefits by Drinking Hot Water

Thin Hlaing Hmwe (Junior)

Almost all people get used to drink the normal (cold) water. Some people who own the refrigerator can have colder water. Those people do not like the taste of normal water as the tastes of the two kinds of water; one is normal and the other is refrigerated; are rather different. We have to admit and accept that the taste of refrigerated water makes ones good. In almost urban houses, people can afford to buy a refrigerator and put water and other foodstuff in it. Therefore, those people have never heard that drinking the hot water offer the uncountable benefits to human beings. As for me, I was amazed when I first knew about it. However, when one of my friends who always drinks the hot water told me about his health status after practicing the habit of drinking hot water for three months, I gradually realized it. The followings are the benefits that my friend has explained me recently.

Having Better Digestion

Water is a natural lubricant that helps the natural process of digestion since it hydrates the digestive organs and helps eliminate the waste by dissolving and dissipating foods you eat. Besides, drinking a hot glass of water every morning has a cleaning effect on your organs, relieving constipation since it supports bowel movements.

Relieving Constipation And Supporting Bowel Movements

As it was said before, hot water is important to your digestive health since it lubricates your organs. When you are constipated the hot water will help the contraction of the intestines helping the trapped waste to leave your body. The regular drinking helps keeping natural bowel movements, being considered a natural remedy for constipation and helping the body get back to its normal functions.

Relieving Achalasia

There is a gastrointestinal condition that occurs in part of the population (especially elderly people or people more sensitive to stress) called achalasia where the food has trouble to move through the oesophagus to the stomach. These people usually have a hard time swallowing and have food stuck on the oesophagus. The digestion and the passage of the food get easier with hot water since it lubricates the organs and eases the passage.

Breathing Better

Most people suffer with trouble breathing, colds or sinus during their lifetime. When hot water is drunk, mucous moves faster, easing coughing and nose-blowing, besides stream helps unclog sinuses. Also, since hot water acts like a lubricant it can relieve sore throat.

Making you Calm

Hot water can calm down the central nervous system. This system is the main controller of our reaction and unfortunately it is also the center of the pain for many people who suffer from diseases like arthritis. Drinking hot water helps relieving the pain by calming down the central nervous system.

Reducing Pain

Circulation and blood flow are improved by hot water and it is used by athletes to cure injured muscles. Drinking hot water offers internal pain relief however it is important to take care since heat can also potentiate swelling. Besides, applying hot water directly to a swollen area where you feel, pain can relieve. In women, hot water has benefits reducing cramps and pre-menstrual syndrome symptoms.

Hydrating

As it is said in the beginning of this article, water is important to keep your body working well so it is important to keep a regular consumption through the day. Most people cannot drink the amount of water needed every day, leading to imbalances in their bodies. It is recommended you drink a cup of hot water every morning when you wake up and every night before going to bed. This way you will be closer to drinking a healthier amount of water and get all its benefits.

Helping in Losing Weight

When you drink hot water, you are raising your body temperature. Since our bodies tend to keep a regular temperature, they will try to compensate the raising activating the metabolism (raising the body temperature from 36.6° C to 37° C or 98° F raises the metabolism by 40% for about 30 to 40 minutes next to the water consumption).

When the metabolism is risen, the body burns more calories and your gastrointestinal and renal systems work better. Also drinking hot water makes you feel full and need to eat less junk food and helps the body absorbing the nutrients you need.

Preventing Premature Aging by Elimination Toxins

Due to the stressful life, that people live nowadays premature aging is getting worse. It is getting harder to remove toxins from their bodies since they are exposed to stress agents every day. Removing these toxins is an important anti-aging weapon. Women are particularly suffering from this, not only because they are more self-conscious but also due to their complex hormone system that leads to constipation and other issues. When drinking hot water, the endocrine system activates, and you start sweating, eliminating all the bad things that are in your body.

Decreasing Stress Levels

Once hot water helps you having a better central nervous system function, drinking can help relieve anxiety symptoms, lowering heart rate, systolic and diastolic blood pressure, integumentary temperature and cortisol levels.

Be careful!

He recommends you start drinking a cup of hot water every morning in the beginning, when you start to get used to do it and start also drinking one at night also. If you don't like the taste of water, you can also drink with tea and get all the benefits of polyphenols or coffee.

It is true that drinking hot water has benefits for your health, but you must be careful when drinking it. If the water is too hot it can lead to severe damage to the oesophagus and taste buds and scald the tongue. It is important to check the temperature before drinking.

Besides, if you live in a hot country or are going to exercise or go through intense physical effort you should not drink hot water since it makes less thirsty although you need more water, leading to a bigger risk of dehydration.

If you are having any frequent medication talk to your doctor to be sure that drinking hot water will not interfere with the medication effects. ■

Shellfish reefs: Australia's untold environmental disaster

SYDNEY — Virtually all of Australia's shellfish reefs have disappeared, making them the country's most threatened ocean ecosystem, scientists said Thursday, calling for more investment to rescue the important marine habitats.

While recent global focus has been on the destruction of coral reefs, a study led by the Nature Conservancy found that between 90 and 99 per cent of shellfish reefs have vanished since British colonisation 230 years ago.

The reefs, formed by millions of oysters or mussels clustering together, used to occur in bays, estuaries and nearshore coastal waters in both tropical and temperate regions across every state in Australia.

They are complex living structures that provide food and shelter for a range of other invertebrate and fish species, while aiding water filtration and shoreline protection.

"We already knew shellfish reefs were in bad shape globally with 85 percent of them lost or severely degraded," said study leader Chris Gillies, marine manager at The Nature Conservancy.

"Our study confirms the situation for these important marine habitats in Australia is even worse, with less than one per cent of flat oyster and 10 per cent of rock oyster habitats remaining."—AFP ■

Japan economy grows for 8th straight quarter, longest since 1980s

TOKYO — Japan's economy grew for the eighth straight quarter at the end of 2017, government data showed Wednesday, its longest period of expansion since the "bubble" boom days of the late 1980s. Gross domestic product figures fell short of expectations and represented a slowdown from the previous quarter, but analysts forecast continued growth nonetheless.

GDP expanded just 0.1 per cent in the last quarter of 2017, the Cabinet Office said, a far cry from the 0.6 per cent figure for July-September.

"The growth rate for the last quarter was very low compared with the bubble period but the economy is solid enough," said Takeshi Minami, chief economist at Norinchukin

Research Institute.

"The slowdown was due primarily to inventory adjustments and a decline in the contribution of net exports due to strength in imports," added analysts at Barclays in a report.

"As such, it did not imply a pull-back in the momentum of economic recovery," analysts Tetsu-fumi Yamakawa, Yuichiro Nagai and Yukito Funakubo wrote.

At an annualised rate, the world's third largest economy grew 0.5 per cent, also missing expectations.

"There are lingering worries over consumption but we can expect the economy to pick up further if 'shunto' wage hikes are better than the previous years," said Minami, referring to collective wage negotiations between labour and management held every spring.

"The current expansion could be extended further," he told AFP.

For the calendar year 2017, the economy grew 1.6 percent, against 0.9 per cent in 2016. Japan's Minister for Economy, Trade and Industry Toshimitsu Motegi said the current expansion was solid compared with the more volatile "bubble" boom in the 1980s, according to Bloomberg News.

Speculative investment in land and stocks on low interest rates, pushed the Nikkei stock index to almost 40,000 in 1989 — nearly double its current level. But the bubble burst at the start of the 1990s, ushering in a period of low or no growth known as the "lost decades".—AFP ■

Dafoe holds Oscar flag for heart-melting movie about poor kids

PARIS — Willem Dafoe frankly doesn't give a damn if he misses out on a best supporting actor Oscar for a third time next month.

"That is not what I do this for," said the dry, self-deprecating star, who was also nominated for Oliver Stone's "Platoon" in 1987 and for "Shadow of a Vampire" 13 years later.

Yet he will be sore if "The Florida Project", the break-out low-budget film about poor kids growing up in the shadow of Walt Disney World in Orlando, gets nothing.

Dafoe told AFP he was "disappointed when (its director) Sean Baker didn't get some love because this is very much his film and he made a beautiful movie." "I was hoping either the film or him or one of the other performers would get recognised but it didn't happen." He was not alone. Critics swooned over the performances Baker drew from the three children he cast — one of whom he found in a supermarket — and first-timer Bria Vinaite, who he spotted on Instagram.

The subtly moving story Baker shot in a cheap motel along the Kissimmee Strip leading to the theme park, using some of its homeless residents as extras, was a surprisingly heart-warming hit and topped many best-film-of-the-year lists.—AFP ■

Aleksey German-Jr.'s 'Dovlatov' to be screened in ex-Soviet countries and China

MOSCOW — Aleksey German-Jr.'s new feature 'Dovlatov,' which premieres in competition in Berlin next month, will be shown in a number of post-Soviet states and possibly China, Channel One head Konstantin Ernst has told reporters at a news conference in TASS.

"On March 9, the film will premiere in Estonia, a very important territory in Dovlatov's destiny and life. We have received requests and are now negotiating with Kazakhstan. Full-scale distribution is not being discussed, but a series of screenings will take place," Ernst said. "A number of other post-Soviet states have also demonstrated their interest in the film."

"I'm sure that it will be screened in many countries, maybe even in China, if it is approved by the censor there," he added.

The biopic tells the story of writer and journalist Sergei Dovlatov (1941-1990). It focuses on four days of Dovlatov's life in 1971. In Russia, it will be screened on 1-4 March 2018.

The film would premiere in the Competition of the 68th Berlin International Film Festival, to be held in the German capital on 15-25 February.—Tass ■

Culture minister alarmed at US erotic drama 'stealing the show' in Russian cinemas

MOSCOW — Russian Culture Minister Vladimir Medinsky on Tuesday raised concern over the domination of Fifty Shades Freed, an erotic romantic drama starring Dakota Johnson and Jamie Dornan, in the country's movie theaters. "I don't know what social problems this undoubtedly cinematographic masterpiece is solving but it has stolen 70% of shows in our movie theaters," Medinsky said urging Deputy Prime Minister Olga Golodets, who is in charge of social issues, and the Federal Anti-Monopoly Service to focus on this matter.

The culture minister complained that the ascendancy of Fifty Shades Freed, which premiered nationwide on February 8, led to the failure of a number

Wes Anderson premiere 'Isle of Dogs' opens Berlin filmfest

Acclaimed US director Wes Anderson's new animated feature "Isle of Dogs" will on Thursday kick off the Berlin film festival, which is set to be rocked by aftershocks of the #MeToo movement.

With the global cinema industry in turmoil over allegations of rampant sexual misconduct, the 11-day event will be seeking a delicate balance between Hollywood glamour and frank debate in the wake of powerful producer Harvey Weinstein's downfall.

Bryan Cranston, Bill Murray, Oscar-nominee Greta Gerwig, Jeff Goldblum and Liev

Schreiber, who voice the pack of pooches in Anderson's movie, are expected on the Berlinale red carpet for the world premiere, with stars including Robert Pattinson, Rosamund Pike, Joaquin Phoenix and Isabelle Huppert also set to present new movies.

But even before the opening, controversy erupted over the inclusion of award-winning South Korean director Kim Ki-duk, who was fined in December for assaulting an actress on set.

The actress, who has refused to be publicly identified, has accused the festival -- traditionally a strong champion of Asian cinema — of "hypocrisy" for inviting Kim to present his latest picture, "Human, Space, Time and Human".

Berlinale 'condemns violence'

Festival director Dieter Kosslick said he had excluded a handful of films because of credible sexual abuse allegations against their directors, screenwriters or stars.

But he told AFP he did not bar Kim because sexual harassment allegations by the same actress against him had been dismissed for lack of evidence, adding that he was seeking more information about an appeal in the case.

"Obviously the Berlinale condemns and opposes any form of violence or sexual misconduct," Kosslick said.

Anderson last opened the Berlinale, which ranks with Cannes and Venice among Europe's top three cinema showcases, in 2014 with the world premiere of "The Grand Budapest Hotel", a box office hit which went on to scoop dozens of awards and an Oscar nomination for best picture.

It will be Anderson's fourth turn in competition for the Berlinale's Golden and Silver Bear top prizes following "The Royal Tenenbaums" and "The Life Aquatic with Steve Zissou".

Tom Tykwer, one of the German directors behind the blockbuster miniseries "Babylon Berlin" now appearing on Netflix, will lead a gender-balanced jury including Belgian actress Cecile de France ("The Young Pope"), "Moonlight" producer Adele Romanski, Time magazine critic Stephanie Zacharek, Japanese composer Ryuichi Sakamoto and Spanish film historian Chema Prado.—AFP ■

Chinese New Year, festival of luck and family reunion, gaining popularity in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH — The majority of the Cambodians celebrate Spring Festival, or Chinese New Year, since many of them have Chinese ancestry and others believe that celebrating the festival will bring them good luck in the new year.

The 2018 Chinese Lunar New Year - the Year of the Dog - will fall on 16 February.

Cambodian Prime Minister Samdech Techo Hun Sen has said the Spring Festival has been gaining its popularity in the country from year to year.

"In the past, we did not see many people celebrating Chinese New Year, but today there are more and more," he wrote on his Facebook on 30 January. "When the nation has peace, people have full freedom to choose religious beliefs and to celebrate festivals according to their traditions."

The prime minister said Cambodia observes three New Year festivals in a year - the Universal New Year, the Chinese New Year and the Khmer (Cambodian) New Year.

BROAD CELEBRATION

Chinese New Year is not an official holiday in Cambodia, but the festival is broadly celebrated and some schools, private companies and institutions are closed on the occasion.

"It's pretty sure that over 60 percent of the Cambodian people celebrate Chinese New Year," Thai Norak Sathya, secretary of state and spokesman for the Cambodian Ministry of Culture and Fine Arts, told Xinhua.—Xinhua ■

The art of theater: Oratory and communication skills for Arctic children

KRASNOYARSK — The first ever theater club for children from far-away settlement on the Taimyr Peninsula will open in Dudinka. Children from 7 years of age will learn secrets of theater arts and oratory, they will develop communication skills, as sometimes they face communication problems after living in very isolated environments, the project's organizers told TASS.

Theater lessons

The project was offered by the Mukistur community of the low-numbered indigenous peoples at Dudinka's school 1, the project's head Nadezhda Yeremina told TASS. Under the project, the school will have a class of theater arts and oratory, where professional teachers will be educating children. This is the first ever experience of a project, aimed at working with children from nomadic families on Taimyr.

"We are making all necessary preparations, so that it begins in September, at beginning of a new academic year," she said. "We shall teach 35 children from seven years of age, who live in the tundra." The project's partner is a White Birds theater club in Dudinka. Its teachers have been working with the youth, and now they will teach Taimyr's indigenous children, who live in the tundra's settlements. "Our work would be aimed at developing performance skills, the teachers will organize lessons in stage speech and actor's skills," the White Birds' head Marina Petrakova said, adding children from senior classes would make the theater essentials and costumes.

The initiative received support after Nornickel's competition among social projects. "Projects of the kind are very important for that area, as they are aimed at supporting traditional culture of Taimyr's indigenous peoples, at conditions for education of children and teenagers from the nomadic families, living in the tundra," the company's head of charity programs at the Polar branch Svetlana Rubashkina told TASS.

Developing communication skills and learning traditions

The project's organizers say the children living in the tundra are special first of all due to the living conditions. Until they are seven, when they begin school studies, together with the families they are wandering the tundra and quite often they would not have any other communication than with the relatives.

"They do not have pre-school education, their oral speech is usually under-developed, they are tough to contact, very often they are not easy to make friends," Rubashkina said. "By participating in theater performances, the children will learn how to work in a team, how to perform, how to communicate with other people."

Besides the communication skills, the children will study and then promote their folk arts - many performances would be based on the Northern tales.—Tass ■

Chinese designer debuts new collection inspired by art of Dunhuang

NEW YORK — Chinese fashion designer Vivienne Hu on Tuesday debuted her Fall/Winter 2018 line inspired by the 1,600-year-old Dunhuang Mogao Grottoes in northwest China, at the ongoing New York Fashion Week (NYFW).

"They're beautiful, amazing, and I was so shocked," said Hu in an interview with Xinhua, when recalling her visit to Mogao Grottoes last year, also known as the Thousand Buddha Grottoes, which has been listed as a world heritage site in 1987.

"Then I think I had to do that, it would be my first time to have Chinese inspiration," she added.

Hu also said the new line is "a collaboration of historical and cultural fashion with modern street style." "We use different elements, for example, the color, most likely, we use red, dark green and golden, and we also use very traditional materials like silk, velvet, Chinese-fashioned fabrics and fur ... We try to have some mix of Chinese culture with New York street style" she said.

Hu's entire design team travelled from New York City last July, to experience the finest examples of Buddhist art spanning over a period of over 1,500 years within Dunhuang's caves. Hu grew up in China and obtained her bachelor's degree in Finance at the University of Hohenheim, Germany. Prior to studying Fashion Design at Parsons School of Design in New York, she worked as a financier at a leading investment bank on Wall Street.

After graduation, Hu quickly gained a wealth of professional experience while working with Oscar de la Renta and Yigal Azrouel, both fashion designers, before introducing her own Spring/Summer line in 2012.

Hu was first selected to show at NYFW in September 2014, and has since held seven successful shows on NYFW catwalks.

Her designs combine European elegance with New York street fashion while incorporating exotic Asian elements. At the heart of her design philosophy is the spirit of the independent woman. Her work displays both femininity and individuality in an unique way while creating both comfort and beauty.—Xinhua ■

Royal Thanlwin beats Mawyawady in U20 MNL League

IN one of the Week-2 matches of the MPT Myanmar National League (U-20) 2018, Royal Thanlwin FC defeated Mawyawady FC by a score of 2-1 at Salin football field of Yangon yesterday.

Both teams made brilliant efforts to dominate the match by using speedy play right from the kick-off.

At the 30-minute mark, Mawyawady defenders made a big mistake while blocking the opponent's attack and paid for it with a goal by Royal Thanlwin.

The first half was led by Royal Thanlwin by a score of 1-0.

In the second half, Mawyawady changed tactics and made an equalizing goal at the 53-minute mark by Nyi Nyi Soe.

The winning goal was scored by Royal Thanlwin's Si Thu Htet Aung at the 68-minute mark after a good crossing pass and the support of his teammates.

At the final whistle, the players from Royal Thanlwin celebrated their victory as they made a win at yesterday's match.—

Advantage Ronaldo but Neymar warns it's not over yet

MADRID — Paris Saint-Germain face a huge task to reach the Champions League quarter-finals after Cristiano Ronaldo defied predictions his powers are waning with two goals as Real Madrid won 3-1 in the first leg of their last-16 tie.

Billed as a contest between World Player of the Year Ronaldo and his Brazilian heir-in-waiting Neymar, the 33-year-old Portuguese came out emphatically on top as he became the first player to score 100 Champions League goals for the same club.

On a pulsating evening in the Bernabeu, Ronaldo dragged Real level with a penalty after Adrien Rabiot had given PSG the lead, fed by a cheeky Neymar backheel.

Cristiano Ronaldo came out on top in the battle for supremacy with Neymar as he scored twice in Real Madrid's 3-1 win over Paris Saint-Germain in the last-16, first-leg tie of the Champions League. PHOTO: AFP

As PSG seemed to be heading for a draw that would have put the French side in the driving seat for the return leg on March 6, Ronaldo turned the match in Madrid's favour with a scrappy goal that bounced in off his knee.

As Madrid poured forward, Marcelo piled on the pain with an 86th-minute volley to show PSG — who have never won the Champions League — the value of the experience of winning the competition 12 times.

- 'We love the Champions League' -

"Real Madrid love the Champions League and as players we can feel that on the pitch," Ronaldo said after being named man of the match.

"Today things worked out for me, scoring two goals and helping the team win, but we know the tie is not finished yet." Neymar, who cut a dejected figure at the end, said his side "committed errors at certain moments".—AFP ■

Shiffrin wins giant slalom gold, Japan's Ishikawa 33rd

PYEONGCHANG, South Korea — Mikaela Shiffrin of the United States took gold in the women's giant slalom Thursday at the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, where the sole Japanese entrant, Haruna Ishikawa, finished 33rd.

Shiffrin posted the second-fastest time on the first run and was fourth fastest the second time down the slope, finishing with a combined total of 2 minutes, 20.02 seconds. She is the undisputed queen of the slalom, as the defending Olympic champion, a three-time world champ, and on her way to a fifth World Cup overall slalom title. Silver medalist Ragnhild Mowinckel of Norway finished 0.39 second off the pace, while Italy's Federica Brignone took bronze after completing the two runs 0.46 second slower than the winner. The 22-year-old Shiffrin, who became the youngest-ever Olympic slalom winner at Sochi in 2014, said that despite a rush of emotions, she felt confident of victory ahead of her second run at the Yongpyong Alpine Centre.

"I don't know how to explain it. It's crazy. There's so much emotion," Shiffrin said. "I don't know when it was, at some point today after the first run I thought...I can really win this." Shiffrin will have just 24 hours before hitting the slopes again to defend her Olympic slalom title. Initially scheduled for Wednesday, the event was moved to Friday due to bad weather. In her first Olympic competition, Ishikawa, 23, finished in 2:28.99.—Kyodo News ■
