Grow trees extensively for temperate climate and greening

The world is now under the threat of deforestation stemming from global warming. Deforestation of vegetation and forests have caused weather changes along with environmental degradation such as soil depletion, floods of rivers and creeks, and desertification.

Today, many countries are stepping up the growing of trees to deal with the global warming. For instance, Israel is growing trees to establish forests, while India is taking steps for afforestation in some deserts in it and the People's Republic of China is growing trees to prevent the spread of Gobe Desert.

In the like manner, Myanmar is conserving forests, waters and natural resources systematically. In the process, the Ministry of Forestry and relevant ministries are conserving forests, protecting natural forests and establishing forests.

Myanmar is a land where teak grows naturally. In addition, it has a large area of teak plantations. Bago Yoma mountain range is a region where teak thrives. So, tree plantations are being established and nurtured for greening Bago Yoma mountain range. In the 2007-2008 fiscal year, more than 6,000 acres were put under tree plantations and more than 70,000 saplings were distributed to local people and organizations to set up tree plantations.

Owing to the drive to carry out the greening tasks on a wider scale, the 13 arid districts have seen many new forests. Now, the 1000-acre special teak plantation in Nay Pyi Taw Tatkon Township, the special teak plantation in Minpyin forest reserve in Nay Pyi Taw Lewe Township, and the special teak plantation in Yan Pei forest reserve in Taungdwingyi Township are thriving.

Forests and trees including teak contribute towards the economy of the nation and regional greening. Therefore, the Forest Department, the Department for Greening Arid Zone and local people have to work together in conserving forests so that the entire nation has temperate climate with green and lush environment.

Iran says Bush's accusations "words without value"

TEHERAN, 15 Jan — Iran denounced on Monday as "words without value" US President George W. Bush's remarks that the Islamic state was threatening security around the world by backing militants.

Speaking in Abu Dhabi on Sunday, Bush said Iran was the world's top sponsor of terrorism and accused it of undermining peace by supporting the Hizbollah guerilla group in Lebanon, Palestinian Islamist group Hamas and Shiite militants in Iraq.

"Bush should understand that the hatred towards his policies exists ... it has real and logical roots," Iran's Foreign Ministry spokesman Mohammad Ali Hosseini was quoted as saying by state radio. "Bush's remarks display his desperation and disappointment because of his failures in the region ... He is trying to divert attention from his failed policies," he said, adding Bush's comments were "repeated words without value". Iran blames sectarian violence in Iraq on the US-led invasion to topple Saddam Hussein in 2003 and has repeatedly called on the United States to withdraw its forces.

Bomb kills six in Karachi

KARACHI, 15 Jan — At least six people were killed in a roadside bomb explosion in Pakistan's biggest city of Karachi on Monday, a senior government official said, the latest attack in a wave of violence in the South Asian country.

The blast occurred in a low-income neighbourhood of the city. "We have reports that at least six people were killed and 12 to 14 people were wounded," Akhtar Zamin, Home Minister of Sindh Province, told Reuters. Karachi is the capital of Sindh Province.

He said the bomb appeared to have been concealed in a roadside fruit and vegetable stall or a motorbike that was destroyed in the blast. "It does not appear to be a suicide attack," he said. — MNA/Reuters

Bangladesh textile workers clash with police, 30 hurt

DHAKA, 15 Jan — Textile workers demanding higher wages clashed with police in the Bangladeshi capital on Monday, and at least 30 people were injured, police and witnesses said. The injured include five policemen who were hit by stones thrown by the workers after police had used batons and fired teargas shells to disperse them. Sporadic clashes were still continuing in Dhaka, a witness said, disrupting traffic.

"We have gone on action as the workers tried to vandalise some vehicles," a police inspector said.

Protests have been banned since an Army-backed interim government took over in Bangladesh last January and imposed a state of emergency, following months of political violence.

Thai EC issues three more yellow cards to winners

BANGKOK, 15 Jan — Thailand's Election Commission (EC) on Monday announced that the poll agency issued another three yellow cards against three winning candidates of the People Power Party (PPP), annulling their winning states during last month's general election.

The three candidates, Worawat Uapinyakul, Niyom Wiwatjithakul and Panhathai Serirak, all winners of the PPP during the general election in northern Prachin Province, have been deprived their winning qualifications. But they still have the right to re-contest in the by-elections.

The polling agency said the three winners were found connected with alleged electoral wrongdoings during the election.

According to the election law, a candidate who was issued with a red card will be disqualified in the by-elections which is now set on January 20, while a candidate with a yellow card still can re-contest the by-elections. — MNA/Xinhua

China paper sees West to blame themselves in Kenya chaos

BEIJING, 15 Jan — Kenya's turmoil shows that Africa is unsuited to Western democracy, an official Chinese newspaper said on Monday, underscoring energy and mineral-hungry Beijing's hands-off approach to politics as it woos African governments.

China has kept a low profile over the violence that erupted across Kenya after a disputed election on 27 December that critics say was rigged by President Mwai Kibaki. The European Union and United States have urged Kenya's feuding politicians to end the confrontation that has so far killed about 600 people.

But the People's Daily, the official newspaper of China's ruling Communist Party, said Western powers were themselves to blame for imposing colonial rule and then Western-style electoral democracy on Africa.

"The Western 'democracy' transplanted to Africa is unsuited to local conditions and has sowed the seeds of disaster," said a commentary in the paper.

Kenya braces for tough week, deaths rise to 612

NAIROBI, 15 Jan — Kenya's feuding parties prepared on Monday for fresh fighting in Parliament and on the streets despite another international push to mediate a post-election crisis that has now killed at least 612 people.

But the priority for many in the east African nation was getting millions of children back to school after a week's delay following the turmoil caused by President Mwai Kibaki's disputed re-election last month.

"Life has to go on," said Esther Muhito, preparing her children for classes in Molo, a town in the Rift Valley where ethnic clashes have killed scores. In some camps housing refugees, volunteers were setting up temporary classrooms. Scores of others, however, were still fleeing the same tea-growing area, fearful the opposition's call for three days of nationwide protests starting on Wednesday would stoke more bloodshed.

Bomb wounds eight in Nepal

KATHMANDU, 15 Jan — Eight people were wounded when a bomb exploded after thousands of supporters of Nepal’s ruling alliance marched through Kathmandu on Monday, in a rare display of unity in the fractious coalition against the Hindu monarchy.

The blast hit a vehicle near the venue of the rally in the heart of the city, minutes after the demonstrators, including Maoist former rebels, had dispersed, police said.

There were no claims of responsibility. Six of the wounded were sent home after treatment in hospital, authorities said.

The government blamed the blast on what it said were “elements opposed to the constituent assembly elections” in April but did not elaborate.

The rally, held in a dust-choked playground in the heart of the capital, less than 500 metres (yards) from King Gyanendra’s sprawling palace, came three days after the government set national elections for April 10. The polls are meant to elect a constituent assembly to map the nation’s political future and formalise a recent Parliament decision to abolish the monarchy after the vote.

Originally, the assembly was meant to decide the fate of the monarchy — a question now settled in a political deal with the former rebels who wanted its immediate abolition.

That body will also replace the interim Parliament.

Kibaki faces tough fight in Parliament

NAIROBI, 14 Jan — The first sitting of Kenya’s newly elected Parliament on Tuesday is expected to be a stormy affair as legislators face off following disputed presidential elections that threw the country into turmoil.

The political crisis in east Africa’s biggest economy has killed 500 people since President Mwai Kibaki’s re-election at 27 December polls which his rival, Raila Odinga, says were rigged.

Odinga’s Orange Democratic Movement (ODM) won 99 seats in Parliament to 43 for Kibaki’s Party of National Unity (PNU), meaning Kibaki will have to try to get bills approved by legislators who believe his government is illegitimate.

“It will be a battleground where all manner of wars are going to be fought,” Mutakha Kangu, a political analyst and constitutional lawyer, told Reuters.

Sino-Indian relations face “strategic chances”

BEIJING, 15 Jan — Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao said here on Monday Sino-Indian relations face important strategic chances as he met with Indian Prime Minister Manmohan Singh.

US spy chief says waterboarding would be torture to him

WASHINGTON, 14 Jan — US intelligence chief Mike McConnell said in a magazine interview that waterboarding would be torture if it was used against him personally, but stopped short of condemning the controversial interrogation technique.

McConnell, Director of National Intelligence, was quoted in the New Yorker edition released on Sunday as defining torture as “something that would cause excruciating pain”.

Asked if waterboarding — the practice of covering a person’s face with a cloth and then dripping water on it to bring on a feeling of drowning — fit that definition, McConnell said that for him personally, it would.

“If I had water draining into my nose, oh God, I just can’t imagine how painful!” McConnell said in the article. “Whether it’s torture by anybody else’s definition, for me it would be torture.”

But he rejected a suggestion that he personally condemned the practice. The reputation of the United States has been badly tarnished internationally by its harsh treatment of prisoners detained in President George W Bush’s war against terrorism, particularly those held at Abu Ghraib Prison in Iraq and at the Guantanamo naval base on Cuba.

US Attorney General Michael Mukasey has declined to rule on whether waterboarding is torture.

China imports record 163 m tons of crude oil in '07

BEIJING, 14 Jan—China's crude oil imports rose 12.4 per cent in 2007 over the previous year to a new record of 163.17 million tons, according to Customs figure.

Crude oil imports for 2006 was 138.8 million tons, representing an increase of 16.9 per cent from the previous year. The exports, however, fell 38.7 per cent year-on-year to 3.89 million tons last year, according to the General Administration of Customs.

Crude oil exports were valued at 79.77 billion US dollars, 20.1 per cent more than a year earlier amid international oil price hikes. Global prices surged about 57 per cent throughout last year.

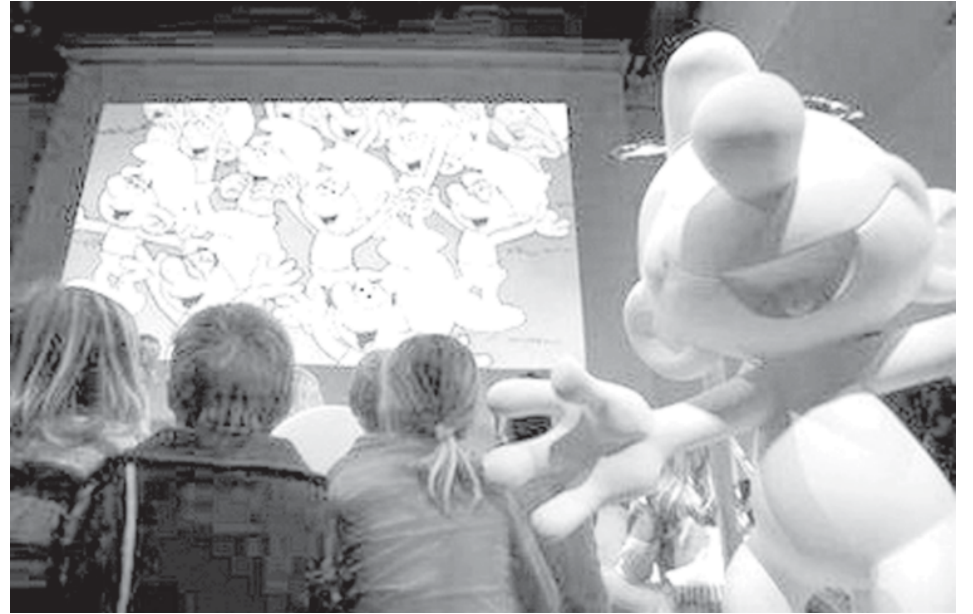

China also imported 33.8 million tonnes of oil products in 2007, a decline of 7.1 per cent from the previous year, although large oil producers increased oil product imports late last year following a fuel shortage reported in October.

The export of oil products still enjoyed a marked increase. It rose 25.6 per cent to 15.51 million tons last year.

Chinese Ministry of Commerce forecast the country's crude oil output for 2007 at 187 million tons, up 1.7 per cent year-on-year. "China would need to increase oil imports year by year, as its own crude oil output growth failed to outpace consumption demand in recent years," said Niu Li, an analyst with the State Information Centre, a government think tank.

Iran warns Turkmenistan over gas supply cut

TEHERAN, 14 Jan—Iran will stop buying Turkmen gas altogether if its neighbour does not resume supplies cut off two weeks ago, Oil Minister Gholamhossein Nozari was quoted as saying on Sunday.

Nozari spoke to Iran's Fars News Agency as a state-owned television station and a leading member of Parliament said that Turkmenistan wanted to double the price for the natural gas it sells to Iran. Turkmenistan halted daily deliveries of up to 23 million cubic metres to Iran late last month. It blamed technical problems, but Iranian officials say Ashgabat also seeks a higher price for the natural gas it ships to Iran.

"Turkmenistan must first start supplying gas and then come to discuss (the price)," Nozari said. "Otherwise we will announce that we don't need Turkmen gas."

Iran, a small gas importer despite its huge gas reserves, gets about 5 per cent of its needs from Turkmenistan and the supply disruption caused shortages in some northern areas as well as a reduction in Iran's gas exports to Turkey. The disruption is particularly sensitive now because of some of the coldest winter temperatures for decades in Iran, pushing up demand and for heating fuel. In one northwestern Iranian city, the mercury has plunged to minus 30 degrees Celsius.

Iran's Foreign Ministry said on Sunday Iran was in talks with Turkmenistan but was discussing technical not price issues.

The English-language Press TV, however, said in a report on its website that Iran had, in principle, agreed to a price hike.

Cambodia opens cement factory in Kampot Province

PHNOM PENH, 15 Jan—Cambodia on Monday opened a cement factory in Kampot Province, which has a capacity of producing over 960,000 tons of cement per year.

The factory is now in its first producing phase and it will satisfy about 40 per cent of cement demand of the country, Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Sen told the National Radio while addressing the opening ceremony.

Cambodia now needs 2.4 million tons of cement each year, Hun Sen said, adding that in the next few years, the volume of cement production will increase more than this.

This factory with 520 employees is invested with 93 million US dollars by joint venture between Cambodian businessman and Siam Cement Company from Thailand, he said.

In the second producing phase, the factory will be invested with another 100 million US dollars to have the capacity of producing more than two million tons of cement per year, he added.

Haiti continues to ban Dominican poultry

SANTO DOMINGO, 14 Jan—Haiti will continue to ban poultry imports from the Dominican Republic, said Angel Faxas, director of the Dominican livestock department, local daily Listin Diario reported on Sunday.

The Dominican Republic's National Egg Producers' Association said the ban cost their members losses of five million pesos (150,000 US dollars) per day.

A meeting between the two countries' animal hygiene authorities earlier failed to lift the ban, although the Dominican ambassador to Haiti, Jose Serulle, described the meeting as a success and said Haiti's authorities found Dominican Republic's explanations convincing.

"It is clear that the situation faced by chicken and egg producers due to bird flu is not their fault and that the government must help them," said Miguel Vargas Maldonado, the presidential candidate for the Dominican Revolutionary Party.

He blamed the negligence of Dominican airports, ports and border authorities for the problem.

Fluffy, a gigantic python thought to be the world's longest captive snake, will be on permanent display at the Columbus Zoo and Aquarium. —INTERNET

BEIJING, 14 Jan— Fluffy, a gigantic python thought to be the world's longest captive snake, will be permanent display at the Columbus Zoo and Aquarium, US, media reported Monday.

The 7.3-metre reticulated python is about as long as a moving van and thick as a telephone pole.

The zoo bought Fluffy for 35,000 US dollars from its breeder in Oklahoma, which raised the python from a hatchling.

While on loan last year, the snake wowed zoo visitors and helped make last year's 1.53 million attendance the second highest on record, said Pete Fingerhut, the zoo's associate director.

The biggest year was 2006, with 1.56 million visitors. Fluffy is on display in a some 8-metre enclosure with a pool and a few plants, where he eats two huge rabbits a week.

In the wild, pythons native to Asia eat whatever they can catch, starting with mice and lizards when they're small and graduating to pigs and goats. There are a few reports of human victims.

Iran to settle atom inquiry issues within month

VIENNA, 14 Jan— Iran agreed to answer remaining questions about its past covert nuclear activities within a month during talks with the International Atomic Energy Agency chief, the UN watchdog said on Sunday.

For the first time, Tehran also gave Mohamed ElBaradei information about its work to develop an advanced centrifuge able to enrich uranium much faster than the old breakdown-prone model it uses now, the IAEA.

There was no sign Iran had budged from its refusal to suspend enrichment or end curbs on IAEA inspections, steps Western powers say would do more to defuse a standoff over the Islamic republic's nuclear activity.

ElBaradei met Iranian leaders over two days last week to push for swifter cooperation to wrap up a long-running IAEA inquiry into the past and shed light on Iran's current programme, which the West suspects will yield atom bombs.

Iran says it wants to refine uranium only for electricity.

ElBaradei is anxious to see a standoff between

Iran and Western powers over its nuclear ambitions settled peacefully, a concern underscored by a US-Iranian naval incident in the Gulf a week ago which has fanned tensions.

After years of stonewalling that helped lead to UN sanctions, Iran agreed in August to clarify questions about its nuclear past, a process called the "work plan", within months.

Migrant workers, 7.6% satisfied with social status in China

BEIJING, 14 Jan— Only 7.6 per cent of migrant workers in China are satisfied with their social status, according to a survey carried out by Shanghai's Fudan University.

The survey, which questioned 30,000 migrant workers in major Chinese cities, found 68 per cent of migrant workers believed urbanites did not fully accept them or accept them at all.

The report also showed that working overtime was common for migrant workers — more than 80 per cent worked more than eight hours a day and 18 per cent worked more than ten hours.

Only 16.4 per cent of migrant workers had more than five days a month off and 55 per cent had less than two days off a month, it said.

Working overtime with little holiday made migrant workers tired so accidents easily occur, it said.

Exhaustion prevented them from having time to study thus few opportunities were available, it added.

All these factors made migrant workers unsatisfied with their urban life, it concluded.

The report also revealed that China's migrant workers' incomes rose in 2007. —MNA/Xinhua

Top US officer wants to shut down Guantanamo

GUANTANAMO BAY US NAVAL BASE (Cuba), 14 Jan—The top US military officer said on Sunday he would like to see the detention centre at Guantanamo Bay closed because its image has damaged America's international standing.

“I’d like to see it shut down,” said Admiral Mike Mullen. “I believe that from the standpoint of how it reflects on us that it’s been pretty damaging.”

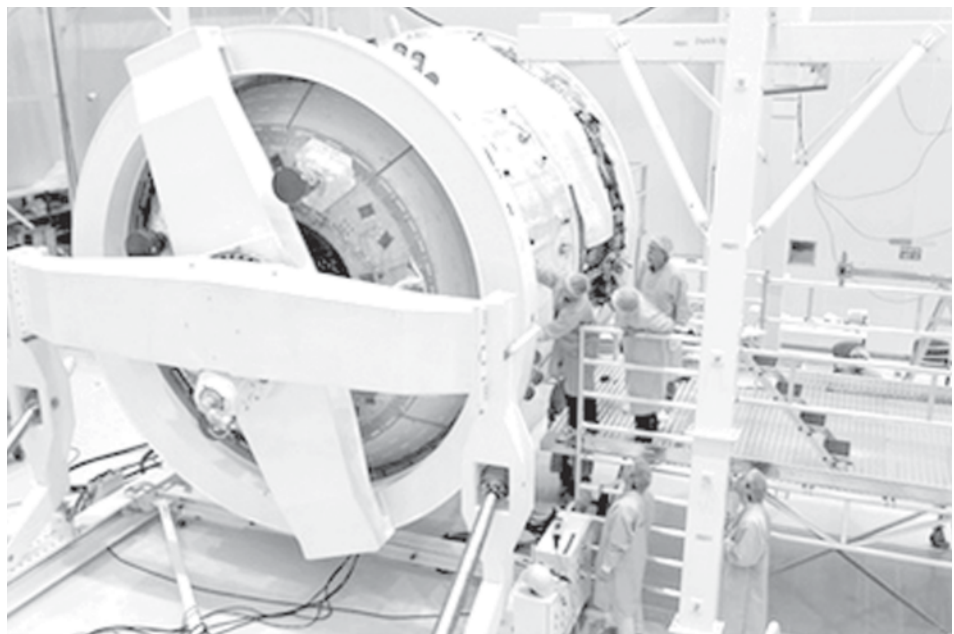

But Mullen, the chairman of the US military’s Joint Chiefs of Staff, said closing the prison posed major legal problems.

“There are enormous challenges associated with that,” he said. “There are enormously complex, complicating legal issues that are way out of my purview.”

Many governments, including close US allies, have urged Washington to shut the detention centre for terrorism suspects, which took in its first inmates almost exactly six years ago. Since then, only one prisoner has been convicted through the system of war crimes tribunals set up to try Guantanamo inmates, and that was the result of a plea bargain.

President George W Bush and other top US officials have said they would like to close the camp but only when they have found a satisfactory way to do so.

New S Korean leader ready for summit with North

SEOUL, 15 Jan—South Korea’s president-elect said on Monday he was willing to meet North Korean leader Kim Jong-il if it would help in ending his reclusive neighbour’s nuclear weapons programme. Lee Myung-bak, who takes office on 25 February, has pledged to take a tough line with Pyongyang, but also said he would implement a massive aid package for the impoverished state if it abandons nuclear arms.

“The leaders of the South and the North can meet any time if it helps in the dismantling of North Korean nuclear programmes and with other affairs,” Lee told a news conference. Outgoing President Roh Moo-hyun, criticized for giving away too much to North Korea for little in return, met the North’s leader last October for only the second summit between the two states that remain technically at war, having ended their 1950-53 conflict with a ceasefire instead of a peace treaty.

Iran hits out at “adventure-seeking” US in Mideast

TEHERAN, 14 Jan—Iran accused the United States on Sunday of “adventure-seeking” policies in the Middle East and said Washington owed the region an apology for fooling its people over a naval incident in the Gulf last week.

The two foes have stepped up a war of words since the 6 January incident, when Washington says Iranian speed boats threatened US ships in the Strait of Hormuz, a vital oil transport route. Iran says it was a routine identification.

The increase in tension coincides with a Middle East tour by US President George W Bush, who is seeking Arab support in reining in Iran and has repeated his assertion that the Islamic Republic was a “threat to world peace”.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Mohammad Ali Hosseini said Iran had acted with restraint over the incident but the United States sought to use it to paint the Islamic state in a negative light.

“What we witnessed shows that some circles inside the United States are still pursuing its adventure-seeking policies,” Hosseini told a news conference. His comments were translated into English by Iran’s Press TV satellite station.

“But their plans fell flat and we advise them not to pursue such policies of fooling the people in the region and now I think they have to apologize to the people of the region and also to the American nation,” he said.

Bilal made the remarks while meeting with participants in the Conference of Dialogue of Civilizations and Religions, according to the official SANA news agency.

“Some groups in the western world attempted to distort the image of Islam and link it to terrorism,” Bilal was quoted as saying, asserting that Islam is a religion of compassion and tolerance.

“A terrorist is a criminal on the human level... terrorism has no religion or nationality or creed and has nothing to do with Islam,” added the minister.

Beijing has
overweight kids

BEIJING, 14 Jan— About 295,000 Beijing children are overweight and more are suffering from obesity-related diseases, a new survey shows.

The three-year survey by the Capital Institute of Pediatrics (CIP) also revealed that 8.4 percent of the 23,400 respondents aged below 18 were obese. This was equal to 231,000 youngsters in the city.

In addition, nine percent of the respondents were troubled with high blood pressure. Another 9.8 percent had cholesterol problems, Monday’s Beijing Morning Post cited the survey as saying.

Such chronic ailments that are commonly found in adults have been increasingly affecting young people, said Mi Jie, an expert with the CIP, the survey organizer.

The poll, which involved an investment of nearly 6 million yuan (about 822,000 US dollars), is considered to be the most authoritative research on child health in Beijing to date.

Brazil plays down
mass yellow fever
outbreak

BRASILIA, 14 Jan—Brazil’s Health Minister on Sunday played down a mass yellow fever outbreak in spite of two confirmed deaths caused by the disease. No cases of infection among urban citizens have been reported since 1942, said Jose Gomes Tem-porao, adding that those few who died in rural areas were without vaccination, he said.

The minister said the government will do everything to ensure vaccination supplies.

Twenty-six suspected cases of yellow fever have been found in Brazil since the end of 2007, two of whom have died after testing positive.

A 23-year-old man has been quarantined recently on suspicion of having developed yellow fever in Sao Paulo state, local media reported on Sunday.

Ramiro Fonseca complained of pain throughout this body, as well as diarrhoea, severe headaches and high fever.

More women taking folic acid, more need to

BEIJING, 14 Jan—More American women are taking daily supplements of folic acid, a B vitamin crucial to prevent some major birth defects, but the number remains too low, federal health officials said on Thursday.

Forty percent of women ages 18 to 45 said in a survey last year that they took the supplements each day, the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said in a report. That compares to 28 percent in 1995, the CDC said. “A lot of women are not getting enough folic acid,” said CDC epidemiologist Heather Hamner, who worked on the report.

CDC researchers were most concerned about women ages 18 to 24. They had the lowest reported daily use of supplements containing folic acid, at 30 percent, and also had the least awareness of the need for folic acid, the CDC said.

“These women have the highest rate of unintended pregnancies and comprise about a third of all births in the US. So it’s really important that we target our efforts to this age group,” Hamner said in a telephone interview.

The CDC analyzed a 2007 survey by the Gallup Organization in which 2,003 women 18 to 45 years were questioned about folic acid.

The rate had reached 40 percent in 2004 before falling to 33 percent in 2005. Figures for 2006 do not exist.

Folic acid helps the body make healthy new cells. It is important that women get enough of it before and during a pregnancy to prevent major birth defects involving a baby’s brain or spine.—Internet accident near Macao

MACAO, 14 Jan — Some 133 passengers were injured when two high-speed ferries, bound for Hong Kong and Macao respectively, collided with each other Friday night off the Macao coast, said the Maritime Administration official of the Macao Special Administrative Region (SAR).

The accident occurred at 8:30 pm, about five nautical miles off the Macao coast.

There was dense fog in the area at the time of collision.

Among the injured passengers, 19 were badly injured, and no deaths were reported, said Susana Wong Soi Man, director of the Maritime Administration.

Ten members of the crew on board the two vessels were also injured.

The injured were admitted to two hospitals in Macao. More than 400 passengers were on board the two ships when the accident happened.

The two TurboJet

hydrofoil ferries were run by the Hong Kong-based ShunTak-China Travel Ship Management Limited, which provides ferry services between Macao and Hong Kong.

Museum of American Finance reopens
on Wall Street

NEW YORK, 14 Jan—The Museum of American Finance reopened to the public on Wall Street

Friday to raise awareness of domestic and international visitors to make more effective financial decisions.

Located in the historic former headquarters of the Bank of New York, the museum features a majestic banking hall, state-of-the-art financial education centre, auditorium, library and research facility.

Formerly located in modest space on Broadway, the museum has a 20-year lease on its much larger home on Wall Street.

It has been renovating and restoring the landmarked space, as well as creating engaging and interactive permanent exhibitions on the subjects of the financial markets, money, banking, entrepreneurship and Alexander Hamilton.

According to CEO Lee Kjelleren, the move to Wall Street will enable the museum to expand its reach significantly, giving New Yorkers, as well as national and international visitors, an increased awareness to make more effective financial decisions. “As the only public and independent museum of finance, we are proud to be a guardian of America’s collective financial memory, while also serving as an interpreter of current financial issues,” Kjelleren said.—MNA/Xinhua

Liverpool owners admit to Klinsmann meeting

LONDON, 15 Jan — Liverpool's American owners met former Germany manager Juergen Klinsmann in November to discuss the possibility of him replacing Rafael Benitez, chairman Tom Hicks said on Monday.

Hicks admitted they had sounded out Klinsmann, who has since been appointed as Bayern Munich boss from next season, but said they had now given Benitez their full backing after a meeting with the Spaniard.

"In November, when it appeared we were in danger of not advancing in the Champions League, weren't playing well in our Premier League matches, and Rafa and we were having communication issues over the January transfer window, George and I met with Juergen Klinsmann to learn as much as we could about English and European football," Hicks told the Liverpool Echo.— MNA/Reuters

South Africa win African Nations Cup warm-up

DURBAN, 14 Jan — Veteran striker Sibusiso Zuma spared South Africa's blushes after a goalless first half, scoring in the 62nd minute as the 2010 World Cup hosts struggled to beat Mozambique 2-0 in a friendly on Sunday.

"It was not exactly what we were looking for, we missed a lot of opportunities and we could have had more penetration," said South Africa coach Carlos Alberto Parreira. "We expect to improve in the next game."

South Africa's strike force squandered numerous opportunities in the first of two warm-up games ahead of next week's African Nations Cup finals in Ghana before German-based Zuma broke the deadlock against their neighbours. — MNA/Reuters

China humiliated by Germans but chief still confident

BEIJING, 15 Jan — China's soccer chief remained confident of his team's Olympic chances despite a 7-2 drubbing at the hands of German club Bayern Munich at the weekend.

The under-23 side's humiliation at the Allianz Arena made it a bad weekend all round for Chinese football as the senior had earlier been beaten 4-0 by SV Hamburg in the Dubai Challenge Cup in the United Arab Emirates.

"The team's performance today is acceptable," Xie Yalong told the Chinese Football Association (CFA) website.

"Everybody has done their best. The major task for the team is the preparation for this August's Olympics, closing the gap on the strong teams."

Serbian coach Ratomir Djukovic, who has overall control of both squads but is concentrating on the Olympic campaign until August, was not so upbeat but said such results should be kept in perspective.—MNA/Reuters

UAE soccer president wins new term, despite quitting

BANGKOK, 15 Jan — Soccer in the United Arab Emirates was in disarray on Monday after the president of the country's soccer federation won a new four-year term he does not want to serve.

The UAE Football Association were due to hold an emergency meeting on Monday to end a bizarre leadership crisis, which emerged after Yousuf Al Sarkal won an election from which he thought he had withdrawn.

Al Sarkal resigned on January 1 after five years in charge, but his club, Al Shabab, failed to inform election chiefs until after the nominations were submitted.

Since he was the only candidate in the polls, the federation's election commission announced that Al Sarkal had won, despite having quit the post citing personal reasons.

"Right now, he has resigned, but it's a sensitive issue," a senior UAE FA official told Reuters by telephone.

Munua apologizes for punching Depor team mate

MADRID, 15 Jan — Deportivo Coruna's Gustavo Munua has apologized for attacking fellow goalkeeper Dudu Aouate during an argument after training last week.

Israel keeper Aouate needed several stitches around his left eye after the Uruguayan international punched him in the face during a dispute in the changing room on Friday.

"I want to apologize to my team mate Dudu Aouate, his family and everyone that knows him for the incident," Munua told a news conference on Monday. "I'm ashamed to be in this situation."

"We were arguing a bit and I lost it for 10 seconds. The truth is I never thought things would go so far -- it is very sad."

The day before, Aouate had told a news conference that it was unfair he had been dropped as first-choice keeper.

After the incident, Deportivo coach Miguel Angel Lotina left both players out of the squad to play Villarreal and said they would remain on the sidelines for the rest of the season. But in a statement issued on the Deportivo website (www.canaldeportivo.com) on Monday, Lotina said he had decided to give the two players a week to resolve the matter before readmitting them to the squad.

"The first thing I have decided is that the two players will train apart from the rest of the team until January 21," said Lotina.

"They have got a week to show they can behave like adults and professionals, to settle their differences and clear everything up with the understanding that this cannot happen again.

Milan coach hails Pato's partnership with Ronaldo

MILAN, 15 Jan — New AC Milan striker Pato benefited from Ronaldo's sparkling display in Sunday's 5-2 win over Napoli, according to coach Carlo Ancelotti. Ronaldo, making only his second appearance of the season, scored his first two goals of the campaign before fellow Brazilian Pato netted on his debut in Milan's first home league win this term.

Pato, 18, joined the European champions from Internacional in August but was ineligible until now. He made a nervous start in a packed San Siro but Ancelotti was still thrilled with the front pair.

"The performance of Ronaldo was the most surprising thing because he trained for very few days. He demonstrated his natural class and Pato took advantage of it," Ancelotti told radio Rai on Monday.

"Pato is a very mature boy for his age who is very cool and carefree. He really wanted to play because being unable to for six months weighed on him a little.

"He waited with patience, he had time to get to know his new team mates but before the match he said absolutely nothing," added Ancelotti, under pressure with Milan occupying a lowly 12th place in Serie A.

Former player Garitano takes charge at Zaragoza

MADRID, 15 Jan — Former player Ander Garitano was appointed coach of Real Zaragoza on Monday following the dismissal of coach Victor Fernandez.

Garitano, who had been in charge of one of the club's youth sides, was confident he could turn the team around after their recent run of poor form.

"I haven't the slightest doubt that I'm up to the job, I'm in good spirits and I'm confident that the team we've put together will be able to take this club forward," the 38-year-old told a news conference.

Vietnamese to be vaccinated against cholera

HANOI, 15 Jan — Vietnam plans to vaccinate some 400,000 residents of Hanoi in the coming weeks, local newspaper Youth reported on Monday.

Under a plan submitted to the Vietnamese Health Ministry by the National Hygiene and Epidemiology, the residents of the capital's Thanh Xuan and Hoang Mai districts, which have many inadequate infrastructure works and immigrants, will be vaccinated against cholera before the approaching Lunar New Year festival in early February.

The last cholera vaccination in Hanoi was conducted 20 years ago, the newspaper said.

The Health Ministry has warned acute diarrhoea poses a threat to the coming festival, following 17 cases of infections in Hanoi since the outbreak in Vietnam was announced to have ended on 25 December, 2007.

Between last October and December, acute diarrhoea was reported in 13 provinces and cities in Vietnam. Hanoi suffered the most with a majority of cases, few of which were tested positive to cholera virus.

There were about 2,000 acute diarrhoea cases with no fatalities in the capital late last year.
