Yangon circular railway to be upgraded

Myanma Railways yesterday began a project for upgrading the western Yangon commuter rail network between Yangon and Danyingone stations, said U Tun Aung Thin, General Manager of the Lower Region Administration of Myanma Railways.

“The project to upgrade the first part of the railway section started today. We are going to undertake the project by dividing the circular railway into three segments,” he said in a press conference in Yangon yesterday. This first project started on 21 February and is expected to be completed by 31 May.

The second part will renovate the railway between Insein and Kyeemyindaing stations, which is 5.5 miles long. Upgrading of this section is scheduled to start on 1 October and is expected to be finished by the end of January, 2019.

The third part of the project will renovate the railway between Kyeemyindaing and Yangon stations, a distance of 2.75 miles, and will commence on 1 February in 2019 and be completed at the end of March.

Myanmar doubles down on effective water management

MYANMAR is facing pollution problems because its water resources are not being effectively maintained, said Vice President U Henry Van Thio yesterday.

“We need to manage our country’s water resources effectively,” said the Vice President, stressing the importance of implementing the Integrated Water Resources Management project by key water-related ministries for effective and efficient utilisation, conservation and storage. Additionally, effective management would result in fair water allocation among ministerial-level water users and better water and budget sharing among states and regions, he said.

“There is so much potential for the utilisation of our water resources. Like many other countries, we are facing problems of too much water or too little water and water pollution,” said the Vice President in his opening remark at the World Water Day 2018 celebration in Nay Pyi Taw yesterday, in his capacity as the Chairman of the National Water Resources Committee.

Pyidaungsu Hluttaw discusses housing, infrastructure loans

THE seventh regular session of the second Pyidaungsu Hluttaw held its ninth-day meeting yesterday morning at the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw meeting hall in the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw building, Nay Pyi Taw.

At the meeting, a bill on the registration of deeds, considered as approved by the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw, was put on record by the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw.

Explaining the loans provided by the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA), sent by the President, Deputy Minister for Planning and Finance U Maung Maung Win said the interest rate of 8.5 per cent was set after coordinating with the JICA, the Ministry of Planning and Finance and SME committee representatives, as well as by taking into consideration the interest rates of other local loans. If each loan duration is set at three years in the total duration of 40 years, loans can be provided 13 times, and if the loan duration is set at five years, loans can be provided eight times. More SME businesses can get loans, as the number of loans provided will be higher. As only secured loans were provided during phase-1 of the project, the provision for unsecured loans, through the CGI system, to provide loans to people without guarantor in phase-2 of the project will be one of the concessions made. SME business owners should cooperate by providing the required information completely when applying for loans, said the Deputy Minister. The Hluttaw approved the matter after a majority of the Hluttaw representatives supported it and a decision was taken.

This was followed by the deputy ministers explaining the utilisation of Ks26,011.131 billion from the emergency funds included in the 2017 Union Budget Law sent by the President. Deputy Minister for Home Affairs Maj-Gen Aung Soe said the fencing of 182.68 miles of land border between Myanmar and Bangladesh was conducted in three stages, and 126.68 miles had already been completed. Some 56 miles, up to B-1, the border junction of Myanmar-Bangladesh-India, is yet to be fenced. In the fourth stage, 11.5 miles of border fencing was conducted in the 2016-2017 fiscal year (FY), and in the 2017-2018 FY, 3.2 miles of barbed wire fencing was extended by 2 feet with a modified design. The extension of 2 feet of barbed wire fencing with a modified design on 11.5 miles near BP-68 and BP-69 will be conducted with the 2017-2018 FY President's emergency fund of Ks20 billion, explained the Deputy Minister.

Similarly, Deputy Minister for Defence Rear Admiral Myint Nwe and Deputy Minister for Border Affairs Lt-Gen Ye Aung explained the respective works of the ministries. Next, the deputy ministers explained the 15 billion Japanese yen loan provided by JICA, US$360 million loan from the Asian Development Bank (ADB) and the ASEAN Infrastructure Fund (AIF), and $80 million from ADB for the Ministry of Construction project works, sent by the President.

U Kyaw Lin said the 15 billion yen loan for the development of housing will fulfil housing requirements and allow low-income people to own a place while reducing the use of government funds. The permission of the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw is sought to approve the loan, explained the deputy minister. Similarly, the $360 million loan is for the development of roads in the Greater Mekong Sub Region. The Yangon-Pathein road, Bago-Thanyin road and Yangon-Mandalay road are the main arteries of the economy of Myanmar and from there, it can connect to the most developed economic zones, and they will be the most used roads by the people. The Pyidaungsu Hluttaw is requested to approve the loan, stated the Deputy Minister. The $80 million loan from ADB is for the socio-economic and infrastructural development of the cities in Myanmar, Mawlamyine, Hpa-an and Myawady that are along the Greater Mekong Sub Region economic corridor road and supports the sustainable development goal of making cities and human settlements inclusive, safe, resilient and sustainable, and thus the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw is requested to permit the loan, explained the Deputy Minister.

In the same way Deputy Minister for Planning and Finance U Maung Maung Win said the 15 billion yen loan for the housing development project is for the sale of housing units in Yangon, constructed by the Department of Urban and Housing Development during the housing development project phase one, and in the second phase, it is for the sale of new housing units constructed according to the JICA standard. In the second phase, loans will be provided to people who want to buy houses not only with loans provided by the Construction and Housing Development Bank but also by other private banks under PFI (Private Finance Initiative). Loan agreements will be signed between PFI banks and Myanmar Economic Bank. The Pyidaungsu Hluttaw is requested to permit the Ministry of Planning and Finance and the Ministry of Construction to implement the programme enabling the homeless to become home owners, said Deputy Minister U Maung Maung Win.

Myanmar committed to effective water management

Myanmar receives good rainfall, except in the central dry zone, and has many rivers and natural lakes, as well as groundwater aquifers.

U Henry Van Thio also stressed on the need to promote the capacity of the staff and all stakeholders related to the water sector and to update the relevant laws and regulations to promote the quality of services.

The demand for water in Myanmar's cities has increased with the increase in population and urbanization, while the demand for water in the rural areas has also increased due to expanding cultivation and other rural-based economic activities.

He also said the government must cooperate with citizens to develop the water-related sectors, such as water supply and water treatment, sanitation, personal hygiene and clean environment, agriculture, livestock, hydro power and industry tourism, while avoiding an impact on the environment.

"We need to promote awareness, discussion and sharing of information, knowledge and technology, and mutual cooperation among water users. We need to raise awareness and share knowledge with the general public through education and the sectors concerned to convey the importance of water resources for the economic, social and all-round development of all the sectors and their protection," he added.

The theme for World Water Day 2018 is "Nature for Water."

In December 2017, Myanmar hosted the 3rd Asia-Pacific Water Summit in Yangon, which is an important event for the Asia Pacific countries.

During the summit, sound water cycle management, governance and inclusive development, extension of safe and sustainable drinking water, and improved sanitation and wastewater management services at the local and national level, as well as the establishment of a regional system to monitor financial support for water-related sustainable development goals were discussed.

"As a result of the 3rd Asia-Pacific Water Summit, the "Yangon Declaration" was adopted, and we are cooperating with the Asia-Pacific Water Forum to discuss the outcome at the World Water Forum 2018 in March in Brazil," the Vice President said.

The United Nations General Assembly had designated "2018 to 2028" as the International Decade for Action for Water for Sustainable Developments.

In Myanmar, the World Water Day celebrations are being organised by the National Water Resources Committee since 2014.

Myanmar has frequently suffered from destructive earthquakes and water-related extreme events, such as cyclones, periodic flooding, and droughts, besides landslides, which resulted in the loss of several lives and damages, posing major challenges in terms of water quality control and wastewater management.—MNA ■

Zoological Garden (Yadanarbon) to be renovated

THE Zoological Garden (Yadanarbon) in Mandalay will be renovated as a place where visitors can relax and take it easy besides studying the animals according to an administrator of the Zoological Garden (Yadanarbon) U Thein Min Aung.

"A sport arena will be built that will include a water polo pool that visitors can use when they visit. Natural landscapes such as waterfalls and streams will also be created for the zoological garden. I invite all the people to come to visit and unwind at the Zoological Garden (Yadanarbon) because the zoo and park will be renovated and there will be new features" he added.

Another reason for revamping the zoological garden is to let visitors learn more about the importance of rare animal preservation and for them to share this information with others. Visitors can also learn about the importance of breeding techniques of particular species of animals. In addition, elephant dances and snake dances are shown every Sunday and another show featuring monkeys dancing will be arranged.—

"There are two railroad tracks between Insein and Danyingone stations. Starting today, we began to upgrade the inside railroad track. So, the transportation service can be provided using one railway but train schedules are the same as usual," said U Kyaw Kyaw Tun, General Manager of the Myanma Railways.

During the project, the train that runs from the Yangon station to the University of Computer Studies is temporarily unavailable, but it's being substituted with the YBS's No. 78 bus line that is providing public transportation from the Yangon Station to the Danyingone Station. The Yangon circular rail network, the cheapest way of getting around in Yangon, is running 220 times a day with 25 trains, servicing 90,000 people a day. The whole loop is 29.5 miles long. The upgrading project includes filling new crushed stone in railroad tracks, substituting railway ties and rails, renovating buildings at the stations, fencing along the railroads, and refurbishing platforms at the stations.

After the project is completed, the travel time on the whole loop will be decreased to 110 minutes from 170 minutes.—

Authorities to take action against errant sugar re-exporting companies

COMPANIES that defy prescribed rules while re-exporting refined sugar will face action from the government from 28 February 2018, according to news released by the Commerce Ministry.

The Commerce Ministry has allowed Myanmar merchants to re-export sugar in the 2015-2016 fiscal year with the aim of obtaining hard currency earnings, enhancing trade and creating job opportunities.

However, the authorised companies need to strictly adhere to the prescribed rules and regulations. The companies will be inspected to check if they are abiding by the set rules. Some companies are reportedly selling the sugar imported under the re-export system in the domestic market. If the import list does not tally with the volume of re-exports, the companies will face legal action.

Therefore, the trade department has already issued a notice to the companies to check their re-export list against the actual record by 25 January. Myanmar's merchants import sugar mostly from Thailand and India, and also from Brazil, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates. It is then re-exported to China through the Sino-Myanmar checkpoint, as Myanmar sugar millers are unable to produce quality sugar that meets the export criteria for lack of advanced refining machinery.

Some 2 million tonnes of sugar are traded annually under the re-export system. —Ko Khant ■

Inflation rate in January 2018 declines to 4.4%

THE annual rate of inflation in January 2018 was 4.4 per cent, registering a small decline compared with the rate in December 2017.

The year-on-year inflation rate was 5.23 per cent in January 2018, as against January 2017.

In January 2018, Rakhine State recorded the highest inflation rate at 8.68 per cent, followed by the Mandalay Region at 6.41 per cent and Kachin State with 6.35 per cent.

Yangon city recorded an inflation rate of 3.71 per cent, while Nay Pyi Taw recorded 3.27 per cent.

Previously, the inflation rate was evaluated based on the 2006 survey. The base year was then changed to 2012. The Central Statistical Organisation (CSO) conducted a household income and expenditure survey in 82 townships in November 2012.

The inflation rate in the first five-year plan from the 2011-2012 fiscal year (FY) to the 2015-2016 FY rose. In a bid to reduce the inflation rate, the authorities concerned are making efforts based on the policies of finance, currency, trade and foreign currency control, in the second five-year national development plan.

The consumer price index (CPI) in January 2018 was much higher than that of January 2017, on account of high prices of liquor, food, house rental charges and repair costs, house utensils and maintenance costs, as well as health and transport costs. The CPI in January 2017 was registered at 132.41, with the index slipping to 131.96 in March. Thereafter, the CPI rose again and was recorded at 139.34 in January 2018.

The CPI in Mon and Rakhine states in January 2018 showed a small decline compared with the previous month. Apart from these, other regions and states saw an increase in their CPI, according to statistics released by the CSO, operating under the Ministry of Planning and Finance, last Monday.

JPN gov't five INGOs sign Exchange of Notes on Grant Aid to Rakhine State

TO assist in humanitarian aid program and in works of the Union Enterprise for Humanitarian Assistance and Resettlement in Rakhine-UEHRD, Japanese government and UN agencies signed Exchange of Notes on Grant Aid to Rakhine yesterday.

The signing ceremony in Nay Pyi Taw was attended by Union Minister for Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement Dr. Win Myat Aye and representatives from the UN agencies.

The Union Minister expressed thanks to the Japanese government for the aid.

Japanese Mr. Tateshi HIGUCHI, representatives of five international organizations signed the Exchange of Notes for grant assistance projects in Nay Pyi Taw on 22 February for implementing projects with total grant assistance of 2.2 billion Yen in order to improve humanitarian and development situation in Rakhine State.

UN-Women is expected to sign the Exchange Note separately in the near future.

The Project for Responding to the Humanitarian Situation in Rakhine State would get grant assistance of 1.1 billion Yen.

The project aims to improve regional stability and the humanitarian situation, and contribute to better living conditions for people affected by the incident, school enrollment rate, child protection and psychological care for women and girls etc.

Immediately after the terrorist attacks that occurred at the end of August last year in Myanmar's Rakhine State, emergency assistance has been implemented by the International Red Cross Committee (ICRC) etc.

Providing humanitarian aid for food, health and sanitation, living environment and promoting cohesion among communities would be vital once the repatriation of IDPs and those who have fled to Bangladesh commence officially.

Through World Food Programme (WFP), United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA), this project will provide humanitarian assistance to affected people and communities such as food distribution,

Developing MSMEs can create job opportunities

MYANMAR'S economic sector is said to be made up of 1 per cent large companies and the remaining per cent small and medium enterprises spread across the country. Despite the widespread production from local SMEs, the majority of people in the country purchase imported commodities from foreign SMEs.

The main reason for this is that most, if not all, international businesses have a quality assurance mechanism that ensures all of their exports are of high quality and fit for distribution around the world. In a way, their production system transforms raw materials into high-valued end products that appeal to the customer. Because of this, the demand for locally produced commodities is low and the economy cannot create enough jobs for its people.

Even though Myanmar is a country rich in all kinds of natural resources, it does not have the means to transform these into high-end products and so simply imports it in its raw state. This lowers GDP of the economy and slows its development.

In recent years, there has been much effort to empower SMEs and just a week ago, the Small and Medium Enterprises Development Committee (SMEDC) held its second meeting in Nay Pyi Taw. During the meeting, Vice President U Myint Swe, who is also the chairman of SMEDC, announced that regional competitions for micro, small and medium enterprises (MSMEs) will be held in nine regions and states across Myanmar. This will give a chance for the MSMEs to exhibit their products and attract potential customers or investors.

"Following the exhibitions in nine regions and states, Nay Pyi Taw will host the national level exhibition," said Vice President U Myint Swe at the meeting. The first MSMEs regional competition will be held in Mandalay Region from 23 to 25 February.

The Vice President said an announcement was sent on 19 January to the Nay Pyi Taw Council, the various regions and states, and self-administered Division and zones to send feedback on forming their own local SME Development Agency. These local agencies are urged to be formed with 7 to 11 members. As each region and state slowly develops a system to review the quality of their local products, they can collaborate with experts and local or foreign organizations to improve their quality or acquire the necessary technology to produce high-end products that can penetrate into the international market.

In this endeavour, the State will give continuous support to its MSMEs to develop and strengthen the economy.

An Initiative Approach of Ministry of Health and Sports for Promoting Health Literacy in Naga Land of Myanmar

(Dr.Than Lwin Tun, Dr.Kyaw Thu Swe, Dr.Phyu Phyu Aye)
(Ministry of Health and Sports, Myanmar)

NAGALAND is a self-administered zone (SAZ) consisting of 3 townships within Sagaing Region, in the northwestern part of Myanmar. As stipulated by the 2008 Constitution, the Naga SAZ comprises the townships of Leshi, Nanyun and Lahe, its administrative seat. The Naga people represent one of the most distinct ethnic groups in Myanmar, not only because of their well-known traditional warrior costume but also because they have been guaranteed a Self-Administered Zone. However, they are yet one of the most vulnerable populations and Nagaland is the least developed part of the country, in great need of basic health care, education and infrastructures. There are no proper roads for motor vehicles and therefore, it takes about two or three days to reach outlying villages. Food and supplies for the local people are delivered by motorcycles, especially in rainy season. Deprivation of proper infrastructures, and difficulties in communication and transportation are the root causes of several complicating consequences in Nagaland, including malnutrition, disease outbreaks and low levels of health knowledge and literacy. While a self-administered zone, the provision of healthcare remains the responsibility of the Union Ministry of Health and Sports (MOHS). The assignment of ministry's staff in the isolated area has been a challenge for long a time.

The Nagaland got attention in 2016 after reports about a mysterious infectious disease outbreak had been mentioned in news media. The disease, which was not yet identified at that time, started affecting people living in HtanKhawLanma village of Lahe Township in June of 2016. The disease spread quickly to other villages, including those in Nanyun Township and a number of children had been reported dead. The health authorities in both regional and union levels were notified about the outbreak and reported symptoms of the disease were fever, coughing, rashes, red and sore eyes. After hearing the news, the health officials from MOHS traveled to the area and confirmed that the so-called mystery disease was actually a measles outbreak. Measles is a highly infectious disease caused by the measles virus and spreads easily through the coughs and sneezes of those infected. It may also be spread through contact with nasal secretions. But, it can be prevented effectively by measles vaccination. In response to the outbreak, the MOHS as well as the directorate of medical services of the Ministry of Defense sent medical teams to the areas where the outbreak occurred, and set up a vaccination program. On the special request from the Ministry of Health and Sports, Basic Health Staff actively participated in a 6-month temporary assignment under the management of Sagaing Region Health Department and leadership of MOHS and Sagaing Region Government. U Thant Zin Oo, a Health Assistant, received an award from the State Counselor in 2016 for his outstanding performance in the health campaigns in Nagaland.

Naga community is comprised of several tribes and clans, and Naga People speak 89 different languages and dialects. However, there are many similarities between the different languages spoken. Language barriers also pose significant challenges when providing effective health education messages and quality healthcare. The modern-day society is celebrity-obsessed. The celebrities influence the people to embrace an array of knowledge, attitudes and behaviors that affect health of the people in general, because celebrities are highly influential people whose actions are watched and often imitated by their audiences. In order to disseminate the health information messages correctly and effectively in Nagaland, the Chief Minister of Sagaing Region Government appointed a Naga ethnic model and movie star, Marie Cole, as the Health Literacy Promotion Ambassador for Nagaland-2018.

This innovative approach in health promotion sector is particularly important for the people of Nagaland and recorded as the first appointment of a Health Literacy Promotion Ambassador to the remote communities of the country.

The Union Health and Sports Minister has also guided the health care professionals to improve their efforts to increase public understanding of health issues as well as to promote health literacy as a priority.

It is anticipated that the health advocacy with a local celebrity from the Naga community will lead to increased awareness of healthcare and the adoption of positive hygiene habits in Naga SAZ.

'America's pastor' Billy Graham, counsel to presidents, dies at 99

WASHINGTON — Reverend Billy Graham, the influential Southern preacher who became a spiritual advisor to several US presidents and millions of Americans via their television sets, died Wednesday. He was 99.

The one-time backwoods minister who eventually became the world's foremost Christian evangelist, spread a message of spiritual redemption at tent and stadium revival meetings, in a career that spanned decades.

Graham, who died at his home in Montreat, North Carolina, "changed our country and the world," President Donald Trump said in a statement. "He was one of the towering figures of the last 100 years — an American hero whose life and leadership truly earned him the title 'God's Ambassador.'"

Trump's predecessor Barack Obama described Graham as "a humble servant who prayed for so many — and who, with wisdom and grace, gave hope and guidance to generations of Americans."

"Billy Graham was America's pastor," said former president George H. W. Bush.

preacher was close to the Bush family, and former president George W. Bush said a private meeting with Graham in 1985 helped him quit drinking.

More recently he was portrayed in the Netflix drama series "The Crown" as giving counsel to the young Queen Elizabeth II as she confronted the burdens of rule. Graham was a pioneer of "televangelism" to convert souls to Christianity as television got off the ground in the 1950s.

Born on 7 November, 1918, he was raised as one of four children on a dairy farm in Charlotte, North Carolina.

Graham had a spiritual awakening in 1934 and enrolled in the Florida Bible Institute, now Trinity College of Florida. He was ordained as a Baptist minister in 1939. In 1950, he founded the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association (BGEA) in Minneapolis, Minnesota and launched a weekly "Hour of Decision" radio program.

Advisor to US presidents

His ministry led him to preach the gospel around the country — and the world.

Over the course of his career, he was consulted by presidents

Dwight Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy. For a time he was Richard Nixon's chaplain and golf partner. George H.W. Bush invited him to pray at the White House in 1991 for guidance through the first long day of the Gulf War.

But of all the US leaders — almost all of whom have described themselves as practicing Christians — Graham found only Jimmy Carter to match him in dedication to his faith.

"Carter alone among the presidents... taught the Bible throughout his life, wrote books of religious meditations, and needed no help with Scripture or its challenges," wrote authors Nancy Gibbs and Michael Duffy in a Graham biography, "The Preacher and the Presidents" published in August 2007.

Carter described Graham in a personal tribute as "broad-minded, forgiving, and humble in his treatment of others, he exemplified the life of Jesus Christ by constantly reaching out for opportunities to serve." Graham also has been credited with helping hasten the end of segregation in his native south by refusing to preach to segregated audiences after 1953.—AFP ■

More than 76,400 Afghan refugees return to homeland so far this year

KABUL — Over 76,400 Afghan refugees have returned or been deported from neighboring Pakistan and Iran since the beginning this year, the UN Migration Agency (IOM) reported Wednesday.

"The total number of undocumented Afghan returnees since 1 January 2018 from Pakistan is now 3,032. In the same time period, 73,390 individuals returned or were deported from Iran," said IOM in a statement. According to the agency's official figures, within the past one week, from 11 February to 17 February, some 299 undocumented Afghans returned from Pakistan, and 11,236 returned from Iran.

The IOM has provided post-arrival assistance to 90 per cent of returnees from Pakistan and 4 per cent from Iran within the period. The organization has also provided assistance to returnees in categories which included "78 Special Cases, 49 Medical Cases and two Single Females" over the past week. — Xinhua ■

Six killed in attack on South Africa police station

PORT ELIZABETH — An armed gang stormed into a rural police station in South Africa on Wednesday and stole firearms in an attack that left five officers and a soldier dead, police said.

The robbers entered the police station in the southern village of Engcobo shortly after midnight, opening fire on the officers and seizing two others, who were later shot and killed, police spokesman Vish Naidoo said.

"During the early hours of this morning six people were killed when robbers attacked Engcobo police station," Naidoo told AFP.

"Five of the six were on-duty police officers. Three police officers were killed at the police station when robbers attacked the station and randomly opened fire on the members." Naidoo said the robbers made off with firearms and bundled two other officers into a police car. The bodies of the two were later found dumped on the side of a road.

The attackers also shot and killed a soldier as they fled.

Attacks on police are common in South Africa, which has one of the highest crime rates in the world.

At least 57 police officers were killed in the line of duty in the 12 months between April 2016 and March 2017, according to the latest crime statistics available.—AFP ■

Russia delivers humanitarian aid to Syria's Latakia

LATAKIA — The Russian Center for Reconciliation of the opposing sides in Syria has delivered around 10,000 boxes of medicine to a hospital in the Syrian city of Latakia, the Center's medical officer Anton Yershov told reporters.

"The shipment includes broad-spectrum antibiotics, anti-fever drugs for children and drugs for the symptomatic treatment of various diseases," he said. More than 50 kinds of medicine have been delivered to the hospital, while around 20,000 syringes will be distributed among dozens of the city's other medical facilities.

"There is enough pill-form antibacterial drugs for seven to ten clinics to use for about two months," Yershov pointed out.—Tass ■

Scientists recreate virtual copy of Mexican underwater cave

MEXICO — Scientists from all over the world will soon be able to dive into a virtual 3-D replica of a vast underwater cave off Mexico's Yucatan peninsula, where the oldest skeleton in the Americas was found seven years ago.

Anthropologists, cave experts, archeologists and photographers are working to fashion a virtual copy of the cave known in Spanish as Hoyo Negro, or black hole, where the skeleton of Naia, a young girl, who lived more than 13,000 years ago was found in 2011.

The first results of their work were presented Wednesday night by archeologist Alberto Nava, who discovered the cave in 2007.

That cavern is part of something much bigger, believed to be the world's largest underwater cave network. Its existence was made public last month. "Some day I will have a complete replica," said Nava of the bell-shaped Hoyo Negro cave off the coast of Quintana Roo state.

The exact location is being kept secret by the National Institute of Anthropology and History in order to protect it from being raided.

Scientists around the world are drooling over the fossils found in the cave: the remains of 42 animals from the late Pleistocene period, including saber tooth tigers. Scientists say that 13,000 years ago the sea level there was 80 to 100 meters lower than today.

Naia's remains, almost a complete skeleton, were from a female who apparently entered the cave even though she probably knew it was risky, experts said.—AFP ■

Gaza to pump sewage straight into sea as crisis worsens

GAZA — Municipalities in Gaza announced Wednesday they will pump sewage straight into the sea from the Palestinian coastal enclave due to fuel shortages and the desperate humanitarian situation in the strip.

"The beaches of the Gaza Strip will be completely closed and sewage will be pumped into the sea because the municipalities are unable to provide fuel" for treatment plants, said Nizar Hejazi, head of the Gaza City municipality.

Hejazi also noted "the policy of collective punishment (which) continues to be imposed on the population," in a statement representing municipalities across the strip.

"We announce a state of emergency in the cities and municipalities of the Gaza Strip," Hejazi said, noting services would be cut by as much as 50 per cent.

The only power plant in Gaza stopped operating last week due to lack of fuel, leaving the strip totally reliant on imports.

Israel has imposed a crippling blockade on Gaza for more than a decade, while Egypt has also largely sealed its border in recent years, with both citing security measures.

Residents currently receive only a couple of hours power per day.

The Rafah crossing with Egypt was opened for four days from Wednesday for humanitarian cases, only the second such opening this year.

Last month the United Nations envoy warned the enclave was on the verge of "full collapse".—AFP ■

Precision cancer therapy works in 3/4 of patients

MIAMI — A precision cancer treatment that targets rare genetic mutations that exist in about 5,000 people in the United States instead of the tumor's location in the body has shown success in three-quarters of patients, researchers said Wednesday.

The medicine, called larotrectinib, is made by Loxo Oncology of Stamford, Connecticut and was granted breakthrough therapy designation by the US Food and Drug Administration in 2016. Taken orally once or twice a day, it interferes with an on-switch for cancer growth caused by an acquired genetic defect, known as tropomyosin receptor kinase (TRK) fusions.

"This is truly a magic bullet for our patients with TRK-positive cancer," said co-author Leo Mascarenhas, deputy director of the Children's Center for Cancer and Blood Diseases at Children's Hospital Los Angeles.

Infants, children, adolescents and adults with a range of cancers -- including salivary gland, infantile fibrosarcoma, thyroid, colon, lung, gastrointestinal, melanoma and other cancers -- were included in the study published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

The 55 patients ranged in age from four months to 76 years, and entered the trial from 2015 to 2017. They suffered from either locally advanced cancers or tumors that had spread to other parts of the body.

Three quarters of patients enrolled responded to the therapy, typically within two months of starting the regimen.

"A total of 13 percent of the patients (seven patients) had a complete response, 62 percent (34) had a partial response," said the report.

Another 13 percent (seven) had stable disease. Nine percent (five) had progressive disease, and four percent (2) could not be evaluated because their conditions deteriorated or they withdrew from the study.

"No patients discontinued treatment due to drug-related side effects," said the report.

An initial analysis of the trial -- carried out at more than two dozen sites around the world

-- was released at a major US cancer conference in June 2017.

If larotrectinib gains approval for wider use, it could treat thousands of patients with these forms of cancer around the world.

Researchers don't know exactly how many people could be helped by the treatment globally, since current screening practices often do not test for this particular genetic flaw.

"Screening strategies that include assays with the ability to detect TRK fusions will be needed in order to identify patients who may benefit from larotrectinib," said the report.

TRK fusions are found in a range of cancer types but tend to be unusual in common cancers, occurring in between 0.2 per cent and three percent of cases.—AFP ■

Trump suggests arming teachers at emotional meeting with shooting survivors

WASHINGTON—US President Donald Trump suggested arming teachers to deter mass shootings as he faced broken voices, tears and demands for action at a meeting with survivors of the gun rampage that killed 17 people at a Florida high school.

Trump also promised “very strong” background checks on gun owners during the poignant “listening session” on Wednesday, in which he heard first-hand accounts from bereaved parents and friends, and schoolchildren who narrowly escaped with their own lives.

As he sat with these people, Trump was photographed holding a piece of paper with notes suggesting questions or other things to say to them.

As seen on the photographs, these included “What would you most want me to know about your experience?” and “I hear you.” Social media lit up with criticism of Trump’s apparent need for help in sounding compassionate to people who are suffering.

Trump’s proposal to arm educators received a cool response, too, from a teacher who survived the shooting as well as the local sheriff at a town hall meeting in Florida.

“A gun-free zone, to a maniac -- because they are all cowards -- a gun-free zone is ‘Let’s go in and let’s attack,’ Trump said.

“If you had a teacher who was adept at firearms, they could very well end the attack very quickly,” Trump said, suggesting that 20 percent of a school’s teachers could be trained to carry concealed weapons.

“This would only be obviously for people who are very adept at handling a gun,” Trump added.

The televised White House meeting came as students staged street protests across the country to demand stricter gun laws following the murder of 14 teens and three teachers at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Florida.

Holding signs reading “Never Again” and “Be The Adults, Do Something,” teenaged survivors of last Wednesday’s shooting rallied outside the Florida state Capitol in Tallahassee. “No longer can I walk the

The White House meeting was attended by Stoneman Douglas students, their parents and also the parents of victims of the Columbine, Sandy Hook and other shootings.

Fresh rocket fire on Syria enclave kills 13

GHOUTA — Rockets fired by Syrian regime forces killed at least 13 civilians in the besieged rebel-held enclave of Eastern Ghouta near Damascus on Thursday, a monitor said.

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said at least 13 people were killed in Douma, the main town in Eastern Ghouta, three of them children.

“It was raining on the area so there are no war-planes but it seems the regime chose to use rockets instead,” Rami Abdel Rahman, the head of the Britain-based war monitor, said.

“The rocket fire hasn’t stopped this morning. Around 200 ground-to-ground rockets struck Douma alone,” he said, adding that the number of wounded across the enclave on Thursday topped 120.

The latest deaths brought to at least 335 the number of civilians killed since Sunday, when the regime intensified its bombardment of Eastern Ghouta.

According to state media and the Observatory, at least 15 people have been killed by mortar rounds and rockets fired in the other direction, by Islamist and jihadist groups, over the same period. —AFP ■

Explosive device thrown into US embassy compound in Montenegro

PODGORICA — A suicide attacker blew himself up after throwing an explosive device into the US embassy compound in Podgorica, the Montenegrin government said Thursday.

Authorities in Podgorica have not released any theories as to the motive for the attack in the country which recently joined NATO despite opposition from some of the population and from where a number of jihadists have travelled to Iraq and Syria.

“In front of the @USEmbassy MNE building in #Podgorica, #Montenegro an unknown person committed suicide with an explosive device.

Immediately before, that person threw an explosive device,” the government tweeted, saying the device was “most probably” a hand grenade.

It said the attacker threw the explosive device “into the US embassy compound” from an intersection near a sports centre.

An AFP correspondent was unable to reach the site as police sealed off the area.

A US State Department spokesperson confirmed “a small explosion near the US Embassy compound” saying officials were “working closely with police to identify the assailant(s)”. On its Twitter account, the embassy said it had cancelled all visa services for Thursday, adding that access for US citizens “will be available today on an emergency basis”.

A guard at the sports centre who asked not to be named said he “heard two explosions, one after another”. “Police came very quickly and the body of a man was taken away,” he told AFP.—AFP ■

Aamir to shoot 'Thugs of Hindostan' climax in Rajasthan

MUMBAI — Aamir Khan's big release this year - "Thugs of Hindostan" - is nearing completion as the superstar says the last leg of shooting remains, which will be wrapped up in Rajasthan by the end of next month. Produced by Yash Raj Films, the Vijay Krishna Acharya film brings together Aamir and megastar Amitabh Bachchan for the first time on screen.

"I am going abroad for a few days. Once I am back, we will resume shooting the climax in Rajasthan. The film will be completed by March end," Aamir told reporters when asked about the status of the film. Last year, pictures of Aamir and Bachchan's looks had leaked from the film set.

Aamir had then said, "Ideally, the pictures should not have been leaked" and he maintains that the first look will only be put out with an official poster.

"My look is still (being) kept under wraps. Of course, I am wearing the earrings and the nose ring, but my hair is quite long in the film and that will be out with the poster," he said.

"Thugs..." also star's Katrina Kaif and Fatima Sana Shaikh.

The actor was speaking at the success bash of his last production "Secret Superstar" here last night. Commenting on the massive success of the film not only in India, but also in China, Aamir said, "Some of my films have released in China and I've realised their emotional frequency is very similar to ours. Indian stories touch their hearts. Because our cultures are similar, I feel when we watch their films too we will like them." — PTI ■

Stormzy storms Brits as grime makes mark at pop showpiece

LONDON — Grime star Stormzy was the big winner at the Brit Awards in London on Wednesday, which included an emotional tribute from Oasis star Liam Gallagher to the victims of the Manchester terror attack.

The south London rapper, who closed out the show with a water-soaked performance, beat off competition from folk-pop phenomenon Ed Sheeran to win the best male solo award and best album for "Gang Signs & Prayer".

"My mum and all my family are here, we done it!" he said on picking up his second award.

But the singer had harsh words for Prime Minister Theresa May's handling of last year's Grenfell Tower fire in London, in which 71 people died.

During a freestyle rap, he sang: "Yo, Theresa May, where's that money for Grenfell? What, you thought we just forgot about Grenfell?"

Stormzy had previously slammed the awards as being "so white", leading to sweeping changes in the ceremony's voting committee.

Rising British star Dua Lipa also claimed two awards for best female solo artist and best breakthrough artist, as Sheeran had an unexpectedly disappointing night.

US singer Ariana Grande was set to perform in honour of the 22 victims who died in a May terror attack at her Manchester show, but was forced to pull out due to illness.

agher instead stepped in, performing a stirring rendition of Oasis classic "Live Forever", with the cavernous O2 Arena lit up by thousands of mobile phone torches.

Kendrick Lamar was named best international male artist, receiving his award from football star Harry Kane, while Foo Fighters won the best international group category.

The US rapper later performed live, standing on top of a huge box containing a sports car, which was smashed to pieces as the song went on.

- White roses in solidarity -

The Brits have often been a magnet for controversy -- Pulp singer Jarvis Cocker invaded a performance by Michael Jackson in 1996 and then-deputy prime minister John Prescott was doused by a bucket of ice water in 1998.

There were few drunken antics this year, although Gorillaz frontman Damon Albarn was cut off short when it appeared he was about to wax political during his acceptance speech for best British group.

"This country is a lovely place, it's part of a beautiful world, but don't let it become isolated," he said.

But the entire ceremony had a political edge, with many stars wearing badges of small white roses to highlight sexual harassment in the industry and show solidarity with its victims.

"I think it's brilliant that it's come to the fore now," said Paloma Faith, who arrived holding real white roses. "But I just think I've not met a single woman in my entire life that hasn't experienced some kind of sexism or sexual harassment of any kind."

Singer-guitarist Sheeran, 27, was awarded the "global success" award, given to him by Rolling Stones guitarist Ronnie Wood who praised his talent and his ability to keep "his feet on the ground". His latest album "Divide" has smashed many records, including on streaming App Spotify, where it received 57 million listens on the day of its release. — AFP ■

Amitabh Bachchan starts following Cong leaders on Twitter, triggers speculation

NEW DELHI — Bollywood superstar Amitabh Bachchan has started following some senior Congress leaders on Twitter of late, triggering speculation over his sudden interest in the party that he was once close to and had later drifted away from.

After following Congress president Rahul Gandhi and the party's official Twitter handle, he began following senior party like leaders P Chidambaram, Kapil Sibal, Ahmed Patel, Ashok Gehlot, Ajay Maken, Jyotiraditya Scindia, Sachin Pilot and CP Joshi from this month. He recently also started following party leaders Manish Tewari, Shakeel Ahmed, Sanjay Nirupam, Randeep Surjewala Priyanka Chaturvedi and Sanjay Jha on the micro-blogging site. Bachchan, who was once close to the Nehru-Gandhi family and was a friend of Rajiv Gandhi, is currently the brand ambassador of Gujarat. He has over 33.1 million followers on Twitter and follows only 1,689 people. His sudden love for the Congress and some other opposition leaders has taken the party by surprise.

Some other opposition leaders whom the actor has started following recently, include RJD chief Lalu Prasad, his daughter Misa Bharti, JD(U)'s Nitish Kumar, CPI-M's Sitaram Yechury. He also follows the RJD's official Twitter handle, NC's Omar Abdullah and NCP's Supriya Sule. — PTI ■

MUMBAI — Filmmaker Vishal Bhardwaj has postponed the shooting of his film, starring Deepika Padukone and Irrfan Khan, citing health concerns of the two actors. While Irrfan has been diagnosed with a severe case of jaundice, Deepika's back injury, which the actor suffered while filming "Padmaavat" has resurfaced, the director said in a Facebook post. The shooting for the film was expected to start from next month in Nepal. "I am pushing back the film by a few months as both of my lead actors are down with different health problems. Irrfan is down with jaundice and it will take him a few weeks to recover and Deepika Padukone's back problem which had previously developed during the shooting of Padmaavat has now resurfaced.

"Her role in the film is very physically demanding and the doctor has advised her not to do any strenuous work for a couple of months... I want both of them to be strong and fit before we start the film," Bhardwaj wrote. The director also clarified that the film is not based on underworld don Sapna Didi's life.

He, however, asserted that her story was initially a reference point to the subject. Produced by Prerna Arora's Kri-Arj Entertainment, the movie is an adaptation of S Hussain Zaidi's book "Mafia Queens of Mumbai". Earlier, the movie was said to be based on the life and times of Ashraf Khan, popularly known as Sapna Didi, who was a feared name in the underworld. "I would also like to clear that the film is still untitled and is not based on Rahima Khan/Sapna Didi's life. Yes, it's a take-off from the story Femme Fatale from Hussain Zaidi's book 'Mafia Queens of Mumbai' but as we worked on this idea, the story and screenplay have taken on a new identity and shape which is nowhere close to the above-mentioned names. Hence, it's definitely not a biopic," Bhardwaj wrote. He added the look tests of the main leads have come out "exceptionally well". "In the past few weeks, I felt like I was back in the days 'Maqbool' while prepping with them. Deepika and Irrfan's look tests have come out exceptionally well." While this is Deepika's first film with Bhardwaj, Irrfan would reunite with the director for the fourth time, after "Maqbool", "7 Khoon Maaf" and "Haider". Deepika has previously worked with the actor in "Piku".—PTI ■

National Museum revives art exhibitions

By Zaw Gyi

THE National Museum of Yangon, the Ministry of Religious Affairs and Culture, the Department of Archaeology, and the National Museum and Library have organised the Museum Activity Art Exhibition, open to the public from 20 to 28 February at the National Museum.

The exhibit features 73 pieces of art by 73 famous traditional and modern artists ranging from oil paintings to watercolours.

The paintings depict the scenery of Myanmar, its traditional clothing, traditional festivals, and portraits of national leaders.

The National Museum's Chief Director, Daw Nang Laung Ngin, said the museum had not collected art pieces since 1990. Now the museum is collaborating with collectors and contemporary artists to help bridge the gap. She said there will be future exhibitions to showcase the museum's collections that have been out of the public eye for too long.

In addition, U Lun Kwaye and other artists will give a painting demonstration on 26 and 27 February and they will donate the paintings to the National Museum.

A panel called Museum Talk was also held on 21 February at which U Lun Kwaye and other artists talked about the connection between the museum and artists.

The exhibit will open daily from 9am to 4pm. ■

Biopic explores secret scandal behind 'Pippi Longstocking'

BERLIN — A dark secret long held by Swedish author Astrid Lindgren led her to create one of the most beloved heroines of children's literature, Pippi Longstocking, according to a new biopic at the Berlin film festival.

"Becoming Astrid" by Danish filmmaker Pernille Fischer Christensen exposes the little-known backstory behind one of the world's most enduring girl characters, with her gravity-defying red plaits, abundant freckles and superhuman strength.

While still a teenager in conservative Sweden in the 1920s, the then Astrid Ericsson had an affair with her boss, the married editor-in-chief of the local newspaper, and fell pregnant.

The film examines the wrenching choices she was forced to make as a result, and the life lessons she drew.

"What happened here in this story made Astrid a really, really strong person," Fischer Christensen said. "One of the things she might have learned from this is you have to think for yourself."

"(Enlightenment philosopher Immanuel) Kant also said this but Astrid Lindgren says these things in a very, very simple way that just enters you when you are a child."

Fischer Christensen, 48, who called Lindgren "one of the most innovative and influential artists of our time", said Lindgren and her characters set an example for generations of people. "I would not be the same person if I had not had Pippi," she said.

Cast out

The movie, which drew enthusiastic applause and a lot of tears at a press preview, introduces Astrid as a teenager living on her family's farm in a close-knit but judgemental tiny community.

Taken with her writing talent and independent streak, the editor, Blomberg, offers her a job but quickly falls in love with her and they begin a discreet affair. When she becomes pregnant, Blomberg insists he wants to marry her, but his wife refuses to give him a divorce and threatens to press adultery charges.—AFP ■

Aung La N Sang vs Brazilian champ in MMA matchup today

ONE Championship returns to Yangon with Myanmar hero Aung La N Sang in an MMA fight against Brazilian heavyweight champion Alexandre Machado for the title of ONE Light Heavyweight World Champion at Thuwanna indoor stadium in Yangon tonight.

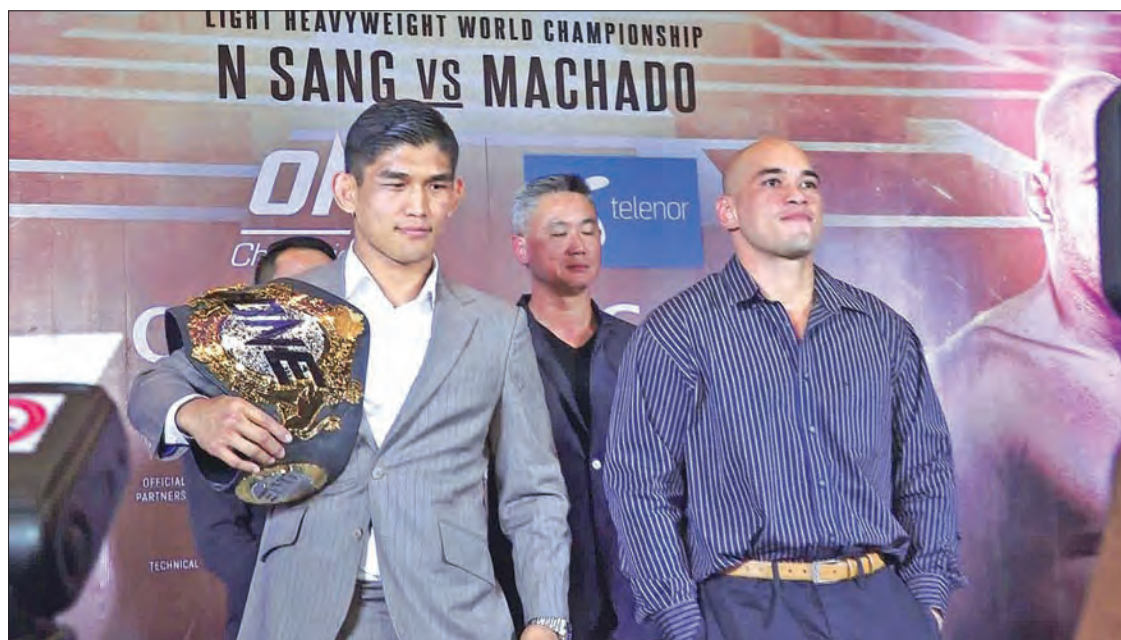

Aung La N Sang, also known as the Burmese Python, will fight against Machado in front of a partisan hometown crowd.

The fighters met with media representatives on Tuesday.

Aung La N Sang said he is ready and excited to compete for his second divisional belt.

He revealed that the unwavering fan support gives him strength and confidence.

"I am very excited for the upcoming championship fight. My opponent's jiu-jitsu skills are very excellent. I trained with the best trainer in Florida, USA. I am gaining weight for the fight.

The competitor is a really good athlete, so I trained to learn the top defence techniques for it. I think I will need to fight with him for two or three rounds. I have confidence for the championship," said ONE Middleweight World Champion Aung La N Sang.

Alexandre Machado, the Brazilian Heavyweight champion, also said he has trained six weeks for the fight, preparing for both physical and psychological challenges as he will face a Myanmar crowd that will not be in his favour. "MMA is rather unpredictable because there are a lot of techniques involved in it. I have been training and preparing every possible technique for the fighting. There are lots of fans out there for Aung La, but I am also confident about my fight and I have no pressure on it."

Machado is heavyweight champion in Brazil, and also holds a black belt in jiu-jitsu.

Aung La N Sang won the ONE Middleweight World Championship in November by beating Alain Ngalani with a guillotine chokehold with just 29 seconds remaining in the first round.

Whoever wins tonight match will become a two division world champion.

The other bout scheduled for this evening will be featherweight fighter Phoe Thaw, who goes up against Sor Sey of Cambodia. —KyawZin Lin ■

Kanazaki brace leads Antlers to away win in ACL

SUWON — Mu Kanazaki scored in the opening stages of each half to lift J-League side Kashima Antlers to a 2-1 Asian Champions League Group H victory over Suwon Samsung Bluewings on Tuesday. Kanazaki broke the ice in the eighth minute at Suwon World Cup Stadium in South Korea, shooting into the bottom corner of the net at the far post. He added his second off a corner in the 59th minute, the Antlers target man bundling home the ball from point-blank range after teammate Yuma Suzuki's header was blocked. "Our opponents played stronger (at home). To get three points with that in mind was really big," Kanazaki said.

"This is a product of every player linking up on defense and attack, and competing aggressively," Antlers manager Go Oiwa said. "Scoring first was big."
