Sittoung Bridge (Moppalin) to bring about swift commodity flow

Sittoung Bridge (Moppalin) linking Kyaikhto Township, Mon State, and Waw Township, Bago Division, was opened on 12 July. The 2392.7 feet long bridge is of steel beam type and it can withstand 60 tons of load.

The new Sittoung Bridge (Moppalin) was built in order to replace the old bridge that was no longer suitable for use as it was 45 years old.

Peace and stability, secure and smooth transport, rich in natural resources and swift commodity flow constitute a driving factor for improvement of the socio-economic status of the people. This being so, the government has built a large number of roads and bridges the length and breadth of the nation.

At present, altogether 235 bridges, all 180 feet and above long, including Sittoung Bridge (Moppalin) have been built, and a network of roads linking east and west and south and north of the country emerged.

Major bridges were built in Mon State and Sittoung Bridge (Moppalin) is the sixth of its kind in the state. With better transport, Mon State, Kayin State and Taninthayi Division, which were in no position to deal much in the past due to poor transport, have now been able to enjoy economic development resulting from swift commodity flow.

Construction of a large number of roads and bridges depicts the economic strength of the State and the creativity and innovations of Myanmar engineers. With regional development, the socio-economic status of local people will improve.

Clinton on Obama's VP potential list

WASHINGTON, 13 July—US Democratic presidential candidate Barack Obama has listed his former rival, Hillary Rodham Clinton, as one of his vice president potentials, the Los Angeles Times reported on Saturday. According to the report, Jill Iscol, a Democratic donor, was told over a phone conversation by Obama that Clinton is one of his running mates candidates.

Iscol, who was a faithful supporter of Clinton's presidential campaign, told the newspapers that Obama has reached out to his former rival because he heard she was unhappy about the way she had been treated by the Democratic Party and the media.

She also recalled that Obama said it would be a mistake not to have Clinton on such a list but her husband, former President Bill Clinton, was a potential "complication" to him.

"He said once you're a president, even if you're a former president, you're always a president," Iscol said. Speculations are increasing on whom the Illinois Senator would choose to be his vice presidential candidate. Those who are considered being on his list include Virginia Governor Tim Kaine, Kansas Governor Kathleen Sebelius, and even Republican Senator Chuck Hagel.

However, Clinton's supporters have been calling Obama to share the dream ticket with the New York Senator, who has won 18 million popular votes in the primary season.

Volcano erupts on a remote Island in Alaska

ANCHORAGE, 13 July—A volcano erupted Saturday with little warning on a remote island in Alaska, sending residents of a ranch fleeing from falling ash and volcanic rock.

Okmok Caldera erupted hours after seismologists at the Alaska Volcano Observatory began detecting a series of tremors. The explosion flung an ash cloud at least 50,000 feet high, said a geophysicist, Steve McNutt.

Nine people, including three children, were at Fort Glenn, a cattle ranch near the volcano on Umnak Island, in the western Aleutians. They called the authorities on a satellite phone before losing the connection, the Coast Guard said. A vessel responding to a request for emergency assistance picked them up.

Okmok is 60 miles west of a busy fishing port, Dutch Harbor, on Unalaska Island. Ash was reported to be falling in the region, Mr McNutt said. The 3,500-foot volcano last erupted in 1997, Mr McNutt said.

It had shown signs of increased activity in recent months, he said.

Small problems hamper iPhone launch

BEIJING, 13 July—The launch of Apple Inc's new iPhone became an information-technology meltdown on Friday, as customers were unable to get their phones working.

A spokesman for AT&T, the exclusive carrier for the iPhone in the United States, was quoted Saturday by the Associated Press as saying that there was a global problem with Apple's iTunes servers that prevented the phones from being fully activated in-store, as had been planned.

Instead, employees were telling buyers to go home and perform the last step by connecting their phones to their own computers, spokesman Michael Coe was cited as saying.

However, the iTunes servers were equally hard to reach from home, leaving the phones unusable except for emergency calls.

The problem extended to owners of the previous iPhone model. A software update released for that phone on Friday morning required the phone to be reactivated through iTunes. The new phone went on sale in 21 countries on Friday, creating a global burden on the iTunes servers, said the AP.

Iran condemns McCain for cigarette joke

TEHRAN, 13 July — Iran has condemned US Republican presidential candidate John McCain for joking about killing Iranians with cigarettes and said it showed his “warmongering” foreign policy attitude, media said on Sunday.

McCain, who once sang in jest about bombing Iran, on Tuesday reacted to a report of rising US cigarette exports to the Islamic Republic by saying it may be “a way of killing ‘em.” Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman Mohammad Ali

Hosseini said: “McCain’s crude remark on the indiscriminate killing of the Iranian nation not only testifies to his disturbed state of mind, but also to his warmongering approach to foreign policy.”

In a statement quoted by the website of Iran’s state Press TV satellite station, Hosseini added:

“We condemn such jokes and believe them to be inappropriate for a US presidential candidate. It is most evident that jokes about genocide will not be tolerated by Iranians or Americans.”

McCain, known for acerbic comments and for sometimes firing verbally from the hip, was responding to a report that US exports to Iran rose tenfold during President George W. Bush’s term in office despite hostility between the two countries.

BAGHDAD, 13 July — Three Iraqi police officers were killed Sunday when two roadside bombs went off in quick succession Sunday near one of the officer’s home. Three other people, including two more officers, were wounded in the blast in Fallujah, a police official said.

The attack was one of several roadside bombs that targeted police Sunday, officials said. The bombs in Fallujah went off when colleagues went to pick up a police officer from his house in the al-Jamhuriya neighbourhood in central Fallujah, the official said.

Fallujah, a Sunni town located about 35 miles west of Baghdad in Anbar Province, had been a stronghold for insurgents in the early days of the Iraq war, but US and Iraqi military operations have chased many al Qaeda in Iraq cells out of the province.

A roadside bomb struck an Iraqi police patrol in Palestine Street in eastern Baghdad, wounding six people on Sunday. Four police officers were among those hurt, the interior ministry said. Another roadside bomb struck an Iraqi police patrol Sunday on al Maghreb Street in northern Baghdad. The blast wounded four people, including two police officers, according to the interior ministry. Britain's credit crunch hits kids' pocket money

LONDON, 13 July — Hard-up parents are cutting back on their children's pocket money as the economic downturn starts to hit household budgets, insurer AXA said.

One in six told a survey that they had cut back or even stopped pocket money in the last six months.

Allowances can form a significant drain on home finances, with one in twenty 17-year-olds saying they receive between 100 and 200 pounds a month from the "Bank of Mum and Dad".

Now the global credit crunch could squeeze transactions that typically take place over the kitchen table, with teenagers finding it harder to ease a tenner out of their parents' purses for a night out.

"Over half of the teenagers we polled said their parents give them money if they run out, and one in five knows they will get what they want if they are persistent enough," said AXA's Alison Green.

In contributing towards rehabilitation and reconstruction of storm-hit areas

Kyaw Swa Nge

Some townships in Ayeyawady and Yangon divisions were ravaged by the cyclone ‘Nargis’ in the early May 2008. On 3 May, the Prime Minister closely supervised the rescue and relief tasks being carried out day in, day out by servicemen, service personnel and social organizations.

Besides, the Head of State and the Deputy Head of State on their inspection tours comforted storm victims and gave guidance on the tasks. As a result, rescue and relief tasks could be expedited significantly. The government has designated the plan for taking care of the victims at the national level, and it is working hard to achieve the plan.

Departments, companies and well-wishers are making generous donations, while the government is spending billions of kyats on regeneration of the storm-hit areas and rehabilitation of the victims.

Similarly, world countries, regional and neighbouring countries, UN agencies, INGOs and NGOs are continuously donating humanitarian aid.

Moreover, the ASEAN-UN International Pledging Conference was hosted in Yangon on 25 May. So, the donor countries are continuously providing relief supplies for the storm victims in accordance with their pledges.

The following tables show relief supplies donated by internal and international donors from 6 May to 28 June.

Due to the contribution of the government, and local and international donors, storm victims have restored their agricultural farming and fisheries.

So, it is found that construction materials such as corrugated iron sheets, nails, timber and iron rods, and farming materials such as power-tillers, paddy seeds, fertilizer, water pumps, generators, fuel oil, fishing boats, and fishing nets for rehabilitation and reconstruction tasks are not many in proportion to relief supplies, foodstuff and medicines.

Now, relief tasks and disease control measures are in full swing thanks to efforts of the government, the people and the Tatmadaw and generous donations of internal and international donors. So, rehabilitation and reconstruction tasks are under way.

For storm victims to be able to resettle in their original places, measures are being taken with added momentum for reconstruction of ravaged villages, providing them with temporary shelter, reconstruction of roads and bridges, opening of temporary health care centres, reopening of schools, and restoration of their businesses such as agricultural farming, fisheries and salt industries. In the process, supervision of the government, contribution of well-wishers, participation of domestic companies and supplies of international donors are being exerted in combination, and as a result, the whole operation has showed successful.

In order to achieve the target of ensuring better living conditions of victims than that before the natural disaster in reconstruction tasks, 16 feet x 20 feet durable houses with concrete post shoes, timber floors and timber plus bamboo walls, roofed with CI sheets are being built for the victims. In doing so, well-wisher companies have built thousands of houses with the assistance and under the arrangements of the government. And they are working hard to complete the programme in a short time. Moreover, there is a plan to establish new towns with about 1,000 houses each in places that are safe from strong winds and floods.

All the basic education schools in the storm-hit areas began before the end of June for local youths to pursue education continuously. Besides, self-reliant affiliated schools in some villages have been upgraded to government basic education schools. School textbooks have been distributed to every student.

Regarding vocational tasks, tractor camps have been opened region-wise and arrangements are being made to provide power-tillers and sufficient fuel in time for those who have resettled in their native places to fully engage in agriculture. Paddy seeds, fertilizers and pesticides are being distributed on credit to the victims. Small loans are being disbursed to farmers based on the number of acres.

In the meantime, local authorities are extending a helping hand to salvage the sunken fishing boats and repair them, and providing fishermen with small fishing boats, motorized fishing boats, engines, fishing nets, accessories, and fuel. Embankments are being built to prevent the salt farms being flooded with seawater, and salt farmers will be provided with kilns and equipment and cash assistance.

Due to the contribution of the government, and local and international donors, storm victims have restored their agriculture and fisheries. So, storm-affected areas with a prosperous future are now even livelier with activities than before the catastrophe. The government is providing loans for farmers, fishermen, salt farmers and merchants. Furthermore, it is providing shop owners with a loan each ranging from 500,000 to 1.5 million kyats and rice shop owners with 1.5 million kyats each in order that they can restore their businesses in a short time.

In reconstructing school buildings, hospitals, monasteries, offices and departments, they are also designed to be used as shelters for local people when a storm takes place with high tidal waves.

Now the project for construction of five major roads has been launched for coastal areas in the delta. Efforts are being made to complete building earth roads in this rainy season. The project not only will ensure smooth transport but also are designed to protect the areas from possible future natural disasters. In this regard, the road sessions close to villagers will be built as high as 20 to 30 feet. So, in the face of a natural disaster, local people can use them as shelters from tidal waves. In addition, measures are being taken for conservation of mangrove forests as future preparedness against natural disasters.

The government is taking long-term preparedness against natural disasters, while carrying out rehabilitation and reconstruction tasks. So, it is fair to say that now long-term preparedness, rehabilitation and reconstruction tasks have been at the forefront of the operation.

According to the situations, storm-hit areas and victims need rehabilitation, reconstruction and preparedness supplies much more than relief supplies, foodstuff and medicines.

The rehabilitation sector calls for greater number and amount of supplies and equipment for restoration of the victims' businesses such as cattle, small tractors, power-tillers, paddy seeds, fertilizers, water pumps, generators, fuel, fishing boats, diesel engines, fishing nets, fishing gear, kilns for salt farms and equipment. The reconstruction sector needs larger volume of construction materials such as CI sheets, nails, cement, timber, bamboo and iron rods.

Now is the period of rehabilitation and reconstruction undertakings. So, well-wishers and donors should donate greater proportion of construction materials and vocational equipment to ease the sufferings of the victims.

Yangon Division USDA sponsors construction of middle school

The photo shows a two-storey school building constructed with the use of steel structures.

Under the close supervision of Central Executive Committee member of the Union Solidarity and Development Association (In-charge of Yangon Division) Mayor Brig-Gen Aung Thein Lin, Yangon Division USDA has spent its funds on construction of a two-storey building measuring 160 feet by 30 feet at No. 6 Basic Education Middle School on Sarga Road in Ward 4 of South Okkalapa Township recently.

Engineers of the Engineering Department (Building) of Yangon City Development Committee contributed the engineering technology to construction of new school building.

As a significant point, there was no wooden structure at the building. All parts of the building were constructed with H type steel beams, steel tie beams, steel purlins and steel principal rafters.

The new school building was two-storey one. The three feet high floor of the ground flat was placed with reinforced concrete. On the first floor, the decking steel plates were put under concrete at the slab. Before placing the concrete, steel rods were placed as a network to become the stronger slab.

Reinforced concrete posts and beams were not used in construction of the main pillars and beams of the new school building. With regard to the use of H type steel beams, Head of Engineering Department (Building) U Zaw Win said that the construction of the building could save time by using H type steel beams. Moreover, he added that the withstanding of steel structure can be better than that of the reinforced concrete one. In addition, the age of steel structure can be longer than any other types of structure, he said.

As part of efforts to promote the education sector of the nation, Yangon Division USDA set the plans to build two more two-storey school buildings and seven more one-storey school buildings in Yangon Division.

OPEC cuts oil demand forecast for 2030

VIENNA, 13 July — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) cut its global oil demand forecast for the year 2030 in its annual World Oil Outlook (WOO) released here.

According to the WOO 2008, OPEC forecasts that world oil demand would amount to 113.3 million barrels per day (bpd) in 2030. This is lower than the cartel's previous forecast of 117.6 million bpd published a year ago.

For the current year, the cartel is forecasting a total world oil demand of around 86.9 million bpd.

The lower forecast for world oil demand "reflects greater efficiency improvements due in part to the higher oil price assumption", OPEC said.

Fossil fuels would continue to provide most of the world's energy needs with a share consistently over 85 per cent in 2030, OPEC said.

Non-crude sources including oil sands and biofuels would also occupy a significant share of the world's energy supply in 2030, it added.

Moreover, almost 11 million bpd of non-crude oil supply coming from non-OPEC nations by the year 2030 is foreseen, which would be an increase of more than eight million bpd from the 2006 level, the Vienna-based cartel said.

French government to cut 30,000 jobs next year

PARIS, 13 July — The French Government will not have new employees to succeed over 30,000 civil servants who are due to retire next year, Eric Woerth, Minister for the Budget, Public Accounts and the Civil Service, said Thursday.

Some 30,000 to 32,000 positions will not be filled after old employees leave next year, which means the same number of civil servants will be slashed, Woerth told the local newspaper Les Echos.

It will be an unprecedented effort made by the French Government and is quite close to the staff cut goal which will hire only one person after two retirees.

The move will save the government some 100,000 euros (158,000 US dollars) and half of them will be distributed to civil servants as bonus. President Nicolas Sarkozy has promised for several times a staff reduction in the civil servant system to ease the pressure of government debt and budget deficit.

ASN says French uranium leak was low level

PARIS, 13 July—France's nuclear safety authority (ASN) said on Thursday it had provisionally classified a leak of liquid containing uranium on a site in southeastern France earlier this week at level one of the INES nuclear scale. The International Nuclear Event Scale (INES), used to measure the potential danger of incidents at nuclear installation, has seven levels, the lowest of which is zero.

“The ASN has provisionally classified this event at the level one on the INES scale,” the ASN said in a statement.

Areva said late on Tuesday that 30 cubic metres of liquid containing uranium, which was not enriched, was accidentally poured on the ground and into a river at the Tricastin nuclear site.

Britain considers visas from 11 more countries

LONDON, 13 July—Britain announced on Thursday that it is considering expanding visa requirements to citizens from 11 additional countries including South Africa.

Nationals from more than 100 countries, equivalent to three-quarters of the world's population, need a visa to come to the United Kingdom.

But following a “Visa Waiver Test” of all non-European countries, the government said there is a “strong case” to add 11 more.

These are: Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Lesotho, Malaysia, Mauritius, Namibia, South Africa, Swaziland, Trinidad and Tobago, and Venezuela.

The test looked at the level of risk nationals from countries posed in terms of illegal immigration, and crime and security.

Britain said visitors from these countries will now need a six-month visa. That will become a permanent requirement unless the “risk” posed by national from these countries is significantly reduced by the end of the year.—MNA/Reuters

Official says PLO studies suspending talks with Israel

RAMALLAH, 13 July—A senior Palestinian official said on Thursday that the Palestinian leadership is studying the possibility of suspending the peace negotiations with Israel until the latter stop settlements' activities.

Yasser Abed Rabbo, secretary general of Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), told a news conference that the PLO is seriously considering the Israeli plans of expanding Jewish settlements in Jerusalem and the West Bank.

“We study the possibility of suspending the peace negotiations with Israel until the return of President Mahmoud Abbas from his visit to Paris on the 13 of July,” said Abed Rabbo.

On Wednesday, Israel decided to build 1800 more housing units in the settlement of Har Homa, the settlement between Bethlehem and Jerusalem, which the Palestinians call “Jabal Abu Ghneim”.

Abbas will meet with Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert in Paris next week. Both are joining a conference on the Middle East that would include leaders of Arab countries.

“President Abbas will inform Olmert and other Arab and world leaders that if Israel continues settlements expansion in the West Bank and Jerusalem, the Palestinians would not hold the peace negotiations with Israel.”

Abed Rabbo accused Israel for carrying out all kinds of actions in the West Bank “to weaken the Palestinian (National) Authority such as what the Israeli Army does against charity organizations in Nablus”. —MNA/Xinhua

Sotheby's old masters sale fetches over $100m

LONDON, 13 July—A rediscovered painting by Frans Hals, believed until recently to be a copy of the Dutch master, has sold for 14 million US dollars nearly twice its pre-sale estimate.

The picture helped Sotheby's raise 101.5 million US dollars overall in its London old masters auction late on Wednesday, the second highest amount at an equivalent sale in the company's history.

“What was... noticeable in tonight's sale was the extraordinary breadth of the buyer base,” said Alex Bell, head of old masters for the auctioneer.

“Our sales are now attracting a more diverse and international spectrum of buyers than ever before.”

Sotheby's, rival Christie's and other auction houses are hoping that the art market boom can continue despite spreading economic gloom elsewhere. The emergence of super-rich Russians and other new buyers in India, China and the Middle East has helped spur values to record highs, and companies hope the breadth of buying will underpin a market some experts argue is over-inflated. —MNA/Reuters

NASA telescopes spot star “factory”

WASHINGTON, 13 July — Telescopes looking back in time to more than 12 billion years ago have spotted a star factory — a galaxy producing so many new stars that they have nicknamed it the “baby boom” galaxy.

The remote galaxy is — or was — pumping out stars at a rate of up to 4,000 per year. In comparison, our own Milky Way galaxy gives birth to an average of just 10 stars per year they reported on Wednesday.

“This galaxy is undergoing a major baby boom, producing most of its stars all at once,” said Peter Capak of NASA’s Spitzer Science Centre at the California Institute of Technology.

“If our human population was produced in a similar boom then almost all of the people alive today would be the same age,” Capak said in a statement.

Writing in Astrophysical Journal Letters, Capak and colleagues said they used several telescopes including NASA’s Spitzer Space Telescope and Hubble Space Telescope to spot the prolific ancient galaxy, which belongs to a class of galaxies called starbursts.

The DNPI also involved 17 government departments/ministries as well as the Meteorology and Geophysics Agency (BMG).

“The DNPI’s formation was formalized through a presidential regulation signed last July 4, after about one year of preparations,” Environment Minister Rachmat Witoelar told a Press conference at his official residence. The DNPI would work in the spirit of implementing the National Action Plan on Climate Change adopted in November 2007 or serve as the vehicle to achieve the plan’s objectives in dealing with and mitigating the impact of climate change, he said.

The DNPI’s tasks comprised the formulation of national policies, strategies, programmes and activities to control climate change, coordination of activities to implement the board’s mission to deal with climate change in terms of adaptation, mitigation, transfer of technology and funding.—MNA/Xinhua

Morocco banks on drip irrigation system to save water

RABAT, 13 July — The Moroccan Government has launched a programme of generalizing the drip irrigation system to save water and increase the irrigated lands to 700,000 hectares, or 50 per cent, local MAP news agency reported Thursday.

The north African kingdom is planning to slash the yearly demand of water by about one billion cubic metres, MAP said, quoting Water and Environment State Secretary Abdelkebir Zahoud as saying. The programme is also expected to improve the income of farmers, as the government is raising its subsidies to drip irrigation systems by 40 to 60 per cent.

Morocco, most of which is arid desert, relies to a large extent on rainfalls to supply water resource. The long, oft-repeated drought years have severely reduced the resource, and the lack of technology hampers exploiting the existing one.

Only 19 billion cubic metres of surface waters out of an estimate of 29 billion cubic metres is exploited, according to official figures. — MNA/Xinhua

Jordan’s marine species smuggling comes to standstill

AMMAN, 13 July — The systematic smuggling of coral and other marine species in Aqaba’s coastal waters has recently come to a standstill after a three-month crackdown, local daily Jordan Times reported on Thursday.

There have been no reports of such activity since a major crackdown initiated three months ago, said Royal Marine Conservation Society of Jordan (JREDS) Director

Fadi Sharaiha, adding that “It seems the smugglers are cautious and have decided to lie low for now.”

Environmental police and officials from the Aqaba Special Economic Zone Authority (ASEZA), JREDS and the Aqaba Marine Park joined hands in April to launch a major sweep on illegal shops and suspected smugglers.

“In some of the shops we found eels and lionfish, which are not permitted to be fished, transported or traded by law, as well as coral and other marine species in the smugglers’ houses,” said Sharaiha.

New techs show promise for early earthquake warning

WASHINGTON, 13 July — Using remarkably sensitive new instruments, seismologists in the US have detected minute geological changes that preceded small earthquakes along California’s famed San Andreas Fault.

If follow-up tests show that the pre-seismic signal is pervasive, researchers say the method could form the basis of a robust early warning system for impending quakes. The findings of their field investigations appears this week in the journal Nature.

“We’re working with colleagues in China and Japan on follow-up studies to determine whether this physical response can be measured in other seismically active regions,” said Rice University seismologist Fenglin Niu, the study’s lead author. “Provided the effect is pervasive, we still need to learn more about the timing of the signals if we are to reliably use them to warn of impending quakes.”

Today’s state-of-the-art earthquake warning systems give only a few seconds’ warning before a quake strikes. These systems detect P-waves, the fastest moving seismic waves released during a quake. Like a flash of lightning that arrives before a clap of thunder, the fast-moving P-waves precede slower moving but more destructive waves. —MNA/Xinhua

Injured Donald out of British Open

LOCH LOMOND (Scotland), 13 July – World number 19 Luke Donald has withdrawn from next week's British Open because of an injury to his left wrist.

"I consider the Open to be at the top of the list of the four biggest tournaments I play each year so it is extremely disappointing to not be able to be at Royal Birkdale," Donald said in a news release issued by his management company IMG on Friday.

The 30-year-old Briton, who has been sidelined since the US Open at Torrey Pines, California last month, will remain out of action for at least three more weeks.

"I first felt a 'pop' in my wrist on the 15th tee during the final round of the US Open and over the past three weeks I have been meeting with hand specialists to determine the best course of treatment for the injury," said the Ryder Cup player. —MNA/Reuters

Queiroz leaves Man Utd to become Portugal coach

LISBON, 13 July— Manchester United assistant manager Carlos Queiroz has been named Portugal coach for the second time, the Football Federation (FPF) said on Friday.

Queiroz, who fills the post left vacant by Brazilian Luiz Felipe Scolari, will sign a four-year contract. He is scheduled to be formally presented at a news conference on July 16. "I am very proud and honoured to be able to go back and serve my country," the FPF quoted Queiroz as saying on its website (www.fpf.pt) "This is a very special position that any professional would want.", he added.

"The first big objective is to qualify for the World Cup in South Africa (in 2010)."

His first game in charge will be a friendly against Faroe Islands next month ahead of their World Cup qualifying campaign against Sweden, Denmark, Hungary, Albania and Malta. Scolari stepped down after Euro 2008, following 5-1/2 years in charge, to join Premier League Chelsea who will again be one of the main challengers to champions United for the title.

United tried hard to keep their assistant manager at the club but must now prepare for the campaign without Queiroz, who added: "I want to thank Manchester United for the agreement reached, which made my return to Portugal possible". His first spell in charge ended when the country failed to qualify for the 1994 World Cup finals but FPF president Gilberto Madail said he was delighted with the appointment.

MacKenzie forgets troubles to take John Deere lead

CHICAGO, 13 July — American Will MacKenzie put his difficult season behind him to take a two shot lead after the second round of the John Deere Classic at Silvis, Illinois on Friday.

MacKenzie fired a bogey-free seven-under par 64 in his second round to follow his 65 on Thursday and take him to 13-under.

Americans Kenny Perry and Eric Axley and South Korea's Charlie Wi were two shots back on 11-under par. MacKenzie, a colourful character on the tour who enjoys extreme sports and surfing, has struggled for consistent form after a knee injury, said he was finally feeling confident.

"I'm just trying to stay committed and hit it at my target and have great rhythm. There's good stuff going on in my golf swing, in my golf game," he said.

"But you know, it's such a long way to go, and I'm trying to just get past the past. I've got a lot of bad shots memorised that I'm trying to erase right now. I'm just trying to stay in the moment." — MNA/Reuters

Bulls gore runners, break bones in Spanish festival

PAMPLONA(Spain), 13 July — A man was gored in the thigh and four other people suffered cuts and fractured bones on the sixth day of the annual Spanish bull-running in the Spanish town of Pamplona, organizers said.

They said a 26-year-old Colombian man was gored in his left thigh and was taken to a hospital in the northern Spanish city. Doctors declined to comment on his condition. The other four were treated for injuries including a broken jaw and fractures.

An estimated 8,000 took part in the early morning run fleeing bulls weighing up to 700 kilogrammes (1,543 pound) through the narrow cobbled streets of Pamplona. Dozens of people have been injured so far in the week-long festival, made famous by Ernest Hemingway’s novel “The Sun also Rises”.

A 23-year-old Irish tourist died after falling from the old city walls on Sunday, the first day of the festival, but before the first bull run.
