Central Committee for Rehabilitation of Salt Industry in Storm-hit Regions meets

NAY PYI TAW, 10 Sept — Chairman of National Disaster Preparedness Central Committee Prime Minister General Thein Sein delivered an address at the coordination meeting on rehabilitation of salt industry in storm-hit regions of Ayeyawady Division, held at the hall of Government Office, here, yesterday evening.

Also present at the meeting were ministers, directors-general of the State Peace and Development Council Office and Government Office, departmental heads, the chairman and members of the Central Committee for Rehabilitation of the Salt Industry in Storm-hit Regions, responsible persons of banking services and private salt entrepreneurs of the storm-hit regions.

Speaking on the occasion, Prime Minister General Thein Sein said it is known to all that the people in seven townships in Ayeyawady Division and 40 townships in Yangon Division lost many lives and property in cyclonic storm Nargis that hit on 2 and 3 May 2008. The National Disaster Preparedness Central Committee laid down three plans: relief, rehabilitation and prevention of natural disaster for long term in accord with the guidance of the Head of State; and as soon as the storm had hit, the ministers together with him supervised relief of storm-hit regions.

Prevent and expose terrorist acts

The press conference (1/2008) of the Information Committee of the State Peace and Development Council was held at the Ministry of Information in Nay Pyi Taw the other day. Bomb explosion in Shwepyitha, exposing the plot, movements of anti-government groups and their links and objective conditions were clarified.

Nowadays the government is building a new modern developed discipline-flourishing democratic nation laying down Our Three Main National Causes as the national duty. Moreover, the government is implementing the seven-step Road Map phase by phase. The State Constitution conforming to a new nation has been approved.

Economic plans for national development are being implemented and achievements have also been made in every sector with the participation of the national people. All the people are now enjoying fruits of peace and stability and development.

In such a situation, internal and external anti-government terrorist groups under the pretext of democracy and human rights issues are creating disturbance and committing destructive acts. Although there were some explosions in Yangon perpetrated by the saboteurs, those who got involved in the incidents were exposed with the help of the people.

Innocent people were killed or wounded due to the destructive acts of internal and external terrorist groups disguising as human rights activists.

Now there is peace and stability and prevalence of law and order in the country with strong national unity. It is a must for all the people to prevent terrorist and destructive acts that threaten their lives and property with constant vigilance.

Afghans say will open graves to show civilian deaths

AZIZABAD, (Afghanistan), 10 Sept—Relatives of Afghans killed in a US-led coalition raid in western Herat province offered on Tuesday to dig up graves to support claims of large-scale civilian deaths.

But they said that US-led forces must leave Afghanistan “in shame” if it was proven that an American account of the 22 August air strike in Shindand district that most of the victims were Taliban fighters was wrong.

The incident has outraged Afghans and opened a rift between coalition forces on the one hand and the Afghan government and the UN on the other, which both say that more than 90 civilians were killed.

The US military, which earlier disputed that figure, said it would re-investigate after new evidence had emerged about civilian casualties in the raid on Azizabad village.

“We are ready to dig out every grave to show the Americans that civilians, including women and children, were killed in the air strikes,” village elder Gul Ahmad Khan, who said he lost three children in the strike, told Reuters.

But Khan, who represented the village during President Hamid Karzai's visit last week to commiserate with the families, said the US must first agree it would pull out all its forces from the country if it was proved that civilians died in the strike.

Soldier kills self after returning from second Iraq tour

EAST BRUNSWICK (US), 10 Sept—When the final tally is made of American casualties in the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, Sgt. Coleman S. Bean will not be listed among the war dead.

The 25-year-old Bean served two tours of duty in Iraq. He landed there with paratroopers from the 173rd Airborne Division during the first days of the war, and saw combat duty in Northern Iraq.

Upon returning home he was diagnosed with post-traumatic stress disorder. Despite the diagnosis, he was deployed to Iraq for a second time, returning home in May. A third deployment remained a possibility.

Saturday night, following a car accident and a brief hospital stay, Bean returned to his home in South River and took his own life.

“He was a casualty of this war in a different way,” said his father, Gregory Bean, who remains angry that his son was returned to the war, despite a diagnosis of PTSD he calls “dramatic.”

“He did seek help for PTSD at the VA hospital (in Lyons), and we were trying to get him into rehab, when he was recalled (in 2007), and it was like the army didn’t care,” said the elder Bean.—Internet

Obama rejects Bush Iraq withdrawal plan

WASHINGTON, 10 Sept - Democrat Barack Obama blasted George W. Bush’s decision to keep Iraq war troop levels largely unchanged, linking Republican rival John McCain to the unpopular president’s war policies as he tried to regain momentum in the presidential race.

Bush said that he would keep the U.S. force strength in Iraq largely intact until the next president takes over and outlined what he called a “quiet surge” of additional American forces in Afghanistan. Obama fired back that the announcement means taxpayers “will continue to spend $10 billion a month in Iraq while the Iraqi government sits on a $79 billion surplus.”

“In the absence of a timetable to remove our combat brigades, we will continue to give Iraq’s leaders a blank check instead of pressing them to reconcile their differences,” Obama said while campaigning in Ohio, a crucial swing state.

Bush also spoke of raising the troop level in Afghanistan to nearly 31,000, compared with about 146,000 in Iraq. He said that a Marine battalion that had been scheduled to go to Iraq in November would go to Afghanistan instead, and that that would be followed by one Army combat brigade.

The wars in Iraq and Afghanistan had been expected to dominate the 2008 presidential campaign but have been overshadowed by the deeply troubled economy and social service issues.—Internet

TV journalist escapes assassination in Baghdad

BAGHDAD, 10 Sept—An Iraqi journalist for one of the Middle East’s best-known satellite television stations escaped assassination Tuesday when a bomb was found under the seat of his car as he prepared to leave home for work.

The attempt against Jawad al-Hattab, Baghdad bureau manager for Al-Arabiya television, illustrates the dangers facing Iraq despite the decline in violence.

President Bush cited those dangers when he announced Tuesday that he would keep US troop strength mostly intact through 2008.

Al-Hattab’s driver and a security guard discovered the laptop-sized bomb as they waited to pick up the correspondent at his home in central Baghdad, according to the station’s executive editor Nabil Khatib.

The two moved away from the car and summoned police but the device exploded before they arrived, heavily damaging the vehicle and setting it on fire, Khatib said.

“It appears that it was timed to explode while al-Hattab was driving to the office,” Khatib said, calling the blast “an attempt on his life and an attack against the station.”

Al-Arabiya, based in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, is among the most popular Arabic TV news stations and has been criticized by Iraqi hard-liners who believe it is too pro-Western.—Internet

‘Big Bang’ experiment starts well

GENEVA, 10 Sept —Scientists have hailed Wednesday a successful switch-on for an enormous experiment which will recreate the conditions a few moments after the Big Bang.

They have now fired two beams of particles called protons around the 27km-long tunnel which houses the Large Hadron Collider (LHC).

The £5bn machine on the Swiss-French border is designed to smash particles together with cataclysmic force.

Scientists hope it will shed light on fundamental questions in physics.

The first beam completed its first circuit of the underground tunnel at just before 0930 BST. The second successfully circled the ring after 1400 BST.

Cern has not yet announced when it plans to carry out the first collisions, but these are expected to happen before the machine shuts down for winter.

Russia proposes closer ties with OPEC

VIENNA, 10 Sept — Russian Vice Premier Igor Sechin reached out to OPEC late Tuesday, calling for greater cooperation between the cartel and his country in a move linked by some analysts to the Georgia-Russia conflict.

Sechin, who is chairman of Russia's biggest Russian oil group Rosneft, said a "draft memorandum of understanding" had been submitted to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries on closer cooperation between Russia and the group.

"Cooperation with OPEC is one of the priorities of Russia," he said, according to a statement read out at the opening of a meeting of OPEC's 13 members here.

He underscored that OPEC powerhouse Saudi Arabia and Russia were the largest oil producers in the world — they are number one and two measured by output — and referred to the "ambitious potential" of cooperation with the cartel.

The timing of the visit to OPEC by such a senior Russian official is likely to raise eyebrows in consumer nations as relations between Moscow and the West deteriorate in the aftermath of the Russia-Georgia conflict in August. — Internet

Oil down as Ike shifts course, OPEC mulls output

NEW YORK, 10 Sept — Oil prices closed below $104 a barrel Tuesday for the first time since early April as traders bet that Hurricane Ike would miss critical Gulf Coast oil installations and in Vienna, OPEC's president signaled the cartel wouldn't cut production.

Light, sweet crude for October delivery fell $3.08 to settle at $103.26 on the New York Mercantile Exchange, the lowest settlement price since 1 April. The contract rose 11 cents to settle at $106.34 in volatile trading Monday.

In aftermarket trading Tuesday, prices tumbled more than $4 a barrel to a new five-month low of $101.74.

Crude's decline puts the contract within striking distance of the psychologically important $100 threshold, a level first reached on 19 Feb. — Internet

OPEC decides to curb overproduction

VIENNA, 10 Sept — OPEC oil ministers have decided to curb overproduction by more than 500,000 barrels.

The move is a compromise meant to avoid new turmoil in oil markets while at the same time reflecting OPEC attempts to prevent prices from falling too far. Crude prices have dropped nearly 30 percent since spiking to nearly $150 a barrel in July.

An OPEC statement issued after oil ministers ended their meeting early Wednesday said the organization agreed to produce 28.8 million barrels a day. OPEC President Chakib Khelil said that quota in effect meant that member countries agreed to cut back 520,000 barrels a day in overproduction. — Internet

Antique plane makes soft landing in tree top

No one was injured, said Michael Koczera, manager of the Skylark Airpark.

The single-engine de Havilland Tiger Moth apparently lost power about 200 feet from the runway after taking off from the airport, said Jim Peters of the Federal Aviation Administration.

Koczera said the plane came to rest in the trees above 50 feet above the ground.

"When he ran out of airspace, he landed on top of a tree," Koczera said. "We're not talking about a big airplane. It's a fabric (covered) plane, probably weighs about 1,000 pounds."

A tree surgeon joined the crew of a Coast Guard helicopter and members of the local fire department in rescuing the stranded aviators, Koczera said.

NJ dolphin spotters beware: That might be a shark

Bull sharks, which can grow to between 7 and 12 feet long and are among the three most likely species to attack humans, have been known to swim in the section of the Navesink River where the 15 wayward dolphins have most recently been staying, said Bob Schoelkopf, co-director of the Marine Mammal Stranding Center in Brigantine.

"In that area are bull sharks that go in there quite frequently," he said. "You never know what you might be looking at; it could be a dolphin or it could be a shark."

Wildlife officials have been concerned about a worsening pattern of harassment by boaters and people on personal watercraft getting too close to the dolphins, which have been in the area since June. Federal regulations require that boaters stay at least 50 yards away from the dolphins; harassing them is punishable by a $10,000 fine.

CBO: US budget deficit to rise to $407 b

WASHINGTON, 10 Sept — The US federal government will run a deficit of 407 billion US dollars for the budget year ending 30 Sept this year, according to the latest estimates released Tuesday by the Congressional Budget Office (CBO).

The CBO also predicts that the budget deficit next year will increase further to an all-time high of 438 billion dollars and could go even higher as the government takes over mortgage giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac.

The red ink estimated by the CBO for this year is worse than the predictions released by the White House in July. The government foresees an imbalance of 389 billion dollars for 2008 and a deficit of 482 billion dollars for 2009.

In the last budget year that ended on 30 Sept, 2007, the federal deficit dropped by 34.4 percent to 161.5 billion dollars, a five-year low since an imbalance of 159 billion dollars in 2002, reflecting faster growth in government revenues than spending.

LOS ANGELES, 10 Sept — A thief entered a suburb home in Los Angeles and took away at least a dozen paintings worth several million US dollars, including works by world-famous painters Marc Chagall and Diego Rivera, police said Tuesday.

Los Angeles police announced an offer of 200,000-dollar reward for information leading to the return of these paintings, which were believed stolen on the morning of 23 August.

The owners, whose names were not released, are wealthy real estate investors who had been collecting for more than 50 years, Hrycyk said.

China trade surplus jumps 15% in August

BEIJING, 10 Sept — China's trade surplus in August rose 14.9 percent from a year earlier, as imports growth decelerated sharply on lower commodities prices.

The surplus last month was 28.69 billion US dollars, posting gains for the second month in a row. The figure was 25.28 billion US dollars in July and 24.97 billion dollars last August.

Exports in August jumped 21.1 percent to 134.87 billion dollars, compared with 26.9 percent in July. Imports climbed 23.1 to 106.18 billion dollars, down from 33.7 percent in July, the General Administration of Customs said on Wednesday.

McCain camp: Obama’s ‘lipstick’ remark disgraceful

LEBANON, 10 Sept— What’s the difference between the presidential campaign before and after the national political conventions? Lipstick. The colorful cosmetic has become a political buzzword, thanks to Republican vice presidential nominee Sarah Palin’s joke in her acceptance speech that lipstick is the only thing that separates a hockey mom like her from a pit bull.

Democratic presidential nominee Barack

Obama told an audience Tuesday that GOP presidential nominee John McCain says he’ll change Washington, but he’s just like President Bush.

“You can put lipstick on a pig,” he said to an outbreak of laughter, shouts and raucous applause from his audience, clearly drawing a connection to Palin’s joke even if it’s not what Obama meant. “It’s still a pig. You can wrap an old fish in a piece of paper called change. It’s still going to stink after eight years.”

McCain’s campaign called the comments “offensive and disgraceful” and said Obama owes Palin an apology. Obama’s campaign said he wasn’t referring to Palin and said the GOP camp was engaging in a “pathetic attempt to play the gender card.” Obama’s camp also noted that McCain once used the same phrase to describe Hillary Rodham Clinton’s health care plan.

Obama followed up by saying Palin is an interesting story, drawing boos at the mention of her name that he tried to cut off.

“Look, she’s new, she hasn’t been on the scene, she’s got five kids. And my hat goes off to anybody whose looking after five. I’ve got two and they tire Michelle and me out,” he said.—Internet

One's future will be prosperous only when one is accepted by the people

Chit Naing (Psychology)

Worldwide well-known scientist Albert Einstein once said, "Try not to become a man of success but rather to become a man of value". It means everyone should give priority to others' interests rather than to their own. One will become a man of value only if one serves the interests of others. I notice that some are so callous and barbarous to disrupt and expend the interests of their motherland and the people in their own interests.

Some try to serve their interests at the expense of that of others and the people. Their concept is that they have to exploit others for their own interests. In fact, such a concept is absolutely wrong. One will notice who is such a person, if one assesses the prevailing situations of the nation.

In that regard, a person and his neighbours are inseparable and complementary. Venerable Manle Monk Ashin Javana in his treatise "Maha Sutakari Magha Deva Lankathit" said, "Praising others, one could stand on one's dignity, and one would lose one's dignity if one tries to impair others' dignity". One's interest and that of others are connected and have an effect on each other. One can lead a happy life only if one serves others' interest. Similarly, one can lead a life of peace only if one helps others lead a peaceful life. Everyone has to observe at least the moral conduct (Varitta Sila) of refraining from disrupting others' interest.

A person, who does not show loving-kindness for and who attempts to trouble others resulting from his or her excessive greed and anger, cannot get much opportunity to perform great meritorious deeds, and cannot live long, either. Such a person will have to face evil consequences of unwholesome acts he or she has committed. In consequence of making the people impoverished and lowering down the living conditions of others, that person has to be put under restrictions. A person is the sole master of his or her fate. That person is now under restrictions as that person is always trying to get the people into various forms of havoc. If a person under restrictions pledges that he will never disrupt others' interest, will join hands with those serving the interest of the people, and will dedicate to his life to others' interest, such person, regardless of age and status, deserves a warm welcome of the people.

The intention of calling for international economic sanctions and diminishing the prosperous future of the nation and the people may be to rise against the government. However, such acts have adverse effects on the interests of the people, especially daily and monthly wages earners. A large number of female workers lost their jobs and went through really hard times, following the closure of factories, and many of them lost their moral characters. If the person keeps on ignoring such situations and calling for further economic sanctions against the mother country, without doubt that person's wishes will never come true.

The people will never show their affection to that person so long as the person disrupts the interests of the nation and the people. The people will be grateful to that person only if that person contributes towards the interests of the people. Disrupting others' interests is "harbouring hostility towards others". For whom is that person doing so?

The Myanmar word "phone" is derived from a Pali word "Punña". A person with great "phone" has constructed more than 200 river-spanning bridges and more than 200 dams and reservoirs. Out of respect to that person, the people say prayers for the well-being of that person before going to bed and after getting up every day. He wins the affection of the people due to the good deeds he has done.

The people will never extend a warm welcome to such a person who is trying to destroy their peaceful life. Unwholesome actions usually yield evil results. It is out of the question that a person wants to enjoy fruitful results from the bad deeds he has committed, as the saying that goes "You reap what you sow".

All the acts which were committed for about 20 years have yielded no fruitful results, and the excessive greed, anger and delusion are having adverse effects on others. So, it is high time the ways were to be mended.

As long as keeping on doing same wrong deeds and making harsh comments on those who are showing benevolent attitude, a prosperous future cannot be expected.

Ideas do matter. The country behind the curtain is powerful with sophisticated technologies but its real intention is not realized, so the situations have remained unchanged for over 20 years. The wrong acts should be given up for long. And positive changes for the brighter future of the nation should be made.

The strength of the nation lies at home. Myanmar has suffered a series of evil consequences of relying on external elements. At the instigation (instruction) of the Communist party of a neighbouring country, the Burma Communist Party (BCP) went underground and followed the armed struggle line with tenacity for 20 years from 1950 to 1970. However, its wishes did not come to fruition due to the fact that they placed too much reliance on external elements.

Again, the red power revolution was operated with the assistance of external elements for 20 years from 1967 to 1988. But it did not win any victory, either.

There is nothing more disappointing than complying with the instructions of foreign countries. It should come to one's knowledge that what one is doing does not conform to the prevailing conditions. So, it is time to escape from the snare of external elements.

Only when there is no attachment to any particular thing and struggles to be free from alien dominance, will it be possible to work with own views. I would say, do not torture the people any longer, and do not consider the people to be naïve and artless with less intellectual power than westerners. The people have said nothing in that case, but they realize the objective conditions as they really are. And the people know well the meaning of the saying that goes "One's future will be prosperous only when one is accepted by the people".

Translation: MS

One's interest and that of others are connected and have an effect on each other. One can lead a happy life only if one serves others' interest. Similarly, one can lead a life of peace only if one helps others lead a peaceful life. Everyone has to observe at least the moral conduct (Varitta Sila) of refraining from disrupting others' interest.

Minister Brig-Gen Ohn Myint reports on rehabilitation of salt industry.—MNA

People, using State assistance, urged to put energies...

In so doing, the committee sought the assistance from local and abroad. Thanks to harmonious cooperation of Myanmar, ASEAN and the UN, over one million of people in the storm-hit regions could be rescued in time. As providing of basic needs and health care services were performed in the event of Nargis in a short time, the international community praised the endeavours of Myanmar in comparison with the event of Tsunami.

After undertaking relief works in the storm-affected areas, the rehabilitation work has been carried out to a certain degree. In the rehabilitation work, the committee in cooperation with the assistance of the people created the better shelter for the homeless by building wooden houses with corrugated iron sheets. So far, 2,000 houses have been built and more houses are under construction.

These storm-hit regions have three main businesses namely, agriculture, fishing and salt industry. Among them, priority was given to undertaking of the agriculture work as it must be carried out in time. The storm caused damage to about 500,000 acres of farmlands and death to about 130,000 draught cattle. Moreover, farming implements and tractors were destroyed in the event of the storm. Therefore, a lot of power-tillers, draught cattle, fuel and paddy strains were provided to the local farmers to commence the cultivation task in time.

In this regard, 8,536 power-tillers, 2,633 draught cattle, over 1.7 million baskets of paddy strains and fuel were delivered to the storm-hit areas. As a result, over 90 per cent of ravaged farmlands have so far been put under paddy.

The second business is fishing industry. Fish is in rivers, creeks and the sea water around the storm-hit regions. If fishing boats and fishing nets are provided, the fishing industry can resume immediately and the fishermen can earn income. As a result, a total of 9,500 fishing boats and 14,955 fishing nets have been provided, the fishermen in the regions resumed their work. At present, income in the fishery industry is high due to the better condition in the fishing work.

The third business is the salt industry that they will coordinate. In the aftermath of the storm, a total of 23,458 acres of salt fields, 24,214 tons of crude salt and equipment for salt industry were destroyed in concerned are to discuss matters related to supplying finance, tractors, water pumps and fuel to salt makers.

Chairman of the central committee for rehabilitation of the salt industry in storm-hit regions Minister for Mines Brig-Gen Ohn Myint reported on organizing of committees and sub-committees under the central committee for rehabilitation of salt industries, poles.

Afterwards, responsible personnel from banks reported on plans for disbursing loans to salt entrepreneurs.

On behalf of salt entrepreneurs, U Kyi Win of Thingangon village-tract in Labutta Township spoke words of thanks to the State.

In his concluding remarks, the Prime Minister said the Head of State has given guidance on improvement of livelihood of 8,536 power-tillers, 2,633 draught cattle, over 1.7 million baskets of paddy strains and fuel were delivered to the storm-hit areas. As a result, over 90 per cent of ravaged farmlands have so far been put under paddy.

Myaungmya, Labutta, Pyapon and Ngaputaw townships of Ayeyawady division. Moreover, the workers of salt industry lost their lives in the event of the storm.

As salt fields are in natural conditions and time has not come yet to make salt, we have not taken measures for preparing salt fields. However, we have made arrangements timely to grow "Khu-aing" paddy strain in salt fields and a total of 10,553 acres have been put under "Khu-aing" paddy strain.

There are a few steps to make salt. First, dykes are to be built in October and that steps should be taken by the end of this month. After that, the sea water is pumped into salt fields. Drying the sea water under the sun shine and collection of salt are to be carried out before the rainy season.

Therefore, ministries plans for producing 300,000 tons of salt, assistance from ministries and granting loans to salt entrepreneurs.

Afterwards, Minister for Agriculture and Irrigation Maj-Gen Htay Oo reported on plans for sales of tractors; Minister for Industry-2 Vice-Admiral Soe Thein on plans for sales of tractors and pumps; Minister for Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement Maj-Gen Maung Maung Swe on plans for supplying tarpaulins and tents to salt entrepreneurs; Minister for Energy Brig-Gen Lun Thi on fuel supply, Minister for Livestock and Fisheries Brig-Gen Maung Maung Thein and Minister for Cooperatives Maj-Gen Tin Htut on plans for granting loans to salt entrepreneurs and Managing Director of Myanmar Timber Enterprise U Win Tun on plans for supplying timber and storm-survivors as he wants their living standard higher than the previous standard.

Therefore, people, using assistance provided by the State, are to put their energies into their works for improvement of their living standards and for interests of the State, he urged.

Later, the coordination meeting came to a close.

Germany says arms race threatens UN poverty fight

BERLIN, 10 Sept— A new arms race fuelled in part by the crisis over Georgia threatens UN targets for boosting development aid and slashing poverty by 2015, German Development Minister Heidemarie Wieczorek-Zeul said on Tuesday.

Speaking at an informal conference on the UN's Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) in Berlin, Wieczorek-Zeul said billions of dollars of spending on new weaponry was diverting much-needed cash from the fight against hunger, poverty and illness.

"We must avoid falling back into a situation where we have a new arms race," she told conference delegates, including South African Finance Minister Trevor Manuel.

"The arms race is a distraction. It's exactly the opposite of partnership and we need partnership," added Wieczorek-Zeul, a member of Germany's Social Democrats who share power with Chancellor Angela Merkel's conservatives in an uneasy coalition.

"The world needs to protect itself against hunger, poverty and illness. We have to mobilize our finances for that." Reducing poverty is one of eight targets agreed in 2000 by UN member states and the world's top development bodies. Slow delivery of aid by some of the world's richest nations and a recent spike in food and energy prices are two reasons the goals are in danger of being missed by the 2015 deadline, UN officials and aid agencies say.—MNA/Reuters

Palestinian woman attacks Israeli soldiers with acid

RAMALLAH, 10 Sept—A Palestinian woman threw acid in the face of two Israeli soldiers at a West Bank checkpoint and fled, witnesses and Israeli army sources said on Wednesday.

The woman was among tens of Palestinians who were being checked at Hawara roadblock in the south of Nablus city, according to the witnesses. When she got close to the soldiers, she splashed acid in their faces, wounding two. The Israeli sources said the two soldiers suffered light burns and were taken to the hospital.

The other soldiers on the checkpoint opened fire when they tried to chase down the woman who succeeded to escape.

After the incident, the soldiers announced the checkpoint was closed and the stranded people were held there. More than 500 checkpoints in West Bank divide the Palestinian communities into isolated cantons. Israel eases the movement of the Palestinians on the crossings or complicates it according to the political and security situations.—Internet

Five race to be Japan PM; election seen near TOKYO, 10 Sept—Five candidates lined up on Wednesday to become Japan's next prime minister, with former foreign minister Taro Aso the odds-on favorite to win the race and call a snap election soon.

Democratic Party (LDP) is hoping a vibrant debate, now focused on how to balance the need to boost Japan's stumbling eco-nomy while reining in a bulging public debt, will improve its standing with voters ahead of a general election that the new prime minister could well call in November. The out-spoken, manga comic-loving Aso, who tops voter and party surveys ahead of the 22 September LDP leadership poll, is touting the need for government spending and income and other tax cuts to boost an economy teetering on the edge of recession. "Japan's economy needs three years to heal. I will rebuild it in a short-term, concentrated manner," Aso, 67, said in his policy platform. "What is needed now are reforms for the future. I will continue these resolutely."

China's CPI rises 4.9% in August

BEIJING, 10 Sept — China's consumer price index (CPI), a measure of inflation, was up 4.9 percent in August, the National Bureau of Statistics announced on Wednesday.

The figure, compared with 6.3 percent in July, 7.1 percent in June and 7.7 percent in May, was lower than most forecasts.

"The continuous decline of the CPI is a positive sign as it shows that the government's measures to ease inflationary pressures were effective," said Yao Jingyuan, chief economist with the bureau, who attributed the decline to falling food prices.

Food prices, which account for more than a third of the CPI calculation, rose 10.3 percent in August, 4.1 percentage points lower than July.

The price of meat increased 8.0 percent, down by 8 percentage points over July, while that of pork rose 1.0 percent. Cooking oil went up 22.7 percent, vegetables down 0.5 percent, aquatic products up 16.4 percent and grains up 8.0 percent.

In the first eight months of this year, the inflation indicator rose 7.3 percent from the same period last year: 7.0 percent for urban areas and 8.0 percent for the countryside.

The producer price index (PPI) for industrial products was up 10.1 percent in August over the same period last year, but experts say the PPI rise would not immediately increase pressure on the CPI.—Internet

Reynolds American to cut 570 jobs, realign brands

NEW YORK, 10 Sept — Reynolds American Inc. and its tobacco unit, RJ Reynolds, said Tuesday they would cut about 570 jobs, or 10 percent of their American work force, as cigarette sellers prepare to compete more aggressively for sales of smokeless tobacco products.

The company expects the job cuts at its headquarters in Winston-Salem, NC, to save $100 million by the end of 2010 and $55 million a year after that. Employees will begin losing their jobs in the third quarter, but some cuts will take until the end of 2009.

Reynolds' move comes after its bigger rival, Philip Morris USA owner Altria Group Inc, said Monday it would buy UST Inc, the maker of Skoal and Copenhagen, for $10.4 billion. Goldman Sachs analyst Judy Hong said the restructuring is a natural move for Reynolds, as the tobacco industry finds ways to cope with declining cigarette sales. Americans are buying 3 percent to 4 percent fewer cigarettes a year, and the industry has turned to alternatives such as chew, snuff, cigars and snus for future growth. Sales of smokeless tobacco products are growing by about 5 percent to 6 percent a year.—Internet

Bacteria glue points to superbug vaccine: scientist

LONDON, 10 Sept — A sticky glue secreted by drug-resistant bacteria could help scientists develop an effective vaccine against “super-bugs,” US researchers told a conference on Wednesday.

The sticky substance is a complex sugar called PNAG which the researchers said was a promising vaccine target because animal studies have shown it produces a protective immune response when manipulated chemically.

The bacteria produces the substance when growing a biofilm that protects them from antibiotics, Gerald Pier of Harvard Medical School told the Society for General Microbiology’s meeting in Dublin.

“We are targeting this material as a possible vaccine, but natural exposure to the sugar compound does not result in most people and animals making an immune response that would protect them from attack by the bacteria or recurring infections,” he said in a statement.

Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus, or MRSA, infections can range from boils to more severe infections of the bloodstream, lungs and surgical sites. Most cases are spread in hospitals, nursing homes or other health care facilities.

MRSA is a growing problem worldwide and can cause life-threatening and disfiguring infections and can often only be treated with expensive, intravenous antibiotics.

Plans unveiled to convert human waste to energy

SAN ANTONIO, 10 Sept — The US city of San Antonio unveiled a deal on Tuesday that will make it the first US city to harvest methane gas from human waste on a commercial scale and turn it into clean-burning fuel.

San Antonio residents produce about 140,000 tons a year of a substance gently referred to as “biosolids,” which can be reprocessed into natural gas, said Steve Clouse, chief operating officer of the city’s water system.

“You may call it something else,” Clouse said, but for area utilities, the main byproduct of human waste - methane gas - will soon be converted into natural gas to burn in their power plants.

N China young people most prone to suicide

BEIJING, 10 Sept — Suicide is the leading cause of death for Chinese people aged 15 to 34, and the fifth biggest killer - after cardiovascular disease, cancer, respiratory disease and accidental death - among all age groups, a report by the Chinese Association for Mental Health said Tuesday.

On average there is one suicide and eight attempts every two minutes on the mainland, leading to more than 250,000 deaths a year, it said. Yang Fude, vice-president of Beijing Hui-longguan Hospital, which specializes in mental health, said China has one of the highest suicide rates in the world, particularly among rural women. “It is also one of the few countries where rural suicides out-number urban suicides,” he told China Daily. “In China, the ratio is three to one,” he said.

Research: Unique animal species can survive in space

WASHINGTON, 9 Sept — Water bears are the first animals in the world to have survived exposure to the vacuum and radiation of space, according to a report published Tuesday in US journal Current Biology. Nearly a year ago, Ingemar Jonsson, an ecologist from Kristianstad University in Sweden, had some 3,000 microscopic water bears sent up on a 12-day space trip. The aim of the research project was to find out more about the basic physiology of tardigrades by seeing if they can survive in a space environment.

Now Jonsson and his European colleagues reported their results. “Our principal finding is that the space vacuum, which entails extreme dehydration, and cosmic radiation were not a problem for water bears. On the other hand, the ultraviolet radiation in space is harmful to water bears, although a few individual can even survive that,” says Jonsson.

The next challenge for the researchers is to try to understand the mechanisms behind this exceptional tolerance in water bears.

Jonsson suspects that even the water bears that got through the space trip without any trouble may in fact have incurred DNA damage, but that the animals managed to repair this damage. —Internet

One killed, four wounded in Namibian light plane accident

GENEVA, 10 Sept — A Namibian light tour plane made an emergency landing this weekend, killing one Swiss passenger and injured four others, the Swiss Foreign Ministry said Monday. Swiss Media said the plane was forced to make an emergency landing due to engine failure shortly after taking off from Namibia’s capital Windhoek.

The plane had a bad collision on the ground before landing and wounded five Swiss passengers aboard, one of whom unfortunately could not escape a heart attack and died in the hospital, the media said. —Internet

Aussies have orange glow for World Cup qualifiers

TASHKENT, 10 Sept — Australia kick off their World Cup qualifying campaign on Wednesday looking to build on the historic friendly 2-1 victory over the Netherlands. The Socceroos did it the hard way on Saturday, coming from behind thanks to goals from Harry Kewell and Josh Kennedy, to record the best possible fillip ahead of the tricky Uzbekistan tie.

It was a result that delighted Australia's Dutch coach Pim Verbeek. "We're very pleased with the result, but I'm more pleased with the organisation, the way they played, especially in the first half," he said.

"It's not about the result today because it's all about the result on Wednesday." Meanwhile Uzbekistan, the strongest side among the former Soviet republics in the Asian Football Confederation, suffered a shock 3-0 defeat in their World Cup qualifying opener against Qatar on Saturday.—Internet

Croatia equals crunch time for Capello's England

ZAGREB, 10 Sept — Fabio Capello owes his position as the world's best paid coach to Croatia, but England's Italian manager would be unwise to anticipate any further favours from Slaven Bilic and his squad here on Wednesday.

Having masterminded home and away victories over England in the qualifying campaign for Euro 2008, Bilic played a central role in ensuring Wayne Rooney and co. were missing from the finals, thus creating the vacancy that Capello filled at the start of this year.

Domenech has been feeling the heat this week after Saturday's 3-1 hammering at the hands of Austria in their opening World Cup qualifier.

French media has gone into overdrive following the defeat to the 101 world ranked side, calling it a 'colossal catastrophe', with one newspaper saying it was "already Waterloo".

The 56-year-old coach weighed into the media debate on Tuesday with his own brand of histrionic self-deprecation.

Harrington sorry that he can't compete for Vardon

ST LOUIS, 10 Sept — Padraig Harrington was about the only one not complaining that a double major champion could not qualify for the Tour Championship, blaming only himself for missing consecutive cuts at the start of the PGA Tour Playoffs.

His biggest letdown? Realizing he couldn't win the Vardon Trophy. Harrington figured he was safe playing the minimum 15 events on the PGA Tour. But he missed the cut three times, and finished the year with only 52 rounds. Players must complete 60 rounds to be eligible for the Vardon Trophy for lowest adjusted scoring average.—Internet

Wie enters Q-school for LPGA Tour

CALIFORNIA, 10 Sept — Unable to earn her card through sponsor exemptions, Michelle Wie has entered the LPGA Tour qualifying school and will play the first stage next week on the California course where she first rose to fame at age 13.

Her father, B.J. Wie, had said at the US Women's Open that Wie had "no other options" but Q-school if she didn't make enough money to finish the equivalent of 80th of the LPGA Tour money list.

"Nothing has changed since then," he said Tuesday morning from Palm Desert, Calif. "She will go to Q-school."

The first stage will be at Mission Hills in Rancho Mirage, Calif., site of the Kraft Nabisco Championship, where Wie played in the final group of the LPGA's first major when she was in the eighth grade.—Internet

McLaren appeals penalty that cost Hamilton a win

WOKING, 10 Sept — McLaren appealed the time penalty that cost Lewis Hamilton the victory at the Belgian Grand Prix.

Race stewards penalized Hamilton 25 seconds for cutting across a chicane to overtake then-leader Kimi Raikkonen during the closing stages of Sunday's race. Hamilton re-emerged onto the track and allowed the Ferrari driver back into the lead before overtaking for good.

"From the pit wall, we then asked race control to confirm that they were comfortable that Lewis had allowed Kimi to re-pass, and they confirmed twice that they believed that the position had been given back in a manner that was 'OK,'" McLaren chief executive Martin Whitmarsh said Tuesday.

Petrova, Pennetta through to Bali tennis second round

NUSA DUA, 10 Sept — USA DUA, Indonesia (AFP) - Russian Nadia Petrova made the adjustment to searing tropical heat Tuesday, posting a 6-3, 6-1 win over Japan's Aiko Nakamura to reach the second round of the Bali Open.

"I feel confident now," said fourth seed Petrova, who won in Cincinnati this year but has slumped to 21 in the WTA rankings from the third spot two years ago.

"I've adjusted to conditions. I felt a lot faster on court and was moving well. The first round is always tough -- it's important to make a confident first step."

Italian third seed Flavia Pennetta -- who beat Petrova in the third round of the US Open -- had to struggle through a long first set before finally subduing American Vania King 7-6 (9/7), 6-1.—Internet

Lance Armstrong coming out of retirement for Tour

AUSTIN (Texas), 10 Sept — Lance Armstrong is ready to swear off the chips and salsa, climb back on the bike and win an eighth Tour de France. Three years after retiring, the 36-year-old says he'll return to competition and the Tour de France in 2009, giving up relaxed days of a few beers and Tex-Mex food for a self-described monk's life of disciplined training and punishing races.

In a formal statement Armstrong called his comeback an attempt to raise global awareness in his fight against cancer. Just as likely, it's also about his relentless desire to compete and win, especially at the Tour, the race he dominated with a record seven titles from 1999-2005. Citing the slow pace of last year's Tour and the rush from last month's Leadville 100 race, Armstrong decided it was time to return.

French UN worker accused of rape in Africa missions

PARIS, 10 Sept— A former UN employee went on trial in France on Tuesday accused of raping around 20 underaged girls during missions to Africa between 1998 and 2004.

Didier Bourguet, a mechanic who worked for the United Nations from 1994, faces a prison sentence of up to 20 years if he is found guilty of a series of sexual offence and pornography charges ranging from rape to corruption of minors.

At the beginning of the hearing in Paris, at which one of his alleged victims was present, Bourguet acknowledged that he had had sex with the girls but he said they had consented.

“I admit the sexual relations and the pornography, but I deny rape,” he told the court.

His lawyer told reporters that Bourguet, who worked in the Central African Republic between 1998-2001 and the Democratic Republic of Congo between 2001-04, would argue that he had no way of knowing the girls were underaged.

A police investigation uncovered paedophile pornography and a series of images and videos stored on Bourguet’s personal computer showing him with very young girls, the court heard.

Manila SC reins in Judges over bribery scandal

MANILA, 10 Sept— The Philippines' Supreme Court removed one judge, suspended another and disciplined two others on Tuesday after a bribe was allegedly offered during legal deliberations over a corporate takeover battle.

“This is a wake-up call for all our justices,” Jose Midas Marquez, the Supreme Court spokesman, told reporters.

In July the Court of Appeals halted an attempt by the state pension fund, GSIS, to wrest control of Manila Electric from the Lopez family, one of the Philippines' wealthiest clans.

Amid allegations of underhanded dealings, the 15-member Supreme Court looked into the proceedings and found there were no deliberations on the case.

One of the five justices handling it had written a ruling before a petition was filed. He was dismissed for violating the magistrate’s “code of judicial conduct”.

The inquiry said that a 10-million-peso (214,000-US-dollar) bribe had been offered to one justice by a businessman who wanted a ruling in favour of the Lopez family.

Philippines mother kills daughters, self with cleanser

MANILA, 10 Sept— A 32-year-old woman murdered her three young daughters by forcing them to drink a toilet bowl cleanser before drinking the same toxic liquid herself in a province south of Manila, police said on Tuesday.

Neighbours found the woman sprawled on the ground beside her dead children, aged 2 to 4, at dawn inside their rural home, Leo Marzan, police chief in Laguna Province, told reporters. The woman was found still holding the toilet bowl cleanser bottle.

“Her neighbours tried to save her but she died on the way to a hospital,” Marzan said, adding poverty could have driven the woman to kill three of her four children.

Oil palm plantation thriving, palm oil mills operating in Khamaukgyi, Karathuri, Bokpyin

NAY PYI TAW, 10 Sept—At Oil Palm Cultivation hall of Yuzana Co Ltd in Khamaukgyi in Kawthoung Township on 4 September evening, Maj-Gen Tha Aye of the Ministry of Defence, together with Chairman of Taninthayi Division Peace and Development Council Commander of Coastal Region Command Maj-Gen Khin Zaw Oo and officials, met national entrepreneurs who are engaged in oil palm cultivation in Taninthayi Division.

Chairman of Yuzana Co Ltd U Htay Myint handed five sets of computers and one set of printer for Khamaukgyi Basic Education High School to Chairman of Kawthoung District PDC U Min Aye Lwin.

On 5 September morning, Maj-Gen Tha Aye and party viewed production process of palm oil at the oil palm mill of the company. They also looked into production of natural fertilizer at 200-ton Organic Natural Fertilizer Plant.

At the oil palm plantation of Myanma Pharmaceutical Industries of the Ministry of Industry-1, they inspected milling of oil palm seeds.

After viewing thriving oil palm plantation of Yuzana Oil Palm Project along Khamaukgyi-Larathuri road, they grew oil palm plants at the designated places. Yuzana Co Ltd has established 200,000 acres of oil palm plantation.

They also oversaw use of fertilizers and thriving oil palm plantations of Po Kaung Co Ltd.

At the local battalion in Kyaukhtanaing, Maj-Gen Tha Aye met servicemen and family members and presented assistance items to the family members.

At the mile post 90, they viewed the small-scale hydropower generator built by the local battalion and thriving oil palm plantation of Annawa Tun Co Ltd at Chaungtabyar Camp.

They met with departmental officials and local people at the office of Karathuri General Administration Department. They visited Karathuri 16-bed Hospital. Director Dr Soe Tint of Health
