President U Win Myint delivers speech

(The following is the official transcript of the speech delivered by President U Win Myint at the opening ceremony of the 4th BIMSTEC Summit)

I would like to express our profound thanks and appreciation to the Government and the people of Nepal for the warm and generous hospitality extended to me and my delegation.

It is my honor to attend this meeting for the first time and I truly believe that our meeting will provide opportunities to exchange views and explore ways and means to strengthen BIMSTEC cooperation.

At the Third BIMSTEC Summit, held in Nay Pyi Taw in 2014, we agreed to deepen cooperation within the framework of BIMSTEC and strengthen institutional mechanism. The member states also reached an agreement for the establishment of a permanent BIMSTEC Secretariat in Dhaka and appointment of the Secretary General.

I would also like to congratulate the first Secretary-General Mr. Sumith Nakandala for his active and valuable contribution. Let me also take this opportunity to welcome Mr. Shahidul Islam as the second Secretary General of BIMSTEC.

I would like to congratulate the Government of India for the successful hosting of the BIMSTEC Leaders' Retreat in October 2016. The Outcome Document and Agenda of Action of the BIMSTEC Leaders' Retreat are indeed a practical guideline for BIMSTEC cooperation.

Agriculture is the mainstay of economy for many of us. It further contributes to the regional sustainable development in terms of food security and nutrition.

One of the daunting challenges of the world is to ensure food and nutrition security for the rapidly growing population, which is estimated to reach 9.6 billion by 2050. There is no exception for BIMSTEC region which is home to 22 % of the global population.

While appreciating the excellent work done by the BIMSTEC Expert Group Meeting on Agriculture, I am pleased to inform that Myanmar, as a Lead Country of the Agriculture sector, will host the first BIMSTEC Ministerial Meeting on Agriculture in Myanmar in 2018/2019 to address the emerging challenges and further enhancement of the cooperation.

Most of the Member States in our region are blessed with abundance of energy resources including hydro power. However, ever-increasing demand of electric power is always higher than that of our supply. This situation requires us to enhance energy cooperation and energy trade among the Member States in filling the energy gap within our

The signing of MoA for the establishment for BIMSTEC Energy Centre in 2009 in Myanmar marked a significant achievement of BIMSTEC energy cooperation. Our continued cooperation is vital for the early operationalization of BIMSTEC Energy Center.

I am pleased to note that MoU for the establishment of BIMSTEC Grid Interconnection will be signed during this Summit. I firmly believe that it will be a framework for electricity inter-trade among the Member States.

Connectivity plays a key role to unlock the socio-economic development and ultimately the enhancement of regional integration. I am pleased to note, with satisfaction, on the progress achieved in preparation of the draft BIMSTEC Master Plan on Transport Connectivity. At this point, I would like to express our sincere appreciation for the support of ADB in formulating the Master Plan.

Despite significant achievements of the Member States, poverty still remains a challenge for all of us.

We therefore welcome the Colombo Statement on Poverty Alleviation adopted at Third BIMSTEC Ministerial Meeting on Poverty Alleviation on 20 December 2017, which reaffirms our commitment to alleviate poverty in the BIMSTEC region to ensure dignity, improve the quality of life and well-being of the peoples.

On 5th July 2016, Myanmar deposited its Instrument of Ratification of the BIMSTEC Convention on Combating International Terrorism, Transnational Organized Crime and Illicit Drug Trafficking, which was signed in 2009.

I wish to underscore the importance of BIMSTEC National Security Chiefs Meeting as key components of the BIMSTEC's security cooperation, which provides platforms for strategic dialogue and practical cooperation for the BIMSTEC counter terrorism sector.

Myanmar took responsibility as a lead country of BIMSTEC Sub-group on Narcotic Drugs, Psychotropic Substances and Precursor Chemicals and hosted several meetings under BIMSTEC counter-terrorism and transnational crime framework.

Myanmar has been encountering the scourge of terrorism. Therefore, Myanmar attaches great importance to the issues of terrorism and trans-national crime, and assures its continued active cooperation under the BIMSTEC framework.

Trade and Investment

Although the BIMSTEC Free Trade Area Framework Agreement has been signed in 2004, we are still under negotiation in finalizing the constituent agreements. In the meantime, we should work together to promote trade and investment through exchange of trade and business delegations and organizing investment promotion events among the Member States.

Future Direction of BIMSTEC

The BIMSTEC mechanism, comprising of different layers of meetings, plays an important role for steering BIMSTEC activities. However, I am of the view that formulation of the Rules of Procedure of BIMSTEC mechanism would be a key to effective and efficient cooperation. We welcome the idea to draft the Rules of Procedure which would be a basis for formulation of the future BIMSTEC Charter.

Simultaneous implementation of 14+2 cooperation areas will not be feasible for BIMSTEC due to financial and resources constraints. Therefore, we have to prioritize some of our projects for effective implementation.

We understand that funding is a matter of concern for the mechanism. Therefore, we welcome the idea to explore the alternative financial resources for our cooperation. In the meantime, we should expand our engagements with the development partners for implementing our common projects.

In conclusion, I would like to reiterate our firm commitment to strengthen BIMSTEC cooperation towards "Peaceful, Prosperous and Sustainable Bay of Bengal Region".

Later in the night, President U Win Myint and First Lady Daw Cho Cho attended a formal dinner and cultural show hosted by the Prime Minister of Nepal, together with other heads of state and high-ranking government officials from BIMSTEC member countries.—Myanmar News Agency ■

Vice President U Myint Swe attends fourth coord meeting on establishing satellite system

VICE President U Myint Swe, Chairman of the Leading committee on establishing satellite system attended the fourth coordination meeting of the committee at the Ministry of Transport and Communications in Nay Pyi Taw yesterday morning.

The meeting was attended by Union Minister for Defence Lt-Gen Sein Win, Union Minister from the Office of the State Counsellor U Kyaw Tint Swe, Union Minister for Transport and Communications U Thant Sin Maung, Union Minister for Education Dr. Myo Thein Gyi, Union Attorney General U Tun Tun Oo, Deputy Minister U Tha Oo, Deputy Attorney General U Win Myint, Permanent Secretaries and officials.

In his opening address to the meeting the Vice President said this is the fourth coordination meeting of the committee and the 13-member committee led by the Vice President was setup to implement seven tasks.

Under the management of the committee, a 9-member work committee led by Union Minister for Transport and Communications was formed and was implementing six tasks. In addition to this to support the leading committee and to implement the works quickly, three sub-committees, Myanmar-owned satellite system technical sub-committee, Myanmar-owned satellite system legal affairs and rules sub-committee and Myanmar-owned satellite transponder leasing sub-committee were formed. The leading committee has conducted three coordination meetings where sixteen decisions were made. Of the sixteen, thirteen were conducted and three are still to be done. The three ongoing works are time consuming works and target time need to be established in implementing them. Implementation of establishing own satellite system is conducted in three steps. The first step is to lease other country's satellite transponder and at the moment MyanmarSat-1 is being leased. Second step is joint ownership and to implement this step, on 1 June 2018, Ministry of Transport and Communications, Department of Information Technology and Cyber Security signed an agreement with Intelsat Global Sales & Marketing Limited. The amount required for the agreement is US$ 155.7 million and 30 percent of this is to be paid twice in the 2018 six month budget. In fiscal year 2018-2019, 50 percent will be paid in four installments and in fiscal year 2019-2020 the remaining 20 percent will be paid in two installments.

The jointly owned MyanmarSat-2 will be used with new technologies in June 2019 and is believed to provide better benefits. In this satellite, Myanmar will use six 432 MHz C-band and six 432 MHz Ku-band totaling 864 MHz. Relevant ministries are to draw up systematic plans to use the leased satellite channels effectively in education, health and other sectors and to consider other pros and cons when drawing up the plans.

It is understood that Migration Plan Schedule and status of machineries and equipment were explained to relevant departments by Department of Information Technology and Cyber Security at the technical sub-committee meeting held on 25 April 2018.

The third step is to launch a Myanmar wholly owned satellite. This step will be conducted when satellite channel usage increases, technological experience has been obtained and when we could control the satellite on our own. Launching a wholly owned satellite is expensive and as a first priority, efforts will be made toward launching a less expensive Earth Observation Micro-Satellite. Hokkaido University, Japan has proposed to launch such a satellite it is learnt.

It is learnt that discussions had been held with relevant ministries for the specifications of the payload camera and sensors. Once this is determined, expenditures (estimate) sent by Hokkaido University, Japan will be reviewed and the required processes and best payment methods need to be selected and conducted, said the Vice President. Space Laws are to be collected and prepared to establish a Space Agency and if required sub-committees are to be formed to launch Earth Observation Micro-Satellite. Meeting attendees are urged to openly suggest and discuss toward successful implementation of partly owned MyanmarSat-2 satellite and the aim of launching a wholly owned satellite, said the Vice President.

Next, work committee chairman Union Minister for Transport and Communications U Thant Sin Maung explained about works conducted on establishing a satellite system.

Afterwards, Union Ministers Lt-Gen Sein Win and Dr. Myo Thein Gyi, Union Attorney General U Tun Tun Oo, Deputy Minister U Tha Oo, Permanent Secretaries, sub-committee members and meeting attendees explained, discussed and suggested on sector wise works conducted. The Vice President gave advice and instructions based on suggestions and subject matters presented at the meeting. The meeting came to a close after a concluding speech by the Vice President.—Myanmar News Agency ■

Roundtable discussion on reviewing political dialogue framework continues

A roundtable discussion on reviewing the framework for political dialogue with government, Hluttaw and Tatmadaw groups was continued at the National Reconciliation and Peace Center in Nay Pyi Taw yesterday morning.

In the discussion, Prof. Christina Murray, an international expert on federalism, shared her experiences of participating in political discussions and answered to questions asked by the attendants.

Pyithu Hluttaw representative Daw Mi Kun Chan of Paung constituency said, "Peace experience of South Africa, Yemen and Kenya were discussed by foreign experts. We discussed on how it could benefit our country."

As I'm from a government organisation, in the work committee, if each group's thoughts, weaknesses and group wise requirements were discussed and requirements fulfilled, the work process will speed up. The review is conducted to support this. As we have many ethnic nationals, our federal may not be as same as other federals. Based on this, we'll have to negotiate our federal. How did they resolve their federal? Which path did they take? But we will have to decide. The way we decide may be the same but the way we work could not be the same, added Daw Mi Kun Chan.

Director-General U Aung Naing Oo from Ministry of Planning and Finance said, "The main aim of the discussion was to take lesson from the peace talk process in South Africa, Kenya and Yemen based on their strength, weaknesses, success and failures." We obtain suggestion on what we should do based on their experiences. We got to know some matters that we didn't know. Our country's situation is not the same as other countries. They concluded that what we are doing here is appropriate to the situation. The discussion will support to a certain extent in reviewing the framework for political dialogue, said U Aung Naing Oo.

The workshop was continued in the afternoon where attendants reviewed the organisation and setup of political dialogue framework, discussed basic principles and reviewed national-level political dialogue matters.

U Zaw Win, a participant in the discussion said framework for political dialogue should be selected from centralization or decentralization methods. Whatever method is used, it is best to strive toward the people's acceptance. Lack of skilled workers should not be one of the most troubling concerns of Myanmar

WITH easing restrictions on foreign direct investment to attract strong businesses, we should prepare to supply skilled employees to the upcoming manufacturing industry which will create job opportunities in the country. For example, the Yangon Region Government has permitted 58 factories including garments factories in the region after the new Myanmar Investment Law was enacted and the total number of garment factories has reached 377 in the region.

But, the weak point for the manufacturing industry is the shortage of skilled labour.

We are taking a pragmatic approach to produce more skilled workers in Myanmar who can meet the changing requirements of the labour market as the country is in need of skilled labour to compete with regional countries.

With the advantage of a large workforce, we can supply adequate labour with low-skill to the manufacturing industry, but skilled labourers are very rare to find.

To upgrade the skills of workers and to build up capacity, more technical and vocational schools have been opened.

The government is also striving to produce ASEAN level skilled workers. We are allowing the private sector to cooperate with the Union Government to produce more skilled workers.

The NSSA – National Skills Standard Authority has been formed on the PPP (Public, Private, Partnership) model with the Labor, Immigration and Population Ministry taking the lead.

We are now working to supervise, manage and establish skills standards according to priority areas; to register and provide accreditation to training departments, assessment and inspection departments including the private sector according to sectors; and to produce systems for inspection and accreditation in accordance with national level skills standard frameworks.

The Ministry of Labour, Immigration and Population has set up skills development training centres and provided training to workers to enhance their technical capability.

According to the statistics up to April, 2018, the Ministry of Labour, Immigration and Population issued totaling 3022 Vocational Training Certificates including some 2930 Level-one skilled workers and some 92 Level-two skilled workers in accordance with the standard of the National Skills Standards Authority (NSSA).

Employers can also send their workers to the training centres of the ministry which can grant the certificates of International Skills Standards Authority-NSSA to workers needed to prove their skills to foreign and local investors. Under the 2013 Employment and Skill Development Law, NSSA has cooperated with local and international organizations to provide knowledge and skills for the local labour force.

A lack of skilled workers should not be one of the most troubling concerns of Myanmar and employers should not face an uphill battle in the coming years to recruit and retain workers.

Round-table discussion on economy

By Khin Yadana

In order to materialize a market-oriented economy, cooperation plays a vital role in the economic growth and overall development of a nation. With an aim for the emergence of a market-oriented economy and enhancing socio-economic life of the people, a round-table discussion by officials concerned from the Ministry of Commerce was held at MRTV in Nay Pyi Taw on August 9. Following are comments made by U Aung Htoo, Deputy Minister for Commerce, and U Aung Soe, Director General for Myanmar's Trade Promotion Organization.

Q: Well, as far as I heard, the Central Committee for Myanmar Special Economic Zones (SEZs) held a coordination meeting recently. As the Director General for Myanmar's Trade Promotion Organization, could you elaborate on the latest development of the Kyaukpau Special Economic Zone?

U Aung Soe: In Myanmar, we have enacted the Special Economic Zone Law and the ministry has re-promulgated the Myanmar Special Zone Law, 2014. In order to implement the Special Economic Zones in accordance with policies laid down by the government, a SEZ management committee has been formed, chaired by Vice President-2 U Henry Van Thio. We have identified three Special Economic Zones, namely, the Thilawa SEZ in Yangon Region, Dawei SEZ in Taninthayi Region and Kyaukpau SEZ in Rakhine State, respectively.

The Thilawa SEZ has executed the 'run' phase, and the other Dawei and Kyaukpau SEZs are still in the stages of implementation.

We have received many contracts for the Dawei SEZ. There are plans are under way to initiate road paving from Dawei to the Thai border in Htee Kee. I am sure that both the Dawei SEZ and Taninthayi Region will enjoy regional development upon completion of the road construction project.

In our country, many special economic zones are being implemented aiming to boost the productivity and to promote industrial products that can contribute to the export-led growth of the economy. The Kyaukpau SEZ is accessible to China, India and ASEAN corridors, and it has promising opportunities for the people and the region. We are making necessary arrangements and coordinating with local and international tender-winning companies to carry out the projects. As part of our efforts, a SEZ management committee has been formed with Deputy Minister U Set Aung as chairman and Dr. Soe Win as joint chairman. Cooperation is being made to proceed according to the framework agreement of the Kyaukpau SEZ, with the aim of providing job opportunities for local nationals and conducting work systematically. Time is to be valued and progress is needed to achieve success in the shortest possible time. The Kyaukpau SEZ consists of an industrial park and a deep-sea port. The framework agreement of the deep-sea port is nearly completed, and it is very crucial for the regional development process and creating employment opportunities for the people and the state. The Kyaukpau SEZ has linked with One Belt, One Road and is expected to become a major economic center of the region.

The progress of economic zones is of great importance in achieving the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals. Job opportunities can be created in areas where the zones are set up. Hence, we need to ensure our projects are successful and enjoy a good socio-economic life. While setting up special economic zones in the country, concerns were raised over the Kyaukpau Deep Seaport and over Myanmar being at risk of walking into a debt trap as a result of the seaport, included in the Kyaukpau SEZ in Rakhine State. We are fully aware of the concerns expressed by observers and academics regarding the debt issue, or the 'debt trap'. Myanmar is not walking into a debt trap. There are reasons for implementing it. This project is based on demand and not on supply. And the size of the project will be tailored according to Myanmar's needs. That's why the government will not borrow any funds and will not relinquish any of its sovereignty.

“And the size of the project (Kyaukpau Deep Seaport) will be tailored according to Myanmar's needs. That's why the government will not borrow any funds and will not relinquish any of its sovereignty.

To implement the project, Myanmar is mindful of similar patterns from other countries and has taken lessons from them. The Kyaukpau Deep Seaport project is part of the economic corridor of China's Belt and Road Initiative and the two countries will approach this in such a way to ensure it becomes a win-win situation for both. Regarding this, authorities concerned have made progress during negotiations over the Kyaukpau Deep Seaport. Both sides have agreed to construct the port in stages and the construction would be carried out step by step, according to EIA and SIA standards, gradually expanding the project in phases.

Q: Another question I would like to raise concerns the current economic conditions in Myanmar. What is your opinion on measures needed to be taken in order to boost the economic development?

U Aung Htoo, Deputy Minister: The answer would be very controversial, based on different perspectives. It may also differ in approaches, suggested by social media and journals. The government has said that economic growth is on the rise, but some have argued that the situation of Myanmar's economy is shrinking. In fact, the economy in Myanmar has been steadily increasing. According to the forecasts of the Asia Development Bank (ADB), Myanmar's GDP is expected to grow by 6.8% in 2018 and by 7.3% in 2019. All these speculations are based on Capital Output Ratio and total investment volume in a year in Myanmar. Thus, this speculation is not different between the ADB and IMF, as far as I can see. Another intriguing point is that the Gross Domestic Product per capita in Myanmar is recorded at US$1400. We are in need of domestic and foreign direct investment flows, besides the OAD loans.

During the tenure of the incumbent government, more emphasis is being placed on economic stability, also known as macroeconomic stability. The government has been making relentless efforts to improve basic infrastructure services — clean water, sewages, roads, electricity, telecommunications, to name a few — to support the basic livelihood of citizens and businesses. A number of investments should be made in the market to boost the production, education and health care sectors, so that the citizens of the country can create better opportunities and higher socio-economic lives for their future.

Over $1.48 billion FDI brought into country in five months

By Nyein Nyein

Over US$1.48 billion of foreign direct investments were brought into the country from April to August.

The Myanmar Investment Commission (MIC) targeted US$3 billion during the six months (April to September) interim period and it is facing difficulties to meet the target with the current inflow of foreign investments.

"FDI can reach around $2 billion during the interim period, with increased investments and more foreign investment inflow in September," said U Than Aung Kyaw, Deputy Director-General for the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration.

A total of 65 foreign enterprises received permits and endorsements, bringing in a capital of $770.5 million, as of August in the current six-month interim period (April to September) prior to next fiscal year 2018-2019. Overall foreign direct investments of $1.48 billion flowed into the country so far, including increased investments and investments of over $171 million in Thilawa Special Economic Zone.

Four foreign and four domestic investment projects received permits and endorsements at the MIC meeting (13/2018) held on 25 August.

Those foreign enterprises were approved permits and endorsements by MIC and Ayeyawady Region Investment Committee, bringing in a capital of US$192.4 million. They are to be engaged in manufacturing, real estate and other sectors, creating 2,985 local employment opportunities.

In the same period, four domestic enterprises with a capital of approximately Ks22.7 billion were approved by MIC and the respective investment committees of Sagaing and Ayeyawady regions. They will be executing in real estate, manufacturing and other sectors, creating 350 job opportunities for local residents.

A total of 73 domestic enterprises made investments of $176.57 million (Ks863 billion) in the past five months. Total domestic investment flow exceeded $177.7 million (Ks893 billion).

At present, 60 per cent of foreign investments were brought into Yangon Region. Mandalay attracts 30 per cent of investments. Other regions and states attain only small portion of investments, according to the statistics released by the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration. ■

THE volume of rice and broken rice export is estimated at 909,376 metric tons from 1 April to 17 August 2018, earning US$315 million, according to an announcement by the Myanmar Rice Federation (MRF).

Over 100 new companies daily register on MyCO

By Nyein Nyein

OVER 100 new companies are daily registering on MyCO electronic registry system, said U Myo Min, Director of the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration (DICA).

According to Myanmar Companies Law 2017, registration and re-registration of companies through MyCO website commenced on 1 August. This month, over 1,500 new companies and 5,500 old companies have completed registration and re-registration through MyCO system.

"Every country monitors the start-up. Decreasing number of startups is somehow related to poor business performance of the country. Over 100 new companies daily register on MyCO", said U Than Aung Kyaw, Deputy Director-General of the DICA.

There are over 60,000 registered companies, according to data from the DICA. All the companies are required to re-register electronically online through Myanmar Companies Online (MyCo) system or in person at the offices of the DICA, using the prescribed forms for re-registration by 31 January 2019. Inevitably, those companies which fail to re-register within the set period will be cancelled from the list.

"Re-registration process will be smoothly finished within the set six-month period. It is regarded as sufficient time for registration", U Than Aung Kyaw continued. According to Myanmar Companies Law 2017, there is no separation for local and foreign companies. Additionally, detailed business plan is not required to be submitted to the DICA. When they submit annual returns to DICA after one year, the companies can be clearly specified, U Myo Min said. "Under new registry system, the companies can be identified as local or foreign ones. We see some foreign entities which make registration. The detailed business plans are not revealed. Companies are not required to submit an annual return to DICA during the re-registration period, but they have to submit it every year", U Myo Min maintained. ■

Rhinos and their conservation in Kenya

PARIS — Once it roamed Asia and Africa in the tens of thousands. Today, the rhinoceros has been driven to near-extinction.

Three of the five species of rhino are listed as critically endangered — their numbers decimated by poachers who kill the giant mammal for its horn, used in traditional Chinese medicine or as a supposed aphrodisiac.

The two species found in Africa are the black rhino and larger white rhino, with genetically distinct northern and southern subspecies. Together they number between 25,000 and 30,000 on the continent today.

Kenya is home to one of the largest populations of rhinos in Africa, after South Africa. It also has only two remaining female northern white rhinos, whose species is on the brink of extinction after the last male died in March.

In 1970, Kenya boasted 20,000 black rhinos — a number which plummeted 98 per cent to only 350 in 1983, but has steadily crept up to over 700 due to conservation efforts.

Kenya is a pioneer of the sanctuary approach, placing rhino in fenced-off areas under the close watch of armed rangers equipped with thermal imaging cameras and drones.

Ironically, this success comes with its own set of problems as there is limited space for these rhinos.

As a result, faced with a burgeoning human population, they cannot roam and expand their gene pool.

With black rhino populations thriving in parks in Nairobi and Nakuru, the Kenya Wildlife Service (KWS) this year decided to move 14 rhinos to a new sanctuary in Tsavo East, in the southeastern Kenya, in an operation funded by the World Wildlife Fund (WWF).

called translocations of this kind.

But in this case, all 11 animals which were moved died. The three others were not transferred.

The figure represents more than the nine rhino poached in the country in 2017. Despite the tragedy, officials underline the country's success in bringing down poaching in recent years, with 59 rhino killed in 2013. South Africa, home of the largest rhino population, has lost over 1,000 of the animals annually over the past five years, according to the group Save The Rhino.—AFP ■

Renowned Austria photographer Erich Lessing dies at 95

VIENNA—Renowned Austrian photographer Erich Lessing has died at the age of 95, Austria's Jewish community organisation, the IKG, said on Wednesday.

Lessing's career in photojournalism saw him document many of the key moments of postwar European history, such as the Hungarian Uprising of 1956 and Charles de Gaulle's 1958 visit to Algeria.

Lessing worked with the Associated Press and the Magnum Agency and his photos also appeared in publications such as Time, Paris Match and Fortune.

Born in 1923 in Vienna, the son of a dentist and a concert pianist, Lessing fled the Nazis to Palestine at the age of 16. His mother and grandmother were murdered in the Holocaust.

In 1947 he returned to Austria, having taken up his childhood hobby of photography as a profession, including for the British Army during the war.

From the 1960s he increasingly focused on art and historical subjects in his work.

He later taught photography at various venues and his work was published in around 60 volumes. In 2013 he donated 60,000 images to the archives of the Austrian National Library. —AFP ■

I get scared easily, says Shraddha Kapoor

MUMBAI—Shraddha Kapoor may or may not be the one scaring people in "Stree" but the actor says she herself gets scared easily. Her upcoming film, a horror-comedy, is based on the urban legend of Nale Ba, about a witch who knocks on people's doors at night.

Without throwing much light about her character, Shraddha, 31, said she is having fun with the mystery. "People don't know whether I am 'Stree' or not. There has to be a sense of mystery around my character, we made sure we maintain that.

"In horror films it is all about how well you built up the scare quotient, it is quite interesting. In real life, I get scared easily but I used to like watching Zee horror show. I also liked 'The Exorcism of Emily Rose' and 'The Ring'," Shraddha told PTI.

The 31-year-old actor said it was great to work with performers like Rajkummar Rao and Pankaj Tripathi in the film.

"To get the opportunity to work with them was a treat. I would actually be nervous but I would end up having so much fun with them. I have learnt so much just by observing them, it is amazing how they work," Shraddha said. —PTI ■

Star Gosling took flying lessons for new astronaut film

VENICE—Hollywood star Ryan Gosling said Wednesday that he tried to learn to fly to play astronaut Neil Armstrong in an emotional new biopic about the strong but silent space hero.

The Canadian actor renewed his Oscar-winning partnership with "La La Land" director Damien Chazelle for "First Man", which tells how Armstrong overcame tragedy after tragedy to become the first man to walk on the moon.

Gosling revealed how he took flying lessons so he could get inside the mind of the engineer and test pilot as the film opened the Venice film festival.

"I thought what I should do was learn how to fly. Neil could fly before he could drive. But not too long in when the instructor asked me to take the plane into a controlled stall, I thought 'this is a terrible idea'," the actor told reporters.

"There was a reason why Neil Armstrong was destined to be one of the best pilots of all time and I'm not. 'There was something very different about him and a lot of other astronauts,'" Gosling said.

It took a "certain breed of person to get into a plane that has never been flown before and push it to its breaking point for the sole purpose of furthering our knowledge of aeronautics".

Chazelle, who is half French and half Canadian, said the astronauts were universal heroes.

"When I first saw a Gemini I thought it was just part of the spacecraft -- but it was the whole thing. I wanted to capture how terrifying it felt searching in the void of space in flying tin cans." —AFP ■

Detroit readies for Aretha Franklin tribute concert

DETROIT—Aretha Franklin's casket is to lie in repose at her father's church on Thursday ahead of a tribute concert in her hometown Detroit and what will be a "jubilant" star-studded funeral on Friday.

Thousands of fans paid their respects at the open, golden casket of the US music icon and "Queen of Soul," who lay in state at the Charles H. Wright Museum for African American History on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The 76-year-old singer, beloved by millions around the world, died of cancer on August 16, closing the curtain on a glittering six-decade career that made her one of America's most celebrated artists.

On the second night of the public viewing, a huge queue of young and old, from babies in strollers to elderly women leaning on crutches and sitting in wheelchairs, snaked half a mile to file past her coffin.

An estimated 15,000 people came on Tuesday with a bigger crowd on Wednesday, one museum official told AFP. On Tuesday, she was dressed in a red dress with matching stilettos and on Wednesday in blue.

The funeral parlor have reportedly said Franklin will be dressed differently for each of the four days of celebration, which continues on Thursday with her coffin lying in repose at her father's New Bethel Baptist Church, where she hosted dinners and recorded an album.

In the evening a free concert honoring Franklin's life is to kick off at 6pm at the Chene Park Amphitheatre, an outdoor riverfront arena in downtown Detroit that has 5,000 seats and 1,000 lawn spaces. Headliners include Gladys Knight, The Four Tops, Dee Dee Bridgewater, Angela Davis and Angie Stone. Louis Farrakhan, the controversial leader of the Nation of Islam, is included in the line-up.

On Friday, former president Bill Clinton and Smokey Robinson are among those due to address her six-hour, invitation-only funeral with musical tributes coming from Stevie Wonder and Ariana Grande. —AFP ■

Kid you not: Goats can read your face

PARIS—Goats can distinguish smiling human faces from frowning ones on photos, and actively seek out snapshots of happier individuals, a study said Wednesday.

Shown two pictures of the same person—one with a happy expression and the other angry—20 domesticated goats in an experiment were more likely to approach the smiling image and touch it with their snout, said researchers from Europe and Brazil.

“Goats looked and interacted on average 1.4 seconds with the happy faces and 0.9 seconds with the angry faces,” study co-author Christian Nawroth of the Queen Mary University of London told AFP. “That means that goats spend approximately 50 percent more time to look and interact with happy images compared to angry ones.”

The study, published in the journal Royal Society Open Science, claims to provide the first evidence of goats reading human emotional expression.

The findings suggested “livestock species have very sophisticated minds to interpret their environment,” said Nawroth, and “likely adapt their behaviour” based on human facial expressions.

Goats, unlike dogs or horses, were not domesticated because of their ability to read and respond to human moods, but to provide their milk, meat, dung, and coats.

“The study has important implications for how we interact with livestock and other species, because the abilities of animals to perceive human emotions might be widespread and not just limited to pets,” said Nawroth’s colleague Alan McElligott.

The team found goats were even more likely to approach happy pictures when they were placed to the right of the angry image, suggesting the animals use the left side of their brain to process positive emotion. —AFP ■

OK computer: How AI could help forecast quake aftershocks

TOKYO—Lightning might not strike twice, but earthquakes can. And forecasting where aftershocks will hit might now be a little easier thanks to an assist from artificial intelligence.

Aftershocks can be more destructive than the quakes they follow, making it all the more important for experts to be able to predict them. But while seismologists have methods to forecast when aftershocks will hit and how strong they will be, there is more uncertainty about how to predict where they will strike. Hoping to address that, a group of researchers trained a “deep learning” programme with data about tens of thousands of earthquakes and aftershocks to see if they improve predictions.

“The previous baseline for aftershock forecasting has a precision of around three percent across the testing data set. Our neural network approach has a precision of around six percent,” said Phoebe DeVries, co-author of the study published in the journal Nature on Thursday. “This approach is more accurate because it was developed without a strongly held prior belief about where aftershocks ought to occur,” DeVries, a post-doctoral fellow at Harvard, told AFP.

The researchers used a type of artificial intelligence known as deep learning, which is loosely modelled on the way the human brain makes connections.—AFP ■

Fossil reveals mammals evolve by trading brood power for brain power

WASHINGTON—American researchers confirmed a fossil evidence that mammals, which have the biggest brains and produce some of the smallest litters of offspring, traded brood power for brain power during their evolution.

The study published on Wednesday in the journal Nature described fossil of an extinct mammal relative and her 38 babies, a rare one because it contains the only known fossils of babies from any mammal precursor.

The presence of so many babies or more than twice the average litter size of any living mammal revealed that it reproduced in a manner akin to reptiles, probably developing inside eggs or having just recently hatched when they died, according to the researchers from the University of Texas at Austin.

The findings may help reveal how mammals evolved a different approach to reproduction than their ancestors, which produced large numbers of offspring.

“These babies are from a really important point in the evolutionary tree,” said Eva Hoffman, who led research on the fossil as a graduate student at the University of Texas’s Jackson School of Geosciences. “They had a lot of features similar to modern mammals, features that are relevant in understanding mammalian evolution,” said Hoffman, who co-authored the study with her adviser, Jackson School Professor Timothy Rowe.

The mammal relative belonged to an extinct species of beagle-size plant-eaters called Kayentatherium wellsi that lived alongside dinosaurs about 185 million years ago. Like mammals, Kayentatherium probably had hair, according to the study. A 3D visualizations analysis revealed that the skulls of the babies were like scaled-down replicas of the adult, with skulls a tenth the size but otherwise proportional.

This finding is in contrast to mammals, which have babies that are born with shortened faces and bulbous heads to account for big brains. However, the brain is an energy-intensive organ, and pregnancy is an energy-intensive process.—Xinhua ■

Nadal speeds through, Wawrinka and del Potro too

NEW YORK — World number one and defending champion Rafael Nadal steamed into the third round on another scorching day at the US Open on Wednesday with a straight-sets win over Vasek Pospisil.

Nadal, spared the worst of the heat thanks to his late-night start on Arthur Ashe Stadium, sped past Pospisil 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

His only hiccup came in the second set, when he dropped his serve to fall 2-4 down.

"The conditions are tough," Nadal said. "It was important to start very well with that break. To win in straight sets is always very positive, especially in these conditions. It's almost midnight, very happy about the victory."

Former champions Stan Wawrinka and Juan Martin del Potro also advanced, while 2012 winner Andy Murray, like Wawrinka back at Flushing Meadows after missing last year through injury, was bounced by Fernando Verdasco. Wawrinka survived searing mid-day heat and a spirited Ugo Humbert.

"I knew it would be a difficult match," said Wawrinka, who was pleased to find himself feeling fit after prevailing 7-6 (7/5), 4-6, 6-3, 7-5 in three hours and 21 minutes. — AFP ■

JAKARTA—China bagged two golds from athletics at the Asian Games here on Wednesday, remaining top of medal tally in the sport.

The golds came early from the first two events of the day. China's Wang Kaihui, 24, came from behind to beat Japanese Toshikazu Yamanishi to win the men's 20km race walk in his Asian Games debut.

The 24-year-old Wang outraced Yamanishi before the finish line, ending the "long march" in 1:22:04. Six seconds later, the Japanese got the silver, and Wang's teammate Jin Xiangjian bagged bronze in 1:25:41. In the women's event, China's Yang Jiayu and Qieyang Shijie hit the finish line both at 1:29:15, a new Asian Games record. The outcome came down a photo finish between the two and Yang was declared gold medalist. Qieyang rest on silver and Japanese Kumiko Okada pocketed bronze at 1:34:02.

It is the ninth Asiad gold in straight for China in this event.

"I wanna be the future of China's race walk and do better at Tokyo Olympic Games," said the 22-year-old Yang. — Xinhua ■
