Boost production of quality goods to meet local demand

The government is now expediting the building of more factories and import-substitute goods factories to boost production of personal goods and household utensils in its drive to fulfil the requirements of the people.

The textile factories, firebrick factories, cement plants, steelware factories and plastic factories that have been built by the Ministry of Industry-1 have launched their production lines. Moreover, it is planning to open more pharmaceutical factories and foodstuff factories.

In like manner, the Ministry of Industry-2 is establishing a raft of technological and prolific factories in relevant industrial zones, and these factories manufacture electrical apparatus for automobiles, machines and equipment, farm implements, electric motors and generators.

Myanmar has got new technical know-how and production methods owing to the extensive implementation of such prudent projects that provide a large number of job opportunities for local people.

At the centre of the national development drive lies industrial development. With this view, the government is now opening industrial zones and regions and pouring investments into modern factory and plant projects, thus creating a prosperous future of the industrial sector. So, the factories have to boost production of quality products, personal goods and household utensils and distribute the items all the more to meet local demand.

Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe resigns

TOKYO, 12 Sept— Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe offered his resignation Wednesday, less than a month after he reshuffled the Cabinet following a crushing defeat in parliamentary election.

“I made my determination today to step down,” Abe told a Press conference held at his office.

Abe said that he quitted “to have the war against terror continued”, since as long as he is premier, the opposition leader would not agree to talk over the extension of Japan’s refuelling mission in the Indian Ocean under his leadership.

It would be better to have a new prime minister pursue the matter, he said. Abe also said that he had difficulty in implementing policies and gathering public support.

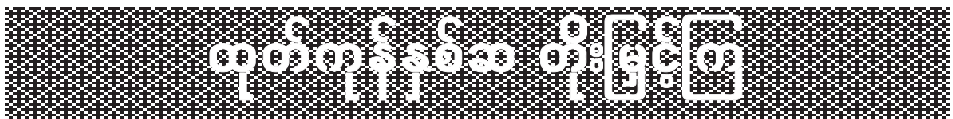

Abe quitted his post as the president of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) and effectively the post of prime minister.

However, Abe will continue act as premier until the ruling party selects a new leader “in at least a month,” Kyodo News quoted a LDP official as saying.

Abe, who took office on 26 September last year, has been plagued by a series of scandals involving his Cabinet ministers, pension recording errors, as well as a crushing defeat in July’s Upper House election which cost the LDP’s decades-long dominance in the chamber.

On 27 August, Abe reshuffled the Cabinet and replaced the members with veteran politicians to regain public trust. However, in less than a week, the new Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Minister Takehiko Endo resigned over a scandal involving a farmers’ group that he heads. The internal affairs minister Hiroya Masuda admitted Saturday an error in his own political fund report.— MNA/Xinhua

US marks 11 Sept with moments of silence

NEW YORK, 12 Sept— Americans observed a moment of silence at the very hour and place of the first 11 September attack on Tuesday, the sixth anniversary of a day remembered with solemnity and ceremony.

Speaking near Ground Zero, where the twin World Trade Centre towers were destroyed by hijacked planes on 11 September, 2001, Mayor Michael Bloomberg told families of those who died: “Six years have passed and our place is still by your side.”

Rain fell on the somber ceremony as some wore funereal black to remember the 2,750 people killed when the towers were destroyed one after the other. Their names were due to be read out loud over four hours.

Similar ceremonies were taking place in Washington, where the Pentagon was attacked by a third plane, and Shanksville, Pennsylvania, where a fourth plane crashed after passengers fought with al-Qaeda hijackers that day.

Bagpipes played, accompanied by a steady drum beat, in a New York City park neighbouring the former disaster site which is now a busy construction zone.

Chinese, British Cos sign agreement on carbon emissions

BEIJING, 12 Sept—The GD Power Development Co Ltd has signed an agreement on the reduction of carbon dioxide emissions with a British energy company, sources with GD Power confirmed on Tuesday.

Under the accord, the Shanghai-listed firm will sell carbon emission reductions of two million tons to the Britain-based SSE Energy Supply Ltd for 20 million euros before 30 November, 2012.

The carbon emissions are to be reduced by a series of wind power projects carried out by the Chinese company.

The agreement will also help raise income from electricity to be supplied by the wind power projects by 0.09 to 0.1 yuan per kilowatts/hour.

The sources said the fulfillment of the agreement depended partly on the operation of the wind power projects and supervision and recognition of the projects by an independent third-party agency on international markets. Energy efficiency and emissions reduction have been one of the top concerns of the Chinese Government for further development of the national economy.

OPEC agrees oil output rise in nod to consumers

VIENNA, 12 Sept—Saudi Arabia persuaded OPEC to raise oil output by 500,000 barrels per day on Tuesday in a gesture to consumer nations worried by the economic impact of 77 US dollars oil and rapidly diminishing fuel stocks.

After seven hours of talks, OPEC officials announced the hard-won deal, effective 1 November. Before the meeting Libya, Algeria and Venezuela were inclined to resist the proposal put forward by Saudi Arabia and its Gulf Arab neighbours.

“We think the market is a little bit tight so we are responding positively. We are also taking into consideration, as OPEC, the concern of the consumers,” acting Kuwaiti Oil Minister Mohammad al-Olaïm told reporters.

“Our message to the consumer is that we care and that is why we have raised our production by 500,000 barrels per day,” OPEC Secretary-General Abdullah al-Badri told a news conference.

US crude oil was down seven cents at 77.42 US dollars after the deal but still within sight of its record high of 78.77 US dollars a barrel.

“Given the global credit crunch and the number one consumer on the economic ropes, OPEC’s decision is symbolic,” said Christopher Jarvis, analyst at Caprock Risk Management.

OPEC’s move followed months of calls for more oil from top consumer the United States and the International Energy Agency (IEA) that represents the interests of 26 industrialized nations. —MNA/Reuters

Sinopec to import 60,000 tons of gasoline in September

BEIJING, 12 Sept—Sinopec, China’s biggest oil refiner, is planning to import 60,000 tons of gasoline in September to help meet domestic demand, said an official of the company on Tuesday.

Arrangements for the imports have been fixed, including the time and place of delivery, said the official in charge of sales with Sinopec, adding the imported gasoline would arrive at the end of this month. The demand for gasoline has surged due to increasing fuel consumption propelled by the end of a fishing moratorium, intensified farming in the autumn and persistent hot weather.

Meanwhile, the company wanted to keep some gasoline in store ahead of the National Day holidays to help ease the shortage in the domestic market, he said.

The market price of gasoline in China was 6,300 yuan (829 US dollars) per ton while the CIF (cost, insurance and freight) of imported gasoline was about 6,800 yuan (895 US dollars) per ton, said the official.

US study: Higher education, lower cancer death rates

BEIJING, 13 Sept — A new study in US found higher education lowers the risk for black and white women and men, media reported Thursday.

Researchers collected data on 137,708 cancer deaths from 2001 involving black and white men and women between the ages of 25 and 64.

Researchers found that more education was associated with lower death rates from cancer among all race and gender groups. The greatest difference was found between people with 12 or fewer years of education and those with more than 12 years of schooling.

Compared with those with the lowest levels of education, those with the highest levels of education cut their risk of dying from cancer. For the highest educated white men, the risk was cut by 48 percent, for white women it was cut by 76 percent as it was for black men, and the most educated black women had a 43 percent lower risk of dying from cancer, the researchers reported.

“Cancer mortality varies a great deal for all cancers by individual level of education,” said Elizabeth Ward, director of cancer surveillance in the American Cancer Society.

“If we could get everyone’s cancer mortality to the level we see among the best educated, it would make a huge impact on cancer in the United States.”

Education is tied to socioeconomic status and access to medical care, Ward noted.

The new study finding makes it clear that many of the factors that influence cancer mortality are preventable, she said.

At least nine killed in strong Indonesian earthquake

Swiss head for record mountain deaths

ZURICH, 12 Sept — Switzerland is headed toward a record year for mountain casualties, with 77 deaths so far this year, a study showed on Tuesday.

Swiss newspaper Blick said this year’s figure was rapidly approaching the record 88 fatal mountain casualties seen in 2003.

The newspaper said the latest spike in deaths was due to lack of fitness among hikers and to growing numbers of visitors from Eastern Europe who did not speak local languages and who were not familiar with conditions in the mountains.

“We have reached a high level of mountain casualties this year,” said Gery Baumann, spokesman for Swiss Air Rescue group Rega.

Rega flew 545 mountain missions up to the end of August this year, second only to the 633 missions in the same period in 2003, when an unusually hot summer attracted waves of hikers and climbers.

In one week in July this year, 10 hikers perished in the canton of Valais, including Frenchman Claude Rey, president of the International Federation of Mountain Guide Associations, who plunged 30 metres into a crevasse.

Switzerland is still coping with the loss of six soldiers who died in July during a training exercise on the Jungfrau mountain — apparently ignoring expert advice to avoid the icy conditions.

“People are better equipped today,” Bauman said. “But the risk is then that they don’t know exactly what to do, or how to deal with the mountains.” — MNA/Reuters

Landslides claim over 1,000 lives in China annually

CHENGDU, 12 Sept — Mud-rock flows and landslides left an average 1,036 people dead or missing in China each year from 1995 to 2006, a Chinese scientist said on Monday.

Fu Bojie, chief of the environment and resource bureau with the Chinese Academy of Sciences, said landslides and mud-rock flows left 12,428 dead or missing in China during the 12-year period.

Around 74 million people in 1,583 counties or cities were threatened by landslides and mud-rock flows, said Fu at the Fourth International Conference on Debris-Flow Hazards Mitigation, which began on Monday in Chengdu, capital of the southwestern Sichuan Province.

More than 100 debris flow-prone areas have been effectively treated across China, protecting the lives of more than 100,000 people, said Deng Wei, director of the CAS Mountain Hazards and Environment Institute.

The four-day conference attracted 130 debris-flow researchers from 19 countries who gathered to discuss the treatment and prevention of disasters.

Iran says report will not save US from “Iraq’s swamp”

TEHERAN, 13 Sept— Iran dismissed a long-awaited progress report by the two senior US officials in Iraq on Wednesday, saying it would not “save America from Iraq’s swamp” and calling on Washington to withdraw its troops.

General David Petraeus, Commander of US forces in Iraq, and Ambassador Ryan Crocker testified to the US Congress on Monday. Petraeus recommended cutting US troops by about 30,000 by next July, ending a so-called surge of forces but not fundamentally changing strategy in the unpopular war.

Iran has long called for US forces to leave its neighbour, and a Foreign Ministry statement made clear the suggested troop withdrawal did not go far enough for Teheran.

“This report does not reflect the real demands and priorities of the majority of the American people,” Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman Mohammad Ali Hosseini said in the statement, according to the official IRNA news agency.

“This report will not save America from Iraq’s swamp.”

It was the first official reaction from Teheran about the testimony, which has been welcomed by the Iraqi Government.

President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad later told state television that: “Americans do not want to accept their failure in Iraq ... their only solution is to leave Iraq.”

Petraeus and Crocker appeared at a congressional hearing seen as a pivotal moment in the US debate over the war, which US President George W Bush has vowed to pursue but which many of the Democrats who control Congress say must end.

Iraq eyes big drop in foreign forces by end 2008

BAGHDAD, 13 Sept— Foreign troop levels in Iraq could drop to less than 100,000 by the end of 2008 if Iraq’s own forces were ready and security threats had diminished, Iraq’s national security adviser said on Wednesday.

“Maybe it is not far from the truth if we said that by the end of next year, multinational forces could be less than 100,000,” Mowaffaq al-

Rubaie told a news conference.

“This all depends on the security circumstances and the level of the threat, whether from inside the country or in the region. This also depends on the level of training of the Iraqi forces,” Rubaie said.

He did not speak specifically about US troop numbers — currently at 168,000 — but the overwhelming majority of foreign soldiers in Iraq are American.

Rubaie was speaking following two days of testimony by the US military commander in Iraq, General David Petraeus, who has recommended cutting US forces by about 30,000 by next July because of reduced violence in Iraq.

WWII grenade found among used clothing in Canada

OTTAWA, 13 Sept — Canadian police found Tuesday a hand grenade from the Second World War in a shipment of used clothing, according to local media reports.

Authorities are examining the item which was delivered to a used-clothing facility a week ago but it was not found until Tuesday, Canadian Press quoted a police spokesman as saying.

The immediate area where the device was discovered was evacuated as a precaution. Police said there was no imminent danger because the pin was still in the device. Police believe the box came from someone who may have been trying to dispose of something they did not want anymore.

Passengers escape injury in Lithuania plane crash

VILNIUS, 13 Sept — A plane with 52 people aboard crash landed in Lithuania on Wednesday but no one was hurt, the airport said, in the second such accident this week involving a turboprop of the Scandinavian SAS airline.

The plane ploughed through the ground with its fuselage and right wing and slid off the runway at Vilnius Airport when the crew decided to put down there after noticing in flight that landing gear had failed.

Following a crash of the same type of SAS plane on Sunday in Denmark, also due to landing gear problems, the airline said it was grounding the Canadian DHC-8-400 aircraft and cancelling 112 flights.

None of the 48 passengers or 4 crew was injured in Wednesday’s accident involving the plane, popularly known as the Dash 8, SAS said in a statement. The accident happened at 1:48 am local time (2248 GMT), it added.

“The plane was en route from Copenhagen to the western Lithuanian town Palanga when the crew noted the failure of the front and right landing gear,” said Vilnius Airport spokesman Arunas Marcinkevicius.

The crew then decided to land in Vilnius, which has a longer and broader runway.

250 Canadian soldiers kept from Afghanistan for drug use

OTTAWA, 13 Sept — About 250 Canadian soldiers were prevented from going to Afghanistan during last year because of drug use, Canadian military confirmed Tuesday.

The military has tested about 6,800 soldiers since mandatory drug testing of troops heading for Afghanistan began in September 2006. Since some soldiers were tested more than once, about 9,500 tests have been done to date, officials told Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (CBC).

About 250 soldiers, less than 4 per cent, tested positive for drug use. According to test results from September to May, the majority of soldiers who failed the test tested positive for marijuana. Some others used harder drugs, such as cocaine, methamphetamine and amphetamines.

Although the 4-per cent rate in the military represents a smaller percentage than drug use by the general population, military officials have taken particular concern at the issue, said Canadian Armed Forces Brigadier-General Ian Poulter.

More cancer deaths seen in less-educated Americans

WASHINGTON, 13 Sept — People with at least some education beyond high school have a lower cancer death risk than those with less education, according to a US study published on Tuesday.

The study, published in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, found that the more education people had, the less likely they were to die of cancer, particularly Black and White men and White women.

Mortality rates specifically for lung, colorectal, breast and prostate cancers were strongly associated with education level among these groups, the researchers said.

Researchers led by Jessica Albano of the American Cancer Society in Atlanta analyzed about 140,000 US cancer deaths among adults aged 25 to 64 in 2001.

They found the difference in mortality for all groups was most pronounced for those with 12 or fewer years of education compared to people with more than 12 years of education.

Non-aligned nations voice support for deal between IAEA, Iran

VIENNA, 13 Sept — Non-aligned nations on Tuesday voiced their support for the deal reached last month between the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) and Iran despite Western skepticism.

Addressing a meeting of IAEA governing board that opened Monday in Vienna, Cuban Ambassador Norma Miguelina Goicochea Estenoz said the Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) shares IAEA chief Mohamed ElBaradei's view that "this work plan (timetable) is a significant step forward".

The NAM "reiterates its full confidence in the impartiality and professionalism of the Secretariat of the IAEA", she said.

Iran has pledged late last month to answer outstanding questions about its controversial nuclear programme, but the deal falls short of support from some Western countries which considered it as Iran's fresh trick to delay UN sanctions.

Portuguese Ambassador Joaquim Duarte, whose country holds the rotating EU presidency, said Tuesday that the European Union has "taken note" of the deal but stressed that Iran has so far failed to suspend uranium enrichment "contrary to the decisions of the (UN) Security Council".

Instead of addressing global concerns about its nuclear programme, "Iran has further increased its enrichment capacities", he said.

UN atomic watchdog chief Mohamed ElBaradei has reportedly walked out during the meeting in protest against the statement by the European Union which apparently failed to support the IAEA diplomacy.

Tigers rediscovered in Indian rainforest

MUMBAI, 12 Sept—At least 20 tigers have resurfaced in a tropical rainforest in western India, almost three decades after it was thought that poaching had wiped them out there, experts said on Tuesday. The big cats were sighted over an 800 square kilometres (300 square miles) mountainous forest range in the western state of Maharashtra, bringing rare good news in a country that is rapidly losing its wildlife to poaching and habitat destruction.

"There was good forest cover, an ideal habitat and an ideal prey base but tigers were not sighted in the Sahyadri range since the late 1970s," Vishwas Sawarkar, former head of the state-run Wildlife Institute of India, told Reuters. My estimate is there are at least 20 of them now," said Sawarkar, adding that the discovery was made during an ongoing nationwide tiger census. India is believed to have half the world's surviving tigers, but according to a census in 2001 and 2002, their numbers have dwindled to 3,642 from 40,000 a century ago. Conservationists say the actual number of tigers is between 1,300 and 1,500, based on the initial findings of the current census due to made public later this year.

No sightings of the big cats led many — including poachers and conservationists — to believe the tigers had been wiped out from the Sahyadri range, an unbroken chain of mountains that stretch along India's western edge.

Experts said the last remaining tigers could have benefited with poachers moving on to other areas in search of their lucrative prey, whose body parts are used in traditional Chinese medicines and whose skins fetch thousands of dollars.—MNA/Reuters

Vietnam Govt approves environment-protect plan

HANOI, 12 Sept — The Vietnamese Government has approved a national action plan to curb the rapid degradation of environment in the country, according to newspaper Vietnam News Tuesday.

Under the action plan, forest coverage should be increased to between 42-43 per cent of total natural area of the country by 2010, and expand to 48 per cent by 2020. One half of degraded watershed forests should be restored and total area of protected ecological land should increase one and half times by 2010. Total area of submerged and marine reserves should increase to over 1.2 million hectares and restore 200,000 hectares of mangrove trees.

In addition, 90 per cent of production and business facilities should attain international environmental standards and have planted trees inside their complexes. 50 per cent of polluted lakes, ponds, canals and rivers in cities should be cleaned up by 2010, according to the plan. The country has targeted that 85 per cent of rural residents would easy access to clean water by 2010, and 100 per cent of urban residents and 95 per cent of rural residents by 2020, said the newspaper, while 62 per cent of rural residents access to clean water on average at present, said the newspaper.

US study finds jump in drug injury reports

CHICAGO, 12 Sept — Reports of deaths or injuries related to drug treatments more than doubled between 1998 and 2005 in the United States, with painkillers and immune-system boosters accounting for most, researchers said on Monday.

“This study shows that substantially growing numbers of patients are experiencing serious injuries from drug therapy,” they wrote in a report in the Archives of Internal Medicine.

“This growing toll of serious injury shows that the existing system is not adequately protecting patients and underscores the importance of recent reports urging far-reaching legislative, policy and institutional changes,” they added.

Thomas Moore and colleagues at the Institute for Safe Medication Practices in Huntingdon Valley, Pennsylvania, said the findings came from a look at serious adverse drug events as reported to the US Food and Drug Administration from 1998 through 2005. A “serious adverse drug event” is one that causes death, birth defects, disability, puts someone in a hospital or was life-threatening.

The FDA gets information about such occurrences directly or from drug makers, who are required to report them. A bill pending in the US Congress would force the agency to do more active surveillance, for instance, by checking insurance records.

German Minister says ratifying UN climate deal to take time

BERLIN, 12 Sept — A global deal to combat climate change must be decided by the end of 2009 as it will take about two years to ratify, Germany’s Environment Minister said on Monday.

World leaders said at the G-8 summit last June they would pursue a new deal to replace the Kyoto Protocol which expires in 2012.

“We must have an agreement by the end of 2009, and then it will probably take about two years to reach a mandate,” Sigmar Gabriel said, opening a two-day meeting of environment and energy ministers from 20 countries. “If you think about how long it takes to reach an agreement just between the 16 German states ... you can see that it might take a while,” he told the meeting called ahead of United Nations climate talks in Bali in December. The meeting is designed to lay the groundwork for the new climate deal and aims to change the position of countries such as China and India who are wary of binding emissions cuts.

Lutein, zeaxanthin may reduce blindness among elders

BEIJING, 13 Sept — Two nutrients, lutein and zeaxanthin, found in eggs, spinach and other leafy green vegetables offer some protection against the most common cause of blindness among the elderly, media reported Thursday.

A 6-year study in US asked about the dietary habits of 4,519 people aged 60 to 80 when enrolled.

Those in the top fifth of dietary consumption of foods containing the two nutrients had 35 percent less chance of developing the condition compared to those in the lowest fifth of consumption.

“Lutein and zeaxanthin may be considered as useful agents in food or supplement-based interventions designed to reduce the risk of AMD,” said the researchers. Lutein and zeaxanthin help ward off the condition, apparently by allowing the eyes to filter harmful short-wave-length light and by curtailing other damaging effects to the macula, or the centre of eye’s retina.

“No clear associations with other nutrients were seen,” including the vitamins C and E and beta-carotene, according to the researchers, led by John Paul SanGiovanni of the National Eye Institute, one of the National Institutes of Health in Maryland, US

Scotland top Group B after shock win in France

PARIS, 13 Sept — Scotland took command of Euro 2008 qualifying Group B after James McFadden's second-half strike gave them a surprise 1-0 win in France on Wednesday.

McFadden struck from 25 metres in the 64th minute as Scotland clinched their second victory against the World Cup finalists in their bid to reach next year's finals.

Alex McLeish's side have 21 points from nine games and lead Italy, who grabbed a 2-1 win in Ukraine, by one point.

France, who had the clearest chances in the second half, conceded their first goal in six matches and dropped to third place two points off the pace.

The home side had not played a qualifying match at the Parc des Princes since missing out on a World Cup spot in November 1993 when they lost 2-1 to Bulgaria.

They were first into the action with David Trezeguet volleying wide from a Franck Ribery cross in the 15th minute.

Trezeguet, who had not played for France since their 1-0 defeat by Argentina at the Stade de France in February, was replacing the suspended Thierry Henry.

However, Scotland were barely troubled as Les Bleus failed to break down the wings.

France had their best chance 10 minutes into the second half when Ribery, set up by Trezeguet, saw his effort parried by goalkeeper Craig Gordon.

Spain beat Latvia to join Sweden at top of Group F

OVIEDO (Spain), 13 Sept — Spain laboured to a 2-0 home win over Latvia to join Sweden at the top of Group F in their Euro 2008 qualifier on Wednesday. Barcelona midfielder Xavi opened the scoring after just 13 minutes but Spain struggled to add to the score against technically inferior, though well-organized, opposition.

It was not until five minutes from time that Liverpool striker Fernando Torres pounced for the second to secure the result.

Spain move above Northern Ireland into second in the group, level on 19 points with Sweden who have a game in hand. Northern Ireland, who lost 2-1 to Iceland earlier, have 16 points. — MNA/Reuters

England beat Russia 3-0 in qualifying match

LONDON, 13 Sept — England head coach Steve McClaren praised Michael Owen's match-winning performance against Russia on Wednesday saying he never doubted he would return to the highest level after his injury nightmare.

"I never wrote him off, I always knew he was going to be important for us," said McClaren after Owen took his tally to 40 goals for his country in his 85th international match.

Only Bobby Charlton (49), Gary Lineker (48) and Jimmy Greaves (44) have scored 40 or more goals for England and Owen looks capable of overtaking all of them before too long.

The Newcastle United striker scored twice in the first half but McClaren praised his all-round contribution in the 3-0 victory that lifted England up to second place in Group E. Croatia lead with 23 points, England have 20 and Russia 18.

"He looks fitter and sharper, and its not just his goals, but his all-round play," said McClaren, delighted to have Owen back in the side after more than 20 months in which he has battled two serious injuries.

Owen has scored three in two games following his strike against Israel on Saturday as England collected six points out of six to revitalize their Euro 2008 qualifying campaign. McClaren told reporters: "I am greatly satisfied. We wanted six points out of the two games and we got them and I'm satisfied by the performance of individuals and the team. But we are keeping our feet on the ground. There's three games to go, and we have won nothing yet and we're not qualified yet either."

Van Nistelrooy gives Dutch 1-0 win in Albania

TIRANA, 13 Sept — Ruud van Nistelrooy struck from close range in injury time to earn the Netherlands a hard-fought 1-0 win over Albania in their Euro 2008 qualifier on Wednesday.

Referee Mike Riley blew the final whistle two minutes early in the Group G match after fireworks thrown from the stands exploded above the head of Dutch defender Mario Melchiot.

The win takes the Dutch level with leaders Romania on 20 points and keeps them two points above Bulgaria, who have played a game more after beating visitors Luxembourg 3-0.

"They started furiously and made it difficult for us but that is not a problem," Netherlands coach Marco Van Basten said on RTL4-television.

"It was a deserved win because we kept our discipline and therefore my team deserves a compliment."

In a dreadful game, the Netherlands lacked the creativity and pace to unsettle the passionate Albanians, who set out to earn a point and had their chances to clinch a shock win.

"For an attractive match you need two teams that want to play football but they only pulled back and then it is difficult," added a relieved Van Basten.

On the stroke of halftime Albania thought they had scored when Melchiot headed past his own keeper Edwin van der Sarhad but Debatik Curri was penalized for pushing the defender.— MNA/Reuters

Czechs beat Ireland to move closer to Euro 2008

PRAGUE, 13 Sept — Marek Jankulovski's early goal gave the Czech Republic a 1-0 win over 10-man Ireland in their Group D qualifier on Wednesday and moved his team a big step closer to advancing to Euro 2008.

The Czechs entered the match in second place in the group, five points behind leaders Germany who are on 22 and three ahead of the Irish after eight matches.

With six points now between themselves and Ireland, the Czechs need just one win from their final three games against Germany, Cyprus and Slovakia.

"We still have important games ahead, we can't say we have advanced. But this was a big win for us, it helps separate us from the others," said Czech coach Karel Brueckner.

The Czechs pounced on a tentative Irish team from the kickoff and Jankulovski struck in the 15th minute when he combined well with Jaroslav Plasil.

Bellamy double helps Wales thrash Slovakia

TRNAVA (Slovakia), 13 Sept — Wales captain Craig Bellamy scored twice to help his team thrash Slovakia 5-2 in their Euro 2008 qualifier on Wednesday.

Bellamy was the architect of Wales' third win in Group D, which was sweet revenge for John Toshack's young side after their 5-1 defeat by Slovakia in Cardiff last October.

A Freddy Eastwood equalizer, Jan Durica's own goal and a last-gasp Simon Davies strike wrapped up a convincing win for the Welsh, who lost 2-0 to group leaders Germany on Saturday.

The victory put Wales level on 10 points with the Slovaks although both countries are 12 points drift of the Germans. Slovakia's stand-in captain Marek Mintal replied for the home side, having opened the scoring in the 12th minute with a perfect shot in the top corner of Wayne Hennessey's goal.

The striker was close to adding a second four minutes later but the Welsh keeper caught his low shot.

The Slovaks threatened again in the 19th but Hennessey palmed out a sizzling long-range shot by defender Marek Cech. — MNA/Reuters

US weak points identified in Iraq, Afghanistan

TEHERAN, 13 Sept — The commander of Iran's Islamic Revolutionary Guards Corps said on Tuesday that the country has identified US weak points in Iraq and Afghanistan, Iran's state broadcasting organization IRIB reported on its website.

"All weak points of the enemy of Islamic Revolution in Iraq and in Afghanistan have been located and on the basis of these weak points the country's defensive fundamentals have been strengthened," General Mohammad Ali Jaafari said.

The commander made the remarks at the end of the three-day nation-wide annual gathering of the commanders of the Islamic Revolutionary Guards Corps.

"In case the enemy wants to do any bold action the Iranians will give a strong and teeth-breaking response," Jaafari said.

He noted that the Revolutionary Guards and the Basij militia force, which is subordinate to the Revolutionary Guards, will remain the supporters of the Iranian revolution and the system.

The United States has been seeking to impose tougher sanctions on Iran through the UN Security Council on the grounds that Teheran is developing a nuclear weapon programme under the guise of a civilian-use programme.

Iran has insisted that its nuclear programme is for peaceful purposes and voiced hope for talks to defuse the nuclear standoff.

The United States has never ruled out military action against Iranian targets for Teheran's suspicious nuclear programmes.
